TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 40. NEW YORK, JANUARY 5, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS

CAPITALIST GIFTS AND WORKINGMEN'S PRIVILEGES.

The papers have been full of accounts of "Christmas gifts" from employers to their "hands"—some of them in the form of advances of wages or of infinitesimally small shares of the profits their labor had created. Two or three of these cases are worth noticing, more particularly.

M. C. D. Borden, cotton-mill owner of Fall River, Mass., restored to his employees the amount that they had lost since Nov. 16 through his cutting wages 10 per cent. on that day. In his notice Mr. Borden said:

"This is in no sense an increase of pay, but a Christmas offering to which the help, under the circumstances, are reasonably entitled."

He admits that the employees are ENTITLED to this money. Yet, after witholding it from them so long, he adds insult to injury by calling it "a Christmas offering."

From Cleveland, Ohio, it is announced that:

"The managers of the Pittsburg Steamship Company (a part of the Steel Trust) is collecting names of engineers to whom it is proposed to give bonuses ranging between $150 and $200 on this year's work. It was at first proposed to make those bonuses applicable only on next year's business, but it seems that Mr. Wolvin has decided to reward the engineers who have held with him firmly through this year by paying such bonuses now. Such action on the part of the steel corporation it is believed will lessen the probability of labor disputes next year."

In plain words, the Steel Trust thinks, by the judicious distribution of presents, to secure scabs for the next strike that may arise.

Best of all is the phrase of the owners of the Bourne cotton mills in Fall River, in announcing a sharing of profits, say to their employees:

"You are to be congratulated that constant employment has been your PRIVILEGE during the past year."

The use of the word "privilege" is highly appropriate. A privilege is something that cannot be claimed as a right, but that is granted as a favor by the good will of some person having the right to withold it. Under the capitalist system employment—that is, the opportunity fo work and to live—is a privilege in the strictest sense. No man who does not own capital can claim the right to work and earn his living. He can enjoy the opportunity to do this only by the favor of the capitalist. But the workingman has no reason to be thankful to his employer for this privilege. It is a privilege granted only when it is well paid for. The laborer or mechanic ro factory operative is permitted, as a privilege, to work hard all day, using tools and machinery that other workingmen (not the employer) have created, and pays for the privilege of thus earning his own scanty living by leaving in the hands of his employer one-half, two-thirds, or even three-quarters of the value of his product.

And yet, the capitalists have the insolence to claim the gratitude, of the workers for allowing them to toil and live, even on these hard terms.

Socialists proclaim the right to work, instead of the privilege of employment, but they demand more than that. They declare the right of the workers to the whole value of their product. The time is coming when men will read in history of the so-called "privilege of employment" and wonder, as we wonder now when we read that chattel slaves used to be thankful when their owners condescended to give them some little present or allow them an occasional holiday.

Gratitude is a virtue—when it is the gratitude of a freeman to his equal for a kindness freely and disinterestedly done. But the workingman who is grateful for the "privilege of steady employment" neither shows respect for himself nor commands the respect of others.

THE ATTACK FAILS.

Attempt to Unseat Socialist Delegates in Hudson County Trades Council Ends in Defeat.

Lively sessions are becoming the regular thing in the Essex County, N. J., Trades Council. At last Friday's session the sensation was the report of a committee elected the week before to "investigate" Comrade E. T. Neben, President of the Street Railway Employers' Union.

Delegate Henry Hilfers, who represented the Council in the Scranton convention, charged that Neben, Billings, and Rubinow, the delegates of the union in question had no right to a voice in the Council. He said: "These men are the whole thing in that union. I have talked to several of the street railway employees, and they don't know anything about it. I tell you, Mr. President, these delegates are here to represent something else besides the Street Railway Union."

"What are they here for?" asked Neben, followed by others.

"I'll tell you, gentlemen," continued Hilfers. "I'm not afraid to speak. They are here to represent the Socialist Party and nothing else. There's a nigger in the woodpile"—but here he was interrupted with cries of, "Yes, the nigger was at Scranton!"

Neben charged Hilfers with having violated his instructions at Scranton and with having deliberately stirred up trouble for the local organization of car men. "You stand here," he said, "trying to get me and my co-delegates out of this Council and trying to smash the union that it took seven months of hard work to organize, simply because we are Socialists." He charged Hilfers with having carried false reports to International President Mahon in order to be able to throw out trade union delegates who are also Socialists.

The report of the committe appointed at the previous session showed that all the charges against President Neben were unfounded and recommended that International President Mahon be requested to come to Newark and explain what passed between himself and Hilfers at Scranton and why he sanctioned the attack upon Neben. They further reported that the delegates withdraw till the matter was settled.

The opposing faction evidently did not know whether to accept this report or to oppose it. Comrade Neben challenged the fullest investigation and demanded that Mahon come to Newark and that all communications between Mahon and himself be laid before the Council. He did not believe Mahon would dare to come.

The controversy ended with a motion that the matter rest as it is until President Mahon comes. Thus the attack on the Socialist delegates was once more unsuccessful.

MIDDLE CLASS FAILURES.

"Bradstreet's" reports 225 failures in the United States during the week, against 262 for the previous week and 213, 220, 218, and 226 for the corresponding weeks of 1900 to 1897. About 92 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 6 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

——Many have lived on a pedestal, who will never have a statue when dead.—Beranger.

A BUNCO GAME BY "FRIENDS OF LABOR."

Chicago's Democratic Administration, to Save Money for Taxpayers, Adopts Worst Schemes of Private Corporations in Dealing with Injured Laborers.

The present city administration in Chicago has somehow got a reputation of being "progressive" and "friendly to labor." How little this reputation is deserved will be seen from a careful reading of the following press report of the newly adopted system of providing for laborers injured on public works:

"Chicago has tried an interesting experiment in assuring its own accident risks, in the Department of Public Works. In constructing the Thirty-ninth street sewer, the city has declared its independence of the insurance companies, effecting thereby a large saving. Commissioner Blockl reports that money spent on injuries has amounted to but 2 per cent. of the pay-roll. This is 4 per cent. less than insurance companies would have charged.

"Under the new arrangement, when a laborer is injured he is taken to the hospital, where he is treated. The city pays him his wages while he is there, and takes care of him. WHEN HE IS ABLE TO GO BACK TO WORK HE SIGNS A RELEASE, RELIEVING THE CITY FROM FURTHER RESPONSIBILITY. THIS DOCUMENT IS IN THE HANDS OF THE CITY OFFICIALS BEFORE HE GETS HIS WAGES FOR THE TIME HE HAS NOT WORKED. HE IS CONSTANTLY WATCHED BY THE CITY PHYSICIAN SO THAT HE CANNOT 'PLAY SICK' ON THEIR HANDS. Opportunity for this is not offered in the hospital, but it is when the laborer is taken ill at work and is sent home. In case a man is killed the city assumes the risk which heretofore has been shared by the insurance companies having the contract."

The words which we have put in large type show the purpose of the whole plan, which is not at all to give give better protection to the laborers who do the city's hard and dangerous work, but purely and simply to save expenses to the taxpayers.

The scheme of compelling the injured workingman to sign a paper relieving the city from all further responsibility, before his wages are paid for the time he is in the hospital, is on a par with the worst practises of railway and mining corporations.

A Socialist administration would institute quite a different plan. Representing the working class instead of the taxpayers, its first concern would be to take the most effective measures to prevent accidents, whether on public or private work, and then to assure to the victims of unavoidable accidents the amplest possible compensation for their loss and suffering. But from Mayor Harrison and "friends of labor" like him the workingmen had no right to expect anything but a bunco game such as is now being practised on them.

——I rejoice at every effort workingmen make to organize. I hail the labor movement. It is my only hope for democracy. Organize and stand together. Let the nation hear a united demand from the laboring voice.—Wendell Phillips.

FARMING BY MACHINE.

How the Methods of Great Capitalism Are Invading the Field of Agriculture in America.

The following dispatch, published in the New York "Evening Post," will be interesting reading to those who think that the methods of large capitalism can never be applied to agriculture in America:

"LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 18.—Farming is conducted upon a large and economic scale in many portions of southern California. In no locality has modern steam farming machinery been applied with such effectiveness as upon the grain ranches in southern California. On one ranch the engine used to draw the machinery is of fifty-horse-power, and has drive wheels eight feet high. It consumes twelve barrels of oil every day, and its operation requires the services of seven men. In ploughing, fifty-five furrows are turned over at one time, covering a breadth of forty feet. Eight horses are needed to keep the machine supplied with water and fuel. The best record made so far in ploughing is seventy-five acres in four hours and forty-five minutes. The field was five miles around, giving the great engine a straightaway course, with few turns, in making the record. In operating this though to the best advantage a water station is maintained at one corner of the field, from which the engine is supplied as needed. The average capacity of the machine is the ploughing of 110 acres per day.

"The use of this machine is not an experiment. Last year 6,000 acres were harvested by it. On a ranch of 1,000 acres it is an economic investment, but a smaller acreage would not warrant the outlay. Last season a combined harvester was drawn by the engine, and averaged over 1,000 acres of wheat in a day, cutting, thrashing, and sacking the crop. One of these great field engines is at work this season near Covina, displacing seventy mules."

LUMBER TRANSIT TRUST.

The Lumber Transit Company, a vessel-owning trust of the great lakes, is in process of formation. Its capital is $2,500,000, and application for a charter has been made in Maine. The boats to be purchased will be paid for partly in stock and partly in bonds.

All vessel owners interested in the carrying of lumber on the great lakes will meet in Detroit in about a week, immediately after the meeting of the Lake Carriers' Association. Every owner of tonnage carrying lumber will be invited to this conference, when plans for the trust will be laid before them, and they will be asked to come into the organization.

If the promoters succeed in getting from fifty to sixty vessels enrolled on the trust's books they will consider themselves masters of the situation. The movement for the consolidation of lumber carriers began a year ago.

PLASTER MAKERS COMBINE.

The plaster manufacturing plants of the country are to combine, with a capital stock of $10,000,000, says an officer of one of the Omaha concerns. All the details of the consolidation have been practically settled and the papers are now going the rounds to receive the signatures of the managers of the different plants. With the exception of three, every one of the plants in the country has entered the pool. It is expected that the three remaining concerns will be secured within a few days.

OTHER TRUST NOTES.

The Merchant's Association of Berlin, Germany, has sent a memorial to the Federal Council of the Empire advocating a law to permit and regulate trade combinations.

The American Sewer Pipe Company has been successful in forming a pool that will control the sewer pipe trade east of the Mississippi, including all the twenty-two independents. Uniform prices will be established, and agencies will be established in the principal cities. Arrangements are now pending to reach an agreement with the concerns west of the Mississippi.

A $10,000,000 hardware combination has been formed by San Francisco capitalists and incorporated in New Jersey under the name of the Pacific Hardware and Steel Company.

The Market Street Railway system of San Francisco has passed into the hands of the "Baltimore syndicate," which controls street railway systems in many other cities.

Two more national banks in Boston will merge; also two in Newark, N. J.

The Everett-Moore syndicate which has, within the last few months, acquired great numbers of trolley lines in Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio, has just added the Toledo and Maumee Valley and the Toledo, Waterville and Southern to its inter-state system.

Dividends of the Panhandle railway system, now owned by the Pennsylvania, are increased from 2 per cent. to 3. No news of a corresponding advance of wages.

The Lake Shore Railroad has acquired the Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, a short but very profitable line.

The Chicago, Iowa and Dakota Railroad has been absorbed by the Chicago and Northwestern.

The three national banks of Lowell, Mass., have combined.

Five of the largest importing and jobbing houses in Boston, handling toys, fancy goods, and druggists' sundries, have consolidated.

LABOR LAW NULLIFIED.

Pennsylvania Court Knocks Out Important Measure.

Law Against the "Pluck-me-Store" System Is Made Invalid—Infamous Practise by Which Mining Companies Keep Men in Dependence May Be Continued with Impunity.

The Dauphin County Court at Harrisburg, Pa., has found loopholes by which the mine owners and other capitalists may safely violate the "store order law" passed in the last legislative session.

The act imposed a tax, intended to be prohibitory, upon orders, checks, coupons, and pass-books representing wages in order to put an end to the "pluck me" system so largely in vogue in the mining regions and so highly profitable to the companies.

The court holds that the act does not apply, in one case, to orders given by employees upon employers, which the employers paid in cash when presented and in others to the practise of paying employees with envelopes containing the cash balance after deducting certain items from the gross earnings for a given time. This amounts to a decision that the whole law is not worth the paper it was written on, and that the companies may go on with the store-order system without any fear of prosecution.

THE STORE-ORDER SYSTEM.

Many are the petty tricks devised by employers to fleece their employees to the skin and make it absolutely impossible for them to save anything out of their scanty wages, and thus to keep them in abject and perpetual bondage. Of all these petty schemes, probably the most infamous is the "company store" system, which is practised most generally by the coal-mining corporations.

Under this system the workingman, as an individual, is helpless, bound hand and foot. The coal company is the only employer in the neighborhood. He can work and live only by that company's consent. The same company is the universal landlord. So soon as he quits work without permission, he can be evicted from the shanty that he calls his home. Finally, to rivet his chains past hope of breaking, the company has its stores, at which every employee is expected—and virtually compelled—to trade. Here he gets food and clothing for himself and his family, at the most exorbitant prices. His store account is regularly balanced against his wage account in the company's office. And the officials of the company carefully see to it that his cash balance on pay day is never enough to carry him through to the next pay day, so that he shall be kept forever in debt to the corporation which his labor has enriched.

MOTIVE OF THE SCHEME.

The motive for this scheme is more than the greed for a few additional pennies. It is a deliberate plan to keep the miner in such a state of dependence that he cannot resist the tyranny of his bosses. If he has no money he cannot even leave the mine and go elsewhere to seek work—as a last resort—except by tramping it and leaving his family behind to suffer, perhaps, from hunger and cold.

At almost every session of the legislature laws are enacted ostensibly to put an end to this abuse. Generally the company pays no attention to the laws; but when an attempt is made, under pressure from the labor organizations, to enforce the law, the courts always come to the rescue of the capitalists, either by deciding the law unconstitutional or, as in this case, by interpreting it in such a way that it has no effect.

This decision adds one more proof to the contention of the Socialists that workingmen cannot expect to get labor laws honestly passed and enforced unless they will nominate and elect members of their own class, distinctly representing their own class and no one else, as legislators, judges, and executive officers.

ICE CONSPIRATORS PROSPER GREATLY.

The American Ice Company or Ice Trust, which last year so nearly succeeded in its conspiracy with the government of New York City, has organized another company, with the same directors and the same plant, to carry on a retail coal business throughout the city during the half of the year when ice is not greatly in demand.

Neither the officers of this company nor the city officials who accepted their bribes have been punished, although the crime was brought to light some eighteen months ago. Workingmen accused of unlawfully conspiring to raise their wages can be "railroaded" to jail in less than that many days; but the guilty capitalists are allowed to prosper and grow under the protection of the law. "The way of the transgressor is hard"—unless the transgressor is a capitalist; in that case it is broad and easy. And so it will be until the working class takes the political power into its own hands.

——"It is doubtful whether the use of machinery has yet lightened the day's toil of a single human being," said John Stuart Mill. Reason: Private ownership. The efforts of the trade unions have slightly modified the truth of Mill's statement.

CAPITALIST OR WORKINGMAN.

The Choice in the Seventh Congressional District.

Christopher Ward Is the Workingmen's Candidate — Underhand Attempt to Keep His Name Off the Ballot.

Whether Millionaire Belmont or Croker's man O'Grady gets on the ballot in the Seventh Congressional District, will not make much difference to the workingmen who form the majority of the population there. Nor can Republican Lawyer Lessler nor the "independent" Brewer Lindinger come any nearer to representing their interests at Washington. But one man will be on the ticket—or the Social Democrats will be much mistaken—who stands fairly and squarely for the working class in Richmond, in Washington, or wherever he may be. His name is Christopher Ward and the emblem over it is the Arm and Torch.

An underhand scheme has been attempted to keep Ward's name off the ballot. The Board of Elections threw out the Social Democratic nomination certificate on the pretext that the provisions of the Primary Law had not been complied with. What made the matter worse, the Board GAVE NO NOTICE OF THIS ACTION to the candidate or to the party officers. Only by accident did their decision become known in time to checkmate the scheme.

As soon as Organizer Gerber heard of this attempt to shut out the Socialist candidate he called on the Board of Elections to explain its action. By a reference to the Election Law he was able to force President Voorhis to admit that Board's decision was not in accordance with the provisions of the law. Nevertheless, he said the Board could not reverse its own action, and that redress could be had only through an appeal to the courts.

An application for a mandamus has therefore been made to compel the placing of Christopher Ward's name on the ballot under the emblem of the Arm and Torch, as the candidate of the Social Democratic Party.

Let every workingman in the Seventh go to the polls next Tuesday and put a cross under that emblem as his protest against the tricks by which millionaire politicians seek to hold control over the working class. Every vote for Ward is a vote for the emancipation of Labor.

CORRUPT DEAL IS COMPLETED.

Stolen Franchises Which Agitated Philadelphia Last Summer Pass Into Hands of Railway Trust.

It is asserted upon the highest financial authority that the Widener-Elkins syndicate, which controls the Union Traction Company and operates the street car lines in Philadelphia (as well as in many other cities, has secured possession of all the franchises and rights granted by the Pennsylvania legislature and Philddelphia city council last June to a group of capitalists headed by Congressman Robert H. Foerderer, Jr., for surface, elevated, and underground railways in that city. Thus all possible chance of competition for years to come has been killed.

The absolutely free gift of these franchises by the Republican administration, caused a great sensation last summer. Foerderer, to quiet the agitation, made a public statement that under no circumstances would the franchises be sold to the Union Traction Company. But the faith of capitalists is as bad as that of princes.

The people of Philadelphia have but one means of redress. The majority of them are working people. Let them vote the Socialist ticket and thus put workingmen in office on a labor ticket, who will annul the franchises, make the street railways public property, and run them for public service, not for private profit.

"FORERUNNERS OF SOCIALISM."

On Sunday, Jan. 5, at 2 p. m., Morris Hillquit will open the series of lectures to Socialists in Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place (Eighth street.) The subject will be "The Forerunners of Socialism," this being the first of four lectures on the history of the movement. The following lectures by Comrade Hillquit will be:

Jan. 12.—"Modern Socialism."
Jan. 19.—"Communistic Experiments in the United States."
Jan. 26.—"Proletarian Socialism in the United States."

The historical side having been covered in these four lectures, other speakers will treat other aspects of the movement in later lectures.

This course has been arranged by the City Executive for the especial benefit of party members, many of whom will doubtless be glad of the opportunity to hear a systematic treatment of the whole subject by our most competent speakers. Although the lectures are primarily intended for party members, others will, of course, be welcome.

STRIKE STILL ON IN SAN FRANCISCO.

We have received from the Iron Trades Council of San Francisco a communication stating that the strike of the pattern makers, boiler makers, iron ship builders and helpers, steam fitters and helpers, core makers, molders, ship joiners, machinists and helpers and apprentices of San Francisco and the Pacific Coast for a nine-hour day is still on, newspaper reports to the contrary notwithstanding, and requesting all workmen in these trades to refuse to accept positions in that region in any capacity.

CHRISTMAS GIFT TO WORKINGMEN

Steel Trust Will Put In Machinery Which Will Displace Many Men, While Increasing the Output.

Among the much heralded "Christmas presents" from capitalists to workingmen, indicating the "brotherhood of Capital and Labor," there is one quietly announced in the daily press which must not be overlooked. Here is the dispatch:

"The United States Steel Corporation will at once take steps to reap the fruits of its victory over the Amalgamated Association of iron, steel and tin-plate workers during the great strike of the past summer. After the strike, all the important mills became non-union. In all of these, now that the opposition to labor-saving machinery has been overcome, new devices will be introduced, which are expected to result in a great saving, but which at the same time WILL THROW MANY MEN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT. * * *

"The American Tin Plate Company will install processes for making black plate, which will be largely automatic. MILLS WHERE THE ASSOCIATION MAY OBJECT WILL LIKELY BE CLOSED OR ABANDONED. The new machinery process will do from two-thirds to three-fourths of the work now done by hand in the hot mills, and the output will be materially increased."

There is only one thing for the steel workers to do. It was never wise to resist the introduction of improved machinery; the only wise action on pure and simple trade union lines was to force a reduction of hours in proportion as machinery was put in. But things have now gone too far for the steel workers to expect to do this effectively by trade union methods alone. We repeat, there is only one thing for them to do now. That is to vote solidly for Socialism—to make the iron and steel mills public property, with a working-class government to administer them, to cut off the profits of the useless plutocrats and devote the saving thus made to reducing the hours of labor and increasing the remuneration of the producers.

LABOR'S TRIBUTE TO CAPITALIST CLASS.

According to the New York "World," the amounts to be payed out in dividends on stock and interest on bonds by large corporations in the four leading cities of the country during the month of January, may be conservatively estimated as follows:

New York	$150,000,000
Boston	25,000,000
Philadelphia	20,000,000
Chicago	10,000,000
Total	$205,000,000

This, of course, represents but a small part of the tribute which Labor pays to the monopolizers of the means of production, but it is large enough to be very impressive. In the face of such figures, the petty "Christmas gifts," which some employers have thrown to their workers as one throws a bone to a dog, sink into insignificance.

RIOTOUS DEFENDERS OF LAW AND ORDER.

"SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26—During a fracas in a saloon near the Presidio, William Ross, of the Coast Artillery, was stabbed by an unknown soldier. A riot followed, stones and bricks were thrown, and two shots were fired. About 1,000 soldiers, it is estimated, were in the crowd. The provost guard and police had to be called out to restore order. Fifty-nine soldiers were put in the guard-house and fifteen others taken to police station."—Dispatch in daily press.

That's all. If a thousand strikers, on the verge of destitution, had engaged in such a riot, what a hullabaloo the capitalist press would have raised. We should at once have had a circumstantial account of how a union man had made a murderous assault upon one of those "free-workingmen" commonly known as "scabs," and there would have been long editorials pointing out that the unions are dangerous and criminal organizations.

But these rioters were Federal soldiers, defenders of law and order, upholders of "Old Glory," and so the incident is passed over lightly. Soldiers are necessary to fight the battles of capitalism abroad and at home—abroad to win new markets or new supplies of cheap labor, at home to keep down the wicked fellows who go on strike.

The worst of it is that this is no isolated case. Many such riots, some much worse than this, have occurred among the soldiers within the last three years. It is a natural outcome of militarism, which, in its turn, is a natural outcome of the capitalist system. A Socialist state could get along without professional killers and destroyers, because it would have no incentive to foreign war and it would have no subject class to be kept under control within its own borders.

THE SPY SYSTEM.

The manufacturers of Ohio are now organizing an anti-Union Trust, one that dare not employ leaders or agitators. Spies and detectives have been employed to search out the meetings for evidence. Of course, it is the workingmen who do things unjustly. The bosses no doubt claim, they have a right to do so, but if the Union men made such an attempt they surely would be enjoined—and still the sun shines on.—The Tobacco Worker.

——The greatest of all calamities is the contentment that sits down at peace with a remedial evil.—William Smith.

THE SKELETON IN SOCIETY'S CLOSET.

Thousands Born and Buried by Grace of Capitalistic Charity.

Appalling Destitution Revealed by Charity Statistics—Families Living on Seventy Cents a Day—One-Tenth of New York's People Come Into the World and Go Out as Paupers.

The annual report of the Society of teh Lying-In Hospital for the year ending Sept. 30 has just been issued. The number of the society's patients shows a large increase over the services of last year, the number of applicants being 3,757, an increase of 739. Of these the society visited and relieved 2,723. The whole number of births in the Borough of Manhatan during the year was 50,288, being 244 LESS than a year ago. The extent of the society's work, according to the report, during the year, amounted to MORE THAN 5 PER CENT. OF THE TOTAL NUMBER OF BIRTHS and an increase of 1 per cent. over the services of last year.

The report states that of the women visited, the average wages received by the husbands amounted to $28.26 per month, the average rent being $8.54 per month, leaving a total balance of LESS THAN SEVENTY CENTS A DAY TO PROVIDE FOR EACH FAMILY. These figures are published, the report says, to prove the destitute condition of the class cared for by the society and the absolute impossibility of their saving anything for medical attendance.

It must be remembered that this lying-in hospital is only one of a number of such institutions; that relief of all kinds is provided by hundreds of other charitable organizations; that thousands of people received aid from fraternal societies, trade unions, sick and death benefit organizations, and churches and that the amount privately given by individuals to those in distress probably far exceeds all the work of organized charities.

Yet more than 5 per cent. of the total number of women in child-birth are cared for by this society alone. And, as Jacob Riis has proved, 10 PER CENT. OF THOSE WHO DIE IN NEW YORK ARE BURIED IN POTTER'S FIELD, to say nothing of those buried by the charity of various societies and trade unions.

The Society of the Lying-in Hospital is to have a new hospital, the gift of J. Pierpont Morgan, who accumulates millions of dollars every year while thousands live and die in misery and destitution.

THE CHARITY OF CAPITALISM.

Capitalism, the system of individual greed by which one class in society fattens upon the labor of another, has reached a stage of development under which the disinherited classes are brought into life by charity, sustained by charity, and buried by charity—the charity of those who rob humanity, the charity of the slave-drivers who, by their private ownership of the means of life, are enabled to despoil the workers of the fruits of their toil.

It is not too much to say that if all charity, private and public, were suddenly and completely discontinued, there would be a bloody revolution within a month's time. Charity lulls the people to sleep, keeps them from resenting their wrongs and makes them forget to look for the causes of their misery. The charity of the blood-stained masters of bread, parading in robes of sanctity and benevolence, is the surest guard of their safety.

UNPRECEDENTED PROSPERITY.

And while people are born, by the grace of charity, into a life of misery, to slave for the charity mongers and be buried in a pauper's grave, the festivities of Fifth Avenue and the revels of the rich are unparalleled in all the annals of ancient Rome. Last summer the papers gave glowing accounts of a banquet to the dogs of the rich at Newport, while children were starving in the streets of New York. This Christmas we read reports of the thousands of dinners given away to the poor—more than ever before. If these people cannot get a decent dinner on Christmas, the merriest holiday of all the year, how much of a dinner do you suppose they get on the other 364 days of the year? But these Christmas dinners are an evidence of P-r-o-s-p-e-r-i-t-y. Has not Senator Depew told us that we must find a foreign market for the two billion dollars worth of merchandise which we cannot use in this country?

SOCIALISM THE REMEDY.

In Socialism will be found the only remedy for these terrible contrasts of rags and riches. The Socialist sees through all the mockeries of this charity necessitated by social injustice, and doled out by those who are the beneficiaries of an industrial system which enriches the few at the expense of the many. Socialism is here to educate and organize the victims of the vampire, Capitalism; to unite them for the capture of the powers of government for the purpose of doing away with the system which enables the plutocrats to plunder the people, and bringing in, in its stead, the common ownership of the means of production, whereby each will receive the opportunity to work and enjoy the fruits of his toil. And in the glad time of its triumph, misery, the mother of Charity, will disappear and the reign of real prosperity for all will begin.

THE VOTE IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Official Report Gives S. D. P. 957 for Mayor of Boston—S. L. P. Lost Half Its Vote—Additional Figures for State Election.

The Social Democratic (Socialist Party) vote for John Weaver Sherman for Mayor of Boston, in the late city election, as given out by the Election Commissioners, is 957. In 1900 he received 967 votes for the same office, The S. L. P. candidate, Raasch, has 426, as against 978 cast for Stevens, their candidate in 1900.

For Street Commissioner, Stephen O'Shaughnessy, S. D. P., had 1,983; John W. Johnson, S. L. P., 1,150.

For School Committee, three-year term, eight to be elected, the S. D. P. nominated seven, who received the following votes: Martha Moore Avery, 11,530; Patrick Mahoney, 9,785; Stephen O'Leary, 9,461; Jacob Epstein, 7,574; David Taylor, 7,004; Moses Koulkow, 4,944; Samantha Merrifield, 4,852; average vote, 7,879.

The S. L. P. nominated six candidates, whose votes ranged from 1,708 to 4,354, with an average of 2,548.

Figures may now be given for the votes cast for the various district offices in the state election.

For Executive Council we had candidates in all of the eight districts and cast 17,985 votes; in 1900 we nominated in but two and cast but 4,316 votes. The S. L. P. in 1900 had candidates in six districts, who received 9,156 votes; this time they had none.

We had candidates for District Attorney in five of the eight districts and polled for them 23,813 votes. The S. L. P. made no nomination.

For Sheriff we had candidates in six of the fourteen districts and cast 33,735 votes. The S. L. P. had no candidates.

For Clerk of Court we had candidates in five of the sixteen districts and cast 37,082 votes. The S. L. P. had no candidates.

For Senators we had candidates in twenty-six of the forty districts and their aggregate vote was 13,497. In the previous year we nominated in fifteen districts and cast 9,011 votes. The S. L. P. had but three candidates, instead of sixteen as in 1900, and cast but 907 votes, instead of 3,929.

Squire E. Putney, State Secretary for Massachusetts, writes:

"The results of the last election indicate the great need of educational work for Socialism in Massachusetts. Whereas we expected a large gain in our vote, we lost votes. It is certain that we have many who, from various sentimental reasons, vote a Socialist ticket now and then, but who, not really well grounded in the principles of our movement, cannot be depended upon for continuous fealty to our cause.

"To hold these people with us, and to gain further numerical strength, we must at once commence our work for education. This is imperative, pressing, and must be at once attended to.

"It would seem that too much effort had been made to take advantage of some local distemper in various places, to elect some one to office, rather than, by education, to build a large, universal power for Socialism throughout the state.

"I therefore urge our comrades throughout the state at once to arrange a tour for Chas. H. Vail during the month of February. Comrade Vail cannot be excelled for the work he has been selected for. An excellent speaker, having a complete knowledge of the practical and scientific sides of Socialism, he is well equipped to do the work we need so much in this state. And now, during the winter season, is the best time to make use of his talent.

"Do not put off the work to the hubbub of an election time. Then the capitalist parties have all of the advantage; for education, such as ours, now is the best time.

"The expense will be $10 for each lecture, to be paid to Comrade Vail at time of lecture; he to pay all of his own expenses. The dates of Feb. 7, 8, 9, 10, and from the 15th to the last of the month are now open.

"To work, comrades. The harvest is great, but the workers are few."

Communications in regard to this matter should be addressed to Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.

EXTENT OF RAILWAY COMBINES.

The extent of recent railway combinations is hinted at by the following published statement in regard to the Baltimore and Ohio:

"A notable result of the reorganization of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company under the direction of the Pennsylvania is the doubling of the former system's mileage. The consolidation of recently acquired properties with the main system has increased the total mileage from 2,600.97 to 4,357.15. The great growth is the result of uniting the Baltimore and Ohio proper with the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern, Ohio River, Pittsburg and Western, Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling, and other acquired lines."

The B. & O. thus absorbs independent lines aggregating 65 per cent. of its own former mileage, and is itself, with all these acquisitions, made a dependency upon the Pennsylvania.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.—
25 per week, one year	7.00
50 per week, one year	12.50

As far as possible, rejected communications will be returned if so desired and stamps are enclosed.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

FOR SOCIALIST EDUCATION.

Party members in New York City and vicinity cannot do better than to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the City Executive for a systematic and general survey of the subject of Socialism in its various phases, by regularly attending the course of lectures to be held in Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place, on Sunday afternoons, beginning on Jan. 5.

We have many party members, especially among the newer recruits, who desire a thorough understanding of the movement, but who have little time for reading and who do not know how to begin or how to guide themselves in such a study. Their Socialist education, aside from the hearing of mere propaganda lectures (unavoidably disconnected, if not more or less superficial), and from reading occasional pamphlets and the casual discussions in the party press, is necessarily very incomplete.

Now there is no movement which so imperatively requires in its members a clear understanding and a thorough knowledge in so wide a field as does the Socialist movement. Every comrade is—or should be—a propagandist of our principles and an educator of his fellow workingmen. In order that his work should be done well, he must himself be well trained in Socialist principles.

With these considerations in view, the City Executive has arranged for a somewhat extended course, in which different aspects of the movement will be taken up in order by the best qualified lecturers that can be had. Morris Hillquit will give the first four lectures, taking up the history of the movement as an introduction.

In order to get the fullest benefit from these lectures, the comrades should take especial pains to attend them regularly and to be at the hall promptly at 2 p. m., so that there shall be no delay. Persons who are not party members, but are interested in the subject, will be welcome and will find it worth their while to attend.

We are glad to see that our Massachusetts comrades, in arranging for Charles H. Vail's lecture tour in February, recognize the same need which the City Executive of New York is seeking to fill with the Happy Day Hall lectures—the need for Socialist education, as well as Socialist propaganda. In Boston and in Haverhill, and probably in some other cities, Comrade Vail is to give four lectures instead of one, giving a more thorough and systematic treatment of the subject than is possible in a single lecture. The idea is an excellent one and should be put into practise wherever possible.

The supporters of the "industrial peace" scheme are rejoicing in the fact that Grover Cleveland has accepted a place on the Committee of Thirty-seven. He will be one of the representatives of "the public" (whatever that is), who are to hold the balance between the representative capitalists and the labor leaders. Railroad men who remember how he sent Federal troops to crush the A. R. U. strike in 1894 will not have much faith in his impartiality and his presence on the committee will not strengthen their confidence in it or their respect for the labor leaders who have gone into it.

EXTENDING THE PREROGATIVE.

Those who hoped that the change in the office of Postmaster General would mean a check to Madden's outrageous course are doomed to disappointment. Representative Loud, who has been trying for years to get this same policy enacted into law by Congress, called on President Roosevelt to ask whether Madden would be sustained. "This is my policy," said the President. "It is the policy of my message, and it embodies the desire of the Post Office Department for years. There will be no change in it and no retreat."

This means more than that the Administration is committed to Madden's illiberal policy in this particular matter. Its larger meaning is this: Year after year Congress has considered Loud's proposals and voted them down; now the executive branch of the government, without consulting Congress, proceeds to put into effect the policy that Congress has repeatedly repudiated; and the strenuous President defiantly declares that "there will be no backing down." It is a part of the general tendency to enlarge the arbitrary prerogative of the executive branch at the expense of the legislative, and is quite in line with the world-wide policy of imperialism, dictated by the commercial interests of the capitalist class.

Another significant piece of news relating to the same matter comes from Washington simultaneously with this. The dispatch says:

"Representative Loud, Chairman of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, had a talk with the President to-day about postal legislation. Mr. Loud says that one-cent postage is out of the question. Under present conditions," said he, 'penny postage would result in a deficit of $35,000,000 annually.'"

The great argument in favor of Loud's bill for restricting newspaper mail privileges has been that penny postage on letters would thus be made possible. Now that the restriction has been established by executive power, over the heads of the legislators, that pretense is abandoned and we are told that "penny postage is out of the question."

Of course it is. With a great railroad capitalist as Postmaster General, representing the gang that gets tens of millions of dollars of loot every year on the mail-carrying contracts, nothing else is to be expected. And this shameless abandonment of the old pretext for the Loud Bill is only one more of the many examples of capitalist hypocrisy that current history is giving us.

The appointment of Railroad Capitalist Payne as Postmaster General is quite in keeping with the whole capitalist policy of the administration. Mr. Payne will see to it that the railway corporations continue to be overpaid for carrying the mails and Third Assistant Flunkey Madden will make the resulting deficit an excuse for shutting out Socialist and trade union papers.

THE MOTIVE OF PROFIT-SHARING.

Socialists have repeatedly pointed out that "profit-sharing" schemes are based on the self-interest of the employers and that profit-sharing is one of the most scientific and effective forms of exploitation. By offering his employees a small share in the profits which they create for him, the capitalist is safe-guarded against strikes and other expensive annoyances arising from discontent. Moreover, in order to make their tiny share in the profits as large as possible, the wage-slaves work harder and render much larger profits to their masters, so that by paying a little more to his employees the capitalist greatly increases his own unearned income. "Benevolence" pays. If it didn't, you wouldn't find the capitalist engaged in it, for "business is business."

All of which is admitted in a circular recently issued to the employees of the Bourne Mill, in Fall River, Mass., which reads as follows:

"After an eighth of a century of trial, the board of directors has voted to continue profit-sharing another year. By a special vote, the limit of your participation has been doubled.

"I wish to say that the advanced schedule will be maintained here AS LONG AS THE MANAGEMENT CONTINUES TO BELIEVE THAT THE CORPORATION RECEIVES AN EQUIVALENT FOR THE EXTRA MONEY PAID TO YOU, BUT NO LONGER. Aside from any sentiment of philanthropy which may lurk in the motive of a broad-minded employer of a large number of workmen, it seems to me there is good business reason for high wages PROVIDED A MINIMUM COST IS SECURED BY A MAXIMUM WAGE. We have the express purpose of securing improved products at lower cost with higher wage scales."

It is surely not necessary to add any comment. The capitalists' own words show that their boasted "philanthropy" is only a matter of dollars and cents for themselves.

A printer recently put the whole question of the relation of employer and employee to us in these words: "We know that we're sweating blood for them now and they want us to sweat more blood, and we've got to fight them." That is the simple fact and no profit-sharing schemes or "industrial peace" conferences can permanently obscure the issue. It is a class war, and it must be fought out to the end—to defeat for Capital and victory and emancipation for Labor in the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth.

To match the appointment of Railway Capitalist Payne as Postmaster General, Oil Capitalist Shaw has been chosen to be Secretary of the Treasury. Wall Street, it was reported, was alarmed to hear that Gage was to retire and give place to Shaw, but on being assured that Shaw had become a millionaire without having done any work, Wall Street recovered its good humor. Shaw is a "safe" man. Let the workingmen rejoice that a trusty millionaire is still to be at the head of the Treasury Department and that their "prosperity" is safe.

The heavy losses of stockholders in the Asphalt Trust do not at all indicate that trustification is unprofitable or that the asphalt workers got the full value their labor produced. They merely indicate that capitalists are just as dishonest in their dealings with each other as in their dealings with the working people, and that when some big "promoters" get a chance to fleece the innocent lambs of "investors" they shear as close as possible. It is no new story.

OFFICE-SEEKERS? OH' NO!

The New York "Times," one of the most active supporters of the "reform" ticket in the late campaign, publishes the following interesting bit of news:

"Dissatisfaction is reported in the ranks of the Citizens' Union regarding the patronage given the organization by Mayor-elect Low and his appointees and it is expected to manifest itself at a special meeting of the Executive Committee, which has been called for next Monday at the headquarters, 31 Union Square East.

"Members were saying yesterday that R. Fulton Cutting, the president of the organization, would hear some unpleasant things, notwithstanding the fact that very recently the Union unanimously adopted resolutions heartily commending Mr. Cutting for his management of its affairs. Mr. Cutting has readily indorsed applications for appointments addressed to Low, and his closing sentence in his letters almost invariably was: 'If the bearer is not appointed, I shall not be displeased.'

"Many members think that active members of the Union should not be office-seekers; and they are very much displeased to learn that of the Executive Committee of Twenty, 50 per cent. have secured positions, viz.: E. R. L. Gould, James B. Reynolds, Arthur F. Crosby, John B. Eustis, George E. Blackwell, J. Hampden Dougherty, Homer Folks, W. A. Coggswell, Willis L. Ogden, and Alexander C. McNulty."

Of course, these gentlemen are not office-seekers. They are disinterested "reformers," and greatness has been thrust upon them.

It is not clear just what is the ground of the dissatisfaction in the Citizens' Union. Is it because these ten leaders got offices? Or is it because the others get none and because President Cutting did not insist on enough plums to go round? We wait to be informed.

While Connecticut people are learning to raise Sumatra tobacco, the growing of wheat is being introduced with good success in Sierra Leone and the Upper Niger region. The natural differences between different countries—even between torrid and temperate zones—are sinking into insignificance before the achievements of modern science. This is one more illustration of the internationalism of the present, and still more of the coming times. Upon differences of soil, climate, etc., have rested chiefly the social and political distinctions and the differences in economic interest which have in the past separated the nations of the earth and kept them apart. The Socialist, therefore, in disregarding national divisions and proclaiming the international solidarity of labor, is only recognizing the tendency of industrial progress and striving to adapt political and social institutions to new economic conditions.

It is announced that fortifications around London are being hurried to completion and that those finished are being armed with modern guns and got ready to receive their garrisons. In the old days the British used to boast that

"Britannia needs no bulwarks, no towers along the steep;
Her home is on the mountain wave, her march is on the deep."

The change is significant, both of the relative decline of Great Britain before the general advance of international capitalism and of the growing fear that the fierce competition of all the capitalist nations for control of the world market may at any moment result in the outbreak of new wars upon a large scale. Capitalism is war, and war is hell.

THE PLUTOCRAT'S DREAM.

$1000000000000000000000000000000000

—The Whim.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

THE OYSTERS AND THE STARFISH.

The inhabitants of Oyster Village had lived contentedly for a long time on their rich Mud Flat, and, as food was abundant, they increased in size and numbers. Then, one day, along came a swarm of curious, little, five-armed creatures, who settled down on the village and began sucking the oysters from their shells. Whereupon the villagers called a meeting to discuss the strange visitors and their peculiar tastes.

"This is evidently a Dispensation of Providence," said a Venerable oyster, "we must submit in patience to the Divine Will."

"Simply the operation of Natural Laws," said the Scientific oyster. "You know those soft, slimy creatures are much better fitted to survive than we Hard-shells."

"The starfish own this mud-flat, and the oysters they eat are merely Rent for allowing us to live on their Property," put in an oyster who had studied political economy.

"Fighting starfish develops the highest characteristics of a true mollusk," said a Strenuous oyster.

"W mustn't say anything harsh against these Gentle Blood-suckers," murmured a Dub oyster, "for fear a Star-fish might get killed, and then we would all be called Anarchists."

"I have heard of a good many Mud Flats, and am told that wherever there are oysters there are always starfish, so it is evident that if it were not for the starfish there wouldn't be any oysters," remarked a Philosophical oyster.

"Yes, it's sad that so many of us are sick and dying because of the starfish sucking up their substance," said the Charitable oyster, "but see what an opportunity it gives the fortunate ones to show their Benevolence to the poor."

"I don't see why we should allow ourselves to be devoured by a lot of Parasites," protested a young oyster. "I don't care if it is the Will of Providence, or the law of the Survival of the Fittest, I object to being eaten."

Whereupon all the other oysters joined in a chorus of "Agitator," "Disturber of Society," "Socialist," "Anarchist," and a resolution declaring that the people of Oyster Village were law abiding citizens was unanimously adopted, while the radical young oyster was so frightened by the result of his protest that he wandered out of the parental bed and was washed ashore on the beach and drowned.

MORAL: Don't be discontented. Be a Clam.—By Whidden Graham, in the Mirro.

THE ROBBER BARONS.

Money is now exactly what mountain promontories over public roads were in old times. The barons fought for them fairly; the strongest and cunningest got them, then fortified them, and made everyone who passed below pay toll. Well, capital now is exactly what crags were then. Men fight fairly (we will, at least, grant so much, though it is more than we ought) for their money; but, once having got it, the fortified millionaire can make everybody who passes below pay toll to his million, and build another tower of his money castle. And I can tell you, the poor vagrants by the roadside suffer now quite as much from the bag baron as ever they did from the crag-biron. Rags and crags have just the same result on rags.—John Ruskin.

THE MODERN SLAVE

Civilized man has not outgrown his barbaric ideas. In his savage state he thought the strong men had a right to make the weak men their slaves. His idea of freedom was that all men should have the liberty to fight, and that the weak men forfeited this right when they were conquered by the strong. We still believe in fighting. Our industrial competition is a continual warfare. The modern weak men are those who have neither land or machinery. They have nothing to sell but their labor. They have to sell it to the men who own the land and machinery. The owners of land and machinery are the masters of the men who have to sell their labor for wages, and we believe this system is right because we all have the freedom to fight for the right to work. In olden times the physical strength of the strong men gave them the power to make the weak men their slaves; now the owners of land and machinery make the propertiless men their slaves. The ancient slaves had to meet and conquer their masters in battle before they could free themselves. The modern wage slaves can free themselves by voting for Socialism. Under Socialism there will be no masters and no slaves. Men will not fight to get work to make profits or wages. They will co-operate with each other to make life happy for all.—The New Era, Philadelphia, Pa.

STAY ON THAT BOX.

If the class-conscious worker, with his "rough apeparance and uncouth manners," perched upon his soap box, using "such bad English," has brought the Socialist movement to its present success, he is perfectly able to handle it still. He must not get down off that box; if he does, he abdicates his throne to the middle class reformers just as sure as he is a foot high, and don't you forget it. The wage workers have not become so well educated, within the short period of a year or two as to require perfect grammar and brilliant oratory to make them understand the class struggle and how it affects them.

If it is the wage worker who must rise to the positions heretofore occupied by his teachers, preachers, and bosses, then he must force his way into those positions in spite of the fact that the present occupants will attempt to hold onto them by shouting for Socialism in the abstract and nothing more.

For thousands of years the workers have listened. It is now time they did a little talking and acting for themselves.

It is all right to "lift Socialism out of the mud," but unless the wage workers do the lifting, by raising themselves in the economic and social scale, we fail to see how the wage workers will be benefited by Socialism! Keep your places on the box, boys!—Wage Worker.

—It is only by labor that thought can be made healthy, and only by thought that labor can be made happy. —John Ruskin.

Current Literature

THE PHILISTINE. December, 1901. East Aurora, N. Y.

H. Gaylord Wilshire has roused the ire of the "Philistine," a journal of art and Advertising, which is published for the elect few and has a circulation of only 110,000. The "Philistine" is got out by Elbert Hubbard, alias Fra Elbertus, alias The Pastor. From time to time there are to be found therein many preachments on the joy of minding your own business and being kind, in which the Pastor admonishes the faithful to surround their respective Egos with an aura of love and send out vibrations of loving kindness to all humanity. But when any brother scribe displeases him, the gentle Hubbard sits down to write with a Dictionary of Billingsgate at one hand and a copy of the Libel Laws at the other and uses as much of the former as he can without violating the latter. Hubbard has done some good things in this line—we remember particularly the rhetorical roasts of the prig Professor Peck and a certain Holy Hills—but his present attack on Wilshire is merely a series of shrieks and squeaks, with but faint fat etiousness.

Hubbard's objection to Wilshire seems to be based on the fact that "Wilshire has Van Dyke whiskers, check pants, a hot vest and tan shoes." Shades of Philistia! Hubbard wears a hat of dimensions which necessitate its removal whenever he passes through a doorway, and a Chinese silk necktie which strikes him in the solar plexus. This necktie was once worn by Mr. Richard Le Gallienne as a sash. Hubbard has no hair on the top of his head, the place where the hair ought to grow, but a fringe of locks which the scythe of Time, like the scissors of the barber, has spared, falls to his shoulders, done into beautiful hand-made curls. He also sports a Soulful Gaze and a Seraph Smile. This Large, Luscious Personality is one of Hubbard's most valuable assets. And yet he bases his criticism of Wilshire on personal peculiarities! Hubbard's singular Get-up is doubtless more artistic than Wilshire's Glad Raiment—but is it not strange that a man of his fearful and wonderful appearance should criticise the personal peculiarities of a brother Unconventionalist? As a vaudeville team Elbert and Gaylord would make a notable hit.

As an advertiser Fra Elbertus is an artist. Hubbard is probably the greatest self-advertiser in the land, with Wilshire a close second and Mr. Bok a winded third. The Pastor's show of spleen savors of professional jealousy. The December number of the "Philistine" shows too many of "the loving marks of the Hammer." The Hammer and the James seem to be the only tools left in the Roycroft kit. The Roycroft Roaster should re-read a certain preachment of his own on Knocking, known as "Chicago Tongue." We admire the wit that withers or the rage that roars, if it roars effectively; but we do not enjoy the back-fence acrimony of a common scold, and it is this quality which characterizes the Pastor's recent regrettable effort.

We do not write these lines in defense of Wilshire, nor because we approve of his methods. Wilshire says so much about himself that it is unnecessary for anyone else to add anything. But there is a principle involved. Wilshire has been made the victim of Edwin Czar Madden, Third Assistant Postmaster General, the fatuous flunkey who is trying to suppress Socialist and labor papers by a denial of second class rates. Wilshire has been denied the right of petition and his magazine has been driven to Canada, but he is not the only one who has had to suffer the persecutions arising from class rule. These outrageous violations of the constitutional rights of a free press should meet with universal and indignant protest. Hubbard thinks that Wilshire taunts Madden with having been a locomotive fireman. He errs. Madden is one of the species known as "Labor Fakirs," who used his position in the labor movement to boost himself into office under a capitalistic government. That such an individual should now be endeavoring to suppress Socialist publications is the cause of Wilshire's sarcasm.

We are sorry that Hubbard has gone grievously wrong in this matter, for he has written many strong and beautiful things—and stolen some others which are even better. It is reported that Madden is going to get after the "mail order journals" next and there are those who think this might include the "Philistine"—so Fra Elbertus had better keep mum. If the "Philistine" should be suppressed, whether by Madden or Anthony Comstock, we should all mourn, for many good things have appeared therein. Wilshire's magazine was suppressed for the remarkable reason that it was published to "advertise his ideas." Now if Hubbard has any ideas he is in danger. At least he "advertises" other people's ideas, and Mr. Madden isn't likely to distinguish. For the ideas which Wilshire advertised were the ideas of Karl Marx, just as the ideas which Hubbard advertises are part of the ideas of William Morris. And by the way, William Morris was also a disciple of Karl Marx, and a Socialist agitator and member of the same Social Democratic Federation in England as was Wilshire.

Fra Elbertus has a great deal to say about Morris' ideals of work and art but nothing to say about Morris as a revolutionist. Morris knew that work would become art and life be free and joyous only under Socialism, and he worked for Socialism as the only state of society under which the fulfillment of his ideals would become possible. But his disciple at East Aurora hobnobs with the plutocrats, and writes such things as "The Message to Garcia" for the use of the plutes who are looking for docile slaves. Hubbard doesn't want any social change. Oh no, the present Graft is good enough for him, thank you.

Fra Elbertus should take a Little Liver Pill and return to the spirit which animated his earlier days, before Success had soured his style and stultified his soul.

COURTENAY LEMON.

With "The Era of Exclusiveness Is Past" for a text, "The World's Work" for January devotes its space largely to the political and commercial expansion of the country. In "Our New Horizon" Frederick Emory gives a broad view of America's new international activities. Chalmers Robert relates stories of American ministers abroad, and Gaillard Hunt, in a well illustrated article, tells how the consular service should be reorganized. The rapid growth of Pacific Coast trade is vividly shown in "The New Pacific Empire," by George Hamlin Fitch, and a striking incident in it is told by Arthur Goodrich in his description of the building of the biggest ships in the world, "Merchantmen Twice as Big as Men-of-War," to ply between Seattle and the Orient. The so-called American invasion of England is discussed by Ulysses D. Eddy in "Our Special Partner—England," and in "More Stories" by an American in England. Remarkable developments in the trade with Spain since the war are related by Edward Lowry, and Henry Harrison Lewis tells of the adventures of American goods abroad. The new relations with the people of our own continent are interpreted by Oscar King Davis, writing from the Pan-American Congress in Mexico, and W. Woodville Rockhill, the Director of the Bureau of American Republics. Handsomely illustrated articles of the famous Briarcliff Farm in New York, by Mary C. Blossom, and a "Day's Work on a Cattle Ranch," by Earl Mayo, give variety to this special "looking outward" number. Many stories and interesting facts about our foreign trade are told in "Among the World's Workers," in which appear, also, letters from consuls stationed in various lands. The magazine will be found quite as valuable to those who do not sympathize with its apotheosis of commercialism as to those who do.

STEPHEN THE BLACK. By Caroline H. Pemberton. Philadelphia: Geo. W. Jacobs & Co. Cloth, 252 pages. Price, $1.

"Stephen the Black" is a social problem novel—a story dealing with or, at least, illustrating the negro question—but that does not prevent it from being a good novel. The author's sympathies and her opinions are plainly in evidence, but the narrative is directly and interestingly told and not overloaded with comment or discussion.

The story is a sad one—though not without its relieving or contrasting scenes of humor and of beauty—and presents the tragedy of the negro race in more than one of its aspects: In Stephen's devotion to the task of educating his people—his unavailing hope that by this means they could be really emancipated; in Theresa's struggle between love, honor, and loyalty to the race to which she but half belonged; in the internal conflict in Ralph Aikens, her white lover (or suitor), too, between his generous impulses and the class morality to which he had been trained. Doubtless the characters are more or less idealized; but they are nevertheless real types.

When we speak of the tragedy of the negro race, we use the word tragedy strictly, not in its cheap and common sense. The essence of tragedy is that its sad and terrible catastrophes are not accidents, do not arise from the arbitrary good or bad will of individuals, but follow inevitably from the operation of some great force, whose workings we, the onlookers, can trace, though often the actors and victims cannot. Such a tragedy is the life of the colored people in this country. It is as idle to impute the blame for their sufferings to the wickedness of their white masters as to impute it to their own depravity. Both act and both suffer under the compelling force of the developing economic system. Doubtless wisdom and good will on both sides may do much to shorten the process and to ameliorate its evils, as folly may impede and aggravate it; but the cause and law of the process is to be found in the economic system, not in individual morality. Although the author was not a Socialist and probably knew little of Socialism when she wrote "Stephen the Black," she seems to have got already a pretty clear perception of this fact.

THE WOLF AT THE DOOR.

There's a haunting horror hear us
That nothing drives away—
Fierce lamping eyes at nightfall,
A crouching shade by day;
There's a whining at the threshold,
There's a scratching at the floor—
To work! to work! in heaven's name!
The wolf is at the door!

The day was long, the night was short,
The bed was hard and cold;
Still weary are the little ones,
Still weary are the old;
We are weary in our cradles
From our mother's toil untold;
We are born to hoarded weariness,
As some to hoarded gold.

We will not rise! We will not work!
Nothing the day can give
Is half so sweet as an hour of sleep;
Better to sleep than live!
What power can stir these heavy limbs?
What hope these dull hearts swell?
What fear more cold, what pain more sharp,
Than the life we know so well?

To die like a man by lead or by steel
Is nothing that we should fear;
No human death would be worse to feel
Than the life that holds us here.
But this is a fear that no heart can face—
A fate no man can dare—
To be run to the earth and die by the teeth
Of the gnawing monster there.

There's a hot breath at the keyhole,
And a tearing as of teeth!
Well do I know the bloodshot eyes
And the dripping jaws beneath!
There's a whining at the threshold—
There's a scratching at the floor—
To work! to work! in heaven's name!
The wolf is at the door!

GET OFF THE EARTH.

Every Englishman may claim a right to abide in his own country so long as he pleases, and not to be driven from it except by sentence of the law. But if one landlord has a right to drive all the people from his estate, every other landlord has the same right; and as every piece of the land in the island is held by one landlord or other, and as all would have the same right as the first driver, all the people, except the landlords, might be driven into the sea.—Blackstone.

FROM THE "APPEAL."

In the "Appeal to Reason" of Nov. 30, among many communications from Republican and Democratic readers who are indignant at the policy of suppression attempted by the Post Office Department, we find the following:

"Have always voted the Republican ticket, but if your paper is not done justice in the postoffice department, I will vote STRAIGHT DEMOCRATIC hereafter."—S. Hartellus, Brooklyn, N. Y.

'Nuff sed!

—If you will make a man of the working creature, you cannot make him a tool.—John Ruskin.

Over the Water

A second Socialist member has been elected to the Swedish Chamber, Larsen, the candidate of the party, having been returned with a majority of 90.

The "Arbeiter Zeitung" of Vienna, the chief organ of the Austrian Socialists, has been forbidden to circulate within the limits of the German Empire for two years, this being the official punishment after two convictions for lèse majeste.

Since the death of Richard Wagner, the eminent composer, his widow has had practical control of "Parsifal," one of his greatest productions and which has never been presented outside of Bayreuth. The copyright expires in 1903 and the Wagner family is seeking an extension. To this there is great opposition, which is being led by Bebel and Richter, Socialists, Herr Strauss and other musicians, who contend that "Parsifal" is a great heritage of which the people of the world should not be robbed. The present owners will petition the Reichstag, but Bebel and Richter are supported in their opposition by the musical profession, including Wilhelm Tappert, Richard Wagner's intimate friend.

By the passage of an industrial arbitration bill Australia has placed a law upon the statute books which not only compels reference of all disputes between employers and employees to a competent court, with power to enforce its orders and award, but makes a strike or a lockout, before or pending such reference, a misdemeanor punishable by a fine or imprisonment. The court which will pass upon these disputes is to be presided over by a judge of the supreme court, and will have most extensive powers, including the power to declare a standard wage and to direct that, other things being equal, an employer shall give preference to unionist over non-unionist laborers. There is no appeal from the decisions of this court.

The Socialist Party of British Columbia has new branches at the following places in this province: Victoria, Nanaimo, Ladysmith, South Wellington, Vancouver, Port Moody, Ferguson, Slocan, Revelstoke, Nelson, Silverton, New Denver, Sandon, Kaslo, Grand Forks, Rossland. Organizer Cameron is hard at work organizing two or three branches every week. The executive officers of this organization are: O. Lee Charlton, Victoria, president; Ernest Burns, Vancouver, secretary.—The Independent, Vancouver, B. C.

British municipal elections show splendid gains for the Socialists and trade unionists all along the line. Victories were achieved in Bradford, Ossett, Halifax, Wolverhampton, Glasgow, Govan, Grimsby, Huddersfield, Leeds, Leith, Middlesborough, Musselburg, Poplar, Rochester, Southampton, Stalybridge, Workington, and other places. Besides winning seats in the foregoing municipalities, marked gains were made in a score and more places in the vote cast compared with former elections. Only in a few places were losses recorded.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

The New Era, Sargent, Neb.

The Custer County "Beacon" says "government ownership of railroads will solve the trust problem." Yes, it will—in a pig's eye! We gave the "Beacon" credit for having more sense than the above statement would indicate that it possesses. The "Beacon" should know that in European countries where the railroads are under government ownership, that the trusts flourish and grow, just the same as in this country. The "Beacon's" remedy for the trust problem is on a par with the remedy a man one time advanced for the cure of a mad dog—that its tail should be cut off. The "Beacon" imagines that by cutting off the tail of the mad dog (capitalism) it will cease its depredations! The Socialists would also cut off the tail of capitalism—but they would cut it off right behind the ears, by the inauguration of public ownership of the means of production and distribution. The trust problem will not be solved and the people will get no real, permanent relief until this is done. We challenge the "Beacon" editor or anyone else to demonstrate to the contrary.

Saginaw Exponent.

The conference between the representatives of labor and capital closed in New York Tuesday with a decision to give the plan to harmonize their divergent interests a practical test, the details of the scheme to be worked out by a committee composed of thirty-six, chosen in equal numbers from the ranks of organized labor, the great industrial and financial interests, and representatives of the "disinterested public."

In the last category are placed such "disinterested" persons as Grover Cleveland, who sent federal troops to suppress the A. R. U. strike; Archbishop Ireland, millionaire and street railway magnate; Charles Francis Adams, Franklin McVeagh, John J. McCook and John G. Milburn, trust lawyers; Cornelius N. Bliss and Jas. A. Eckels, banker capitalists; Chas. A. Bonaparte, street railway magnate; Bishop Potter, "friend of labor" and crony of capital; and Chas. W. Eliot, president of Harvard University, supported by private capital.

Then there are the twelve acknowledged representatives of capitalism, including several whose hostility to organized labor is known all over the land. The twelve labor leaders are of marked conservative views, men who in the main hold to the idea that the "interests of capital and labor are identical."

The program of the committee declares that it "will not consider abstract industrial problems." In other words, the basic principles underlying the struggle between the capitalist and working classes must not be touched upon, a proposition that surely should delight the hearts of the representatives of wealth and privilege.

Cleveland Citizen.

We are not alarmists, but we do wish to issue a note of warning to the trade unionists of North America.

We believe it is timely in view of the action of the so-called conference between leaders of capital and labor in New York this week.

After innumerable speeches by men who are sapping the strength and vitality of the working class, and piling up millions of wealth while thousands are annually driven to commit murder, suicide, prostitution, robbery, and all the crimes of the calendar, in which it was shown, in honeyed phrases and meaningless platitudes, that "the interests of capital and labor are identical," a committee of thirty-six—twelve members to represent organized labor, twelve to represent capital, and twelve to speak for "such of the public who are not identified with either of the other two interests"—was selected to work out the details to "harmonize" the differences that exist between labor and capital. * * *

The National Civic Federation has promulgated and is fostering this scheme to make labor and capital brothers. It appears to be a self-appointed organization composed of meddling and notoriety-seeking individuals. It is the same body that fathered a scheme last year to entrap the trade unions into an agreement to allow themselves to be shackled by a compulsory arbitration law. * * *

Despite their sweet sounding phrases, the capitalist brethren will stand up for the employers and the labor brethren will stand by the workers. But does any sane man believe Grover Cleveland, Archbishop Ireland, MacVeagh, Eckels, Milburn, and the rest will take the side of the employees? The very thought of such a situation is sufficient to awaken the risibilities of a brass monkey.

Cleveland and his colleagues will protect the dear public, although the public is constituted almost wholly of the working class—by taking sides with Hanna and Schwab on all important questions, and they will show how unjust Brother Labor is in making demands of Brother Capitalist, how prices would be raised "arbitrarily" by forcing wages upward, how industry would be injured, how capital would be driven away, and similar gush that we have heard for many years. In a crisis the capitalists will have a majority and use it to cast odium upon the unions, arouse the prejudices of the ignorant, and sow the seeds of dissension. They have done it before.

San Francisco Call (Rep.)

Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall, applies to the pride of nations and of men alike.

Up to eighteen months ago Germany was enjoying the greatest period of prosperity she has known in all her history. Profit was high, her staples found a ready market, her labor was employed, its wages were greater than ever, and speculation, which is an inseparable attendant upon national prosperity, lustily rioted on the Berlin bourse. Bankers had to enlarge their premises to accommodate customers, and the Paris edition of the New York "Herald," in its Berlin correspondence, says, the brokers became so suddenly affluent that they bought estates for themselves and set up establishments that rivaled the nobility.

In the general exuberance, this thick buttering of bread on both sides was attributed to Germany's appearance in "welt-politik"—to her springing into the ring as a world power. She has seated herself, without let or leave in a Chinese seaport and had blandly assumed the head of the table in Asia, ready to ask Russia and England whether they preferred white or dark meat at the feast of partition of China.

Now it has all faded like the mirage. By the subtle operation of that law of reaction which nothing seems able to exclude from human affairs, the tide stopped, stood still and began to recede, carrying ruin off its ebb.

Bankers are left loaded with stocks that are shrinking to nothing. Brokers, find themselves with no money to support the state and circumstance of their estates. Manufactories are closing down, shipping is idle, and in Berlin alone nearly 50,000 laborers have no work and the harsh winter is piercing their rags. Men marvel at it and seek the cause. One says over-speculation, another over-production, a third "welt-politik."

We underwent our experience in 1893 and Germany is getting hers now. However, let no man think that our turn will not come again, for it will. No fiscal nor financial system, no statute nor decree, can prevent these perfods.

We sympathize with Germany. We have still the taste of sauerkraut and bouillon in our mouths, and before we forget it altogether we may be swallowing it again.

UNDER SOCIALISM.

There will be leisure for everybody, but not idleness.

Armies will produce wealth and not destroy it.

Everyone will love his own country without hating any other.

Brotherhood will prevail, because all will be just and lovable.

There will be no element of chance in the matter of earning a living.

There will be no debtors and creditors—no rent, interest, or profit.

There will be no unsanitary homes for the people to live in.

The people will all be rich enough to purchase everything they need.

Crime will disappear, because there will be no incentive to commit crime.

Men and women will be free, industrially and politically.—Ex.

THE WHIM

is a little monthly magazine which is likely to appeal to unconventional people. It is not the organ of any one class, but is published in the interest of men and women who are in search of Light and Truth. It is handsomely printed in two colors on deckle edge paper, and costs five cents per copy, or 50 cents by the year. It is edited by Ernest Crosby and Benedict Prieth. Send ten cents for a three month's trial subscription. THE WHIM, P. O. Box 288, Newark, N. J.

A QUESTION OF TACTICS.

A question recently arose in Local St. Louis which, as it occasioned the withdrawal of half a dozen members and may give rise to some misunderstanding through exaggerated reports, may be explained here.

Comrades Hildebrand, Putnam, and Dunn, who are members of the National Committee, are also delegates in the Central Trades and Labor Council.

At a recent session of the Council a request was received from the Vallejo, Cal., central body asking the St. Louis organization to endorse a petition to Congress that war ships be built in the navy yards, instead of being let out to contractors. Dunn moved that the communication be filed and the Vallejo union informed that the St. Louis Council could not join in a petition in regard to war ships. Putnam supported this motion.

Hildebrand, however, spoke and voted in favor of acceeding to the request of the Vallejo union, taking the ground that, as the war ships were to be built anyhow, we should endeavor to secure the best conditions for the men employed in building them.

This incident was seized upon by a small group of members in the Sixteenth Ward Branch of Local St. Louis to raise a fight. These men are ardent haters of trade unionism and should, in order to be consistent, never have joined the Socialist Party, as their proper place is with DeLeon.

They introduced a motion demanding the resignation of Hildebrand from the National Committee. Hildebrand, in order to bring the matter up immediately, offered his resignation as treasurer of Local St. Louis and a special meeting was called, at which the question was fully discussed.

The discussion resulted in the adoption of the following resolution:

"Whereas, The Socialist movement of America has grown beyond that stage when the preservation of its integrity as a class-conscious labor movement depended upon a strict discipline of all members and officers in regard to all their utterances and actions and has reached the period when its adherence to the fundamental principles of Socialism can be secured only through the elimination of error from our midst by the heat and fire of intelligent discussion, instead of by the summary punishment of those in error, and

"Whereas, It has been the policy of the present Socialist Party, and of the former parties which have given birth to it, not to follow the methods formerly in vogue, of removing officers and "disciplining" members on slight provocation, but to resort to measures of removal or expulsion only in extreme cases, such as deliberate betrayal of the party, and

"Whereas, Such policy has been proven by experience to be the wisest and safest for a growing Socialist Party;

"Be it therefore resolved, that the resignation of Comrade L. E. Hildebrand as treasurer of this club be not accepted, and that in our opinion the action of the Sixteenth Ward Club was hasty and ill-advised and not in accordance with the policy of the party.

"Be it further resolved, That the following be declared as the sense of this meeting upon the subject in controversy:

"That it is unwise for any labor organizations to encourage or assist any agitation in favor of the enactment of "public ownership" laws by legislative bodies controlled by capitalist parties, for the following reasons:

"1. Even though the petitions, demands or resolutions of the said labor organizations contain most explicit declarations that public ownership by and for the benefit of the working class is desired, the said capitalist legislature, if it does act, will inaugurate public ownership for the benefit of the capitalist class instead, and will take advantage of the prevailing ignorance as to the distinction between capitalist public ownership and Socialism to hold up the agitation of the labor organizations as an endorsement of their action.

"2. That such agitation, or appeals to, or demands of legislative bodies controlled by capitalist parties tends to confuse the minds of the workingmen as to the class struggle and as to the method by which, according to the teachings of scientific Socialism, they are destined to achieve their own complete emancipation.

"3. The greatest danger to Socialism is that the capitalist class will, upon observing its increasing strength, attempt to defeat the aims of the Social Revolution by instituting a compromise, or a form of state capitalism while they are still in power, and such agitation helps to pave the way for such a strategic move by the capitalist class."

Six of those who had opposed the resolution announced their withdrawal from the party, and it is said that three of these will join the S. L. P.—which is quite proper, though it is rather late in the day.

IN WASHINGTON.

The State Committee of the Socialist Party in Washington has passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, Local Whatcom has placed a municipal ticket in the field, and adopted a platform distinctly capitalistic, and pledged to conduct an administration, if elected, in the interest of the taxpayers, rather than the working class;

"Resolved, That a special meeting of the State Committee be called on the 22d day of December, at 220 Union street, Seattle, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of taking such action as may be deemed proper, and that any member of the Socialist Party in the state is invited to attend and take part in the discussion."

The municipal platforms of the party in Whatcom and the leaflets issued there were certainly of a nature which necessitates decisive and emphatic action.

The vote for the city ticket of the Socialist Party in Port Angeles, Wash., ranged from 64 to 149.

—The professors at Rockefeller's Conscience-sop are necessarily mental prostitutes. To model philosophy according to the wishes of John Rockefeller, and make it the instrument of their plans, so as to obtain money and appointments, seems to me as if a person should receive the sacrament to satisfy his hunger and thirst.—The Goose Quill.

PARTY NOTES.

JOHN SPARGO WILL SPEAK ON "Our Position, Ethical, Economic, and Political," at the Socialist Club, Ralph avenue and Fulton street, Brooklyn, Sunday evening, Jan. 5. This lecture is well worth hearing.

THE LADIES OF THE SOCIALIST Club of Brooklyn will hold an entertainment for the benefit of the Club at its headquarters, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, on Wednesday, Jan. 15. There will be a musical and literary program, followed by refreshments and dancing. Admission is 10 cents at the door.

N. I. STONE WILL LECTURE AT Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue, on "The Trusts in the Light of Latest Developments," Sunday, Jan. 5. Comrade Stone's lecture will be very interesting and full of valuable information, particularly to comrades who wish to become speakers. Everybory is welcome.

THE COMRADES OF THE 6TH and 10th A. D. are planning to give an entertainment with Krafft's play, "Now and Then," as the main feature, if the 14th and 16th decide to co-operate as invited. Miss Theresa Fox, W. J. F. Hannemann, S. Raines, and H. L. Slobodin have been elected delegates to the General Committee, and F. Seits, Slobodin, and P. H. Schmitt as delegates to Second Agitation District.

HUGO PICK IS VIGOROUSLY pushing the circulation of The Worker on the West Side.

DR. C. L. FURMAN WILL SPEAK Sunday afternoon at the W. E. A. clubhouse, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. A concert will precede the lecture, beginning at 2:30 p. m.

THE COMRADES OF THE 16TH A. D. have decided to give up their clubhouse. While the club was financially successful, they found that it occupied the time of the comrades too much and prevented their doing agitation work. They will hold lectures and distribute literature vigorously hereafter.

THE 18TH AND 20TH A. D. ARE now organized together, but will probably separate soon, as it is thought the German speaking and English speaking members can work better in separate organizations.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CLUB OF Yorkville, which is already taking ten copies a week of The Worker, took five copies of the "Comrade," and if the experiment is successful will continue it monthly. The Club has decided to co-operate with the Yorkville Agitation Committee to make its Commune Festival a success.

THE 24TH A. D., BRANCH 2, meets regularly every Thursday evening, at the club rooms of the Socialist Educational League, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street. At the last meeting two new members were admitted and one proposed. Every Socialist in the district is invited to join and attend regularly, as there is work waiting for heads and hands to do it.

THE 1ST, 3D, and 5TH A. D. WILL meet Monday, Jan. 6, 8 p. m., at Comrade Mayes' house, 249 W. Eleventh street. A delegate to the General Committee is to be elected and other important business to be transacted. Every reader of The Worker living in these districts who believes in the principles of the S. D. P. or is in sympathy with its aims is invited to come and join.

JAS. N. WOOD SPEAKS SUNDAY evening, Jan. 5, at 102 Court street, Brooklyn. We made the mistake of announcing him under the name of "Leo" Wood last week.

LOCAL NEWARK has arranged a series of Sunday evening lectures, beginning Jan. 5, at the headquarters, 124 Market street. Algernon Lee will be the first speaker, taking "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics" as his subject. Among those who will speak later in the season are Jas. E. Billings, Charles Ufert, Fred. Krafft, C. L. Furman, Morris Hillquit, John Spargo, N. I. Stone, F. McIntosh, and E. C. Wind.

LOCAL PASSAIC COUNTY WILL hold its semi-annual meeting Wednesday evening, Jan. 8, at Helvetian Hall, 54 Van Houten street, Paterson. The report of the financial officers will be received and the organizer will be elected for the ensuing year. Every comrade is expected to attend.

CHARLES H. VAIL WILL GIVE a course of four lectures in Haverhill on Feb. 3, 4, 5, and 6 and in Boston on Feb. 11, 12, 13, and 14. Brockton and other cities will probably arrange similar courses.

THE CALIFORNIA STATE CONvention, which was to have been held Dec. 15, was postponed to Jan. 1.

JAMES S. ROCHE OF LOS ANgeles has been chosen to represent California on the National Committee.

LOCAL WILKES BARRE, PA., changed its headquarters to the second floor of the new Simon Long Building.

OKLAHOMA CONVENTION.

The Oklahoma Territorial Convention was held at Kingfisher, Dec. 27. Nine locals were represented by twenty-seven delegates. The old Territorial Committee made its report, turned its work over to the convention and disbanded. The convention adopted a constitution, with Oklahoma City as seat of the new Territorial Committee. Dr. H. R. Dean was elected Secretary-Treasurer and G. G. Holbrooks as National Committeeman. The Territorial Committee will consist of one member from each organized county and a local quorum to be elected by Local Oklahoma City. No official organ was designated, but the "Oklahoma Socialist" will be used, as it is the only Socialist paper in Oklahoma. A Territorial Organizer will be put in the field and funds raised for an aggressive campaign during the coming year.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Algernon Lee and L. D. Mayes presided at last Saturday's session of the General Committee of Local New York. On the reading of the minutes a correction was made, it being pointed out that no resolution of censure upon the editor of The Worker had been introduced, but merely a question raised.

Charles Fernkas was seated as delegate from the 15th and 17th A. D., and nine new members were admitted to the local.

It was decided not to engage either Father McGrady or Ben Tillett to speak in New York.

The resignation of I. Phillips from the Grievance Committee was accepted, and the election of a successor laid over to the next meeting.

The roll call showed the following subdivisions not represented: Seventh, 11th, 19th, 23d, 24th, Branch 1, 26th, 26th, Bohemian, 32d and 33d, 34th and 35th Branch 2, Annexed Districts. These subdivisions should see that their delegates attend.

Several districts reported that it had been decided to hold regular lectures or do other agitation work, while some reported apathy among members.

The City Executive reported having ordered 25,000 copies of a special leaflet for the Seventh Congressional District and appropriated $25 for the district campaign; this was concurred in.

Other recommendations concurred in were: To assess districts for expenses of sending out circulars to enrolled voters in proportion to the number sent out in each; that the financial report of the Campaign Committee be printed next week; that Local New York appropriate $15 to be sent to the National Committee as its share of the expenses of the International Socialist Bureau, and that other locals do likewise; that a leaflet be printed to be distributed among railroad men.

The proposed meeting in the Iglesias case was postponed pending the decision of his appeal.

The Yorkville Agitation Committee having initiated a plan for a May Festival for the benefit of the local and the English daily press fund, the plan was approved and Comrades Berlin, Mayes, Paulitsch, and Wood elected as a committee to co-operate in the preparations.

The subdivisions were called upon to make especial efforts to extend the circulation of The Worker, as being the best means to make an English daily possible; each subdivision should have a standing committee for the purpose and should also see that its delegates attend The Worker Conference.

Financial secretaries of subdivisions who have not yet sent in their membership reports were called upon to do so at once.

The Entertainment Committee reported that tickets were still outstanding from the 4th, 16th, 24th, 28th, and 31st A. D. and that they would report as soon as these tickets were accounted for.

Comrades Josephson, Goldberg, and Penzer were elected as a committee to take charge of the Happy Days' Hall lectures.

It was decided to submit the following names to the general vote as delegates to the International Bureau, two only to be chosen, the two receiving the highest vote to be the nominees for Local New York: Herron, Jonas, Greenbaum, Hillquit, Spelman, Ingerman, Feigenbaum, Max Hayes, Harriman, Simons, Liess, Hanford, and Untermann.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

The new constitution and by-laws of Local Kings County have been adopted by a practicaly unanimous vote. Several branches have not yet sent in their returns, but as the vote of eight branches shows 78 in favor to none against, it seems reasonable to suppose that their vote would not have altered the result. Amendments will now be in order, and in a short space of time all rough edges will be smoothed down, and all the weak portions found out and strengthened. At the next meeting of the Local on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 5, 1902, nominations will be made for officers for the ensuing term. It is the positive duty of every branch to be represented at this time, so that the selection of candidates be made by a thoroughly representative meeting. Several of the present officers will be forced to retire because they cannot find time to properly attend to their duties, and comrades who are better situated in that respect should come forward and assume the burden.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

The "Industrial Peace" Farce.

Editor The Worker.

The millenium has arrived at last. Capital and Labor, the long separated brothers, have at last embraced, and all is forgiven. In the words of Archbishop Ireland, "May the winds of Heaven carry across continents and ocean the news that in the great city of New York there has been such a meeting as this in which we have taken part."

I wonder did Brother Mitchell see in his mind's eye, when he addressed the brother capitalists, the thousands of widows and orphans, made such by the greed of mine owners?

Or Brother Sargent of the railroad firemen, did he see a vision of the maimed and murdered railroad workers who have been sacrificed on the altar of profit?

Did Mitchell remember Hinton? Did Sargent remember Chicago or Buffalo? Did each and every representative of Labor remember the many times the capitalists have thrown off the mask of hypocrisy they wear when convenient and have stood out in their true colors as smashers of the trade unions and as political dictators?

Surely these men know that the interest of the thousands of wage earners they are elected to represent is, and always will be, diametrically opposed to the interest of these monopolizers of the means of existence. Why so many years of the hard earned money of the trade unions seeking a dishonorable compromise with these men, whose whole lives are spent in scheming how to further exploit those dependent upon them for a chance to earn a living?

What has been the result of all this oratory and phrase-mongering? A committee has been appointed to arbitrate the "grievance" between the brothers. Seven of these are to represent Labor, twelve to represent Capital, and twelve to represent the general public—or, in other words, those not directly interested.

Now, if we think for a minute we cannot fail to come to the conclusion that there can be no disinterested persons. The people—the general public, if you like—are divided into two classes, the working class whose labor creates all value, and the capitalist class, who by their ownership of the land and machines, are enabled to live off the value produced by others, by forcing from Labor the major portion of its product, as a toll for the use of the tools of production. There can be no middle ground. Either I earn my living or some one earns it for me by forcing it as a rich man and I take no active part in production, my living comes from interest or dividends and my interests are bound up with those who are to it that those dividends are as large as possible. When stock I hold pays a small dividend, my pleasure is curtailed in like manner as my income falls.

Now high dividends, means that running expenses of plants must be minimized by wage-saving machinery and by getting as much work as possible out of those employed for as small wages as possible. My interest, then, as a capitalist is bound up with the interests of all other capitalists—that is, of the capitalist class.

Now let us look at the personnel of the "disinterested" portion of this committee. There is not a workingman among them. From Grover Cleveland, the hero of the Chicago railroad strike, all down the list they are all social parasites and skinners of the working class. So our committee resolves itself into this: Two-thirds from the capitalists' side, and one-third from the workers' side. Poor Labor, your puny and simple unionism has left you in the mud. Once again you are off your trolley.

The whole affair reminds me strongly of another peace conference, that of the Hague, where I suspect the hardest work of the delegates was to keep from laughing outright in each other's faces. Only this time the laugh was on one side only—the capitalist side.

T. N.

New York, Dec. 19, 1901.

From a Railroad Man.

Editor The Worker.

A large number of railroad men, including myself, voted the straight Socialist ticket this year in both the state and city elections. We did this with great satisfaction, as we realize that we have at last found a way to vote for what we want even if we do not get it right away. As another railroad man said to me the other day: "We have been voting for conditions we do not want, and we have been getting them, now we must change and vote for what we do want even if we don't get it right away."

Thanks to the Socialist Party we are finding out that our union and brotherhoods are good things in so far as they keep us from being dragged down out of sight entirely, but as for progress we must vote for that at the polls by voting for public ownership.

There are many grumblings going up from the New York Central (Boston and Albany division) employees, as to their treatment under the new regime; and what seems destined to turn into a positive howl is the protest of the freight crews as to the way they are used at present. Conditions upon the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine are very bad, but the boys on the New York Central (Boston and Albany division) claim that they are used worse than the employees on any road in New England. The various brotherhoods of railway employees hold their elections this month, and then these grievances will be taken hold of on the different roads by joint committees that will try to have things straightened out more favorably for the men.

It would not be surprising if Boston and vicinity had a great railroad strike this spring in view of the tyrannical way the officials of the roads are using the trainmen and other employees.

"Retrenchment" is the word, all along the line and the consequence is that men are being discharged right and left and extra labor put upon the employees remaining, without giving them any extra pay.

On the Plymouth division of the New Haven road a reorganization of passenger service has just been completed that reduces the number of crews from 65 to 52. That is, what it has taken 65 crews to do before has been shoved onto 52 crews to do now.

The runs have been lengthened, the men have been given more trips on the short runs, and this has occasioned the dismissal of a large number of brakemen and firemen, while conductors and engineers have been set back from their former positions to lower ones.

The same thing is being done on all the divisions of the New Haven road, and there are other things that are tearing us railroad men to look to our own interests and vote for Socialism. This method of doing business is now becoming a regular thing for the companies, and they have a large number of clerks at work about all the time figuring out these changes for economy in operation of the roads. On the New Haven road alone in the past few years the management have arranged it so that they haul 70 per cent. more traffic with 39 per cent. less train mileage than was the case five years ago.

In the case of freight trains the New York, New Haven and Hartford ten years ago hauled trains that averaged 7.85 tons to a car and 204.61 tons to a train; whereas for last year the average carload was 10.29 tons, and the train load was 208.13 tons, practically doubling the hauling capacity of the trains.

Ten years ago the New Haven lines ran the freight trains 6,794,357 miles altogether and hauled 741,372,496 tons of freight, while last year the New Haven only ran its freight trains 6,239,617, or about 600,000 miles less than ten years ago and notwithstanding that great reduction in mileage the road hauled practically twice as much freight, or to be correct, 1,292,378,364 tons. Has the wages of the men been increased in any such proportion in that time? Not on your life. Have the freight rates been reduced in anywhere near an equitable proportion? Not much.

The road is run for PRIVATE PROFIT, and not for any benefit or convenience of the employees. There is another idea of economy being arranged by the New Haven and other roads.

This idea is to bring up the average load of a car from 10.29 tons as at present to 17 tons. If this is done it will effect practically a 33 per cent. reduction in train mileage, and save the New Haven company in round numbers $665,000 a year in the running of freight trains. The Boston and Maine are working along the same lines, and have increased the average load of freight trains from 125.04 tons to 203.59 in five years.

All these economies work adversely to us employees, and we receive no increase of pay for the extra burdens and responsibilities. The New Haven management got woke up a little bit by the strike in the Cedar Hill freight yards in New York City, and in consequence they are paying up just a little on the freight boys, but they are doing some heavy bearing down on the passenger crews to pay for it.

The Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Engineers, the Brotherhood of Firemen and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen are all worked up over the poor conditions that surround us in the railway service, and we are commencing to ask where do we fit under this prosperity we hear so much about. The various brotherhoods are going to make a vigorous campaign at the State House this year, and knowing as we do that we have two able and noble champions in the Socialist members, Carey and MacCartney, we expect to pass legislation that will greatly benefit the railroad men of the state.

The New York Central has started in reducing wages contrary to the act allowing for lease, redistributions on that line have been reduced four cents a day, besides the 10 per cent. reduction they suffer on rearrangement of runs.

The shop and other repair men also have been reduced 10 per cent.

Well, they tell us prosperity is about so I suppose we must believe it; but this I do know, that railroad men are beginning to appreciate more and more the advantage of public ownership and every day sees new converts to Socialism among the railroad men.

HURRICANE DECK.

Allston, Mass.

As to Buttons.

Editor The Worker.

Inclosed please find sample of party button sold by the State Committee of Indiana. Sample can be had by mail for 10 cents; in quantities, 50 for $1.50, or 100 for $2.75. Would you kindly give notice of this in The Worker and send marked copy of the same to me? They can be had from me.

Indiana is forging to the front and promises a vigorous movement by the summer months.

JAMES ONEAL,
State Secretary.

311 N. Third street, Terre Haute, Ind.

(Note—The sample button epclosed shows a globe with hands clasped across it; on the red border are the words "Socialist Party," above, and "Workers of the World, Unite!" below.—Ed.)

Objects to the Phrase.

Editor The Worker.

Coming from a little trip, I haste to send you the opinion of some of the readers of the paper. They all like your editorials, but Comrade George E. Brittain's "Reply to Archbishop Corrigan," in the issue of Dec. 22, is severely criticized on account of the language he used, for instance, "Catholic garbage" and other words I appeal to and through you to all senders of articles to refrain from attacks on religion or church, as no religion or church attacks us; but to talk about Mr. Corrigan as the bigoted, stupid ass he is. You will hinder the propaganda for our party and the enlargement of the circulation of this paper by such method.

HUGO PICK.

Letter Box

GEO. H. GOEBEL, Newark, N. J.—Your notice for meeting was mailed on Dec. 24, and did not reach us, of course, until the paper was printed.

HUGO PICK, City.—We do not exactly see why the phrase in Comrade Brittain's article should have seemed offensive to the best of Catholics. What he wanted to point out was that it is a mistake for any man to attempt to measure all others by his personal or sectarian "prejudices." We have no desire to injure anyone's feelings,

We Wish You

A Happy New Year

AND ASK

Have You Seen

THE WORKER CALENDAR?

A Work of Art.

The Rising Sun, Reproduction From Famous Painting by Peret, Famous French Artist.

Every Comrade should get one. — Send Now.

5 Cents at office. 7 Cents postpaid.

"THE WORKER", ... 184 William St.

but don't you think it queer that people who do not hesitate to ridicule and abuse all who are outside their own sect should yet be so sensitive to the slightest criticism from us?

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emile Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, John M. Reynolds, 422 Sutter street, San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary 478 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at Aurora Hall, 135 Union street, New Haven.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, R. A. Morris, 56 N. Clark street, Chicago. Meets first and third Friday evenings of the month at 79 Dearborn street.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, J. D. Haskell, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Dr. Walter T. Robers, 2214 West Main street, Louisville, Ky.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary pro tem., Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont street, Somerville; Assistant and Financial Secretary, Albert G. Clifford, Mount Auburn Station, Cambridge, Mass.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 N. Baum street.

MINNESOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. H. Leonard, Room 535, Amlrus' Bldg., corner Nicollet avenue and Fifth street, Minneapolis.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Wm. J. Hager, Room 7, 22 North Fourth street.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary George E. Baird, 810 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Monday at 8 p. m., at above place.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-treasurer, J. W. Quick, 6229 Woodland avenue, Philadelphia.

VERMONT STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, C. V. Dansky, Brunswick House, Rutland.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 647, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE.—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

NEW YORK.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

The subdivisions are hereby called upon to elect new delegates to the General Committee of the Local for the ensuing term, beginning on the second Saturday in January (January 11), 1902.

The basis of representation, according to the new by-laws, is: One delegate for each subdivision and one additional for every ten members in good standing as shown by the membership report filed with the Organizer.

J. GERBER, Organizer.

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

The party which this paper represents is known nationally as the Socialist Party, and such is its designation in most of the states. In New York, however, and in Massachusetts, it keeps the former name of Social Democratic Party, for reasons concerning the election laws. It has no connection with the Socialist Labor Party and does not approve of the "union smashing" tactics or the abusive methods used by that party. The Socialist or Social Democratic—Party works in harmony with the trade unions, though without any organic connection. It holds itself free to criticize their policy when necessary, but it approves of the principle of trade unionism. It does not attempt to dictate to the unions nor is it dictated to by them. It calls upon all workingmen to join the unions of their respective trades as a means of fighting the daily battle against the capitalist class and to join and work and vote for the Socialist Party as a means of putting an end to capitalism.

—The class struggle will prevail so long as there are employing and employed classes. Their interests are antagonistic and will ever remain so, while the competitive system exists. Capitalistic competition means degradation of the working class. The solution? you ask. Socialism in our time! —Cleveland Citizen.

COFFEE—SPECIAL SALE

To the Working Class in 5-lb. Lots and upwards at Wholesale Prices.

25c. Grade, Mocha and Java, at..25c.
30c. Grade, Mocha and Java, at..20c.
25c. Grade, Mocha and Java, at...15c.
25c. Fancy Maracaibo, at .....15c.

You save the profit of 10c. per pound, or 50c. profit saved on every 5 pounds.

We believe in placing our goods direct to the consumer. We are importers. You make the profits of the middlemen.

All mail orders filled at these prices. You save from 10c. to 25c. per pound on all teas bought from us.

BURNS & REED,
FROM IMPORTER DIRECT TO CONSUMER.
209 HUDSON ST., N. Y. CITY.

WORKMEN'S
Furniture Fire Insurance
Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.
Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.
OFFICE: 64 East Fourth street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 3 o'clock p. m.
BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Elmira, Albany, Oneida, N. Y.
Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J.
Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass.
New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.
Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Lacern, Altoona, Scranton, Pa.
Chicago, Ill.
Cleveland, O.
San Francisco, Cal.
For addresses of the Branch-bookkeepers, see "Vorwaerts." 239

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

READ "THE ADVANCE."
A 16-PAGE SOCIALIST PAPER.
Uncompromising advocate of class conscious political action in the interests of the working class as against those of the capitalist class. Send for sample copy. Subscription price, per year, $1.00; six months, 50 cents. Three months, 25 cents. 124 Murphy Building, 1236 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

SOCIALIST PARTY LITERATURE.
Issued by National Committee, will be sent prepaid at prices specified. National Platform, Constitution and Resolutions on Negro and Trade Union questions, adopted in National Convention at Indianapolis, July 31, 1901.

	Price per 100.	Price per 1000.
National Platform	.10	.65
National Constitution	.15	1.00
Negro Resolution	.10	.65
Trade Union Resolution	.10	.65

Address orders for above to
LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary,
427 Emilie Building, St. Louis, Mo.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

H. B. SALISBURY.
Counselor at Law. 320
50 UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY
Real Estate, Mortgage Loans, Long Island Investments.

PATRONIZE FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM. 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts. N. Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

BERNARD STOLLMACK,
Dealer in Gent's and Ladies' Suits, Cloaks, Etc.
WEEKLY AND MONTHLY PAYMENTS.
149 E. Broadway, N. Y. Open Evenings.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
'CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.
Five Postals for $1.25; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.
For Sale on all New York News-stands.

EMILE ZOLA'S
POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS.
Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.
"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "Human Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother, Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."
Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.
Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

Wives, Mothers, Sisters, Sweethearts
OF UNION MEN —SHOULD—
Join the American Federation of Women.
Many a battle has been won because of the support of the women and many battles have been lost because that support was lacking. Every merchant realizes that the women spend the money and every man knows that without their favor his business will suffer. It behooves every one of us to aid our husbands and brothers, for their fight is our fight, and their welfare our welfare. Every woman in the American Federation is equal to ten men in their organizations, and we can do more to spread the union label, to carry on boycotts and to advance the cause of unionism generally than you realize until you attend our meetings.
New York Branch meets every Thursday evening at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue.
Brooklyn Branch meets in Johnson Building, Flatbush avenue and Nevins street, every second and fourth Monday.
For information address
MRS. J. SYNNOTT,
1644 Park avenue, New York.
You are cordially invited and urged to attend our meetings.

SLEEPING?
PLEASANT DREAMS?
DIDN'T YOU HEAR
THE ALARM?
The Trusts are in possession of the country! Capitalists are smashing labor unions! Capitalist Judges are issuing injunctions against workingmen!
Our liberties are being stolen! Men and women are starving! Millions are unemployed.
WAKE UP! WAKE UP!
We are not in this world to slumber. We Socialists have a mission. We must EMANCIPATE HUMANITY.
Start to work now to get subscribers for THE WORKER. Don't forget to work for the daily.
FIVE YEARLY POSTALS, $2.00.
THE WORKER, 184 William St., New York.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERN'L SHIRT, WAIST, LAUNDRY WORKERS' UNION Registered
This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs
No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

R·I·P·A·N·S
I had been troubled with the sick headache for years until I started taking Ripans tabules. I have experienced such relief from their use that I would not be without them. I find them good for sickness at the stomach and dizziness in the head.
At druggists.
The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.
When ordering mention THE WORKER.

LAUGHLIN FOUNTAIN PEN
Sent on Approval to Responsible People
We do not know of anything (within the price) that will make as appropriate and useful a Christmas gift, and reflect such memories of the giver. We will send you postpaid, this high grade lasting and so many pleasant 14k. Gold (Diamond Pointed) Fountain Pen, which is well worth $2.50, for only $1.00
You may try it a week, and if not pleased with your purchase, we will pay you $1.10 for the Pen, (the ten cents extra we allow for your trouble.) You run no risks, we take all the chances. If you do not consider this Pen the best you ever saw or used, send it back. Holder made of finest grade hard Para Rubber, either pointed or black finish, 14k. Gold Pen of any desired flexibility, in fine, medium or stub, sent postpaid on receipt of $1. (By registered mail for 8 cents extra) one of our Safety Pocket Pen Holders free with each Pen.
Ladies, if you are looking for a Christmas present for your husband, father, brother or gentleman friend, that is sure to be appreciated, do not overlook this special opportunity to secure a strictly high grade guaranteed Fountain Pen at a price that is only a fraction of its real value. Remember there is no "just as good" as the Laughlin.
When ordering, state whether ladies' or gentlemen's style is desired. Illustration is full size of gentlemen's style.
Write for Catalogue.
ADDRESS
LAUGHLIN MFG. CO.,
410 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.
When ordering mention THE WORKER.

THE COMRADE
An Illustrated Socialist Monthly.
$1 A YEAR. 10 CENTS A COPY.
We have issued an illustrated agitation leaflet. Send 10 one-cent stamps to help cover postage, and we will mail to you 100 copies of this four-page leaflet.
COMRADE PUBLISHING CO.,
23 Lafayette Pl., P. O. Box 234, New York.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
60 Second Ave., Between Third & Fourth Sts.

F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST. New York City.
Use this Label and get Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.
Union Printer

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn Str., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Trades' and Societies' Calendar

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

Organizations should not lose such an opportunity for advertising their places of meetings.

BRANCH 2, S. D. P., 34th and 35th A. D. (formerly Socialist Science Club), meets second and fourth Thursday evenings of each month at the Workingmen's Educational Club, 3309 Third avenue.

BRANCH 2 (English), 20th A. D. (Brooklyn), S. D. P.—Meets every second and fourth Tuesday evening at 700 Evergreen avenue. All Socialists of the district are invited to join. H. A. Guerth, 1328 Bushwick avenue, will receive subscriptions for The Worker.

CARL SAHM CLUB (MUSICIANS' UNION). Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 10 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, H. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th street.—District I. (Bohemian), 321 East 71st street; every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 10 Stanton street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 86th street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VI. meets at 434 East 5th street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1422 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA.

WILKES-BARRE.—Local Luzerne Co., Pa., Socialist Party meets every Sunday at 3 p. m., at 487 South Grant street. All Socialists are invited.

Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kasse fuer die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.
WORKMEN'S
Sick and Death endt Fund of the United States of America.

The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength at present composed of 180 local branches with more than 27,500 male members is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe in the principles of modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership in any of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $3.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a sick benefit of $8.00 for 40 weeks and of $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruption. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $6.00 and $3.00 respectively. A burial benefit of $250.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried daughters of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class upon payment of an initiation fee of $1.00. Monthly assessments are levied for the three different classes of members of 90, 67, and 18 cents respectively. Members

IN EUROPE AND IN AMERICA.

There, Labor Speaks in Parliament---Here, Labor Sneaks in Conference.

When the coal barons decide to add a few millions to their meagre incomes they raise the price of coal, thus exacting a tribute from every fireside in the land. And the people? Well, they grumble, they growl (to themselves, of course), and then humbly pay the bill. If the farm products are allowed to rot on the ground, if the grain is thrown into the great lakes, in short, if each and every dastardly method known to "business" is employed to raise the price of everything necessary to life and happiness, in order to increase the profits of those who profess to be somehow divinely ordained to manage the wealth of this country for those who produce it, the great sovereign American, infantlike, pouts and then meekly pays the bill. This is, of course, a great country, its people are great, and great are its institutions.

But let us take a look at effete Germany. How the American pities the poor Dutchmen, especially the Dutch workingmen. Those workingmen, ignorant fellows that they are, do not send millionaires into their parliaments, in grateful acknowledgement of the many virtues practised by capitalists as mentioned above, but actually nominate and elect ordinary workingmen, men of their own class, to represent them. One of these, August Bebel, has been a Socialist representative in the Reichstag for over thirty years—and has not even acquired the wealth of an ordinary police captain in this land of the free-to-help-yourself. This Rebel is the greatest orator and ablest debater in that body and extracts of his recent speech upon the contemplated grain tariff in the interest of the German landowners will be worth reading.

Rebel said: "The imperial Chancellor has asked us to consider that whatever we say here is heard by other nations. Unhappily there are in Germany, as in all civilized countries, only two nations, a nation of exploiters and oppressors and a nation of the exploited and oppressed." (Stormy interruption on the Right.) "The imperial Chancellor has spoken in the name of the former; I shall speak in the name of the latter." (Continued disturbance and interruption on the Right.) "We shall represent the interests of the oppressed wage-earning class with a determination commensurate with the importance of the case and the misinterpretation of foreign powers will not disturb us in the least. You shall never be left in the dark about our position on the matter of taxation, and we shall always do our utmost to define our attitude. * * * * * *

"The entire industrial development of agriculture, as of other industries, of the soil, benefits the landowner and not the consumer. It may be that the sale of food products is controlled by you principally, to the disadvantage of the consumer. Your motto is: Every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost. But the others may have something to say in the matter, and I do not hesitate to say that strife, insurrection, and revolt will necessarily follow these measures, if adopted as submitted in the bill before the house. * * *

"One landowner admits that the introduction of electrical machinery has reduced the cost of production 48 per cent. and increased the profits per acre 55 per cent. The 'Deutsche Tageszeitung' tells us that the country seat of Count Mirbach is an 'ideal hunting ground. Indeed! That our gentlemen may enjoy the chase, that their sons, as gaily dressed army officers, may keep horses and support mistresses, that they may squander more in one night than a diligent workingman's family can earn in a year, therefore this usurious tariff shall become a law." (Noise on the Right, cheers on the Left.) "At a recent meeting of landowners, Representative Dr. Rösicke was heard to say: 'Like the Boers, conscious of the justice of our cause, trusting in God, we shall fight for German soil, for our existence, for our homes! God help us to victory.' Here, then, God is called upon to protect the breadusurer. I must say, that beats hell." (Great disturbance on the Right; interrupted by chairman, who rules "that beats hell" to be out of order.) * * *

"There is no doubt that there is a lack of farm hands. From 1882 to 1895 their numbers sank from 5,815,000 to 5,627,000. In industrial and commercial branches the number of laborers has increased from 4,000,000 to 5,155,000. This increase of industrial laborers and decrease of farm laborers proves that we are already an industrial community." (Contradiction and disturbance on the Right.) "It is the duty of the government to provide for the laboring class, as you have done for the peasant class, according to the mass of evidence which I have laid before the house.

"Recently a teacher, referring to the burial of one of his scholars, told the pupils that the child is now in Heaven. 'Who of you would like to be in Heaven?' he asked. One little youngster among several others raised his hand and replied: 'I would, because I would not shuffer from hunger there.'" (Commotion.) "Can there be a stronger condemnation of present society than the shipple words of this starving child?" Count von Arnim laughingly interjects: "Perhaps its father had spent all for drink." (Cries of "shame" from the Socialists, uproar lasting several minutes.) "Gentlemen," replied Bebel, "this is an infamous insult. His laughter betokens brutality of sentiment." (Pandemonium.) * * *

"It is a sad fact to note that so many clergymen advocate increased tariffs upon grain and the most necessary articles of life. (Disturbance on the Right and Center.) These are the same gentlemen who teach the people to pray 'give us this day our daily bread,' and thereupon seek to make bread dearer." ("Hear, hear," from the Socialists, protests on the Right and Center.) "Present society is the most pharisaical in history. A large part of the members of this house are very much interested, owing to their real estate holdings, in the increase of grain, cattle and agrarian duties. I am exceedingly sorry that parliamentary law does not force any member who is personally interested in a measure to leave the room when it is put to a vote."

Such a rule would knock the bottom out of the United States Senate pretty quickly.

After a masterly description of the evils following every measure introduced by present society to prevent its inevitable collapse, Bebel concluded:

"And what will be the outcome of this chaotic state of things. Social Democracy will reap the harvest. Dissolve the Reichstag, it will please none more than the Socialists. The subsequent election will give you an answer such as you have never heard before. The word of Marx will be verified, that 'every ruling class provides its own gravediggers.' We shall do our utmost to send this bill to Hades and we are sorry that we cannot send its fathers and champions to Hades also. In the name of justice, in the name of the welfare of the people, down with this infamous bill." (Long applause.)

When the fearless tribunes of the people, the Socialist representatives in the parliament of Europe, hear of the "harmony conference" between Capital and Labor, will they not shrug their shoulders at the stupidity of the American wage-earner?

FREDERICK KRAFFT.

—In the German Reichstag as in all the European parliaments, the Conservatives sit on the Right. The Socialists form the extreme Left, with the Radicals or Liberals between. The Center, mentioned further on, is the Clerical party in the German parliament.

CAPITALISM IN COTTON TRADE.

Analysis of Statistics Published by Census Board.

Result of Ten Years' Progress—Number of Wage-Workers Largely Increased, but Average Wages Reduced—Capitalists, However, Get Larger Profits.

The Census Bureau has issued a bulletin giving comparative statistics of the cotton manufactures of the United States for 1890 and for 1900. The following table shows the increase per cent. in different items:

	Increase per cent.
Number of establishments	.16
Aggregate capital	.32
Number of officials	.84
Aggregate salaries	.117
Number of wage-workers	.38
Aggregate wages	.36
Cost of materials	.14
Value of product	.25

Comparing the first two items, we see that the number of establishments has grown much more slowly than the aggregate capital, which partly shows the concentration of industry by the closing of small mills and the opening of larger ones. Unfortunately no figures are given to show the relative number of companies or of stockholders in 1890 and in 1900. We can safely suppose, however, that while the number of mills has increased in a small ratio, the number of corporations owning them and the number of stockholders—or, at any rate, of large stockholders—in the corporations have positively decreased.

Comparing the next two items, we see a remarkable increase in the number of salaried officials and a still greater increase in the aggregate salaries. A large part of this is rightly to be set to the account of capitalist profit, as the high-salaried officials are almost invariably large stockholders and their exorbitant pay is simply profit under another name.

WAGES REDUCED.

The fifth and sixth items in the table (taken in connection with the first two) furnish the most significant comparison of all. The number of wage-workers has increased much faster than the number of mills, faster even than the aggregate capital. But the amount paid in wages has not increased in the same ratio. That is, as the industry has become better organized and the employees have been brought together in larger and larger establishments, and as their number has increased, their average wages have positively decreased. And it should be remembered, too, that the prices of most articles of food have increased during this period.

In 1890 there were about 219,000 workers, with average wages of $303 a year.

In 1900 there were nearly 303,000 workers, with average wages of $298 a year.

That is how ten years' progress affected the working people in the cotton industry.

The last item—25 per cent. increase of gross product—does not, upon its face, seem a large one. But a more careful analysis will show that the capitalists in the cotton industry have enjoyed a sort of prosperity very different from that which their employees experienced. The subjoined tables, showing the actual figures for cost, value of product, and net product, and profits in 1890 and in 1900, will make this evident.

1890.
Gross product	$269,570,904
Cost of materials	154,809,760
Net product	$114,710,144
Wages and salaries	69,931,624
Profits	$44,778,520

1900.
Gross product	$336,974,882
Cost of materials	176,551,527
Net product	$160,423,355
Wages and salaries	97,919,661
Profits	$62,503,694

PROFITS INCREASED.

A comparison of the two tables will show that—

The value of the gross product increased 25 per cent.

The cost of materials increased 14 per cent.

The net product increased nearly 40 per cent.

The amount paid in wages and salaries increased 36 per cent.

The profits remaining to the capitalists increased over 39 per cent.

And as the number of capitalists certainly did not increase greatly and probably was actually reduced, the reduction in average yearly earnings of the "hands" was balanced by a large increase in the average profits of the various employers.

Finally, dividing the amount in profits in each year by the number of employees for the same year, we find that—

In 1890, the average wage-worker contributed $204.47 to the capitalists who "gave him employment."

In 1900, the average wage-worker contributed $206.38 to the same benevolent gentlemen.

TEN YEARS' NET PROGRESS.

The net result of ten years' development of capitalism in this great industry is, then, that the average yearly earnings of the people who did the work were reduced by $5 a year, while the average amount of profits extracted from each was increased by more than $2 a year.

We do not, in general, insist upon the absolute truth of the latter half of the saying that "The rich are getting richer and the poor poorer." We insist only that the working class is growing relatively poorer—receiving a smaller share of its product, if not an absolutely smaller amount—while the capitalist class is growing both relatively and absolutely richer. But the official statistics for this manufacturing industry—one of the largest in this country—indicates the truth of the saying in its strictest sense.

To what has been said above, it must be added that about a quarter of the wages of the working people must be paid out in rent, thus going directly back to the capitalist class, which owns the land and the tenements as well as the factories.

WHAT SOCIALISM WOULD DO.

Socialism, then, by cutting off the unearned income of the capitalists, whether in the form of dividends, interest, or rent, would, on the most conservative estimate, practically double the income of the workers in the cotton industry without adding a minute to the daily labors; it would organize the industry in such a way that steady work, at reasonable hours, the year round, would take the place of the present alternation of overwork with miserable idleness; and then, by eliminating the various forms of waste incident to competition and wage-slavery, it would still further increase their remuneration or reduce their hours of labor. It is worth working for, as a simple bread-and-butter proposition, even if it were nothing more.

VAIL IN BOSTON.

To the Comrades of Boston and Vicinity:

The Boston Socialist Club has engaged Charles H. Vail for a series of four lectures on Socialism to be given Feb. 11, 12, 13, and 14 at Every Day Church, 397 Shawmut avenue, between Canton and Brooklyn streets.

The necessity and importance of such lectures is clear. In hunting after political successes we have unfortunately neglected in the past the most essential feature of our work—the educational. Let us therefore begin the work at once. It lies with you, comrades, to make this undertaking a success. This series of lectures is not intended for strangers only. It is the duty of every Socialist to avail himself of the opportunity to study the subject in order to be able intelligently to defend the principles of Socialism.

Comrade Vail, being one of the foremost theoretical exponents of Socialism in this country, will treat the subject in his four lectures from all sides, as seen from the following synopsis:

Feb. 11.—"The Economic Evolution."
Feb. 12.—"The Socialist Movement."
Feb. 13.—"The Abolition of Poverty and Realization of Plenty."
Feb. 14.—"The Solution of Modern Social and Industrial Problems."

Doors open at 7:30 p. m.; lecture begins at 8 p. m.

Admission: Single lecture, 10 cents; full course, 25 cents. Apply for further information and tickets to the undersigned.

For the Committee,
DR. M. J. KONIKOW,
330 Shawmut avenue.

TO TOUR NEW YORK.

Comrade Vail to Spend a Month in Socialist Agitation Throughout the State.

On Jan. 7 Comrade Charles H. Vail and his wife will begin an agitation tour of the state of New York. Their dates are not all fixed positively, but the first week, it is understood, will be taken up as follows:

Tuesday, Jan. 7, Peekskill.
Wednesday, New Rochelle.
Thursday, Mount Vernon.
Friday, Yonkers.
Saturday, Pearl River.
Sunday evening, Jan. 12, Brooklyn, Socialist Propaganda Club, 102 Court street.

After filling these dates they will visit, in order, Cold Spring, Troy, Schuylerville, Ticonderoga, Fort Edward, Schenectady, Johnstown, Gloversville, Frankfort, Utica, Rome, Oneida, Syracuse, Corning, Hornellsville, Buffalo, Rochester, and Watertown, after which they go to Massachusetts.

It is hoped that the comrades in all of these places will exert themselves to the utmost to make these meetings thoroughly successful. Comrade Vail's tour should have the effect of bringing new life into the organization throughout the whole state.

All communications regarding Vail's dates should be addressed to the State Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 East Fourth street, New York.

HOW TO ORGANIZE.

Instructions for Forming Locals of the Socialist Party.

1. Five or more persons may organize a local branch, provided they subscribe to the platform and constitution of the Socialist Party, and sever their relations with other political parties.

2. The officers to be elected are:
   a. A Chairman at each meeting.
   b. Recording Secretary.
   c. Financial Secretary.
   d. Organizer.
   e. Literature Agent.

2. Order of business—
   a. Reading of the minutes.
   b. Admission of new members.
   c. Communications and bills.
   d. Report of Organizer.
   e. Reports of Committees.
   f. Unfinished business.
   g. New business.

4. A monthly payment, computed on a basis of five cents for each member, for the maintenance of the National organization, shall be paid to the National Secretary. Local branches may levy dues if they so choose, or may raise funds altogether through voluntary contributions and pay National dues out of their general funds.

5. A full report of the meeting in which organization was decided on, the names of persons participating, together with five cents for each member, should be sent with application for charter; after receipt of which, upon approval of National Committee, charter will be granted.

6. Each local branch should hold a meeting at least once a week, for the transaction of business or the discussion of political and economic questions.

7. Semi-annual reports of the membership and the financial condition of each local branch, as well as upon the progress made by the Party and its prospects in the locality, shall be sent regularly to the National Secretary.

8. Any person living in a city or locality, where no local branch exists, may apply directly to the National Secretary for admission to the Party, inclosing one month's dues, and will be enrolled as a member-at-large.

9. For further information not contained herein, address Leon Greenbaum, National Secretary, Room 427, Emilie Building, St. Louis, Mo.

BERNSTEIN AS HE IS.

The following extract I lift bodily from Comrade H. M. Hyndman's London letter in the current number of "Wilshire's Magazine." A careful perusal of it is earnestly urged upon a number of persons whom I suspect of having forgotten the Tenth of July in the year Ninety-Nine and the lesson of that glorious day:

"As to the Bernstein episode in itself, it has attracted far more attention than, from most points of view, it deserves. Bernstein has no influence whatever among the rank and file of the Social Democratic Party in Germany. As a matter of fact, he is by no means a strong man, and even when he was editing the 'Social Demokrat' in Zurich he was not its real editor at all. He was merely a conduit pipe through which the ideas and tactics of Marx, Engels, Liebknecht, and others reached the world at large. So long as Bernstein had these men at his elbow, so to say, he kept pretty straight, but when Engels died, and he was left here in England, floating about on the fringe of third-rate English middle-class society, his mind became gradually saturated with the fallacies of English middle-class opinion. He became a sort of capitalistic radical, always apologizing for any defects in the capitalist system and declaring that there is at bottom none of that class antagonism which we Social Democrats know to be inevitable under existing conditions. Not only so, but he has throughout supported the shameless policy of the Rhodes-Belt-Chamberlain gang in South Africa; has declared that English rule in India, which is manufacturing famine for 230,000,000 of people, is a beneficent government; has never lost an opportunity of sneering at and injuring the Social Democratic Federation; and, in point of fact, has done everything which a paid agent of the capitalist class could do to injure the principles of Social Democracy in Great Britain. He has done this, not only by his action while he was in England in connection with Englishmen, but by deliberate lies which he sent to the 'Vorwärts' as to the events which were passing in this country. This got to such a point that Liebknecht, not long before his death, gave me formal authority to repudiate Bernstein as representing in any way whatever the Social Democratic Party of Germany, in England or elsewhere. This authority I made use of and formally repudiated Bernstein in a letter to the 'Daily Chronicle,' after some more than usually flagitious misrepresentations of his in that paper. Of course, I do not say for a moment that Bernstein has derived any personal or pecuniary advantage from his mean and treacherous methods; but I do most distinctly say that no man, if he had received £10,000 a year from the capitalists, could have served them better of late years than Bernstein has done."

Thus the Bernstein pelt is nailed up as a caution to vermin. It might smell better if it were tanned. There are several large tanneries in Milwaukee.

FRED W. LONG.
1316 So. 13th street, Philadelphia.

SANE AND INSANE IN IRELAND AND ELSEWHERE.

It is a great mistake for a man in Ireland to be sane, because he is allowed to live in a wretched hovel and starve; while, if insane, he has four meals a day, port wine, a magnificent garden, and three hundred inspectors to feel his pulse. Ireland is overrun with officials whose principal business it is to keep the Irish people from doing something they want to or forcing them to do something they do not want to.—The Expansionist.

What is here said of Ireland is also true, with only a difference of degree, in every civilized—that is, capitalist—country. The question in Ireland is not merely a race question, between Celt and Saxon. It is essentially a class question: between tenant and landlord and between wage-worker and employer. As the tenants and wage-workers learn to make a sane use of their reasoning faculties, they will unite as a class and establish a saner social system. The luxuries now confined to the asylums will then be accessible in the people's homes and the need of asylums will be so much the less.

CLASS RULE AND DEMOCRACY.

The political system of a given social order is simply the expression of its economic form, and when the latter changes, a corresponding transformation occurs in the former. * * * The question of democracy, like that of plutocracy or aristocracy, is one of social evolution, and not of the passing political phases incidental to the process. * * * We may, if we choose, describe the governments of England, France, and America as "democratic" in view of the suffrage, but if we believe them to be so, we are mistaken. There can be no possibility of a really democratic administration where class monopoly in the land and capital of the community exists, for political power invariably accompanies control of the revenues. Democracy is therefore impossible so long as the economic conditions of society allow of such monopoly. But those conditions are rapidly changing, and the decomposition of the present system which is going on under our very eyes, obvious enough even to the most careless observer, is facilitating the political expression of those tendencies toward the new system which will succeed it. * * * When this transformation is complete democracy will be established, and not before.—John E. Ellam, in the London Westminster Review.

WANT WAGES, NOT TIPS.

Pullman car porters running out of Chicago have perfected an organization under the name of the Colored Men's Railway Mercantile League. The project was started last fall, when it was said the custom of tipping had died out and that operators' salaries were not enough to live on.

The league is practically a union of the men who have the duties of making railway passengers comfortable. One of its objects will be an agitation for higher salaries, so that the men will not be dependent in part upon stray pieces of silver.

—"We the people" entered upon the "pursuit of happiness" in 1776, and we have been pursuing it ever since.—Whidby Islander.

CAPITALIST TOOLS IN OLD VIRGINIA.

Mother Jones is at present in old Virginia, organizing for the United Mine Workers. As usual she finds labor conditions in that state as deplorable as elsewhere, more so perhaps, because modern industrial methods are comparatively new there and the capitalist exploiter has unrestricted sway. That Mother Jones has anything but a "soft snap" is shown in a private letter, recently received. She says:

"This is an American Siberia if one exists anywhere on the continent. Let me tell you what happened me yesterday. I had a meeting scheduled several miles from here. The federal judge located here got on the train and went down ahead of me. I had the meeting billed for the colored church, but before I arrived the company served notice on the trustees that if they allowed me to speak they would annull their deed. The poor negroes got scared and begged me not to talk. When I arrived the federal judge was waiting to arrest me if I spoke.

"I fooled both him and the company, however, for I called the meeting in a secret place, and had a fine crowd of the boys. The company officials are trying to find out where the meeting was held, but none of the boys will give it away, and so they cannot arrest me.

"Nevertheless, they tried to bluff me and sent a company policeman up to serve notice on me not to speak or they would put me in jail. I sent back word, 'Jail be hanged. I am going to hold that meeting.'

"The company policemen have no bondsmen, are responsible to no one but the company, and they can put you in jail without a cause, and there is no redress. This fellow who spoke to me was a dandy.

"He said the company hired him for $35 a month, twelve hours a day, and night work besides. He boasted of working seven years for one man for $3.50 a week, took care of a wife, paid house rent, bought fuel and clothes and fed, themselves, and when he quit he had $37.67 saved up. He thought I should not come in there and 'bother the company.' In our conversation it developed that he did not know who Thomas Jefferson was. He asked me if Jefferson was a miner. When I spoke of George Washington he asked me if I meant the company doctor. And this fellow is an officer of the law in the state of Virginia!"

MORE COMPLAINTS IN THE C. F. U.

Hardly a meeting of the New York Central Federated Union passes that does not record some complaint from delegates of different unions regarding the action of city officials against Labor. Delegate McConville, on Sunday, protested against the treatment received from that good old "friend of Labor," John D. Crimmins. McConville and Stuart, representing the Safety Engineers, went to see Crimmins on some business for the union. As McConville reports, they saw Crimmins and knew he was in his office; but as soon as he saw them he retired to his private room, made his exit through a rear door, and by taking a cab around the corner, avoided them.

McConville asked the support of the C. F. U. and other unions in bringing Crimmins to terms. He also wished to have this man's actual position toward organized Labor made known because Crimmins pretends to be Labor's "friend."

If McConville and the members of his union and others who ought to have learned their lesson by this time would unite with the Social Democratic Party and elect men of their own class to office, we'd soon see a big change. Union men must go into politics—class-conscious Socialist politics. Only by this means can they command respect and ordinarily decent treatment as men; and by this means they can secure much more—namely, the full product of their labor.

CLOTH SPONGERS WIN.

Tiedeman, who has so long fought the Cloth Spongers' Union, has at last surrendered and agreed to run a union establishment. This last victory puts every cloth sponging establishment in the city under the union's jurisdiction. This young organization has made a winning fight and in three short years from its inception has vanquished every opponent. The credit is largely due to comrades who are active Socialists as well as trade unionists, and thus show that they understood the real economic aims of the working class. We congratulate our boys on their success, and hope that they will be as successful in getting the cloth spongers together in making a united stand at the ballot box against the larger and still unvanquished enemy—the capitalist class as a whole.

THE BLESSINGS OF POVERTY.

The defenders of capitalism and critics of Socialism often talk of "the blessings of poverty"—though they seldom show a desire to enjoy those blessings. They tell us of the men of genius who have struggled with want, and would have us believe that their poverty was the cause of the genius. On this point we may take the evidence of a man of very considerable genius, Robert Nielson Stephens, the playwright. Speaking from personal experience of the blessings of poverty, he says:

"They may say what they please, those who have never been poor; I would rather be ill and well-to-do, as I am, than poor and in good health, as I was for many years. I have had many sorrows, but hardly a sorrow that was not aggravated, if not caused, by poverty, or that very moderate wealth would not have ameliorated or prevented. The difference between pecuniary ease and poverty is often times simply as the difference between heaven and hell."

—You may resolute till the cows come home. You may petition till our heads are gray, aye till our hair falls out and leaves us with shining scalps. You may strike and boycott until you are all starved to death and laid away under the sod, but until you learn to strike at the ballot box you will go down in ignominious defeat.—Bret Harte.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor, and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

WILL YOU WIN IT?

A HANDSOME PRIZE.

A Handsomely Bound Volume of Karl Marx' "Capital,"
Only Authorized Edition by Frederick Engels.

Published by Swan, Sonnenschien & Company, London.
PRICE, $4.20, and twenty-five other Publications.

A Prize Every Socialist Wants. Start a Handsome Library.

To go to the Comrade who secures the largest number of Yearly Subscribers to THE WORKER by Feb. 1, 1902.

A REMARKABLE OFFER.

IN ADDITION

For every yearly subscription you send us before Feb. 1, 1902, we will send you free any three of the following:

"Now and Then" (Socialist Play) ..... Frederick Krafft
"Development of Socialism from Utopia to Science." Frederick Engels
"The Capitalist Class" ..... Karl Kautsky
"Labor Politics and Socialist Politics." ..... Algernon Lee
"The Attitude of Socialists Toward Trade Unions," ..... N. I. Stone
Debate—"Tactics of the S. T. & L. A. Toward Trade Unions." Job Harriman and Daniel DeLeon.
Also a copy of "Why Workingmen of New York Should Join the Social Democratic Party."

THE WORKER,
50 Cents Per Year. 184 William Street.

(The prize will not be given for less than ten subscribers, and should there be two or more winners who secure the same number each will receive the same prize. These offers do not apply to regular agents, but to subscribers only.

HELP THE ACTORS.

The Actors' National Protective Union has adopted a label. Union theaters will display it on their bill-boards and union actors wear it as a button on their lapel. The actors have shown themselves ready to lend their aid to other organizations in fighting for Labor's cause, and it is but right, not only on this ground, but as a matter of principle, that others should lend them all assistance possible. They are making energetic efforts to build up their union, and so far have met with great success. They ask that when we go to the theater we "ask for the label." It will help them if we can make the theater managers understand that working people who wear union-made clothing, shoes, hats, shaves, and haircuts, etc., also prefer to wear union-made smiles at a union theater.

The actors hold a smoker at 8 Union Square on Jan. 11, and their annual benefit will be at Murray Hill Theater on Feb. 2. The best talent will be provided on both occasions.

The second anniversary of the Hebrew Actors' Protective Union, recently held at the Manhattan Lyceum, was presided over by Comrade Joseph Barondess, who organized the union, and was a celebration of some good results for the past year's work.

It matters not whether the work be that of brains or brawn, whether it be that of talent and skill or of the laborless and unskilled sort, it is labor, and the laborers are being deprived of their just recompense. So long as there is a capitalist class to drain profits from Labor, so long must the workers—whether they be musicians or actors or printers or hod-carriers or street sweepers—unite to defend themselves. To do their full duty, the actors and all others must behave like union men 365 days in the year, true and loyal to their class, by presenting a solid front to the enemy on Election Day as well as in strike and boycott, in a united effort to emancipate Labor from its capitalist parasites and to gain for every man the full product of his toil.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

CAMPAIGN FUND.

To the Holders of Subscription Lists for the Campaign Fund of the Social Democratic Party of the City of New York:

Comrades and friends who still have subscription lists in their possession are requested to send the lists in at once, as the Campaign Committee would like to wind up its business before the expiration of this year. As there is some deficiency the comrades would confer a favor on the committee by promptly returning lists and money collected, as it may help the committee to meet all its liabilities. Those who have not collected any money on their lists are also requested to turn in their lists, as this will greatly aid the auditing committee in auditing the accounts. Therefore, come rush in your lists, lists with dimes, quarters, and dollars are preferred, but we want all, even the empty ones. Send lists and money to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street.

Previously acknowledged	$2,171.90
Arb. Kr. K asse, Br. 17, donation	10.00
List 5056, Arb. Kr. K asse, Br. 17	1.10
List 43, E. Boehme	1.00
List 2313, C. M.	.25
List 242, K. Kirschner	.75
List 5447, Soc. Liedertafel	.75
List 5174, Arb. Kr. Kasse, Br. 180	.50
List 5262, Bakers' Union No. 50	3.80
List 5263, do	7.15
List 5265, do	2.50
List 83, Paul Drescher	2.00
List 220, Nic. Kissel	1.00
List 383, Leo Schmitt	.50
List 572, H. Blum	.75
Total	$2,203.95

—Wise men are instructed by reason; men of less understanding, by experience; the most ignorant, by necessity.—Ex.

—Carnegie couldn't quite carry his point of having Uncle Sam underwrite his ill-gotten steel bonds.—Vineland Independent.

STEEL WORKERS' SCALE.

It is reported that the adjourned conference between President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association and the officers of the Republic Iron and Steel and the American Steel Hoop Company, regarding the construction of a clause in the finishing scale, after a few hours' session last Thursday night, reached an agreement. The details of the agreement were not made public.

FACTORY TO POCKET

P. S. BARTLETT WALTHAM, 1846. WATCHES, 20-year guarantee, value $25.00, at $9.75 each. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO. Est. 1876. Inc. 1897. 175 Broadway, up stairs.

—Mankind, without any common bond, has sought, each and all, to tread their own paths, little heeding if they trampled on the bodies of their brothers in name, enemies in fact. This is the state of things which we have reached to-day.—Mazzini.

HELP THE BARBERS.

UNION SHOP

A new Emblem Feb. 1, 1902.

You wear a Union Label Garment,
And a Union Label Shoe,
Why not wear a Union Haircut—
Have your face shaved Union, too?

THESE ARE UNION SHOPS—PATRONIZE NO OTHERS.

Harburger, 8 Chambers st.
Marothi, 47 West st.
Speh, 196 William st.
Shop, 231 William st.
Kissel, 87 E. 3d st.
Charles, 97 E. 4th st.
Sonnenschein, 84 E. 4th st.
Hippler, 406 E. 5th st.
Schmidt, 250 E. 9th st.
Katle, 645 E. 9th st.
Cluster, 638 E. 16th st.
Grisler, 105 W. 26th st.
Dietrich, 206 E. 38th st.
Stapsek, 338 W. 39th st.
Marth, 365 41st st.
Diggleman, 431 W. 41st st.
Drihun, 167 E. 106th st.
Feuerstein, 150 E. 107th st.
Peter & Paul, 216 Ave A.
Shop, 1079 Ave A.
Schlamp, 827 1st ave.
Murges, 2030 2d ave.
Loeb, 3457 3d ave.
Floch, 3295 3d ave.
Brand, 465 3d ave.
Koening, 3704 3d ave.
Noll, 393 3d ave.
Hilderbrand, 94 8th ave.
Georges, 336 8th ave.
Leder, 103 9th ave.
Patru, 504 11th ave.
Byrne, 1 Madison ave.
Cerbona, 749 St. Ann's av.
Petrolo, 1227 Webster av.
Schwing, 21 (Mt. Vernon)

If your regular Barber is not on this list ask him why he is not. Patronize union men only.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 41. NEW YORK, JANUARY 12, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

GOV. ODELL ON LABOR.

It Gets Little Attention in His Message.

Four Hundred Words Out of 19,000 Are Devoted to Labor Interests — An Ambiguous Reference to Employers' Liability and a Recommendation for Compulsory Arbitration.

Governor Odell sent to the Legislature last week an annual message of some 19,000 words, of which he deigned to devote about 400 to "labor interests." The proportion is very suggestive.

But the quality is even more unsatisfactory than the quantity. Only two recommendations are made, one of which is so indefinite that we cannot tell what it may result in, while the other is decidedly opposed to the interests of the working class.

What the Governor has to say on the subject of labor interests in connection with proposed legislation is this:

TWO RECOMMENDATIONS.

"The repeated demands made by those interested in labor for a uniform law in relation to the employer and the employee is again presented to you, with a recommendation for favorable action. While it is true that the courts have deceased and laid down rules which cover almost every possible contingency in negligence cases, yet it would be more satisfactory if these findings and such other provisions as might be considered desirable for the protection of the interests of both the employer and the employee were enacted into law at the present session of the legislature. A bill covering some of these points was passed at the last session, which contained a provision as to the limit of time in which an action for damages could be brought, which seemed to render it undesirable and it failed for want of executive approval.

"The consolidation of the various labor bureaus has been in the main satisfactory. It could not be expected that such a radical change would produce in a short time the results aimed at. I am convinced, however, that the department is in fair working order, and that every right, legally and morally, can be accorded to the toiler so far as it is within the powers of the present laws to do. A consideration of the disagreements which arise between the employers and employees should receive attention. It has been suggested that if labor organizations were incorporated they would be in a position to enforce agreements with employers, and themselves be amenable to the mandates of the courts. However, whether this suggestion would be satisfactory or not it is impossible to tell. If a court of arbitration were created, consisting of one representative selected by the labor interest, one by the employer, the two thus selected to choose a third, giving to such board of arbitration the power to cause the attendance of witnesses, determine the questions at issue and when approved by a justice of the Supreme Court by judicial mandate compel compliance with its findings, such a law might solve the question. This is proposed to you with the hope that your investigations may lead to such action as will be satisfactory to all interests concerned."

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY.

It is a pity that the Governor could not speak a little more definitely on the subject of an employers' liability law. This is a subject of the utmost importance to the working people and the actions of the last legislature in the matter were not such as to inspire confidence in honest intentions of the old-party politicians.

A bill was introduced in the legislature last year, the readers of The Worker will remember, at the instance of the labor organizations of the state, which, if passed, would have given the wage-workers somewhat better protection from accidents at their work than they now have. The unions, in accordance with their old policy of begging for legislative favors from capitalist politicians, instead of electing their own representatives to enact and execute laws in their interest, made a great effort to lobby this bill through. Positive assurances were given that the bill would pass as desired. But what happened was far from pleasing to the unions.

The bill was sent to a committee and kept there almost to the end of the session. Then it was reported in an amended form, passed, and sent to the Governor for his signature. The amendments made to the bill in committee entirely destroyed all its original good features, and made provisions in regard to the time limit within which a damage suit for injuries could be instituted such that it would be practically impossible to collect damages from an employer, even in the most outrageous cases. In a word, the old-party politicians answered the petitions of the unions by exactly reversing the effect of the bill they asked for and then passing it.

The unions were then obliged to repeat the whole performance of pleading and petitioning, in order to get the bill vetoed. Thus they came out with nothing gained and a great deal lost in time, money, and self-respect.

ODELL NON-COMMITTAL.

The Governor does not, in his present message, indicate what kind of a bill he would recommend, further than to say that it should "protect the interests of both the employer and the employee." Of one thing we may be sure: Governor Odell and the present legislature will not fail to protect the interests of the employers.

He remarks that "the courts have laid down rules which cover almost every possible contingency in negligence cases," and seems to think that nothing more is to be desired than the compilation of these rules into statute.

Inasmuch as almost every rule established by judicial decisions in cases arising out of injuries sustained by employees at their work is carefully framed in such a way as to give the least possible protection to the employees and the utmost license to the employer and to throw the responsibility for accidents so far as possible, upon the workingmen who are the victims, a law embodying these rules might be of great service to the capitalists, but would do the workingmen no good whatever.

The railway and manufacturing companies have too much influence at Albany for the workingmen to have any ground for even a half-way just employers' liability law until they begin to elect class-conscious workingmen to the legislature to look after working-class interests.

DANGEROUS PROPOSITION.

The Governor's recommendation of a compulsory arbitration law has already evoked a protest from the New York central labor body. Such a law would be nothing less than a legal recognition of class slavery.

It is proposed that the board of arbitrators be given power to decide questions of wages, hours, shop rules, etc., out of which strikes may arise, and, when approved by a single justice of the Supreme Court, to compel employees to continue to work under the rules so established.

The workingmen of this state have had a good deal of experience with the Supreme Court. It has issued injunctions against them, and it has declared labor laws unconstitutional, but it has never defended their interests against the aggressions of the capitalists.

The Legislature will probably be too wise to follow the Governor's recommendation. Should it do so, it would do much toward overthrowing capitalism by the indignation such an outrage would arouse in the working class.

At the last state election the workingmen had a chance to put one of their own class—Benjamin Hanford, candidate of the Social Democratic Party—in the Governor's chair. Had they done so, we should have heard very different recommendations in regard to labor legislation—and even a capitalist legislature would have feared to disregard them. That opportunity was lost, but another election is coming and a workingman will again be in the field. Labor's voice will yet be heard, and with a Social Democrat in the State House at Albany it would be heard around the world.

HUDSON COUNTY, ATTENTION.

Regular semi-annual meeting of Local Hudson County for the election of officers and perfecting organization, will take place at Central Hall, 344 Central avenue, Jersey City Heights, Sunday, January 12, at 9 a. m. All members of the local must attend.

C. KRONENBERG,
Organizer.

HOBOKEN LONGSHOREMEN.

The Longshoremen's Union has arranged to hold a series of lecture meetings on the second and fourth Sunday evenings of each month, at the Hoboken Labor Lyceum, 110 Grand street. The first meeting in each month will be addressed by an English speaker, and the other by a German. Algernon Lee will be the first speaker, on Sunday evening, Jan. 12.

THE LOW CROWD.

The public is told that it was a good job which the Low crowd did in New York at the recent election when they overthrew Tammany. This brings to mind a brief colloquy heard on a race track. "I'll bet a hundred on the gray," said one man. "I'll take that bet," said a second man. "All right; who'll hold the stakes?" answered the first man. "My friend here," replied the second man. "Yes," said the first man, "but who'll hold your friend?"

The Low crowd overthrew Tammany. Now, who's going to overthrow the Low gang? They may be a little cleaner than Tammany, but they belong to the same system, and can't keep out of the old competitive rut. It will be the task of the Socialists to solve this question.—Los Angeles Socialist.

LADIES' WRAPPER MAKERS STRIKE.

The wrapper makers have been on strike at the shop of Michael Cooper, 20 and 35 Houston street, for nine weeks past, and are now said to be in a fair way to winning. The union demands the adoption of its scale of wages and recognition.

They have been hampered in the fight by the Baron Hirsch shop in Bayonne, N. J., an alleged philanthropic institution, maintained by the Baron Hirsch Fund to aid poor girls, which acted as a scab agency in doing Cooper's work. The girls of the Hirsch shop, however, after being used as scabs for Cooper for some weeks, made an effective protest by going on strike themselves last week and compelling the Hirsch shop to refuse Cooper's work.

Cooper has another factory at Cooper, N. J., where the girls are also on strike for higher wages and to secure the union's demands. Now that the Hirsch shop has ceased scabbing for Cooper prospects are favorable to an early victory for the girls.

—There shall be sometime a division of labor that will mean a distribution of life.—Wm. T. Brown.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

Continued Discussion in the C. F. U.

Gompers' Reply Received, as Also Condemnatory Resolutions from Painters' Union—Socialist Delegates Secure Referendum Vote of Unions.

The question of the "industrial peace conference" and of the participation of prominent labor leaders in it will not down. It came up once more in last Sunday's session of the New York Central Federated Union. Two weeks before, it will be remembered, the Federation adopted a resolution, introduced by Comrade Brown, delegate of Cigar Makers' Union No. 144, calling on President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor to explain his position at the conference and submit the agreement made there. President Gompers' reply was read at last Sunday's meeting, and along with it came resolutions introduced by Delegate Wm. Lott of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators No. 499, condemning the conference and calling upon the working class to use its economic and political power to abolish capitalism instead of making compromises with the capitalists.

GOMPERS' REPLY.

President Gompers sent a synopsis of the proceedings of the famous conference and also a lengthy personal statement of his own position. He wrote, in part:

"By the very order of things the workers have but little materially to concede. They get too small a share of the products of labor to be able to make many concessions. Their share in the product must of necessity be continually larger and larger; but the desire for industrial peace—that is, the avoidance of strikes and lockouts—is just as intense as it is among the employers.

"Much as absolute industrial peace may be desirable, not even the most sanguine friend or participant in this new effort entertains the belief that strikes and lockouts will be entirely eliminated from our industrial life, but that it will act for the better recognition by each of the RIGHTS TO WHICH THE OTHER MAY BE ENTITLED no sane or reasonable man will dispute."

The statement goes on to say that mistaken friends of labor have urged the legislatures in the states of this country to enact laws for compulsory arbitration of labor disputes. None, it says, have gone so far, however, as to insist that the state should enforce arbitration unless the employers and workers both consented to compulsory arbitration.

"This conference," he continued, "and the establishment of the Industrial Department of the National Civic Federation is the effort to do so by the initiative of both parties in industries: the workers and employers. It is an effort to bring about peace when a strike or lockout has occurred, and to voluntarily arbitrate matters in dispute when both parties in interest agree thereto without the interference of the politician and the courts.

"The influence of the conference, the declarations made, and the personnel of the executive committee have already had a splendid influence upon the public mind. It is a recognition of the great services rendered to the cause by organized labor. It is also a practical acceptance by employers generally that there is something to concede, discuss, and adjust."

PAINTERS CONDEMN THE CONFERENCE.

It was moved to have President Gompers' statement and the accompanying matter printed and sent out to the affiliated unions; but the Socialist delegates objected to this manner of getting rid of the question. Delegate Lott introduced the resolutions from his union and spoke warmly in favor of them, severely criticizing both the capitalists who had planned the conference and the trade union officials who had fallen into the trap. The resolutions of the Painters' Union are as follows:

"Whereas, The conditions of the working class to-day differ radically from those of all former categories of labor; and

"Whereas, The product of the worker does not belong to him, but belongs to the capitalist, to the purchaser of his labor-power, to the owner of the instruments of production; and

"Whereas, The working class is paid for their labor by the capitalist, but the value of their wages is far below that of the product; and

"Whereas, The difference in the wages and the value of the product is the profit of the capitalist; the longer the time is extended during which the workmen labor in the service of the capitalist over and above the time needed to cover their wages, the larger is the value of their product, the larger is the surplus over and above the capitalist outlay of wages and the larger is the quantity of exploitation to which these workmen are subjected; and

"Whereas, This state of affairs plainly shows that there is to-day a division of society, into one exploiting class and one exploited class; and

"Whereas, It is found to be impossible to reconcile the two classes in the present state of society unless the exploiting class cease its work, which the sincerest will not imagine; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we condemn such proceedings as the conference held by Hanna, Schwab, and others; and instead, appeal to all workers to use all efforts economically and politically to secure a state of society, where exploitation will cease and labor will get the full value of its product."

Comrade Lott denounced the conference as a farce and a trick. "Between Capital and Labor," he said, "there can be no harmony: The interests of the workers are altogether different from those of the capitalists. Think of the composition of the 'harmony committee'—twenty-four capitalists and twelve workingmen. There is not one of the capitalist members from whom we can expect any help. There is Schwab, who has crushed the steel workers; there is Hanna, the representative of the monopolists; there is Cleveland, who sent troops to Illinois, against the protest of Governor Altgeld, to shoot the railway strikers. Do you expect any consideration from such men? And how can strikes be prevented? So long as there are wage-workers suffering from poverty and hunger, so long strikes will continue to break out—even over the heads of our 'leaders.' We cannot grasp the blood-stained hands of capitalists who have murdered our brother workingmen. We have to fight them and conquer them."

Lott's remarks were loudly applauded.

Delegate Fitzgerald of the Marble Workers wanted to smoothe matters over, but insisted that "lack of confidence on the part of wage-workers in their leaders was the greatest failing of organized labor."

This sentiment was evidently not generally concurred in. Delegate Maisel of the Bartenders supported Lott's resolution, and moved that it be printed along with Gompers' communication, and that the whole be submitted to a referendum vote of affiliated unions. This motion was finally adopted.

AGAINST COMPULSORY ARBITRATION SCHEME.

Delegate Barr of the Sheet Metal Workers called attention to that part of Governor Odell's annual message suggesting a State Board of Arbitration with power to enforce its decisions against employers and employees and warned the unions against allowing such a measure to be enacted. He introduced a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, in these words:

"Resolved, That the Central Federated Union emphatically protests against any legislation that would curtail our industrial liberty, believing that under no circumstances ought we to be compelled to labor against our free will, and that such legislation (as proposed by the Governor) would tend to enslave men who ought to be free."

The distribution of patronage by Sheriff O'Brien occupied considerable attention. John Henry of the Wood Carvers, having been appointed as secretary to the Sheriff, resigned as Financial Secretary of the C. F. U.

Philip Weinseimer of the Plumbers, who wanted to be a deputy sheriff, was endorsed.

In a report made by Robert Campbell, delegate of Typographical Union No. 6, it was said that, through the efforts of his union, the City Record had been set up by hand under the Van Wyck administration. This gave employment to more printers than if machines had been used. A committee of three was appointed to see Mayor Low and ask that when bids were invited for printing the City Record in future a proviso should be inserted calling for hand-composition.

At the request of the Ladies' Waist Makers' Union, a boycott was put on the shop of Citron Bros., 1-3 Bond street, where a strike has been on for nine weeks. The boycott on Theo. Tiedeman was raised, the shop having accepted the scale of the Cloth Spongers' Union.

Mathew Barr and Eugene Johnson were nominated for President of the C. F. U.; Jos. Wm. Dooley for Vice President; and Jas. P. Archibald and Edward Hanna for Financial Secretary.

VAIL IN BOSTON.

To the Comrades of Boston and Vicinity:

The Boston Socialist Club has engaged Charles H. Vail for a series of four lectures on Socialism to be given Feb. 11, 12, 13, and 14 at Every Day Church, 397 Shawmut avenue, between Canton and Brooklyn streets.

The necessity and importance of such lectures is clear. In hunting after political successes we have unfortunately neglected in the past the most essential feature of our work—the educational. Let us therefore begin the work at once. It lies with you, comrades, to make this undertaking a success. This series of lectures is not intended for strangers only. It is the duty of every Socialist to avail himself of the opportunity to study the subject in order to be able intelligently to defend the principles of Socialism.

Comrade Vail, being one of the foremost theoretical exponents of Socialism in this country, will treat the subject in his four lectures from all sides, as seen from the following synopsis:

Feb. 11.—"The Economic Evolution."
Feb. 12.—"The Socialist Movement."
Feb. 13.—"The Abolition of Poverty and Realization of Plenty."
Feb. 14.—"The Solution of Modern Social and Industrial Problems."

Doors open at 7:30 p. m.; lecture begins at 8 p. m.

Admission: Single lecture, 10 cents; full course, 25 cents. Apply for further information and tickets to the undersigned.

For the Committee,
DR. M. J. KONIKOW,
330 Shawmut avenue.

ACTORS' UNION LABEL.

The Actors' National Union has added a design to the gallery of union labels indorsed by the American Federation of Labor. It is worn on a lapel button and also occupies the center of a blue-and-white poster which is displayed in front of theaters employing performers who are members of the union.

FOREDOOMED TO FAILURE.

"Industrial Peace Conference" Schemers Fail to Entrap the Working People—Socialist Comment.

The "industrial peace conference" farce—or confidence game, whichever it may be termed—continues to arouse lively discussion in all labor circles. It is evident that the capitalists who planned the conference have failed utterly in their main purpose—which was, undoubtedly, to commit the trade unions, through a few chosen leaders, to a policy of compromise, before the rank and file should awake to what was going on, and then, when the supposed agreement was repudiated by the workers, to turn "public opinion" against them on the score of "broken faith." It is evident that the rank and file of the unions are wide awake, more thoroughly awake, perhaps, than the leaders.

In another column we report the discussion in last Sunday's session of the New York Central Federated Union. Here we may present the comment of the Pennsylvania State Committee of the Socialist Party upon the subject:

"Trading under the name 'Industrial Department of the National Civic Federation,' twenty-four capitalists and twelve labor union leaders, meeting recently in New York City, have constituted themselves a committee. Their purpose, according to the prospectus is 'to prevent strikes and establish harmonious relations between capitalists and laborers, employers, and employees'—in other words, to harness once more the good natured and thoughtless giant, Labor.

"This peace tribunal has been created with Senator Mark Hanna as the high priest. Verily we may ask, What good can come out of Nazareth?

"Mark Hanna, the personification of capitalist brutality, greed for power and wealth, political trickster and famed union-wrecker until halted by his political ambitions, steps upon the stage as the best friend of Labor, the promoter of justice and defender of the oppressed!

"The Socialist Party of Pennsylvania, representing the class-conscious toilers, consider it their duty to divest this farce comedy of its tinsel and glamor and reveal its tragic significance to the working class.

"There exist the class of the exploiters and oppressors and the exploited and oppressed class. Between these two there can be no peace.

"Any measure for emancipation of the subject class short of political revolution will be utterly futile. Arbitration at best is an armistice in which the opposing forces of Labor and Capital confer about the terms upon which Labor surrenders to Capital.

"The price at which Labor should be bought and sold is an inherently irreconcilable issue that cannot be eternally arbitrated. The difference between voluntary arbitration and compulsory arbitration is the difference between being robbed according to agreement and being robbed according to government—and the capitalists are the government.

"Prepare to abolish capitalism and, in proportion to the power demonstrated, concessions will be given. When proletarians leave the economic basis of society undisturbed and plead for petty measures of relief, promises are the reward.

"The interests of the capitalists cannot be considered without interfering with the interests of the working class.

"Capitalism has only to defend the existing conditions; is solely the gainer, if the severity of the class-struggle is tempered, if the opposition against its ruling attitude relaxes. This explains the longing of the capitalists for social peace.

"If we were to consider capitalist interests, we would never get out of our misery. Therefore we oppose human interests to the interests of capitalist accumulation.

"The commodity labor-power lifts its human voice and protests against this transformation of men into economic puppets; protests against the whole economic structure, the indispensable factor of which is the commodity 'man.'

"The class-conscious workers fight capitalism from the standpoint of the necessary social revolution for the emancipation of their class. If they sacrifice this point of vantage they have no choice but to accommodate themselves to the structure of capitalist society with all its concomitant horrors. The proletariat can either be the grave diggers or the subjects of capitalism.

"The same papers, upon the same day, that informed us of the peace conference of the Civic Federation in New York City, informed us that there was thousands of blacklisted steel strikers roaming our country, their wives and little ones destitute.

"Away with those who cry, 'Peace, peace,' when there is no peace! Workingmen, forward to the conquest of the public powers!"

THE WORKER CONFERENCE.

Every subdivision should see that its delegate attends the next meeting of The Worker Conference, Monday, Jan. 13, 8 p. m., at 64 E. Fourth street, top floor. The Yorkville districts are making an earnest effort to push the circulation. There is work for every member of the party, and this work must be attended to. Don't think you are going to lay a field for a daily by staying at home and leaving all the work for others. The campaign is on and you should enlist now.

—Capital is dead labor, which lives, vampire-like, sucking in living labor, and lives the more, the more it sucks in.—Karl Marx.

MILITARISM IN THE SCHOOLS.

Rebuked by Socialists and Trade Unions.

Yonkers Board of Education Arming High School Students—Local Yonkers, S. D. P., Raised the Alarm and Labor Organizations Join in Vigorous Protest.

The fall campaign over, Local Yonkers started in on the next campaign and with a good opportunity to show to the workingmen of Yonkers what their capitalist friends are getting ready for. The Local seems to be full of life, encouraged by our gains and the heavy losses of the S. L. P.

Things are getting pretty interesting in this little town, what with raiding poolrooms, shortage of Board of Health funds, and the latest scheme of the Board of Education. What started this last trouble will be seen from the subjoined address to the trade unions of Yonkers. The latter have responded in good numbers and sent in their protests to the Common Council. The Plumbers, the Carpenters and Joiners, the Machinists, the Building Trades Council, and the William Morris Club (a society organized for the study of political and social economy), have joined in our work, the result being that one of the aldermen remarked that he never saw such an array of protests against any official action, and the Common Council referred the matter to the Board of Education for a public hearing for which we are getting ready now.

LOCAL YONKERS' ADDRESS TO THE TRADE UNIONS.

This is our letter to the trade unions:

"Brothers:—The Social Democratic Party of Yonkers addresses you and calls for your co-operation on a subject which this party of the working class considers to be of utmost importance to the welfare of the city and especially its working population.

"As is well-known to you, the Board of Education of this city has, at its last meeting, on Dec. 10, decided to appropriate $1,100 for procuring guns for the High School Cadets, in order to improve the military standing of these boys. With the lavish expenditure of money in a city department the public has become so thoroughly familiar that in itself the throwing out of this amount of money would not attract any particular attention; but in the light of some recent events this item of expense becomes extremely significant.

"You will remember the case of the students of Columbia University taking the place of striking machinists in New Jersey, and succeeding in breaking the strike. This was done with the consent of the authorities of Columbia University, and, nobody except the workingmen's press took any notice of it. It is only The Worker, the official organ of the Social Democratic Party, that has correctly understood and explained the significance of this new move on the part of the employers. This warning should suffice. The significance of the other move of instructing high school boys in military drill should be another warning to the workingmen.

"This unexpected use of public money for guns should be considered by you in conjunction with the fact that organized labor all over the country has lately expressed deep disapproval of the actions of the militia in time of strikes. You know that trade unions all over the country recommended to their members to withdraw from the militia in order that one workingman should not shoot another workingman.

"The capitalist class is frightened. The oppressors know that the hour of their domination is gone, the moment one workingman refuses to murder another one. And the capitalists rose to the occasion. If they cannot array one worker against the other, why not under cover of patriotic sentiments arm high school boys, and when in time of strike the militia, depleted of its sturdy element of workingmen, should refuse or be unable to murder enough workingmen to break a strike, a new military element will be brought in play and used against you. Your own gallant Fourth Separate may some day think better than to shoot defenseless men, women, and children, although they have not refused to march to Croton Dam last year, ready for action and waiting for orders. If they should one day have their eyes open and you will be on the point of success in a time of strike, what difference will it make to you whether you will be shot by the militia or by high school boys who will be mustered to keep order?

"In the industrial warfare, where the children are competing with their parents in the factories and where child labor is displacing adult labor, do not be afraid to look the situation square in the face, and do not forget that your own children in the high school will be ordered to shoot their fathers.

"At the same sitting of the Board of Education when the Committee on Sites reported the question of a suitable site for a new school near Yonkers Park, the Board decided to ask the Common Council for the appropriation of $3,100 for buying a certain piece of property. It should be the duty of the Common Council to censure the Board of Education for throwing out the $1,100 for guns instead of using it for a new site. If the Board of Education has a surplus that it does not know how to spend in a hurry, why ask for more money? They have a balance of $24,413.85 and are willing to spend it any old way, but when Eugenia M. Cassen of Bryn Mawr Park asks that a conveyance be provided to take children to and from School No. 4, they refer it to a committee, for they do not have enough surplus to accommodate the children of the workingmen. They can, though, afford $1,100 to spoil the morals of the children by instructing them in military practice contrary to the teachings of Christianity, and universal brotherhood.

"Brothers, you have now the opportunity to register a vigorous protest. Do not hesitate a moment to join us in our attempt to overthrow the outrageous attempt of the capitalist class on your life and liberties. Do not delay to sign the enclosed petition to the Common Council and show to the city at large that organized labor is always ready to lift its voice for right and justice.

"Fraternally yours,
"LOCAL YONKERS, S. D. P., G. LEHNER, Secretary."

Dec. 16, 1901.

LABOR'S PROTEST.

Jointly with the trade unions, we sent to the Common Council the following protest:

"To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Yonkers:

"We, the undersigned, representing our respective organizations, by their authority and order, hereby appeal to the Common Council of the City of Yonkers and request them to pass a vote of censure on the Board of Education of the City of Yonkers for their decision to buy guns for the High School Cadets, thereby diverting $1,100 of money appropriated by the Common Council for the purpose of education to purposes entirely outside of the scope of an educational institution, while at the same time deciding to ask your honorable body for a new appropriation of $3,250 to buy property for a new school.

"We also petition the Common Council that they direct the Board of Education to use their surplus money, if any, for improvements in the schools already existing, as well as for the opening of new schools, instead of throwing away the city's money on military supplies, thus imbuing our children with the spirit of militarism in opposition to the teachings of Christianity.

"And we further petition your honorable body to recommend that the surplus of the Board of Education, if any, be used for the purpose of giving free meals at noon hours to the children, in order that they may not be compelled in cold winter to walk at times a considerable distance to and from school four times a day, and that warm clothing be given free to the children of the poor.

"And we further petition your honorable body that unless the Board of Education rescind its decision to buy guns, no further appropriations be granted to that body until the surplus fund be exhausted."

The ball is started a-rolling and people know that the Social Democratic Party was instrumental in bringing about the agitation of the gun question and they are in sympathy with the movement. We do not know whether the Board of Education will accede to the demands of the working people. It is rather doubtful, for it would be a confession that they were caught red-handed; but we will be satisfied if the workingmen of Yonkers find out who are their friends and who are their enemies. We will be satisfied if a number of workingmen become enlightened by next election and cast their ballots, not for their oppressors and lords, but for their own liberation from the slavery of capitalism, voting a straight ticket of the Social Democratic Party.

VAIL TO SPEAK.

Charles H. Vail and Mrs. Vail are coming to Yonkers on January 10 for a lecture. One of the best halls in town, the Hollywood Inn Assembly Hall, is engaged for the night and excellent arrangements made to ensure complete success.

Special efforts will be made to spread the party press, as we consider the Socialist papers the best propaganda material.

P. J. B

VOTE IN THE SEVENTH.

The Social Democratic vote in the special election in the Seventh Congressional District, last Tuesday, so far as reported, is 707. The same district gave us about 100 votes in November. The total vote was light, the two old parties casting only about half as many votes as in November.

HILLQUIT WILL LECTURE.

Morris Hillquit's lecture on "The Forerunners of Socialism", the first of the series at Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place, was very well attended. The second lecture will be on "Modern Socialism", this Sunday, Jan. 12th, beginning at 2 p. m. No comrade should fail to attend this Sunday course, as the lectures will give an excellent systematic treatment of the movement in its most important phases.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

The General Committee of Local New York holds its regular meeting at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, Saturday evening, Jan. 11. Nomination of officers for the ensuing term of six months is a special order of business.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

WHOLESALE CHILD-MURDER.

WHY NOT PUT A STOP TO IT?

From a report of Ben Tillett's speech in Toledo we take this passage:

"Speaking of the conditions in the congested sections of the large cities, Mr. Tillett said that out of every 100 children born in the congested districts of New York and London, 60 died under a year old. Of the children of the rich but 12 out of 100 died under that age. 'The difference between 12 and 60,' said Mr. Tillett, 'is the proportion of murder we are organized to stop. This sore on the body politic must be removed and we are organized to remove it.'"

Those were the words of a trade unionist who is also a Socialist. Trade unionism may somewhat reduce the frightful ratio of child-murder which the capitalist system involves; but trade unionism alone cannot put an end to it, because it cannot secure to the workingmen the full product of their labor, the full power to which their toil entitles them to care for their wives and children and guard them from hunger and cold, from disease and accident.

The working class builds and furnishes and equips the factories and workshops, the palatial mansions and the tenements and hovels. But because the working people do not own the factories and workshops, the tools and machinery, the means of production with which they work, they are doomed to inhabit the tenements and hovels, while others, who need do no useful work, dwell in the mansions.

Because one class of society owns the land and mines and railroads and mills and shops and factories, the people of the other class cannot work except by their permission. And permission to work is granted only on condition that the owning class, the master class, the non-producing capitalist class, shall get, in the form of dividends and interest and rent, the greater portion of the wealth that is produced by the toilers. So long as this private ownership of the means of production continues, so long will the power of one class over the other be perpetuated and luxury and poverty continue to exist side by side. So long as we have private ownership of the means of life, the workers will be compelled to give up a part of the value of their product to the capitalists. The efforts of trade unions may slightly reduce the degree of this exploitation, but they cannot put an end to it and to all the horrible consequences it involves.

"You take my life when you do take the means by which I live." Every dollar of profit pocketed by the capitalist class out of the product of labor means so much overwork for the toilers, so much anxiety and hardship for working class mothers, so much want and suffering for their children. Whenever the organized capitalists reduce wages, whenever they raise the price of food and the rent of the people's dwellings, whenever they discharge a part of their "hands" instead of reducing the hours of labor in proportion to the improvement of methods of production—whenever they do these things, which they are doing every day—they are driving so many men to crime or suicide, dooming so many women to starvation or to shame, consigning so many babies' bodies to the Potter's Field. Every act of capitalism is an act of murder.

And yet the capitalist cannot help this, if he would. (Few of them would if they could—but that is beside the question.) The individual capitalist is almost as completely a victim of the private-ownership system as is the individual workingman. He cannot exist as a capitalist without keeping pace with his brother capitalists in exploiting the workers. And even if he resolves to cease to be an exploiter, if he gives up his business and sells all that he has and gives to the poor, according to the Biblical injunction, he has done no permanent good. He has only turned over his wage-slaves to other masters and the system of social robbery and social murder goes on just as before.

There is only one way out. "The emancipation of the working class," as Marx has said, "must be achieved by the working class itself." United political action of the exploited working class, to put an end to private property in the means of production, which gives rise to class rule, poverty, and oppression, and to establish social or collective ownership in its place—that is the only course that can put an end to evils of which we complain, because it is the only course which removes their cause.

Your duty—YOU, every workingman and every sympathizer with the cause of Labor—is to join in this organized movement to stop that wholesale child-murder of which Ben Tillett spoke and all the other forms of social wrong which go along with it. There is work for you to do, right now. If you are willing to do it, join the nearest local organization of the Socialist Party* and take your full part in its activities.

*The Socialist Party, called in the state of New York by its old name of the Social Democratic Party. If you do not know where your nearest local organization is, write to the editor of this paper and find out.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
500 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.25
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

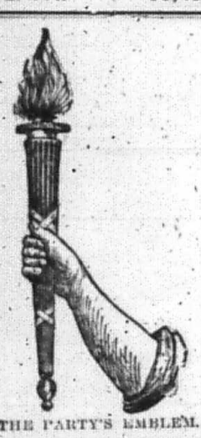
As far as possible, rejected communications will be returned if so desired and stamps are enclosed.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450



THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

THE POSTAL SERVICE AS "AN EXAMPLE OF SOCIALISM."

Louis F. Post, in "The Public," prefaces an article on the suppression of Socialist papers by the Post Office Department, with the following statement:

"The American postal service is a favorite and favorable illustration with our socialistic friends. It is characterized by them as being, so far as it goes, a practical application of their program."

It is lamentable that any who call themselves Socialists have given the opponents of Socialism the opportunity to fling this statement in their faces. But the Socialist movement cannot fairly be judged by the expressions of the muddle-heads who point to the postal service as an "example of Socialism." The Socialist movement is a political movement and all fair-minded people must accept the attitude of the Socialist party and of its ablest members as representing the position of real Socialists.

We point out the fact that the postal clerks are overworked and exploited, while the mail service is a mine of profits for the railroads; and we particularly emphasize the fact that no industry owned or operated by the government can be Socialistic until the governmental powers have first been captured by the working class as such. Moreover, by reason of the interdependence of all industrial and social activity, no one publicly owned industry can be an "example of Socialism." Socialism calls for the common ownership of ALL the means of production and distribution—there can be no "example of Socialism" save Socialism itself, and there can be no "step towards Socialism" except as the working class elects Socialist officials to local offices and brings about public ownership by and for the working class.

That the "Appeal to Reason," one of the few papers which has pointed to the postal service as "an example of Socialism," is now suffering persecution, through the Post Office Department, at the hands of a government whose actions are determined by the spirit of class rule, is a new instance of the irony of fate. Socialists have refrained from attacking the "Appeal" and specially repudiating its errors, in the present crisis, for the reason that it has trouble enough on its hands, and support rather than condemnation is necessary in its conflict with that branch of a capitalist government which it has been pleased to term "Socialistic." Experience should be a sure teacher, and it is to be hoped that all who call themselves Socialists will learn that there can be no "example of Socialism" under a capitalist government with its consequent class rule. Those who choose to espouse the cause of Socialism should not lay themselves open to the jeers of opponents and confuse the public mind by ridiculous statements which the recognized exponents of scientific Socialism know to be preposterously inaccurate and entirely opposed to the fundamental principles upon which the Socialist movement is based.

C. L.

Nothing could be more appropriate than the suggestion that Grover Cleveland be appointed to represent the Court of Teddy the Strenuous at the coronation of Edward VII. It would fall in so nicely with his recently assumed function as Grand Arbitrator between Capital and Labor. Let us hope the President will be "broad and non-partizan" enough to make this appointment.

The Reverend Dr. Hillis is getting some unpleasant free advertising these days through the revival of the exposure for plagiarism which vexed him so three or four years ago and for which, it is alleged, he has sought personal revenge with quite diabolical and unChristlike pertinacity. It may be timely to recall the fact that Hillis was the chief among the Pharisees who heaped their foul abuse upon George D. Herron last year because he openly avowed himself a Socialist. We sometimes have a right to be proud of our enemies, and Comrade Herron assuredly has a right to rejoice in the enmity of such a man as Hillis.

OUR LABOR SHERIFF—A USE LESS LUXURY.

Now that a distribution of "plums" from the office of the Sheriff of New York County among the "faithful" in the trade unions is taking place, it is pertinent to ask: When the "reformers" were deciding which nomination to give to the trade union contingent in their wonderful coalition, why did they select the office of Sheriff? Why did they not, instead, nominate at least a few staunch trade unionists for the Assembly and the Board of Aldermen?

The answer is not hard to find, if one will consider the peculiar character of the office of Sheriff in this county. In all but four of the sixty counties of this state the office of Sheriff is one the control of which might be of real value to the working class in time of trouble. In the rural counties the Sheriff is the officer charged with the maintenance of "law and order," and when labor troubles arise it is the Sheriff and his deputies who are first called upon to "protect" the capitalists and their property against "mob violence"—or, to drop the hypocritical phraseology of the capitalist press, it is the Sheriff and his deputies who are first called upon to disperse meetings of strikers, to arrest pickets and agitators, and to enforce injunctions against the trade unions. In such a county, it would be worth while for the unions to have in that office a man of their own, who could be counted upon, in time of trouble, to put his loyalty to his class above the false pretenses of capitalist society—who would use his official power to protect pickets rather than to help smuggle in scabs, who would arrest law-breaking capitalists rather than law-abiding workingmen, and who would, even at the risk of being ousted from his office, refuse to serve or enforce tyrannical injunctions issued by corrupt or time-serving judges. Such a workingman Sheriff as that would be worth having—in any county of this state except New York, Kings, Queens, and Richmond.

But in these four counties, which form parts of the city of New York, the duties and powers of the Sheriff are quite different. Here, the enforcement of law and order is assumed by the city police. It is the Police Commissioner and not the Sheriff to whom the capitalists look for aid in crushing strikes, and the chief business of the Sheriff is to draw his pay, appoint deputies, and sell out the numerous small business men whom the capitalist system drives into bankruptcy.

It is no reflection upon Sheriff O'Brien to say that he is of not one iota more use to the working class in office than he was as a private citizen. If the cigarmakers' lockout of 1900 were to be repeated this year, Sheriff O'Brien would not be called upon to help the Tobacco Trust defeat the Cigar Makers' Union. Police Commissioner Partridge would attend to that. And, on the other hand, Sheriff O'Brien could not, if he would, so much as raise his hand officially in defense of his fellow unionists against the Trust, the courts, and the police.

In a word, so far as the labor question is concerned, the office of Sheriff of New York County is absolutely useless to either side—and that is one reason why that office was assigned to the trade unionists by the "reform" managers.

The other reason is even simpler. The office of Sheriff of this county has a great deal of patronage attached to it. There are many good-sized "plums" to be given out by the Sheriff; and in giving this position to a prominent trade unionist and leaving him free to divide these "plums" among other prominent trade unionists, the "reform" managers believed that they saw the best way to secure the continued support of a number of influential men in the unions and so to make the "reform" administration "solid" with the trade unionists as a body.

Be it clearly understood, we do not charge Mr. O'Brien or his appointees with consciously selling their influence for the sake of office. We do not deny that all of these men may be perfectly sincere in their attachment to the Republican party or to the "reform" combination.

What we do point out and insist upon, what we have proved, and what we challenge anyone to controvert, is simply this: That Mr. O'Brien and his appointees do not represent the trade unions in their respective offices; that their being in office is of no advantage to the working class; and that the "reform" managers, in allotting them these offices, conceded nothing to the trade unions as a body, but simply conferred favors upon them as individuals, for which no one but themselves as individuals owe the "reformers" any thanks. Even from the standpoint of what is commonly called "labor politics" (as distinguished from Socialist politics)—the policy of lobbying to get as favors what ought to be demanded as rights—even from that standpoint, Sheriff O'Brien is, for the working people of this city, an entirely useless luxury.

Police Commissioner Murphy, just before going out of office, promised a committee of the Central Federated Union, who came to complain to him, that there should be no further police persecution of the girl waist makers who are on strike. Is it not a shameful thing that such persecution should have been begun, that there should have been any occasion for such a request on the part of the organized workers? Is it not a disgrace to the workingmen of this city, who have votes enough to control its government, if they would use them intelligently, that persecution of strikers by policemen should be considered perfectly natural, and that the Commissioner's promise to stop it should be considered as a favor? When the workingmen get class-conscious enough to elect a workingman as Mayor, on a labor platform, we shall see sweatshop bosses, instead of working girls, begging for mercy—and getting nothing but cold justice, which is better than the working girls get now.

THE NATIONAL ORGANIZER'S "PRINCELY SALARY."

Some caustic and wholly unwarranted criticisms have recently found their way into the party press concerning the salary paid to our National Organizer, Comrade Vail. The authors of these criticisms seem to think that Comrade Vail is getting rich out of the movement. "Two thousand dollars a year!" they exclaim and hold up their hands in holy horror. "Princely salary" is one of their forcible expressions.

We must assume that the criticisms are made in good faith. But they certainly have not been made in a fraternal manner; they are rather "previous," inasmuch as Comrade Vail has not yet made his report (or else, on the other hand, rather tardy, as coming in the eleventh month of his year's term of service); and finally, they are entirely misleading as to matters of fact.

The facts are these: Comrade Vail was engaged (by the Springfield Executive, before the final union), with the agreement that he should be paid $2,000 a year and his railway fare. Hotel bills and incidental expenses he was to pay out of his salary.

Now $2,000 a year sounds large. Perhaps $5.48 a day would not sound quite so large; but it is the same thing. In former days, the party regularly paid to its traveling organizers, either $3 a day and all expenses or $5 a day and railway fare. Comrade Vail's salary is therefore not unprecedented. Nor is it at all exorbitant.

If a man is to do proper work when on a tour, he cannot well get along with less than $2 a day for hotel bills. Moreover, there are many small incidental expenses which cannot be avoided by a travelling speaker. It is doubtful if $3 a day would remain when these have been deducted.

Moreover, Mrs. Vail accompanied her husband. She spoke at many meetings specially arranged for her and evidently gave good satisfaction, as she was repeatedly invited to return and offered payment for so doing. In other cases, she spoke from the same platform with Comrade Vail, and reports indicate that her services were welcomed. She received no payment whatever, whether as salary or for expenses.

If the receipts for Comrade Vail's tour be considered, it must become evident that the many locals for which he spoke considered his services worth more than the National Committee paid him for them. The arrangement made by the then National Secretary, Comrade Butscher, was that each local should pay $10. In many cases they voluntarily paid as much as $20. This money went into the hands of the National Committee and was applied to the payment of Comrade Vail's salary and expenses.

It must be remembered that the position of a man who gives his whole time to the movement is quite different from that of one who lectures occasionally, when he has leisure, without giving up his private occupation. If the party asks a man to leave his former employment and give all his attention to party work, it must expect, in addition to bearing the special expenses which his new duties involve, to pay him a salary at least not much below that which is paid to skilled mechanics. We do not expect to hire printers for less than $4 a day in this city. It is hard to see why $3 a day should be considered exorbitant for a speaker like Comrade Vail.

We have taken up this subject at this time and at this length for two reasons:

First, we observe a tendency in some quarters within the party to cry out against any party work which involves expense. "Penny wise and pound foolish" is a sound proverb. If we expect to accomplish anything, we must be prepared to pay for it. The more readily we bear the burden, the more promptly the work will be done; and the better the work is done, the more rapidly will our numbers grow and our strength to bear new burdens. In the second place, we think the matter worthy of attention because we observe—also, we are sorry to say, in certain quarters within the party—a tendency to keep up old lines of division and to stir up old disagreements which we had supposed to have been finally and irrevocably buried at Indianapolis last July. If any comrades feel that these lines ought again to be drawn and these differences revived, it would be wiser and fairer for them to say so openly than to take the method of misleading innuendo against individuals.

The "Vineland Independent," a New Jersey Populist paper, commented approvingly upon the article entitled "The Essential Point in Socialist Propaganda" which appeared in our issue of December 15, and then proceeded to use it as an argument for the Populist "movement." We are at a loss to know whether this is a case of colossal nerve or of monumental stupidity. Such extreme stupidity seems incredible—but then the stupidity of Populist editors is perhaps beyond the power of the finite mind to comprehend.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

THE COMMENTATOR. Monthly. Ten cents a copy. Published at 788 Broadway, New York.

"The Commentator, a magazine of non-conformity," is the latest addition to the little group of independent magazines, which take the place of the pamphlets of old, and wage war upon the social lie, the moral lie, and the political lie which form the miasmatic environment of our capitalistic civilization. "The Commentator" announces that it is published for the intellectuals—the aristocracy of intellect, and it takes up the fight against the conventionalities of capitalism from the literary and artistic standpoint. Periodicals of this nature, although they may have no definite purpose to hold them to a consistent course, are a sign of healthy revolt. Their vigor and brilliance are in striking contrast with the inanity of the picture-book magazines, and their fearless iconoclasm makes large amends for a sometimes amusing inconsistency.

In the initial number we find the following exquisite bit by Thomas Carlyle Hoadley, satirizing the advice of a capitalist to young men who wish to succeed:

"What advice would I give to young men who are beginning careers? Well, in the first place, I would recommend that they do as I myself have done, for of all examples known to me I am, of course, the most bright and shining. It never matters what a young man works at or what he gets for it. Let him get down to the office at five-thirty each morning, be at his desk while his companions are wasting their employer's time at luncheon and stay at his post until the janitor is ready to close up the building. Hard work of this sort is the whole secret. If he is faithful he will never lack something to busy himself with. We cannot all, of course, be capitalists, but there are other lines of endeavor.

"Life is full of opportunities. The trouble with most young men is that they are in too great a hurry to rise. After five or ten or fifteen years with one employer they look for a raise of salary. This is utterly wrong. Let the employer be the judge of their worth of him. I have found that young men who did more work for me than they were paid for were the most valuable employees I could have about me, and I have always prized them highly. Work—hard work is the only secret. Trust in Providence to reward honest endeavor. Every young man who is content to struggle along on a modest salary is adding his quota to the growth and prosperity of our great country. That he himself cannot see the result is a small detail. Let him never lose his enthusiasm. Though he should live to be a thousand years old and get no more salary he can have the satisfaction of knowing that somehow, somewhere, his life's work has accomplished its purpose in the great universe."

From a later number, we lift the following, found in "Symbols and Reflections," by Fluke McCoog, a name which, judging from the matter, might well be the nome de plume of a Socialist:

"That quality or virtue which is often termed 'Yankee ingenuity,' is mere common swindling. You can't cover it with a name—but you do and boast of it, desire it, envy the possessor because he makes money with it. Yankee ingenuity is petty larceny made plausible, that's all. Think of the sins it covers. Think of all the honest swindlers. They're not in jail.

"They're your brother, sister, friend, lover, employer, employee, neighbor, patron, customer, your storekeeper—all, everybody—everybody is at it—we are all at it all the time—we lie awake nights thinking how we can get the best of Jones, or of Mary the cook. And the man who does it successfully, the man who succeeds in piling up a solid balance at the bank, the man who sells you a piece of wood by calling it a nutmeg—that man is most divinely gifted with 'Yankee ingenuity.'

"That's the man who later in life, founds libraries, colleges, endows churches, buys memorial windows for his wife's memory.

"It used to be the rule for a repentant sinner during his last days to give his possessions to the church and save himself from damnation. Now he endows libraries or teaches a Bible class in a Baptist church. It's the same thing—the same thief. While his blood is hot and fast, he breaks men's backs and women's hearts in iron foundries, mills, and factories. In old age repentance flings the shadow of her mantle over his soul and, forthwith, the slave-driver has become a philanthropist."

Among other contributors are Joseph Dana Miller, Ernest H. Crosby and J. Batvers Batvers. The book reviews are good. We hope "The Commentator" will long live to continue its caustic comment.

C. L.

The January number of the "Arena" begins the twenty-seventh volume and the fourteenth year of that well-known review. It opens with a paper on "Anarchism," by the Rev. R. Heber Newton, in which the writer discusses the ethical, sociological, and political aspects of that question. "The English Friendly Societies," by Elwyed Pomeroy, is an interesting description of a recent visit to the scene of the "Rockdale experiment" in co-operation. Theodore F. Seward describes the "Spiritual Birth of the American Nation," and, in addition to his regular departments of "Topics of the Times" and "Books of the Day," Editor B. O. Flower contributes an essay on "The Rise of Photography and Its Service to Mankind." T. St. Pierre discusses "Responsibility in Municipal Government," and W. A. Curtis considers "Race Reversion in America." Other features are: "Corporations and Trusts," by Thomas Conyngton; "The Development of Brotherhood," by Prof. Eugenia Parham; "Ibsen's 'Peer Gynt,'" by Walter Leighton; "The Work of Wives," by Flora M. Thompson, and "What Shall Is Profit?" a New Year's story by M. P. Stuart. The editor announces that Dr. Newton will discuss the "Economic and Religious Causes of Anarchism" in the February number.

"CHRISTIAN SOCIALISM."

Yet I would go further than Herron. For I would not saddle a Christ on the movement any more than I would a Buddha or a Mahommed or a Confucius. Socialism, to me, is an international movement, and embraces people of every race, nationality, color, clime, creed, or sex, though there is one line of demarcation—the class struggle.

And in the thought of the class struggle we rub up against the emotional expression of brotherhood as found in the church; and also come into antagonism with some of the beliefs taught by the Christian theology which materialized on the physical plane of existence have proven bad in practise for the world. Why? Because of the false economic doctrine; and in this respect the Socialist has a right to criticize. What is economics? According to the Standard Dictionary this definition is applicable: "The science that treats of the development of material resources, or of the production, preservation, and distribution of wealth, and of the means and methods of living well, for the state, the family and the individual."

What is bad economic doctrine?

I answer, any doctrine of thought which if put into practise would prevent "the development of material resources or of the production, preservation, and distribution of wealth" so that the state, the family and the individual would not live well is bad and vicious economic doctrine—and when I say "live well" I mean in a physical material sense.

There are four grounds on which the Socialist as a teacher of economics has a right to correct the teachings of the Christian church to-day.

1. The Doctrine of Contentment.

2. The Doctrine of the Stewardship of the Rich.

3. The Doctrine of Individual Salvation.

4. The Vicarious Atonement as an Economic Factor.

* * * In its missionarying and revival work the church has universally appealed to the emotions. The Socialist propaganda is dependent upon the material necessity of a class and while the Socialist uses the emotional element in his work he does not base his propaganda entirely upon emotional and sentimentalism. His propaganda is based upon the cold-blooded logic of material interests and the expression of sentiment is a secondary consideration.

So when a preacher from the Christian church comes into our movement even though he may have a knowledge of Karl Marx; Bellamy, and Gronlund, he tries, for some reason or other, to combine the two. He tries to make the economic fallacies of his Christian faith square with the economic truths of scientific Socialism; and the result is a badly mixed Socialist. Sometimes he calls himself a Christian Socialist, but he finds himself an irritating substance in both camps. The Christians will not have him because he is too much of a Socialist; and the Socialists will not have him because he is not clear on the Socialistic proposition and wants to Christianize the doctrines of Socialism.

Again, in his propaganda of Socialism, he would use the same methods as he used in his religious revival work, viz., appealing in every way in his power to the emotions of his auditors. Though this may convert more people to sentimental consideration of Socialism it does not make clear-headed scientific Socialists. Hence, he is called a sentimental Socialist; and in time unless he becomes clear-headed his sentimentality will swallow up his Socialism.—John A. Morris, in Advance.

—Archbishop Corrigan says that Socialism is unchristian. If that be the case, we would advise him to substitute "my Father" for "our Father" the next time he says his paternoster.—The Labor Journal, Zanesville, O.

—I am ashamed to think how easily we capitulate to badges and names, to large societies and dead institutions. —Emerson.

THINGS I HAVE LOST.

The Wail of a Despairing Individualist.

Mr. Editor:

Once upon a time I could be, I will not say that I was, an original sinner. I could go to confession with a bank of distinctly personal abominations to tell the blushing priest in the presence of the shivering angels; but since machinery came in and all society has been jammed together into one mould the priest listens undisturbed. His reverence samples the city districts as each penitent comes on; he knows, when my tale is told, that I have merely come down through one of the Bowery sewers; then he smells in the mea culpas of the next self-styled exceedingly sinful wight, a poor sterilized solution which hath meandered through the subways of clubland. No man realizes more than my ghostly father does how flat, insipid and monotonous a creature it is that now stands in the shoes of the ancient sinner.

Mr. Editor, as a man passionately addicted to the charming distinctions of the individual life, I am mortified to see the immobile features of his reverence and the stony tired look of the angels when I go to confession now. There are no more distinctions for an ambitious soul like mine upon the highway of the transgressors. Every footprint which I see before me exactly fits my sole. They are all just alike. They all turn off for a little over the same fence to steal the same turnips. They all go up to the same farm house and run away from the same dog, leaving a posterior patch of the same dual garment on the same old bush. While on the other side of the road they all wear tall hats, turn into the same colleges, the same banks and the same churches; make similar wills and similarly go to heaven. Alas, therefore, what shall I do who am pining for the success of a distinguishable personality?

I have tried virtue only to discover that here, even more than in naughtiness, I had lost the initiative.

At first my free spirit forbade me to read the lives of other good persons in search of some hints as to how I might lead a distinctly private life of virtue. I put a nickel on a railing in front of a tenement rookery, resolving to be one man who would unCarnegiely distribute his charity, but I only saw Mr. Sage stop his carriage while he stepped out to pick it up, after a dozen of starving wretches had passed it by. I tried a dozen other solitary ways of doing good to my fellowmen only to find that the fellowmen whom I sought to benefit had themselves long ceased to look for pennies under stones and that woe no longer frequented the solitary way. And so I only wasted my goodness on the desert air. What shall I do?

Then I took to reading the biographies of great men, beginning, of course, on top with our own presidents. It is needless to remark that I was too good a man myself, and valued my soul too highly, to have any original personal aspirations of my own for the White House chair; but as all the other individualists of my acquaintance (and they were very strenuous) seemed to regard that honor as the greatest way of vindicating America and me, I trotted out my personality on the training ground for presidents, only to discover that before it were possible to get half way through that course all of me must be lost forever; that I must climb down more than ever I may climb up. And alas what shall I do?

I beheld all sorts of moral heroics in full blast in the great angelic war of the pure and holy upon Tammany Hall. I also beheld the authors there of elected to office, and the next day when I looked upon the elected officials behold they were all new, very new in the spelling of their names; but verily they were the same sort of sardines come to pack themselves cozily in the same old box; each and all resolved to promise as little about good behavior as it is possible for a man to promise who can do nothing of himself, and for a man of affairs to say who must not commit his party to mere opinions of his own. I found them all, like the president, swiftly climbing down from yesterday's strenuousness and ready to invite that dog to dine with them today, which, when they were themselves, they kicked but yesterday. As a strenuous individualist, as a strenuous reformer, as anything in which I ever was or could be individually and personally strenuous, I have lost my all.

On the heavenly side of my life, I could no longer maintain my self-respect for myself as a potential individual sinner of sins in my own proper person. In all my peccadilloes I found myself so mixed up literally with everybody else around me that I could no longer confess to the good old priest without confessing to him some of his own offenses. No, even the poor distinction of being an eminent sinner is lost to me since machinery came in and the world has resolved itself into the average man and a social day.

The pages of the Newgate Calendar can no longer inspire me. David Hogg, that brilliant highwayman, the hero of my youth, whose gallows' song I used to sing, was an economic determinism; it would be impossible to become such a hog to-day. As a private person I feel all my ego-ness, like Bob Acres' courage, slipping out of me, at the tips of my fingers. And, oh, Mr. Editor, what shall I do?

I have lost the privilege I once enjoyed of pardoning people who have offended me, and this has been a grievous loss, depriving me of so much of the moral delight I once had in myself. It came about in this way. When I found that I could no longer support my reputation as a private sinner on my own account alone, I turned me around to find out how many people had offended me and how many of them I could forgive on a distinctly individual basis to-day. Tom Jones, who gave my sister the go-by a week before their marriage, seemed a hard case to begin with. I wrote to him, pointing out the enormity of his offense and frankly forgiving him. He replied in a stalling note telling me that he would have been an object of my pardoning grace if he had married my sister, but not for running away; that he had just learned the week before of the projected introduction of a new machine into their factory which would leave him without any skill or power to support a wife for years to come, and what would I have him to do? This discouraged me. Who else could I forgive if I could not forgive Tom Jones?

I made another start. Could I not allow a lot of people to offend me as things are now? I tried so many little ways, but people really would not take sufficient notice of me to be offended, to give offense, nor take a private pardon. And though I was slopping over with pardons for anything and for everybody, nobody was free enough personally to take notice of me, personally. Except I could manage to commit a public offense nobody would offend back. I was lost in an undistinguished mob of averages, and my heart with its hundred pairs of hands spread out to pardon all possible offenders was forced to creep back and try to put its two hundred hands into its one little pocket.

I stood on the way to a place in New York where ever so many hundred trains fly out of the depot per afternoon with ever so many thousands of passengers. I got in the way. I suffered them to tread on my toes and pardoned one and all as they did so. But they only stared at me, saying: "Oh, never mind forgiving me, old man, for really we cannot quite forgive you for putting yourself into such a ridiculous position that the public in its progress must needs hurt you."

Ah, what a fall was there! I could not even dispense forgiveness at the New York end of the bridge where it appeared to be so sadly needed.

And if I were to visit the tombs of the greatest offenders in modern times how I would feel the counts in the world's indictment of them dwindle away, and if I were to visit the prisons how few offenders I would find worthy of the whole punishment of their alleged crimes! In the hall of heroes and the temples of the saints how few are worthy of the honor of having done the deeds which are called their own!

It seems to me now when I hear some men speaking of forgiving this offense or revenging that, that they are using the language of a far gone age. When a man discovers himself in the act of forgiving people frequently, let him examine himself. He is probably in a false position. He has thrust himself on to some public depot where he has more need to be forgiven than power to forgive.

And revenge! Who to-day has any wrong of his own, or coming so exclusively from one other, that he can put his dagger point upon one heart and truly say: "Here Justice bids me strike."

We are in an hour of transition in which every moral factor is disintegrated from its kind. The laws are reeking with crimes of misdirected punishment. The prisons are full of victims or martyrs to the anarchy of an age that is neither of the heavens heavenly, of the earth earthy, nor of the waters under the earth fishy; but all is a conglomerate of neither one thing nor the other. Collective in his productive life, anarch in his appropriating life, co-operating for all that he really esteems, while running it alone for the source of good, the heaven he affects to prize, the man of this age puts his own virtues under his feet and sends the wrongs of everybody else to bar him out from the character and the heaven of his impossible expectations. The strong individualist of this capitalist age, in claiming everything, has lost all.

P. E. B.

SOUND PRINCIPLES.

Gather a mob of ethical, brotherly love, government ownership, step-at-a-time people into a Socialist organization by the means of backwoods paper or any other method and leave them uninformed as to the true basis of our movement and they are still a mob. A collection of people filled to the neck with contrary and antagonistic ideas cannot be expected to live in harmony. Every freak calling himself a Socialist is by no means a Socialist, and though joining an organization is usually a pretty fair evidence of a man's good intentions, it is by no means a measure of his intelligence or his power to assimilate scientific truth. Taking every supposed convert to Socialism into the organization is like swallowing an unlimited quantity of half baked dough. The dough clogs up the alimentary canal and forbids digestion. It refuses to be assimilated by the system. It keeps other food from being assimilated. So with the government ownership of the railroads platform man. He will not learn and he keeps others from learning. He thinks the Socialist who has been in the movement for years and who knows the needs and the mission of the working class, an intolerant bigot. * * * All this comes from not having men grounded in the fundamentals of Socialism. It is the duty of the Socialist press to teach truth all the time, whether success from a counting room standard comes or not. The Socialist movement rests upon the economic need of a great class. No emotional, sentimental or financial consideration should keep that truth from the men who require it most. If our movement is to ambunt to anything more than the populist or greenback or similar reform movements, it is the duty of the Socialist press to lay a strong and enduring foundation.—Advance.

THE CHURCH AND SOCIALISM.

The Socialist has always looked upon the organized church as but an arm of capitalism. And some form of union among the churches, both Catholic and Protestant, in defense of capitalism is something Socialists have long looked for and something that is inevitable. Priest and preacher can easily shake hands over their own "bloody chasm" in the face of a movement that threatens capitalism.

Socialism has no fight against the church, as such; its fight is with capitalism. But if the church gets in the way and loses some of its tail feathers—well, it's none of our funeral.—W. A. Corey, in Los Angeles Socialist.

—The bookkeeper who had worked twelve hours a day for thirty years paused to look at the capacity of a canary. "How pathetic!" he exclaimed.—Life.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

The Mirror, St. Louis.

Of all the funny farce fakes of a fakir age the Mark Hanna arbitration scheme, to settle the differences between Labor and Capital, is the finest. The names of the participants in the conference are imposing, but that is all that can be said in fairness. The arbitration scheme looks well upon paper, but it will not work, simply because the response of the employer to offers of arbitration is always "there is nothing to arbitrate." There is, on the other hand, no means of enforcing upon striking workmen the decrees of the arbitrators. The unions cannot be penalized for failure to submit to decrees. They cannot be fined. And individual workmen cannot be punished for refusing to work. While it is possible that some laws may be enacted to facilitate the settlement of strikes, it is everlastingly true that, so long as human nature remains what it is, there will be conflict between employer and employee and that compromises of such disputes will be only temporary in character. It is not to be wished that there should be an utter annihilation of differences between the hirer and the hired, for that could only be said continue through a condition of content that would eventually become stagnation. Life is and must be a fight and in the fighting the best things in life are developed. Labor will not get its dues in any other way than by fighting. Capital will take advantage when it can keep down wages.

Advance, San Francisco.

There was no antagonism, there was no memory of Homestead, Latimer, the Bull Pen, Lebanon, or any of the other places where the genuine fraternal relations between the capitalist class and the working class were especially emphasized. The whole thing went off with fine eclat. A court or committee of arbitration was established with some of the firmest friends of labor on it, including Grover Cleveland. No hint was given of Mr. Cleveland's fitness for the office as arbitrator between the workers and their exploiters as evidenced by his attitude during the A. R. U. strike. All harmful discussion and personal reflection and injurious conjuring up of past misdeeds were quietly, but emphatically forgotten. It was a love feast.

The economic necessity for struggle between the capitalists and the workers was ignored. The fact that everything the working class had received in the way of better pay or shorter hours was the result of the struggle, made no difference to the discussion. The fact the unions are in existence to resist the encroachment of the capitalist class and hold that class from taking ALL which is produced was overlooked.

Saginaw Exponent.

New wine requires new bottles, new conditions in industry require new methods, and the trust having demonstrated its ability to beat down the resistance of the trade union, by summoning to its aid the powers of government, the militia and the courts, to say nothing of the stress of hunger and the ever-threatening army of unemployed, nothing remains for the working class but to use their political power to take possession of the government, and use its powers to further working class interests, as the capitalists now use it for theirs. Neither Mr. Gompers nor any other leader can stem the tide flowing in this direction—its compelling force is industrial evolution, which in all history has been followed by political revolution.

The Socialist, Seattle.

Occasionally some economic idiot gets up and gleefully celebrates the fact that a new trust has arisen to fight the old one, hence the trust question will settle itself by fighting itself to death. It really makes no difference which one licks, one will survive to fleece us, and I never knew a black slave being particularly benefited by a change of masters. He always worked—for someone else—as the white slave does—and he never got—like the white slave also—more than a bare existence. A workingman who thinks a fight between two trusts has any interest for him, no matter who wins, is in sad need of a slight education on economic matters.

The I. L. P. News.

The egoistic habit that leads to the constant intrusion of oneself in one's sayings and doings is a vice for which the duty of spreading Socialism affords no justification whatever. It is indeed a characteristic that belongs to the individualist rather than the Socialist frame of mind. Mr. Wilshire's contention that any advertisement of himself is an advertisement of Socialism may be true, but the advertisement may be a very bad one for Socialism. It is a too perilous application of the "love me, love my dog" precept. And even if Mr. Wilshire be right in treating with indifference the abusive epithets of his enemies, he ought surely to regard with repugnance the vulgar appraisement of his friends. It is of importance that the public should be encouraged to respect the character and rely upon the sincerity of Socialist agitators. No amount of eloquence or brilliancy of exposition can overcome the blatus which the absence of that respect and reliance creates in the public mind. The people will never put trust in Socialist principles if they can not also confide in the men who represent those principles.

—Legally is a robust adverb. It bears the weight of many ill-gotten gains.—Balzac.

THE WHIM

is a little monthly magazine which is likely to appeal to unconventional people. It is not the organ of any one class, but is published in the interest of men and women who are in search of Light and Truth. It is handsomely printed in two colors on duckie chee paper, and costs five cents per copy, or 50 cents by the year. It is edited by Ernest Crosby and Benedict Price. Send ten cents for a three months' trial subscription. THE WHIM, P. O. Box 288, Newark, N. J.

When ordering mention THE WORKER.

PARTY NOTES.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL AND best attended lecture of the Socialist Club of Brooklyn, Ralph avenue and Fulton street, was given last Sunday night by John Spargo on "Our Position, Economic, Ethical, and Political." Comrade Spargo is one of the most forceful and effective speakers of the Socialist Party, and the masterly manner in which he handled his subject drew much applause from the audience. The speaker for next Sunday evening, January 12, is Comrade Fraser.

JOHN SPARGO'S LECTURE BEfore the Socialist Club of Brooklyn, Sunday last, on "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political," having met with so much approval, the Socialist Educational League has prevailed upon Comrade Spargo to give the New York comrades in general a chance to hear this same lecture at the Socialist Educational League, 215 East Fifty-ninth street, this Sunday, January 12, at 8 p. m. Admission is free and all are welcome.

COURTENAY LEMON WILL speak at the Yorkville Clubhouse, 205 East Eighty-sixth street, New York City, this Sunday afternoon, January 12, at 3 p. m., on "Popular Misconceptions of Socialism." Strangers are specially invited to attend.

THE 31ST A. D. MEETS AT SANders' Hotel, northwest corner One Hundred and Fourteenth street and Park avenue, Tuesday evening, Jan. 14. Election of officers and other important business will come up.

HOBOKEN SOCIALISTS WILL give a "smoker" at Riendan's, corner of Ninth and Garden streets, Hoboken, on Monday evening, January 13, at which Courtenay Lemon, Frederick Krafft, and others will speak.

THE SOCIALISTS OF WEST HOboken have arranged a series of lectures to be held every Tuesday evening at the Socialist Party club rooms, 511-513 Hackensack Plank Road, West Hoboken, N. J. On Tuesday, January 14, at 8 p. m., Frederick Krafft will speak; having as his subject: "Is Our Country a Republic?"

LOCAL NEWARK HAS ARRANGed a course of lectures to be held every Sunday evening at 124 Market street, Newark. Last Sunday evening Courtenay Lemon spoke on "Popular Misconceptions of Socialism," in place of Algernon Lee, as originally announced. Comrades should bring their friends to hear the lecture next Sunday evening.

LOCAL HUDSON COUNTY TOOK in twenty-six new members at the last meeting of the County Committee. The resolutions of Branch 2, Hoboken, in regard to the "peace conference" were endorsed. Krafft, Ufert, and Kamps were elected a committee for The Worker Conference. A committee consisting of Hopkins and Pankopf, was elected to devise a more precise and harmonious method of bookkeeping for the various branches. The semi-annual meeting of the Local will take place Sunday morning, Jan. 12, 9 a. m., at Central Hall near headquarters.

THE STATEN ISLAND COMrades have arranged a series of popular lectures on Socialism to be held on the second and fourth Sundays of each month, at the Labor Lyceum, Roff street, Stapleton, Staten Island. This Sunday evening, January 12, at 7 p. m., Courtenay Lemon will speak on "Popular Misconceptions of Socialism."

LOCAL NEW HAVEN, CONNECticut, American Branch, will hereafter hold two meetings a month, on the second and fourth Saturday evenings of each month, at the new headquarters, 746 Chapel street, Room 8. The meeting held on the second Saturday will be an open discussion meeting and members are expected to bring their friends.

PHILADELPHIA SOCIALISTS opened the new headquarters at 1622 Arch street on New Year's Day. The rooms will be open every day from noon till 10 p. m. All Socialist publications are kept on file and for sale at the rooms and all Philadelphians who are interested in Socialism are invited to call and get acquainted, and then to lend their aid to the extent of their ability in making the undertaking a success.

BEN TILLETT WILL SPEAK IN Philadelphia, at St. George's Hall, Thirteenth and Arch streets, Saturday evening, Jan. 11, under the auspices of the United Labor League. His subject will be: "Labor and the Evolution of Capital." H. Gaylord Wilshire will speak on Jan. 22, probably at the same place.

SAYS "THE LOS ANGELES SOcialist" of December 28: "Quite a number of the comrades had a long 'heart to heart' talk with Comrades Wise and Wilson at the headquarters on Monday, at which tactical matters were threshed out, leaving a clear sky and good feelings as a result."

TOLEDO HAD A VISIT FROM Ben Tillett in the last week of December. He spoke under the auspices of the Central Labor Union. The house was packed and Comrade Tillett's address made a deep impression. A thousand copies of The Worker were distributed as the audience entered the hall—and when the hall was empty it was observed that not twenty copies had been left behind. This may serve as a suggestion to comrades in other places.

LOCAL ERIE, PA., EXPECTS TO have Comrades Hayes, Slayton, Wilshire, Barnes, Simons, and other well-known Socialist speakers, during the city campaign. Ben Tillett speaks there Jan. 30 and 31.

MAINE'S STATE CONVENTION will be held at Skowhegan, Jan. 15. Comrade Vail organized a new local at Madison, with thirty-five members, and one at Auburn, with eleven members.

BEN TILLETT WILL SPEAK UNder the joint auspices of Socialist Party locals and central bodies at Terre Haute, Springfield, O., Erie, Pa., and Saginaw, Mich.

ARIZONA NOW HAS SIX LOCALS of the Socialist Party.

GEO. E. BOOMER OF SEATTLE has been elected National Committeeman from Washington.

THERE IS A STEADY INCREASE in the volume of orders being received at National Headquarters for official party literature.

P. J. TROELSTRA, SOCIALIST deputy in the parliament of Holland, contemplates a lecture tour of this country.

CHARTER HAVE BEEN ISSUED by the National Committee in the last two weeks to locals at Yuma, Ariz.; Blackfoot, Medimont, and Bucke, Ida.; Helena, Mont.; Hennessey, Okla.; and East Belleprairie, Minn. State charter issued to Kansas.

MAX HAYES OF CLEVELAND has been elected as Ohio's representative on the National Committee.

THE CLARION CLUB OF CINCINnati has arranged a series of lectures to be given in the Auditorium, Seventh and Elm streets, on alternate Sundays, 2:30 p. m., beginning Jan. 12. Franklin H. Wentworth will be the first lecturer, speaking on "Socialism and Liberty." The other speakers on the list are Clarence S. Darrow, Samuel M. Jones, Marion Craig Wentworth, Frederick G. Strickland, and Louis F. Post. Admission to each lecture is 15 cents.

SOCIALISTS OF COVINGTON, Ky., will give a reception on Friday evening, January 24, at Odd Fellows' Hall, Fifth and Madison. Music, dancing, and refreshments will contribute to the pleasure of the evening.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

Through a misunderstanding the meeting of the County Committee of Local Kings County was called for the first instead of the second Sunday in the month. A number of the delegates showed up, but as only one of the officers was present, it was deemed advisable to postpone the meeting to its regular date, January 12. The nomination and election of officers, advertised for January 5, will consequently take place next Sunday. It is unfortunate that the mistake occurred, as this is about the most important meeting for some months to come, but it is hoped that delegates will take notice and make it a point to be present on the regular date, Sunday, Jan. 12, at 2 o'clock.

TROUBLE IN UTAH.

Our Utah comrades have had an early experience of the bad results which are likely to follow from looseness of party organization. There are six or seven locals in Utah, with a State Committee elected by the National Committee in November.

A state convention was called to meet at Salt Lake City on Dec. 28. It was called as a mass convention; with the privilege of proxy voting and, it would seem, with provision for the admission of unaffiliated persons on the strength of their declaration that they accepted the principles of Socialism.

The result was that a number of individuals from various points, of which only one had a local organization, completely controlled the convention by bringing in proxies to the number of about 300. On the other side there were the delegates of six locals, regularly authorized by 76 members. This minority, seeing themselves outvoted, under the terms of the convention call, by men who do not belong the party, were obliged to withdraw and protest to the National Committee against the actions of the convention.

The matter was made still a little worse by the fact that the State Secretary, who was absent during the earlier part of the proceedings, but arrived after the regular organizations had withdrawn, did not clearly understand the state of affairs and gave over the state charter to the element who controlled the convention.

We assume that the National Committee will promptly recognize the regular party organization and take steps to assist it in organizing the state. If, as we hope, the comrades in other states will take warning in time from this unfortunate occurrence and check the tendency to laxity of organization, which has already gone too far, then the good effect of the experience may, in the long run, outweigh the harm done.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Carl Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 309 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. R. Cornelius, Secretary 478 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at Aurora Hall, 135 Union street, New Haven.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first and third Friday evenings of the month at 79 Dearborn street.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 236 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Aldene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 222 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont street, Somerville; Assistant and Financial Secretary, Albert G. Clifford, Mount Auburn Station, Cambridge, Mass.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 817 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 S. Baum street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Monday at 8 p. m., at above place.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eidsness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. W. Quick, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Wilson, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 657, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE.—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

CONNECTICUT.

STATE COMMITTEE.

The State Committee met at 746 Chapel street, New Haven, Jan. 1. All members present. The following resolutions were passed:

"Resolved, That we recommend to the National Secretary that he cut down expenses to keep within the income from dues.

"That a definite method of sharing expense of organizer between National and state committees be adopted.

"That, in view of the financial difficulties, we are opposed to the employment of a national organizer at the present salary; we believe that the remuneration of the organizers or speakers employed by the party should not exceed three dollars per day and actual railroad and hotel expenses.

"That we are opposed to the holding of a meeting of the National Committee until such time as the finances warrant."

Organizer reported that a branch would be organized at Derby, Jan. 4. Secretary reported receipts of $9.10. Expenditures, $8.60. Voted, that stamps be loaned to each branch to the amount of the receipts each month, equal to the number of members as shown by its last report of membership, and that a request for payment accompany each issue.

A. B. CORNELIUS, Secretary.

NEW JERSEY.

ESSEX COUNTY.

A convention of Socialists of Essex County, N. J., is called for Sunday, Jan. 12, at 2 p. m., to carry out the form of organization as was laid out at the State Convention held at Paterson for the work of Socialism. It is the duty of all comrades to attend this convention and take up the work that we must do for the cause of Socialism. Do not fail to attend this convention; a) Headquarters, 124 Market street, Newark. By authority of County Committee.

EDW. C. WIND, Organizer.

NEW YORK.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

The subdivisions are hereby called upon to elect new delegates to the General Committee of the Local for the ensuing term, beginning on the second Saturday in January (January 11), 1902.

The basis of representation, according to the new by-laws, is: One delegate for each subdivision and one additional for every ten members in good standing as shown by the membership report filed with the Organizer.

J. GERBER, Organizer.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

A regular meeting of the General Committee of Local New York will be held on Saturday, Jan. 11, at 8 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. Nominations for officers and other important business is to be transacted. Delegates should not fail to attend.

J. GERBER, Organizer.

7TH A. D.

At a meeting of the Socialists of the 7th A. D. of Kings County, held last Sunday at 1324 Forty-fifth street, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, The Socialists of other countries have succeeded in bettering the condition of their fellow wage-workers, to the extent of securing for them pensions for their old age; and

"Whereas, The countries where pensions are paid to old and decrepit workmen are in a far less dangerous economic condition than the United States of America;

"Resolved, That the Socialists of the 7th A. D. of Kings County, New York, recommend to the National Committee of Brooklyn Borough to suggest to the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party that an active agitation be entered upon at once to place the Congress of the United States on record in the matter of pensions for aged and decrepit workmen;

"Resolved, That we consider such agitation as a means of greatly increasing the prestige of our organization and drawing to our ranks thousands of workmen who hitherto have refrained from participation in the political movement of their class;

"Resolved, That the National Executive Committee be requested to issue a proclamation upon the subject here suggested, calling upon the members throughout the country to hold mass meetings and circulate petitions which, bearing the signatures of millions of workmen, may be submitted to Congress as an evidence of the necessity for the United States at least to keep pace with the effete monarchies of Europe who have seen fit to show that they are commencing to appreciate the value of the services of the laboring class to their respective countries."

MASSACHUSETTS.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of Socialist Clubs held on Dec. 28, it was decided that the secretary urge the clubs to send in nominations for National Committeeman and for representative on the International Bureau. The matter of instructing Comrade Mailly with reference to his work of organizing was left to Secretary.

Regular order of business was suspended to allow of a hearing relative to the reorganization of Boston, in which twelve persons outside the committee participated.

At an adjourned meeting held on the following Saturday night, Jan. 4, charters were granted to Lynn, Beverly, and New Bedford, and it was also voted: "That a charter be granted Boston and be issued to a general committee composed of delegates elected by ward or district branches on the representative basis already suggested by the Executive Committee of Massachusetts clubs; and that the body represented by Patrick Mahoney and W. J. Corbe be recognized as a branch, if it so desires, with the right to elect its proper proportion of delegates to the general committee."

In reaching this decision Comrades David Goldstein and Wesley Sherman voluntarily withdrew voice and vote, on the principle that an interested party has no moral right to sit in judgment on a case in which said individual has a personal interest.

W. F. PORTER, Secretary.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRE-SPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

The Industrial Peace Conference.

Editor The Worker:

While the article in the issue of Dec. 29 on the "Industrial Peace Conference" prompts me to say a few words on the subject.

There has been some disgust expressed by progressive trade unionists at the part taken in that conference by Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell, Duncan, et al., and the announcement of their acceptance of membership on an arbitration committee along with men like Hanna, Schwab, and Cleveland, has created disappointment among those who believed trade unionists were meeting the stage where they could be deluded by such performances. But while I may be somewhat disgusted, yet I am not disappointed at these occurrences.

In my opinion, the developments ensuing from the Civic Federation conferences are the logical outcome of the policy pursued by the conservative element, of which the labor officials above mentioned are the representatives, for several years, and to which events have been rapidly tending. This policy has been one of compromise, and it has reached its natural climax in Mr. Gompers and Mr. Schwab sitting together with their feet under the same table. Now, it should not be construed that this state of affairs is altogether agreeable to Mr. Gompers and his partners in conciliation. On the contrary, I believe if the truth were known, these gentlemen are keenly considering themselves in the most awkward position imaginable, and they doubtless wish themselves well out of it. But as they have no one to blame but themselves we can leave them to find a way out, and may heaven help them in the task!

The conservative trade union leaders do not take a direct, outspoken attitude on any question. They compromise on everything. They declare themselves against compulsory arbitration but in favor of conciliation. They are not opposed to Socialism. Nay, they are as good Socialists as we are, but they hesitate to let people know about it. They oppose going on record even for the abstract principle, and yet they favor independent political action outside the capitalist parties. They believe industrial organization must come and yet they dilly-dally with trade autonomy, evidently for fear of antagonizing a few organizations. They declare themselves for the referendum, but consider its adoption by the Federation as "inexpedient." They enumerate the advantages of a defense fund for trade unions, but balk at the adoption of a system that would guarantee such a thing. And so on down the line. This is what they call their sublime egotism, call "statesmanship," and it is this equivocating that has handed them this Christmastide into the welcome arms of Hanna & Co.

The opposition of the Federation of Labor to the compulsory arbitration bill in congress undoubtedly defeated that measure. Nevertheless, in order to placate that variable quantity, public opinion, Gompers & Co. had to declare themselves as favor, "able to conciliation." Up and down the land they went exhibiting their eagerness to meet the capitalist "half way" and to settle all differences "amicably to both sides." For this they received the applause of the masses, and they became known as "safe" leaders, and were so regarded by the public. And all went merry as a marriage bell, as it is supposed to go.

Meanwhile the Civic Federation came into being, through the efforts of busy-bodies: who are either too dense or too wise to accept the true industrial situation. Doubtless they were under the impression that the forces of organized capital and organized labor believed the Civic Federation would ever amount to anything. If anyone on either side attended the industrial peace conferences it was because they could not very well refuse. Public professions of desire to arbitrate had to be lived up to and public invitations had to be accepted or both sides had to stand convicted as public hypocrites. The Civic Federation was formed, that was all, and whoever wanted some free advertising, with their pictures thrown in, got it.

But the events of the past year were not pleasing to the capitalists of this country, as you point out. "Arbitration" would be much cheaper than hard fighting. Besides, with industrial development, the chances of union fighters becoming numerous, while Mr. Gompers and his friends were philandering over the country yawping about arbitration, Morgan, Schwab, and Hanna got their heads together.

There is no doubt in mind that when Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell and their friends attended the recent Civic Federation meeting the idea of being made members of a labor peace commission had never entered their heads. It came directly from the Scranton convention to that meeting; and among all the gossip that floated around in and out of the convention hall, I never heard a word of discuss the appointment of such a commission. And it is worth noting that nothing was said in the Civic Federation conference about a commission until Gompers & Co. were on their way to the conference and had entered it.

Altogether, it looks very much as if the capitalists had laid a neat trap into which our labor leaders walked with the guileless ness of new-lambs. Once in the conference, having identified themselves with a public movement for arbitration, they could not very well withdraw. To do so, would be to forswear that much cherished public opinion they so carefully cultivated for years. They had to accept membership on the commission or stultify themselves before the world. The capitalists knew this, and they have practically brought about what the labor leaders most objected to—compulsory arbitration.

No one with any conception of the true relation existing between labor and capital under the present system assumes that the Civic Federation will accomplish anything, except perhaps put our esteemed labor leaders in a hole. The only arbitration that can be successful under existing conditions is that which is enforced by the strength and power, numerically, and financially, of organized labor. The membership of the peace commission already bespeaks failure. The twelve public spirited citizens, who hold the balance of power, are nearly all capitalists. What chance would labor have if Grover Cleveland had the deciding vote in a controversy?

What makes the situation more ticklish still for Gompers & Co. is the dual role they have to assume. As labor officials they have no right to pledge their organizations to representation on the peace commission. And yet it is only as labor officials that their presence is desirable. As Gompers or Duncan, the citizens, or even as trade unionists, they count for nothing. Therefore when the time comes that the members of the commission engage the trade union movement will be held responsible for their acts. If the labor members do not accede to the findings of the commission, they lose that valuable asset—public opinion. What the capitalists would gain in the matter of pensions for aged and decrepit workmen; what concessions they could force from Congress in the way of legislation as a means of greatly increasing the prestige of our organization and drawing to our ranks thousands of workmen who hitherto have refrained from participation in the political movement of their class; what degree of success the agitation for the initiative and referendum may be attended with in Colorado, Utah, Oregon, and Nebraska; what progress the Socialist Party may make in the coming campaign, are questions which the trade unions are organized, can we steer clear of an affiliation with the capitalists both pitiful and degrading.

I am therefore not discouraged or disgusted with this latest development. On the contrary, I look upon it as something which will strengthen the progressive movement inside the trade unions as nothing else has ever done, for I expect to see the commission illustrate the folly and futility of such schemes, as well as the absurdity of the policy now dominating the trade union movement.

That Messrs. Gompers & Co. are impaled on the horns of a dilemma, is little concern of ours. Let them extricate themselves as best they can. It is for us to take advantage of the situation and educate the workers to its true meaning and significance.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

New York, Dec. 30.

From Haverhill.

Editor The Worker:

While deeply regretting the circumstances that made the continuance of the publication of the "Clarion" impossible, I am greatly pleased to know that The Worker is to take up the work the "Clarion" was obliged to abandon and that the subscribers of the "Clarion" will receive for the balance of the term of their subscription a paper which is one of the ablest Socialist propaganda agents in America. Therefore I hope that all those comrades who have worked so untiringly for the "Clarion" will continue their efforts with renewed zeal for The Worker, which will cover in addition to its ground that of the "Clarion" also.

To those who worked for the cause of Socialism by supporting the "Clarion" I have this to say: You have the opportunity of more than doubling the results of your work by supporting The Worker. I would suggest to those comrades who have made the "Clarion" such interesting reading in the past, that they continue their good service by writing for The Worker. Let us continue to hear "FROM THE MAN ON THE WATCH TOWERS."

Regarding affairs in Haverhill, there is not much that I can say at present, except that there is a very large and healthy activity in trade union circles. This is of more than ordinary importance when it is taken into account that Haverhill for the past year has enjoyed one of the most depressed periods in her history; for workingmen are wont to forget the necessity of organization when they have plenty of work. Once after another of the different branches of industry are becoming organized, the latest to do so being the retail clerks. A union was started three weeks ago with twenty-eight charter members and several have added their names since that time. The organization takes in all kinds of clerks working in retail establishments. The object in view at present is to shorten the hours of labor, which is to this city also considerably longer than the average for New England cities. Several attempts to organize the clerks have been made in the past, which have failed, because of the fear on the part of the clerks to become connected with anything like a trade union. But the spirit of unionism has become so great in Haverhill of late and successful also that many of the clerks feel that with the great union organization of the city back of them they can organize and secure their rights.

An encouraging sign to Socialists is the growing tendency all over the country on the part of those working in the distributing industries to organize as have those in the producing industries. In my twelve years' experience as a clerk I have noticed a considerable feeling among clerks in general that their interests had nothing in common with their brother workers of the productive fields. In fact, they seemed to look themselves of a higher caste entirely. But during the past two or three years I have noticed a gradual breaking down of this feeling on the part of the clerks and a growing desire on the part of the distributive workers to unite in a common cause with their brothers in the productive industries. The complete union of these two great labor forces will be hastened just in proportion with the centralization of the control of the distributive industries, which is now so naturally beginning to take place, the centralization of the control of productive industries having set the example and been so clearly and successfully completed.

These are, indeed, encouraging signs to the Socialist, for he knows that when these things have come to pass the great trunk of class-consciousness will break in upon Labor and workingmen will then realize that the only step left for them is to carry the unity which they have developed in the economic field on to the ballot box and that the only vote that Labor can cast under those circumstances will result finally in the downfall of capitalism and the inauguration of the Co-operative Commonwealth.

GEORGE A. KEENE.

Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 30, 1901.

The Question of Comrade Hildebrand's Action.

Editor The Worker:

I must ask you for space in The Worker in order to enter my dissent as a member of the Socialist Party from the position taken by Comrade Hildebrand of St. Louis on the resolution of the central labor party of Vallejo, Cal., urging the government to patronize the home industry of warship building. Comrade Hildebrand advocated that the St. Louis central body endorse the resolution.

It is my humble but decided opinion that the resolution is opposed to the obvious interests of the working class, both economic and political, for the following reasons:

1. Economic: It is to the economic interests of the working class, as a whole, that the labor of every workingman should be applied to the production of such commodities of which the workingmen may, if they are not now, become consumers. It is self-evident that the larger is the share of labor-power, which is devoted to the production of things outside of the possible consumption by the workingman, the smaller becomes that share which is to be applied to the production of such things. Economically, it is therefore of supreme importance for the workingman, it is to his interest that his labor-power be applied to the production of commodities which minister to the necessities, comfort, and luxury of man. The workingman should not be an extensive application of their labor to the production of things which no man can use as an object of necessity, comfort, or luxury; which are calculated only to shield and protect the capitalist class in their position of exploiters, which are, therefore, antisocial. Warships are eminently so. This is the A B C of proletarian political economy.

2. Political: Because of the comparative social and political isolation, the men of the navy are the least susceptible to the potent influence of social progress. The navy will, therefore, constitute the last formidable fighter in the ranks of reaction. Everything that facilitates the growth of the navy is against the interests of the working class.

I read the argument: "Warships are to be built ANYHOW," etc. It is not the first time that "anyhow" has served in good stead to those who would trim their sails to all winds. Admitted that the growth of militarism is to be opposed, no cowardly "anyhow" should excuse the opposition. The American shipyard owners will attend well enough to the securing of the government jobs. It may be pertinently asked: "Warships are to be built ANYHOW, why then, this agitation?" The answer is: To enable the shipyard owners to hold up the government for higher rates. This is the "nigger in the woodpile."

It is difficult to imagine how Comrade Hildebrand reconciles his position with the most elementary principles of Socialism. Comrade Hildebrand has done a grave injustice and injury to the Socialist movement. He should either rectify the error by a public statement to that effect, if he can sincerely do so, or else resign from the National Committee. Certainly, Comrade Hildebrand can only not see the inevitability of the alternative. Then the members of the party through their locals should speak their minds.

Some may say: Let well alone; let us have peace. I say: We can have no peace, we should have no peace, on such terms.

Are we to assemble in conventions and solemnly resolute relentless war on militarism and then adjourn to our respective organizational conventions and proceed to militarism? Do we mean what we profess, or are our professions glittering generalities for the consumption of the unthinking? Until that we, the majority of the Socialists of the land, mean every word we say, The history of mankind presents no body of men who were more earnestly bent on achieving their purpose than we are. It is cowardly and never-ending to do wrong. It is always expedient to do right.

The attempt to saddle on the Socialist movement all the reactionary measures advocated by Gompers & Co. must be unsparingly be checked. The "Jack-in-the-Box" of Decadism will scare no one. The persons who label opposition to their reactionary tactics as "Decadism" will effect the opposite of what they intend. It may lead some people to think that Decadism may have some good features.

Equally foolish are the opponents of Comrade Hildebrand who base their opposition to the S. L. P. Even if we should happen to be in the minority, we must remember that decisions are not irrevocable. We must show faith in our party and not be prompt to abandon it on the first occasion.

It is idle to argue that Comrade Hildebrand did not act in his official capacity as a member of the National Committee when he advocated the resolution which would endorse warships. The Socialist world will spurn this quibble. If his trade union position compels Comrade Hildebrand to give public expression to such views, then he cannot hold a place in the National Council of the Socialist Party.

HENRY SLOBODIN.

New York, Jan. 5.

More About Stitt Wilson.

Editor The Worker:

I see a resolution passed by the San Francisco comrades, calling for the recall of Stitt Wilson. Ever since Socialism has been promulgated, it has called upon the wage earner to rise and free himself from the bonds of capitalism, with the result that the laboring class have done very little more towards obtaining freedom than the savage of uncivilized lands.

What, then, can be done towards obtaining the desired good? Speaking in, and trying to bring to our side, those who, although only slightly benefited by results still have the desire to help mankind, and others, and who will mostly be found in various Christian churches. Here is where Mr. Wilson comes in, not as an evangelist among the proletarian class, but as a missionary among the small capitalists.

The other charge, that he does not allow questions, is a minor matter. I do not think that he would be strong in debate and is therefore wise in confining himself to the main point of lecturing.

L. BYRNES.

Long Beach, Cal., Dec. 22.

(Note.—We cannot, of course, at all agree with our correspondent in his statement that the wage workers have done very little more toward obtaining freedom than the slaves in the days before the war. The statement is not at all accurate, even if applied to this country alone. And if our correspondent will look to Germany, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, or Italy, where Socialism, in a strictly class-conscious form, has made greater headway than here, he will see that in those countries the working class has made very great progress toward freedom. The progress may be far slower than we could wish; but it is foolish to shut our eyes to the progress that has been made and to offer to give up the fight because it has not been so rapid as we had hoped. Neither do we at all agree that more is to be gained by appealing to the small capitalists in the churches. We consider the trusts as the most effective misery among the small capitalists.

After all, however, this is not the point. The point, as we understand it, is: First, the San Francisco comrades insisted that if a speaker is to be supported and authorized by the party, he should be a party member; second, that if he speaks in the name of the party he should correctly represent the avowed principles of the party; third, that he should not arrange his meetings in such a way as to conflict with the regular propaganda meetings of the party. Whether or not they were mistaken as a matter of fact in thinking that Stitt Wilson violated these requirements, we cannot, at this distance, assume to determine. But on the matters of principle we hold that they were entirely in the right; and if Wilson did violate these requirements, then we hold that he was entirely in the wrong.—Ed.)

Labor and the Church.

Editor The Worker:

About a year ago I sent letters to about 200 labor leaders, asking them to give me the benefit of their observations concerning the relation of the workingman toward the church. The answers received were published in the form of a composite letter in an eastern magazine, and served as the basis of a series of addresses, which attracted wide attention throughout the country.

The workingman's attitude toward the church was made clearer, and, I am sure, the whole matter created a more sympathetic feeling toward the workingman among thinking people. As a former machinist and a preacher with the interests of the workingman at heart, this result was gratifying to the writer.

It was stated almost unanimously by those who wrote to me, that the church, as at present constituted, does not appeal to the workingman. I have been prompted to send out the enclosed series of questions, hoping to find out, if possible, just what kind of an organization would appeal to the best instincts of the average workingman.

I sincerely hope that the response to this letter will be as cordial as that which followed the one sent out last year. Will you kindly help me in this matter? Replies will be considered.

CHARLES STELZLE.

Markham Memorial Church, St. Louis.

1. Do you think that a church managed exclusively by workingmen and for workingmen, would attract this class of toilers? If not, please state the reason.

2. What kind of a society, in your opinion, would accomplish the things for which the church is supposed to stand?

3. Please outline a creed or a system of belief, for the guidance of such a society, covering, as nearly as possible, the following points:

a. Its relation toward God.

b. The relation of its members one toward another.

c. The relation of the society to the world.

Letter Box

TO ALL SUBSCRIBERS.—If you move and want the address of your paper changed, be careful in notifying the business office, to give your old address as well as your new one IN FULL. If you fail to do this there may be considerable delay in making the change, as it involves a great deal of work to find a name on our lists if the full address is not given.

JOHN C. DONAHUE, City.—You are not the only trade unionist who is disgusted with the action of the labor leaders at the "peace conference." Stick to your union and help to build up a correct opinion on the subject there.

GEO. E. BRITTAIN, Dayton, O.—Your request was overlooked; as you suggest, but is now attended to.

JOS. J. NOEL, San Francisco.—Thanks for your thoughtfulness.

JAS. S. ROCHE, Los Angeles.—Thanks for your correction. We had already discovered our error, as you will here see, and set it right right.

J. LAMBERTZ, City.—Comrade McGrady, himself a priest of the Roman Catholic Church, challenged Archbishop Corrigan to debate the question of Socialism, but the Archbishop declined.

C. HEYDRICK, Erie.—Statement could not be prepared earlier by the Fair Committee. As to announcing prizes, The Worker is as strictly law-abiding as the editor's occasionally nodding vigilance can make it in the matter of refusing to give Medden any legitimate ground for revoking his newspaper-mail privileges.

ANONYMOUS, Marion, Ind.—Matter unavailable. Anonymous letters never considered, anyhow.

A. Z. H.—As above, we do not consider anonymous letters. If you have anything to say against the comrade, say it openly, like a man.

JOSEPH CRONIN, City.—We will not get the emancipation of labor by asking for amendments to the constitution. Remember, the Thirteenth Amendment came as the RESULT of a revolutionary struggle. It was effective only because of the revolutionary struggle which preceded it. Moreover, the measure of detail which you propose, while it may be a proper subject for union regulations, would be a very reactionary measure if made into law.

A. HEINTZE, City.—See reply to C. Heydrick.

——Instead of continuing the fruitless swing of a political pendulum, now this way, now that, but always in the direction and for the interests of one vast system of exploitation and murder, we had better put our thought on the idea of getting rid of the whole iniquitous thing.—Wm. T. Brown.

WORKMEN'S
Furniture Fire Insurance
Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.
Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.
OFFICE: 64 East Fourth Street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 3 o'clock p. m.
BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Elmira, Albany, Oneida, Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J.
Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass.
New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.
Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Lebanon, Altoona, Scranton, Pa.
Chicago, Ill.
Cleveland, O.
San Francisco, Cal.
For addresses of the Branch Bookkeepers, see "Vorwaerts." 229

THOMAS J. MORGAN, LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

RE/D "THE ADVANCE."
A 16-PAGE SOCIALIST PAPER.
Uncompromising advocate of class conscious political action in the interests of the working class—as against those of the capitalist class. Sample copy. Subscription price, per year, $0.50; six months, 50 cents. Three months, 25 cents. 174 Murphy Building, 1256 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

SOCIALIST PARTY LITERATURE.
Issued by National Committee, will be sent prepaid at prices specified. National Platform, Constitution and Resolutions on Negro and Trade Union questions, adopted in National Convention at Indianapolis, July 31, 1901.

	Price per 100.	Price per 1000.
National Platform	.10	.65
National Constitution	.15	1.00
Negro Resolution	.10	.65
Trade Union Resolution	.10	.65

Address orders for above to
LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary,
427 Emilie Building, St. Louis, Mo.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2575 Franklin

H. B. SALISBURY
Counselor at Law.
50 UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY
Real Estate, Mortgage Loans, Long Island Investments.

BERNARD STOLLMACK,
Dealer in Gent's and Ladies' Suits, Cloaks, Etc.
WEEKLY AND MONTHLY PAYMENTS.
149 E. Broadway, N. Y. Open Evenings.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
"CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.
Five Postals for $1.25, each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.
For Sale on all New York News-stands.

YOUR UNION SHOULD SUBSCRIBE
—TO—
THE WORKER.
In New York City one comrade is devoting his time to work among the unions, and with encouraging prospects. If you wish to educate your fellow workmen to a true realization of their conditions and the cause and remedy and to a full realization of their class interests you can do it in no better way than by getting your union as an organization to take official action in the matter by subscribing to THE WORKER for its membership. Now is the time as around election they are always afraid of "politics." Other unions have done it, why not yours? THE WORKER gives the labor news of the world. It is the most fearless advocate of trade unionism and of all interests of the working class. It has been felt as a power in many strikes and boycotts and it deserves your union's support. If you can't get yearly get six or three month subscriptions for the whole membership.
Twenty per cent. discount on regular subscription rates to all unions subscribing in this way. For further suggestions address
THE WORKER, 184 William Street, New York.

We Wish You
A Happy New Year
AND ASK
Have You Seen
THE WORKER CALENDAR?
A Work of Art.
The Rising Sun, Reproduction From Famous Painting by Peret, Famous French Artist.
Every Comrade should get one. — Send Now.
5 Cents at office. 7 Cents postpaid.
"THE WORKER", ... 184 William St.

R·I·P·A·N·S
One day an old friend said: "Are you troubled with dyspepsia?" I said: "Yes, and I don't ever expect to be cured." He told me to go across the street and get a box of Ripans Tabules. After using Ripans Tabules for three weeks I was satisfied I

NEW JERSEY CONVENTION.

Held in Elizabeth on New Year's Day.

The annual state convention of the Socialist Party of New Jersey was held on New Year's Day in the Columbia Turnverein Hall at Elizabeth. Paul Koch, as Organizer of Local Union County, welcomed the delegates in a brief address, after which the Elizabeth Singing Society gave the "Socialist March." State Secretary Strobell then declared the convention open. Nathan Cole of Hoboken was elected temporary chairman and E. C. Wind of Newark as secretary. The following committees were chosen: On constitution: C. Ufert, Glanz, Deyoe, McIntosh, Koch, Marten, and Havens; on Platform, Pankopf, Magnette, Kronenberg, and White; on Ways and Means: Hopkins, Krafft, Die, Rubinow and Kamps. A recess was then taken.

On reassembling the convention proceeded to permanent organization. Geo. H. Goebel and Frederick Krafft were nominated for chairman and the former was elected by a vote of 45 to 22. E. C. Wind was made secretary. The report of the Credentials Committee showed the following representation: Ocean County 2 delegates; Passaic, 2 delegates and 15 proxies; Camden, 2 delegates and 15 proxies; Hudson, 34 delegates and 109 proxies; Somerset, 5 delegates; Union, 10 delegates and 19 proxies; Bergen, 4 delegates and 16 proxies; Essex, 33 delegates and 22 proxies; in all, 88 delegates, with 201 votes. Some other delegates were seated later.

The auditing committee reported finding the books of the State Committee in good order. The report showed receipts in the last year of $746.75, with a present balance of cash in the Treasurer's hands of $26.51. On the recommendation of the Ways and Means Committee it was decided to issue agitation stamps at 5 cents each; also that 10 per cent. of the proceeds of all party festivals go to the State Committee. It was voted also to hold a great state picnic on Labor Day, half the net proceeds to go to the State Committee, and a quarter to the National Committee. The Committee was authorized to spend not more than $2,000 for the next campaign.

On the report of the Committee on Constitution a lively debate arose on the proposition to have a permanent chairman for the State Committee. The proposition was voted down by 213 to 88.

Another point of difference was the use of the phrase, "wage and salary workers," in explanation of the word "proletarian class" in the platform. Some delegates opposed the inclusion of the word "salary." This was fully discussed and the phrase as reported was retained in the platform.

There was a conflict for the position of National Committeeman. Geo. H. Goebel, E. T. Neben, Charles Ufert, and E. C. Wind were nominated. After the voting began, Neben withdrew in favor of Ufert and the latter was elected by a large vote.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE CONVENTION.

A few weeks prior to the convention it occurred to several comrades to appeal to the locals for a referendum to revoke the former decision for a delegate convention. This referendum decided in favor of a mass convention with proxy representation. Now any attempt to reverse party decisions at the last hour is bound to excite anger and distrust. Anger, because repeated referendums upon the same question involve much vexatious loss of time and money; distrust, because a hidden motive is sought behind any attempt to evoke previous party decisions of recent date. This distrust is carried into the convention, and such a feeling pervaded the earlier hours of this convention, although it receded gradually before the frank and able treatment of all measures before the house, to disappear entirely before adjournment.

Although a mass convention affords every member an opportunity to speak, yet this has its bad side, as every novice feels himself called upon to air his views. With exasperating naivete, he advances ideas and suggestions which he innocently believes to be of his invention, although the odor of mildew is painfully perceptible. As a consequence, valuable time is wasted in discussion and argument to rebury these resurrected antiques. Oh, that new comrades were gifted with the desire to learn the history of the party organization before they venture to speak upon the floor of our conventions!

As an illustration, the proposal of a permanent chairman for the State Committee with powers to call meetings was defeated only after a long and unnecessary debate. Likewise the plan that the State Committee shall elect its own officers. One new recruit even advocated the demand for direct primaries, declaring that party organization should be abolished. It may not be out of place to advise new members to submit their views to a prior discussion within their respective locals, or through a party organ before attending a convention.

The sentimental, the Christian Socialist was also in evidence. One may recommend to him a diligent perusal of scientific Socialist literature, which ought to convince him that the call "Workingmen of all countries, Unite!" is equivalent to "Workingmen of all religions, Unite!"—for the overthrow of capitalism, supported by all organized religions. Some of our Christian brethren in the party, in their eager advocacy of "tolerance," entirely forget to practise tolerancy toward comrades who are not Christians.

An important plank appealing to the proletariat as "wage and salary workers" caused some dispute. The word "salary" was opposed as superfluous and misleading; but after it was ably demonstrated that an appeal to the wage earner is met with indifference by the salaried slave, whose allegiance is certainly desired, and that there is a well established difference in the common use of the two words, although there is no difference in the economic position of wage and salary workers, the clause was adopted by a large majority.

Branch autonomy was defeated after a lengthy debate. Chairman Goebel took the floor and with supreme effort championed autonomy in every form, and it is largely due to Local Hudson County, one of the best organized locals in the country, together with National Organizer Charles H. Vail, whose trip across the continent has taught him that state autonomy is a failure, that autonomy in any form, found its Waterloo in the state of New Jersey. Comrade Ufert was elected over Comrade Goebel as member of the National Committee by an overwhelmingly majority, largely upon this issue.

There are excellent and indefatigable workers in our ranks who, in a laudable desire to be of the utmost value to the party, set the machinery of organization in motion to obtain this or that office in the service of the cause. They invariably meet with defeat and to the honor of Socialists be it said, such defeat is accepted graciously. It is well so. Let the office seek the man and not the man the office, no matter how grievously unselfish ambition may suffer thereby.

The convention adopted an excellent constitution and platform and to the best of our belief ways and means have been found to further spread the cause of Socialism and strengthen party organization, so that New Jersey shall maintain her honorable place among the states of the Union from a Socialist standpoint.

FREDERICK KRAFFT.

CHILD SLAVERY IN OLD ENGLAND.

A return published by the Education Department in June, 1899, calls attention to a large class of children in our elementary schools, who, while nominally attending school full time, are employed as casual wage earners out of school hours, and who, both in large industrial centers and in remote agricultural districts, are leading lives of incessant toil. The return refers to 144,026 children in less than half of the schools, and it presents the following startling facts: 4,131 of these breadwinners are under seven, 1,120 under eight, 4,211 under nine, 11,027 under ten; and 22,131 under eleven; 8,778 work from 31 to 40 hours per week, 2,390 from 41 to 50, 576 from 51 to 60, 142 from 61 to 70, 59 from 71 to 80, and 16 over 80 hours a week, plus the time supposed to be spent in acquiring knowledge. It is no uncommon thing for newspaper boys, milk boys, and market boys to begin the day's work at 3, 4, and 5 a. m., first collecting the goods, and then delivering them till the school bell rings. We find two cases of children of six, a boy and a girl, who deliver milk—presumably before breakfast—one for 28 and the other for 35 hours a week. One boy combines two early morning jobs, starting at 4:30 every morning to call workmen, returning from his rounds at 5:30, and then delivering papers till 9 o'clock, when he goes to school. He is reported as regular, but often half asleep. The daily hours of three milk boys are from 2 to 4:30 a. m., or from 3 to 5:30. Another begins work for his father at 3 a. m., and works again after school till 9 p. m. He often goes to sleep at school from sheer weariness. Another, still more unfortunate, works four whole nights every week, from 6 p. m. to 8 a. m., in a dust yard. It is evident that girls, whose hours are returned at 70 and 80 hours a week, must be at work both very early and very late. It is equally evident that the practice of employing girls at the age of six and seven, in dragging about other babies, in staggering to and fro with parcels often far in excess of their childish strength; in scrubbing floors and door steps, or as street hawkers, is not strictly conductive to health or educational progress.—I. L. P. leaflet.

AS TO PATERNALISM.

A leading retail firm of grocers and provision dealers in Liverpool, has issued the following ukase:

"MATRIMONY—A WARNING."

"We fear that some of our assistants are entering into marriage contracts without realising the trouble they are getting themselves into. It is a most serious step for any man to take and especially so for one who hopes to be his own master some day. His first object should be to save at least £200, after that enough to furnish a cottage, as when marriage is entered into before these two objects are attained there is absolutely no hope of saving, as the whole earnings must go for housekeeping, etc. We ourselves have set our face against any man marrying before he is a manager and, indeed, we don't even then approve of it except that he has money saved; and so strongly do we feel this that we shall not in future retain young men who marry without OUR consent. We earnestly trust that our young men will lay this matter to heart and act upon our advice."

Britons, never, no never, shall be slaves.

CAMPAIGN FUND.

To the Holders of Subscription Lists for the Campaign Fund of the Social Democratic Party of the City of New York:

Comrades and friends who still have subscription lists in their possession are requested to send the lists in at once, as the Campaign Committee would like to wind up its business before the expiration of this year. As there is some deficiency the comrades would confer a favor on the committee by promptly returning lists and money collected, as it may help the committee to meet all its liabilities. Those who have not collected any money on their lists are also requested to turn in their lists, as this will greatly aid the auditing committee in auditing the accounts. Therefore, come rush in your lists, lists with dimes, quarters, and dollars are preferred, but we want all, even the empty ones. Send lists and money to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street.

Previously acknowledged	$2,208.96
List 979, A Comrade	.25
List 5275, Kr. Kasse Hilfe	4.60
Correction	.30
Total	$2,209.10

Correction.—List 5056 of the Arbeiter Kranken Kasse, acknowledged last week, should have been $1.40 instead of $1.10.

CIGARMAKERS ON STRIKE IN ONEIDA.

Fighting Bravely Against Heavy Odds in Defense of Their Dignity as Men—Deserve Support of Fellow Workers.

The cigarmakers at Powell & Goldstein's shop in Oneida, to the number of 142 men, have now been on strike for six weeks to compel the firm to keep its promise and discharge an obnoxious foreman, one Sanders, who used all the power that his position gave him to abuse the men, to persecute those who did not cringe before him, and in general, to play the petty tyrant.

The men edured this foreman's abuse as long as they could without forfeiting their self-respect and then stated the case to the firm and asked for his removal. This was promised, while the union consented to a delay of six weeks to give the new foreman time to become accustomed to his duties.

When that time had elapsed, they found that the bosses had no intention of keeping their promise, and were accordingly forced to go on strike. The strike was decided on by a vote of 151 to 5.

This house ordinarily employs the great majority of the cigarmakers of Oneida, and since the strike began the few small shops have been shut down, in order, it would seem, to help the big firm.

This was not all, however. Mr. Goldstein, one of the firm, who was then Mayor, used his official and social influence to prejudice the people—especially the business men—against the strikers, with the result that they have been refused credit at stores where they have traded for years. Eighty-eight of the strikers are married men and all have felt the effects of the strike very severely; but there is no talk of surrender. Although the funds of the local union, No. 12, are exhausted, it will be assisted by the other unions of the craft in New York, Philadelphia, and elsewhere.

Cigar Makers' Union No. 12 has always been prompt and active in coming to the aid of fellow workingmen—whether of cigarmakers in other towns or of other trades in their own locality—and the workingmen who are in a position to help them, directly or indirectly, in this battle in defense of their dignity as men, should hasten to do so. The workingmen of Oneida should unite to teach the capitalists, big and little, a lesson that they will not soon forget. Only by inflicting a severe defeat to these labor-crushing bosses and to the business men who are helping them against the strikers, can the working people command the respect of those who live off the product of their underpaid labor.

LABOR NOTES.

Cremo, Geo. W. Childs, Tom Moore, Robert Burns, Gen. Arthur, and Henry George cigars are scab products. Smoke union label cigars only.

The Singer sewing machine is under boycott.

An error was made in the minutes of the New York C. F. U. as recently sent out to affiliated unions, requesting union men to prevail on John Wanamaker and Seigel-Cooper to cease advertising in the "Sun." Neither of these firms has advertised in the "Sun" since an early stage of the fight.

The Bricklayers' and Masons' International Union will hold its convention in Pittsburg, from Jan. 9 to 23. The Italian federation of bricklayers, which will hold its own first national convention at Alexandria, in Piedmont; on Jan. 22, will send its greeting through our comrade, Dr. Nicola Gigliotti, who has been one of the champions of trade unionism and of Socialism in the old country. This year the Italian masons of New York have worked very hard to strengthen their organization and they now have a powerful union, known as Stone Masons' Union, No. 74. Along with Dr. Gigliotti, as a delegate, will be Philip Bauer, president of No. 11. The stone masons stand in great need of aid from the Bricklayers, who should refuse to build on foundations laid by non-union masons.

The Wood Carvers' and Modellers' Union voted at its last meeting to subscribe for one hundred copies of The Worker for one year, to be sent in at bundle rates to their organization each week, at a cost of $25. If this is not enough a larger supply will be ordered.

Cigarmakers' Union No. 149 has subscribed for fifty copies each week for one year in the same way. They also will subscribe for more if the supply proves inadequate.

The rates for The Worker, if sent in quantity weekly to one address, are as follows: Five copies a week, $1.75 a year; 10 a week, $3.25; 25 a week, $7.50; 50 a week, $12.50. The latter figures barely covers cost of paper, presswork, and mailing.

The Wood Carvers elected officers at the last meeting. The new officers are as follows: President, Frank Detleff, secretary, Wm. Bader; treasurer, Ferdinand Heun. John Henry resigned as business agent and his successor will be elected at the next meeting.

Delegate McConville replaces O'Brien on the committee on Rapid Transit complaints.

George H. Warner has resigned as business agent for the Machinists.

The new administration in New York has started already to prove its disregard for the interests of organized labor. The new Building Commission has awarded work to a scab contractor.

TRADE UNIONS.

The labor organization not only helps those who belong to it, but it also helps those who are not members. For even those on the outside share to a great extent in the better wages, the shorter hours and the more favorable conditions secured by the labor organizations. If unions or federations make mistakes it must be remembered that perfection is not to be expected in any work of human hands. The good done by these organizations far outweighs the errors committed by them.—Exchange.

THEY CONDEMN THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

At the last regular meeting of Branch 2, Hoboken, N. J., the following resolutions were adopted:

"1. Whereas, A meeting of capitalists was held recently in the city of New York, the ostensible purpose of which was to bring Capital and Labor into closer relationship, and at this meeting there were present and participating in its deliberations a number of persons holding high offices in labor organizations, and who, by their presence and their voice, gave color to the statement that they endorsed the proceedings of this body, among whom were several avowed enemies of organized labor; and

"Whereas, We, the members of Branch 2, Socialist Party of Hoboken, N. J., in regular meeting here this 30th day of December, 1901, assembled, do firmly believe that Capital can never have but one object in its use of Labor, and that to get all it can at the least possible expense; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we condemn those who, knowingly or ignorantly, lead the laboring man to the slaughter, and that we denounce all such farces as this New York meeting as abortive and useless, retarding the growth of organization and misleading to those who do not weigh well the facts and connect them with past history; be it further

"Resolved, That there never can be close and friendly relations between private capital and the laboring man so long as the one is protected by the administration of government and the courts of law, while the other is forced to sell his labor for what Capital says it is worth, which at the present time is but 14 per cent. of the value of what he produces. Be it further

"Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be forwarded to The Worker, the New York "Journal," "World," "Volkszeitung," and the Hoboken "Observer."

"2. Whereas, We recognize the fact that the rapid strides of wireless telegraphy will soon make the present system of the Western Union Telegraph Company to a great extent useless; be it

"Resolved, That we warn the people of the United States against the present effort to unload upon them this vast worthless machinery which will soon be replaced by a wireless system. Be it further

"Resolved, That the secretary pursue the same course with this resolution as with the first set."

WHAT WE STAND FOR.

Here is a sentence (we take it from a card issued by the Socialist Propaganda Club of Brooklyn) which clearly and briefly expresses the fundamental purpose of the Socialist movement:

"The right of every man to the great natural resources and to the use of the most scientific machinery of production, and to the most orderly adjustment of his labor in co-operation with his fellows, each to receive his full share of the increased fruits of this perfected industrial organization, shall never be denied nor abridged."

Will anyone deny the justice of that contention? Will anyone show how it can be carried into practise except by the collective ownership and operation of the means of production? It's a simple proposition. If you accept it, you should vote and work for Socialism.

THE "SUN" BOYCOTT.

Typographical Union No. 6 and its friends have prevailed upon Adams & Co. to withdraw their advertising from the "Sun" and that firm has therefore been placed upon the "fair" list. A special boycott is declared against O'Neill, Sixth avenue and Twenty-first street, on account of his continuing to support with his patronage this virulent adversary of organized Labor. The printers seem to be satisfied that their continued fight against the "Sun" is having its effect and say they will keep it up for twenty years, if necessary. All workingmen are asked to assist them, not only by refraining from buying the "Sun" itself, but also by refraining from patronising "Sun" advertisers. A full list of these can be got through any trade union officials and the boycott should be carefully observed.

LAW AND ORDER.

The "Wall Street Journal," which is the mouthpiece of the railroad and other financial interests, speaking of the puny efforts of Governor Van Sant and other western governors to prevent the consolidation of the railroads of the northwest, says: "The monopoly will stand REGARDLESS OF THE LAWS ON THE STATUTES BOOKS." Who said the anarchists had all been deported? "There will be no trouble," continues this law and order publication, "for the corporations NO MATTER WHAT THE LAWS MAY BE." Like them sentiments, eh? Think the wealthy observe the laws as you do—or suffer the consequences? Not much, Mary Ann. The trusts spit on the statutes and buy the officers. And you calmly sit around with your thumb in your mouth and a forlorn expression on your face.—Appeal to Reason.

THE TRUE UNION MAN.

He takes a labor paper, which he pays for in advance.

The United Garment Workers or Tailors have their labels on his pants.

He patronizes barber shops that have the union card up.

He cheerfully will help a fellow craftsman who is hard up.

He chews union tag tobacco and wears union label shoes.

And if he drinks, you bet it's union-label booze.

The union label is in the hat he wears upon his head.

And when he leaves the bakery it's always on his bread.

He has that union label in the pocket of his coat.

The capitalist candidate would never get his vote.—Ex.

AS TO FOREIGN TRADE.

Nations, like individuals, cannot continue to be buyers without at the same time being sellers. With great European industries paralyzed by our competition, does it not follow that the workers once engaged in those industries must cease to become our customers for food and other products in the proportion that their earning capacity is reduced by lack of employment.—Saginaw Exponent.

TRADE UNIONISM AND SOCIALISM.

BY HOWARD F. JONES.

Are you a trade unionist? Do you believe in the necessity of a closer affiliation and heartier co-operation with each other? Do you believe that by concentrating our efforts we will be better able to promote our welfare, protect our rights, and forward our interests? Do you recognize that the workers of muscle and mind are the only ones who have created the wealth of every land and epoch, but are deprived of the fruits of their labor by the existing social conditions?

If you believe in all this, is it not simply a manifestation of imbecility and cowardice to be continually whining about the oppression suffered from money and monopoly, when the power to crush it is within your reach, and you have only to stretch forth the hand of united labor NOW to strangle the viper?

In order to combat these conditions and advance the standard of life so that, first, all will be guaranteed an equal opportunity for employment and, second, the workers will have the full enjoyment of the wealth they create, it is necessary for labor organizations to unite socially and politically. The mighty army of Labor has a grand mission to perform; and if we expect to better the industrial government and ameliorate existing social conditions, we must, by the use of the ballot alone, gain our desires.

The money powers of this country are the masters of both the Republican and Democratic parties which of necessity simply carry out the wishes and desires of their owners; and it is high time for the workingman to stop, think, and consider how soon it will be when the Morgans, Rockefellers, and Carnegies will not only dictate when you should work, and what you shall receive in payment, but also when they shall say to you, "This is my earth; if you wish to live here, obey me."

Take the last steel strike against that gigantic octopus, Morgan's Steel Trust. Do trade unionists need further and more stringent object lessons? Do you not feel the arm of monopoly and the oppression of the money power closing around you? If not now, you will only feel it when the pangs of hunger and the lash of your masters bring you to a vivid realization of your wrongs. That time will come, if you do not take advantage now of the power you now possess, by your ballot, to obtain your rights. The wage earners of this country have been lulled to sleep by fancied security and the cry of the capitalists, "We were never so prosperous; why, we are even lending money to Europe and buying their bonds." Admitting all this, how much money have the workmen, individually or collectively, loaned to Europe? Not one penny. We know this country was never so prosperous for the capitalists. While crops have been large, and the inventions of American genius have been in demand throughout the world, the greed of the money power and the tentacles of the octopus monopoly have reaped the reward and stolen the fruits of your genius and industry. The plutocrats of all former times in the history of the world were mere pigmies when compared to our own Morgans and Rockefellers of to-day.

Many articles have been written pointing out the wrongs of the workers, but very few giving to the workingman a rational solution of the subject. We submit the following demand of the laborer, mechanic, and toiler in all branches of useful industry in order to secure the emancipation of the wage workers of our land, and to extend our fraternal hand to the workers of all nations of the globe who struggle for the same independence: 'Collective ownership by the people of all the means of production and distribution, and all means of communication and transportation.

This is Socialism, pure and simple; and by unity of action and by political organization among the working people, who comprise the majority of the people, this can be accomplished. In your hands rests the future of our free institutions, and it devolves upon you to replace the present iniquitous economic system by one based upon equality and the nobility of all useful labor.

LOCKOUT IN BIG HAVANA HOTELS.

The union cooks and waiters in Havana, Cuba, are engaged in a fight with the proprietors of the largest hotels and restaurants of that city, and wish their fellow craftsmen in this country to take note of it, so that none shall be misled into going there and taking their places.

The Hotel Inglaterra, El Louvre, and the Cafe Dos Hermanos have recently been brought together under a single management, by Manuel Lopez and Felipe Gonzalez, uncle and nephew, of whom the former is already known as a bitter enemy of organized labor.

Union cooks and waiters had formerly been employed in these places, but Lopez soon found an opportunity for picking a quarrel and discharging them. He demands that all his employees sleep in wretched little rooms on the premises, that they work at whatever hours he sees fit to call on them, and that they never leave the place without special permission—in a word, that absolutely the whole of their time be under his control. The men refused to submit to such conditions and in consequence all union cooks and waiters are barred from these places.

All that the locked-out men ask of their fellow workers in the United States is that the latter refuse to go to work in Havana on any terms until the fight is settled, as the boss is likely to try to get men from this country under false pretenses, to fill the places of those who refused to bow to his dictation.

NEW TIMES.

New times demand new measures and new men;
The world advances and in time outgrows
The laws that in our fathers' days were best;
And doubtless, after us, some purer scheme
Will be shaped by wiser men than we,
Made wiser by the steady growth of truth.

—James Russell Lowell.

SOCIALISM vs. CHRISTIANITY.

BY GEORGE CUTTING.

Socialism is a science; Christianity a speculation. The proofs of the inevitability of Socialism can be demonstarted by present and past evolutionary processes which are governed by demonstrable laws. It is an impossibility for a believer in the literal meaning of the Bible to become a revolutionary Socialist—he would halt and hesitate at promised reforms and pray for their success. In order to understand Socialism and the laws which govern its development it is necessary to reason from the starting point of materialism; and by this method you find a reason for historical events. Of course this slaughters sensational histories and gives reasons for the actions of men—gives economic motive.

Christianity, and I wish to give the broad definition of the word, is a speculation for which its supporters can offer only personal testimony, but not evidence. Christianity deals with individuals and life hereafter, and teaches that life here is but a passing event preparatory to everlasting life. In the last analysis Christianity is anarchistic, as it deals only with the individual and a divine being; of course, it has taken, at times, the form of communistic organization in churches, but has demonstrated that the churches never were grounded on even voluntary co-operation—they look for the paternalistic director.

I believe that the question of the natural issue between the Christianity and Socialism will have to be dealt with as it has been in France and Germany; and, therefore, I believe that now is the time to start right.

It is distressing at times to hear people calling themselves Socialists say: "The ethics of Christianity and Socialism are identical." In fact, several times I have heard Christian-Socialists quote the commandment of Christ, "Go and sell what thou hast and give to the poor," as a tenet of Socialism, saying at the same time that there was but one God and that capitalism had dethroned him. It appears to me to be rather bad logic to compare capitalism as greater than God, and I do not see how the people making such statements can believe in the economic analysis of development. Furthermore they say capitalism is an evil and that God does not favor it. It seems to me that these well-meaning disciples are rather confusing people in regard to the correct understanding of Socialism and should not go unchallenged.

To show the tendencies and the alertness of certain defenders of capitalism, understanding the usefulness of Christianity in maintaining their exploiting game, I will quote from an address delivered by Wayne MacVeagh before the Harvard College Phi Beta Kappa, last June:

"My purpose therefore, is to point out without the slightest bitterness, to the members of the contented class, THE COMMERCIAL VALUE* of ethical ideals as the safest course of the political aspirations of the majority of our people (his class) and the most conservative influence in our national life, and also to point out to them the grave dangers from a business standpoint, in these days, of possible conflict between capital and labor. * * *"

And further on in his speech, speaking of the way to insure the security of private property in America, he says:

"The Christian ideal of peace on earth and good will to men will always increase it. It is quite possible there may also be great COMMERCIAL VALUE FOR US (the capitalist class) at the present time in the ethical ideal that all men are born free and equal."

You observe he does not say he believes that "all men are born free and equal," but he proposes to use it to jolly and bluff the wealth producers so that they will consent to be exploited.

I regard Geo. D. Herron's article in "Wilshire's Magazine" as EXPERT TESTIMONY, which I shall quote:

"It has been the method of religious systems to fasten themselves upon every fresh coming of life into the world. * * *

"But soon the church will have no source of power left within itself. It will discover that capitalism cannot save itself, and will then seek to fasten itself upon the Socialist movement—not for the sake of Socialism, but for the sake of ecclesiasticism, or the religious system. To Christianize Socialism would be to destroy it, and to perpetuate a capitalized and decadent Christianity. Every attempt of the church to serve Socialism will be for the sake of self-preservation, and not for the Socialist cause."

It seems now as if capitalism was trustifying the churches, as there is an abnormal number of clergymen out of employment.

Rev. Chas. Stelfze, in an article in the "Outlook," entitled "The Workingman and the Church," compiles a composite answer to the question which he submitted to 200 workingmen:

"Wherever we come into contact with the church it is in a most unpleasant way to us personally. * * * We believe that Jesus Christ advocated the doctrine of co-operation, the brotherhood of man, and Socialism. * * * So long as the present system stands, no great portion of the working class will become interested in the church. * * * The church should preach the gospel of Socialism, which is nothing else than the gospel of Christ."

It is indeed time that the workingmen were taught the difference between communism and Socialism and Christianity, and that it is not always safe to take a clergyman's word on economic matters, as they are generally profoundly ignorant or else act as special pleaders for the capitalistic system of which they are a part.

I do not write this article as an attack merely, but as a stimulus of investigation. It is gratifying, however, to see that all of the advanced and well-grounded Socialist papers of the United States take their Socialism from the materialistic standpoint.

*Mr. MacVeagh did not use large type here. But I think the phrases which I have marked so deserve the emphasis.—G. C.

Reprinted in The Worker of Nov. 10, 1901, under the title "A Menacing Friendship."—Ed.

—The fellow that first penned: "What goes up must come down," never had any experience with the price of coal.—Toledo News.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of international Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

WILL YOU WIN IT?

A HANDSOME PRIZE.

A Handsomely Bound Volume of Karl Marx' "Capital,"

Only Authorized Edition by Frederick Engels.

Published by Swan, Sonnenschien & Company, London.

PRICE, $4.20, and twenty-five other Publications.

A Prize Every Socialist Wants. Start a Handsome Library.

To go to the Comrade who secures the largest number of Yearly Subscribers to THE WORKER by Feb. 1, 1902.

A REMARKABLE OFFER.

IN ADDITION

For every yearly subscription you send us before Feb. 1, 1902, we will send you free any three of the following:

"Now and Then" (Socialist Play) ..... Frederick Krafft
"Development of Socialism from Utopia to Science." Frederick Engels
"The Capitalist Class" ..... Karl Kautsky
"Labor Politics and Socialist Politics." ..... Algernon Lee
"The Attitude of Socialists Toward Trade Unions." ..... N. I. Stone
Debate—"Tactics of the S. T. & L. A. Toward Trade Unions." Job Harriman and Daniel DeLeon.
Also a copy of "Why Workingmen of New York Should Join the Social Democratic Party."

THE WORKER,

50 Cents Per Year. 184 William Street.

(The prize will not be given for less than ten subscribers, and should there be two or more winners who secure the same number each will receive the same prize. These offers do not apply to regular agents, but to subscribers only.

PEACE ON EARTH.

"There will be a series of three competitive drills between the Waverly Cadets of the Waverly Congregational Church and the Roosevelt Cadets of the First Congregational Church. In addition to the company drill there will be a drill in the manual of arms and a first and second medal will be awarded to the two cadets making the best showing in the manipulation of arms."

"The watch night service was well attended. The Waverly Cadests have been entertained at the First Congregational Church by the Roosevelt Cadets, and after a visit to the Fourth Regiment armory they came with the pastor to the church to wait for the new year."—Jersey City Advertiser and Eagle.

Peace on earth, good will to men! Hallelujah! Let us teach our children to become Christian soldiers, so that they may spread the gospel with the most approved machinery of destruction. Let us take them to our armories and from there to our churches, so that they may learn that the church prescribes manslaughter, and let our uniforms so shine before men that they may see our "good works" and glorify our Father which is in Heaven.

—The moral problems of the country are closely allied with the industrial problems, and a solution of the latter would disentangle the former.—Dr. C. H. Russell.

FACTORY TO POCKET

P. S. BARTLETT-WALTHAM, 1448. WATCHES, 20-year guarantee, value $25.00, at $9.75 each. W. F. DOLL, M'f'r., CO. Est. 1876. Inc. 1897. 175 Broadway, up stairs.

THE COMRADE

SAVE YOUR VOICE, and let our illustrated agitation leaflet, "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," do some of your propaganda. One hundred for 10 one-cent stamps. Besides order a few copies of the January "Comrade," and circulate them. This will bring you good results, for its PICTURES TALK SOCIALISM!

COMRADE PUBLISHING COMPANY, 28 Lafayette Place, New York.

Abbott Bros.

Bakery, Coffee & Lunch Room.

110 Bleecker Str., N. Y.

Kangaroos are welcome: No line drawn on smaller animals.

—By what right do we call that "religion" which has not a particle of power in it, which does not mightily move men, which does not comprehend a world-wide ideal, which does not hold up before the minds of men a consummation in the realization of which it were divine to die? The truth is, our religion is anaemic and weak because we have postponed its noblest expression to a future existence.—Wm. T. Brown.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 42. NEW YORK, JANUARY 19, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

THE SLAUGHTER OF WORKINGMEN.

Steel Workers' Lives Worth Less Than Mules.

Tunnel Horror but an Incident in the System of Wholesale Murder for Profit Which Capitalist Class Maintains—Cheaper to Rush Work and Sacrifice Lives Than to Stop for Repairs or to Use Safety Appliances.

While the people are experiencing a thrill of horror over the fatal collision in the New York Central tunnel, it would be well for them to consider the slaughter of workingmen which goes regularly, systematically, all over the country, every day in the year, year after year, in the various industries of the country.

In the year ending June 30, 1898, there were 1,958 railway employees killed at their work and 31,761 injured.

In the year ending June 30, 1899, there were 2,210 killed and 34,928 injured.

In the year ending June 30, 1901 (the latest for which we have statistics), there were 2,550 killed and 39,643 injured.

As we pointed out in analyzing these figures in our issue of Sept. 1, 1901, not only is the absolute number of railway employees killed or injured at their work increasing year by year, but it is increasing faster than the number of men employed; that is, the proportion of those killed or injured to the whole employed is increasing, the risk of death or injury is growing greater every year.

In 1898, one out of every 28 employees was injured; in 1899, one out of every 27; in 1901, one out of every 26.

In 1898, one out of every 447 employees was killed; in 1899, one out of every 420; in 1901, one out of every 339.

What makes the figures more striking is that the risk to passengers, as shown by the statistics, was considerably reduced.

THE REASON OF IT.

As we then remarked: "The reason for this surprising contrast is easily seen. It is a compartively costly business for a railway company to kill passengers; but employees may be slaughtered with practical impunity. THE LAW HOLDS THE COMPANY, AS A COMMON CARRIER, STRICTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SAFETY OF PASSENGERS AND EVEN OF FREIGHT; BUT IT RENDERS THE COMPANY, AS AN EMPLOYER, ALMOST ENTIRELY FREE OF RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE LIVES OF EMPLOYEES. The law declares that the employee, by the 'free contract' of employment, 'assumes the risk' of employment, while it makes no such presumption in the case of the passenger or shipper. It holds the employee responsible, not only for any 'contributory negligence' of his own, but also for any 'negligence of a fellow servant.' It makes no such rule in the case of a passenger or shipper. The practise of the courts makes these rules of law still more partial as against the employee, by the ease with which 'contributory negligence' and 'negligence of a fellow servant' are proven. Add to this, that the employee is generally a poor man, who can ill afford to sue a powerful corporation, and it will be seen why the railway companies go on killing and maiming their employees, while taking all possible precautions to protect the lives of passengers and the goods of shippers.

"The reduction of the fatality ratio for passengers shows what the companies CAN do to protect life and limb.

"The increase of the fatality ratio for employees shows what they REFUSE TO DO when it is only workingmen's lives that are at stake."

In the year ending June 30, 1901, the owners of the railways of this country pocketed $139,600,000 in dividends and interest—to say nothing of the stealings of officers and directors. The expenditure of one-tenth of that sum in better safety appliances for signaling, switching, and coupling, and in employing a larger number of men instead of working men sometimes fifteen or twenty hours at a stretch, would undoubtedly have saved a half of the employees' lives that were sacrificed.

But so long as the workingmen vote to send railroad owners like Depew and Hanna to Congress instead of sending working class representatives, the companies will continue to run their roads in such a way as to make the largest possible dividends, regardless of the cost of employees' lives.

STEEL TRUST MURDERS.

Turning from the railways to the steel industry, which has contributed so much to "our" prosperity during the past year, we find an even more frightful death-roll.

The New York "Herald" of Jan. 12 prints a special dispatch from Pittsburg under the suggestive headline: "Human Life Is Held by Mill and Furnace Managers Cheaper than Mules." What calls especial attention to the subject is the fact that the larger part of those that are killed through the criminal economy of the steel capitalists are foreigners, and that the Austrian and Italian consuls are now investigating the matter, with a view to securing some protection for the workers.

Space allows us to reproduce only a part of the remarkable report given by the "Herald." Being given on the authority of so conservative a capitalist paper, there can be no doubt of the accuracy of the statements made.

"The coroner's report shows that nearly two thousand persons met violent deaths in Allegheny county during 1901. A large number of these deaths were caused by accidents in the steel making establishments. A far greater per cent were maimed and injured, of which no reports are available.

"Two hundred violent deaths occurred in December. In three mill accidents nineteen men met death. Similar reports come from Lawrence County, where the Shenango Valley furnaces and cast steel mills are located. Coroner Porter, of this county, shows in his report that the greatest number of deaths resulted from mill and railroad accidents.

"Allegheny county has a population of about six hundred thousand, and the death rate is considered out of all proportion to other communities, while deaths by violence are increasing at an alarming rate. * * *

"Grief reigned during the Christmas week in MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED HOMES in Pittsburg and vicinity. Either the heads of the household been burned, suffocated or crushed to death in the shops and furnaces or were lying on cots, bruised and burned, awaiting death. No heed would have been paid to this—for the occurrences are too common to attract notice—had the subject not attracted the attention of foreign consuls. * * *

"It is declared that human life is considered of less value about an iron works than the life of mules, FOR THE LATTER COST MONEY. * * *

"A French engineer who is here studying our manufacturing methods, said: 'There are cases on record here where men have fallen into the furnace, their bodies being consumed, and no inquiry ever made for them, nor was the loss reported. * * *

"The laws of every country in Europe would have had the engineers, foremen, superintendents and probably the owners imprisoned ere this if such an accident occurred there. I find that in Pennsylvania a foreigner has scarcely any standing in the courts. * * *

NO LAW FOR PROTECTION.

"'I am also surprised to find that NO LAW EXISTS TO COMPEL MILL OWNERS TO ADOPT SAFETY APPLIANCES where they can be had. Every one familiar with blast furnace practise and ordinary mill work knows that there are numerous appliances that can be adopted in these places, practically eliminating the loss of life.

"'Our attorney tells us that as there is no law compelling blast furnace operators to adopt modern methods, we have no recourse under such a plea, and the furnace owners could roast every citizen in the county without suffering the loss of damages, the courts being powerless. * * *

"Consul Nuber, in discussing this accident" (the accident at the Soho furnace, Dec. 19, in which eleven men were killed and three injured)" said: 'The most revolting thing to me was that when the superintendent appeared before the coroner's jury and was asked what the damage to the blast furnace was, he answered, 'Thirty dollars.' All these precious lives lost for such a small sum!' * * *

PROFITS ABOVE LIFE.

The "Herald" thus explains the alarming increase of fatal accidents of this sort in the steel mills and furnaces within recent months:

"This is due to the TERRIBLE PRESSURE UNDER WHICH EVERY LABORING MAN IS WORKING. Mill and furnace owners WILL NOT CLOSE DOWN THEIR PLANTS FOR PROPER REPAIRS, because of the enormous demands for products. Engineers who have wished to apply the latest inventions to machinery to lessen risk are told there are too many orders on the books to close down for repairs, and the plants will be run until they rattle to pieces.

"The explosion of two boilers of plants of the Crucible Steel Company within a week of the furnace disaster helps to prove conditions in the mills here. In the Black Diamond Steel Works a boiler exploded on Dec. 20, killing three men and injuring a dozen others, some of whom have since died. A man was scalded to death in the Neville Island plant of the American Steel and Wire Company that night, and the following day a boiler exploded in the Singer-Nimick mill, from which six deaths have occurred. These are only the larger accidents. The minor ones are rarely reported."

The experts, suborned by the companies, always testify that the accidents were unavoidable, and the coroners and judges are so completely the tools of the capitalists who control both old parties that they make no further inquiry.

"The "Herald," however, shows that the accidents are at least very often easily avoidable, if proper repairs are made and proper safety appliances used.

"Consul Nuber has engaged experts to prove to the Allegheny county courts that MONEYMAKING IS THE BASIS OF THE EVIL. Owing to the rush of business there have been few intervals when the steel mills could be properly overhauled since 1898. The furnaces have here been running continually since 1898 and 1899. During ordinary periods blast furnaces are closed down for a year for relining and repairing. This relieves the strain and decreases the dangers. * * *

ACCIDENTS EASILY PREVENTABLE.

"Modern machinery eliminates the danger, and by its installation accidents of the character described are almost impossible. Thus a 'top filler' is in use on modern furnaces, so that no man is needed at the top to empty the barrows of coke, ore and limestone. If a 'hang' slips and causes an explosion no one is on the top to be hurt, and no one is injured unless the metal slops over and spills to the ground. As it takes nine seconds for the metal to fall eighty feet, those on the surface have an opportunity to run far enough away to escape the danger. The furnaces, too, are usually surrounded by sheds over the casting houses, etc., and the steel roofs protect the men underneath. There have been no instances where such fearful sacrifices have been made in modern plants" (that is, in plants where the best modern appliances are used).

"A manufacturer was asked why he did not adopt these methods, and he answered: 'We have'nt the time.'

"One of the complaints made by those investigating conditions is that superintendents in all cases warn the workingmen NOT TO DISCUSS WHAT OCCURS AROUND THE PLANT OR THEY WILL BE DISMISSED. The seeker for information is always referred to the superintendent, and he gives only what information he desires.

"Consul Nuber and his expert found this difficulty. * * * In every instance the men had been warned against talking about accidents around the mills.

"It is charged that the coroner will not allow leading questions to be put to the witnesses, he indicating just what information the jury desires."

The whole matter is summed up in the statement, verified by insurance actuaries, that "there is more danger to life and limb working around a blast furnace or rolling mill than in engaging in foreign wars in the army of the United States."

THIS IS PROSPERITY.

We are in an era of prosperity—and this fearful increase of fatal accidents is one of the blessings it brings to the working class. Capitalism means a regular alternation between prosperity and hard times. In hard times workingmen starve or are driven by suicide to despair. Under prosperity they work at a killing rate and take greater risks of death than they would on the field of battle.

Under Socialism the enormous surplus which the capitalists now appropriate would be applied—or so much of it as was necessary—to making the industrial plants safe for the workers; the rest would be devoted to reducing the hours of labor and increasing the workers' remuneration.

The way to get Socialism is to vote for it.

NEW CASTLE NOMINATES.

Pennsylvania's Socialist Stronghold.

J. W. Slayton Heads the Ticket for City Election in February—Large Increase Expected in Already Large Vote.

The Socialists of New Castle, Pa., who polled a very large vote last fall, propose to increase it at the city election on February 18. Everything looks favorable for a rapid growth of Socialism in this lively industrial center; for the trade unionists are taking an active interest in the movement and great enthusiasm prevails.

J. W. Slayton, of the Carpenters' Union, is the candidate of the Socialist Party for Mayor, as decided at the city convention held on Jan. 4. Comrade Slayton already has a national as well as a local reputation, both as a Socialist and as a unionist.

For Treasurer the choice fell to J. S. Kaufman and for Controller to T. H. Waddington. The nominees for Assessors are Wm. Owens, Edward Heydon, and J. M. Schaefer. Candidates for the City Council will be chosen in the several wards.

The following resolutions adopted by the convention show the position the party takes on municipal issues:

"This convention of Socialists in session assembled declare that the same principles of justice must obtain in this city as in the nation. If decent government is expected or equity between man and man is ever to be realized.

"We are fully conscious of the limitations affecting nearly every city of our country, especially of Pennsylvania, in the matter of self-government, largely so by reason of the fact that for years past, city councils have been granting corporate powers to favored individuals and corporations, then practically giving to them the most valuable franchises within the corporate limits of said cities.

"In order to perpetuate the holdings by themselves of these valuable things, those so favored have seen to it that the people's misrepresentatives (erroneously called representatives) have so legislated that nearly every attempt at any important local undertaking is either declared unconstitutional or is hedged about with such legal burdens as to make the effort abortive.

"If we wish a publicly owned conduit system we are told there is a perpetual franchise for overhead wires on poles, in the possession of a company whose sole object of existence is to benefit the people (?).

"If we wish a municipal lighting plant, we are told that cities cannot enter that field of competition against a private company already losing money in the peoples' interest (?), and the injunction is brought to bear.

"If we ask for a municipal water plant, we find the business men who have been elected in the past, have so legislated that about three prices must be paid to the existing private company who, for years, have enjoyed the income of a free franchise, and if we talk of the city ownership of street railways we are met by a so-called perpetual franchise, which seems to leave to the city only the collective ownership of many debts and the duty of collecting taxes and maintaining of such features as return no dividends, yet we are told that the city government should be continued in business men's keeping in spite of the above well known facts.

"When the common people—those who are the real foundation of all progress and who are overwhelmingly in the majority—ask for any measure that would be of benefit to them, the city is unable to comply because of the limitations referred to. Therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we set forth to the voters of this city that the principles of government we wish to inaugurate at the earliest possible date, are in national matters: The public ownership of all of the means of production and distribution, to be operated in the interest of society as a whole. In state matters, the same principle to control in every particular, and in local affairs the municipal ownership and operation of all public utilities, and that if by legal enactments, we cannot, at once, take over such franchises, we can at least prevent any further extension or grants, and call upon every man to weigh well the difference between that principle and that of ring rule or of merely a reform movement; that usually, in a very short time, from the nature of things, needs reforming itself. The desire to defeat an unholy ring is commendable, but when that is the only standard of combat—the height of individual or party aspiration—it must be of necessity fall far short of accomplishing any permanent or even temporary good, and can only (as all past history proves) result in the formation of a new ring with all the faults and often less of the scanty virtues possessed by the one supplanted. And that all candidates herein nominated are pledged beyond question to use all honorable means at their command, to prevent any discriminations against one citizen or favoring another, and will act solely on the only true principle of government, viz.: That men and not dollars should be considered as exactly equal in rights before the law. And that they repudiate the theory of vested rights as generally used and stamp it as vicious and as being on a par with the divine rights of kings' theory and like vested rights in the slave, had no equitable basis. The only rights are human rights; anything to the contrary are vested wrongs that Socialism is found to overthrow.

"We further declare that we stand pledged to a more equitable system of taxation than now obtains, and assert that no honorable man can object to that, and that we will not shield the rich nor unmercifully expose the unfortunate. To our fellow-laborers we say, we are of you, sharing your defeats and victories, belonging to the union with you, and now declare that we are determined to do our best to get that recognition we are jointly entitled to. The great common people, as Lincoln called the world's workers, have a common cause, whether members of a union or not; we therefore, have the right to ask and do now ask you to help us abolish this iniquitous wage system and further declare that there is no better place than here."

THE JAPANESE ARE LEARNING TO STRIKE.

A dispatch from San Francisco, dated Jan. 11, indicates that the Japanese workingmen in this country are learning something of working-class solidarity.

Twenty-six Japanese mechanics, who have been working at the Union Iron Works, filling the places of some of the American iron workers, who are on strike for a shorter workday, have been called out and have stopped work. The Japanese were ordered out by the officers of the Japanese Association of America, an organization with which all the Japanese in this country are affiliated. This action was brought about through the efforts of the Iron Trades Council.

MIDDLE CLASS FAILURES.

"Bradstreet's" reports 346 failures in the United States during the week, against 270 for the previous week, and 322, 293, 304, and 323 for the corresponding weeks of 1901 to 1898. About 88 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 8 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

THE RAILROAD TRAGEDY.

—AN—

INDIGNATION MEETING

to protest against

MURDER FOR PROFIT.

THURSDAY, JAN. 16, 1902, 8. P. M.

—AT—

COOPER UNION.

JOB HARRIMAN, BENJ. HANFORD, MORRIS HILLQUIT, JOHN SPARGO, DR. C. L. FURMAN and other prominent Speakers will address the meeting.

AND STILL IT WILL NOT DOWN.

The "Peace Conference" Continues to Rouse Discussion in the Union.

Cigar Makers' Union No. 90 Regards It with Suspicion and Calls for a Conference of New York Trade Unionists to Consider It.

The "industrial peace conference," by which Messrs. Hanna, Schwab & Co. hoped to settle the labor question in their own way, continues to rouse discussion in the trade unions. Probably nothing in recent years has done so much to stimulate the workingmen of their city to earnest thought about the relations of their own class to the capitalist class as this apparently so innocent conference. Thus it is that, whenever the capitalists try to work what they think an especially cute scheme, they always stir up a hornet's nest and have cause to regret their exceeding shrewdness.

Cigarmakers' Union No. 90, always a progressive and militant union, has taken an important step in connection with this matter which is now commanding so much attention. The members of No. 90 regard the "peace conference" with great suspicion, and through their Executive Board they have issued the following call to other trade unions of New York and vicinity:

CALL FOR CONFERENCE.

"Dear Sirs and Brothers:

"Cigar Makers' International Union No. 90 invites your organization to elect three delegates to a conference, to be held on Friday, Jan. 24, at 8 o'clock p. m., in the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street, New York City, (second hall) to consider a plan of holding a great mass meeting of trade unionists of New York and vicinity to discuss the recent 'Industrial Peace Conference.'

"Our reasons for taking this action are as follows:

"Our experience in the trade union movement has taught us that the interests of the working class are always opposed to those of the capitalists, and that the capitalists will use all means in their power to crush our organizations or to mislead and divide our forces.

"The socalled 'peace conference' was participated in by some of the worst enemies of the working class, capitalists and politicians who have been instrumental in issuing injunctions against unions, sending troops to shoot strikers, and committing other crimes against our class.

"The 'Committee of Thirty-six' chosen by this conference includes but twelve trade union officials, while all the other twenty-four members belong to the capitalist class; this fact causes us to look with suspicion upon the whole scheme.

"The trade union officials who took part in the 'peace conference' did not consult their organization beforehand and did not represent the trade unions of the country; they acted only as individuals. But the capitalist press has constantly spoken of them as representing the trade unions.

"If we allow this false impression to go unchallenged, we may find ourselves committed, without our consent, to a policy of compromise which the majority of our membership would not approve, and which may prove very dangerous to our organization.

"It is necessary that the rank and file of the trade unions should carefully consider the matter and give public expression to their opinions; and it is for this purpose that the Cigar Makers' International Union No. 90 has decided to issue this call.

"We would further suggest that the President, Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, be invited to appear at the proposed mass meeting and explain his unauthorized participation in the 'Peace Conference.'

"With fraternal greetings,

"JOHN NOWACK,
"Fin.-Sec'y Union No. 90."

Any unions which do not meet before the date named—Jan. 24—are requested to elect their delegates at the earliest opportunity, so that they may at least attend the following sessions of the conference.

If the call issued by C. M. I. U. No. 90 meets with the hearty response that should be given it, much good may be expected. A chance will be given for a calm consideration of the question at issue, by a large and truly representative body of trade unionists, in direct touch with the whole rank and file, and their final expression of opinion will be entitled to great respect.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Carey Renews Fight for Eight-Hour Day.

MacCartney Introduces a Bill for Public Works to Give Employment in Hard Times—Old Parties Agree on Composition of Committees.

James F. Carey of Haverhill, one of the two Social Democratic representative in the Massachusetts legislature, has not given up the fight for the eight-hour day. He will introduce in this session a bill with that object in view. The bill is brief and clear in its provisions. The draft as prepared reads thus:

"Section 1. There shall be appointed annually by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, in the same manner in which other committees are appointed, a committee, consisting of one member of the Senate and two members of the House, to be known as the Eight-Hour Law Committee.

"Section 2. It shall be the duty of this committee to invite the Legislatures of other states to appoint like committees, and if any such are appointed, to arrange for conference with them; and to take all other proper steps to procure the passage by the states of a uniform law making a legal day's labor to consist of eight hours."

It is not to be expected that the bill will pass. The Republican and Democratic majority will see to that. But the voices of Comrade Carey and his colleague, W. O. MacCarthey of Rockland, will be heard in its support in the state house at Boston, and perhaps next year the workingmen of Massachusetts will be wise enough to send other Socialist legislators to aid them in the fight.

MacCartney introduced two bills, both directly in the interest of the working class. The first provides for the establishment of a "state highway emergency fund" of $100,000, the whole or any part of which shall be available for the purpose of undertaking work on state highways in times when large numbers of men are unemployed. The bill provides that on all such work eight hours shall constitute a day's work and $2 a minimum day's pay.

The other bill is intended to secure mechanics and factory operatives a chance to vote. It provides that at the next state election there shall be submitted to general vote the question:

"Shall a law be passed that on election days work in factories and machine shops shall not begin before 8 o'clock a. m. and shall not continue for more than eight hours on such days." A penalty for establishing different hours or requiring employees to work more hours on that day is fixed at $100.

Speaker Myers has been re-elected and both he and the President of the Senate, also a Republican, have given great satisfaction to both old parties by the appointments they have made on the various committees. The Democrats have been given increased representation on the most important committees—notably the Ways and Means, Public Service, Metropolitan Affairs, Railroads, Cities, Harbors and Public Lands, and Taxation.

The two Social Democratic members, notwithstanding Carey is now serving his fourth term and MacCartney his third, have been given only their old places on comparatively unimportant committees—Carey on the Committee on Counties, MacCartney on those on Parishes and Religious Societies and on Towns. The idea is to put them where they can do the least harm to capitalist interests, while the liberal distribution of important places to Democrats shows the perfect harmony of the two old parties on fundamental questions.

One of the other members asked Carey why he did not go to the Speaker and ask to be placed on the Committee on Labor. Carey replied: "There is only one thing I ask of the Speaker: that is to give me the floor when I want to express my views. If the Speaker in his wisdom thinks, because of my studies and previous training, I am especially adapted for service on the Committee on Counties, it is his duty to appoint me on that committee. On the other hand, if he thinks my knowledge of labor conditions and the remedies is so limited that I am unfit to be on the Committee on Labor, it is his right to exclude me from that committee. We have no favors to ask from the Speaker, and intend to ask none."

MacCartney's position on the Committee on Towns may prove more important than was expected. The first contest in the House occurred on the Governor's recommendation that the location of street railways be placed in the hands of the State Railroad Commission. The question came on the reference of this recommendation to the Street Railway Committee, which was understood to be favorable to the street railway corporations. MacCartney fought to have the recommendation referred to the Committee on Towns, of which he is a member, claiming that it came properly within its jurisdiction. The contest aroused considerable interest, and on roll call he won. This is not at all satisfactory to the friends of the corporations, and a fight will be made in the Senate to kill the House amendment, and have the matter go to the Street Railway Committee. There is also talk of having a special committee appointed, and all efforts will be made to prevent it going before the committee of which MacCartney is a member.

Carey will probably soon introduce a bill restricting the working hours of milkmen and express drivers to ten a day. The Teamsters' Union of Boston, after many conferences, which threatened to develop into a strike, have reached a compromise with their employers, providing for eleven hours a day. Heretofore they worked twelve hours, and their demand was for ten. Carey's bill will aim to secure the teamsters their original demand.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

WHO IS TO BLAME? WHAT WILL YOU DO?

Last week's tunnel collision, which has resulted, so far, in seventeen deaths, has caused such universal horror, and that horror has been so widely and so emphatically voiced, that we shall not try to add anything to the outcry. Instead, we shall ask you to reason about the matter.

There are two questions: Who is to blame? What will you do—YOU, individually and collectively?

WHO IS TO BLAME? Can any reasoning being suppose that Engineer Wisker is to blame?

Where was Wisker at the time of the accident? Not in his mansion on Fifth Avenue. Being a useful worker, Wisker has no mansion on Fifth Avenue. Not enjoying his honeymoon over at Nice. Being a useful worker, Wisker can't go to Nice.

He was at the post of duty, WHICH WAS THE POST OF DANGER. That answers the question whether Wisker was to blame.

The public, indeed, has made up its mind on that point. Any jury which should find Wisker guilty would deserve to be lynched—or to be sent to Bloomingdale.

Who was to blame? Why the steam and smoke were to blame. The tunnel was to blame. The tunnel is a death-trap.

William H. Newman and Chauncey M. Depew and William K. Vanderbilt and the other officers, directors, and great stockholders of the New York Central KNEW that the tunnel was a death-trap all the time. They HAD POWER to change it. Therefore they are seventeen fold murderers.

Why did they maintain this death-trap? Because they were running the New York Central AS A PRIVATE ENTERPRISE, FOR PROFITS. To substitute a safe and pleasant entrance to the city for that death-trap tunnel would have cost money. That would have reduced dividends. That is why they maintained the death-trap.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?

It will be something if you keep up such a persistent and such a clamorous agitation that the Coroner and the District Attorney and the court and the jury will be compelled to send Depew and Vanderbilt to Sing Sing. That might make other capitalists a little more careful, in some things, for a little while.

That will be something; but it will not be much.

It will be something if you compel the New York Central to abolish that death-trap, completely, at once, and entirely at its own expense.

That will be something; but it will not be much.

For consider, this tunnel is only one out of thousands of death-traps, all maintained wilfully and knowingly by the same capitalist class, and for the same motive—DESIRE FOR PROFITS.

The New York Central murdered seventeen persons, mostly business men, last week. Well, the railroads of this country murdered 2,550 workingmen last year—SEVEN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR—and maimed 40,000 more.

All for the same reason, remember—because the roads are held as private property and run for profit—because it does not pay private owners to run railroads safely.

Then there are the street railway companies and the iron and steel companies and the mining companies and all the others—all slaying their thousands every year—regularly, calmly, in the most businesslike manner—and all for the same reason.

What are you going to do about it?

Are you going to rest content with removing one death-trap, while a thousand others remain—WHILE THE CAUSE OF ALL THE DEATH-TRAPS REMAINS?

Our advice to you is: Think. Think hard. Think together. Keep on thinking till next November—and afterward.

Think for YOURSELVES—not for Vanderbilt. Vanderbilt will think for himself, trust him for that.

If you think and think together and think for yourselves and your own interests, we know what you will do in November.

You will vote for Socialism. You will vote to have the railroads and other things of the sort managed by responsible persons with no motive to industrial murder. You will vote TO HAVE THEM RUN FOR PUBLIC SERVICE, NOT FOR PRIVATE PROFIT.

That is what the Social Democratic Party stands for in this city and state. That is what the Socialist Party stands for all over this country.

Think about it for the next nine months—and then vote.

THE LECTURES AT HAPPY DAYS HALL.

The Sunday afternoon meetings at Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Pl[ace] are well attended and will [doubt]ly prove very beneficial to [those] hear them. Especially are [they] ble to party members who [have] a thorough understanding [of the] tory and doctrines of the mo[vement] that they may make use of past experience in future work.

On the two coming Sundays, Jan. 19 and 26, Comrade Hillquit will take up the history of the movement in this country, under the two heads of "Communistic Experiments in the United States," and "Proletarian Socialism in the United States." No one should miss these two lectures. Be in the hall promptly at 2:30 p. m.

LECTURES IN THE 16TH A. D.

A series of lectures on Socialism will be held in the 16th Assembly District, New York City, at 218-220 East Second street, on every Friday evening.

On Friday evening, Jan. 17, John Spargo will lecture on "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Strangers are cordially invited to attend.

LECTURES IN BROOKLYN.

The following lectures and debates for January have been arranged by the Socialist Propaganda Club, 162 Court street, near City Hall, Brooklyn, N. Y. The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings, which are held every Sunday evening at 8 p. m. Music and open discussion.

Jan. 19—Debate: Capitalist Employer, Mr. Lincoln King vs. Socialist, Mr. F. Schlueter.

Jan. 26—John Spargo—"The Industrial Peace Conference."

Feb. 2—Dr. C. L. Furman, "The Force behind Progress."

Feb. 9—Debate: John S. Crosby—Job Harriman, Single Tax vs. Socialism.

Feb. 16—Jas. N. Wood: "Socialism and the Working Class."

WILSHIRE TO SPEAK IN PHILADELPHIA

H. Gaylord Wilshire will speak at St. George's Hall, Thirteenth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, Wednesday evening, Jan. 22. His subject will be "Let the Nation Own the Trusts."

MUCH BELATED RETURNS.

The Social Democratic vote in Herkimer County, N. Y., last November, which the comrades neglected to report until now, was 18. In 1900 we had but 6.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

VAIL IN BOSTON.

A series of popular lectures on Socialism will be given by Charles H. Vail at the Every Day Church, 397 Shawmut avenue, between Canton and Brookline streets, Boston, Mass., as follows:

Feb. 11—The Economic Evolution.
Feb. 12—The Socialist Movement.
Feb. 13—The Abolition of Poverty and Realization of Plenty.
Feb. 14—The Solution of Modern Social and Industrial Problems.

Doors open at 7:30 p. m. Lecture begins at 8 p. m. Admission, single lecture, 10 cents; full course, 25 cents.

SOUTHERN BOSSES OPPOSE ORGANIZATION OF NEGROES.

A dispatch from Meridian, Miss., dated Jan. 11, says:

"F. Celley of St. Louis, a general organizer for the American Federation of Labor, has been compelled to stop his efforts to organize negro laborers of Meridian into local unions. Celley began last week an attempt to organize whites and negroes into separate unions. When his purpose became known he was waited upon by a prominent railroad man, who handed him a warning to desist. The warning was signed by the mayor and twenty-one prominent business men.

"Celley was told plainly that if he persisted in organizing the negroes into labor unions, he would be compelled to leave town. He accepted the warning, and is now working among the whites only."

If the Southern capitalists adopt such a policy as this, they will simply be "laying up wrath against a day of wrath" for themselves. They think that by forbidding the organization of negro unions they can keep the colored owrkingmen in ignorance and slavish subjection and use them as scabs to break the power of the white laborers' unions. Whether or not they should succeed in this, they can only provoke violence upon the part of the workingmen, black and white, from which they themselves cannot, in the end, fail to suffer.

Organization works always for intelligent and peaceful action and disorganization always for violence and disaster.

—The basis of our political system is the right of the people to make and alter their constitutions of government. —George Washington.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS,

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
200 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

As far as possible, rejected communications will be returned if so desired and stamps are enclosed.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

UNION PRINTED

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

Those readers of The Worker who are receiving it in fulfillment of "Clarion" subscriptions are requested, in renewing or making change of address, to mention the fact that they were on the "Clarion" list. By so doing they will save work in this office and avoid probable delay.

The Vanderbilts EARN their millions, we are told, by the strenuous exercise of their superlative ability in managing railroads. Seventeen graves—that is the product of one day's work—such work as they do. Do you think they [illegible] their millions?

[illegible] involve [illegible] and money; bop Corrigan says men will [illegible] motive is wide the benefit of others. Yet [illegible] provoke by what the majority of men [illegible] date. [illegible] ing now—the toilers working hard all the time for the benefit of the capitalist class.

As shown in our article entitled "The Slaughter of Workingmen" in this week's issue, the workingmen of this country occupy a position less secure and honorable than that of mules. And most of them vote to continue the competitive system which assigns them to this low position, by supporting the Republican and Democratic parties. The workingmen of this country are not asses—but a good many of them act as if they were.

TRYING TO REPRESS THE IRREPRESSIBLE.

The Haverhill "Gazette" takes the Socialist press to task for the attitude it has assumed toward the "industrial peace conference." Referring to The Worker, it says:

"The New York Worker expresses the belief that this conference will not settle the labor question and will not put an end to the war between labor and capital any more than the Hague conference put an end to the war between nations, in which it is undoubtedly right, and it is also right, undoubtedly, in its further declaration that 'the pledges made by Hanna and Schwab on the one side and by Gompers and Mitchell on the other neither will nor can bind their respective parties to industrial peace when the occasion for industrial war arises.' It is undoubtedly true that human nature is at present, and for some time to come will be, in such an imperfect state that men will disagree and quarrel, and no human scheme has as yet been evolved that will prevent this, but The Worker fails to recognize the fact that quarrels may be settled, that disaster resulting may be minimized, that men of both classes may be brought to reason by the method of the New York conference, which aims to bring men closer together, to close the gap which it must be admitted exists, rather than to force them apart and to widen that gap, which is the mission of the Socialists."

We shall not complain of the deliberate unfairness of the editor of the "Gazette" in penning that last phrase. He has seen enough of the Socialist movement in Haverhill and read enough of the Socialist movement elsewhere to know what he says of the mission of the Socialist is false. But we shall not complain of his willful misrepresentation. We cease to be surprised at any exhibition of intellectual dishonesty on the part of papers which support the capitalist system. We must accept it as a matter of course and conclude that the editors of these papers are not free agents in the matter.

We have only to say to the readers of the "Gazette"—plenty of whom read The Worker, too—that the editor of the "Gazette" has entirely missed the point of our remark. In admitting that "human nature is at present in such an imperfect state that men will disagree and quarrel," he assumes that the incessant conflicts between workers and capitalists are of the nature of individual quarrels arising out of the personal imperfections of men in the two classes. If this were true, then his criticism would have some weight.

But it is not at all true. We pointed out that the cause of these conflicts is in the radically conflicting class interests of the wage-workers and the capital-owners. It was not because they were bad men that the steel workers and the machinists struck last summer; it was not because of their "imperfect human nature." And it was not because M. C. Borden was a bad man that he reduced wages 10 per cent. last November; it was not because his human nature was imperfect.

If all the capitalists and all the working people were angelically good, there would still be wage-reductions and demands for shorter hours, strikes and lockouts and boycotts.

If the capitalist is to be a successful capitalist, if he is to play his part well, he must make profits and more profits and yet more profits. If the worker is to improve his condition he must get more wages and yet more wages for the labor-power he supplies. A given amount of labor produces a given amount of wealth; that product is divided between wages and profits; you cannot increase the one share without reducing the other; and there you have your conflict of class interests. In order to increase either share you must reduce the other. And unless angels can make make 2 plus 2 equal 5 or 3, even angels, put in the position of wage-workers and capitalists, could not avoid that antagonism.

The question is not one of human nature; it is a question of social organization. The conflict will continue, not until human nature is perfected, but until society is reorganized on the basis of collective ownership of the collective products of labor which society needs for its collective life.

The "Gazette" talks about possible "conditions where the employer and the employed can meet together and work for common interest." We now call on the "Gazette" to inform us definitely, by plain and concrete illustration of one fundamental point, however small, in which the employer, as employer, and the employees, as employees, have a common interest. When the "Gazette" does that, we shall have a basis for discussing the possibility of the conditions it suggests.

The "Gazette" declares that "the national conciliation and arbitration scheme has generally been received with glad greeting." This would be important, if true; but it is not true. It has been so received by the people who got it up and by the capitalist press. It has not been well received by the rank and file of the trade unions. And the union officials who participated in it must have known that it would not be well received by their constituency, else they would have announced their intention of attending and asked for authority and instruction in the Scranton Convention of the American Federation of Labor, which met the week before the "peace conference." When The Worker and other Socialist papers criticize the scheme as they have they voice what is certainly the opinion of a very large portion of the rank and file of the trade-unions, and what is probably the opinion of the majority.

John Milton and John Hampden, Samuel Adams and John Hancock, Wendell Phillips and John Greenleaf Whittier were all called demagogues in their own times. They were accused of desiring to "widen the gap" between king and commons, between England and America, between North and South, respectively. They were told that "so long as human nature remains imperfect" the king must continue to levy ship-money, England must continue to rule America, negroes must continue to be chattel slaves.

We know now that this was very absurd. The editor of the "Gazette" knows that these men were not to blame for the slaughter at Naseby and Marston Moor, at Trenton and Valley Forge, at Gettysburg and Antietam. He knows that these men did not create the conflict; that they only called attention to the facts that made the conflict inevitable; and that, by so doing, they helped t bring the conflict to a right and happy ending.

We remind our Haverhill contemporary of William Henry Seward's phrase, "the irrepressible conflict." It is useless to try to repress the irrepressible by "peace conferences."

We remind him of Patrick Henry's words: "Gentlemen may cry, 'Peace, peace!' But there is no peace. * * * I repeat it, sir: We must fight. * * *. I know not what others may choose; but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

What a mischievous agitator he was! What a dangerous demagogue! Is it not a pity we have his speech in the Fourth Reader, to corrupt the minds of the youth? What a pity there was no Hanna in those days, to conciliate him and silence him!

Archbishop Corrigan says the only solution of social problems is for us all to practise the Golden Rule. In the same breath he says men WILL NOT work except for their own individual advantage, therefore Socialism is impossible. Maybe the Archbishop can reconcile these contradictory utterances by the exercise of his spiritual authority. Our poor human reason is not equal to the task. To us it seems that he is in a dilemma. If his objection to Socialism is well founded, if individuals will not work for the common good (which includes their own), then he is surely wasting his time when he preaches the Golden Rule; but if it is possible to teach men to love their neighbors as themselves, then it should be far easier to teach them to work together in a state of society where the interest of all would be identical with the interest of each.

The capitalists say they are entitled to their profits on account of the "risks" they assume. Read the article in this paper on "The Slaughter of Workingmen" and consider who really takes the risk—Morgan and Carnegie and Schwab and Rockefeller, or the wage-workers who create the profits. Socialists say those who perform all the labor and bear all the risk should have all the product.

ARE STRIKES BENEFICIAL TO THE WORKERS?

We have been asked to answer the question: Have strikes been more beneficial or detrimental to the wage-workers? We shall answer the question somewhat indirectly, and what we have to say on the subject may be of some interest, not only to the correspondent who asks the question, but to some of our critics, such as the editor of the Haverhill "Gazette," who accuses us of a desire to widen the gap between Labor and Capital."

We shall not speak particularly of the strikes that are successful or of the advances in wages and the reductions of working hours which they have won. To give the utmost advantage in the argument to those who would hold that strikes in general are detrimental to the interests of the workers and should be discouraged, we shall speak chiefly of defensive strikes and of those which are lost.

Instead of answering the question directly, we will ask our correspondent to reflect that workingmen are not free to choose whether or not they shall strike. The capitalist is always on the lookout for a chance to squeeze a little more surplus-value out of his employees—sometimes directly by reducing wages or increasing hours of labor; oftener by indirect methods, such as substituting women for men and children for women, or speeding up the machines; as well as by a thousand petty tricks, stealing a few minutes off the lunch hour, inventing unreasonable rules to get a pretext for levying fines for unavoidable offenses, witholding payment of wages as long as possible for the sake of the interest he gets on it, paying in store-orders, false measuring of piece-work, and a thousand other dirty schemes that only a capitalist could devise. In addition to these direct and material injuries which the capitalist, for the sake of larger profits, is always trying to inflict upon his employees, we must remember the thousand insults and outrages, sometimes deliberate and intentional, sometimes due only to his ignorance of their feelings, which he, directly or through his foremen and lackeys, heaps upon them.

Now if the workers allow one such aggression to go unresisted, they are so much the weaker and their boss so much the stronger when another occasion arises. If they are not to be reduced to absolute slavery they must organize and must be prepared to strike.

Undoubtedly strikes involve great losses and hardships to the workers. Undoubtedly many strikes fail, so far as their immediate object is concerned. Undoubtedly, too, the trade unions often win victories without striking.

But, touching this last point, the unions which win victories without striking are the ones which are not afraid to strike if need be, which are able to strike vigorously when they have to, and which are inspired with such a feeling that they would rather strike and fail than fail without a struggle.

As for the losses and hardships which strikes involve, we must balance against them the losses and hardships which the workers would suffer through submitting without resistance to the will of their bosses. We may trust the mass of the workers to judge for themselves between the two evils. It is a significant fact, known to all who are familiar with the labor movement, that the rank and file are almost always more ready to strike than the union officials, that a large part of the strikes are declared by the rank and file against the protest of their leaders. We trust the judgment of the mass; and it is our business, not to presume to tell them whether or not they shall strike, but when they do so to support them by all means in our power.

Finally, while it is true that many strikes fail to effect their immediate purpose, we hold to the position that no strike is ever really lost. There is a fine verse (we quote from memory, and perhaps not quite accurately), to the effect that

"Freedom's battle, once begun,
"Bequeathed from bleeding sire to son,
"Though baffled oft, is ever won."

At Thermopylae the Spartans fall, to the last man; but Sparta counted Thermopylae a victory. The British planted their colors on Bunker Hill; but historians do not question whether it was wise for the Americans to fight that battle.

Every strike, every boycott, every fight that Labor carries on, whether immediately successful or not, helps to instil revolutionary determination into the workers and to inspire the capitalists with respect for them. Moreover, every temporary failure teaches the workers new lessons, and by experience they learn to turn their defeats into stepping-stones to victory.

Are strikes more beneficial or detrimental to the wage-workers? As well ask whether the battles from Lexington to Yorktown were beneficial to the American revolutionists. After King George's redcoats fired that volley in the Boston streets, it was inevitable that battles would be fought so long as King George claimed any authority over the American people. It is too late now to ask whether we ought to have strikes or not. The labor movement having once begun, we shall continue to have strikes so long as we have private ownership of the means of production, so long as we have a capitalist class and a wage-working class—and neither Hanna and Schwab nor Ireland and Potter nor Gompers and Sargent and Keefe and White can prevent them. We repeat: Our business is not to presume to tell our fellow workingmen whether or not they shall strike, but when they do so to support them by all means in our power.

We have another duty—or, rather, it is a part of this one duty of supporting the working class in all its battles: Our great duty as Socialists is to educate our fellow workingmen to fuller and broader class consciousness, so that they will strike in the voting booth as well as in the shop, boycott scab candidates as well as scab cigars and newspapers, strike at the root of the evil as well as at its special manifestations—so that they will vote, in larger and larger numbers every year, for collective ownership of the means of production which their collective labor has created, for the duty of every man to do useful work and the right of every man to the full product of his labor, for the Co-operative Commonwealth of real Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity.

That is the work of the Socialist Party; and that it is doing its work is proven, not only by the growth of the Socialist vote all over the country, but by the growing aggressiveness of the trade unions and by the growth of socialistic thought and sentiment not yet crystallized into votes—all tending toward the one end, the Emancipation of Labor in the Socialist Republic.

It is really a pity that Cleveland was not appointed as one of the envoys to convey "our" greetings to King Edward at his coronation. However, the choice of J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., as secretary to the special embassy may make up for the absence of the Stuffed Prophet.

THE ISSUE DEFINED.

President Gompers' latest communication to the New York Central Federated Union is interesting, to say the least. In the resolution which he submits as stating his position, and in opposition, therefore to the resolutions of Painters' Union No. 490, either he fails utterly to understand the ground of the objections raised, or else he very cleverly tries to shift the ground of the discussion without seeming to do so.

To read President Gompers' resolution, one would suppose that this was the first instance in which any attempt had been made to settle labor disputes by "peaceful means"—that is, by conference.

This, of course, is not the fact. Every union, before declaring a strike or a boycott, tries, at least, to hold a conference and come to a peaceful settlement. This has been done for years. It is a well established rule. Neither Painters' Union No. 490 nor Cigar Makers' Union No. 90 nor The Worker nor anyone else thinks of objecting to this practise.

The use of peaceful means, when such means are possible, is not the issue at all. Is it possible that President Gompers does not know what the issue is?

The issue, then, is just this: First, the right of trade-union officials to go into conference with capitalists without first consulting the unions; Second, to confer in this manner upon general and permanent relations of the two classes, instead of upon definite and specific questions; Third, to allow the public to think of them as representing the unions of this conference, when they represent only themselves.

These are very vital points. President Gompers' resolution does not touch upon them at all, and therefore does not at all justify his action or that of the "labor leaders" who were with him. And we do not think that the majority of the rank and file will allow their attention to be drawn from these important issues by any nicely worded generalities upon a principle long since settled and established.

If they do allow President Gompers' position to go unchallenged, they, thereby announce to the public that he has a right to act without consulting them at all. And if, in later days, they find it necessary to repudiate some decisions of the Committee of Thirty-six or even to refuse to accept its offers of arbitration, they may expect the public to believe all that the capitalist press will then say about "breach of faith" upon the part of the trade unions.

It is well to have things well understood. If the resolutions of Painters' No. 490 and Cigar Makers' No. 90 are defeated, it will mean that the unions authorize their "leaders" to act without consulting them and admit that the Commitee of Thirty-six is a fairly representative body. If those resolutions are supported, it will mean that the unions insist on their right to instruct their officers and that they give notice that they are not bound by the terms of the "peace conference" and that the labor leaders who participated in it represented only themselves.

There is the issue. Let it be considered carefully and decided wisely.

Parson Hillis says the poor worry less than the rich. That shows how much Hillis and his like know about the condition of the working people. Let him try to support a family, educate his children and fit them for the duties and opportunities of life, on an income of nine or ten dollars a week, earned by hard and unremitting labor, and without even the certainty, from week to week, how long his job will hold out. Let him try it for a few years and then he will be more competent to speak on the labor question.

Chauncey M. Depew, United States Senator and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the New York Central, said a year ago that his election to the Senate was only an incident in his career as a railway man. Taking him at his word, we must hold, vice versa, that the tunnel horror is an incident in his career as a Republican politician. It is a damning incident, and the Republican party should be made to suffer for it.

Prices of iron and steel are being advanced, but the wages of iron and steel workers, it is announced, will not be raised this year. A good reason why these workmen should vote the Socialist ticket next fall—vote to have the iron and steel mills owned by the people and run for public service instead of private profit.

The Attorney-General of Texas keeps on prosecuting trusts and excluding them from the state, as he has been doing for we don't know how many years past. The trusts keep on taking new names and doing business in the state under his very nose, as they have done since the fight began. And so the merry farce goes on. It all goes to show the folly of the Democratic anti-trust position. The only way to put an end to the evils of the trust is to change it into a public trust. And in order to serve its benefits to the working people who create the wealth it controls, the nationalization must be accomplished through the action of a working class party. That is what the Socialist Party is in the field for.

Among the first bills introduced in the New York Legislature was one by Mr. Wagner of Brooklyn, providing that such buildings as have been erected in Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond under the supervision of the Department of Buildings and in pursuance of duty authorized permits from that department prior to the passage of the Tenement House Act shall be exempt from all the provisions of the act, except the provisions relating to fire escapes. This bill, if passed, will simply legalize all the innumerable violations of the former law and make it impossible for the city administration to compel the demolition or remodeling of old and dangerous buildings erected in violation of the law—even if the present administration were desirous of taking such action on behalf of the tenants, whic his not likely.

POLITICIAN AND STATESMAN.

"He's quite a prominent politician here, is he not?" inquired the visiting Briton.

"Oh, no; he's a statesman," replied the native.

"Well, what's the difference?"

"A statesman, my dear sir, is one who is in politics because he has money. A politician is one, who has money because he is in politics."—Philadelphia Press.

NO CAPITULATION.

If we must coax the working class to vote the Socialist ticket, they can be coaxed to vote other tickets; and any political organization of the working class on this basis will not, nor cannot be, revolutionary; but can and will be emotional. Such organization does not contain the essence of self-reliance necessary for the emancipation of the working class from its rulers, and will go to pieces as soon as its effervescent enthusiasm meets the disapproval of the ruling class.—Wage Worker.

——Whosoever is content to scoff at the new gospel—Socialism—is a fool. Whosoever treacherously stifles it is a criminal.—Emile Zola.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

Perhaps the best thing in the January "Comrade" is "A Song of Hate" by F. Reese, of which we may quote the opening and closing lines:

Great love, great hate, of each an equal part—
These are the riches of the human heart.
A God can view the struggle from the skies,
Smile and forgive; man shall not compromise!
There rests a curse upon the present state;
Against this curse I raise the song of hate.

* * *

I sing of hate while human rights are sold
And all commandments sacrificed for gold.
I sing of hate—a hate that shall forsooth
Upbuild the road for Justice and for truth.

Socialists are much given to protesting that hate forms no part of their motive. It may indeed be possible for some "to love the sinner and to hate the sin"—to glow with brotherly love for the capitalists, while burning with righteous indignation against capitalism. But we are not all capable of that angelic fineness of discrimination, and there is a certain danger that if we spend too much effort in disclaiming hatred for the oppressors we may even unconsciously grow all too tolerant of the oppression. For us, at least, our calm philosophy so far defers to our sentiment as that we heartily welcome this "Song of Hate."

Leonard D. Abbott writes with characteristic enthusiasm of Edwin Markham and recounts an interview with him, whom he describes, in Joseph R. Buchanan's phrase, as "the Laureate of Labor." "Why He Did It" is a sketch by M. Winchevsky (or should it be Winchevski as here for the first time we see it printed?) which will give deep offense to the "propaganda of deed" Anarchists, who are commonly very sensitive to the suggestion that "there is such a thing as an 'agent provocateur.'" Portraits and brief sketches of two soldiers of the revolution who have recently gone to their rest, Bruno Schoenlank and Karl Buerkli, add to the permanent value of the magazine, as also a short article on "Rebel's Fight against 'Hunger Duties,'" written by William Edlin, illustrated with a portrait drawing by Jan Verh.

Among other features we may note the poems, "Noblesse Oblige," by Charlotte Perkins Gilman; "The Disinherited," by John Kearnes White; "The Guides Beyond," by Charles Goodrich Whiting; "The Socialists to the Trade Unionists," by Frederick Irons Bamford; and "The Common People," by Ernest Crosby; a bright little epigram by J. E. Nash with a cartoon by G. H. Lockwood; and a "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Mauser," overheard in the Philippines by Frank Stuhlman.

Considering the literary excellence of the "Comrade," it is to be wished that the proofreading and other mechanical details were attended to with a little more care. An error of spelling or punctuation which may be overlooked in a newspaper jars unpleasantly when found in a literary magazine.

The "International Socialist Review" for January opens with a short article by Prof. Oscar L. Triggs on "The Socialization of Art." Peter E. Burrowes contributes a "Philosophic conversation between Quip Ego and John Sanity." Helen Archibald Clarke writes on "The Vote an Implement of Progress;" Marcus Hitch on "Economic and Political Determinism." A. M. Simons on "Chicago Arts and Crafts Exhibition," and "Marxist"—"Maxim Gorki, the Portrayer of Unrest." Interesting articles on the European movement are by Alessandro Schiavi on "A Congress of Socialist Peasants," and by Louis Bertrand on "The Co-operative Movement in Belgium. Further notice will be given next week.

THE WILLING WAGE-SLAVE.

The only "levelling process" contemplated by Socialists is one that will raise the working class to a higher plane of civilization by removing the fear of want and placing each in possession of the entire product of his skill and industry. That there are those who "object most seriously" is not strange nor contradictory in the light of history, for among slaves and serfs were those who opposed emancipation, saying, "Who will give us food and shelter? Who will provide us with work to do when we have no owners?" So among wage workers there are those who wonder how they can subsist if no one can take from them three-fourths of the wealth they produce.—Saginaw Exponent.

NO IDENTITY OF INTERESTS.

We believe that we express the sentiments of a strong, militant, growing minority of the trade union movement when we declare that there is no compromise, no identity of interests, between those who live on wages and those who thrive on profits. The labor problem will only be solved when the Rockefellers and Schwabs, the Hannas and Clevelands, get off Labor's back—when the profitmongering system of capitalism is abolished and Socialism is instituted.—Cleveland Citizen.

THE SCAB.

A "scab" has been defined as being to his trade what a traitor is to his country, and though both may be useful in troublous times, they are detested by all when peace returns; so when help is needed the scab is the last to contribute assistance and the first to grasp a benefit he never labored to procure. He cares only for himself, he sees not beyond the extent of a day, and for a momentary approbation he would betray friends, family, and country; in short, he is a traitor on a small scale, who first sells the journeyman, and is himself afterwards sold in his turn by his employer, until at last he is despised by both and deserted by all. He is an enemy to himself, to the present age, and to all posterity.—Ex.

——The Socialist is accused of appealing to the poor man's envy of the rich; but the opponents of Socialism will tell you that the incentive to wealth (envy of rich man) is necessary to keep the world moving.—Missouri Socialist.

THE DISHONESTY OF CAPITALISTS.

Illustrated by the Practise of Dodging Taxes — Honor Among Thieves, but None Among Profit-Grinders.

The defenders of capitalism are never tired of enjoining on the working people the three virtues of industry, honesty, and sobriety, as the sure means to grow rich and respected. But preaching is quite a different thing from practising.

Of the industry of the capitalists much might be said, but that is not the subject this time. Of their sobriety and simplicity of life, too, much might be said—including some mention of the costly revels at Newport. But the Newport dispatch we have to note at present strikingly illustrates the greatest of the virtues of the capitalists—their impeccable honesty. Here is a "special" from the New York "Times:"

"TO AVOID INHERITANCE TAX."

"NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 9.—Each year there is an increasing number of Summer residents, who become citizens of Newport, and share in the advantages of the lower tax rate and prepare to escape inconveniences of the inheritance tax, which New York and other states put upon their wealthy citizens. Already this year there is a considerable number who in one way or other have notified the local authorities of their desire to be enrolled as citizens of Newport, or have applied to the courts for a declaration judicially affirming their legal residence in Rhode Island.

"Among the latter who have thus applied for 'naturalization' papers at the next term of the Supreme Court are Hamilton Fish Webster, William C. Schermerhorn, and Samuel E. Huntington. Others who have simply placed their names on the registry books and asked the assessors to tax them upon personal property, and thus given notice of their intention to become voters in Newport before the next election, are: Charles M. Oelrichs, Winthrop Chanler, Robert Winthrop Chanler, Richard J. A. Greene, and John R. Livermore."

About 99 per cent. of the work of the legislative, judicial, executive, and administrative officers of this state consists in protecting the property and advancing the business interests of the capitalist class. And yet they have no more sentiment of honor (even according to their own narrow conception of that much abused word) than to snatch at every opportunity to escape paying their respective shares of the expense involved in carrying on the state government. Great is honesty, as the eminent citzen practises it!

INDIVIDUAL CAPITALIST AND CAPITALIST CLASS.

The beauty of the situation is that in the demand for protection and service by the state the capitalists are united as a class; but in the race to escape the assessor, each one applies the competitive principle of "Devil take the hindmost." Whenever one capitalist dodges his taxes, the burden of his brother taxpayers is proportionately increased. And so all the organs of "respectable society" unite in condemning the schemes that each member of "respectable society" is doing his level best to carry out for his individual benefit. But for fear of violating the "sacred" individual rights of dishonesty upon which capitalism rests, the capitalist class in its collective capacity as a political power does not dare to take the necessary steps to stop these crooked methods by which each individual capitalist tries to skin the others.

A Socialist administration would not be afraid of overturning "vested rights." It would have no motive for respecting the hoary traditions that safeguard the workings of competitive greed. A Socialist Board of Taxes and Assessment would find means to levy taxes on capitalist property to the full extent of the city's needs; and if the highly respectable factitious "citizens of Rhode Island" who have offices on Wall Street did not like it, they would be free to go to Newport, Halifax, or elsewhere and leave their capital and their profits behind.

A Socialist administration could do that, but no "reform" or "good government" administration will dare to.

TWO KINDS OF ANARCHISM.

As against the anarchist idea, capitalism is really powerless. When its expression takes on the form of murder, capitalism can do nothing but reply in kind. "Exterminate the capitalists," howls Anarchist Johann Most in the columns of "Die Freiheit." "Exterminate the Anarchists," yells the entire crowd of capitalist politicians in reply. "Withdraw from present society; take no part in it," says the "philosophical" anarchist, a la Tolstoi. "It is not possible to exterminate the anarchists," says the "philosophical capitalist; "withdraw them from society—send them to some island." "Let us refuse military service and the payment of taxes," says the passive anarchist. "You fellows want to destroy society," replies the active capitalist tax-dodger and the exploiter who does his patriotism by proxy. And in this manner charge and countercharge are passed backwards and forwards, neither side suspecting that the individualistic philosophy which is common alike to both renders the entire controversy a stand off so far as anarchism is concerned.—Workers' Call.

WHAT SOCIALISTS WANT.

Every human being to be well housed, clothed, fed, and educated.

The adoption of a social and industrial system that will put an end to profit, interest, rent, and all forms of usury.

Land, water, machinery, all the means of production and distribution, and all the available forces of nature, to be owned and operated for the benefit of the whole people.

The gradual elimination, and finally the abolition, of all useless and unproductive toil.

Every person of suitable age, and physical and mental ability, must work or starve. "He that will not work shall not eat."

No child labor, except in the form of healthful, well-directed manual training.

Every one to receive the full value of his or her labor.—Ex.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

Investors' Review, London, Eng.

We wonder what is behind the sudden determination of the capitalist class in the United States to inaugurate a conciliation committee at which capital and labor shall be represented. A sudden affection for the working classes appears to have developed amongst the employers of labor, and they are hailing their men as brothers whose interests are really one with their own. Do they fear another strike on a still larger scale than that which bothered the steel industry in the early part of the year, or is there really something philanthropic behind the thing? Have they got tired of their millions? Failing to find channels of investment, or even suitable objects of charity—Mr. John D. Rockefeller, we see, has given $1,250,000 to the University of Chicago, and Mr. Andrew Carnegie has been thrusting some of his millions on a thankless Washington Government, which apparently refuses to accept them—are they going to take their workmen into partnership? Or is the "annual conference" our yearly compact between master and man merely one more effort to keep the worker from thinking of his lot? We have an open mind.

London Spectator.

Nations have become suspicious of each other and they snarl with fierce jealousies and fiercer greediness and distrusts. Each is as angry when it sees another gain anything as a dog is when he sees a bone in another dog's mouth. Each thinks itself injured when another is enriched, and, what is worst of all, each believes in its heart that every other is plotting astutely and carefully to deprive all rivals of that which they possess. The new hunger for new comforts, the new knowledge of the external world and the riches it contains, unite with new freedom and rapidity of intercommunication to produce hatred of rivals at least as strong as the ancient hatred of races or religions. Great nations are ready to fight to the death for transmarine acquisitions, for privileges of trading, and, above all, for profitable monopolies. Governments are forced to interfere, usually with menace, to secure concessions for their subjects.

In short, while governments are tranquil, peoples hate each other, to a point at which the maintenance of peace becomes daily a more difficult performance. The spirit infects all countries alike, even Great Britain, which is usually so free in her inner pride from any impulse of envy or apprehension, and if it cannot be allayed there will in the end be war, and war in Europe or with America, which is now fully included in the circles of jealousy. This would mean a disappointment for half a century of all the hopes with which it begins and a waste of new resources upon competitive and skillful killing and diversion of all powers of thought from conquests of nature to conquests over each other. Everything, in fact, is propitious except the nature of man, which in its new freedom from the pressure of suffering is allowing the freest play to some of his meanest instincts. So far as safety and progress are concerned, the world gained little by the exchange of royal ambition as a driving force in politics for popular jealousy and greed.

San Diego Chieftain.

As the "Constitution follows the flag" it is rather tardy in reaching Puerto Rico, as will be seen in a recent dispatch published in this issue. Santiago Iglesias, an American citizen and a member of the American Federation of Labor, went to Puerto Rico to establish a branch organization and was arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for over three years on the charge of conspiring to raise the price of labor. Just think of it, all this under the folds of the American flag. That was not all. The Republicans who opposed his plans fired several shots into the building of the Federation, and the police found it convenient not to find these anarchists. As an apology for such political crimes, the dispatch states that the Spanish law is still in force on the island. Workingmen, can you not see in this a forerunner of what is in store for organized labor in this country at the hands of the dominant party now in power? If government officials at Puerto Rico wink at such vicious conduct and let it pass without an effort to protect American laborers at Puerto Rico how long will it be before labor organizations in this country will be regarded as conspiracies. Do you not see that the power of government is in the hands of a capitalist class, who are using that power for exploiting labor? And can you not see that your only hope is in a political organization whose aim is to wrest the powers of government from the capitalist class and place it back once more into the hands of the people? This is the one important aim of the Socialist Party of America. Will you help us or will you blindly continue the power of your economic masters?

THE UNSUCCESSFUL.

It was not through our idleness we failed,
Nor lack of many a high and holy aim;
We were no cowards, tho' our spirits quailed
Just at the crucial moment, and no blame
Compassed us round; and Hope, too long bewitched,
Seems but a dream, with Affection and Fame
Where others pluck a bough of blossoms bright
Or golden fruit, we gather for delight
A bitter apple or a faded rose.
Or, oftener, thorns that hurt the flesh. Who knows
In what strange way we have offended Fate,
That she should ever thus our plans frustrate?
Ah, herein lies the final bitterness—
We miss the meaning of our nearness.
—Geraldine Meyrick, in Alliance.

THE WHIM

is a little monthly magazine which is likely to appeal to unconventional people. It is not the organ of any one class, but is published in the interest of men and women who are in search of Light and Truth. It is handsomely printed in two colors on deckle edge paper, and costs five cents per copy, or 50 cents by the year. It is edited by Ernest Crosby and Benedict Prieth. Send ten cents for a three months trial subscription. THE WHIM, P. O. Box 288, Newark, N. J.

When ordering mention THE WORKER.

PARTY NOTES.

THE YONKERS COMRADES KNOW how to work. Their protest against militarism in the schools, reported last week, is an example. When the Board of Education took its outrageous action, the comrades lost no time in making their public protest and enlisting the trade unions in the fight. Then they arranged a public meeting, to be addressed by the Valls, so that, in connection with this particular matter, the principles of Socialism as a whole might be explained. Finally, they got the matter properly reported in The Worker without loss of time, and ordered 300 copies to be given out at the Vall meeting. Systematic and energetic work like this should be done by every local organization of the party. The capitalists, and their tools are constantly giving us opportunities for exposing the capitalist system, and we should never let these slip by.

MISS JOHANNA DAHME, THE young Socialist speaker, delivered an eloquent address at the Yorkville Club House, 206 East Eighty-sixth street, last Sunday afternoon, preceding the lecture by Courtenay Lemon. This Sunday, Jan. 19, at 2:30 p. m., Albert Vogel will speak.

MISS DAHME SPOKE VERY EFfectively last Sunday evening in Stapleton, delivering the first of a series of lectures arranged by the Staten Island comrades, in place of Comrade Lemon, as originally announced. These lectures are given at the Labor Lyceum, Roff street, near Richmond Road, Stapleton, Staten Island, on alternate Sunday evenings. The next lecture will be given on Sunday evening, January 26.

COMRADE SPELMAN WILL speak at the Socialist Educational League, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street, Sunday evening, Jan. 19, on "The Republic of Plato." The 22d A. D. meets at the same place Friday evening, for the election of officers.

COMRADE MAYES WILL SPEAK at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue, Sunday, Jan. 19, 8 p. m., his subject being "The Coming Crisis."

THE 4TH A. D. WILL HENCEforth meet every Friday at Pacific Hall, E Broadway near Clinton street. A lecture course will be arranged. On Friday evening, Jan. 31, an entertainment and tea party will be held in the Great Central Palace Hall; admission, 15 cents. Comrades Berlin, Halpern, and Josephson were elected at the last meeting as delegates to the Voice of Labor Conference.

THE 6TH AND 10TH A. D. HAS secured the co-operation of the 14th and the 19th for an entertainment, the principal feature of which will probably be Frederick Krafft's play, "Now and Then." The joint committee on arrangements meets Thursday, Jan. 16, at the Labor Lyceum. At the last meeting of the 6th and 10th one new member was accepted and two others proposed. W. J. F. Hannemann was elected Recording Secretary and M. Tanner as Financial Secretary; Hannemann, B. Korn, and H. Cohn delegates to The Worker Conference. It was decided to take 25 copies of The Worker weekly, to be placed on the newsstands, and Comrades Brosch, Hannemann, Cohn, Rosenfield, and Miss Fox were chosen to take charge of them.

IN WEST HOBOKEN, AT THE Socialist Party club rooms, 511-513 Hackensack Plank Road, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 21, at 8 p. m., Morris Hillquit will lecture on "The Development of Socialism in the United States."

COMRADE BUTSCHER, AFTER A month of very successful work for the party and the party press in Westchester County, has started up the state, and is still meeting with encouragement in his work. At Newburg he organized a new local with nine charter members, including, he says, some "hustlers." They intend to see to it that a good Social Democratic vote is cast in Newburg next fall. Fred. Gruber, of 7 Clark street, has been chosen as agent for The Worker and "Vorwärts." A list of more than thirty new subscribers in Newburg speaks well for the prospects of the local.

"COMRADE VAIL SPOKE HERE in Labor Hall last Tuesday night," writes Henry Kaste of Peekskill, "to a fair sized audience. He was in his brightest mood and made a class-conscious argument that kept his listeners closely attentive to the last word. Some literature was sold and a hat which stood upturned at the door to receive contributions from such as felt like giving something in support of the cause, was well patronized as the audience passed out after the close of the meeting. We propose to give at least one lecture each month during the remainder of the winter." Good! Keep it up—and push the literature.

HAVERHILL COMRADES SHOULD "hustle" to assure the largest possible attendance at Comrade Vail's four lectures on Feb. 3 to 6. The lectures will be instructive; whether to the oldest Socialist or to the newest recruit, as well as to those who are as yet strangers to the movement.

C. H. MORRILL OF HAVERHILL, who worked most energetically and disinterestedly for over two years to keep up the "Clarion" for, as it formerly was, the Haverhill "Social Democrat", will, now that The Worker has taken up the "Clarion" list, act as our agent in that city. The boys in Haverhill know Charley Morrill and will doubtless render him any assistance in their power.

H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE SPEAKS in Hartford, Conn., on Sunday, Jan. 19; in Philadelphia on Wednesday, Jan. 22; in Washington, D. C., on Thursday; in Baltimore on Friday, under arrangements made by National Secretary Greenbaum.

MINNESOTA WILL HOLD STATE convention at Minneapolis on February 22.

LOCAL CHARTERS WERE ISsued last week to Minneapolis, Minn.; and Burlington, Vt. New Hampshire received a state charter.

GEO. D. HERRON, WHO IS NOW in Switzerland, writes that he will return to this country about April 1.

JOHN C. CHASE WILL LECTURE in Ohio from Feb. 10 to 16 inclusive.

BEN TILLETT WILL SPEAK AT Milwaukee on January 23; Chicago, January 23 and 24; St. Louis, January 25.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE meet at St. Louis at 10 a. m., Friday, Jan. 24, at the Lindell Hotel. It is the intention to hold the meeting in one of the special committee rooms, which has been placed at the disposal of the National Committee by the hotel management. From present indications it appears likely that at least twenty National Committeemen will be present. Important matters will come up for consideration, which are likely to keep the committee in regular session for a week.

ST. LOUIS WILL HAVE A GREAT workingmen's demonstration in the Music Hall, Exposition Building, on Saturday evening, Jan. 25, in conjunction with the meeting of the National Committee. The speakers will be Ben Tillett, fraternal delegate of the British Trade Union Congress to the American Federation of Labor; Job Harriman, of the New York Labor Secretariat; Max Hayes, editor of the Cleveland "Citizen;" and Walter Thomas Mills, of the International School of Social Economy.

IN SIOUX CITY, IOWA, THE movement is attracting considerable attention in the local newspapers. A recent lecture by Walter Thomas Mills received an extensive report.

AUGUST MAUSBACH, OF 361 Hendrick street, Detroit, is the agent of The Worker for that city.

COURTENAY LEMON WILL SPEAK ON Socialism at the Workingwomen's Educational and Mutual Aid Society, 98 Forsyth Street, New York City, on Friday eve., January 17.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 309 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. H. Cornelius, Secretary, 478 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at Aurora Hall, 135 Union street, New Haven.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first and third Fridays evenings of the month at 79 Dearborn street.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 821 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont street, Somerville; Assistant and Financial Secretary, Albert G. Clifford, Mount Auburn Station, Cambridge, Mass.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 124 N. Baum street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Joe E. Vol Putnam, Room D, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. W. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Monday at 8 p. m., at above place.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eidsness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. W. Quick, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Wilson, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 857, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

MASSACHUSETTS.

FOR PARTY ORGANIZATION.

To the Members of the State Committee and the Party at Large.

Each delegate from a senatorial district to the State Committee is expected to, as far as possible, work for the organization of town committees in his districts. There is no provision in the election laws for any one except caucus elected committees, to call out or for any nomination of political candidates. The Secretary of the Commonwealth is of the opinion that where there is no town or city committee, the State Committee can demand caucus accommodations. Let all Socialists attend to the organization of their committees this month. The State Committee stands ready to assist every effort to extend our political organization.

S. E. PUTNEY, Secretary.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 10.

The State Committee from senatorial districts of the Democratic Social Party met at Harmony Hall, Boston, on Saturday, Jan. 4, 7 p. m., for organization for the year 1902. Twenty-one of the forty members were present.

Meeting called to order by S. E. Putney, secretary for 1901. James F. Carey of Haverhill was chosen chairman pro tem and David Goldstein secretary. Charles W. White, Fred F. Schmidt, and Wilson B. Killingbeck were appointed a committee on credentials. The committee reported twenty-one members present. Report accepted, and the meeting proceed to organization for the year. The following permanent officers were elected: Chairman, James F. Carey of Haverhill; Vice-Chairman, Frederick F. Schmidt of Boston; Secretary, Squire E. Putney of Somerville; Treasurer, Moses J. Konikow of Boston; committee on rules was elected, consisting of Comrades Carey, Goldstein, and Putney. Voted that the committee on rules report to the Executive Committee.

An executive committee for detail work was elected, consisting of the officers and Francis P. Finnegan of Everett; J. Harry Page of Lynn; Otto Westermark of Cambridge; C. E. Lowell of Whitman; F. O. MacCartney of Rockland.

The following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, We, the delegates of the Democratic Social Party State Committee, in meeting assembled, at Harmony Hall, Boston, Jan. 4, 1902, hereby petition the Great and General Court of Massachusetts for a change of name from Democratic Social to Socialist Party."

The following citizens were ascertained to have been elected members of the State Committee from the forty senatorial districts of the state, and the names are duly filed at the State House, in the Secretary's Office.

Cape District—A. H. Dennett of Middleborough.

First Bristol—Paul E. Voght, Taunton.

Second Bristol—Frank Voght, Fall River.

Third Bristol—Wm. Ohnesarge, New Bedford.

First Plymouth—C. E. Lowell, Whitman.

Second Plymouth—Edw. M. Henry, Brockton.

First Norfolk—Harry G. Marden, Quincy.

Second Norfolk—W. F. Harding, Avon.

Second Suffolk—M. J. Konikow, Boston.

Third Suffolk—J. W. Sherman, Boston.

Fourth Suffolk—W. R. Dyer, Boston.

Fifth Suffolk—David Goldstein, Boston.

Sixth Suffolk—Jos. P. Foley, Boston.

Seventh Suffolk—W. R. Cullom, Boston.

Eighth Suffolk—Fred S. Schmidt, Boston.

Ninth Suffolk—Chas. W. White, Boston.

First Essex—J. Harry Page, Lynn.

Second Essex—Jesse Foster, Beverly.

Third Essex—C. W. Johnson, Newburyport.

Fourth Essex—James F. Carey, Haverhill.

Fifth Essex—J. A. Wilkinson, Lawrence.

First Middlesex—Chas. A. Crowley, Hollister.

Second Middlesex—Otto Westermark, Cambridge.

Third Middlesex—Squire E. Putney, Somerville.

Fourth Middlesex—F. P. Finnegan, Everett.

Fifth Middlesex—W. P. Porter, Somerville.

Sixth Middlesex—George Mahoney, Pepperell.

Seventh Middlesex—D. F. Blessington, Lowell.

Middlesex and Essex—Fredl E. Weed, Lynn.

First Worcester—Louis F. Weiss, Worcester.

Second Worcester—W. B. Killingbeck, Clinton.

Third Worcester—Henry L. Rice, Fitchburg.

Fourth Worcester—Daniel G. Hitchcock, Warren.

Fifth Worcester—W. E. Dixon, Mendan.

Berkshire—Theo. Koehler, Adams.

Berkshire and Hampshire—R. Kelsie McKeen, Pending.

Franklin and Hampshire—C. C. Hitchcock, Ware.

First Hampden—Wm. Butscher, Springfield.

Second Hampden—A. J. Leonard, Chicopee.

First Suffolk—Joseph Spero, Boston.

Attest: SQUIRE E. PUTNEY, Secretary.

BOSTON.

At the meeting of the Central Committee, held at 724 Washington street, on Jan. 7, a communication from the State Propaganda Committee was read and accepted. Committee on Vail's lectures reported tickets well distributed; also, a standing notice be inserted in The Worker and other Socialist papers if possible. Comrades Konikow, Muth, and Acton were elected a committee on by-laws, to report at the next meeting. The secretary instructed to order stamps, cards, and national constitutions from the State Secretary.

Comrade Mailly, who was present, promised his co-operation in the work of building up the Boston organization.

The next meeting of the Central Committee will be on Tuesday evening, Jan. 21, at 724 Washington street.

LOUIS MARCUS, Secretary.

NEW JERSEY.

PASSAIC COUNTY.

Owing to the lack of attendance, due chiefly to the stormy weather on the evening of Jan. 6, the semi-annual meeting of Local Passaic County, at Helvetia Hall, 51 Van Houten street, Paterson, was postponed till Saturday afternoon, Jan. 18, at 4 p. m., sharp.

The financial report of the County Committee will be received and the election of an organizer for the ensuing six months and such other business as may properly come before it, will be transacted.

It is the duty of all comrades having the welfare of the party at heart, to attend this meeting and assist in the work that must be done, to advance the cause of Socialism. Let no comrade fail to attend this meeting.

By order of County Committee.

WM. GLANZ, Organizer.

68 Lyon street, Paterson, N. J.

NEW YORK.

STATE COMMITTEE.

The meeting of the State Committee on Jan. 7 was called to order by H. L. Slobodin. The following comrades were present: Frederick Schlueter, L. D. Abbott, Herman Reich, Assell, Ludwig Jablinowsky, H. L. Slobodin, and I. Phillips.

Communications were read from Troy, Rochester, Syracuse, Peekskill, Mount Vernon, Tarrytown, Dobbs Ferry, Watertown, New Rochelle, Yonkers, Cold Spring, Port Chester, Ticonderoga, Elmira Heights, from Comrade Sisskind, National Secretary; Newman of Schenectady; O. Sisskind of Rome; and from the organizer of Local Kings County.

Local Kings County desired information with regard to representation on the State Committee. The Secretary authorized to reply that according to the constitution that local is entitled to one representative on the State Committee.

Local Troy informs the State Committee that they have nominated Job Harriman for National Committeeman, and also for legislative work that is the plan of action.

Comrade Sisskind of Rome, writes for information how to organize a local. Secretary was instructed to reply that within a few weeks William Butscher will be in that town, who will give the necessary aid and information.

Local Peekskill nominates Job Harriman for National Committeeman.

The following comrades write that they decline the nomination for National Committeeman: Brown, Slobodin, Hanford, Lemon, Reichenthal.

Job Harriman accepts, and Comrade Stevenson of Rochester did not reply. The secretary was directed to wire Comrade Stevenson. If he accepts, both names to go to a general vote. If he declines, then Harriman remains the only candidate in the field. The vote must be in the hands of the Secretary, Abbott, not later than Jan. 18.

National Secretary writes with regard to establishing a uniform system of bookkeeping in our party. He also asks for a comprehensive report of our work in the past year. Secretary was directed to answer. On motion the Treasurer was ordered to send the National Secretary $50 on account.

A committee was elected to outline instructions to the National Committeeman and to report at the next meeting.

The automobile committee report progress. Comrade Butscher, who is employed by the State Committee in connection with the Socialist Co-operative Publishing Association, to solicit subscribers for the party press and organize locals where possible, gave an interesting oral report of his work in this line within the last five weeks. He has had great success in getting subscriptions. He also reported that Comrade Simon of Peekskill is forming a local in Tarrytown.

Comrade Abbott is instructed to inform the comrades in Mount Vernon that the State Committee will supply them with a speaker for every Saturday evening.

It was decided to engage a comrade in conjunction with the S. C. P. A. for the western part of the state. It was also decided to publish a penny library in conjunction with the S. C. P. A.

Comrade Moses of Buffalo writes that Tillett meeting was a success and the local comrades are active.

Local Cold Spring forwarded dues and bought membership cards.

The Auditing Committee was authorized to audit the books.

It was also decided to open an agitation fund, as we expect to do organization and educational work in this state all the year round.

H. REICH,
Recording Secretary.

9TH, 10TH, 14TH, AND 16TH A. D.

The delegates to the joint entertainment arrangement committee from the 9th and 10th, 14th, and 16th A. Ds. are hereby called to attend a meeting on Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, Jan. 16, at the Labor Lyceum.

WM. J. F. HANNEMANN,
Secretary 6th and 10th A. D.

—ORGANIZE, that you may have power; EDUCATE, that you may see and understand the evil; and AGITATE, without ceasing, for its removal.—T. D. A. Cockerell.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

Afterthoughts on the New Jersey Convention.

Editor The Worker.

The New Jersey Convention showed that the comrades knew what they wanted, and they went to work and took it regardless of what individual members thought, but laid out its work according to the principles of Socialism and protected itself from the many by-ways of reform with which the Socialist Party is sometimes fronted. For instance, when the convention pronounced itself through the constitution for organization it meant organization and not for any other class but the proletariat.

The clearness of the convention in electing its committees, putting comrades upon them that were known to have these principles more at heart than their opinions of any one or separate class, but that which the Socialist Party stands for—the working class, and the manner in which the questions were handled and the clearness of the comrades in their debate on the Questions at issue, were worthy of note; also the determination of staying till their work was finished. I really believe they would have stayed until now if it had been necessary to do so to secure the things needed to place the party where it belongs.

All attempts to turn the convention from its right path were of no use.

The most that was really wanted in New Jersey was a perfect organization, such as only suited for the Socialist Party—one that will know what its members are doing and one that will see that its members will not go astray as they have in the past; one whose finance will be in the hands of the party if it is two cents or $2,000, it matters not; one in which the officers will be under the instructions of the comrades that elected them, and see that they fulfil their duties, and that and nothing more. To see that as long as they hold offices they will not do just as they please, even if they are American born citizens, but will carry out the work of their office, and the voice of the comrades of the rank and file.

To Essex County the work done has been a step to keep the party from taking the stand as a middle of the road party, and not as the Socialist Party.

And again the election of the member of the N. E. C. from New Jersey showed clearness and determination to be in line with the Socialist Party of the world. I doubt that a more suitable member could be found from the rank and file of the workers—one who knows the minds of the party and will guard the interest of the Socialist Party with that extreme jealousy known as a Socialist only, and ward off any attempt to sidetrack the Socialist Party.

Now, comrades, it is up to you to carry out the work you laid out at the convention. Let every comrade take to himself the responsibility, and attend the meetings of his branch and help to do that which is necessary to make the Socialist Party one of importance. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel. There can very easily be a party of one thousand members in Essex County in one year if you will only say the word, and do your duty as you should. Let the branch meetings show your determination to do the work necessary to carry out the principles which we hold dear—the principles of Socialism. Let us show the world that we mean business from now on. We have the capitalist class on the retreat and it is our duty to keep them on the run. Let the watch word be: "Forward!"

EDW. C. WIND.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 7, 1902.

More About the New Jersey Convention.

Editor The Worker.

I am just in receipt of your issue of Jan. 12, and, after carefully reading, desire to express my disappointment at the report so called of the New Jersey State Convention. It seems to me that more than half a column could have been spared to an affair that only occurs once a year, particularly when your paper claims to be an organ of this state. Things that would have been of interest to the comrades unable to attend the convention find no place in the report. If for reasons, financial or otherwise, your office was unable to send a man capable of writing a full report, it seems to me the writing of a letter to some of the comrades would have given you any aid needed.

I also wish to make a few remarks regarding the "Impressions of the Convention" by Comrade Krafft, and trust the fact that I am not like Comrade Krafft a member of The Worker Conference will not debar my remarks from appearing in your paper, for, remember, as the words of Comrade Krafft are likely to give comrades living outside of the state a false idea of the condition of this state and do injustice to some of the most active workers we have in the party.

Comrade Krafft, to begin with, refers to the change shortly before the convention of the basis of representation in the seventhes. The reason for the change being suggested and urged by myself and other comrades was the statement made on the floor of a certain branch that the basis already adopted was to be used by a party would be forced to keep out of the convention men who had been hard workers for the party, both as party officials and as privates in the ranks, and because we believed that any comrade who is a good enough Socialist to be a member of a branch is a good enough Socialist to be a member of the convention if he wished to, and choose to sacrifice the time and money to go there.

I call the attention of the comrade to the fact that hardly a comrade of those urging the change in the basis had any proxies, and those who had only a few. Personally I declined proxies in two branches outside of Newark and could have had more if I had desired to gun for them, as did some of the comrades who are talking loudest.

Another thing that seems to worry Comrade Krafft is that every branch represented in the convention to some of us as "Expert Krafft" is as bad and dangerous as an "Expert Ghoel," or any other self-constituted expert as to who is a Socialist, and who is not. I will venture the assertion that there was not a delegate in the convention, but who as far as the principles of the party are concerned knew as much as Comrade Krafft. What they do not know will be better learned by frank discussion than by gagging them or kicking them out of the party, as some of the comrades seem to desire. Comrade Krafft calmly decides, for instance, that the long debate over the matter of a permanent state chairman was "unnecessary" because he happens to think so—but neglects to say that is the plan of the organization we had had for at least a year and which they have in some other states without the cause as yet having been buried as a result.

He says further that "one new recruit even advocated the demand for direct primaries, declaring that party organizations should be abolished," and in so saying comes dangerously near an untruth—for the comrade did NOT declare for the abolishment of party organizations, but instead offered as plank for incorporation among the "immediate demands" declaring for direct primaries, and I would like Comrade Krafft to show me any logic in favor of ANY of the so-called "immediate demands" that would not justify the insertion of a demand for direct primaries or any other makeshift that might be offered, and that local, if he should find out where he stands on the question of "immediate demands," and then be consistent. And incidentally let me suggest it will pay for all to find out what the "new members" are saying and what they want before we begin to jump on them. I dare say Karl Marx was a "new member," a "half-baked Socialist" and all the rest of the things we have mentioned and those by our comrades who happen, by accident of living longer, or having the guidance sooner of some open-eyed friend to be "in the movement twenty years."

I also take exception to his remarks regarding Christian Socialism; not because I have any use for such a thing if it exists, but because big after remark shows what he is referring to, and in spite of his work within the last five weeks. He has had great success in getting subscriptions. He also reported that Comrade Simon of Peekskill is forming a local in Tarrytown.

Comrade Abbott is instructed to inform the comrades in Mount Vernon that the State Committee will supply them with a speaker for every Saturday evening.

It was decided to engage a comrade in conjunction with the S. C. P. A. for the western part of the state. It was also decided to publish a penny library in conjunction with the S. C. P. A.

Comrade Moses of Buffalo writes that Tillett meeting was a success and the local comrades are active.

Local Cold Spring forwarded dues and bought membership cards.

The Auditing Committee was authorized to audit the books.

It was also decided to open an agitation fund, as we expect to do organization and educational work in this state all the year round.

H. REICH,
Recording Secretary.

9TH, 10TH, 14TH, AND 16TH A. D.

The delegates to the joint entertainment arrangement committee from the 9th and 10th, 14th, and 16th A. Ds. are hereby called to attend a meeting on Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, Jan. 16, at the Labor Lyceum.

WM. J. F. HANNEMANN,
Secretary 6th and 10th A. D.

—ORGANIZE, that you may have power; EDUCATE, that you may see and understand the evil; and AGITATE, without ceasing, for its removal.—T. D. A. Cockerell.

tion of that term as one of those most zealous in urging it at the Unity Convention. As there used by those who stood for it, it meant giving to a state and members of the party as great latitude as possible consistent with an effective organization. Those urging it feared the arising in the new party the same autocratic methods pursued in the S. L. P. by DeLeon and his followers. It has never been a question as to having an effective organization, but as to HOW we could get it without giving to the state or national officers the power to expel members of the party whom they do not happen to like, on every little pretext. This thing happened in the S. L. P. and there is danger of it happening in our movement. No member of the party should be suspended or expelled except for voting as old party ticket, or taking part in middle class or capitalist party schemes. The question at discussion in our convention was as to the right of a branch to take new members until two-thirds of the county committee vote in favor of the applicant—in other words, the giving of a few comrades in office power to keep themselves in by carefully keeping out those who might dethrone them. As far as the constitution is concerned (and which goes to the members for adoption) I consider it unsocialistic in many respects, but whether it be adopted or defeated will in not keep any good Socialist from staying in the party until the errors are righted, or the abuse results as did abuses in the S. L. P.

I want to say one word in conclusion regarding the remark by Comrade Krafft that Comrade Ufert was elected over the writer for National Committeeman on the issue of autonomy. Such was not the case. If it in any way figured in the issue it was because two or three bitter spirited members of the party in Essex spread in the minds of some of the members in Hudson County who do not understand the English language very well, the false idea (disproved both by the loyal and dangerous service given this campaign, and my official report to the convention) that the writer was opposed to any form of organization. Our German comrades are slow to see and understand—but they usually understand in time—and we can bide the time they do. What elected Comrade Ufert was his home county, aided by a few from Essex. Practically all the other counties represented voted for the writer—as did part of Hudson and Essex. When two or three of the comrades were taking of the street this position I very honestly said I thought I was able to do good service there, having been for two years secretary of one national organization, and for nine years making a special study of methods of work, and that I thought our party membership is as yet very lacking, but which experience will in time overcome. The comrade elected (Ufert) is one of our best workers, is a good speaker, and thoroughly grounded in the Socialist principles—so that I have no regrets at his election instead of mine. This is too big a movement for the personal likes and dislikes of any number of individual members to be allowed to stand in the road of going forward.

We have had our convention; let us now vote down or up the new constitution as we deem wise, elect a good state committee, good county committees, and so to work—no matter how we feel over the result.

GEO. H. GOEBEL.

Newark, N. J.

As to Buttons, Again.

Editor The Worker.

I have read with interest and amusement in The Worker of Dec. 22 Comrade Martin's opinions regarding the proper and only kind of party button for Socialists to wear. If you will kindly allow me a space in the columns of The Worker, I would like to express my sentiments as to Socialist buttons, in the past and present. Personally, I have never had any objections to any Socialist buttons or emblems that have come under my observation. The Arm and Hammer emblem was a much loved one, until the disreputable and hateful tactics of the De Leonites covered it with dishonor.

I doubt very much if any button of device or emblem can be conceived but that objections could and would be raised to. We Socialists are, critics by nature. Let us take a brief review.

When the device of the clasped hands encircling the globe was conceived, with the inscription: "Workingmen of all countries, Unite," some of our comrades objected on the ground that it was suggestive of Welcome Soap and the great unwashed proletariat. Next in order was the Comrade Grady S. T. P. button, which was declared by many comrades to be too complicated and suggestive of some secret society. Next appeared the Arm and Torch emblem, which raised objections from some comrades that it was an incendiary device and smacked of anarchy. And last on the list appears the missing Sun button, to which Comrade Martin appears to have taken a violent dislike.

Now I have loved all the above mentioned buttons in their order, and at the present time I am wearing three buttons of different devices on my garments, and I have room for more. As I view it, a Socialist button is a Socialist button, and they are all good—while you can pay your money and take your choice. To me the Rising Sun of the Co-operative Commonwealth is as glorious as the Arm and Torch of Enlightenment, and vice versa. Comrades, let not our serenity be ruffled by such trifles.

ALFRED M. SWEETLAND.

Bristol, Conn., Dec. 29.

Letter Box

GUNDER S. KLEPSTAD, Hillsboro, N. D.—Men are learning to think and to think clearly. Perhaps they are not learning fast as we wish; but still, the cause is advancing. Keep at it and we shall make something better than a lunatic asylum of the old world of ours. It is steady and patient work that counts.

D. STONE, City.—Papers are sent as requested.

S. BENNETT, City.—Our space is so limited and there are so many more important matters calling for notice that we cannot well take up a minor matter of detail, such as the proposed transfer of Blackwell's Island to the Navy Department. You will do more good by working for Socialism, which will do away with the need both for navies and for prisons, than by spending your efforts on such comparatively small results of capitalism as this proposed job.

JOHN CONWAY, City.—We have made you the victim of our plagiaristic editorial pen, as you will see. We presume you will not object.

A COMRADE, Hoboken, N. J.—In our opinion it is ridiculous for a branch of the Socialist Party or a trade union to thank the Hoboken "Observer" or any other capitalist paper for publishing any certain news in regard to the labor movement. As the newspapers' business to publish news. If they wilfully suppress or unreasonably neglect important news of the labor movement we have a right to censure them; but we have no reason to thank them for doing what is properly in the line of their business. It is our part to compel them to pay attention to us, but to ask them to do so.

C. DE BLUMENTHAL, Alva, Okla.—See editorial columns. Papers requested are sent. The price of this paper is 50 cents a year.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Delegates Reichenthal and Lane presided at last Saturday's session of the General Committee of Local New York. Twelve new members were admitted to the Local and the following delegates to the General Committee were seated: First, 3d, and 5th A. Ds., L. D. Mayes; 12th, Wm. Edlin, T. Flanzer, and M. C. Levine; 14th, Geo. Lindner and Thos. Barnett; 16th, S. Panzer; 18th and 20th, F. Paulitsch and N. Wood; 24th and 35th, Br. 2, A. Halpern and H. von Duffi.

In response to a letter from Turnverein Vorwärts, making a complaint against Organizer Gerber in connection with a contribution of $6 alleged not to have been properly acknowledged, which matter the General Committee has already investigated, a committee was elected to explain it to the Turnverein.

Nominations were made for officers as follows: Organizer, Gerber and Butscher; Recording Secretary, Martin; Treasurer, E. Ramm, Reichenthal, Bowerman, Elges, Panzer, Simon, Mayes; Controller, Dressler, R. Meyer, Obrist, Ortland; Executive Committee, Reichenthal, Hillquit, Slobodin, Levine, Edlin, Lemon, C. Lane, Elges, R. Bock, Obrist, Josephson, Sprenger; Grievance Committee, Halpern, Levin, Berlin, Martin, Korp, Lee, Mayes, Boudin; Auditors, Slobodin, Berlin, Von Duffi, and Hartl; Credentials Committee, Lane, Bowerman, Panzer, Mayes, Halpern, Edlin; Auditors for State Committee, Kilgus, Engel, Hillquit, Edlin, Martin, Miss Fox; Entertainment Committee, Miss Dubman, Mrs. Simon, A. Loewenthal, Passburg, Kilgus, Miss Fox, Obrist, Hannemann; Sergeant-at-arms, Bernhard, Lindner, Von Duffi.

The C. E. C. reporting that the City Attorney had given notice of an appeal from Judge Scott's decision exempting the S. D. P. from the operation of the Primary Law, Morris Hillquit was designated as the party's attorney to conduct the case.

It was unanimously resolved to hold a mass meeting at Cooper Union in regard to the tunnel murder, on Thursday, Jan. 16.

The Entertainment Committee reported good progress in arrangements for the festival on Feb. 22 at Grand Central Palace, for the benefit of the local and the party press, and called on all comrades to push the sale of tickets.

A resolution from the 7th A. D., Brooklyn, published in The Worker last week, in regard to agitation for old-age pensions, was fully discussed. It being apparent that great differences of opinion prevailed, the C. E. C. was instructed to arrange a series of lectures on the subject.

The following assembly districts have not yet given in their membership reports: Second and 8th, 4th, 6th and 10th, 11th, 26th, 34th and 35th.

CAMPAIGN FUND.

To the Holders of Subscription Lists for the Campaign Fund of the Social Democratic Party of the City of New York:

Comrades and friends who still have subscription lists in their possession are requested to send the lists in at once, as the Campaign Committee would like to wind up its business as soon as possible. As there is some deficiency the comrades would confer a favor on the committee by promptly returning lists and money collected, as it may help the committee to meet all its liabilities. Those who have not collected any money on their lists are also requested to turn in their lists, as this will greatly aid the auditing committee in auditing the accounts. Therefore, come rush in your lists, lists with dimes, quarters, and dollars are preferred, but we want all, even the empty ones. Send lists and money to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street.

Previously acknowledged	$2,209.10
List 305, Chas. Busse	2.50
List 494, H. Wolter	.75
List 447, John Ebert, 50; H. L. von Duffe, 50	1.00
Total	$2,213.35

WORKMEN'S
Furniture Fire Insurance
Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.
Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.
OFFICE: 64 East Fourth street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 3 o'clock p. m.
BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Elmira, Albany, Oneida, N. Y.
Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J.
Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass.
New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.
Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Lazern, Altoona, Scranton, Pa.
Chicago, Ill.
Cleveland, O.
San Francisco, Cal.
For addresses of the Branch bookkeepers, see "Vorwaerts." 239

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

READ "THE ADVANCE."
A 15-PAGE SOCIALIST PAPER.
Uncompromising advocate of class conscious political action in the interests of the working class as against those of the capitalist class. Send for sample copy. Subscription price, per year, $1.00. Six months, 50 cents. Three months, 25 cents. 134 Murphy Building, 1236 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

SOCIALIST PARTY LITERATURE.
Issued by National Committee, will be sent prepaid at prices specified. National Platform, Constitution and Resolutions on Negro and Trade Union questions, adopted in National Convention at Indianapolis, July 31, 1901.

	Price per 100.	Price per 1000.
National Platform	.10	.65
National Constitution	.15	1.00
Negro Resolution	.10	.65
Trade Union Resolution	.10	.65

Address orders for above to
LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary,
427 Emilie Building, St. Louis, Mo.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2579 Franklin

H. B. SALISBURY
Counselor at Law. 302
60 UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY
Real Estate, Mortgage Loans, Long Island Investments.

BERNARD STOLLMACK,
Dealer in Gent's and Ladies' Suits, Cloaks, Etc.
WEEKLY AND MONTHLY PAYMENTS.
149 E. Broadway, N. Y. Open Evenings.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
"CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor
TORONTO, CANADA.
Five Postals for $1.25; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.
For Sale on all New York News-stands.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
97 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
60 Second Ave., Between Third & Fourth Sts.

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

PATRONIZE
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH-ROOM.
373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts., N.Y.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

LONGSHOREMEN OF HOBOKEN.

Censure Their International President.

Repudiate His Action as Member of "Peace Conference," and Its Committee of Thirty-six and Say He Neglects Needs of the Union to Hobnob with Hanna.

International Longshoremen's Union No. 271 of Hoboken, N. J., has given expression to its views on the "peace conference," in which International President Daniel J. Keefe participated, accepting a place on its Committee of Thirty-six, in the following resolutions:

"Whereas, It has become known to the members of Local 271 of the International Longshoremen's Union that President Daniel J. Keefe of the I. L. A., during his recent stay in the city of New York, on the seventeenth and eighteenth of December, 1901, instead of using that time in organizing and affiliating the longshoremen of New York—which is of the utmost importance, not only to the members of this local, but also to the Association at large, because New York is the first and foremost port on the American continent—wasted his time, together with other so-called labor leaders, in useless consultation with notorious enemies of Labor and in forming a 'Capital and Labor Peace Committee;' and

"Considering that we, as class-conscious workingmen, have come to the conclusion that said 'peace committee' is detrimental to the interests of the workingmen in general and to the members of this Association in particular, and threatens to become the greatest danger to organized Labor this country has seen for years; and

"Whereas, Further, our president, Daniel J. Keefe, has violated the pledge of this association in dealing with such notorious enemies of Labor as Mark Hanna, Schwab, and others; be it

KEEFE IS CENSURED.

"Resolved, That we emphatically condemn the actions of our president, Daniel J. Keefe, and demand of him that he immediately sever his connections with said 'peace committee,' otherwise further steps should be taken in the matter; and

"Whereas, Furthermore, President Daniel J. Keefe has, so far as we know, acted solely on his individual responsibility and without any authorization whatsoever from our Association, and is now a member of the said 'peace committee,' of which a notorious enemy of Labor, Mark Hanna, is the chairman; therefore be it further

"Resolved, That we, the members of Local 271 of the I. L. A., do not feel ourselves bound, individually or collectively, by any findings, resolutions or recommendations of said 'peace committee,' and that we do not recognize said committee as having any authority whatsoever in anything concerning Labor; and INTERNATIONAL AFFILIATION.

"Whereas, Lastly, to our knowledge, no definite steps have been taken towards affiliation with the International Federation of Transport Workers, as was ordered by the last convention of the I. L. A. at Toledo, O., and as we know, through a letter from Secretary Chalmers of the I. T. of T. W., that they are ready and willing and glad to have us affiliate with them, therefore be it further

"Resolved, That we find President Daniel J. Keefe guilty of neglecting his duties as President of the I. L. A., and we call upon the Executive Board to referendum the necessary steps for affiliation [illegible] involve the International Federation of [illegible] and money. Workers as soon as possible [illegible] work now [illegible] hard all the time.

EX-PORT NEGLECTED.

[illegible] capitalist class [illegible] bers of Local 271, which has [illegible] on over the docks of the great [illegible] German lines at Hoboken, complain bitterly of the neglect of the port of New York by their International President. The longshoremen of New York are organized in an independent union, but it does not include more than one-tenth of the longshoremen of the city. It would be an easy matter, it is claimed, to bring this independent local into the I. L. A. and to get the majority of the longshoremen into the organization.

This, together with the carrying out of the instructions of the Toledo convention for affiliation with the International Federation of Transport Workers, which covers the whole European coast, would put the longshoremen in a position to offer some resistance to the aggressions of the great and growing international steamship trust which J. P. Morgan is building up.

Mr. Keefe, they say, is kept too busy by his friendship with Mark Hanna, either to attend to the needs of the craft in the greatest port of the Western continent or to carry out the plain instruction given him by the last convention of the Association. And his participation in the "peace conference" by no means increases their confidence in him.

It becomes more and more evident that the rank and file of the working class are awakening to a realization of their class interests and that the wiles of the "friends of labor" cannot mislead them much longer.

VAIL'S TOUR IN NEW YORK.

Charles H. Vail is making an agitation tour through the State of New York under the direction of the State Committee. During the past two weeks he has spoken at Peekskill, New Rochelle, Mount Vernon, Yonkers, Peart River, Cold Springs, Troy, and Schuylerville.

His dates for the immediate future are as follows:

Friday, Jan. 17, Ticonderoga.
Saturday, Fort Edward.
Sunday, Schenectady.
Monday, Johnstown.
Tuesday, Gloversville.
Wednesday, Frankfort.
Thursday, Utica.
Friday, Jan. 24, Rome.

Comrades in the various places where Comrade Vail is to speak should do all in their power to make his meetings successful.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

NOT ALTOGETHER SATISFACTORY.

Gompers Does Not Like Action of C. F. U. and C. F. U. Does Not Follow Gompers' Suggestion.

When President Gompers sent his statement in regard to the "peace conference" to the New York Central Federated Union, as reported last week, he evidently did not think it possible that the C. F. U. would fail to accept it as final. Instead, that body, after discussion, referred the statement, together with the Painters' resolutions against the "peace conference" to the affiliated unions for a general vote. President Gompers seems not to be pleased with this action, for at last Sunday's meeting a letter was read from him, explaining that his former statement was not in proper shape for such submission to the rank and file, and asking that it be withdrawn and the following resolution substituted:

"Resolved, That inasmuch as at the recent conference between representatives of organized labor and employers, the employers recognized the justice of organized labor's claims to be consulted and conferred with relative to the wages, hours, and other conditions under which labor shall be performed and that a conference for that purpose shall be held and agreements reached.

"Resolved, That organized labor insists upon its rights, and in this instance welcomes a method to their attainment by peaceful means; further,

"Resolved, That we recognize in the recent conference recognition of labor's rights, particularly in organized effort, and that the same is a step in the direction of industrial progress and is therefore deserving of encouragement."

The resolution of Cigar Makers' Union No. 90, printed elsewhere in this paper was also received. No action was taken on either communication and the matter remains in the hands of the affiliated unions.

A committee consisting of Delegates Tyrell, Connelly, and Donnelly, was elected, to visit the District Attorney and try to get the case of Engineer Jacob Horr against Contractor Antonio Pucci re-opened. Because Horr asked for wages that were due him, Pucci assaulted him brutally, destroying the sight of one eye and otherwise injuring him. The jury found Pucci guilty of assault in the second degree. Judge Cowing, before passing sentence, called Horr up and told him that several influential persons had interested themselves on Pucci's behalf, and advised him not to insist on having the brutal contractor sentenced, but to take $50, which Pucci would give him, and drop the case. Horr indignantly refused this, and Cowing then let Pucci off without any punishment, under a suspended sentence.

Sheriff O'Brien was given the floor to ask the C. F. U. to start a fight on behalf of the poor debtors who are imprisoned in Ludlow Street Jail at the instance of the installment Shylocks. He said that the victims of the installment men were principally Italians and Jews, who could not read or write English. They were in jail for debts as low in some cases as $1. The Law and Legislation Committee was directed to take up the matter, and will have a conference with Sheriff O'Brien, who will post them as to the details of the abuse. In a great many cases the costs and fees and other legal expenses reach twice the amount of the debt, and the debtor is ignorant of the way in which the expenses run up.

Delegate Robinson introduced a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, for the erection of a monument to the late John Swinton. August Waldinger, Ernest Bohm, and H. Robinson were chosen as a committee for the purpose.

On motion of Delegate Barry of the Actors' Protective Union a resolution was adopted protesting against a bill introduced by Assemblyman Ahern of Troy creating a board of examiners to inspect all plays, sketches, or vaudeville performances, and to license such as were considered proper.

A letter to Mayor Low by Electrical Workers' Union No. 3, which it was proposed to send to the Mayor, was endorsed. It stated that the union, through its lawyers, made several unsuccessful attempts to get Mayor Van Wyck to act in complaints of violations of the law by the Department of Lighting and Supplies. The lawyers finally advised the union before the last campaign that a change of city government alone would bring justice in the matter. "We worked hard in the bringing about of this change," the letter concluded, "and now respectfully ask your honor to give us an opportunity to present our case for your consideration."

The city administration was also requested to enforce the law closing barber shops on Sunday.

Eugene A. Johnson of Musical Union No. 41 was elected President; Jos. Wm. Dooley of the Franklin Pressmen, Vice-President; and James P. Archibald of the Paper Hangers, Secretary.

EAST SIDE WAITERS.

At the quarterly meeting of the East Side Waiters' Union No. 3 the following officers were elected: Secretary, A. Bernsch; Treasurer, K. Wagner; Business Agent, H. Kleinman; Delegates to the United Hebrew Trades, J. Zucker, Kleinman, and M. Baumeister; Executive Committee, S. Weiss, J. Färber, M. Rosenfeld, L. Fuchs, Zucker, J. Bürger, and Fleissig; Auditing Committee, Färber, Fleissig, and Weiss. Six new members were admitted. The admission fee was raised from $1 to $2. Regular meetings will be held every Friday, at 7 p. m., at 145 Suffolk street. The office of the union is at 308 E. Houston street.

ASK FOR THE JEWELLERS' LABEL.

The Jewellers' Union has adopted the double acorn union label, which will be stamped on jewelry made by union help. The jewelry workers are trying to build up their organization with encouraging prospects, and anyone employed in this line and not already connected with a local should join at once. All union men should help make a demand for their label.

—An effective play for Socialist amateurs, "Now and Then," a play in two acts by Frederick Krafft. Price, 10 cents; 5 copies, 75 cents; 50 copies, $3.00. Sent postpaid by Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

THE SOCIALISTS ARE UNSEATED.

But the Attempt to Discredit Them in the Essex County Trades Council Fails Utterly.

The delegates of the Street Railway Employees' Union, Neben, Billings, and Rubinow, were at last deprived of their seats in the Essex County, N. J., Trades Council at last Friday's meeting. This object, for which the anti-Socialist leaders have been striving for a long time, was not accomplished, as they had hoped, in a way that would discredit the Socialist delegates, and the victory of the conservative element may not prove a lasting one.

The investigating committee, which was appointed at the instance of the anti-Socialists, made its final report last Friday. The report, in which all the nine members of the committee agreed, fully cleared President Neben of the charges which had been brought against him, recommended that the Trades Council should not interfere in the street railway men's organization, and suggested that International President Mahon should keep his agreements made with Neben and the officers of the local union. This report was accepted by a vote of 31 to 12.

It was then shown, however, that the regular meeting of the union, which should have elected officers this month for the new term, had not been held on account of the intimidation practised by the company. Instead of applying the usual rule, that officers hold over till their successors are elected, provided the organization is still in existence (as it is admitted the street railway men's union is), and allowing time for another meeting to be held, the anti-Socialists succeeded in getting the Council to declare their seats vacant at once.

The men who have carried on the fight against these delegates on account of their Socialist principles, and who loudly insist on the rule of "No politics in the union," are, in a number of cases, active Democratic politicians, and this is taken to explain their conduct. Several of them were on the so-called "Committee of Fifty" in the last campaign to work for Seymour, the trolley trust's candidate for Governor. The chairman of last Friday's session, Abramovitz, is a member of the Democratic County Committee.

Freeman was a Democratic candidate for Assembly last fall and Neben, on the Socialist ticket, challenged him to debate; but he refused to appear. He has lately been withdrawn from the Council by his union, the Buffers' and Polishers'.

Neben held the floor long enough to express his opinion that the only reason for the attack on the Socialist delegates was the fear of the Democratic politicians in the Council that their influence would be destroyed. He told how he, with Delegates McIntosh and Coffe, while sitting in a saloon after a previous meeting of the Council, had heard Delegates Gottlob, Hilfers, McHugh, Taylor, and Meade talking things over, and the keynote of their conversation was in the words of one of them: "What will Colonel Price" (the Croker of Newark) "think of this? We can't do anything for that party next year."

The question for the Essex County unionists is: Shall they have uncompromising labor politics in the unions, or shall they continue to have their union leaders in capitalist politics? The Socialists are very confident how the final decision will be made, for the workingmen are thinking for themselves, these days—and Socialist propaganda goes right on.

MAILLY AT WORK IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Comrade Porter writes from Boston: "It will prove interesting and encouraging to comrades everywhere to know that Comrade Mailly has taken up the work of organization in Massachusetts with a zeal and intelligence that promises well for the movement. The work has grown to such proportions that it is absolutely necessary for at least one individual to give his entire time to the work of organizing. If the best results are to be expected. Comrade Mailly certainly appears to be the right man in the right place." The Massachusetts comrades have certainly a good man in their service. Let them now feel their full responsibility to the movement and lend him all the assistance that lies in their power, and we shall undoubtedly see a great advance in the strength of the party in Massachusetts.

WATCHCASE ENGRAVERS STRIKE.

The American Watch Case Company and its engravers have had a falling out, and the latter are on strike in defense of their right to organize. "After a conference between representatives of the union and of the company," says Secretary Byrne, "everything seemed to be satisfactory, and we were requested to report for duty. But we were astounded on reporting for work when told that neither our union nor any committee from it would be recognized by the company.

"Such an attitude of antagonism had to be firmly met, and the members of our organization refused to accept work on the conditions proposed.

"We have determined not to re-enter the employ of the American Watch Case Company until it agrees to recognize the Watch Case Engravers' International Association.

Browne & Sharpe Tool Company, of Providence, R. I.; Davis Sewing Machine Company; Computing Scale Company, of Dayton, O.; O'Neil & Company, Sixth avenue, New York City, are all boycotted. All products of the American Tobacco Company, and Geo. W. Childs, Cremo, Robt. Burns, Gen. Arthur, and Tom Moore cigars.

International Association of Machinists, District 15, granted credentials to the committee of The Worker Conference to visit affiliated organizations. Local 313 voted to have 25 copies sent to their meeting room each week for a year, and will work on individual subscriptions. Local 320 appointed the secretary a committee to secure individual subscriptions among members. A majority of those present subscribed at once.

IN ROCHESTER.

Frank A. Sieverman Lectures on "Crime and Criminals."

Frank A. Sieverman of Rochester, N. Y., on Sunday, Jan. 5, addressed the Labor Lyceum on "Crime and Criminals." His speech was in the nature of a reply to Golden Rule Jones, Mayor of Toledo, O., who spoke before the Lyceum on date of Dec. 22, 1901.

He said in part as follows:

"In my remarks to-day I expect to lay myself open to the charge of one-sidedness and it will be said that I am not broad and liberal-minded enough. I plead guilty to that charge now. I want to discuss this question from the standpoint of the workingman, not from that of the humanitarian or the philanthropist. The sentiments of these humanitarians or philanthropists are of no value to us. Neither am I going to indulge in any hostile attacks upon Mayor Jones. I recognize in him a large-hearted altruist.

"My chief objection is not to what Mr. Jones had to say, but to what he omitted to say. He confined his remarks to those criminals who transgress the statute laws and he is doing what he can to alleviate the wrongs from which they suffer. They are these he had in mind when he spoke, but their crimes and such criminals are not of supreme interest to us. They have our sympathy, but they are the victims of circumstances and vicious surroundings; we do not see in modern criminals enemies of society, but victims of our present society.

"We see in society men more deeply steeped in crime than those behind prison walls, and who are they? They are the employing and propertied class. What is crime? Crime, I understand, is an act that reflects some injury on some part of the human family and those who commit that crime are the true criminals.

"The lawyers and legislators are the mouthpieces of the possessing class and it is for this reason that the criminals of the country recognized as such, are those who have committed crimes against property, such as forgery, swindling, theft, etc.

"If you will study carefully, you will find that that which is made criminal by the state is that which is an attack on the material possessions and the lives of the possessing class.

"We are not concerned with this sort of criminal, he will not harm us. We need have no fear that he is going to break into our safes and rob us of our money and diamonds. If this were an address before the St. Paul's Guild or the Brick Church Men's Club, or the Chamber of Commerce, it might be of interest to discuss them, but the wage workers are exempt from this kind of criminal; the workers have been thoroughly expropriated by the other class of criminals before mentioned. The criminals with which we are to concern ourselves to-day are protected by law and by the police. They are the great employers of labor, the capitalists of the country, and I could tell you of crimes of these that would put the offenses of the ordinary criminal in the shade.

"You could throw a stone at any group of capitalists and you couldn't help hitting a criminal every time.

"To raise a note is not the greatest crime which a man can commit. Judas, when he kissed the cheek of Christ, committed as foul a crime as can be conceived of, judging from all ethical standpoints, yet he went unpunished. John Brown, who is now by common consent called a great man, committed a crime according to the government's way of thinking, yet was he a criminal? Eugene V. Debs spent six months in jail—because of this, was he a criminal?"

The speaker here told about a "philanthropist," prominently connected with the new Mechanics Institute, who gave his blacksmith $7 per week. He related other incidents of crime against the laboring classes, all of which he denounced in the bitterest terms.

"It is lack of employment which drives men to theft; and suicide can be directly traced in most cases to the demoralizing influence which lack of employment exercises over men. When crime happens, don't look for the criminal in the man who committed the deed, but rather hold that man responsible who refuses him work, or who, if he does give him work, grinds him in the dust by starvation wages.

"To a Socialist all is evil that goes to perpetuate present social conditions, and he is a criminal who, recognizing the injustice of modern conditions, does not give his efforts to change them. Virtue is in that whichever is done to relieve this condition."

The speaker here scored the Rochester "Labor Journal" editor for saying that Socialism has many good points, but he is "against equal distribution of wealth." Just think of it, here is an editor of a labor journal who is supposed to teach the workingmen and then makes such an erroneous statement of Socialism. He then said that the so-called "labor leaders" are criminals because many of them do not enlist their efforts in a movement which has for its object the complete emancipation of the wage-slaves.

"We have come to the point where wages have been reduced just as far as they can be to sustain life. Some firms are raising the wages of their workers, because they find that the latter can produce more for them if they are better fed. This is throwing more fodder to the ox so that he may work to greater advantage for his owner."

The speaker asserted that such men as Grover Cleveland, Mark Hanna, Bishop Potter, Richard Olney, Sam Gompers, etc., are trying to pose as the friends of labor, and taking their cue, say that there is now peace at last between capital and labor. He characterized their language as a false statement of the condition of things, and asserted further that "it is contrary to all nature for any such man as Grover Cleveland with his pockets stuffed with bonds whose dividends are created by labor, to be the friend or arbiter of labor's interests, a rôle which he plays at present. As long as men have interests, they will follow them wherever they lead. When a gang, such as this, proposes to meet in Wall Street and fix the price of labor without consulting the laboring class, they are worse than criminals. Just think of it, Hanna can sit down in his parlor and pick up the tape reeling off the ticker and read: United States Steel stock, so much; Brooklyn Rapid Transit, so much; St. Paul, so much; hogs, so much; labor, so much."

Concluding, the speaker called the attention of his audience to the facts as related by Philip Jackson, who had recently returned from a study of the economic conditions in England. Jackson, he said, told us last Sunday in this room how the British workmen were such abject slaves that they had no thought of ever thinking for themselves and throwing off the yoke of bondage. "They leave their masters do all the thinking for them, because these masters give them charity. They have lost their entire manhood; they are utter dependents. They know that when they are old they will have a place for them provided in a charitable institution; when they are out of employment they will get a crust from 'charity;' when they are sick they will get a place in a charitable institution; so what care they for all their labor product? They are contented with the crumbs."

"This brings us down to Jones' theories. We are opposed to the policy laid down by such men as Jones because they relegate to themselves all power of thought. Jones manufactures a sucker rod which is patented, and therefore he has a monopoly and is able to pay his men nine or ten hours' pay for eight hours' work. His suggestions are unprofitable for Socialists to follow; in that they make one man dependent upon the philanthropy of another; we do not care to go through life the dependents of philanthropists and the creatures of their bounty."

The speaker urged all his hearers to be independent of all such influence as was presented in the case of Mayor Jones, and to fight their battles at the ballot box on strictly class-conscious lines, voting for the Socialist candidates who represent none but the workers of the world. (Applause.)

The remaining lectures to be presented at the Labor Lyceum in Rochester during the coming two months are as follows:

Jan. 19—"The Gospel of the Kingdom," John M. Dana.

Jan. 26—"The Crisis and the Dawn," Rev. Chas. F. Lund of the Co-operative Association of Lewiston, Me.

Feb. 2—"The Relation of the Liquor Problem to the Labor Problem," Prof. Walter Rauschenbusch of Rochester University.

Feb. 9—(Subject not yet announced). Franklin Wentworth of Chicago.

Feb. 16—"Partizanship in Municipal Government," Geo. P. Decker.

Feb. 23—(Subject not yet announced). Judge A. E. Sutherland.

TRYING TO ESCAPE THE INEVITABLE.

Small Business Men of Jersey City Struggling Against Natural Results of the Competitive System They Support.

The business men of Jersey City, who, of course, will swear that competition is the LIFE of trade, are amazed to find that competition is their DEATH. The immense advantages offered by the colossal department stores of New York are attracting thousands of purchasers to the metropolis and the wagons of these mighty emporiums deposit their wares under the very noses of the Jersey City storekeepers, whose incomes are growing less and less, while the line of empty stores with "To let" signs tells the story more ably than this article can. "Something must be done," cry these blind worshippers of the competitive system, who fail to see that the middle class is doomed and that its members will be hurled into the proletariat.

A meeting of business men and citizen consumers was called to devise ways and means to sweep back the tide of their impending destruction. Public sympathy and local patriotism had been appealed to in vain, as even the business men themselves were found guilty of supplying their household needs by purchases made outside of Jersey City. "Here's a state of things," sings the executioner in "Mikado."

One citizen suggests better trolley facilities. Good, bravo, excellent! More trolley cars and better traveling accommodations will keep the people at home, will prevent them from purchasing at the store offering the most for the least money.

Another Solon advocated combination of business men in the matter of buying direct from the manufacturer, "so as to save the middlemen's profits." There you are, Mr. Business Man. To starve out your fellowman is business, even though you state in your official organ of the business men that you want "COMPETITION, BUT NOT ANTAGONISM" in business. Please elucidate.

Another Solomon advised attracting manufacturers to locate in Jersey City, which was opposed by still another as detrimental to the residential interests.

Here we find on a small scale the beauties of our competitive system of society, with all its divergent and antagonistic interests. Here we see illustrated the utter futility of the attempt of the middle class to combat with inferior weapons the power of combined and almost unlimited capital. Here is demonstrated the absurdity of trying to extinguish fire with fire, to annihilate competition with competition.

Call as many meetings as you see fit, small business men of Jersey City or anywhere else. You cannot escape your fate. "Bradstreet's and "Dun's" will show you in weekly figures that about 90 per cent. of investments of $10,000 and under go down in the inhuman and fierce competitive struggle. Do not take the writer's words for this, but study for yourselves.

FREDERICK KRAFFT.

LOCAL ESSEX COUNTY.

All members of Local Essex County are called upon to meet in mass convention at 124 Market street, Newark, Wednesday evening, Jan. 22, to pass on the state party constitution, elect two state committeemen and local officers, and take up other and important business. The meeting will be called to order at 8 p. m. sharp.

—Remit $2.00 and we will mail you five yearly prepaid subscription cards to The Worker and a Worker's Calendar free.

WOMAN'S NATIONAL SOCIALIST LEAGUE.

Plan Abandoned for the Present on Account of Internal Differences and Dissension.

The Woman's National Socialist League is now a thing of the past—or of the future—as the following documents will show:

I.

To the Members of the Woman's National Socialist League, and to the Women Socialists of the Country.

Comrades:—It is my unpleasant duty herewith to tender my resignation as Provisional Chairman of the W. N. S. L. The causes that have led me to adopt this action are of such a nature that my continuance in the League as its Provisional Chairman might no longer be productive of good to the cause. It is the same old story of selfishness, of conflicting ideas and methods, that under other circumstances nearly wrecked the Socialist Party.

For the last two months a worker in the League, and a resident of California, has sought in every way to embarrass my movements and to render my actions subordinate to her wishes. The Call to Women and the Preamble to the Constitution have been denounced by this person as "aggressive," "iconoclastic," "shocking to the moral sense of refined women and filled with the tone of the Socialist Labor Party." I crave the pardon of our veteran comrades in repeating this as an illustration.

Threats were made that unless I changed my attitude and methods of work and withdrew or modified the "preamble" another organization would be started. This has been done, and the "Women's National Socialist Union" has been formed in Los Angeles, Cal., with Mrs. W. S. Abbott as Provisional Chairman.

No good can possibly result to Socialism from an educational movement that is split in twain by discordant elements; one side advocating a timid conservative policy that shrinks from handling the actual facts that underlie the Socialist movement, and wishes to confine it in terms of love; the other which sees that love has many masks under which it hides itself, and that it is most active when it uses the "whip and scourge" of outraged thoughts to drive the money changers out of the Temple of Liberty which they are defiling. Two competing Socialist organizations are out of the question; they are an outrage upon the name and spirit of Socialism, which seeks for unity in all things. Let those who will, divide and cast lots for the garments; I am not of them. I will not spend time and strength in competitive strife. I leave the field open and clear to the new organization under Mrs. Abbott.

As an individual, I will work, for the present, outside of any organization, faithful to what I consider the truth, and with only one end in view—the destruction of that prolific mother of iniquities, the competitive system—and for the establishment of a co-operative civilization.

IMOGENE C. FALES.
Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1902.

II.

We, the Members of the Provisional Committee of the Women's National Socialist League, having carefully investigated all the matters referred to by Mrs. Fales, and having read the correspondence between Mrs. Fales and Mrs. Abbott and such other documents as pertain to the case, are unanimously of the opinion that it is unwise on the part of Mrs. Abbott to form the rival organization known as the Women's National Socialist Union.

If women cannot unite in one harmonious movement for the furtherance of Socialism and the strengthening of the Social Party, it is evident that the time is not yet ripe for permanent organization.

We therefore, endorse the action of Mrs. Fales, and beg to inform the members of the W. N. S. L. that all efforts along the educational lines contemplated by the League will be discontinued until such time when a firm and permanent organization can be inaugurated.

The constitution of the W. N. S. L. plainly states its final object to be the strengthening of the Socialist Party. The rival organization, known as the W. N. S. Union, wholly ignores in its constitution political action. While women may educate, the ballot alone can bring about the change from the old order to the new. Hence a woman's work in this movement must be along political lines.

MRS. CHARLES H. VAIL,
Vice-President.
MRS. M. M. GOEBEL,
Treasurer.
MRS. MAY T. HAYWARD,
MISS FRANCES HOBBS,
MRS. MARIE H. KEARNS,
Chairman Pro. Executive Committee.

So far as we understand the situation, Mrs. Fales seems to be entirely in the right and her action seems to be a well judged one. "If," as the members of the Executive Committee say, "women cannot unite in one harmonious movement, it is evident that the time is not yet ripe for permanent organization." The commonest obstacle to organization among women has been the difficulty which many of them apparently find in rising above personal and sentimental considerations. This is perhaps not to be wondered at, in view of the conditions under which women exist in the capitalist system; it is to be regretted, however, and doubtless it will ultimately be overcome.

In the mean time, we congratulate those of the projectors of this movement, who have held firmly to its purpose of fostering the militant Socialist movement, and we assure them and all who feel with them that there is room and work for women as well as for men, on a perfectly equal footing, within the organization of the party itself. For the present, such work would seem more practicable than the formation of a separate women's organization.

BITUMINOUS COAL CONSOLIDATION GROWS.

Rumors of a coal combination, to control the bituminous coal lands east of the Indiana state lines, and to possibly extend its operations further west, are again revived, says the New York "Evening Post." It was ascertained that the more desirable of the coal properties this side of the Indiana fields are already held well in hand. Those of the Pittsburg district are in the control of the Pittsburg Coal Company, handling rail coal, and the Monongahela Coal Company, which floats most of its coal. The Norfolk and Western, through purchase of the Pocahontas Coal and Coke Company, has secured the coal mines and lines on its lines, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad will soon exercise options on the properties of the New River district. As to the Ohio coal properties it is asserted that J. P. Morgan & Co. have the more important of them under option for the best part of a year. With an Ohio company formed, the soft coal lands in the district described would practically all lie in the control of five companies, some of them already closely allied.

OTHER TRUST NOTES.

The foremost authority in Germany, the "Frankfurter Zeitung," announces that the great steel makers of the empire are forming a combination which will include all branches of the steel industry.

The Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling, and the Cleveland Terminal and Valley Railways, both now owned by the Baltimore and Ohio Company, will hereafter be operated under one management. The services of a considerable number of office employees will thus be dispensed with.

A consolidation of New England ice companies is likely to be effected soon.

The sale of the West Virginia Central undoubtedly means its absorption by the Wabash.

Overall manufacturers have formed a national association with the avowed object of putting an end to competition.

The American Smelting and Refining Company, in combination with Idaho and Utah mine owners, has arranged to restrict the production of lead, in order to keep prices up.

The independent wire and wire-nail manufacturers tried a war of cut prices against the American Steel and Wire Company, one of the branches of the Steel Trust. They soon found that the Trust could beat them at that game, so they will come into the pool and be good.

The American China Development Company, composed of American and European capitalists, headed by August Belmont, will carry on the work of "civilization", begun with Maxims and machine guns last summer. American workingmen are expected to hail with joy the prospect that Chinese manufactures may, within a few years, begin to compete in the world-market and yield profits to "our" capitalists.

Nine companies manufacturing gas, gasoline, and oil stoves have combined to form the American Stove Company, with a capital of $5,000,000. This includes all the large concerns.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system: the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

TRADE and SCIENTIFIC BOOKS

The Scientific American Cyclopedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries; 15,000 receipts, 900 New Formulas, 734 pages. Indispensable in every worker's family. Price, $5.00, cloth; $6.00 in sheep, post free.

Hopkins' "Experimental Science," $4.00.

"Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century," by Edward W. Byrn; 300 illustrations, 480 pages, $3.00. Half red morocco, gilt top, $4.00.

Hopkins' "Magic," $2.50.

Sloane's "Complete Electrical Library," 5 volumes in a box, $5.00.

"Standard Practical Plumbing," by P. J. Davies. A complete encyclopedia for practical plumbers, builders, gas fitters, engineers, etc., $3.00.

"The Tinsmiths' Helper and Pattern Book," by H. K. Vosburgh. Rules, diagrams, tables, and recipes for the use of practical metal workers, $1.00.

"How to Become a Good Mechanic," by John Phin. A practical guide to self-taught men; tells what to study and how to begin, 25 cents.

SCIENTIFIC BOOKS of every kind furnished by

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

PARTY BUTTONS

We manufacture three different sizes in ½, ⅞, and 1½ in. diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the ½ in. size simply with Arm and Torch emblem.

1 Button	5 cents.
12 Buttons	25 cents
25 Buttons	50 cents
100 Buttons	$1.75

Cash must accompany all orders.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

FACTORY TO POCKET

Special sale for this week of Waltham Watches in new, thin model solid gold cases. We save you two profits. W. E. Dodd Mfg. Co., 175 Broadway. Established 1876.

WORKMEN'S SICK & DEATH BENEFIT FUND

Branch 13, South Brooklyn.

Quarterly meeting at 208 Columbia street, corner Sackett, Wednesday, Jan. 22, 1902, 8 p. m.

Order of Business:

VERY IMPORTANT.

If not present, 25 cents fine.

ERNEST JONAS,
Financial Secretary.

WORKMEN'S EDUCATIONAL ASSN

208 & 208 E. 86th STREET.

MONDAY, JANUARY 20, 8 P. M.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

Order of business:

1. Report of officers.
2. Report of directors.
3. Election of directors and trustees.
4. Election of general manager.
5. Changing Art. 6, Sec. 6, and Art. 12, Sec. 2 of by-laws.
6. New business and general welfare.

C. WEHRLE, Sec.

WORKER'S CALENDAR

FOR 1902.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

In lots of 5 copies	22 cents.
10 copies	35 cents.
100 copies	$3.00.

Terms: Cash with order.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

THE COMRADE

SAVE YOUR VOICE, and let our latest protest agitation leaflet, "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," do some of your propaganda. One hundred for 10 one-cent stamps. Besides order a few copies of the January Comrade," and circulate them. This will bring you good results, for its PICTURES TALK SOCIALISM. The COMRADE is $1.00 a Year—10 cents a copy.

COMRADE PUB. CO., 23 Lafayette Pl., N. Y.

IMPORTANT.

SPECIAL OFFER.—If you remit us one dollar we will send you both WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE, ($1 per year) and THE WORKER, (50 cents per year) for one year and add two Worker's Calendars for 1902, all postpaid, or 6 copies "Wilshire's Magazine," 6 copies The Worker, and 12 Worker's Calendars for 1902.

12 "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," for one year, all to different addresses, on receipt of $5.40.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

If you want to be well informed on all new inventions and the mechanical progress of our age, subscribe for "Scientific American;" subscription price, $3 per year.

WE WILL SEND BOTH WEEKLIES, "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" AND THE WORKER FOR ONE YEAR ON RECEIPT OF $3.00 or "Scientific American," "Wilshire's" Magazine," The Worker, all for one year, on payment of $3.50.

In every instance cash must accompany order.

Address

THE WORKER, 184 William St., N. Y.

ABBOTT BROS.,

Bakery Cafes & Lunch Rooms.

110 Bleecker Str., N. Y.

Use our Kangaroos are welcome.
No line drawn on smaller animals.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 43. NEW YORK, JANUARY 26, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

REPORT TO NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Local Quorum Submits an Account of Work Accomplished Since the Indianapolis Convention.

The National Secretary of the Socialist Party will make two reports to the National Committee, now in session at St. Louis, one referring to the location and equipment of the national office and to the trade union movement, and the other referring to agitation. The reports are as follows:

LOCATION AND EQUIPMENT NATIONAL OFFICE.

Upon adjournment of the Unity Convention coincident, with our assumption of duty, we were informed by Comrade George D. Herron that he would donate $200 to the party, with the express condition that same would be used exclusively for the equipment of National Headquarters. We have expended of this amount up to Jan. 1 for furniture and other necessary utilities, $153.57, leaving a balance for future needs of $46.43.

In December, Comrade A. Blaettler of St. Louis donated $20 to the party for office equipment, which has been used to purchase a mimeograph. Among the effects which were sent to us by ex-National Secretary Comrade Theodore Debs was a Smith Premier Typewriter, which we had renovated at an expense of $10.70.

We have quite a large supply of printed matter of various kinds on hand, stationery, books, and miscellaneous articles, all of which, together with the equipment before mentioned, has been insured for $200 in the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia.

Temporary National Headquarters were located for the first week in August at my residence, 4014A Evans avenue. Permanent quarters were located on August 8 in Room 427, Emilie Building, at a rental of $16 per month. On August 10 we sent out a circular to all state and local organizations, announcing the opening of headquarters.

The building in which we are located is the most central in the city, and especially desirable for our purpose, being opposite the post office and but one block from the Public Library.

THE TRADE UNION MOVEMENT.

At the very outset of our task, imbued with the militant spirit of the convention, we sought practical measures for the purpose of demonstrating the identity of class interest between the trade union and Socialist movements. Having received an official request for assistance from the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, we issued "A letter of appeal and advice" to our party members on August 15, requesting their moral, political and practical aid in behalf of the steel strikers and their families.

We caused said appeal to be published in the Socialist and labor papers, Art.; two thousand copies printed and general distribution. In addition finals, we had one thousand typewritten letters referring to our activity in the strike, printed, addressed and mailed, together with copies of the "appeal", to the secretaries of all the unions of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in the states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Alabama, West Virginia, Maryland, Michigan, Wisconsin, Delaware, and New York; to the unions of the International Tin Plate Workers in various states; to eight hundred unions of the United Mine Workers of America, in the state of Pennsylvania; and to two hundred unions in the city of St. Louis, affiliated with the respective national and international organizations comprised in the American Federation of Labor.

Upon the suggestion of New York comrades, we endeavored to send representatives into the strike field, and with this end in view communicated with Comrades Eugene V. Debs, Max Hayes, and J. Mahlon Barnes. Our efforts in this direction were without result, as the comrades mentioned were not immediately or otherwise available. We were therefore dependent for direct connection with the battlefields upon Comrade William Mailly, representing the "Volkszeitung" and The Worker of New York; Comrades J. W. Slayton and W. J. White of New Castle, Pa., and the officers and members of some of the Amalgamated unions, who wrote in answer to our circular communications, and in whose respective localities our party has since obtained an organized foothold.

Responses to our appeal began to reach National Headquarters on Aug. 27, and continued until Sept. 25, before which date the strike had been declared "off." The monies collected by us were forwarded to the national officers of the Amalgamated Association, but the greater part of those contributions raised by party organizations, or through efforts of individual comrades, was sent direct to the national office of the "Amalgamated." As an illustration, the Central Trades and Labor Union of St. Louis, me 4 by the activity of our comrade.. contributed $50, which was, however, forwarded direct to the Amalgamated Association.

We have reason to believe that the moral and political effect of our participation in this strike was more pronounced than that caused by any militant action ever taken by those Socialist parties which preceded the present organization. In saying this we mean no disparagement to the old organizations (in which we were enrolled as members). We adduce the before mentioned facts, as proofs of the wisdom of that policy of our party expressed in the trade union resolutions, which (according to our interpretation) has in view the alignment of our party with the trade unions on the practical grounds of the class struggle. Our efforts in behalf of the steel strikers were immediately acknowledged (in a letter dated August 19) by John Williams, secretary-treasurer Amalgamated Association, Pittsburg, Pa.; and it may not be amiss to say here that the "Amalgamated Journal," the official organ of this association (both during and since the strike), gave liberal amounts of space in its columns to Socialist letters written by members of our party; to quotations from the Socialist Party press; and recently voiced an editorial warning its members against bourgeois public ownership. While we do not point to these circumstances as the all-important desiderata, we consider them worthy of note, as signs of promise in a great labor organization, that was until recently regarded as hopelessly capitalistic in tendency.

AMERICAN FLINT GLASSS WORKERS' UNION.

On August 14 we received a letter from Comrade Eugene V. Debs, transmitting to us a set of resolutions indorsing the Socialist Party, adopted by the American Flint Glass Workers' Union, in national convention at Atlantic City in July, and which had been sent to Comrade Debs by John L. Dobbins, National Secretary of the Flint Glass Workers' Union. The action of the Flint Glass Workers was suitably acknowledged by us in a letter dated August 22 to Comrade Dobbins.

INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.

On August 17 we sent a telegram to the national convention of the International Typographical Union at Birmingham, Ala., tendering them our moral, political, and practical co-operation. We were subsequently informed by one of our comrades, who was a delegate to the convention, that both Socialism and Single Tax were "laid upon the table."

NATIONAL UNION UNITED BREWERY WORKERS.

On Sept. 11 we sent a telegram to the National Convention of United Brewery Workers at Philadelphia, saluting them as comrades, "who have no use for compromise or retreat in the Socialist or trade union movement," and extending them "our fraternal greetings and well wishes." We were subsequently informed that our communication was received with marked evidences of gratification, which was naturally to be expected of a labor organization, which has for years been committed to the Socialist program.

It may not be out of place at this point to call attention to the steady and unflagging support of the Socialist Party by the "Brauer Zeitung," official organ of the United Brewery Workmen, whose expressions in behalf of our party have been especially pronounced since the Unity Convention.

CONVENTIONS ORDER OF RAILWAY CLERKS OF AMERICA AND INT. BROTHERHOOD ELECTRICAL WORKERS.

National conventions of the Order Railway Clerks of America and International Brotherhood Electrical Workers were held in the city of St. Louis on Oct. 21 and 22. We sent appropriate communications to each of them, including an invitation to visit our National Headquarters during their stay in this city.

During the month of October we sent organizing materials to the officers of the unions of the Western Federation of Miners in Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington, Wyoming, and Utah.

During the month of November we sent similar materials to secretaries of local unions of national and international organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, in all of those states which had no state organizations effected at the time mentioned. We have reason to believe that the rapid growth of our party in the mining states of the West, and at several points in the South, is partially due to these efforts.

Our labor among the miners of the West has been rendered easier by the attitude of the Western Federation of Miners and its official organ, "The Miners' Magazine," which is committed to the support of the Socialist Party.

LABOR DAY.

The observances of Labor Day, 1901, were marked by the unprecedented extent to which Socialist speakers were in demand by the trade unions, in contradistinction to the capitalist lawyers, preachers, and politicians, who have heretofore sullied the spirit of the occasion by their "sophistries in trade" about the mutual interests of capital and labor. During the four weeks preceding Labor Day, requests were received by us for many speakers, and, although we made special efforts, we were unable to meet the demand.

The situation disclosed a familiar weakness in our party, consisting in the fact that some of our comrades who could make a fairly able Socialist speech, were unfamiliar with the practical questions confronting the trade unions and the labor movement in general.

INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD OIL AND GAS WELL WORKERS.

In the latter part of September your National Secretary received an invitation to address the annual convention of the International Brotherhood of Oil and Gas Well Workers to be held

(Continued on page 4.)

IMPORTANT LABOR BILL

Introduced by Carey in Massachusetts Legislature.

Socialist Member for Haverhill Proposes to Make It a Crime for Capitalists to Use False Pretenses in Getting Workers During Strike.

The sessions of the Massachusetts Legislature are short these days. Most of the time is occupied in introducing bills, of which the two Socialist members manage to do their share. As Carey and MacCartney are not on important committees, they are able to give some time to devising measures by which working class conditions may be improved, and the Republican and Democratic members of the House are kept guessing. After a while, when the Legislature gets in good working order, our friends on the other side will be kept busy dodging roll calls on labor bills and inventing reasons why such bills are "impracticable."

Following up their bills for eight hours, a state highway emergency fund for the unemployed, and a shorter election day, Carey and MacCartney introduced others during the past week, which will give the capitalist members an opportunity to show their fealty to the horny-handed workingman. These bills vary in importance, the one receiving the most attention from the press being introduced by Carey, and heralded by one of the papers as "a startling labor bill." The proposition is a new one, of interest especially to the trade unionists, and will undoubtedly be opposed bitterly by the corporations. It proposes making it a crime for the agents of the factories to induce laborers to take the place of strikers unless those sought are informed of the existence of the strike. Everybody knows how often workingmen are decoyed into going to strange places, expecting to get honorable employment, only to find a strike is in progress. The bill is as follows:

"Section 1. If any employer, during the continuance of a strike among his employees, or during the continuance of a lockout of his employees, publicly advertises in newspapers, by posters or otherwise, for employees, or by himself or his agents solicits persons to work for him, he shall plainly and explicitly mention in such advertisements or oral or written solicitations, that a strike has occurred among his former employees, or that a lockout exists.

"Section 2. If any person, firm, association, or corporation violates any provision of this act, he or it shall incur a fine of one hundred dollars for each offense, of which sum one-half shall go to the person who makes the complaint against him or it."

Supplementary to his eight-hour bill reported last week, Carey offers the following to constitute an eight-hour day for all state and county employees:

"Eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen, mechanics, and clerks employed by the state or any county therein or by any contractor doing work for the state or any county therein; except that in cases of emergency extra work may be required and performed for extra pay, at the same rate as the regular pay." A fine of $300 is imposed for each violation.

Another bill was introduced by request of the State Committee of the Democratic-Social Party, to change the official name so that hereafter it will be known officially in this state as the "Socialist Party." Under the election laws this is the only means by which an official party can change its name.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY BILL.

MacCartney came to the front on Wednesday with three bills. One of these is of vast importance, being an employers' liability bill, identical with one he introduced last year, and which was defeated. The bill seeks to place responsibility for accidents incurred through faulty appliances directly upon the railroad corporations. The first section reads as follows:

"Whenever upon any railroad or railway, any part of any car, locomotive, or any propelling or drawing engine, machine or appliance, used in connection with such railroad or railway, . . . breaks, gives way, comes off, or fails to operate properly, such a fact shall in any action to recover for injury or death, or both, caused thereby, be deemed prima facie evidence of the negligence of the person, persons, or corporation owning, managing, controlling or operating said railroad or railway."

Another bill seeks to give cities and towns the power to purchase and construct gas and electric light plants and to operate the same. The third looks to the adoption of the referendum in in municipal affairs upon request of 15 per cent. of the voters in any city.

In my last report I spoke of the contest in the House over the Governor's recommendation that the location of street railways be placed in the hands of the State Railroad Commission. It will be remembered that MacCarthey opposed the reference of this recommendation to the Street Railway Committee, and succeeded in having it referred to the Committee on Towns, of which he is a member. As expected, the friends of the corporations opposed the House amendment when the matter came up in the Senate, and succeeded in having a special committee appointed, which will take it completely out of the hands of the Committee on Towns. When the Senate amendment reached the House, the members of the lower body concurred; and the result is that the corporations will be able to deal with a committee upon which there is not one man who will seriously oppose the wishes and interests of the capitalists. In fact, six members of the Street Railway Committee, which was understood from the beginning to be particularly friendly to the corporations, are upon the new special committee. However, the two Socialist members will have their say upon the matter when the special committee reports to the House; and MacCartney especially is laying for a chance to speak his mind.

The resources of the two Socialist members are not yet exhausted, and before January 31, which is the limit of time for introducing bills, they will present additional measures, thus insuring much discussion during the remainder of the session and also creating some agitation.

COMMANDING ATTENTION.

While some of the Boston daily papers seek to minimize the fictions of the Socialist legislators, and sometimes to ignore them altogether, yet there are others which give some little space to them. This is true particularly of the Boston "Traveler," which has the largest circulation of any evening paper in Boston, and which circulates principally among the working people. This paper has already commended in leading editorials, Carey's bill looking toward a uniform eight-hour law in the various states and MacCartney's shorter election day measure. On Tuesday of this week, the "Traveler" contained an able article by Comrade MacCartney on the labor situation in which he predicted that the present era of so-called prosperity cannot proceed much longer, and gave reasons why an industrial depression is certain in the near future.

He will follow up this article with others defining the Socialist proposition; and they are certain to reach a large number of readers.

Comrade Carey has also been requested to contribute an article on the eight-hour question to the "Traveler," and altogether it is pretty certain that during the next few months, Socialism will be brought prominently to the attention of the reading public.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

Boston, Jan. 18, 1902.

VAIL IN BOSTON.

A series of popular lectures on Socialism will be given by Charles H. Vail at the Every Day Church, 397 Shawmut avenue, between Canton and Brookline streets, Boston, Mass., as follows:

Feb. 11—The Economic Evolution.
Feb. 12—The Socialist Movement.
Feb. 13—The Abolition of Poverty and Realization of Plenty.
Feb. 14—The Solution of Modern Social and Industrial Problems.

Doors open at 7.30 p. m. Lecture begins at 8 p. m. Admission, single lecture, 10 cents; full course, 25 cents.

SOCIALIST EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE.

The comrades of the Socialist Educational League, 215 East Fifty-ninth street, desire to call the attention of The Worker's readers to the privileges and benefits of their club rooms, located at the above address. The rooms are open daily from 9 a. m. till midnight for Socialist propaganda.

Any Socialist organization which may find it convenient is invited to make its headquarters at the League rooms. Trade unions and clubs organized for the consideration and discussion of social and economic questions may meet in the headquarters free of charge or for a nominal charge, if able to pay.

There is now no party headquarters from Fourth street to Eighty-sixth street on the East Side. Between these boundaries are many hundreds of Socialists without a party home. All are invited to the League room. Pool, boxing, checkers, chess, cards, and games of all sorts are available to the lovers of sports. Socialist literature is for sale. The club also conducts a restaurant, cigar stand, and bar for soft drinks.

Spargo, Spelman, Mayell, Phillips, and others daily meet to instruct beginners in the science of Socialist economics.

Regular business meetings are held on Wednesday evenings; agitation meetings and lectures on Sunday evenings.

THE DEATH-ROLL ON NEW YORK RAILWAYS.

The report of the New York State Railroad Commission, records 2,345 accidents in the year ending June 30, 1901, in which 795 persons were killed and 1,555 injured. This shows an increase of 124 in the death-list over that of the preceding year.

The remarkable fact is that of the 795 killed, only 16 were passengers. The increase of the death-list was partly made up of employees killed in consequence of the use of defective apparatus or of the overworking of the men, resulting in their inability to do their work properly; the rest was largely composed of pedestrians killed at grade-crossings which are maintained by the companies for the same reason that defective apparatus are used and that employees are overworked—to save expenses and increase dividends.

—Labor unions are organized for the purpose of forcing employers, if necessary, to give the employees a little voice in the management of the industry, regulating hours, wages and other things. Socialism would give the workers FULL CONTROL of the industry in which they work. Why will not union labor men vote for Socialism?—Appeal to Reason.

—Is the trades union a class organization? If not, why exclude your employers? And if a class organization, why place the political power you are possessed of in the hands of the class you will not accept into your unions?—Exchange.

CAPITALISM IS THE CAUSE.

Tunnel Murder Only an Incident in Its Daily Practise.

So Declares Mass Meeting at Cooper Union, Called by the Social Democratic Party.—Harriman, Hillquit, Hanford, and Spargo Call on Workers to Render Their Verdict at the Polls.

"Whereas, The recent collision in the New York Central tunnel, resulting in the killing of seventeen persons and the maiming of many others, has again called attention to the reckless disregard of human life on the part of the magnates of Capital; and

"Whereas, This disaster is but one illustration of the general practise—the railroads of this country having killed 86,277 persons and maimed 469,027 during the last thirteen years, according to the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, while the street railways, the iron and steel mills, and the factories of all sorts yearly contribute their quota of tens of thousands to the slaughter of workingmen; and

"Whereas, The cause of this sacrifice of human life is the desire of the capitalist class, the owners and masters of industry, to reduce expenses and thus to increase their profits; and

"Whereas, The public officials of this country have always passively condoned these crimes of Capital; be it therefore

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting

"1. That the appalling and needless sacrifice of human life in the operation of railroads and other industries is directly due to the private ownership of the means of production and their operation under private control for private profit, and can be prevented only by the substitution of collective ownership and operation for public service;

"2. That, since the Republican and Democratic parties are dominated by the capitalist class which profits by the present system, with all its attendant evils, we the Social Democratic Party call upon our fellow workingmen to unite with us upon the basis of our common class interests to take possession of the powers of government and use them for the abolition of a system in which human life and happiness are subordinated to the pecuniary interest of a ruling class."

Such were the resolutions adopted with hearty enthusiasm by the audience, which filled the large hall at Cooper Union last Thursday night.

The meeting was opened by E. M. Martin, Secretary of Local New York, who introduced Job Harriman as chairman. Comrade Harriman explained the purpose of the meeting to express the indignation of the working class at the latest crime of the railroad capitalists. In impressive words he called upon the workingmen assembled not to think their work done with the passing of resolutions of protest or of sympathy with the victims, but to look for the cause of this and similar crimes and use their political power to prevent their recurrence.

Morris Hillquit was the first speaker. He presented statistics showing the disregard of human life by the capitalist class in various industries and showed how the old parties, controlled by the capitalist class, constantly aided and abetted them in their criminal career. So long as the political power is left in the hands of the capitalist class, he said, these abuses will continue. The inquests that are held over such murders as that of January 8 are mere farces. The jury to which we appeal is the working class, and only when they realize their power and render their verdict on election day, will the system of murder for profit be brought to an end.

Benjamin Hanford spoke next. His address was a powerful indictment of the capitalist system, which rests upon robbery and manifests itself in crime of every sort. His denunciation of capitalism and his sarcastic comments on the philanthropy and public spirit of the men who were directly responsible for the tunnel murder were cheered to the echo.

John Spargo closed the meeting with a brief and impressive address.

If the spirit manifested by the audience at the indignation meeting is carried into their work during the year and expressed at the polls next November, the protest registered there will be one that the masters of capital cannot well afford to neglect.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

The General Committee of Local New York meets at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, Saturday evening, Jan. 25. Election of officers for the ensuing term will be the special order.

THE LECTURES AT HAPPY DAYS HALL.

The Sunday afternoon meetings at Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place, are well attended and will undoubtedly prove very beneficial to those who hear them. Especially are they valuable to party members who wish to get a thorough understanding of the history and doctrines of the movement, so that they may make use of past experience in future work.

This Sunday afternoon, January 26, at 3 p. m. sharp, Morris Hillquit will deliver the fourth and last of his series of lectures, having as his subject: "Proletarian Socialism in the United States." All those who desire a complete and accurate knowledge of the principles of scientific Socialism should not fail to attend this lecture, and the lectures by other able speakers which are to follow on succeeding Sunday afternoons.

A WEEK IN TOLEDO.

Socialist Party Is Making Things Lively in "Golden Rule" Jones' City.

The party membership in Ohio, having by referendum vote decided to employ Frederick G. Strickland to act as state organizer, the state committee sent him to Toledo, pending the arrangement of a tour of the state. The notice of his coming was too short to make proper preparation for successful meetings, but a good week's work has been done just the same.

Tuesday evening he addressed a packed hall for Branch No. 2. The meeting in the hall of Branch No. 1 on Wednesday evening was not so well attended. Thursday evening he was invited to the residence of one of Toledo's professional men, who has become interested in the study of Socialism, where he found gathered a number of professional and business men and women, who proved to be a most appreciative audience. Comrade Strickland's argument, paralleling biological and sociological evolution made plain the approaching end of capitalism for a higher form of co-operative life. He spoke for nearly two hours, then came the questions and interchange of views, which lasted until midnight. The event made plain that at no distant day the Socialist Party of Toledo will be augmented by a group of intellectuals that we can all be proud of. When so gifted and noted a woman as Mrs. Kate Brownlee Sherwood wants to know the best, practical means of bringing our message to the attention of the people, it is significant.

Mayor Jones was present and pronounced his opposition to anything and everything in the way of political parties. Comrade Strickland, in his reply, made plain to all, except perhaps the mayor, the absurdity of the position. That to attain the "ideal" for which the mayor contends it was necessary to establish a material base that would guarantee freedom from economic class domination, which could only be peacefully secured through constitutional political action. The mayor no longer calls himself a Socialist, and as near as can be classified, is an Anarchist—of the "non-resistant" type. A growing number of his former supporters can no longer follow him in his inconsistent course, no matter how good his intentions.

Friday night Comrade Strickland again addressed a full house at the hall of Branch No. 2, which is mainly composed of union glassworkers. Saturday was spent in personal canvass among the workers and laying the foundation for a good organization in the west end of the city. Saturday evening found him the dinner guest in a literary home, where discussion, music and song made time fly fast. It would have been quite a revelation to some people to have seen and heard those assembled sing the "Marseillaise," and the farewell in joining Comrade Strickland in singing his street song, "Heaven's on This Side of the Moon."

Sunday afternoon he addressed a large audience at Golden Rule Hall, where he told Mayor Jones' congregation and assembled friends the wholesome truths of Socialism and the practical methods for speeding its peaceful coming. Sunday evening he delivered a sermon in the Eleventh Street Christian Church, taking as his text, "The New Heavens and a New Eearth." The pastor of the church felt called upon to criticize him during and after the address, and it is quite safe to say this is Comrade Strickland's last address from this platform while that person is in charge. Many members congratulated Comrade Strickland and it is sure to followed by discussion that will result in good to our cause. We expect him back in February, when more parlor talks and public addresses will be held.

Comrades are awaiting another treat from Comrade Ben Tillett, who is expected for another address under auspices of the C. L. U. on Monday evening, Jan. 27.

The Socialist Party of Toledo will hold a convention in Harmonia Hall, 518 Summit street, on Tuesday, Jan. 28, at 7:30 p. m., for the purpose of nominating candidates for the April municipal election. All members are urged to be present, and interested friends are invited to lend practical aid by joining the movement.

John C. Chase of Haverhill, Mass., will be in Toledo, O., on Friday evening, February 14, 1902, and will deliver an address in Harmonia Hall, 518 Summit street. Lecture to begin at 8 p. m. Admission, ten cents. Everybody invited.

WILLIAMSBRIDGE MASS MEETING.

The Workingmen's Educational Association will hold a mass meeting on Wednesday, January 29, in Lyric Hall, First street, near White Plains Road, Williamsbridge, on "The Vanderbilt Tunnel Horror; the Cause and the Remedy." The meeting will be addressed by John Spargo and I. Phillips. Lyric Hall is the largest and best hall in Williamsbridge. All comrades in the Bronx, Mount Vernon, and New Rochelle are requested to bring their friends.

LECTURES IN BROOKLYN.

The following lectures and debates for January have been arranged by the Socialist Propaganda Club, 102 Court street, near City Hall, Brooklyn, N. Y. The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings, which are held every Sunday evening at 8 p. m. Music and open discussion.

Jan. 26—John Spargo—"The Industrial Peace Conference."
Feb. 2—Dr. C. L. Furman, "The Force behind Progress."
Feb. 9—Debate: John S. Crosby—Job Harriman, Single Tax vs. Socialism.
Feb. 16—Jas. N. Wood: "Socialism and the Working Class."

A SYSTEM OF SLAVERY AND MURDER.

Results of the Reign of Private Profit as Seen in the News of the Bay.

I had been troubled a year, off and on, with constipation, biliousness, and sick headaches. One day a friend asked me what the trouble was. When I told him he recommended Ripans Tabules. That evening I got a box, and after the second box I began to feel so much relief that I kept on with them. I have Ripans Tabules always in the house now and carry a package of them in my pocket.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

When ordering mention THE WORKER.

LAUGHLIN FOUNTAIN PEN

Sent on Approval to Responsible People

We do not know of anything (within the price) that will make as appropriate and useful a Christmas gift, and reflect such credit upon both the giver and receiver, as a good fountain pen. We will send you one of this high grade

From the news items and press dispatches of various New York dailies during the last few weeks, we clip the following samples of what the people have become so accustomed to as to look upon as natural and to be expected:

STARVATION.

"Dying from starvation, with a four months old child, Mrs. James Gallin was found early to-day by Policeman McConnan in her miserable little room at No. 513 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn.

"An ambulance was called from the Brooklyn City Hospital, but the woman died before Surgeon Rathbone arrived. The baby was turned over to the matron at the Flushing avenue station, and the other children were taken to the Children's Aid Society, in Schermerhorn street.

"A neighbor, aroused by groans issuing from the room, notified Policeman McConnan. He investigated and found Mrs. Gallin almost lifeless, with the child at her breast, lying on a miserable bed in a corner of the little room, which was lighted only by a candle.

"Her husband and four other children were piteously grouped in another corner of the bare, unfurnished room, too weak from want of nourishment to seek aid for the dying woman.

"Ambulance Surgeon Rathbone revived the man enough for him to tell his story. He said that he was a bartender, but for weeks had been unable to secure work. Three days ago his small supply of money had given out, and he had been unable to get food either for himself or his family."

Surely this does not require any very extended comment. Negro slaves in the days before the war would not have been allowed to die like this, because their death would have been a loss to their master and he would feed and keep them even when there was no work for them to do, until he needed their labor-power again. But with the wage-slave it is different; when his master, the capitalist who owns the shop in which he works, does not need him in his business, he is cast on the street, out of a job and free to starve, along with his family. That is one of the differences between "freedom" and slavery—but it is not one which Republican and Democratic politicians tell you about on the Fourth of July.

CHILD TORTURE.

In the New York "Times" of December 22, the following item appeared:

"George Hamula, in a suit for $15,000 damages for the loss of three fingers, which he brought against the Dundee Woolen Company of Passaic, N. J., testified before Justice Russell in the Supreme Court yesterday that when in the employ of the company three years ago, though he was ONLY TWELVE YEARS OLD at the time, he was compelled to work THIRTEEN HOURS A DAY, operating six card machines.

One day when taking care of the machines he caught his hand in the machinery, and three fingers were torn from his hand. He was then getting TWO DOLLARS AND A HALF A WEEK, but after the accident his wages were raised to $5 and later he was discharged."

If George Hamula had been a little negro slave boy, he would not have been forced to work thirteen hours a day at dangerous work without any precautions being taken to insure his safety, because mutilation and injury would have made him worthless to his master. With the modern white slave it is different. What difference does it make if his fingers are ripped off? Any number of other little slave boys can be had the very next morning simply by advertising for them. Then if the capitalist owned his slaves straightout, it would probably cost him more than $2.50 a week to feed, clothe and keep them—but when he hires them it is much better, for he only pays $2.50 and the boy's parents provide the rest of his living, and if the boy is hurt he can discharge him and hire a new slave discharge him and hire a new twelve-year-old slave to work for thirteen hours a day at risk of life and limb. That is one of the differences between slavery and "freedom."

MURDER MADE COMFORTABLE.

In a press dispatch from Wilkes Barre, Pa., comes the following cheering news as to how murder may be provided for and made comfortable to the victims of private greed, who lose their lives for another man's profit:

"The next annual report of the mine inspectors of the anthracite coal districts is expected to show that scores of lives have already been saved by the installation in mines of the medical room, required by a recent act of the legislature, which went into effect on Nov. 30. ALL THE MINES, HOWEVER, HAVE NOT YET COMPLIED WITH THE LAW. Heretofore, it has been the custom, when a man was hurt in the mines, to get him to the surface by the best means at hand. There he would have to wait for the company ambulance, sometimes for several hours, and often men have died of loss of blood or shock. The mine hospitals now installed are rooms about ten feet square, placed in some convenient and easily reached passage of the mine. Most of them are furnished with cots for four persons, although the law requires only two. There are at hand linseed oil, to be used in the numerous cases of burns, bandages, linens, woolen, and water-proof blankets, splints, and other handy appliances. Most of the large companies have engaged physicians to show their mine foremen how to use the appliances, and schools of instruction in methods of treating injuries are being established, with sessions once or twice a week. AS THERE IS AN AVERAGE OF MORE THAN ONE MAN KILLED AND SIX INJURED EVERY DAY IN THE MINES OF THE REGION, the appliances and foremen's knowledge will often be tested."

Mark that some of the mines are still evading the law and allowing the slaughter of their employees to continue in order to save a few dollars expense. Laws to protect workingmen are always unenforced or evaded because the men who make and administer the laws are men of money or their tools and murder for profit is part of "business principles." The question for workingmen is: Can you believe that your interests are identical with the interests of capitalists who will see you slaughtered before they will spend a few pennies to make your work safe? Can you believe that your interests are the same as those of the vampires who live on the profits of your life and snap their fingers at your death? Is it not evident that the interests of your class and their class are irreconcilably opposed? Is it not obvious that the only hope of the working class is a fight to the finish with this capitalist class which fattens on their life blood? And if the interests of the two classes are diametrically opposed, how can any political party serve both classes? No political party can serve the interests of both the workers and the capitalists, as the old parties pretend to do. Therefore, let all workingmen unite in the Socialist Party to gain control of government for their own benefit, overthrow this industrial system, and, by making the means of producing wealth the collective property of the people, insure to all the right to work under the best possible conditions and to enjoy the full fruits of their labor.

C. L.

MINNEAPOLIS AT WO[illegible]

The comrades at Minneapolis, though laboring under difficulty, are furnishing their new hall at L. avenue and other expenses, getting there just the same. At last meeting twelve new members were admitted and others are coming. On Jan. 5, Cicero C. Talbott gave "The Citizen of Yesterday and To-day," a lecture that he has been at great pains to prepare. On Jan. 12, Comrade J. B. Graham gave "Some Errors in Current Religious Teaching," and on Jan. 19, Comrade F. D. Freeman took his audience on a trip "From the Cradle to the Grave."

Comrade Lucas has begun a course on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, running from Jan. 7 to Feb. 20, on the following subjects: "The Earth our Home;" "Primitive Men and the Development of Institutions;" "Early Civilization;" "Feudalism;" "Trade Guilds and Trade Unions;" "The Function of Religion in Civilization;" "Manufacture and Wage System;" "Commerce and the Slave Trade;" "Money and Its Use;" "King, Nobility, Landholding the Basis of Government;" "Capitalism, Republican Parliament Basis of Government;" "Ancient and Modern Tools;" "The Factory System;" "Strikes, Lockouts and Boycotts;" "Utopias, their Cause and Failure;" "Socialism;" "Use and Exchange Values;" "Surplus Value and Social Labor;" "The Class Struggle;" "Trusts and the Present Outlook." Free discussion follows all these lectures.

MIDDLE CLASS FAILURES.

"Bradstreet's" reports 291 failures in the United States during the week, against 346 for the previous week, and 290, 255, 262, and 309 for the corresponding weeks of 1901 to 1898. About 89 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 7 per cent. from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

MADDEN BACKS DOWN.

I am just in receipt of information from the Postoffice Department at Washington that the case of the Appeal has been dismissed, and that on there is no occasion to question the accuracy of the Appeal's subscriptions, as the right of the "Appeal" to mail at [illegible] paper through the mails and the right of our readers to send the paper to their friends is thus sustained.—Appeal to Reason.

—Governor Van Sant proposes to rate the railroads on constitutional lines, which will probably please the railroads better than any thing else he could do.—Chicago News.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY
(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)
PUBLISHED WEEKLY
AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,
By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.
P. O. BOX 1512.
Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.
Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.
Bundle rates:
Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.25
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.
Weekly Bundles:
5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.25
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

As far as possible, rejected communications will be returned if so desired and stamps are enclosed.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D.-P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

NOTICE.

The associate editor of The Worker asks the indulgence of readers, and especially of correspondents whose communications have not received attention, for any deficiencies in this issue. Comrade Lee has been ill for several days, and this unexpected handicap has caused the neglect of several matters of more or less importance.

SOCIALISM AND CHRISTIANITY.

Discussion of the attitude of Socialism toward religion has been revived by Archbishop Corrigan's recent attacks on Socialism. The correspondence which we publish this week is [illegible] indications of the necessity [illegible] understanding of this [illegible] part of many earnest [illegible] considering the truth or falsity of the Bible and the teachings of the Church, and keeping in mind the fact that the opinions of the Archbishop, or of the Pope himself, are not binding upon his spiritual subjects except in religious matters, the question still remains: What is the attitude of the Socialist movement toward the Church and those teachings of Christianity which have a direct bearing on the social problem?

In the first place, the Socialist movement, being based upon a scientific understanding of the laws of social evolution, is obviously un-Christian, in the same sense that mathematics or astronomy is un-Christian—that is, it has no connection with Christianity. Many thinkers claim that every science, and especially the inductive method of reasoning upon which all science is founded, discredits the teachings of the Church; but we shall not consider that here, especially as religionists take refuge behind the wall of faith. The real question is: Is Socialism anti-Christian?

To begin with, it is necessary to distinguish between Socialism as a future state of society and Socialism as a movement toward that state of society; it is also necessary to distinguish between the ideals of Christianity and the practise of the Church.

As far as the organized Church is concerned, it has always been on the side of the ruling class. Like all other social institutions it is dependent on the owners of the earth for its support, and is therefore a creature of the capitalists. When the struggle between the workers and the capitalists comes to a crisis it will undoubtedly be with the masters. There is no doubt that in the future social revolution the world's workers will find [illegible] organized religion as [illegible] them. But, outside of [illegible] institutions, what is the relation of Socialism to real religion, as sincerely professed by individuals?

The tactics which the Socialist movement must follow are of necessity opposed to the Christian teachings of non-resistance, contentment, and universal love, for the Socialist movement is carried on within the confines of a social system which makes the practise of these Christian ideals impossible; but the victory of the Socialist movement would replace this system by one in which brotherhood would become a reality, and in which it would be possible for men to live according to the teachings of Jesus. Socialism as a movement is anti-Christian, but Socialism as a future state of society would for the first time make it possible to put the ethics of Christianity into practise. It is idle to attempt to compare the conditions of a future society in which there will be no classes with the [illegible] by and morally elevate the whole race. It was, of course, impossible for Jesus to be a Socialist, because in his time industrial and social evolution had not progressed far enough to make Socialism possible. It being impossible in his age to perfect the environment of the race, he devoted himself to fighting the effects of environment. It is for this reason that, after so many hundreds of years of preaching, his precepts have had so little practical effect and are not practised by those who preach them.

Those who oppose Socialism on account of their belief in Christianity should remember that it is absolutely certain that capitalism, and every church which supports it, is anti-Christian and that only under Socialism will even an approximate application of Christian ethics be possible. Coming from the pulpit prostitutes who defend the present social system with its consequences of suffering, poverty, vice, crime, and war, the charge that Socialism is against the teachings of the gentle Jesus is a preposterous piece of impudence. The statement that Christianity is opposed to Socialism is the severest indictment of Christianity ever made.

As the Socialist movement grows more powerful, the church may try to fasten itself onto the movement, either for the purpose of prolonging its own existence or to saddle the movement and ride it to ruin—just as the Roman ruling class captured and perverted Christianity and changed it from a popular outcry into a safeguard of the state. This danger, however, is neither imminent nor certain.

The real danger in so-called "Christian Socialism" is that the "Christian Socialists," even though ardent and sincere, carry into their propaganda the methods of the church, appealing to the unreliable sentimental idealism of individuals rather than the material interests of the working class upon which the Socialist movement is based. If the movement is to endure it must have a solid material foundation. Only confusion can result from the attempt to mix a material science with a metaphysical speculation. "Christian Socialism" is a misnomer and a misfortune. If any Socialist doubts that it is harmful to the movement, let him look to France and Belgium, where the "Christian Socialists" maintain a separate party in opposition to the class-conscious Socialists.

Of similar nature is the idea that the Socialist movement is an idealistic, humanitarian, or ethical movement. Idealistic, humanitarian, and ethical motives are all factors in social evolution and may well serve as valuable aids to the movement, but they are not its source and cannot serve as its foundation. The Socialist movement is based upon the material interests and necessities of the working class, and has been called into being by the processes of social and economic evolution, not by an impracticable idealism which cannot thrive under competitive conditions. The feeling of brotherhood will be the result of the establishment of Socialism, not its cause—the latter is to be found in the material interests of the workers as opposed to the capitalists. It must be remembered that ideals are largely created or colored by material interests. The value of an appeal to ideals depends upon whether it is an appeal to the ideals of the working class or the ideals of their masters. In all revolutions, appeals to ideals have been effective only when based on material interests or created by the necessities of economic evolution.

Referring again to Archbishop Corrigan—whose statements have at least had the good effect of bringing up for renewed discussion the question of Socialism vs. Christianity, which Socialists have got to thresh out—his attacks on Socialism per se do not require any answer as his misrepresentations, inconsistencies and absurdities fall of their own foolishness. By his delerious diatribes against Socialism the comical Corrigan has placed a dunce-cap on his own head and used his position to make of himself an international clown.

COURTENAY LEMON.

The residents of King's Bridge and vicinity are protesting because their children in going to and from school are daily exposed to the danger of being killed on one or another of the seven grade crossings which the New York Central maintains there. Their present protests would carry more weight if they had voted last November for the only party which made life as against profits the issue of its campaign. If the King's Bridge districts had given a Social Democratic majority at the last election their wishes would be respected by the capitalists and politicians against whom they had voted.

The behavior of a gang of S. L. P. men at Ben Tillett's meeting in Pittsburg, where they seem to have broken their already unenviable record of rowdyism, will not do them any good nor Comrade Tillett any harm. It will perhaps help other workingmen to distinguish between the character of the riotous coterie that still clings to De Leon and the character of the real Socialist movement of the country. The only really regrettable feature of such an affair is that, by making a martyr of such a man as M. M. Garland, it strengthens the influence of the conservative element which he represents, and which has already done so much harm to the labor movement.

THE SINS THAT CHARITY COVERS

It was said some nineteen centuries ago that: "Charity covers a multitude of sins." Applying it to the capitalist's handout now called by the noble name of charity, the saying is equally true, though with a different meaning.

One of the heinous crimes covered by the "mantle of charity" is exposed by the following news item from a current New York daily:

"Commissioner Hoyer Folks of the Charities Department, yesterday attacked the time-honored custom of the great hospitals of this city which are supported, in part at least, by private charity. These institutions, to keep down their death rates, hurry patients to Bellevue as soon as it is seen that they are dying. * * *

"The ink was hardly dry upon the paper when an ambulance from St. Vincent's Hospital rolled up to the gates bearing Mrs. Sarah Meade, sixty-six years old, of 340 West Twelfth street, a sufferer from Bright's disease. She died on the stretchers as the bearers carried her to the reception ward."

Another crime of the capitalist charitable institutions of certain sorts is their practise of compelling the inmates to act as scabs to help break strikes. The workers in the clothing trades have had plenty of experience of this abuse, and it is hardly likely that our "reform" administration will try to stop it.

The theory of the "philanthropists" is that a person who is compelled by circumstances to accept relief from them thereby forfeits all human rights and is to be treated as a mere thing, devoid of sensibilities or aspirations, to be used or abused, experimented on or exploited, in whatever way may best suit the pleasure or the interest of the ruling class.

In view of the already appalling and rapidly increasing extent to which the members of the working class are forced, at some period of their lives, to become the recipients of poor in one form or another, the question of the administration of public and semi-public charities has become a question of immediate importance to the working people. In this one department alone, the good which a working class city administration, put in power upon the platform of an uncompromising Socialist movement, might do for the workers of this or of any other city is quite incalculable.

A CLEAR STATEMENT.

The most important truth that he who calls himself a Socialist must recognize sooner or later, is that Socialism is a working class movement. It is not a great preconceived humanitarian movement having for its express purpose the uplifting of civilization; by the establishment of economic justice, that must follow as a matter of course. But the revolutionary Socialist is not an altruist as the term is generally applied. He is merely fighting for his interests and the interests of his class. He sees that by the evolution of industry, a propertiless class has been produced. Although having produced everything, this class is robbed of it all, except that portion which the capitalist class gives back in the shape of wages, just sufficient to sustain life and perpetuate the species. Socialism, then, is the awakening of a class to the consciousness that it is being robbed, and shows a way in which they can gain control of the public powers in order to legislate the capitalist class out of existence. In short, Socialism is the movement of a class that will ultimately comprise the whole people.—People's Paper, Santa Barbara, Cal.

THE "ROCKY MOUNTAIN SOCIALIST."

The latest addition to the Socialist press is the "Rocky Mountain Socialist, edited by J. W. Martin and J. B. Osborne, and published weekly at Denver, Colo. The first number is good and gives promise of a useful future for the new paper.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

One of those phrases of intimation which sometimes flash out of the crookedness of capitalistic competition to light up the whole menagerie, occurs in the announced purpose of Carnegie's gift of $10,000,000 to the President for the educational benefit of that poor multitude known as the United States, and this is the phrase: "To discover the exceptional man in every department of study."

This is the fundamental lie of aristocracy building. Until we know that we have first discovered the exceptional discoverer an enormous patronage and a given interest to start with foreordain what sort of exceptional man (has Washington fund will discover. Fricks and Schwabs, no doubt, and nothing more. The race man can only be discovered in a democracy and by democratic methods. Taking Carnegie himself and these gifts, we cannot but look upon him and the conditions that made him possible as exceptionally preposterous. Nothing but a ridiculous misbalance of society could put this little humbug in a position to patronize America and coddle the world.

The assumption underlying this search for the exceptional man is that the human world must always consist of stars and clods, or of clods proceeding starwards; and it is for these clods in course of astralization that the President accepts Carnegie's gift. A rightly balanced democratic mind gets out of sociologic study a different hope from this poor, paltry possible turning up, now and again, of an exceptional man. We look for common justice as the fruit and reward of civilization and for a whole nation rising together.

Granting the fact that all men are now born unequal, Socialism would reduce this inequality practically to the smallest possible sum of human suffering and injustice; and this it would do by removing the artificial inequalities maintained by aristocratic governments; by reducing the downward pressure of exceptional men, so as to enable the race to adjust and equalize itself upwards. Is this what Carnegie is after, think you? Nay, to widen the gulf between the exceptional and the common man is his gospel. The slave masters must own the talents of the race or how shall they be secure?

Are you aware that there is a Prussian gentleman residing in Berlin who is known as the Emperor of Germany. If not, it is certainly no fault of the gentleman's. He is now again giving you an opportunity of remembering the fact, by sending his brother to see you in a warship. Like all monomaniacs, the Emperor is an amusing creature. He fancies himself to be Germany, all of it; and like the little child you see every day on the sidewalk, who is playing at being a steam engine, the Emperor goes about puffing and blowing in fine old style. But Bebel and a few of the Social Democrats are beginning to draw his fire, so that the imperial steam is likely soon to cool off before the famine of the German workmen and the intelligence of the Socialists.

There is a story of a poor fat monk who was crossing a very frail bridge over a torrent, which began to creak and shake when it felt the weight of his many indulgences, and so set the poor man on making his peace with the powers of the world to come; therefore he began to bless himself and to cry "God is good;" but then suddenly apprehending the chances of his having to do with another than God, he added in a subdued voice over his left shoulder this saving clause: "And the devil is not a bad fellow, either." Such is the attitude of "The Daily Weathercock" known as the capitalist press in regard to anything of whose success there is no certainty. The two canal routes, the Boer war, Sampson and Schley, temperance and booze—virtue and vice.

Like the hog after he is washed which returns to the mire, even so my poor democracy of New York seems to be returning to David Bennett Hill; and that this should be done with the assent and consent of W. J. Bryan, shows that with his many other qualifications for the presidency, the late candidate knows the conditions under which political bacon gets its flavor.

Theodore, who as a reformer was always below suspicion, never having really been in it for a moment, save as a part of anti-other-fellowism, is nevertheless above suspicion as a machine Republican. His recent appointments must satisfy even Saint Spooner himself—and now he openly endorses the decapitation of Quay's opponents in Pennsylvania. Quay's opponents! Which, in Pennsylvania, meant at least the public pretense of decency. But not being stalwart Republicans (the new name for mountebanks who swallow swords and things) is sufficient reason to Theodore for damning them. "Thus ends the greatest moral show in the world," saith Artemus.

THE INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

And Its Bearing on the Trade Union and Labor Politics.

From the report of President E. T. Behrens of the Missouri State Federation of Labor to the eleventh annual convention of that body, held in St. Louis this month, we take the following extract, which is worthy of careful consideration:

"Improved machinery and the division of labor in the production of commodities; the development of industry and concentration of the means of production; the aggregation of large numbers of workingmen in factories; the formation of trusts—now fast becoming international in character—which, in many instances, have a complete monopoly of certain fields of industry, and the tendency of these to expand their scope of operations so as to include not only one but many industries; have so completely revolutionized the production and distribution of wealth, as to make untenable the present position of the wage-earners in their struggle for a higher wage. Competition among the wealth possessors is being wholly eliminated from the field of commercial activity, and having full control over commodities, they can advance or lower prices at will; while, on the other hand, as every improved machine displaces so many men the struggle for employment among the workers becomes ever more intense. Every slight advance in wages is met by the wealth possessors by a corresponding increase in the price of commodities, and not infrequently at a multiplied ratio.

"But as production proceeds along the lines indicated, with the working-class dependent upon another class—the machine, or tool-owning class—for employment; and as labor must surrender to the tool-owning class the whole of its product, receiving in return but a bare subsistence in the form of a wage—there is engendered an irrepressible conflict between these two antagonistic forces in society; and each class strives, consciously or unconsciously, for the conservation of its class interests.

"Now, as the productive power of labor is being continually augmented by the introduction of improved machinery and labor-saving devices, and since labor receives but a small fraction of the total wealth produced, and can purchase only an equivalent in other commodities to the wage received, a surplus is created which becomes a glut upon the market; production ceases, labor finds itself out of employment, and must experience untold want and deprivation until the surplus commodities have been disposed of in markets abroad or consumed by the more favored ones at home. This every period of activity in industry is followed by a period of depression, if not an absolute crisis.

"Not only does the present system of machine production augment the productive power of labor and lessen the ability of the laborer to purchase back that which his labor has created, but it also forces an ever increasing number into the ranks of the unemployed.

"A half century and a decade ago Chas. Dickens, writing from the city of Boston to friends in England, wrote, 'There is not a workingman in this city nor in this state, who has not a blazing fire and meat for dinner every day of his life, nor would a flaming sword in the air attract so much attention as a beggar in the street.' What is the condition of the laborer to-day? Every highway and byway is lined with tramps; every city town and village has its quota of unemployed, which tells the story of the decline of American labor.

"The problem of the unemployed is indeed a problem of grave concern to the organized workingmen and workwomen of this country. This army, already reaching into the millions, outside the pale of organization, unable to align themselves with the organized forces of labor, outcasts of society, and condemned by their own class, becomes a standing menace to those who are employed. Therefore, upon the organized workingmen and women who are not yet bowed down by oppression's weight, who have not yet been driven into the 'Slough of Despond' by the organized greed of capitalism, and who still possess sufficient moral strength and courage to assert their manhood and womanhood, rests the responsibility of freeing their class from the bonds of industrial slavery, and thus rescuing civilization and mankind from death and decay.

"We need not search the higher philosophies of economic and social sciences for a solution of the problems which confront the working class. Our duty as trade unionists is clear, the path we must traverse to reach labor's goal is well defined.

"We are wise, indeed, if we learn a lesson from past experiences and profit by them. Our efforts to establish a higher wage, shorter hours and better conditions of employment—which are only incidental to the greater and graver problems, the complete overthrow of that system which makes the struggle for them necessary—have fully demonstrated the weakness of our position upon the industrial field in contests with employers. The employing capitalist class (an insignificant minority), being the ruling class, are in possession of all the machinery of government, and it is only by their possessing this power that they are able to dominate the industrial field. Now, having the greatest number, we can easily reverse the order and become ourselves the ruling class, by taking possession of the machinery of government, and through it dominate the industrial field, not for the benefit of a class but in the interest of all."

President Behrens is a Socialist, having for some time been one of the most active members of the local organization of the Socialist Party in his home city of Sedalia. The fact that a man holding such clear and radical views was elected as the official head of the labor movement in the state of Missouri speaks well for the progressive character of the unions there.

YANKEE DOODLE REVISED.

The saving made by forming trusts,
A lesson plain in teaching,
By arguments in full accord
With Socialistic preaching.

CHORUS:

To beat them at their chosen game
Compels us, as a nation,
To meet the wants of every one
Through just co-operation.

For this is how the trusts succeed
In killing competition,
To kill the trusts in that same way
We Socialists petition.

CHORUS:

For we can form a bigger trust
Than any in existence,
So push the project right along,
With courage and persistence.

THE STEEL TRUST.

An Example of the Industrial Evolution Which Makes Socialism Inevitable.

In "The Public" of January 11, Louis F. Post has an interesting article based on Ray Stannard Baker's sketch of the Steel Trust, in "McClure's Magazine" for November, 1901. Despite the weak and reactionary conclusions of the editor of "The Public," and his occasional impotent flings at Socialism, and constant references to the ethical principles of a movement which is primarily based on material interests, the article is a valuable study, especially as regards the facts quoted from the earlier article of Mr. Baker. In the following quotation we have omitted the objectionable features mentioned above:

"The most influential school of Socialists regard Socialism as a social evolution, and their conception of the subject is being impressively confirmed by events. It can be understood * * * through the modern phenomena of trusts, studied in the light of the theory of historical evolution.

"Not that the trust is a Socialist ideal. Far from it. In all Socialism there is a democratic aspiration, and trusts are not democratic. Yet they are believed by democratic Socialists to secrete democratic germs, which will eventually develop the autocratic trust into an industrial democracy, somewhat as political democracy has been developed out of feudalism and monarchy.

"However this may prove to be, doubtless the economic, as distinguished from the ethical, principles of Socialism, are already in process of more or less imperfect exemplification by the trusts, the most perfect of which in that respect is the United States Steel Corporation. This trust, which controls 65 per cent. of the American steel industry, owns not only the natural sources of production upon which it depends, but also all the related artificial machinery of production and distribution. It is a gigantic socialistic embryo. So at least it distinctly appeared to be in a vivid pen sketch by Mr. Ray Stannard Baker, in 'McClure's Magazine' for November, 1901, a sketch which is valuable as a socialistic study because, besides being vivid, it is evidently a true account, as far as it goes, of the business methods of the steel trust.

"Mr. Baker describes the organization of the steel trust as—

'a republican form of government, not unlike that of the United States, with a president; a cabinet, or executive committee, which is likewise a supreme court, having practically all the power of the board of directors; a treasury department, or finance committee; a legal department (the general counsel); and a congress (board of directors), elected to office by individual voters or stockholders.'

"The government of the trust, besides being republican in form, is federal in principle; for, writes Mr. Baker—

'It is a general though erroneous impression that when the steel corporation was organized all of the ten absorbed companies lost their identity, being merged in a single huge concern managed from New York city. But the United States Steel corporation is rather a federation of independent companies, a combination of combinations, each with its own distinct government, officers, sphere of influence, and particular products. The Carnegie Steel Company, for instance, is still independent of the Federal Steel Company, and yet both are a part of the United States Steel Corporation in the same way that Pennsylvania and Illinois, while separate states, each with its own government, are part of the United States.'

"But this government is primarily industrial, as distinguished from political. Its purpose is the production and distribution of steel commodities, from the ore and the coal in the mine, through all the processes of manufacture and transportation, to the finished and delivered article. In this particular it differs from the socialistic state only in the fact that its field of operations is limited to the steel industry, whereas the socialistic state would be expected to monopolize even more completely and to operate even more perfectly, all branches of industry.

"'Still in analogy to the theory of the American government, the steel trust distinguishes between common functions and those pertaining to the constituent companies respectively:

'While each subsidiary company retains the entire management of its own manufacturing plants, it has been the policy of the new corporation to combine in great general departments those factories of production common to all the companies. For instance, most of the subsidiary companies owned their own iron mines, their own coke ovens, and controlled their own ships in the lakes, and each had a department to care for these interests. Now the ore and transportation interests are gathered in one great department. * * *

'The economy effected by this concentration of common interests into one central department is thus described:

'. . . the coke interests, the export department, the foreign offices in London, and certain branches of the sales departments, are each grouped under a single head. By this method a single agency distributes iron ore, coal and coke, between the various plants as needed, avoiding cross shipments, and supplying plants always from the nearest sources, thereby saving freight charges. Much of the economy of production depends on the efficacy of distribution. Formerly serious delays resulted from the inability to obtain vessel tonnage at the right time, or to load the ships with the right kind of ore when wanted, for many companies, while owning plenty of one kind of ore, were compelled to purchase other kinds to make the proper mixtures. Under the new system, however, the splendid fleet of 115 vessels on the great lakes is all under the control of one man . . . and the ore-distributing system is all under another chief. The ships can thus be directed by telegraph to the ore-docks in Minnesota, Michigan, or Wisconsin, where each immediately secures a full load, and carries it to the dock or mill where that particular kind of ore is most needed. . . . Coke and coal are distributed much in the same manner by a central department.'

"Such centralization is confined, however, as already indicated, to operations of common concern. * * * The Steel Trust, while in absolute control, and consequently able to insure harmony through its central authority, has, nevertheless, so adjusted the relationships of the constituent companies that—

'one company buys of or sells to another, as formerly, and the bargains are driven just as shrewdly as ever, each president being keenly ambitious to make a good showing for his company. The disputes which naturally arise are settled by the executive committee, sitting as a sort of supreme court.'

"As to products which vary with the producing company, wide latitude is allowed, each company being permitted to drive the best bargain it can in the open market. But—

'in cases where several companies produce the same thing—steel rails, for instance—they agree on a price and appoint the same agents throughout the country.'

"Not only are economies secured by this system of production and distribution, but every department of the trust, says Mr. Baker, 'runs smoothly, noiselessly.'

"In this great trust, then, we have an example, only partly developed economically and not at all ethically, but faithful and favorable as far as it goes, of Socialism in the concrete.

"To perfect this system economically, with reference to socialistic ideals, what is needed is that the trust should encompass all great industries instead of only two-thirds of only one, and manage them in substantially the same way. To perfect it ethically, with reference to Socialism, what is needed is the democratization of the trust, so that all who work in it, the day laborer at the bottom as well as Mr. Schwab or Mr. Morgan, at the top, shall participate equally in its government and share equally in the value of its products."

AN ENGLISH VIEW OF AMERICAN WORKINGMEN.

In the "Trades and Labor Gazette," the organ of the trade unions of London, England, James Macdonald, editor of the paper and Secretary of the London Trades Council, writes as follows:

"The American workman, it appears to us, may grumble less and more readily respond to the invitation of his capitalist taskmaster because he is a better broken-in animal. He recognizes Capital as king and fully understands that the capitalist owns him, body and soul, and that he must lay at the feet of his king, Capital, all his physical and intellectual energies, and fight his battles. He is entirely the creature of Capital and has no more real independence than the machine he works. He claims to be the most independent worker on earth, but that independence is nevertheless entirely subject to a money value, and up to the present he has sold it to the highest bidder. Industrially and politically the American worker in the political sense is the most degraded of creatures—most degraded because his opportunities are greatest. American workmen do but obey their animal instincts when they favor the survival of any particular group of employers, for, it is under such a group that they live and have their being."

It is not exactly flattering. But is there not a great deal of truth in it? At any rate, the best way to answer it is to prove it false by throwing off the conservatism and timidity to which Macdonald refers.

THE WISE MONKEYS.

A monkey sat on a cocoanut tree; In his hand he held a leaf with some charcoal marks upon it.

A troop of monkeys started to climb the tree to gather nuts, the leaf monkey halted them.

"Hold on," he said. "I own this tree."

The monkeys smiled.

"This leaf is my little deed, conferring upon me ownership from a dead monkey, and empowers me to collect rent."

The monkeys grinned.

"I only intend to collect four nuts a day from you for the privilege you enjoy of gathering nuts; but—"

The monkeys laughed.

"Because it rained so nicely, and crops will be excessively large, I am compelled to charge you six nuts a day."

The monkeys ha-ha-ed at him as a great humorist, and started again to climb the tree.

"Hold on!" he cries. "I'm in earnest."

They frowned.

"And if you don't pay men in advance, I'll—"

They scowled.

"Dispossess you, and you cannot again come to this tree."

"You want cocoanut?" they yelled. "Here, take them," and they sent them —one—two—three—dozen—twenty — they hurled at him, pounded him with them; bruised him; knocked him off the tree, and pelted him out of sight, while he mourned the loss of his leaf, title and the wicked anarchistic tendencies of his tribe.

But then—monkeys are fools, while men are wise.—London Clarion.

THE CAPITALIST PRESS.

Every Chicago daily paper refused an advertisement to the effect that the strike in San Francisco is still on, although they are regularly printing ads. of the Union Iron Works for men to go to the Pacific Coast. However, the Chicago "Workers' Call" prints the ad. in each issue. Draw your own conclusion.

—To be willing to rise while others are sinking in the mire; to be willing to have an eminence in the world which is attained by standing on a pyramid of struggling human bodies; to be contented to have and enjoy while others starve; to be satisfied to prosper while any earnest, honest toiler plods on toward the goal of despair and death, sums up the attribute of a fiend.—Wm. T. Brown.

—No laws, no customs, no rights of property are so sacred that they may not be made away with, if it can be clearly shown that they stand in the way of the greatest happiness.—W. J. Jevons.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

People's Paper, Santa Barbara, Cal.

Socialists who have entered the movement failing to grasp the fundamental basis of Socialism, the class struggle, are Utopists, who believe that by a general diffusion of brotherhood all classes will unite in establishing ideal Socialism—in other words, that we must reform the man before we can do anything, a task that the churches have been trying for 1900 years and failed. Socialism is not a love feast. It is the uprising of a huge class of wage-slaves, fighting for their rights. They see their oppressors organizing on every hand and they in turn try to meet it with a counter organization. Up to the present, their organization being loosely formed, and their class interests greatly blurred, it has gone to pieces, but it has arisen again, ever stronger until to-day they are represented by a well disciplined uncompromising organization called the Socialist Party, each member recognizing that his interest lies with the working class, with "no compromise" as the watchword.

Cleveland Citizen.

The expected has happened. The Mergenthaler Company has placed a new and cheap linotype machine on the market. It is especially designed for country offices. The claim is made that any person possessing common sense can operate the device after learning the keyboard, and no machinist is needed to set it up, as there are no breakages. Four men's work can be done on the machine at a total cost of about $25 a week. The liberal terms offered by the company will no doubt tend to generally introduce the new linotype, the country printer will make tracks for the city to find refuge in a job office if possible and the little hand composition done in job plants will also be turned out by machines. The average printer can't purchase this new tool of production, and, even if he could, he would be unable to carry it about with him, so he virtually becomes a slave to the capital in the iron scab. But the printers are pretty sensible sort of folk, and to-day hundreds of them are studying Socialism with a view to voting themselves into control of the labor-displacers.

Puck.

The useless old have formed a more or less troublesome element in every state of society. The savage tribes took simple ways to be rid of them. Some they buried alive and some they thriftily ate. A few were turned carelessly out to starve. Curiously enough, this latter method, extreme in its heartlessness, most nearly resembles the civilized method. Civilization is so perplexingly lop-sided. We would hardly shoot the old man and old women who have no means of support. The inhumanity of it would be too easy of detection. But we do, to a certainty, adopt the less merciful plan of condemning a very considerable number of them to starvation, or to a course of hardship that is merely starvation with a few trimmings. We take better care of our worn out work horses. They have hides and hoofs and bones. But our commercial experts have as far found no post mortem use for old men and old women, and their lot continues to be less enviable than that of the superannuated truck horse.

STATE CAPITALIS[illegible]

The Future Danger Which the So[illegible] Movement Will Have to Overcom[illegible] trustees, [illegible]er, Art.

But there is scant room for question that Socialism is the goal toward which the trust tends. Those Socialists are right who see in the trust phenomena their predicted socialistic evolution. If Socialism comes at all, it must come in one of two ways. Either by the absorption of industries by government, or by the absorption of government by industrial agencies. Both tendencies are at work. Government is reaching out, not through the influence of Socialist parties, however, but under the pressure of grasping private interests, and in the form of protective tariffs, subsidies, and the like, for the regulation of functions which are distinctly individual (sic) and non-invasive. Concurrently, trusts are reaching out for the control of government. It is impossible to read Mr. Baker's account of the steel trust ("McClure's Magazine," November, 1901), without seeing in that organization the possibilities and prophecy of an overmastering governmental machine. If there were no opposing tendency, it could be predicted with almost absolute certainty that the trust would at no distant day evolve into an autocratic, plutocratic, all-embracing and paternal socialistic state.—The Public.

The above would be the result of mere "government ownership" with the government remaining under the control of the capitalist class. In order to have real Socialism and industrial democracy the working class must first capture the powers of government by the exercise of their political power in a party of their own class.

FOR LABOR DAY.

A song of labor must be sung to-day.
A ringing song that, sounding o'er the land,
Will make men listen. At his daunting forge,
His hand upon his bellows pole, the smith
Will pause and stop the hissing of his flame.
The plowman lean upon the handles of
His plow, the puddler at the furnace door,
His molten mass half poured, the quarryman
Let go his drill a space, the miner rest
Upon his pick, and all the men that toil
Will stand enrapt as if they heard the song
And sweet clear music of a happy dream—
A dream of being free, with happy hearts
Filled with content and peaceful certainty
That none can claim a toll from all the toil.

And then a song of labor must be sung
To wake the workers from this spell of dreams.
A song that stirs their hearts to action, like
A ballad of old times that promises
With martial ring to the fray—a song that streams
And flaunts like an unfurled free banner high
In the eternal freshness of the sky;
The song words like a banner's bold device
This song should come unto the ears of all
The tokens of the toil from weary toil.
Unwelcome as first hearing bells arose
And unrelled the music till the world were filled
With sympathetic throbbings of the sense
Of lowly mankind they as long have worn
And raise their voices, beating each his breast
Of the glad burden of the song of love
And brotherhood. This is the song that must
Be sung by the best singers of to-day.

—Vladimir Kanzasky.

PARTY NOTES.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR THE Worker is on in full earnest in the 15th and 17th Assembly Districts. At the last meeting each member took five subscription postals to dispose of and the branch subscribed for one hundred copies of The Worker each week to put out on the newsstands and have made arrangements to have this work done. We predict a big gain in the vote in these districts, as the past has proven that no better means of agitation has been found. Will your district be the one to shirk in this work? Make it a special order in your district to discuss ways and means to carry on a special campaign for a daily by pushing the weekly, and thus making Socialist votes.

JOB HARRIMAN HAS BEEN chosen National Committeeman from New York and B. Berlyn of Chicago from Illinois.

T. D. MEADE WILL LECTURE AT the Socialist Educational League, 215 East Fifty-ninth street, New York, this Sunday evening, January 26.

AT COLONIAL HALL, ONE HUNdred and First street and Columbus avenue, New York, this Sunday evening, January 26, Rev. J. C. Hogan of East Orange, N. J., will lecture on "Present Day Problems and Their Solution." All are cordially invited.

N. I. STONE WILL LECTURE ON "The Attitude of Socialism Toward Trade Unions" at the Volks Lyceum, 218-220 Second street, on Friday evening, January 24.

C. H. VAIL AND MRS. VAIL spoke at Cold Spring, N. Y., on Jan. 14, to a large and attentive audience, who seemed to be well pleased to know what Socialism was. This was the first time in the history of the village that Socialism was spoken from a public platform. The local here is young and the comrades are very aggressive. Several questions were asked after the meeting, and a good collection was made. There was a delegation from Peekskill, N. Y., present.

ALEX. FRASER WILL LECTURE on "The Economic Basis of Crime" at the Labor Lyceum, Roff street, near Richmond Road, Stapleton, Staten Island, this Sunday evening, January 26, at 7 p. m.

BOSTON, MASS. — THE KARL Marx Class meets every Sunday afternoon at 124 Washington street. Lecture followed by discussion. Secretary Goldstein says "the attendance is larger this season than it has been the past five years."

IN BROCKTON, MASS., A KARL Marx Class has been organized which will meet every Monday evening under the direction of Martha Moore Avery.

THE NATIONAL SECRETARY'S report for December shows a balance on hand, Dec. 1, of $107.24. Receipts during the month were $574.58; expenses, $420.94; balance on hand, Jan. 1, $60.88.

STATE CHARTERS WERE ISsued in December to Utah, Maine, and Iowa. Local charters were issued to Berwin, Hot Springs, and Little Rock, Ark.; Globe and Winslow, Ariz.; Arequa, Cripple Creek, Golden, Goldfield, Norwood, and Victor, Colo.; Longwood, Fla.; Augusta, Ga.; Blackfoot, Idaho Falls, Magnolia, Medimont, and Melrose, Idaho; Baltimore, Md.; Angus, East Belle Prairie, New Ulm, Two Harbors, and Wyoming, Minn.; Chico and Helena, Mont.; Enid, Fallis, Glencoe, and Pawnee, Okla.; Cayote, Cedar City, and Salt Lake, Utah; Norfolk and Richmond, Va.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

The following nominations were made at the last meeting of the County Committee: For Organizer-at-large, Comrades Schneffer and Atkinson; for Corresponding Secretary, E. J. Aberle; for Recording Secretary, Comrade Clayton; for Financial Secretary, J. C. Holzer; for Treasurer, V. E. Coddington; Credential Committee, Comrades Hopkins, Weiss and Wyle; Auditing Committee, Comrades Droste, Koenig, Jr., and McNaff; Committee on Drum and Fife Corps, Comrades Schalk, Hofsted, and Weiss. The subdivisions are hereby notified to elect one delegate each to The Worker Conference of Local King's County, a meeting of which will be called within a week or two.

Notice of an amendment to the constitution was given to change the time of meeting from Sunday afternoon to Saturday evening. This will come up for debate at the next meeting of the County Committee, and all delegates who have not attended the Sunday meetings because they were otherwise engaged on that day ought to be on hand to choose a more suitable date.

The committee elected to look after the welfare of the Drum and Fife Corps reported that that organization was slightly embarrassed financially, and requested that the branches which have not yet made returns for the tickets of the last festival do so at once.

THE UTAH SITUATION.

The faction which controlled the Salt Lake City convention deny that there were over 500 votes in the convention, as claimed by the regular state organization. They say there were only 385 votes in the convention. The number of due-paying members of the party in Utah in November was 52. In December, 167. The faction which controlled the convention disclaim any intention of irregularity, although admitting that the proceedings were possibly illegal from a technical point of view. The National Secretary, while recognizing the regular state organization, is collecting evidence in the case, to be presented to the National Committee. The faction which controlled the convention, and which appears to include men and women who have been workers in the movement, indignantly resent any imputation of their motives.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 360 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary 478 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at Aurora Hall, 135 Union street, New Haven.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first and third Friday evenings of the month at 79 Dearborn street.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Atlanta.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont street, Somerville; Assistant and Financial Secretary, Alton G. Clifford, Mount Auburn Station, Cambridge, Mass.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 N. Beam street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1904 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arustein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Monday at 8 p. m., at above place.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eidsness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. W. Quick, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Wilson, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 637, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 229 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE.—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

NEW YORK.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Regular meeting of the General Committee will be held on Saturday, Jan. 25. Election of officers and other important business to transact. Delegates are requested to come early.

FINANCIAL SECRETARIES.

The Financial Secretaries of the following subdivisions are called upon to at once send in the membership reports: Second and 8th Assembly Districts, 4th Assembly District, 6th and 10th Assembly Districts, 11th Assembly District, and 23d Assembly District, Bohemian Branch. Secretaries will attend to this at once.

J. GERBER, Organizer.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON.

The Executive State Committee met at 330 Shawmut avenue, Saturday, Jan. 18, at 7:30 p. m. Members present: Carey, Putney, Konikow, Schmidt, Page, and Pinnegan.

The Secretary reported on progress in organization of town and city committees. Committe on rules reported progress. Voted that State Committee indorse as town committees such citizens as seem to be good Socialists, though not elected by the election in a town where there are no caucus elected committees.

There being a vacancy on the Executive Committee, because of Comrade MacCartney not being a member of the State Committee, it was voted to call for nominations from the members of the State Committee, and submit the same to a referendum vote.

Attest: SQUIRE E. PUTNEY, Secretary.

To Socialist Comrades of Massachusetts.

The State Committee of 1901 voted that the following correspondence be published in the Socialist press:

"To Squire E. Putney, Secretary of the Social Democratic Party, Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Dear Comrades:—The historic developments through which the Socialist movement in Massachusetts has passed have left in my possession the archives of the old Socialist Labor Party State Committee from the time of its organization.

I desire to present them to the State Committee of the Social Democratic Party as its successor; the body which now stands as the trusted guardian of the rights and as the foremost promoter of the progress of the Socialist movement within our well beloved commonwealth. With Socialist greetings, I am fraternally,

DAVID GOLDSTEIN.

To David Goldstein.

Dear Comrade:—Allow me by authority of the State Committee, S. D. P., to extend their thanks for archives of S. L. P. State Committee.

Whatever mistakes the Socialist Labor Party have made, especially in recent years, said party gave the political movement in this state with good and true Socialists, who stood firmly for correct Socialist principles. May the Social Democratic Party emulate their early zeal and faithfulness and be strong enough to avoid their mistakes of later years.

Personally I am glad that so much that is, and will in time be of so much more value from an historical standpoint, is now SAFE for future history when the historian wishes to look up the beginnings of the Socialist political movement.

Yours fraternally,
SQUIRE E. PUTNEY,
Secretary of State Committee, S. D. P.

MONOPOLY'S GRIP.

The Landlord stands at the coal mine door—
"Stand back! Stand back!" saith he.
"The bounties of God are all my store,
And ye may but work for me.

"Now doff your cap for a job, my man,
And take what the owners give—
God help the man that's under the ban
Of the trusts that let man live."

The Landlord stands by the iron mine,
And "the iron trade grows slack"—
"Ye shall pay me more for the God-made ore,
Or for tools and labor back."

And the tools are few in the farmers' fields
And the coal in the kitchen stove is scant—
Alas, for the man who pays what he can,
And takes what the trust Kings grant.

For the buyers wait in the market place,
And the workmen wait at the mills;
And the Cry, Oh, for the land is the gripping hand
Of the trusts whose earth-grip kills.

—Virginia M. Butterfield, in Johnstown, Pa., Democrat.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

Socialism and Christianity.

Editor The Worker.

"Socialism is a science. Christianity a speculation." With these words an article by George Cutting is opened in your issue of January 12. The implication is that because the one is a science and the other a speculation there can be no connection or relationship between them. But, as a matter of fact, every science is closely connected with speculation of some kind or other, and Christianity being a social force of the utmost importance, and Socialism an economic and social science, the connection is most intimate.

The writer says that "Christianity deals with individuals and life hereafter and teaches that life here is but a passing event preparatory to everlasting life."

Very well, admitting that it does teach this, what of it? I, as an individual believing that I am to spend a pleasant life in another world throughout eternity, nevertheless wish to make myself as comfortable as possible while sojourning here. Then, what is more natural, I know that generation after generation is to follow me here and that there is practically an eternity of human existence on this earth. It is for those who are to follow, even more than myself, that I am interested. At least, so we Socialists argue to ourselves and to the world. It is for future generations that we are to-day agitating and propagating our doctrines.

What, now, is there inconsistent or unreasonable in the holding of the belief of a life in another world, and a belief that conditions can be improved in the present for the benefit of those now living, or of those to live hereafter?

It would seem that even a casual reading of history would prove that religious faith or even belief in a personal God or a future existence does not prevent, does not interfere with, the holding of revolutionary theories or the putting into most effective and sanguinary practise those same theories.

From the rebelling of the Jews against the making of brick without straw and other Egyptian oppression to the hymnsinging Roundhead revolution of Cromwell's Ironsides, who marched against the cavalier aristocracy of England, this truth has been most apparent. Both leaders and followers in the great democratic revolutionary movements of the past have been men holding some religious faith, and their faith has never dampened their ardor or cooled their courage.

The ethics of Christianity and Socialism are not so far apart as Mr. Cutting would have us believe by citing the command of Christ to the rich young man to sell all his goods and give to the poor as it is repeated to-day. Socialism was at that time impossible and charity was only one way of bringing about a more equitable distribution of property and a greater equality of opportunity. It is, moreover, possible that the only object of Jesus in asking this sacrifice of the man was to bring to his attention his greatest weakness.

Christ added but one commandment to the decalogue, and to none of this small but comprehensive body of law can a Socialist reasonably object; nor is any teaching of these commandments antagonistic to the tenets of Socialism.

Socialism may suffer from too many articles of faith, from a too extensive discipline. What more is necessary than that one understands the economic development of recent times, believes in the class struggle, and votes for the Co-operative Commonwealth, in not such an one a Socialist? If he does so believe and vote and understand, is he not a Socialist? May he not then, if he likes, believe that the earth is flat or its surface on which we live a hollow sheet; that the world was made in six days or six seconds or six million years; that Satan fell out of heaven; that it is wrong to eat meat on Friday or to kiss the pope's toe?

I see no inconsistency in a man's believing at one and the same time that there are seven heavens, a personal god, a personal devil, eternal punishment for the damned, and at the same time believing that conditions on earth may be greatly improved by the inauguration of the Co-operative Commonwealth.

The danger of the church fastening itself on to the Socialist movement does not seem very great at this time, in fact, there is no evidence of any large body of persons at present fastening themselves onto the movements. Our vote and membership does not show any such tendency.

The fact that the Socialists have promised the priests and ministers that under Socialism these men of the cloth shall have some work given them to perform will keep them miles away from the party.

Some of our party members are always having a nightmare, seeing things in their dreams, and wanting to save the party from some new and great danger. The latest discovered is Christ a Socialist.

Of course, there is no such thing as "Christian Socialism," but if any one wishes to call himself a Christian Socialist or a vegetarian Socialist, or an Intellectual Socialist, or a Marxian, scientific, revolutionary, or class-conscious Socialist, who cares and what is the harm?

In the meantime let us quit conjuring up ghosts to go out among the masses and make Socialists.

If the French and German workingmen are imbued with the teachings of Voltaire and the materialistic philosophers it was due to the horrors of Socialist-in those countries to attack Christianity or any other religion. But in the English speaking world the policy is suicidal. The working class does not distinguish at present between the church and the religion it was first organized to teach, and construes an attack upon the church organization or the clergy as an attack upon religion.

It is to be hoped that Socialists will cease trying to confine Socialist propaganda by their narrow dogmas of materialism.

C. E. SPELMAN.

New York.

(Note.—We refer our correspondent to the editorial on this subject in another column. —Ed.)

"More Christian Socialism."

Editor The Worker.

In The Worker of this week I notice an article under the head of "Christian Socialism," to which I would like to say your columns to reply to.

According to the various dictionaries, as well as the general understanding of the word, scientific means something certain, a fact which can be proved by demonstration. Such being the case with Christian Socialism, it is eminently scientific. That there is such so-called Christian Socialism that has no right to the name of Christian does not make less true that which is Christian. The whole fabric of Socialism depends upon the recognition of the truths taught by Christ, and it is only as those precepts are lived up to that Socialism becomes possible. It would be an utter impossibility to saddle a Christ on this movement. As God is Our Father, and we are His children so we must be brothers, and it was that fact largely which was the basis of His teachings.

With Herron, I assert that "God is love," but for that I also have the authority of the scriptures as well as the evident application of the doctrine of love in all the departments of life, and without which Socialism could not exist.

That the emotions are frequently played upon by some Christian preachers I do not deny, but these methods are also frequently used by Socialists. That Socialists depend largely upon material resources is their weak point, and utterly unscientific; for as God is the source of their being, and controls everything, it is evidently useless to depend upon resources that conflict with our source of supply. God is spirit, and man is his offspring. The only contentment vaunted in the scriptures is contentment with good, and requires mankind to overcome whatever is wrong. The constant efforts of all Christian people has been to raise the standard of living to the truths taught by Christ, according to the words of Christ, we know of no distinction of race or money, for He calls us His children. Whatever the preachers do or leave undone, the fact remains that even such able writers as Bellamy or Karl Marx owe their ability to write, owe their ideas, to their Creator, and His wisdom handed down to them in the Bible. It is not possible for them to square true Christianity with Socialism, as Christianity is the foundation of scientific Socialism. If we would have clear-headed, scientific Socialism we must remove this mist or cloud that would hide the originator of Socialism; we must recognize that we are children of a common parent, "Christ."

C. W. MINOR.

January 13, 1902.

(Note.—The antique dogmatism of the above, the crude and unreasoning acceptance of stupendous premises, calls for little comment. We publish the above curious commutation to show the results of confusing a material science with a metaphysical speculation. It emphasizes the value of the article in reply to which our correspondent writes, and should serve as a warning of the dangers arising from illogical or metaphysical methods of thought and propaganda in our movement. From this weird brand of "scientific Socialism" (sic!), "Good Lord, deliver us."—Ed.)

Socialism and Ideals.

Editor The Worker.

The article in The Worker of January 12, 1902, by George Cutting "Socialism vs. Christianity," suggested the following to me:

Until the movement recognizes the power of the unseen forces we call spiritual which embraces reason, ethical forces, and all noble ideals, it will continue to meet deserved defeat at the polls. All revolutions in history, which have meant larger liberty for men, have appealed to the ideal or spiritual.

Capitalism is devoted to the material. It makes man a machine for the production of property. Socialism appeals to the ideal or spiritual. Socialism makes property of use only as it supports man. The ideals of Socialism and of Christianity are the same." Both consider man of primary and property of secondary importance.

Christianity as taught to-day by most pious teachers is not the genuine article. Don't abuse Christianity because it is falsely presented. Very few professed Christians would accept Jesus if he appeared to-day as he appeared 1900 years ago. Very few Socialists would reject him.

Will you give this a place in your paper.

Yours in the work,

C. P. DEYOE.

Ramsey, N. J., Jan. 10, 1902.

(Note.—"Property," including the means of production, is necessary to life; therefore it can hardly be said to be of secondary importance, as its possession is a condition of existence. For the rest, see editorial column.—Ed.)

Discontent.

Editor The Worker.

They tell us that we preach the doctrine of discontent. We reply that any one who is contented—under present social conditions—is either a fool, or a scoundrel.

Yours truly,

JOHN CONWAY.

New York, Jan. 19, 1902.

"An Ancient Philosopher and Modern Conditions."

Editor The Worker.

The anti-Socialist editor of the "Blue Grass Blade" of Lexington, Ky., in his issue of December 22, 1901—according to his own testimonies having begun to read Socialist literature lately—passes a rather vaguer criticism on Socialists in general because of The Worker's editorial opinion about "The Chinese Exclusion Question" in The Worker's issue of Dec. 8. He claims that Socialists have no sympathy for the "Chinaman or the yellow man—the negro or the Chinaman."

Such criticism might have passed muster in our grandparents' time, but will hardly pass in our present day. "Nothing short of the sentiment of Thomas Paine" bless his memory—"The world is my country and humanity my brethren," will satisfy any just and good man," says the philosopher from Kentucky.

Allow me to state that Socialism would make the above sentiment a practical fact, and not merely sentiment only, as it is to-day. Comrade Moore forgets the fact that Socialism is not inaugurated yet, and that Socialists, like all other practical men, are dealing with competitive conditions, and not with a condition under Socialistic government. And the statement that Socialists have no sympathy for other races but their own is absolutely chimerical, as Socialists are the only people that strive to establish a social condition that would make it possible to extend solid and practical sympathy and brotherly feeling toward all races.

In opposing Socialism, I believe that the editor of the "Blade" commits the same error that so many other adverse critics have committed before. They do not understand our present social system, any more than they understand the coming one; the fact is that most of them will never be able to understand it before they are left themselves by the competitive ram, and even then they will many a time blame something else for their misfortune.

Try it again, Brother Moore. You will be a Socialist by and by if you only live long enough, which I sincerely hope you will.

Your friendly critic,

J. S. GUDMUNDSEN.

Little Rock, Wash., Jan. 7, 1902.

The New Jersey Convention.

Editor The Worker.

In the issue of The Worker of January 19, Comrade Goebel takes great pains, as it seems to me, to try to bring about a controversy about our last convention. The statement of Comrade Krafft in the previous issue of The Worker of January 12 about the changing of the representation at the convention is in every way correct.

As a member of the State Committee, but not having been able to attend the meeting of the said committee at which the form of representation was reconsidered and resubmitted to the locals, I wish to say to Comrade Goebel what is right this was done. As was stated in the referendum submitted, that the necessary NUMBER (?) of branches had seconded a reconsideration. Now, Comrade Goebel knew that and up to that time, we had no constitution in New Jersey to guide the state or to go by?

Personally, I am of the belief that a delegate convention will not only do its work quicker, but also more harmoniously.

The novices as Brother Krafft puts it, was very much in evidence at the last convention, and, it seems to me, had really too much entirely to say, just for the sake of filling the hour themselves talk.

It would be better for those over-zealous comrades, so new in the movement, to learn something of the history of the party before basing upon "expressing" their views, which long before have been found lacking.

The writer will frankly state that he was surprised that in the afternoon session no second chairman was elected, whose duty it always is to keep a list of speakers. Probably the reason why. Comrade Goebel knows only himself. At all conventions it is customary, in the Socialist movement at least, to elect a full bureau, which was also done in Jersey City where there were three chairmen. Or does Comrade Goebel believe the restless wandering around, while the convention has the floor, by the chairman, makes him see the comrade in the rear of the hall who rises to ask the floor? My opinion is that just the comrades favoring a proxy representation, it emphasizes at this convention met their Waterloo.

As to throwing bouquets at the committee on constitution, what Comrade Goebel really does, there is no doubt that the members there have had much propaganda in our movement. From this weird brand of "scientific Socialism" (sic!), "Good Lord, deliver us."—Ed.)

Socialism and Ideals.

Editor The Worker.

The article in The Worker of January 12, 1902, by George Cutting "Socialism vs. Christianity," suggested the following to me:

Until the movement recognizes the power of the unseen forces we call spiritual which embraces reason, ethical forces, and all noble ideals, it will continue to meet deserved defeat at the polls. All revolutions in history, which have meant larger liberty for men, have appealed to the ideal or spiritual.

Capitalism is devoted to the material. It makes man a machine for the production of property. Socialism appeals to the ideal or spiritual. Socialism makes property of use only as it supports man. "The ideals of Socialism and of Christianity are the same." Both consider man of primary and property of secondary importance.

Christianity as taught to-day by most pious teachers is not the genuine article. Don't abuse Christianity because it is falsely presented. Very few professed Christians would accept Jesus if he appeared to-day as he appeared 1900 years ago. Very few Socialists would reject him.

Will you give this a place in your paper.

Yours in the work,

C. P. DEYOE.

Ramsey, N. J., Jan. 10, 1902.

(Note.—"Property," including the means of production, is necessary to life; therefore it can hardly be said to be of secondary importance, as its possession is a condition of existence. For the rest, see editorial column.—Ed.)

Discontent.

Editor The Worker.

They tell us that we preach the doctrine of discontent. We reply that any one who is contented—under present social conditions—is either a fool, or a scoundrel.

Yours truly,

JOHN CONWAY.

New York, Jan. 19, 1902.

"An Ancient Philosopher and Modern Conditions."

Editor The Worker.

The anti-Socialist editor of the "Blue Grass Blade" of Lexington, Ky., in his issue of December 22, 1901—according to his own testimonies having begun to read Socialist literature lately—passes a rather vaguer criticism on Socialists in general because of The Worker's editorial opinion about "The Chinese Exclusion Question" in The Worker's issue of Dec. 8. He claims that Socialists have no sympathy for the "Chinaman or the yellow man—the negro or the Chinaman."

Such criticism might have passed muster in our grandparents' time, but will hardly pass in our present day. "Nothing short of the sentiment of Thomas Paine" bless his memory—"The world is my country and humanity my brethren," will satisfy any just and good man," says the philosopher from Kentucky.

Allow me to state that Socialism would make the above sentiment a practical fact, and not merely sentiment only, as it is to-day. Comrade Moore forgets the fact that Socialism is not inaugurated yet, and that Socialists, like all other practical men, are dealing with competitive conditions, and not with a condition under Socialistic government. And the statement that Socialists have no sympathy for other races but their own is absolutely chimerical, as Socialists are the only people that strive to establish a social condition that would make it possible to extend solid and practical sympathy and brotherly feeling toward all races.

In opposing Socialism, I believe that the editor of the "Blade" commits the same error that so many other adverse critics have committed before. They do not understand our present social system, any more than they understand the coming one; the fact is that most of them will never be able to understand it before they are left themselves by the competitive ram, and even then they will many a time blame something else for their misfortune.

Try it again, Brother Moore. You will be a Socialist by and by if you only live long enough, which I sincerely hope you will.

Your friendly critic,

J. S. GUDMUNDSEN.

Little Rock, Wash., Jan. 7, 1902.

The New Jersey Convention.

Editor The Worker.

In the issue of The Worker of January 19, Comrade Goebel takes great pains, as it seems to me, to try to bring about a controversy about our last convention. The statement of Comrade Krafft in the previous issue of The Worker of January 12 about the changing of the representation at the convention is in every way correct.

As a member of the State Committee, but not having been able to attend the meeting of the said committee at which the form of representation was reconsidered and resubmitted to the locals, I wish to say to Comrade Goebel what is right this was done. As was stated in the referendum submitted, that the necessary NUMBER (?) of branches had seconded a reconsideration. Now, Comrade Goebel knew that and up to that time, we had no constitution in New Jersey to guide the state or to go by?

Personally, I am of the belief that a delegate convention will not only do its work quicker, but also more harmoniously.

The novices as Brother Krafft puts it, was very much in evidence at the last convention, and, it seems to me, had really too much entirely to say, just for the sake of filling the hour themselves talk.

It would be better for those over-zealous comrades, so new in the movement, to learn something of the history of the party before basing upon "expressing" their views, which long before have been found lacking.

The writer will frankly state that he was surprised that in the afternoon session no second chairman was elected, whose duty it always is to keep a list of speakers. Probably the reason why. Comrade Goebel knows only himself. At all conventions it is customary, in the Socialist movement at least, to elect a full bureau, which was also done in Jersey City where there were three chairmen. Or does Comrade Goebel believe the restless wandering around, while the convention has the floor, by the chairman, makes him see the comrade in the rear of the hall who rises to ask the floor? My opinion is that just the comrades favoring a proxy representation, it emphasizes at this convention met their Waterloo.

As to throwing bouquets at the committee on constitution, what Comrade Goebel really does, there is no doubt that the members there have had much propaganda in our movement. From this weird brand of "scientific Socialism" (sic!), "Good Lord, deliver us."—Ed.)

As to the National Organizer's Salary.

Editor The Worker.

Comrades here were more pleased with Chas. H. Vail than any speaker we have yet had, and such speakers should be well cared for.

Having seen in The Worker of January 12, the editorial, "National Organizer's Princely Salary," in reply would say we think those who criticise must be poor Socialists, or do not understand the expense of travel. I would like to know where the "princely salary" comes in. Mr. and Mrs. Vail's hotel bill is $4 per day, railroad fare $4 per day, total $8 per day. Where does the money for clothing come in?

I call $8 per day poor salary, and think myself a fair judge, because I have no money in bank and no home to call my own. In my estimation, Comrade Vail and wife should be paid $15 per day, when they pay their own expenses.

I never wrote for publication before.

Yours fraternally,

C. H. CASPAR.

Fort Edward, N. Y.

Letter Box

MRS. IMOGENE FALES, Brooklyn.—Papers are sent. Delay is due to your failure to observe our oft repeated warning NOT to send business communications to the editor. Subscriptions, orders for papers, etc., should always be addressed to The Worker and kept separate from editorial matter, which should be addressed to the Editor of The Worker. This may serve as one more notice to other correspondents.

B. A. SHAW, Brighton, Mass.—You will find the Socialist Campaign Book of 1900 very useful. Chapters 7 and 8 give 34 pages to the subjects of "Wages and Living Expenses" and "How the Working Class Live." A great amount of statistical material is there brought together and analyzed. The rest of the book is equally valuable on other phases of the labor question. It can be had from this office. Price, 25 cents.

We would refer you also to an article in our issue of Sept. 1, 1901, page 3, entitled "Instructive Statistics," based on the last report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and to one in our issue of Dec. 15, page 4, entitled "Wages and Prices," and one in our issue of Dec. 29, page 4, entitled "The Increased Cost of Living," both founded on Dun's reports; to one in our issue of Jan. 5, page 4, entitled "Capitalism in Cotton Trade," founded on a recent United States Census report; and to similar articles in our present issue.

It is undoubtedly true that money wages are increasing. On the other hand, the increase in the cost of living must be offset against this. If the prices of the things that workingmen buy increase faster than money wages, then real wages are reduced instead of increased. Yet we may admit that, on the whole, taking any long period of years, real wages are increasing slowly. Still the question remains: Are the wages of workingmen getting a larger or a smaller share of the product of their labor? To put it in other words: Are real wages increasing as fast as the product of labor increases? We think the statistics, in particular those quoted in the articles to which we refer you, justify us in replying: No; the product of labor is increasing faster than the wages of labor; consequently the workingmen are getting a smaller and smaller share of their increasing product.

In the last sentence of your letter your meaning seems to be correct, though the phraseology is incorrect. You ask: "Is it not true that labor receives one-quarter of the total PROFITS of industry, instead of one-quarter of the total values included in the process?" Let us illustrate by a supposed case:

Suppose in a given industry materials used (including coal, lighting, wear and tear of plant, etc.) cost $100,000; wages of labor amount to $100,000; and the value of the product is $300,000. Obviously the product of that industry is $400,000—since the cost of materials must be deducted, as they are the product of previous labor in other industries.

There is, then, in this case, a new product, or net product, of $400,000—of which value $100,000 goes to the laborers who create it, and $300,000 to the capitalists who own the means of production.

But you must not call that $400,000 "the total PROFITS of the industry." The point is the share which the capitalists retain—the total net profits—out of the product; or, in other words, the total new product minus wages of labor. In the supposed case, the profit is $300,000 or three-quarters of the product of that industry. And in this supposed case labor gets one-quarter of the value it produces. As for the value of the materials—that belongs to the analysis of some other industry which produced them, and of that industry, too, we should find that there was a division of the product between capitalists and laborers, probably in about the same ratio.

This illustration will explain the true method of reading such statistics.

Two other considerations must be born in mind in analyzing the official statistics of industry: First, that much of what is charged to "miscellaneous expenses" should legitimately be charged to profits—such items as rent of land or factories, a large part of the high salaries (which are often a disguised form of profits, the high-salaried officials being also stockholders), interest on loans, etc. In general, the real profits are much larger than they appear from the official statistics. Second, as we are considering the final division of the products between the capitalist class and the working class, we must remember that out of his wages the workers generally pay rent to the capitalists for their home—commonly the largest single item of expenditure—a large portion of the total wages; and also that the workers, buying at retail the goods that they have produced, pay the profits of two or three grades of middlemen. For these items we have no accurate statistics. But it seems certain that, if we take them into account, even if we put the most conservative construction upon the official statistics, it is safe for us to say that the working class, as a whole and in the long run, certainly does not get more than one-quarter of the value it produces, probably gets less, and is getting a smaller and smaller share of its product.

CAMPAIGN FUND.

To the Holders of Subscription Lists for the Campaign Fund of the Social Democratic Party of the City of New York:

Comrades and friends who still have subscription lists in their possession are requested to send the lists in at once, as the Campaign Committee would like to wind up its business as soon as possible. As there is some deficiency the comrades would confer a favor on the committee by promptly returning lists and money collected, as it may help the committee to meet all its liabilities. Those who have not collected any money on their lists are also requested to turn in their lists, as this will greatly aid the auditing committee in auditing the accounts. Therefore, come rush in your lists, lists with dimes, quarters, and dollars are prefetred, but we want all, even the empty ones. Send lists and money to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street.

Previously acknowledged	$2,213.35
C. Classen, account List 2303	.25
List 251, S. Lederer	$1.00
List 5207, Work. Ed. Assn, Bronx	1.25
List 5210, do	.75
List 346, Fred Rapp	.50
Total	$2,217.10

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

The party which this paper represents is known nationally as the Socialist Party, and such is its designation in most of the states. In New York, however, and in Massachusetts, it keeps the former name of Social Democratic Party, for reasons concerning the election laws. It has no connection with the Socialist Labor Party and does not approve of the "union smashing" tactics or the abusive methods used by that party. The Socialist or Social Democratic Party works in harmony with the trade unions, though without any organic connection. It holds itself free to criticize their policy when necessary, but it approves of the principle of trade unionism. It does not attempt to dictate to the unions nor is it dictated to by them. It calls upon all workingmen to join the unions of their respective trades as a means of fighting the daily battle against the capitalist class and to join and work and vote for the Socialist Party as a means of putting an end to capitalism.

—For neither tower nor ship is aught if destitute of men dwelling therein.—Sophocles, in Oedipus.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Of the Fair Held for the Benefit of the Labor Press, Nov. 10 to 16.

Comrade:—We herewith submit to you a financial statement for the Grand Labor Fair and Exhibition held in Grand Central Palace, Nov. 10 to 16, for the benefit of the "New Yorker Volkszeitung," "Vorwärts," and The Worker. The large amount of work involved in making up all the various accounts connected with the Fair has made it impossible to render this statement at an earlier date.

The showing is certainly a highly satisfactory one and reflects great credit upon the organizations and the individual comrades who gave us such active support in our enterprise. The success of the Fair surpassed all expectations and it was unquestionably the greatest affair of the sort ever held by labor organizations in this city.

The proceeds of the Fair have made it possible for the papers named to continue their work with renewed vigor and for them to take steps for such an extension of their activity and of their sphere of influence as will greatly increase their usefulness to the labor movement and materially aid in laying the foundation for an English daily paper.

With hearty congratulations upon the success of our common enterprise and sincere thanks for your co-operation in it, we are

Fraternally,
THE FAIR COMMITTEE.

New York, Jan. 10, 1902.

RECEIPTS.

Tickets sold by Ticket Committee	$5,297.20
Tickets sold at Gate	993.20
Total amount of tickets sold		$6,290.40
Booths, special drawings		1,967.95
At Bar, for beer, liquors, cigars, etc.		2,360.73
Bavarian Bierstube		1,128.83
Restaurant		502.30
Wheel of Fortune		2,096.83
Articles Sold at Stands		440.15
Contests		426.45
Cash donations		1,074.18
Goods donated		254.00
Funny parlor		78.79
Horse		197.25
Hat Rox		328.05
Shooting Gallery		109.85
Sundries		32.15
Total Receipts		$17,397.43
Expenditures as itemized		5,044.72
Net gain		$12,352.71
Rebate from Licenses		318.33
Total Surplus		$12,671.04

EXPENDITURES.

Bar—
Beer	$229.35
Cigars	15.00
Soft drinks	20.00
Denatured alcohol, Beer mugs	66.03
License, one-half year, of which 5 months will be refunded, and U. S. Liquor Tax	414.66	$765.04
Restaurant—
Groceries	$44.83
Milk	6.65
Bread and cake	65.80
Meat	75.04
Kitchen help	22.50
Sundries	8.55	229.87
Soda Water Stand—
Ice cream	$43.00
Soda water and syrups	16.48
Help	20.00	67.48
Wheels of Fortune		8.00
Entertainment—
Stage	$37.75
Music	218.00	305.75
Shooting Gallery		$12.19
Horse		100.00
Ice		25.50
Illuminations		19.00
Salaries—
Bartenders	$93.10
Waiters	133.50
Hat Boy	45.00
Wm. Rutscher	82.00
I. Phillips	100.00
F. P. Quinn, Jr.	100.00
Richhorn	14.00
Cohn	19.10
Kirschner	86.05
Sandre	15.00
Flaschel	15.00
Sundries	177.50	$873.10
General Expense—
Printing, including tickets and donation books	$375.80
Stationery	40.27
Postage	208.91
Rent	1,017.69
Decoration	224

REPORT TO NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

(Continued from page 1.)

on Oct. 9 at North Baltimore, O. Although the local quorum gave me the liberty of using my discretion, certain matters pertaining to the party organization were in such a critical stage at the time that I was (much to my own regret) obliged to decline the invitation.

However, in view of the fact that this organization succeeded in inducing Mother Jones to address them in my stead, I feel that my absence on the occasion was a fortunate circumstance for them, while the interests of our party could not have been better served.

UNITED MINE WORKERS, ILLINOIS.

During the month of December we sent organizing materials, together with a personal letter to the secretaries of 300 unions of the United Mine Workers in the state of Illinois, including acquaintances made during my lecture tours in this state. This work was undertaken with the approbation of the Illinois State Committee, who anticipated results of considerable importance.

SCRANTON CONVENTION, A. F. L.

Having in mind the numerical growth of the trade union movement during the past year, and the influence and activity of the Socialists in the trade unions, greatly increasing the influence and power of the latter in combatting the capitalist class, resulting in a closer alignment of the Socialist and trade union movements among the rank and file, as evidenced by the presence of so many trade unionists at the Unity Convention; and which evolution has been accentuated by the act of the Unity Convention and our policy in the steel strike, it became manifest to us that the Scranton Convention would be signalized by a large increase in the number of Socialist delegates. We anticipated that these comrades would endeavor to secure a more favorable expression on the Socialist movement that that vouchsafed heretofore.

While we understood that arguments previously used against a declaration for militant Socialism (and which may have held good at one time), had, by the consistent attitude of our party for the past three years become too stale and flat for further use, we realized that our comrades at the convention had a task before them that was insurmountable at this time.

Nevertheless being desirous of encouraging them by every means in our power, and, if possible, stimulating the era of mutual understanding and help that is slowly but surely possessing the trade union and Socialist movements, we issued an "Address to the delegates to the Twenty-first Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor," a typewritten copy of which, properly signed and sealed was sent to Frank Morrison, Secretary.

We had one thousand copies of this address printed on handsome cover paper, the major part of which were sent for distribution to Comrades Mailly, Brandt, Hayes, Geiger and Slayton, together with a quantity of the national constitution, platform, trade union and negro resolutions and 300 copies of "Socialist Politics and Labor Politics." Copies of the address were sent to the Socialist and labor press and the secretaries of our state organizations

On December 7 we sent a telegram to Frank Morrison, secretary, expressing the spirit of our party, which was read to the convention and entered in the minutes. The resolutions on Socialism adopted by the convention differ but little either in phraseology or spirit with previous expressions. They may possibly reflect a growing consciousness of the class struggle not unlike with official unconsciousness and [illegible] over the possible consequences.

[illegible] that there was an unusually [illegible]able representation of Socialist delegates, and that discussion on Socialism was postponed until the "eleventh hour," was, to say the least, a singular coincidence. The impression created on our comrades was that the predominating element was afraid to meet the issue. If this is so (and the circumstances seem to warrant it), the confessed weakness of our opponents implies simultaneously the admission of our strength, namely, the presence of an "INCREASED NUMBER OF SOCIALIST DELEGATES, and it is a tactical discovery which should possess the highest significance to our comrades.

BEN TILLETT.

Through the good offices of our comrades at this convention, we were enabled to enlist the services of Comrade Ben Tillett of England, Fraternal Delegate, for a lecture tour under the combined auspices of the Socialist Party and the trade union movement. The time for making arrangements was very limited, but we have been instrumental thus far in making engagements for him at Springfield, O.; Saginaw, Mich.; Erie, Pa.; Rochester, N. Y.; Terre Haute, Ind.; Milwaukee, Chicago, and St. Louis. Comrade Tillett also spoke under joint auspices of the Socialist Party and the trade union movement at Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Cleveland, New Castle, and doubtless other points of which we have not as yet been informed.

We received requests for two dates from the Winnipeg Labor Party of Winnipeg, Manitoba, which we have referred to Comrade Tillett.

CONCLUSION.

The period covered by this report and the financial means at our command were both limited; but nevertheless, we believe that steady progress has been made by us in the trade union movement, while proofs are not wanting that our labors in the trade unions have greatly strengthened them, while redounding in a gratifying increase in the local organizations of our party.

In order to continue the progress already made in the trade unions, it becomes incumbent on our comrades everywhere to take an active part in the labor organizations. In the labor movement is strongly imbedded the root of our power and nourishment. It devolves upon us to imbue the wage-working class with the revolutionary spirit of Socialism; inspire them with the consciousness of their human rights and duties; reveal to them the knowledge of their tremendous power; and instruct them how to handle and direct this power for the benefit and emancipation of their own class. A Socialist movement that did not include the general labor movement as an integral part would be as hollow internally as an empty shell, and as weak in vitality as an egg, devoid of procreative properties. On the other hand, the general trades and labor movement is equally dependent on the Socialist forces, and that they are beginning to realize this is demonstrated by their active participation in our political organization.

II.

AGITATION.

We have from the very beginning been alive to the importance of effective national agitation, and have endeavored to further same as far as it laid in our power. By the act of the Unity Convention, we assumed the contract of the Springfield faction with National Organizer Charles H. Vail for one year. In the month of August, Comrade Vail, being in St. Louis, held a conference with us, at which he requested us to inform him not later than October whether it was our desire to continue the existing arrangement after January 1, 1902.

He made this request as a matter of justice to himself in order to give him sufficient time to make other arrangements in the event of the termination of our contract.

The local quorum hesitated to assume the responsibility for either the continuation or termination of the contract. We had no means of ascertaining the wishes of the party in this matter. After due consideration the quorum voted on Friday, October 11, to extend the contract with Comrade Vail for three months, namely, January, February, and March, 1902, but to refer the extension of contract beyond April 1 to the entire National Committee when they meet in this city in January. In order to enable the committee to come to a satisfactory conclusion I append herewith the report of National Organizer Charles H. Vail for the year 1901.

REPORT OF CHAS. H. VAIL, 1901.

Number public lectures, 241; average attendance, 214; attendance ranging from 25 to 2,000; the bad weather now and then bringing down the average; received from locals, $1,497.36; railroad expenses, $468.91 (this does not include expenses of Mrs. Vail, who usually accompanied me on the tours); received from National Secretary Butscher on salary, $60; on railroad expenses, $148.60; received from National Secretary Greenbaum on salary, $252.85. Itemized statement of above has been furnished the National Secretary from month to month. States visited, 24; including New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, Utah, Colorado and Michigan.

Amount collected from locals was three-fourths of salary, leaving balance to be paid by National Committee of only $42 per month. Space will not permit statement of work done aside from public lectures, in talks to locals, members, etc., etc. Nearly all places where I was sent were organized and the result of meetings was shown by the public interest aroused and the applications for membership to locals. The press have been generous in the amount of space given to reports of meetings and hundreds of columns of Socialist doctrine has thus been given circulation. During the whole year I missed but one appointment, and this was due to change of date of which I had no knowledge. New locals were organized in nearly every place visited where no organization existed. The meetings, with but few exceptions, were held in halls, and in quite a number of places an admission of ten cents was charged. This method proved satisfactory, enabling the local to meet the entire expense of the meeting, and often netting a nice little sum in addition. I do not deem it necessary to give special reports of meetings, inasmuch as our papers have given accounts of the same from time to time.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES H. VAIL.

STATEMENT OF ACCOUNT, 1901

Submitted by Charles H. Vail. Received on salary from locals and National Secretary.

January—Locals	$100.00
February — National Secretary Butscher through New York State Committee	25.00
National Secretary Butscher	25.00
Locals	81.50
March—Locals	145.50
April — Locals	155.95
May — Locals	98.51
National Secretary Butscher	10.00
June — Locals	192.00
July — Locals	229.00
August — Locals	176.00
October — Locals	145.00
November — Locals	56.00
December — Locals	117.00
August — National Secretary Greenbaum	50.00
September— Do	25.00
September— Do	25.00
November— Do	25.00
November— Do	50.00
November— Do	25.00
November— Do through New Jersey State Committee	22.50
December— Do	30.35
Total	$1,810.21
Amount salary	$2,000.00
	1,810.21
Balance due	$189.79

Amount of railroad expenses.

January	$17.95
February	18.83
March	41.75
April	42.83
May	27.24
June	80.39
July	69.38
August	112.67
October	27.95
November	8.48
December	30.44
	$468.91

Amount received on railroad expenses from National Secretary Butscher for first five months $148.60

	$468.91
	148.60
Balance due	$320.31

Apart from the constant agitation maintained by Comrade Vail, all other forms of agitation that we have attempted, have of necessity been of the most spasmodic and irregular character. In August, Comrade Walter Thomas Mills came especially to St. Louis, and in behalf of himself and Comrade J. A. Wayland, tendered us the services at any time of any or all of the scholars attending the Girard School of Social Economy, but owing to the enervated condition of the entire movement at that time and the disconnected methods of agitation that have been in vogue since the various state organizations have been formed, we have never been able to avail ourselves of the generous proposition of these comrades. During August and September, Comrade H. Gaylord Wilshire made a three week's lecture tour under our auspices in the states of Maine, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts. The assassination of the President and the inflamed condition of the public mind gave a severe shock to any further agitation in the month of September, but apart from the temporary influence of this event we are obliged to say that during the months of October, November, and December there has been practically no agitation conducted under the direct auspices of the National Organization; while we received official reports from a number of state secretaries that the condition of the organization in their respective states was deplorable, owing to the lack of public speakers.

We have been utterly unable to secure prompt, efficient co-operation (with few exceptions) between the respective states or between them and the National Organization in the matter of agitation. As an illustration: on Nov. 29, I wrote to the state secretaries of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kentucky, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Kansas, offering them the services of Comrade John C. Chase for a lecture tour.

Leaving aside the question of Comrade Chase's merits as a lecturer, about which there may be differences of opinion, I would call your attention to the fact that, after waiting three weeks for reply, I was obliged on Dec. 19, to telegraph the state secretaries of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois, for their decision in the matter.

As a matter of justice to Comrade Vail, I feel obliged to say that his lecture tour in Massachusetts in November, was partially rendered ineffective, owing to original delay in ascertaining the wishes of the state committee, and the further fact that after finally placing the tour under our auspices, the state committee, at the "eleventh hour," took the matter under their own jurisdiction; and I was afterwards informed that the sub-committee placed in charge of Comrade Vail's tour neglected its duties until it became too late to recover the valuable time lost. I will not tire the committee by the recital of the many instances of inefficient co-operation that have hindered our efforts in the work of agitation, but will summarize our difficulties as follows:

FINANCIAL.

The state committee fearing to engage the proposed speaker, owing to doubt about the ability of the locals to stand the expense.

OBJECTIONS.

Objections to the speaker, proposed. A speaker who may be acceptable to the majority of state committees may have to abandon his proposed tour owing to the objections of a minority of state committees. It is doubtful if we have a public speaker in the movement who would be acceptable to all of the state committees at once as a lecturer, while on the other hand it does not necessarily follow that the adverse decision of the state committee on a certain speaker represents the unanimous voice of the locals in any particular instance.

CORRESPONDENCE.

It should be borne in mind that it is no easy task for agitators and public speakers to correspond with twenty-one state committees with the likelihood that they may have to start on a tour in Pennsylvania in December, jump to Massachusetts in January, and Ohio in February, with the possibility that California would be able to use them in March. The present methods compel each man who takes the field, as a lecturer or agitator to arrange his own terms and tour with the respective state committees. The number of agitators is not many at the present time, but will gradually increase. The number of state organizations are twenty-one at present, but it is almost certain that within a twelve-month we will have forty-five states and territories organized. What will the condition of affairs be when all the agitators in the country arrange their own lecture tours with forty-five state committees, or direct with the locals.

INDEPENDENT SPEAKERS.

In connection with above would inform you that the Ohio State Committee has sent us a protest against the manner by which the engagement of independent speakers with locals is disarranging the plans of the state committee. They say that they wish to give the speakers traveling under the auspices of the National Committee the preference every time, and that they believe the National Constitution covers the point in question. We mention this especially for the reason that, however much we may desire to help the Ohio state organization, we have so far failed in our efforts, owing to one or more of the reasons herein mentioned.

CONFLICTING PLANS.

Conflict in plans of the respective state committees and competition between them for speakers and agitators. Thus, while one state committee may have agitation plans made for months ahead, other state committees may have plans for two weeks ahead or not at all.

TRAVELING CARD.

In connection with the subject of agitation, we would mention to the committee that cases have been brought to our attention of parties who have sought, and in some instances succeeded, in imposing on our comrades. One of those instances occurred at Wilmington, Del., and another at New Orleans, La. We recommend to the consideration of the committee an agitators' traveling card, or an organizers' commission (similar to that used by the A. F. L.) either of which should bear the signature of the National Secretary and the seal of the National Organization.

CONCLUSION.

Your National Secretary has been embarrassed by the implied responsibility for maintaining agitation on a national scale without the necessary financial means and proper co-operation to meet those supposed obligations. The National Committee should either relieve the National Secretary of responsibility of assisting in National agitation or means should be provided, and thorough regulations introduced to enable him to discharge his duties, which should be defined in the premises.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.

CAPITALISM IN NEW JERSEY.

Census Report on Manufactures Analyzed.

Capital's Share of Labor's Product Increasing—Actual Average Wages of Workers Heavily Reduced.

The United States Census Bureau has issued a preliminary report on the comparative statistics of the manufacturing industries of the state of New Jersey for the years 1890 and 1900 which throws as much light on the development of capitalism as its report on the cotton industry on which we commented three weeks ago.

These figures given may be summed up as follows:

Cost of materials, 1890	$188,974,801
Cost of materials, 1900	380,941,870
Increase, 91 per cent.
Miscellaneous expenses, 1890	$18,026,036
Miscellaneous expenses, 1900	42,640,143
Increase, 131 per cent.
Aggregate wages, 1890	$82,773,387
Aggregate wages, 1900	110,088,605
Increase, 33 per cent.
Gross product, 1890	$353,600,530
Gross product, 1900	611,728,933
Increase, 73 per cent.
Total capital, 1890	$250,658,742
Total capital, 1900	503,824,082
Increase, 101 per cent.
Number of establishments, 1890	9,215
Number of establishments, 1900	15,481
Increase, 8 per cent.
Number of wage-workers, 1890	120,190
Number of wage-workers, 1900	241,581
Increase, 101 per cent.

CONCENTRATION OF CAPITAL.

Comparing the last three items, we see that the number of wage-workers and the amount of capital have increased in about the same proportion and, what is important for our purposes, they have both increased in a much larger ratio than the number of industrial establishments—which partially illustrates the concentration of industry, the displacement of small industries by large ones. Of course, these figures do not show the full extent of concentration, because they do not show the extent to which formerly independent establishments have been brought under the ownership and control of single corporations.

The gradual elimination of the middle class of small capitalists and independent producers and the clearer drawing of the class lines, which is going on steadily all over the country, is illustrated also by a comparison of the growth of the number of wage-workers in the manufacturing industries with the growth of the population of the state.

From 1890 to 1900, the population of New Jersey rose from 1,444,933 to 1,883,669—an increase of 30 per cent. The number of wage-workers in the manufacturing industries, in the same ten years, increased 101 per cent.

To put it in another way: In 1890, the wage-workers in these industries numbered 8 per cent. of the population; in 1900, they numbered 13 per cent. of the population.

DIVISION OF THE PRODUCT.

From the first four items we may draw still more instructive inferences, showing the division of the product between the capitalists and the laborers in 1890 and in 1900, as shown in the following tables:

FOR 1890.

Gross product		$353,600,530
Materials	$188,974,801
Misc. expenses	18,026,036	208,000,837
Net product		$145,599,702
Wages		82,773,387
Profits		$62,826,315

Labor's share of Labor's net product in 1890—57 per cent.

Capital's share of Labor's net product in 1890—43 per cent.

FOR 1900.

Gross product		$611,728,933
Materials	$380,941,870
Misc. expenses	42,640,143	403,582,013
Net product		$208,146,920
Wages		110,088,605
Profit		$98,058,315

Labor's share of Labor's net product in 1900—53 per cent.

Capital's share of Labor's net product in 1900—47 per cent.

The result, therefore, if we take the figures just as they stand and put the most conservative construction upon them, is to show that Labor receives an appreciably smaller share of its product now than ten years ago.

Even these figures, however, do not show the real facts of the case; for, while many of the items included in "miscellaneous expenses"—such, for instance, as fuel, lighting, repairs—are legitimate items of expense—many others—such as rent of land, interest on loans, commissions—are really not a part of the cost of production, but should be included in the item of profits.

For instance, under "miscellaneous expenses" are commonly included amounts spent in the improvement and extension of industrial plants. Now in the ten years in question, the value of the plants has been increased from $250,658,742 to $503,824,082—that is, aside from the profits set down as such, the capitalists have had their properties increased at the rate of about twenty-five million dollars a year.

If we were given a statement of the amount of the different items included under the phrase "miscellaneous expenses," we would certainly have to make a considerable reduction in the figures representing Labor's share of the product in both years, and a corresponding increase in the figures representing Capital's share.

Again, we must remember that the figures given for the value of the product represent factory prices, and that when the workingmen come to spend their wages they have to buy back their products at considerably higher prices, paying the profits of wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers, still further reducing the share of their product which the wage-workers finally enjoy. Further, we have to bear in mind that a very considerable portion of the workingmen's wages goes directly back to the capitalist class in the form of rent, a large portion of which is clear profit to the capitalist class and, consequently, clear fleecings from the working class.

AVERAGE WAGES ACTUALLY REDUCED.

So much for the proportions in which the workingmen's product is divided between them and the owners of the means of production. Let us now see what the statistics show as to the actual average money wages in 1890 and in 1900. On this point the results are truly startling.

In 1890 there were 120,190 wage-workers, receiving aggregate wages of $82,773,387. The average yearly earnings, then, were $688.68.

In 1900 there were 241,581 wage-workers, receiving aggregate wages of $110,088,605. The average yearly earnings, then, were $455.61.

The explanation of this surprising decrease in average yearly earnings, is in the fact that, while the number of skilled and well paid mechanics has not increased very greatly and their wages have increased very little, if at all, there has been an enormous increase in the number of factory operatives—"hands," as they are expressively called, implying that such people have no business to have brains or hearts or human thoughts and feelings—of men and especially women and children, who receive the barest subsistence wages, three or five or eight dollars a week.

And yet, in the face of this frightful fact, published without apology or recognition of its ominous significance—in the face of this, the organs of "respectable public opinion" are surprised that there are Anarchists in New Jersey, are surprised at the low tone of morality, the wide-spread degradation occasionally brought to light by such capitalist crimes as the Bosschieter murder of last year!

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

But there is this saving fact: When Imperial Rome or feudal France reached the limit of their systems of exploitation and oppression, all the forces of destruction were let loose and reconstructive forces came into play but slowly and with difficulty. But the capitalist system, while it surpasses all previous systems of class rule in the inexorable severity of its exploitation and oppression, yet builds up, through the enforced organization of the working class, the constructive power that may peaceably remould it; and through the gigantic organization of industry in corporations and trusts, it makes easier the task which that constructive revolutionary body has to accomplish.

Such figures as we have cited above indicate that capitalism cannot have yet much farther to go. It is the duty, as it is the interest, of all intelligent workingmen to use their united efforts to hasten the day when a system which creates wealth by destroying humanity shall be replaced by a system which will create wealth in order to serve humanity.

That is the task of the Socialist Party.

THE TOURIST BUSINESS IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

BY W. A. COREY.

In the old romantic frontier days, before capitalism came over the mountains in a palace car, it used to be said of the rough and unconventional pioneers that "they had a man for breakfast every morning." Speaking particularly of Southern California popular taste has undergone a change in this regard. In the early days, while a "bad" man was preferred, most any kind of an individual would do in a pinch. But we have grown more discriminating. Now we will have nothing but a tourist. Now it must be "a tourist for breakfast every morning." We now

"Count that day lost whose low descending sun
Sees by our hand no juicy tourist "done."

Enticing and "doing" tourists is a Southern California industry. To be sure we have our climate and we raise oranges and manufacture tamales on the side, but our principal occupation is tourists. If it wasn't for tourists we would be compelled to take in each other's washing or "go out to work."

Tourists are our most valuable "crap," as they say in Kentucky. They bud in the East, blossom on the way and shed their fruit in Southern California. And they usually shed it so completely that were it not for their round trip tickets many of them would never see their native heaths again.

There are two general classes of tourists, viz.: The tourist proper and the break-beam tourist or hobo. Otherwise they are known as capitalist tourists and propertiless tourists or workingmen out of a job. The middle class Easterner rarely becomes a tourist. He stays at home, nurses the chilblains, pays his taxes and does the chores.

Both of the species annually migrate to these shores every winter in countless numbers, though the number varies according to financial conditions in the East.

We are skilled in the handling of tourists and "do" each class in a different way. The capitalist tourist or tourist proper (the hobo is a tourist improper) we meet at the station with a band, carriages, and a committee of prominent citizens. We spread a carpet for them to walk over and hold an awning over their heads. We never speak to them without first begging their pardon for being so impertinent. It is as though we would say, "I beg your pardon, sir, would you prefer to be cut up or boiled whole?"

We get up tally-ho parties for them and toot horns and take them to the ostrich farm and turn them loose in an orange orchard. We hold "functions" and "events" and "affairs" in their honor and we let them keep late hours and get drunk and commit all sorts of "indiscretions" which the police know nothing about. We pay the police to watch the other class of tourists. We do all these things and more as long as the tourists' "dough" holds out.

It is said that this part of the tourist crop of a year ago numbered 30,000, and that they spent in Los Angeles about $750,000. And the "Real Estate News" figures that this year we are good for 50,000 of these birds of passage, and that they can be induced to spend in our midst $1,000,000. And a million good round dollars is not to be sneezed at these hard times. As the above mentioned paper sagely observes, "The California tourist trade is well worth looking after."

The other class of our winter visitors are the break-beam tourists or hobos. Like the other class they come to bathe in our sunshine and fight our fleas, and, while we don't make quite the same kind of fuss over them, still we manage to use even them in our business and extract a little fat out of them indirectly. Being workingmen, as a rule they have no money to squander with us, so we considerately let them work out their accounts on the chain gang beautifying the driveways for the "better class" of tourists. We try to treat them well. We give balls for their benefit—with chain and bracelet attachment—and they not infrequently remain with us for considerable period of time.

Besides performing useful labor on our highways and rockpiles these tourists provide employment for a large number of our citizens.

We have a large army of constables, deputy sheriffs, peace officers, etc., who earn (or at least get) their daily bread looking for and catching hobo tourists. They go about seeking what tourists they may devour. They are paid in fees—so many tourists, so much money—and in mileage to and from the county jail. This places before the aspiring constable the incentive to industry so characteristic of the capitalist system. The more tourists the more fees and mileage. With the constable it is literally a case of no tourist, no breakfast; and the constable not infrequently has a growing family to support. So he toils early and late in the tourist season and catches all he can. He is often so enthusiastic in the chase that the wayfaring stranger has difficulty in convincing the officer that he is not a tourist, but only an ordinary product of the region. If he walks and humbly bears a roll of blankets on his back, the presumption is against him and he must prove that he has not robbed a bank or committed a murder.

Los Angeles County is as large as some eastern states, and so the item of mileage is of consequence. A few tourists caught a long distance from the county jail are worth as much as a larger "string" caught near by. Of course, all this comes out of the taxpayers, who in turn make their money out of the rich tourists. So you see both kinds of tourists are caught, but by different methods.

Southern California literally swarms with vagrants in the winter season, drawn here, of course, by the warm climate. Men who are too poor to afford a roof over their heads naturally seek a climate where a roof is least necessary. So they come down the pike in great numbers. A Southern Pacific conductor recently said he put fifteen break-beam passengers off his train between Los Angeles and Burbank, a distance of ten miles, on one trip. And the same conductor said he put 500 off between Los Angeles and Fresno, a distance of 300 miles, in a week.

They are human driftwood—the legitimate flower and fruit of the capitalistic system. They are the sure evidence of the approaching dissolution of this system.

The Los Angeles chief of police, speaking recently before the local W. C. T. U., said: "Vagrants are increasing in numbers, and there seems to be no legal method of getting rid of them." Of course, he has no remedy. No capitalist has a remedy for anything. The chief's only remedy is to set a great lot of human hawks to watching for and preying upon them and to push them along from one town to another.

Of such is the kingdom of capitalism. Goldplate and a shammed welcome for the rich visitor; an officer's club and bread and water for the moneyless. A smile with a lie behind it for one and a curse for the other. It isn't the man we care anything about; it is his money. And so there is a greedy, gluttonous, unseemly scramble for the dollars he may spend. We watch each other with jealous eyes, each fearing he will not get his share. Every town sets its own little trap to catch "the trade." We fawn and simper and smirk in the effort to "induce eastern capital to invest." Capital is god. We cower before it. We worship it with our faces in the dust. We flatter it with lying tongues. Man is the creator of capital. We are still pagans, worshipping the work of our own hands.

From where I am writing I can see a beautiful valley, rolling foothills and a range of mighty mountains veiled in their purple mist. And I know that beyond the mountain range is the sombre and silent mystery of the desert. And beyond the desert is the great sea. I try to fathom the riddle of the mighty past of all this that lies within my view. I dream of its future. What was it all made for? For a few men to gamble with? Was all this grand canvas painted that a few men might mark it out in town lots and disfigure it with stockyards and packing houses? It was made for all of us and for a better purpose.

Los Angeles, Cal.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public-ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

TRADE UNION NOTES.

Ask your barber to put the union card in his window. Buy only shoes, hats, clothing, jewelry, bread, cigars, and tobacco, and beer bearing the union label.

The Grocery Clerks' Union is making a strong effort for a shorter workday. The plan is to get groceries to close at 7 p. m., except on Friday and Saturday. A number of employers have agreed to the proposition. The Clerks wish that workingmen's wives would make it a point to do their marketing before 7 o'clock, and to give the preference to stores where union clerks are employed.

Secretary John Phillips of the Hatters' desires to correct the false report, which he says has gained wide circulation, that union labels are not placed in soft hats.

The Eccentric and Standard Engineers have removed their business office from 13 Downing street to Brevoort Hall, 154 East Fifty-fourth street, and hereafter a meeting will be held on the first Sunday afternoon in each month for the accommodation of members who work at night.

The Drivers' and Hostlers' Union—Empire Labor Club—passed a resolution at its last meeting subscribing for twenty-five copies of The Worker to be sent to their meetings each week for one year.

The Machinists' Loyal Lodge subscribed for twenty-five copies each week for a year to be sent to their union. The work for the daily is progressing.

The following organizations have taken official action in pushing The Worker in assisting forward the publication of a daily: Jewellers' Union No. 1, Woodcarvers' and Modellers' Association, Cigarmakers' Unions Nos. 140, 144, and 90, Machinists' Union Nos. 406, 313, and 320, Journeymen Tailors' of New York, Upholsterers' Union No. 39, Progressive Varnishers' Union, Coppersmith's Union No. 1, Drivers' and Hostlers' Union. Other organizations have the matter under consideration, and favorable action is expected. The only organization refusing to do anything for this much needed daily is the Clothing Cutters, and the matter was not acted upon, being declared "out of order" by the president. However, the president of the Clothing Cutters has subscribed to The Worker, and if he reads it we can promise he will know better next time. We will see about the Clothing Cutters later.

The annual smoker and entertainment of the Custom Upholsterers' Union will be held Saturday evening, Feb. 1, at Tecumseh Hall, 231 and 233 East Thirty-third street.

—Labor unions have no valid reason for existence, except to give the workers a partial voice in the management of the industry in which they are employed, i. e., about hours, wages, etc. Socialism will give them COMPLETE control. Why not vote instead of striking and starving, for what you want? Why elect men to office who believe in the capitalist system?—Appeal to Reason.

—The wage slave must eat and capitalism demands that out of the products which his labor creates, he must first surrender half to him who owns the tools with which he produced it.—Missouri Socialist.

JEWELLERS LOCKED OUT.

The firm of R. X. Zirnkilton of Philadelphia have declared war on the jewellers' union and notified their employees that they have "absolutely no work for union men." The locked out employees are members of the International Jewelry Workers' Union of America and the executive board, 63 St. Mark's Place, New York City, wishes to notify all members of this craft not to answer advertisements or seek employment with this firm.

This is but one more instance of capitalist class effort to reduce the "free American workingman" to abject slavery by denying him even the right of association with his fellows. Will the jewelry workers enter an effective protest at the ballot box next election? That will be a protest against the system of wage-slavery.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

WORKER'S CALENDAR

FOR 1902.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

In lots of 5 copies ..... 22 cents,
10 copies ..... 35 cents,
100 copies $3.00

Terms: Cash with order.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

SAVE YOUR VOICE, and let our illustrated agitation leaflet, "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," do some of your propaganda. One hundred for 10 one-cent stamps. Besides order a few copies of the January "Comrade," and circulate them. This will bring you good results, for it is PICTURES TALK SOCIALISM. The COMRADE is $1.00 a year—10 cents a copy.

COMRADE PUB. CO., 28 Lafayette Pl., N. Y.

IMPORTANT.

SPECIAL OFFER.—If you remit us one dollar we will send you both WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE ($1 per year) and THE WORKER (50 cents per year) for one year, and add two Worker's Calendars for 1902, all postpaid, or

6 copies "Wilshire's Magazine,"
6 copies The Worker, and
12 Worker's Calendars for 1902.

12 "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," for one year, all to different addresses, on receipt of $5.40.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

If you want to be well informed on all new inventions and the mechanical progress of our age, subscribe for "Scientific American;" subscription price, $3 per year.

WE WILL SEND BOTH WEEKLIES, "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" AND THE WORKER FOR ONE YEAR ON RECEIPT OF $3.00 or

"Scientific American,"
"Wilshire's Magazine,"

The Worker, all for one year, on payment of $3.50.

In every instance cash must accompany order.

Address

THE WORKER, 184 William St., N. Y.

ABBOTT BROS.,
Bakery, Cafes & Lunch Room.
110 Bleecker St., N. Y.

Our Kangaroos are welcome!
No line drawn on smaller animals.

FACTORY TO POCKET

SPECIAL SALE OF WALTHAM WATCHES. P. S. Bartlett, 14K. 20-year guarantee. Value, $22, at $9.75. W. P. Doll Mfg. Co., 175 Broadway, N. Y., upstairs. Established 1874.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 44. NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 2, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

NATIONAL SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Third, Fourth and Fifth Sections of the Report Made to the National Committee.

The third, fourth and fifth sections of the report of the National Secretary of the Socialist Party, made to the National Committee in session at St. Louis, were received too late for publication last week.

The complete report, in five sections, was laid before the National Committee with the following letter:

"National Committee Socialist Party:

"Comrades:—I take pleasure in presenting herewith my report as National Secretary from August 1, 1901, to January 1, 1902. The report is in five sections under the following headings respectively:

"1. The trade union movement.
"2. Agitation.
"3. Financial.
"4. Organized states.
"5. Unorganized states.

"Yours fraternally,
"LEON GREENBAUM,
"National Secretary."

"St. Louis, Jan. 24, 1902."

The first and second sections of this report were published entire in The Worker of last week. The fourth section is of special importance and should be carefully considered by all who are interested in the party's welfare. The third, fourth, and fifth sections of the report are as follows:

III.—FINANCIAL.

According to the report of the Credentials Committee at the Unity Convention, the delegates in that body held credentials for almost 7,000 members. I have been able to apportion these credentials among the various states to the extent of accounting for 6,657 members in August. During August we received dues for only 821 members, or about 8 per cent. of our total membership based upon a very low estimate. The state committees of California, Connecticut, Kentucky, and Washington paid dues in August for 750 members; the unorganized states paying dues for 71 members. During this month our funds became so exhausted, owing to extraordinary expenses incident to the opening of headquarters, that on August 23 we were obliged to issue an appeal for donations to all the state and local organizations. Had it not been for a timely donation of $100 by Comrade George D. Herron we would have found ourselves seriously embarrassed for the means of continuing our work.

During September the membership increased to 6,897. We received dues for 2,984 members, or about 43 per cent. The state committees of California, Kentucky, New York, and Washington paid dues in September for 2,304 members; the unorganized states paying dues for 680 members.

During September the business of the office increased so much that I was obliged to engage two stenographers, and the expenditures for postage, printed matter, stationery, and the general conduct of business increased proportionately. In October the membership increased to 7,369. We received dues for 3,781 members, or about 52 per cent. The state committees of California, Connecticut, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Washington, Indiana, and Kentucky paid dues in October for 2,694 members; the unorganized states paid dues for 1,087 members. During this month the volume of business became so great and the accompanying expense so heavy proportionately that we were became seriously embarrassed for funds, and we were obliged on Oct. 23 to write all of the state committees for immediate remittances. Our financial difficulties at this time were partly relieved by the payment of convention pledges and a donation of $100 made by Comrade J. A. Wayland of Girard, Kan. During November the membership increased to 7,774. We received dues for 7,032 members, or about 90 per cent. The state committees of California, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Texas, and Washington paid dues in November for 5,968 members; the unorganized states paying dues for 1,064 members. During November the volume of business increased so much that I was obliged to engage an additional office clerk, making three thus employed, while all of the incidental expenses of conducting business increased proportionately. In addition to this we had to meet heavy printing bills contracted in October, and altogether the financial drain was so heavy that on November 21 we again faced a money stringency that obliged us to write some of the state committees for relief.

In December the membership increased to 8,567. We received dues for 5,239 members, or about 61 per cent., which was almost 33 per cent. less than we received in November. The state committees of Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, and Pennsylvania paid dues in December for 4,202 members; the balance of the party paying dues for 977 members. Notwithstanding that national dues decreased about 33 per cent. in December, late reports which I have received from some of the state secretaries indicate that our party on January 1, 1902, had 9,104 members, an increase of 537 members in said month.

DELINQUENT REVENUES.

It will be apparent to your committee that there has been a serious delinquency from the very first, in what may be properly regarded as the legitimate sources of our income. From the date of the Unity Convention up to October 1 we received no national dues whatever from Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. The amount which we should have received in national dues from the above four states in August and September, based upon their representation at the convention, was $227.60.

The state committees of Iowa, New Jersey, Texas, and Missouri began paying dues in November, although we had previously received $2.40 direct from locals in Texas, and $3.35 direct from locals in Missouri. The amount of dues which we should have received from the four states mentioned during August, September, and October, based on their representation at Indianapolis, was $107.70. Massachusetts did not begin paying dues until December. According to its representation at Indianapolis we should have received from this state during August, September, October, and November, the sum of $79.20.

Wisconsin has not paid us dues since the Unity Convention, and according to her representation should have paid during the five months preceding January 1 the sum of $133.25. The total amount of dues which we should have received from August 1 to January 1, based on the Indianapolis representation (and not including the increase of 50 per cent. in membership since then), was $1,064.25. Deducting the total amount actually paid, $902.85, leaves a deficiency of $671.40. If we include the increase in membership we should have received in the five months $1,858.75. Deducting $902.85 actual receipts from this amount, leaves a deficiency of $865.85 in the five months, sufficient to have paid one-half of the party indebtedness.

While the convention at Indianapolis practically settled the question of national unity, the comrades in many states have been obliged during the past five month to occupy themselves in the work of reorganization in their respective states, in order to complete the work of unity so well begun by the convention. Realizing the task in which they were engaged, and that most of them would be required to make personal sacrifices in order to achieve the great end in view; and furthermore being undesirous of manifesting any undue pressure of an official nature, we resolved temporarily at least to overlook shortcomings in dues, believing that after the period of reorganization was past, the party would attain a political equipoise that would enable your committee to enforce the plain requirements of the constitution.

DUE STAMPS.

The following state committees use the due stamps furnished by the National Organization: Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. The following state committees do not use the due stamps furnished by the National Organization: Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Oregon, Texas, Washington, and Wisconsin. All of these state committee are now paying national dues monthly, excepting Wisconsin. If the state committees of California, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Wisconsin use due stamps at all, it must be from a supply which they have printed on their own account, as we have never been requested to furnish due stamps to said state committees.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.

Our total receipts from August 1 to January 1, 1902, were $2,083.59. Of this amount $291.12 was received for purposes which do not represent any revenue to the national organization, namely: donations to strike fund; dues forwarded to state committees and payment for printed supplies which we sell at cost.

The balance of the total receipts, amounting to $1,792.47, was received on account of the following: National dues, $902.85; donations, $522.66; convention pledges, $180.00; accounts due Springfield N. E. C., $65.40; miscellaneous receipts, $31.02. A condensed statement of our expenditures is as follows: Equipment headquarters, $153.57; maintainance of headquarters, $63.77; operation (general expenses of) $84.62; rent, $80.00; strike fund, $69.54; state committees, $65.42; Indianapolis convention, $25.00; organization account, $34.05; accounts Springfield N. E. C., $130.70; postage, $136.17; printing, $370.46; National Secretary, $416.62; stenographers and clerks, $234.37; Chas. H. Vail, $148.65, leaving us with a balance on hand January 1 of $60.88.

ASSETS AND LIABILITIES.

Upon the conclusion of the Unity Convention we assumed the liabilities of the Springfield faction, amounting to $398.27. Of this amount we have paid $139.70, leaving a balance of indebtedness amounting to $458.57. On October 25 we assumed the liabilities of the Chicago faction, amounting to $982.45. Since August 1 we have incurred obligations in addition to the before mentioned amounting to $730.41. Of this sum $130.00 is due Mrs. M. B. East of Indianapolis for her report of the convention. Owing to the inaccuracy and incompleteness of her report we were obliged to have an additional report made by Comrade W. E. McDermott of Chicago, who took the convention proceedings in shorthand. Comrade McDermott's bill amounted to $462.15, but he donated one-half of his bill to the party, leaving us in his debt to the amount of $231.07.

The balance of indebtedness incurred by us since August 1, amounting to $369.33, is due Chas. H. Vail, part of which is for salary and the rest for monies advanced by him to pay railroad fares. The gross amount of our indebtedness on January 1, 1902, was $2,171.43. The total amount of our assets was $836.04, of which over $500.00 is for debts due by various state committees to the Springfield faction, and the balance on account of money due the present national organization for due stamps. Deducting our assets from the gross liabilities, leaves us with a net total indebtedness of $1,335.39.

OUR CREDITORS.

It has been our intention to set aside a certain proportion of our receipts each month for the payment of old debts, and we have partially succeeded in this plan. Our efforts in this direction have been weakened by the delinquency in national dues. At the present moment our funds are at a very low ebb. The expenses of this meeting will be deducted from national dues by the respective state committees and unless some extraordinary steps are taken we have the prospect of a severe money stringency. In this event we shall naturally be obliged to economize by reducing our already inadequate labor force, and the affairs of the party will not be attended to with the mechanical promptness and efficiency that we have maintained up to this time. In the meantime some of our heaviest creditors have repeatedly importuned us to pay part or all of their bills, and one or two in their impatience have heaped censure upon the helpless person of your National Secretary, holding him personally accountable for the shortcomings of the national organization. There is a perceptible tendency upon the part of our comrades to shift the load of financial obligations upon the national organization, which would be an altogether unobjectionable operation if the national dues were unloaded at our door with the same celerity and dispatch as the national debts.

The amount of our indebtedness is comparatively small, and if the respective state organizations will faithfully meet their monthly obligations, we could probably liquidate the entire indebtedness in from eighteen to twenty-four month. In the meantime, however, it is not at all improbable that we shall have to incur new obligations.

The report of the Unity Convention, when published, will either necessitate an immediate outlay or the assumption of a debt. The probable enlargement of the activity of your committee to include arrangements for interstate agitation, will necessitate increased expenditures that will not be immediately attended with a proportionate increase in receipts. It occurs to me that in order to meet the financial emergency caused by this national meeting, your committee would do well to issue an appeal for donations to the state and local organizations. But while this would probably afford us some temporary relief, it must be admitted that the larger problem still remains, the problem of debts and running expenses and the difficulty of enforcing the faithful and regular payment of national dues.

It must be borne in mind that while an organization like the American Federation of Labor has a penalty clause by which it can enforce the payment of a per capita tax, the constitution of the Socialist Party does not explicitly embody such a regulation and we are therefore largely dependent upon the moral sentiment of our state organizations for the payment of national dues.

MONTHLY STATEMENTS.

One of the difficulties attending the collection of national dues is that while the National Constitution requires the National Secretary to make a monthly statement of the financial business of the organization, there is no provision requiring the state secretaries to make a monthly statement of the financial business of the state organization to the National Secretary. It is impossible for the latter to make a correct statement of national finances that is not based on the financial circumstances of the respective states.

While the constitution requires the respective state committees to make semi-annual reports to the National Committee, a request for said reports made by us in December had up to January 18, been complied with by only six states, consisting of Iowa, Indiana, Maine, New York, Ohio, and Washington. Unless Article 6, Section 5 of the national constitution is amended so as to require the state committees to make a monthly statement to the National Committee, the monthly statement issued by the National Secretary will be utterly unreliable, and altogether misleading as to the financial condition and business affairs of the party.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

One of the advantages of monthly statements by state secretaries would be that it would enable the National Secretary to embody in his monthly statement to the Socialist press, list of the places in the United States at which new locals had been formed; and the increase in membership of the party from month to month. In addition to this the National Committee could issue an official directory of all of the state and local organizations of the party, their officers and addresses. Such a directory could either be issued in printed form for general distribution like the official directory of the American Federation of Labor, or if publicity is objectionable the directory could be made up on a mimeograph and issued at regular intervals in confidence to the respective state organizations. Until some such system is adopted it will be impossible to state with any degree of certainty (more than once in every six months), how many local organizations we have, where they are located, how many members we have in good standing, or the names and addresses of the officers of the locals.

IV.—THE ORGANIZED STATES.

Upon assuming our duties we naturally directed ourselves to the task of effecting affiliation between the organized states and the National Organization; also the organization of the unorganized states and territories. We were obliged to govern ourselves, in what-

(Continued on page 2.)

NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Of Socialist Party Meets in St. Louis.

Important Action Taken on Matters of Organization — Leon Greenbaum Re-Elected National Secretary.

The National Committee of the Socialist Party opened its first annual session under the provision of the Unity Convention last Friday at St. Louis.

The meeting was called to order by Secretary M. Ballard Dunn of the Local Quorum and Max Hayes of Ohio chosen as temporary Chairman. Examination of credentials showed the following members in attendance: Massachusetts—Carey; New York—Hartman; New Jersey—Ufert; Ohio—Hayes; Indiana—Oneal; Illinois—Berlyn; Iowa—Work; Wisconsin—Berger; Missouri—Turner; Kansas—Mills; Nebraska—Rigelow; California—Roche; Washington—Boomer; Local Quorum—Hildebrand, Putnam, Hoehn, and Dunn. Two delegates appeared from Utah representing rival factions, Mrs. J. C. Hazlett and A. B. Elder. It was decided, pending settlement of the contest, to seat both members, but without the right of voting.

The situation in Utah was discussed at length and then, with Berger alone voting in the negative, it was decided to revoke the state charter and send a member of the N. C. to reorganize the state and secure harmony.

In Saturday's session, with Turner in the chair, the Committee voted to endorse the boycott on the St. Louis Exposition declared by the St. Louis Building Trades and Labor Council, subject to the endorsement of such boycott by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, and pledging national and international support to the full extent of the Committee's provision such case. The following resolution was further adopted to apply to similar cases in the future:

"The Local Quorum shall not endorse or commit the Party to the endorsement of any boycott or strike that is not national or international in its scope, and hat has not been sanctioned by the national or international executive committee of the organization involved."

ORGANIZERS' SALARY.

On the report of the Finance Committee it was voted that "no member, speaker, or other representative of the National Committee shall receive as salary more than three dollars per day and expenses."

The expenses of the two delegates from Utah, it was decided, should be divided between the national and the state organization.

PAYMENT OF DUES.

The following resolution was adopted in the matter of payment of dues:

The national due stamp shall be the evidence of membership in the Party, and every state organization, or local organization where states are not organized, shall purchase stamps and supplies of the National Secretary. Each and every organized state represented by delegates to the Indianapolis Convention shall pay dues from that date upon all the members within their borders to the National Committee, except those states which thereafter paid dues to the Chicago National Committee from and after the time they ceased paying dues to the N. E. B. according to the number of votes represented at Indianapolis. The National Committee will charge ten cents dues per member in unorganized states, instead of five cents."

A communication from the German Branch of Local Philadelphia, regarding German agitation, was refered to the Local Quorum.

A referendum was directed to be taken on the question of sending a fraternal delegate to the national convention of the Socialists of Canada in September.

A resolution was adopted demanding "that all government work be done under the direct supervision of the government, and that no such work of whatever nature be done under the contract labor system."

NO COMPROMISE.

Another resolution provided that: "No member of the Socialist Party shall accept an appointment to an office in the gift of a capitalist party. This shall not include appointive offices to which the Socialist Party is legally entitled by reason of its votes." Also: "No member of this Party shall accept the nomination or endorsement of any political party nor allow such nomination or endorsement to stand without public protest."

Leon Greenbaum was re-elected as National Secretary and the following Local Quorum was chosen: Hoehn, Dunn, Putnam, Hildebrand, and Wm. Brandt. The Municipal Committee was continued.

The action of the Local Quorum in extending the contract with Charles H. Vail was approved.

The present report is necessarily incomplete. We hope to present a fuller one next week.

—Far and wide over the earth, permeating every civilized country, is this movement toward industrial justice. No man created and no man can destroy this movement. It is the product of age-long evolution. It is the awakening of man. No man can have any gospel for his fellowmen so long as he is contented with a system built on a foundation of injustice.—Wm. T. Brown.

FOR DAILY PAPER

Committee Calls General Meeting.

To Be Held at Brevoort Hall in Fifty-fourth Street on Feb. 8—Shall We Have a Daily?—Now Is the Time to Consider the Question.

The question of starting active work for the establishment of an English Socialist daily in this city has been informally discussed for some time. Steps have at last been taken to bring the movement into more definite shape and a meeting of party members to consider the subject is called for Saturday evening, Feb. 8, at Brevoort Had, 154 E. Fifty-fourth street. The attention of comrades is directed to the following address on the subject:

CALL FOR MEETING.

"To the Members of the Social Democratic Party of New York and Vicinity.

"Comrades:—The spontaneous expressions in favor of an English Socialist daily in various quarters of Socialist activity in this city all tend to show that the times are ripe for our common hope to become a daily reality. An English Socialist daily has been long enough a topic of fond speculation among us. The moment for decisive action has arrived. Comrades are continually urging on one another the necessity of an initiative in that direction.

"With that object in view a few comrades have come together to consider the way in which to put the matter before all comrades. For it was agreed at once that no steps be taken before every comrade within reach had an opportunity to express his views. A mass convention of all Social Democrats of New York and vicinity was decided upon to put the question for their consideration and decision. Committees on estimates and organization were appointed to submit the question to such convention in a concrete and definite form. Comrade Alexander Jonas reported for the committee on estimates; Comrade Morrris Hillquit reported for the committee on organization. Both reports showed further the practicability and timeliness of the enterprise.

"Comrades, it is now more than a quarter of a century that the German speaking Socialists of this country continue tirelessly to till the field preparing the soil for an American movement. The ground is now well tilled and must not be allowed to lie idle. It is for you, Socialists of the English tongue, to plant the seed. The difficulties of the task must not deter you. In the struggle for justice to the workingmen, for the emancipation of our class from the toils of capitalist exploitation, we must meet with open face and welcome with gladness in our hearts the storm and stress of the daily battle. For all that our class now has, or may wrest hereafter, is ours by the right of power. We can achieve nothing for our class without concentrating and securing control of power. And we must no more allow the capitalist press, that is ever found subservient to the interests of our masters, to have sole and undisputed control over the mind of the workingmen.

"A daily Socialist newspaper in the control of the working class is both a formidable weapon of defense and aggression as well as the best medium for enlightening the minds of the workingmen.

"But as the task must be our common one, so must be the decision. Whatever your mind is on the question, let us come together and settle it for the time being.

"Let nothing detain you from attending this meeting. You may bring along any sympathizer even if not a party member.

"Comrades Alexander Jonas and Morris Hillquit will give to the meeting such information as it necessary for the consideration of the question.

"THE COMMITTEE."

LECTURE TO SOCIALISTS.

Algernon Lee will be the lecturer in the Sunday afternoon course at Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place, through the month of February.

On Feb. 2, Comrade Lee will speak on "Historical and Economic Materialism," explaining in what way the economic conditions of society guide and control all other institutions. The other three lectures will treat of "The Dynamics of Socialism" and "The Economics of Socialism."

The lectures by Morris Hillquit have evidently been highly appreciated, and it is hoped that the rest of the course will be equally successful.

Come promptly at 2 p. m.

CHASE AND VAIL TO SPEAK IN OHIO.

John C. Chase of Haverhill, Mass., the first Socialist mayor in the United States, will speak in Ohio from Feb. 10 to Feb. 16 inclusive. The dates for Feb. 13 and 15 are still open. The meetings so far arranged are:

Feb. 10, Ashtabula.
Feb. 11, Warren.
Feb. 12, Youngstown.
Feb. 14, Toledo.
Feb. 16, Cincinnati.

Charles H. Vail of New Jersey will give the first eight days in March to Ohio. Locals desiring to engage him should at once address the State Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. The cost to the local will be $10 for each lecture. Comrade Vail paying all his expenses. Mrs. Vail accompanies her husband, and will address meetings of women, where such can be arranged, without any additional charge.

State Organizer Strickland is hard at work on preparations for the April elections. He has only a few dates left open for speaking and those will be given to the northern part of the state.

THE STRIKE IN BOSTON.

Courts and Police Against Union Teamsters.

A Lively Battle Between Labor and Capital—Socialist Legislators will Act—Carey Fights Child Labor.

A strike of less than two hundred teamsters has kept the Boston police working overtime, filled the columns of the daily papers with reports, truthful and otherwise, of the acts of strikers and their sympathizers, and set the people of Boston by the ears during the past week. The crisis came last Friday, when Judge Braley of the Superior Court, granter a temporary injunction restraining the labor unions an dothers from "interfering" with the business of the firm in controversy by interference with the affairs of the employees of the company while they are in the performance of their business duties, or in any other way that might be construed as detrimental to the interests of the company. Along with this comes a new departure in such matters. One firm or master teamsters has also been served with a notice to answer charges in the prayer for an injunction for having taken the business from the transportation company in dispute.

The injunction is a sweeping one, and its terms have aroused the trade unionists of Boston as nothing has done in years. It practically prevents the union men from doing anything whatsoever, either by peaceable or forcible means. More than this, it seeks to enforce individual liability for damages on every member of the union for any damage done to the property of the company during the strike, whether committed by union members or not. This is somewhat similar to the injunction granted in the strike at Ansonia, Conn., during the machinists' strike last year. In the present case, it is claimed that it does not matter whether the member who has property takes any part in the acts forming the basis of damages done, he is responsible for the acts of his fellow members or any sympathizers. The counsel for the company asserts that the members of the unions who have property will have to reimburse for any loss the company may have sustained through the strike.

The action against the master teamster who has been served with notice to answer the injunction involves a question whether the competitor may accept and perform work which has been taken from another, and whether this act may be construed to be interference of the business of the firm which originally had the business in dispute. Here is where old "free competition" will have to make another struggle for existence.

There is practically only one firm fighting the teamsters; this is the R. S. Brine Transportation Company, which refuses to recognize the union, notwithstanding the fact that the Master Teamsters' Association has signed the agreement with the Teamsters' Union. This agreement was reached between the Allied Transportation Council of the Team Drivers International Union and the Master Teamsters Association, and resulted in improving the condition of the teamsters by raising wages, lowering hours and bringing about other changes in the conditions of employment. The Brine Company broke away from the Master Teamsters Association and has stubbornly refused to sign the agreement. A number of smaller firms tried to do the same; but since the strike began most of them have capitulated, and the strike is mostly against the Brine Company.

There have been turbulent scenes in the district where the strike is in force. For the first time in years, mounted police have been called out, ostensibly to preserve the peace; really to insure the Brine Transportation Company's doing business with non-union men. At no time have deeds of violence have been committed by strikers or sympathizers. In fact, credit is given the union men for protecting the Brine teamsters.

Much indignation has been caused by the reckless behavior of the police, who have in many instances lost their heads and clubbed or beaten innocent bystanders. In several cases their behavior nearly caused a riot. They have also acted as freight handlers at different times, but the protests against this were so strong and numerous they had to stop.

On Thursday the police board took a hand and issued a special order to the police to arrest all those who made loud outcries against the employees of the Brine Company. This resulted in thirteen men and boys being arrested on Friday for yelling "Scab" at the non-union men; not one of those arrested were union men or in any way directly identified with the strike.

It is not definitely known yet what immediate action the union men of Boston will take on the conduct of the police and the injunction. They will probably wait until the coure renders a decision on the hearing for permanent injunction; and it is believed that should the courts decide against the men, as is probable, it will cause more of the unionists to change their minds as to the infallibility of the judges on the bench. Judge Braley, who granted the temporary injunction, is a Republican from Fall River; and his name is associated with labor disputes in that locality.

As the police of Boston are under the control of the state, it is probable that the Socialist representatives will demand an inquiry into the conduct of the police during the strike.

The introduction of bills in the legislature goes merrily on. Those of the Socialist representatives stand out as the only ones that really propose anything practicable to improve the condition of the working class, to provide wider scope for the exercise of political liberty, and to increase the means of social enjoyment.

Carey has introduced bills during the week raising the age of compulsory school attendance from 14 to 16, and to raise the age in which minors may be employed in mills and factories from 14 to 16. These bills which involve the child-labor question, upon which Carey has made a fight since he first entered the House. He and MacCartney are prepared to make this issue a leading one during the session; and their opponents will hear some "hot talk" upon the bills to come up.

Representative Carey has been away since Wednesday at St. Louis, attending the National Committee meeting; but MacCartney is vigilantly looking after the interests of the Socialist Party under the gilded dome.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 25, 1902.

UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD.

BY T. F. KEOGH.

(Dedicated to Ben Tillett.)

Through the centuries has echoed Christ's command, "Love one another."
Yet it sometimes seems his suffering on Calvary was in vain;
For "Old Glory's" folds are dripping with the blood of murdered heroes
And the widows and the orphans of brave Boers weep over their slain.

The allied Christian forces battered down the gates of Pekin,
To shoot into the Heathen their culture and their creed;
Though nakedness and hunger haunt the nation's wealth producers,
A market for the "surplus" in the Orient we need.

The ruling class rebuke, us for being discontented;
They say that work is plentiful, we have full dinner pails;
One-fifth of labor's product keeps the soul within the body;
For asking more our comrades are in Puerto Rican jails.

Some to whom we look for counsel in the van of labor unions
Say the interests of Capital and Labor are the same;
But the blacklist and the boycott and each infamous injunction
Clearly show the hollowness and folly of their claim.

We are not creating classes. No, our mission is to end them,
By uniting all in one class—in the brotherhood of Man;
But first we have to recognize conditions now existing,
And show slumbering humanity we have a better plan.

When men read and think, no "leader" will be needed to direct them,
And men to-day are thinking as they never thought before,
There should be no race distinction, no walls dividing nations,
No man, "worth" a hundred million, no man hungry at his door.

Comrade Tillett brings us greetings from the toilers of Great Britain;
His message is prophetic of the days that are to be,
When workingmen will cease to kill each other for their masters,
When no fleets but those of commerce will float upon the sea.

In the murderous art of warfare, who excels is called a hero;
But the value of a Tillett or a Debs will not be known
Until competition ceases and a wiser generation
Shall reap a bounteous harvest from the seed which they have sown.

The universal banner is unfurled in every nation
In which wage slavery exists and where oppression reigns;
Beneath its folds come gather while the victory can be bloodless,
The earth is our inheritance. We lose naught but our chains.

CHASE WILL SPEAK.

Mayor John C. Chase of Haverhill will speak at the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, Sunday, Feb. 2, at 2 p. m.

THREE CAPITALIST CRIMES.

It is about fifteen months since criminal negligence and direct violation of the law by the capitalists of the Tarrant Drug Company resulted in the killing of seven working people and the maiming of many more. Now comes the Rapid Transit Tunnel explosion, due to exactly similar lawlessness on the part of contractors, and resulting in a similar sacrifice of human life.

Since the Tarrant explosion we have had three District Attorneys—Gardiner, Philbin, and Jerome—a Tammany heeler, a neutral, and a "reformer." But in all these fifteen months the District Attorney's office has not yet seen fit to put the guilty capitalists on trial for their crime.

Suppose, when Gardiner was ousted, Philbin had pushed the Tarrant case to trial and secured the punishment of the murderers; or suppose, Philbin having neglected it, Jerome had immediately turned some of his overflowing energy in that direction; if either of these eminent gentlemen had attended to the duties of his office, does anyone suppose that Contractor Shaler would have dared to repeat the crime?

By their extraordinary delay in the Tarrant case, the three District Attorneys have incurred a deep responsibility for last Monday's slaughter. By their leniency to one set of law-breaking capitalists they have tacitly encouraged others to go on violating the law and sacrificing the lives of the people to their own private profit.

The Tarrant murder, the New York Central murders, the Rapid Transit murders, all point the same moral: So long as industry is left in the control of the capitalist class, so long profits will be the first consideration and human life and happiness will be ruthlessly trodden under foot.

It costs money to store explosive chemicals safely. It costs money to run trains safely. It casts money to handle dynamite safely. Reckless violation of the law saves expenses to the owners, the employers, the capitalists, the men who have it in their power to say whether these things shall be done in accordance with the law or in violation of the law. It is cheaper for them, in the long run, to violate the law than to obey it. They take the risk of occasional small property losses, which are more than balanced by the daily saving of expenses. OTHER PEOPLE HAVE TO TAKE THE RISK OF BEING BURNED TO DEATH OR SCALDED TO DEATH OR CRUSHED OR SUFFOCATED OR TORN LIMB FROM LIMB. Those other people do not count. They are only the poor devils who create the profits, not the eminent citizens who pocket them. The eminent citizens, the masters of industry, are never at the post of danger.

And when explosions and collisions do occur, our public officials—Republicans and Democrats alike—make a great show of activity for a little while and then gradually let the matter drop and forget it and wait for another occasion to show their zeal. And so the slaughter goes on.

It never takes fifteen months to bring to trial a striker accused of assaulting or insulting a scab or picketing a shop or "conspiring" against his employers' business interests. These cases can be rushed through in a surprisingly short time.

Why this difference?

BECAUSE THE PUBLIC OFFICIALS—REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS ALIKE—ARE THE FRIENDS OF THE CAPITALISTS, BELONG TO THE CAPITALIST CLASS, AND ARE THE POLITICAL REPRESENTATIVES OF CAPITALISM.

The Socialists call on their fellow workingmen to use their political power in their own defense. The working class bears all the burden of toil. It incurs all the danger. Let it then assume the political authority and take control of industry and administer it for the common good, instead of for private profit. Till we do that we shall have such murders as these, superadded to the daily exploitation and oppression of the working class.

THEY CONDEMN PEACE SCHEME.

Bakers' and Carpenters' Union No. 164 Endorses Resolution of Painters' No. 499 and Calls on Workers to Remember at the Polls.

At the last general meeting of Journeymen Bakers' and Confectioners' Union No. 164, held last Saturday at the headquarters, 3083 Third avenue, the documents referred to affiliated unions by the C. F. U. in connection with the "industrial peace conference" were taken up and discussed. After debate, the union unanimously endorsed the resolution of Painters' Decorators' Union No. 499, as

"Be it resolved, That without such proceedings as the Civic Federation Peace Conference held Mr. Schwab, and others; and, that appeal to all workers to use it economically and politically to secure a state of society where exploitation will cease and Labor will get the full value of the product."

It was further resolved that—

"It is the sense of this body that we not only indorse these resolutions at te present time, but that we also remember the proceedings on Election Day, and that there is the proper time and opportunity to protest against the capitalist exploiters, their tools and political heelers."

Secretary J. J. Nolte was instructed to communicate to The Worker all important matters relating to the union for publication.

It was decided that in the future no attention be paid to invitations from other organizations to balls, picnics, etc., unless held in strict union places. Some amendments in the by-laws were made and the label contract was submitted to the G. E. B. for approval.

ROCHESTER.

On Friday evening, Feb. 14, the Ladies' Auxiliary of Local Rochester, Social Democratic Party, will hold a St. Valentine's Dance and Social at Shoemakers' Hall, 17 Andrews street, with dancing, refreshments and cards. Tickets are 25 cents. All members and friends of the party are invited. The last social was largely attended, and all who went had a good time. Those familiar with the work of the Ladies' Auxiliary will assure all their friends a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

LECTURES IN PHILADELPHIA.

Local Philadelphia of the Socialist Party is carrying on a course of Thursday evening lectures at the new headquarters, 1022 Arch street. On Jan. 30 John Spargo of New York speaks on "The Class Struggle, Its Genesis and Meaning." The following lectures will be:

Feb. 6.—"Our Position, Economic and Political," by Fred W. Long.

Feb. 13.—"Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," by Algernon Lee.

Feb. 20.—"Organize! Why and How?" by Edward Ruppinger.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in social questions to attend these lectures and to visit the headquarters, which are open every day from noon till 12 p. m.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

As far as possible, rejected communications will be returned if so desired and stamps are enclosed.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

SHALL WE HAVE A DAILY?

Elsewhere in this paper will be found the call for a general meeting of comrades to consider the question of a Socialist daily paper in the English language.

This is a question of the utmost moment. It must be considered carefully and definitely decided—and the sooner, the better. We all want a daily paper. Many believe it practicable to undertake it with the least possible delay. Many have their doubts. Many have not yet given the matter much thought.

If the enterprise is to be undertaken, it must be entered upon in the right [illegible] with unanimity, with enthusiasm, with determination to win. Nothing is gained and much may be [illegible] irresolute or divided counsels.

[illegible] other hand, if we are not to undertake the task at present, that decision should be made plain, so that all our energies may be turned to other work for the cause. Let us know what we are to do, what is our common will, and then let us have united action under that decision.

Every comrade, therefore, be he the most enthusiastic advocate of immediate action, be he the most resolute opponent, or be he at present undecided—every comrade should attend the meeting at Brevoort's Hall on February 8 and take his part in the momentous decision. Let each one consider the matter carefully. Let each come with a mind open to conviction. And, whatever the decision, let each go away resolved to act in accordance with that decision and, in the one way or the other, to do his utmost in the service of his party and his class.

Naturally, it never occurred to any of the members of the New Jersey Legislature to consider a workingman for United States Senator. The choice of Mr. Dryden, president of a $5,000,000 insurance company, is a "safe" one. The majority of the inhabitants of New Jersey are working people. But until the working-class voters begin to show a recognition of their own rights and interests in politics, it is not to be expected that the politicians at Trenton should consider them worthy of representation in the Senate.

Mayor Low is making an extraordinary exhibition of himself and of the whole "reform" combination in this Sunday opening business. Some of the men who actively supported him in the late campaign, are already turning against him, and some of the daily papers which actively supported him are openly sneering at his shifts and evasions. This sort of thing was to be expected, the Socialists said before election. The "reformers"—some of them sincerely—have undertaken two impossible tasks—as public officials, the task of preventing social evils without removing their economic causes, as politicians, the task of holding together political elements that have no common interests and, in most cases, no principles whatever. Mayor Low's troubles have begun early. Perhaps when his two years are up he will be glad to accept the invitation to retire to private life which is likely to be extended to him.

Senator Hanna is a great believer in harmony between Capital and Labor. As a Department of Commerce is to be established for the primary purpose of getting more profitable foreign markets for American capitalists and otherwise serving their business interests, Senator Hanna and his friends insist upon bringing the Department of Labor into the new system as a subordinate bureau. This is quite in keeping with the Hanna idea of harmony, as shown by the 24-to-12 representation of Capital and Labor on his Arbitration Committee. Labor is always to be harmonized by being swallowed up.

"REFORMERS" KEEPING THEIR PLEDGES.

"Reformer" Cantor, President of the Board of Aldermen, demands longer hours for the clerks and other office employees in all city departments. This is the beginning of the promised policy of economy in the interest of the capitalist taxpayers. Perhaps these office employees have no very great hardship to complain of; their hours are far shorter than those of most manual workers. But when this point has been carried, the next step will probably be to increase the hours or reduce the pay of the laborers and mechanics in the employ of the city. It is only the thin end of the wedge now; but it will be driven in.

President Cantor insists that such measures are necessary—and so they are, for a "reform" administration. "We dare not increase the tax-rate," he argues. "We are near the debt limit. Therefore we must discharge part of the city employees and make the others work harder."

That is perfectly good capitalist logic. It is exactly what was to be expected of the "reformers." It is what we predicted during the last campaign. The "reform" aggregation represents the self-styled "respectable citizens," the profit-grinding class, the business men. It does not and cannot represent the working class. The "reformers" promised economy and low taxes. They promised a "business-like administration of city affairs." That promise they are sincerely trying to fulfil. Nothing could be more business-like than President Cantor's proposition. When a private capitalist finds his profits falling off and begins to fear for the future, his first and chief resource is to reduce wages or to discharge a part of his employees and drive the others harder—in one way or another to squeeze more surplus value out of his employees in proportion to the wages he pays them.

No one who voted the Low ticket has any right to complain of the policy initiated by Cantor. The "reformers" are not breaking their pledges, but carrying them out in good faith to the class who actually put them in office. If workingmen who voted for "reform" do not like it now that they see it in practise, their future course should be plain: Let them, next election, vote the ticket of the Social Democratic Party. The Social Democratic Party, founded on the interests of the working class, will keep its pledges to the workers just as well as the "reform" administration, representing the capitalist class is keeping its pledges to the taxpayers. Nothing more could be desired.

The Socialists favor shorter hours for all workers. A Social Democratic administration would begin by reducing the toil of laborers and mechanics on city work, not by increasing the toil of office employees. It would make the city a model employer and a force for improving the condition of the workers at large, instead of lowering it. That is only a part of what Socialist city officials could and would do, but it is worth considering. A Socialist administration would not be afraid to raise taxes. It would make the great franchise-owning companies and the palaces on Fifth Avenue pay for the service it would render to the tenement-house dwellers whose labor builds the palaces and creates the franchise-owners' income.

There will be another chance for the workers of this city to choose between honest capitalist administration as represented by the "reformers" and true working-class administration as represented by the Social Democratic Party. Let them begin to think now how they will choose.

J. P. Morgan promises us that "our prosperity" is to continue for a long time. How good of him! He has the power to put an end to it, to plunge us into industrial depression, whenever he might choose to do so. How good of us to leave that power in his hands! What "easy marks" we Americans are!

So far as we have been able to observe, the Haverhill "Gazette," which accuses us of desiring to create or to prolong and intensify class antagonism, has not yet taken up our challenge "to inform us definitely, by plain and concrete illustration, of one fundamental point, however small, in which the employer, as employer, and the employee, as employee, have a common interest." Until someone successfully meets that challenge we insist that the interests of employers and employees, as such, are diametrically opposed and therefore: First, that employees, as such, must organize to fight their employers; and second, that the conflict can end only when the workers collectively own the means of production and thus cease to be employees, becoming comrade-workers in the Co-operative Commonwealth.

There is nothing at all surprising or improper in the eagerness of our national and local authorities to go down on their knees before a representative of the German imperial family. Of course, we all say, on the Fourth of July and other special occasions, that we are a free people, that we have no sympathy with monarchial institutions and no respect for kings and princes as such. But we all know that, as a matter of fact, we have our kings and princes, as powerful as Prince Henry and his august brother, that we allow ourselves to be ruled by a special class, and that nothing is more proper than that our untitled aristocrats should recognize their natural affinity with the titled aristocrats of the Old World.

The resolutions adopted by the Board of Directors of the International Banking Institution on the occasion of the death of the late president of the corporation, Marcellus Hartley, somehow sound strange in our ears. Here is one paragraph:

"Having long since chosen the Christian life as the ideal one, he gave himself heartily to all forms of activity, and loved especially to be identified with undertakings that would be of benefit to this community and to his loyal country."

The connection between the Christian life and the banking business is not very obvious. The only gospel text we can think of bearing on the matter is one telling how Christ took a whip and drove a gang of bankers out of the Temple. But then, as John P. Robinson says, "they didn't know everything down in Judee."

REPORT.

(Continued from page 1.)

ever methods we adopted, by the national constitution.

Article 6, Section 2 of the constitutions reads as follows: "A state or territory shall be deemed organized and shall have a right to affiliate upon the organization of not less than four branches, each branch to consist of not less than five members. Each state or territory so organized shall receive a charter."

INTERPRETATION.

In our attempt to interpret this clause we were at first undecided whether it was intended to apply only to unorganized states and territories and which were not represented at the Unity Convention, or whether it was intended to apply to all of the states, including those represented at Indianapolis. We know that such states as New York, Massachusetts and Wisconsin had the constitutional number of locals for a state charter, but we were not so certain of other states represented in the Indianapolis convention, for instance, Maine, Kansas, and Tennessee. In the Unity Convention G. C. Clemens, the sole representative from Kansas, came as a delegate of Branch 1, and had credentials for only six votes.

John M. Ray of Nashville, Tenn., the only delegate from that state, had credentials for ten votes. There was not then and there are not to-day four locals in Tennessee. Comrade Fred. E. Irish of Portland, Me., who represented that state in the Unity Convention, had 68 credentials, and, although there was a state committee, we found from ex-National Secretary Butscher's official records, that there were only two locals in Maine. It was apparent to us that if we were to relieve the most influential Socialist states represented in the convention of any guarantee of the constitutional requirement of four locals, that it would involve an exercise of extraordinary diplomacy to prevent our course from appearing like discrimination against the less influential states likewise represented at the convention. It did not appear possible to us that any of the veteran Socialist states would object to giving us such a guarantee, but on the contrary would be the first to approve of any methods consistently applied that were unavoidable to safeguard the integrity of the party.

We therefore came to the conclusion that in order for us to properly issue a state charter, it would be necessary to require an assurance from each state organization that it represented not less than four organized branches.

APPLICATIONS FOR STATE CHARTERS.

One of the matters that embarrassed us in issuing state charters was whether we should require a formal application from the respective state organizations or waive formal application from those states represented in the Unity Convention, and merely require it from the states not then represented. If we waive a formal application the question arose to what constitutional authority in each state should the state charter be issued. In this matter the only regulation we had for our guidance was Article 6, Section 4 of the constitution, as follows:

"In states and territories in which there is one central organization affiliated with the party and representing at least ten local organizations in different parts of such state or territory respectively, the state or territorial organization shall have the sole jurisdiction of the members residing within their respective territories, and the sole control of all matters pertaining to the propaganda, organization and financial affairs within such state or territory, and the National Committee and sub-committee or officers thereof shall have no right to interfere in such matters without the consent of the respective state or territorial organizations." Having in mind that in some of the states there existed at least two central organizations, representing the Chicago and Springfield factions respectively, we realized that we could not issue a state charter to one of these central organization to the exclusion of the other.

The effect of the difficulties between the Chicago and Springfield factions had been most pronounced and had caused the most serious breach among the most active and influential states in the Socialist movement. The prevailing distrust of national executives at the time of the convention was such that had we issued a state charter to the Springfield faction in a state where the Chicago faction had a state committee, the whole work of the Unity Convention would have been for naught and the spark of factionalism would have ignited a whole national movement. The conclusion was forced upon us by the very logic of circumstances that we would have to require assurances of unity from the respective state organizations to whom we issued state charters. While in this instance the assurance appeared to be principally necessary from several of the oldest and most influential state organizations represented at Indianapolis, we deemed it necessary as a matter of consistency and impartiality to require the same assurance from all of the state committees. In addition to this we were not certain but that in one or more states in which there was but one central organization (or state committee) representing one or more branches, there might not be from one to ten or more branches without a state committee and opposed to affiliation with the existing state committee on terms which the latter would be in a position to dictate by he possession of a state charter.

We interpreted the letter of the constitution and the spirit of the unity resolution adopted by the convention as placing upon us the responsibility of only granting a state charter to a state organization which was united and harmonious. In order to insure this we required guarantees from the respective state committees, as follows:

1. That there were not less than four branches of the party in different localities in the state, represented in their state organization.

2. That every independent political Socialist organization in existence in said state, prior to July 29, 1901, or affiliated prior to the same date within one of the parties represented in the Indianapolis convention held on that day, or affiliated by direct certificate from the national committee of the Socialist Party since August 1, 1901, as desiring, participated in the preliminary proceedings by which it was decided to ask for state charter.

STATE CHARTERS.

Having decided that these guarantees were absolutely essential to the proper issue of state charters the question naturally arose as to what power the National Committee had to enforce these conditions of affiliation, prevent the use of a charter issued upon misrepresentations; or to prevent the misuse of a state charter by any organization which might institute rules and regulations in conflict with the national constitution, or which might give expression to political measures that were in conflict with the national platform or resolutions adopted in national convention.

In considering this phase of the matter of affiliation between the respective states and the national organization we found the following provisions in the constitution, applying to the points in question:

"Article 6, Section 1.—Each state or territory may organize in such way or manner and under such rules and regulations as it may determine, but not in conflict with the provisions of this constitution.

"Article 6, Section 3.—The platform of the Socialist Party adopted in convention or by referendum vote shall be the supreme declaration of the party, and all state and municipal organizations shall, in the adoption of their platforms, conform thereto."

While these sections of the constitution made it mandatory upon the respective state organizations to conform in letter and practise with the platform and constitution, there was no explicit declaration in the latter, stating the manner and circumstances under which and the agency through whom a state charter should be revoked on account of fusion with one of the old parties or any other violation of the constitution. In the absence of any clause by which the charter should be enforced, the national constitution having provided that the National Committee should issue charters to the states, that the National Committee shall represent the party in all national affairs, and the common inference that the executive committee which issues a charter is the natural instrument through whom such charter would be revoked by the national organization, we were forced to the conclusion that the National Committee had no right to issue a charter without conditions, and furthermore under the clause in the constitution which states that the platform of the Socialist Party shall be the supreme declaration of the party, and commanding all state and municipal organizations to conform thereto the National Committee had no right to issue a state charter (which is an agreement between the state and national organization), without reserving to the latter the power to enforce the constitution under the terms of which said charter was issued.

For the National Committee to issue a state charter to the respective state organizations, without conditions (leaving each state to make its own construction of the latitude of such a charter), would have resulted in the possible implication that all of the state organizations were independent of the national organization and each independent of the other. It becomes proper in this connection to quote the following resolution adopted by the Unity Convention: "Resolved, That the Social Democratic Party with headquarters at Springfield, Mass., the Social Democratic Party with headquarters at Chicago, Ill., the Socialist Party of the state of Texas, the Social Democratic Party of the states of Kentucky, Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska, hereby surrender their separate and independent existence and merge and amalgamate into one organization."

We found in the form of charter issued by the Social Democratic Party, with headquarters at Chicago (to its locals) a penalty clause providing for the revocation of charters for violation of the principles of the party, which we embodied in a modified form in the charters which we issued to the respective state organizations, and also in the charters which we issued to the locals in the unorganized states.

PROTESTS AGAINST STATE CHARTER.

Having informed your committee of the motives and reasons by which we were impelled to require formal application for state charter, containing assurances of unity, and fulfilments of constitutional requirements, and having also given our main reasons for including a revocation clause in the state charters, in order to safeguard the integrity of the national organization, it now becomes our duty to inform you that while the assurances required in our formal application for state charter were practically complied with by twenty-one state organizations out of twenty-three thus far chartered, the state organizations of Wisconsin and Illinois have raised objections which they regard as quite serious to the form of state charter which we have issued. The Illinois state committee, while signing a formal application containing a provision for the revocation of state charter in case of violation of the principles of the party, protested against the revocation clause being embodied in the state charter and notified us that they accepted said state charter under protest.

The Wisconsin state committee refused to sign a formal application for state charter or give us any of the assurances therein required upon the ground that we must issue them a state charter without any formal or other application. The local quorum, in the interest of unity of the Socialist forces, waived application, and having voted to issue state charter, the latter was duly sent to the Wisconsin state committee.

THE WISCONSIN CHARTER.

The state charter was so objectionable to the Wisconsin state committee that they notified us on October 4 that they refused to accept it. The dissatisfaction of the Illinois state committee with the form of state charter by us is based upon the ground that "the power to revoke a state charter for any cause should be reserved not to any committee, but to a referendum of the entire Socialist Party of the United States." The objections of the Wisconsin state committee against the formal application for charter have been represented to us as follows:

1. According to the Unity Convention and the constitution adopted at Indianapolis, they do not have to make any special plea nor make any extra promises not contained in the constitution for the purpose of getting a charter.

2. The constitution provides that the National Committee MUST give them a charter.

3. The National Committee has no right to ask any state to sign an application blank providing that the National Secretary or the local quorum or any committee has the right to suspend a state.

The objections of the Wisconsin state committee to the revocation clause in the state charter have been represented by them as follows:

"1. It was especially stated on the floor of the convention by all sides that the new national committee should have an administrative function only and no power whatsoever to suspend anybody."

"2. If any state should violate any provisions of the constitution it was expressly understood on the floor of the convention that the next succeeding national convention would not admit the delegates of that state or would admit only the delegates of those branches that remained loyal.

"3. The National Committee has no right to issue charters containing a provision that the committee reserves the right to revoke the charter under certain conditions. The National Committee has no right to revoke the charter of a state or territory under any conditions."

"4. If a state organization should fuse with one of the old parties in any state or territory, then the next National Convention will simply refuse to seat the delegates of such state or territory, or will seat only delegates of such locals as remained loyal to the constitution."

"5. The form of charter issued by the National Committee is a direct infringement of the principle of state autonomy and the constitution as adopted at the Unity Convention in Indianapolis."

"6. Suspension of state charter would be a case of clear usurpation on the part of the National Committee which (at the time) was the St. Louis quorum only."

With regard to the form of state charter issued by us, and the objections thereto, we can at this time best state our position by repeating the explanation which we made to the Wisconsin and Illinois comrades at the outset of this difficulty, namely: "That in the beginning of our consideration of this question it did not occur to us, and even at the present time we cannot reasonably conceive how any comrade need fear that the National Committee could possibly make an improper use of the power reserved in the charter, in view of the fact that the constitution expressly provides that "all acts of the National Committee shall be subject to referendum vote within thirty days after being requested to do so by five locals in three different states." While it was true that the National Committee at the time was the St. Louis quorum only, our course in reserving the power to revoke charter in the National Committee (as the representative of the national organization) was forced upon us by the very inadequacy of any explicit clause in the constitution covering the point involved. Our purpose was utterly divested of any ulterior motive by the very fact that the form of charter which we issued gave the respective states complete control over the St. Louis quorum through the National Committeemen whom they were to elect, and in the interest of said election through the referendum which the states holding said charters could institute as provided for in the constitution." Having given this committee the theoretical side of this difficulty it may be well to place before you for guidance certain experiences which we have undergone in the practical relationship between the national and state organizations. We have embodied these practical experiences under the heading of unorganized states.

V.—UNORGANIZED STATES.

THE KANSAS AFFAIR.

During the third week in August we received letters from comrades at several points in Kansas warning us against granting a state charter to a faction of Socialists in Kansas, headed by Comrade G. C. Clemens of Topeka. The comrades, in writing to us, stated that there were about 20 branches in Kansas, all of which would probably want to take part in the initiative, and that it was rumored that four branches in the state would attempt to get a state charter without consulting the others. Upon consulting the report of the Credentials Committee at the Unity Convention, we learned that Comrade G. C. Clemens only represented one branch in Kansas in said convention, and that he had credentials for only six members.

The comrades who wrote to me from Kansas stated that none of the branches had been able to get any information as to the manner of forming a new state organization, although most of them were ready to go into the work; and they intimated that Comrade G. C. Clemens did not show any disposition to impart the information desired. At the time we received these letters we did not know of the existence or whereabouts of a state committee nor even of a single branch, and we had no means of ascertaining same from Comrade Theodore Debs for the following reasons:

1. The unity referendum of the Chicago faction had not yet been submitted or carried.

2. The Unity Convention by resolution expressly absolved the Chicago faction from rendering a list of their membership in the organized states. If Kansas was an organized state we had no right to ask Comrade Theodore Debs for a list of officers and members.

The unity referendum not having been carried, much less submitted, we feared that a request for information such as desired from the Chicago faction would appear somewhat premature and officious. Furthermore, regardless of any of the above considerations, we believed it was our right and duty to give one or more comrades in any state information about the usual methods of organizing, while at the same time countenancing due respect for any duly constituted state committee that might exist in any state.

Upon this view of the case we on August 24 issued a circular letter of instructions on organization to the various Socialist organizations in Kansas concerned in the Unity Convention, and sent extra copies to our informants requesting them to remail them to the local branches in Kansas. Our instructions on organization were as follows:

1. That the National Committee in granting state charter would require that every Socialist political organization in Kansas so desiring had a voice in the state organization.

2. That local branches desiring a voice in the state organization should be required to give proof of their integrity in the form of charter or otherwise.

3. That the method of effecting unity between the Socialist elements should be in accordance with the wishes of comrades throughout the entire state.

4. That the regular state committee or the combined state committees (if more than one faction was thus represented) should act conjointly. If no regular state committee existed a provisional state committee could be formed.

5. Instructions for authorizing the regular state committee (or if none) the provisional committee to manage all arrangements for obtaining state charter.

Two days after issuing this communication we received a letter from Comrade G. C. Clemens warning us against comrades in Kansas whom he charged with being prohibitionists, and with having designs to capture the state organization. In this letter Comrade Clemens claimed that a state committee existed, of which he was a member, and he gave the names of the officers. He also gave the names of eighteen towns at which branches existed, but did not give the names of the officers of said branches. He also requested information as to what their state organization must do to effect affiliation with the national organization.

Upon receipt of this letter, I immediately sent Comrade Clemens a copy of the circular letter of instructions on organization, to which I received an immediate reply from him, claiming that our letter of instructions to the Kansas branches was irregular because it ignored the existing Kansas state organization; that no other state committee than that of which he was a member had ever been organized, and that the state organization of which he was a member would continue as the Socialist Party of Kansas regardless of the national organization. About the time that this controversy arose, applications for local charters began to be received by us from a number of towns in Kansas, including branches of the Chicago N. E. B., who had previously protested to us against issuing a state charter to the Clemens faction. Your local quorum was placed in a very embarrassing situation by this factional fight. The question before us was whether we were obliged to issue a state charter to the Clemens state committee, which was represented at Indianapolis by six votes from one branch; and in addition, whether we should issue this state charter in face of the protest from some of the very branches which Comrade Clemens wrote us were represented in his state organization. In addition to this we had no assurances that in event the unity referendum of the Chicago N. E. B. failed to carry, that the other branches (which Comrade Clemens claimed) would remain affiliated with the Clemens state committee of chartered by us.)

The situation was so replete with uncertainty and demoralization and the evidences of factionalism so conclusive that the local quorum decided not to issue a state charter to the Clemens state committee, but to issue local charters without prejudice to the locals of both factions, and to co-operate with all of the comrades in the state in organizing new locals, who would have no concern with old factional differences, and who would constitute a new element that would exercise a healthy balance of power besides rendering it easier to effect a safe, united and harmonious state organization. An additional reason which influenced the local quorum in coming to the decision not to issue state charter to the Clemens state committee was that upon our writing to T. R. Hawkes of Topeka, Kansas, state secretary of the Clemens faction, for a list of all the Socialist branches represented in their state organization, the names and addresses of secretaries and names and addresses of the state committeemen, Comrade Hawkes replied saying that since being elected state secretary he had had no records or information except of a casual nature turned over to him by the former state secretary, Comrade Clemens; that he saw Comrade Clemens every few days and had frequently asked him for the books and papers of his office but without avail. We complained that he had been utterly ignored in his official capacity as state secretary. It becomes proper for us in this place to say that while we were struggling with this problem and endeavoring to straighten out the factional tangle by recognizing the power in the membership (through issue of local charters), Comrade Clemens in September attempted to issue a call for state convention, on two weeks' notice, but the attempt had to be abandoned owing to the fact that it was impossible to ascertain who constituted the members of the state committee, and thus the final proof was given of the complete demoralization of the Social Democratic Party of Kansas.

During the entire period of this trouble the National Committee refrained from active intervention by the sending of a personal representative in the state, having faith in the ultimate good sense of the rank and file. We adopted a passive attitude toward the combatants, but we assured both factions that while we did not desire to become entangled in their state differences, that we stood ready to co-operate with each and every comrade in the state to bring about unity of the Socialist forces in Kansas. We gave our approbation to efforts made by Comrades Walter Thomas Mills, C. R. Mitchell, W. E. Bush, and others to conciliate Comrade Clemens, and, although we had ten locals chartered at the time (including six which had been affiliated with the Chicago N. E. B.) these comrades made a proposal to Comrade Clemens to recognize his state committee provided the latter would agree to call a state convention. This proposition, I am informed, was accepted by Comrade Clemens, but for some reason he failed to call the convention as agreed.

After waiting for some weeks and endeavoring in vain to induce Comrade Clemens to issue call for state convention to all the Socialist political organizations in the state regardless of factional differences, and pursuant to this proposition (which was accepted by the locals), a call was issued by Local Girard, Kansas, for state convention at Parsons, Kansas, on November 26th.

Upon suggestion of the Kansas comrades, the National Committee agreed to stand a portion of the expense of sending a state organizer to organize new locals and revive those locals of the Chicago N. E. B. which had become inactive. Comrade E. Backus, one of the scholars at Mills School of Social Economy, and a delegate at the Indianapolis convention, was selected for this mission by the Kansas comrades, and the work of organization which he accomplished in the two weeks prior to the convention was not alone highly creditable to him, but also a testimony to the enthusiasm of Socialists at unorganized points.

The convention at Parsons adopted a state constitution and state platform and elected state officers and a national committeeman, whose election has since been ratified by referendum. The convention was attended by fifty-seven delegates, representing thirteen locals. At the time this convention was held there were thirty-one locals in the state chartered by us, including eight which had been affiliated with the Chicago N. E. B. Since the ratification of unity by the Chicago faction, Comrade Theo. Debs has sent me a list of their branches in Kansas, amounting to fifteen in all. Of this number we have been informed that four were inactive before the outbreak of the factional fight, and have not yet been revived. There are three of these places at which we have not positively learned whether locals exist. The balance, consisting of eight, are as before said, included in the state organization recognized by this committee. A state charter was issued by us to the Socialist Party of Kansas on December 27, 1901.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE CASE.

On September 11, Local Dover, New Hampshire, applied to us for a charter of affiliation, their application showing a charter membership of twenty-nine. While New Hampshire had a state committee, yet according to ex-National Secretary Butscher's records, there were only three locals in the state, and all of these, as well as the state committee, were neutral organizations.

According to the report of the Credential Committee, New Hampshire, so far as we could learn, was unrepresented either by delegate or proxy at the Unity Convention. We issued a local charter to Dover on September 20; Exeter, N. H., which for two years had been unaffiliated with any state or national organization, applied for charter on September 28. German Branch 21, Manchester, of the S. D. P. (independent) of New Hampshire, applied for charter on September 30. Both of the above charters were issued on October 4. On October 1, Comrade Benjamin T. Whitehouse wrote us a letter stating that a factional fight had broken out in the state, part of the comrades wanting national affiliation, while others desired a state organization, independent of national connection. We issued local charters to Portsmouth, N. H., on October 11, to Rochester, N. H., on October 25, and to Nashua, N. H., on November 15. In the letter which Comrade Whitehouse wrote to me he said he thought a state organization in sympathy with national unity would possibly be effected prior to October 21.

He wrote us another letter on November 7 stating that as we held a list of the locals chartered by us, and of those locals whose charters were pending action by the local quorum, that it might be well for us to issue call for a state convention. Having in mind that one of the main objections of the faction in New Hampshire opposed to national affiliation was on the ground of past differences charged to national committees, and furthermore the constitutional provision giving each state or territory autonomy in its methods of organizing, we took the position that we could not issue a call for a state convention in New Hampshire unless requested to do so by all the locals chartered by us in the state; and that even then such a course might strengthen the hands of the faction opposed to national affiliation. On November 13, Comrade Whitehouse wrote me that Local Dover would issue call for convention. The same having been duly issued the state convention was held at Exeter on Thanksgiving Day, November 28, at which six locals were represented by delegates, a complete state organization effected, state officers elected, as well as a national committeeman, whose election has since been confirmed by referendum.

Pending the result of this referendum we received a communication dated December 17 from George Howie, state secretary of the Social Democratic Party (independent) of New Hampshire, protesting against Sumner F. Claflin, who had been elected National Committeeman of the unity faction. Comrade Howie in this letter denied that Claflin had either been elected or nominated, that if so then he had separated himself from "the state committee that held the state money of the Socialist Party of New Hampshire." Comrade Howie signed this communication as state secretary of the New Hampshire Socialist Party.

It seems that he claimed this office by virtue of a referendum on state independence held in October, the result of which had, however, been protested and repudiated by some of their own branches on the grounds of a fraudulent count. In Comrade Howie's letter he furthermore said that "it would be well if the National Committee would call in all the New Hampshire charters and instruct the state to get back into line." Prior to this correspondence we had only received one communication from Comrade Howie, which was dated September 3, 1901, related to Comrade Wilshire's lecture tour, and was signed by Howie as state secretary Social Democratic Party. We called Comrade Howie's attention to this also to the fact that the New Hampshire organization prior to the Unity Convention; was neutral; that it was not represented at the Unity Convention; that the unity resolution adopted at Indianapolis did not specifically include New Hampshire; that we had not until recently received any intimation that their state organization had any cognizance of a Unity Convention or a national organization; while on the other hand reliable information had reached us that their state organization not alone continued to maintain its neutral attitude, but had become positively hostile toward national affiliation.

And for the confirmation of the latter statement we called Comrade Howie's attention to that clause in his letter wherein he advised the National Committee to recall all the New Hampshire charters and instruct the state "to get back into line." During the factional fight in New Hampshire the National Committee, conscious of the old prejudice against interference by national executives, scrupulously refrained from any official interference, being governed by the constitutional provisions relating to state organizations. We had no right, nor had we any reason (in view of the neutral, not to mention hostile attitude of the S. D. P. Independents of New Hampshire) to refuse local charters to the local organizations in the state which applied for same.

On January 5 the state committee of the Social Democratic Party (Independent) of New Hampshire met at Manchester in pursuance of a formal call for said meeting issued by Comrade Howie, claiming to be state secretary of the Socialist Party (Independent), for the purpose, it seems, of canvassing a vote which had been taken by the said Socialist Party (Independent) for state officers. The full details of this meeting have never been sent to me, but from the particulars that I have received it seems that the members of this state committee Socialist Party (Independent) had either experienced a radical change in individual sentiment or received some positive instructions from their constituencies, for instead of canvassing the vote for state officers of the Socialist Party (Independent) they declared the act of State Secretary Howie in submitting said vote illegal, and thereupon seated the state officers elected by the Thanksgiving convention of the unity faction. Comrade Howie wrote me a letter dated January 7 practically verifying the above account and not in any manner questioning its regularity or legality.

On January 9 we received application for state charter from New Hampshire which was signed by State Secretary Louis Arnstein, elected by the unity faction, and five members of the state committee, including Comrade Howie, who had been elected state committeeman at the same meeting at which his office expired as state secretary.

The application for state charter being signed by representatives of both factions, the local quorum considered the New Hampshire factional controversy ended and the incident was closed by the issuance of state charter to the Socialist Party of New Hampshire on January 10, 1902.

Current Literature

The "Comrade" will begin with its February number the publication of Leo Tolstoi's new story, "Forty Years," never before published in this country.

The Socialist Literature Co. will, in few days, issue a pamphlet by Ben Hanford, intended especially for propaganda among railway workers. Having been permitted to read a part of the pamphlet in copy, we can say that it will be something quite unique in manner and full of matter at once interesting and instructive. Although intended, as has been said, especially for use among railway men, it will not fail to attract the attention of workers in any trade to whom it is presented. It will be issued at 5 cents a copy, with the price cut in half on wholesale orders, so that locals can afford to push its circulation vigorously.

PARTY NOTES.

The 6th and 10th A. D. met last Friday and admitted two new members. Fifty tickets for the party festival of Feb. 22 were received and put in the hands of Comrades Brosch and Raines. The Worker Committee and the Entertainment Committee reported progress. The financial report for the quarter from Oct. 1 to Jan. 1 showed receipts of $35, expenditures of $34.43, and a cash balance of 57 cents. The comrades of the 6th and 10th evidently hold that money should be used as fast as it is received. That is the right principle for a working organization.

The 16th A. D. is holding lecture meetings at the Volks Lyceum, 218-220 E. Second street every Friday evening. After the lecture a business meeting of the district is held. Last Friday J. N. Wood spoke on "Socialism and the Labor Problem," taking the place of N. I. Stone, who was out of the city. A good discussion followed. This Friday, Jan. 31, Courtenay Lemon speaks on "Popular Misconceptions of Socialism." All comers are welcome. At the last business meeting J. Middleman was elected as Recording Secretary and Comrades Feldberg, Fieldman, and Ed. Cohen as delegates to the East Side Labor Conference. Twenty-five tickets for the festival of Feb. 22 were accepted.

The 30th A. D. at its last meeting had 16 members present. There is a good number of comrades in this district who should bestir themselves, attend district meetings, and work for the cause. Comrade Ramm presided. Delegates to General Committee were instructed in favor of a more central place of meeting. Delegate to The Worker Conference was instructed to try to see that that body go to work in earnest to put The Worker on the way to becoming a daily. Delegates were elected as follows: To General Committee, Schultz and Ramm; to Yorkville Agitation Committee, Uhl, Hirsch, Roescheisen; to the "Volkszeitung" Conference, A. Jablinowski. A stag party and smoker will be held on Feb. 16 at the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, to which all friends of the party are invited.

The 34th and 35th A. D. has taken fifty six-month and twenty-five yearly subscription postals. They expect to be in a position to order more in a month or two.

The Yorkville Agitation Committee put in a fresh supply of ammunition in the shape of one hundred half-yearly subscription postals and are starting their campaign for the daily. They want their members to get in and drill and just use up this little starter in practise work.

J. J. Murphy will speak at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue, Sunday evening, Feb. 2, under the auspices of the 21st A. D., S. D. P. His subject will be: "A Social Diagnosis." All are invited.

The Young People's Social Democratic Club of Yorkville decided at its last meeting that, when Comrade Lee's course of talks on political economy is completed, which will be in a few weeks, a program of debates by the members shall be undertaken. The club will hold an apron and necktie party at the Club House on March 8. The club is in good condition, new members being admitted at almost every meeting. All young people in the Yorkville districts who are interested in Socialism are invited to join the club, which meets every Thursday evening at the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

The visit of the Valls to Ticonderoga did much good to the movement there.

Local Newburg has just started its work, and it expects to win itself an honorable place in the roll of party organizations. The Organizer is Max S. Schreiber, 105 W. Parmenter street. He will be glad to communicate with any who are interested in Socialism.

The Westchester County Committee organized a local of the Social Democratic Party at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., Saturday evening, Jan. 25. W. Moeller of Dobbs Ferry introduced the committee to the meeting. H. W. Wessling of New Rochelle and F. W. Gastelger of Port Chester addressed the audience on the organization and principles of the S. D. P. Both speakers were applauded. Comrade Moeller, who is an energetic Socialism, with the assistance of the County Committee, then proceeded to take the names of those willing to form a local. Eleven enrolled at once, with more to follow in the near future. Comrade Gastelger started a collection for the new local, which amounted to $2.65. Comrade Moeller was elected Organizer, and will apply for a charter at once. The delegates of all locals of the county will take notice that the County Committee meets Sunday, Feb. 2, at Yonkers, on business of importance.

At the Essex County, N. J., convention, held on Jan. 22 at party headquarters, an effective form of organization was adopted. E. T. Neben was elected organizer pending a referendum. Comrades Billings and Rublnow were elected to the State Committee. The constitution will be given to a referendum as soon as it is prepared.

Socialists of New London, Conn., will give their first annual package party and ball at Allyn Hall on Friday evening, Feb. 14. Tickets, admitting lady and gentleman, 50 cents.

Our veteran comrade, G. W. Scott, of Danbury, Conn., is doing good service for The Worker. There is many a younger comrade who might well emulate Comrade Scott's energy and perseverance.

Comrade Tillett's two addresses made a deep impression on the trade unionists of Toledo and set many to thinking who have in the past paid but little attention to Socialism.

The Socialists of St. Paul, Minn., are holding free public lectures every Sunday at 3 p. m., at Pfeiffer's Hall, Eighth street and Wabasha streets. Among those who will speak during the next two months are F. D. Freeman, Geo. B. Leonard, Miss Anna Maley, Geo. H. Lockwood, and J. E. Nash. All who are interested in the labor question will be given a hearty welcome.

S. Berlin will lecture on "Capitalist Morality" at the Socialist Educational League, 215 East Fifty-ninth street, New York, this Sunday evening, February 2.

Courtenay Lemon will lecture in Yonkers this Sunday evening February 2, at Building Trades Hall, 23 North Broadway, on "What Socialism Really Is".

STATE COMMITTEE.

Comrade Phillips presided at the meeting of the State Committee in the Labor Lyceum on January 21, and in the absence of Secretary Abbott, Comrade Reich acted in that capacity.

Regarding election of National Committeeman, it was reported that all nominees for this position had declined the nomination, with the exception of Job Harriman. Harriman accordingly stood elected, and had gone to St. Louis on January 21.

Regarding Vail's meetings, it was reported that Comrade Vail had spoken to good audiences in New Rochelle, Yonkers, Brooklyn, Cold Spring, Troy, Ticonderoga, Fort Edward, Schenectady, and Newark. He will also visit Utica, Syracuse, Corning, Hornellsville, Buffalo, Rochester, and Watertown. In all these cases the expense is being borne by the various locals.

William Butscher, State Organizer, reported the organization of a new local in Newburgh, and work done in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Albany, and Troy.

Local Rochester reported that it would arrange two meetings for Vail, and that Ben Tillett would also speak there.

Comrade Simmonds of Peekskill reported that efforts were being made to organize a local at Dobbs Ferry. Decided to send a German speaker, if possible.

Inquiries as to how to organize were received from Wellsville. Local charter was granted to Newburgh. Local Troy bought stamps. Dues were also received from Cold Spring and Schenectady.

Local Kings County reported having elected Edward S. Bock as its representative on the State Committee.

On motion, $46 was sent to the National Secretary on account.

A letter was received from Comrade J. W. Brown of Hartford, Conn., offering to give a few weeks to agitation in this state.

Comrade Slobodin reported that Benjamin Hanford's pamphlet will be ready in a week or two. It is to be published by the State Committee and the Socialist Co-operative Publishing Association jointly, and the price will be put at 5 cents for single copies and 2½ cents a-copy wholesale. It will be an excellent booklet for propaganda and should be widely circulated.

After an interesting discussion it was decided to issue a call for funds to carry on the work of organization in the state, especially where locals do not now exist. Comrade Reich was instructed to get out subscription blanks, with an appeal as soon as possible, and all comrades and sympathizers in the state are requested to respond liberally.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Comrades Edlin and Wood presided in last Saturday's meeting of the General Committee of Local New York. The following delegates were seated: Eighth A. D., Chas. Lane, J. Ginsberg, R. Perlmutter; 6th and 10th, W. J. F. Hannemann; H. L. Slobodin, S. Raines, Miss T. Fox; 21st, E. N. Martin, Miss Dubman, and Job Harriman; 31st, Algernon Lee and John Wilkins; 23d, C. A. Springer and Bartholomew; 28th, Bowerman, M. Günther, and R. Bock; 34th and 35th, Br. 1, L. Jablinowski and R. Wyssman; Br. 2, John Jacobs and Ernest Sprenger. Seven new members were admitted to the party.

A letter was received from the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Association, stating that the laying of the cornerstone would take place on May 30 and the opening on Sept. 1, Labor Day, and requesting the party to refrain from arranging any festivals on those days. The request was granted and all subdivisions requested to take the same action. A committee, consisting of Gerber, Ramm, Waldinger, Mayes, and Jablinowski, was elected to arrange for a good representation of the party on these occasions.

Organizer Gerber presented the financial report for the six months ending Dec. 31, 1902, showing receipts of $1,649.63. Treasurer Hannemann's report showed expenditures of $1,717.05. The report, having been audited, was accepted.

The Entertainment Committee reported progress on the festival for Feb. 22 at the Grand Central Palace, showing that it will be a very attractive affair. Delegates were requested to work energet ically for the success of the festival.

The committee se nt to explain to Turnverein Vorwärts the misunderstanding in regard to a donatio n of $6 by that organization to the party reported that the matter had been satisfactorily settled. Acknowledgment is here made of the receipt of $6 from Turnverein Vorwärts for the party picnic of 1900.

Election of officers resulted as follows: Organizer, Julius Gerber; Recording Secretary, Edw. M. Martin; Treasurer, W. J. F. Hannemann; Auditor, S. Elges; City Executive, N. S. Rischenthal, Morris Hillquit, Levin, Job Harriman, Mayes, Edlin, and Wood.

SOMERVILLE SOCIALISTS.

A meeting to consider the organization of a City Committee will be held Sunday, February 9, at 2 p. m., in Hill's Building, Union Square. Every citizen who is interested in the success of the Social Democratic Party and votes the ticket is requested to be present, whether a member of a club or not.

—Remit $1.00 and we will send you five six months prepaid subscription cards to The Worker and a Worker's Calendar free.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 421, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 329 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneil, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 218 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred H. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, Secretary, Winfield F. Porter, 614 Washington Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Seely, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 N. Baum street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room B, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary; George E. Bald, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arustein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eidaness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Pearl, P. O. Box 1176, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. W. Quick, 1622 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Wilcox, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 637, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 8 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 8 p. m.

CONNECTICUT.

STATE COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the State Committee was held Sunday, Jan. 26, with all members present. Communications were read from Rockville, New London, Hartford, Danbury, and Stonington. Bills of R. Bussman for printing, $3.84, was ordered paid. Organizer reported having held a very successful meeting at Bridgeport on Jan. 19. Secretary reported receipts of $27.75; expenditures, $2.10; balance, $10.45. It was decided, the referendum vote being in favor of the amendments as submitted, that the Organizer should have the constitution printed as soon as possible.

A. B. CORNELIUS, Secretary.

A CALL TO ACTION.

Comrades, attention!

The reorganization of the Socialist Party in Connecticut is now practically completed and as we have a state election this year it is time for all our members to go to work and for each and every man to do his share towards extending the organization and preparing to make such a vigorous campaign as has never before been seen in Connecticut. Fourteen branches have received charters of the Socialist Party, all of them formerly branches of the Social Democratic and Socialist Labor parties, and a new branch has been recently organized in Derby which is bound to be one of the best in the state. The branches in Ansonia and Montville have not yet applied for charters, those in Milford, Bristol, and South Norwalk have broken up. Effort will soon be made to get the comrades in these towns together. In Branford, Naugatuck, Norwich, Unionville, and Southington there is a prospect that branches may be organized, and comrades living in these towns or near them are requested to collect addresses of sympathizers and aid the state in organizing them.

The state convention appointed a branch in each county to collect addresses of sympathizers in all unorganized towns in their respective counties. These branches, viz.: Branch 3, New Haven; Branch 11, Bridgeport; Branch 1, Hartford; Branch 8, New London should each elect three active members to do this work, so that when the state campaign is on we shall have workers in every town ready to spread our literature and ballots. This work will not be great, as two or three persons in each town will suffice.

The activity shown by our branches at present is gratifying. Rockville made a vigorous city campaign and an excellent vote; the branches in Hartford recently held a successful propaganda meeting which they will repeat this week with Comrade Wilshire as speaker; Branch 5 has open headquarters in New London and its educational club holds weekly meetings; Local New Haven has headquarters and Socialist reading room open every evening at 746 Chapel street, where the state headquarters are located; Bridgeport branch has two meetings each month and arrangements are being made to have speakers each meeting; Danbury branch reports an active literature propaganda and constant increase of membership.

Comrade Toomey addressed the January meeting of Derby branch, and the state organizer left Bridgeport branch. A few non-members were present at these meetings, and the interest of members was renewed. We intend to arrange for local speakers to visit the branches regularly, if possible, and Comrades Toomey and Brown will address open meetings when they are able to do so. Arrangements can be made with the state secretary.

A portion of the income of the State Committee has been set aside for purchase of suitable leaflets, and some of these will soon be ready for free distribution. This work will be extended as fast as finances will permit, until we have a good assortment of brief leaflets on different phases of the social question.

There has been some delay in issuing the state constitution because branches did not vote promptly on the last amendments. The constitution as amended has at last been accepted, and will soon be printed both in English and German. Suitable letterheads and report blanks will also be issued.

The system of dues we have adopted provides that each branch shall be entitled to a number of due stamps equal to its membership on credit, and that at the beginning of each month the State Secretary shall issue another quota equal to its membership which shall be paid at once. Branch secretaries should try to pay dues to the State Committee promptly, as it is impossible to work effectively when branches pay their dues at long intervals and in uncertain amounts. Branch secretaries should send monthly reports of member ship numbers, as the dues to the National Committee are based on these reports, and we are not yet certain what the actual membership in Connecticut members. If you cannot send accurate reports send an estimate.

In conclusion, let every comrade remember that the work of the party will be effective in proportion as each member is active in helping it along. Don't expect that the State Committee can accomplish much in the way of new branches if it is obliged to use its time and money in resuscitating old ones; don't hang back three months behind the rest of the state in contributing to the support of the party, and expect to have the constitution revised for your especial benefit; don't get around just as the branch meeting adjourns and kick because you were not notified by letter of the business to be transacted. The officers have other duties and better uses for funds than that. Make it your duty to know the time of meetings and be present and help with the work.

Yours fraternally,

W. E. WHITE,
State Organizer.
229 Exchange street, New Haven.

MASSACHUSETTS.

NOTICE.

The Executive Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs is arranging a tour of the state during the month of February for Charles H. Vail. He has been secured for a series of four lectures in Haverhill and Boston, the dates being Feb. 3, 4, 5, and 6 in Haverhill, and Feb. 11, 12, 13, and 14 in Boston. Several dates are still vacant.

There could be no better work done at this time in many localities than to have Comrade Vail speak, and comrades are urged to secure him for at least one date before he leaves the state. Immediate action should be taken. For full particulars address

WILLIAM MAILLY,
State Organizer,
614 Winthrop Building, Boston.

BOSTON CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

At the Central Committee meeting held at 724 Washington street on Jan. 21 communications were received from the State Propaganda Committee and placed on file. Committee on by-laws asked for further time. Branches gave encouraging reports, notably the East Boston and the Highland District. Dr. H. A. Gibbs will speak at East Boston on Jan. 30, and Comrade Carey will speak in Roxbury, at Dudley Street Opera House, on Jan. 29.

Election of officers laid over until after adoption of by-laws.

Comrade H. Acton elected treasurer pro tem.

Comrade Marcus A. Touvin and Worcester were elected a committee to visit German comrades in South Boston.

All members are urged to settle dues for January. Next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 4, at 724 Washington street.

LOUIS MARCUS, Secretary.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

Socialism and Christianity.

Editor of The Worker.

Comrade Spelman confounds Christian Socialists with Christians who are also Socialists. I am willing to subscribe to every word he says as far as good Socialists are concerned who find it consistent with understanding to take other development of recent times the belief in the class struggle, and the voting for the Co-operative Commonwealth, to be: IN THEIR PRIVATE LIFE, believers in Christianity or any other religion they want. "Religion is a private affair," says distinctly every Socialist program. But such it is if it is adhered to AS a private affair. This, however, is by no means the case with Christian SocialISM, the only subject in question.

Christian Socialism is not a question of SocialISTS privately baptized, but of SocialISM politically baptized, basing Socialist movement on the Christian religion and its church; or, in other words, an appeal in favor of Socialism IN THE NAME of devotion to Christianity.

It is in regard to this that Comrade Cutting very justly says that Socialism is a science and Christianity a speculation, and therefore the former can only be harmed by being removed from its solid basis of science and placed on the airy basis of speculation. This it is that Christian Socialism tries to do.

"Who cares, and what is the harm?" asks Comrade Spelman. Nobody cares and there is no harm if one wishes to call himself a Christian Socialist in the sense of a Socialist who at the same time privately is a Christian; but we all care and there is all the harm in the world, if it is in the sense of a Socialist who is such and wants to agitate Socialism only in the name of so-called "Christian universal brotherly love."

The harm consists in the fact that this sentimental standpoint IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS is bound to weaken the revolutionary energy of hatred for the wrongs one suffers and the class soldier ty derived from the consciousness of the Common STRUGGLE against a common enemy—the energy and the solidarity which we know by science, not by speculation, to be the ONLY forces by which material social changes can be effected.

When the ruling classes want to provide the masses to contribute their all-conquering energy to a national struggle against another nation, they are clever enough not to appeal to those feelings, thoughts, and sentiments HELD BY BOTH NATIONS IN COMMON. On the contrary, at that moment the ruling classes will do their utmost to CONCEAL from public attention those interests and sentiments common to both nations, and will push to the foreground all possible things capable of WIDENING THE CHASM BETWEEN the two peoples. Why? Because they, by practical diplomatic shrewdness realize what we are taught by Marxian science that is the spirit of antagonism and FIGHT AGAINST SOMETHING MATTER-ANT DESPISED, and that this is alone which is creative of that mighty united energy and, also of self-sacrifices, which accomplishes everything in the struggles of the human family.

Now, as Christians, both classes share a common sentiment. As Christians, on the other hand, the workingmen have nothing in common with agnostic, Jewish, Mohammedan, or pagan, and foreign workingmen. appeal to Christian sentiment, therefore, is creative of a community of feelings of the Christian workingmen with Christian capitalists, a division of feelings between them the former and non-Christian workingmen, both of which are diametrically opposed to the sentiments the Socialist movement needs to cultivate.

Moreover, the appeal to the Christian sentiments, to the appeal to the wicked to become virtuous, and the hope for the sufferers by the wickedness of the former to be redeemed by their reform through that appeal. This is extremely hurtful to the cultivation of the spirit of class antagonism and class struggle.

Finally, to put the hope for Socialism on the basis of the Christian belief at least means inevitably to neglect to lay stress on the material economic necessity of Socialism, as proven by the science of materialistic Socialism. And while the energy spent on building up the movement on the later solid basis of CONVICTION is well spent, that spent on the agitation for Christian sentimental Socialism is wasted, for sentimentality has no durability nor solidity nor any material power for achieving our ends.

Therefore we say to our brothers, the Christian Socialists: Baptize your children, baptize yourself, if you wish to do so, but for God's sake—or, rather, for man's sake—don't try to baptize Socialism.

B. FEIGENBAUM.

Letter Box

CHAS. KIERN, Hoboken.—Letter will appear next week. Crowded out by other matter this time.

JOHN CONWAY.—Your suggestion is a good one. Shall try to get it put into use.

K., Richmond, Va.—Yes, we are still "doing business at the old stand."—We try to view the negro question—as all other phases of the great social problem, the kernel of which is the labor problem—not from a sectional or national standpoint, American or European, Northern or Southern, but from the standpoint of the interests of the international working class. We have to deal with facts, not with sentiments. Doubtless we may make mistakes, but no mistake could be more fatal than that of refraining from discussion of this or any other question for fear of offending traditional feelings.—We have certainly never answered a "policy of attacking Wayland." Doubtless Comrade Wayland and other editors of Socialist papers are as willing to be criticised by us where we think they are wrong as we are to be criticised by them when they think we are wrong.

N. EWART, Newark, N. J.—We have not yet any definite information as to Comrade Troiestra's proposed visit to this country. As soon as we are definitely informed we shall let our readers know.

OLIVER EVERETT, San Francisco.—We observed the apparent disregard of the law of failing bodies in the matter you refer to. You will observe, however, that we were quoting from a "Herald" report of an engineer's statement. Certainly it would take less than three seconds for metal to fall 80 feet. Precisely, however, what was meant was that, as actually observed, nine seconds intervene between the sound of the explosion, which would give warning, and the fall of the metal to the earth. That seems probable enough.

W. E. WHITE, New Haven, Conn.—"Pity the sorrows of a poor old man." Our once golden locks have turned as white as the ter knows in the effort to keep out of the paper all the things that ought not to be in it, and put in all the things that ought not to be left out. Job, in his sufferings, cried out: "Oh, that mine enemy would write a book!" If he were living now, and equally malevolent, he would wish his enemy to edit a paper.

We think you underestimate the importance of party affairs. If the party press fails to report and discuss party affairs, we lose the greatest bond of coherence in the party and the organization tends to disintegrate. Each report, communication, or editorial comment may be uninteresting to some and even distasteful to a few; but each will be valuable to very many; and the great thing that men have to learn is the habit of organized action, the habit of criticising and bearing criticism without quarrelling, of interesting themselves in the general welfare, and of abiding by the decision of the majority. If we have not yet learned enough to be able to discuss party affairs without weariness or bitterness, how would we conduct the affairs of the Co-operative Commonwealth? Well, we are learning it—slowly but surely. You can help.

RICHARD NIEDERWERFER, Rockville, Conn.—So far from thinking that "the comrades have no right to criticize or to make recommendations," we insist on that right for all comrades, confined, of course, in allusion to the keeping up of old lines of division had no reference to any action taken by any Connecticut organization, but to two Western Socialist publications, both of which were decidedly disloyal in their spirit and abusive in their tone. For the rest, we discussed a question of real importance to party organization and argued against what we believed and believe to be a bad tendency—the tendency to excessive decentralization and excessive economy, or parsimony.

As to Comrade Vail's failing to send in reports of his meetings to the party press, that is your mistake. He has reported to the National Secretary and The Worker has almost weekly had notes about his work. It must be admitted that he is not much given to blowing his own horn. We think that a virtue.

JOS. LINKE, Grand Rapids, Mich.—You ask what we should advise you to read in order to prepare yourself to do agitation work. Here are a few suggestions:

First, read a good capitalist daily, and think as you read it. Observe the news they suppress or distort and the sort of advice they give editorially to the working people. Observe the news of trusts, of injunctions, of court decisions against labor laws, of the contrast of poverty and wealth. The daily paper, carefully, is news enough, is a storehouse of ammunition for the Socialist agitator.

Second, read The Worker and the Saginaw "Exponent" regularly. The "Exponent" is a very well edited trade-union paper, supporting the Socialist Party. It is published at 121 N. Baum street, Saginaw.

Third, read Job Harriman's "Class War in Idaho," Algernon Lee's "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," Kautsky's "Class Struggle," "Capital at Class," "Proletariat," and "Co-operative Commonwealth," and H. G. Wilshire's "Problem of the Trust." These are all 5-cent pamphlets, except "Labor Politics," which costs 3 cents. For more systematic and larger books, try "The People's Marx" (price, 75 cents); Vanderveide's "Collectivism and Industrial Evolution" (25 cents); Vail's "Principles of Scientific Socialism" (25 cents), and Ferri's "Socialism and Modern Science" ($1).

For names of speakers in Michigan, address Clarence Neeley, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw.

BRANCH 2, HOBOKEN.—Doubtless politeness is a good quality in Socialists, as in all others; but don't you think a soldier might carry politeness too far in dealing with the enemy? It is surely impolite to shoot a man. Yet it is frequently the soldier's business to shoot. Remember that we are soldiers in a great class war—a war in defense of humanity against cruel oppression. It is our duty to fight and fight and keep on fighting. Don't let considerations of politeness sway you too much—lest you forget to shoot straight.

LABOR A SOCIAL ACT.

Individual labor is a misnomer, for every individual considered from the historic point of view is but a product evolved from society. Even the creation of the proverbial old woman's cup of tea is a social act—a social product—the evolved result of a chain of ancestral experiences. A cup of tea, far from being an individual product, may represent a modicum of the sum of the accumulative intelligence and skill, art and science, of all the continents. The tea will probably be a mixture representing the combined skill of the Chinaman and the Hindu, the outcome of the evolution of art and science which those two nations have bestowed upon the tea plant.

The vessel chartered to bring the tea to England has concentrated within its hulks the embodiment of all the ingenuity and inventive faculties of European civilization; in the component parts of that vessel, comprised of wood, iron, copper, or amalgam, lies labor representative of the highest skill and intelligence of men in all parts of the world. Thus a common cup of tea and its accessories may represent the highest pinnacle of art in both China and Europe—aye, of the whole world. The most insignificant thing which we may consume in the ordinary way has embodied in its substance a portion of the accumulated wisdom and experience of collective man.

Labor is essentially social, and if we only strike a nail in a wall with a hammer we can hardly realize what untold ages of evolution in industry had to pass before it was possible to produce that nail and hammer. The individuality of a person is entirely lost in the production of any given article. The individual is an evolved unit of the present society, and when a "clever" and "talented" individual struts his exalted virtues peacock fashion before us, what a miserable caricature of a man he would be if the inheritance of all the ages were abstracted from his personality!—A. P. Hazel.

NOW AND THEN.

"The Socialist Dramatic Club's entertainment held at the Temple last Saturday night was a grand success, the house being crowded to the doors. Standing room only was the sign for all who came late. "Now and Then," the Socialist play by Comrade Krafft of New York, was what drew the crowds, showing that the Socialist Dramatic Club to be a success must present as far as possible plays that will show the evils of the present capitalistic system."—Workers' Call, Chicago.

—An effective play for Socialists amateurs, "Now and Then," a play in two acts by Frederick Krafft. Price, 10 cents; 5 copies, 75 cents; 50 copies, $3.00. Sent postpaid by Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

LECTURES IN UNION COUNTY.

Local Union County, N. J., of the Socialist Party has arranged for a series of lectures on Socialism to be held on Sunday evenings at Alfred Deutsch's Lodge Rooms (third floor), 709 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth.

On Sunday evening, Feb. 2, Frederick Krafft of Jersey City will speak on the question: "Is Our Country a Republic?"

On Feb. 9, Charles Ufert of West Hoboken will speak on "Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists."

On Feb. 23, Courtenay Lemon of New York will lecture on "What Socialism Really Is."

Comrades and sympathizers can get bills advertising the meetings from Paul Koch, 218 South street, and should distribute them everywhere and help make the meetings successful.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

I HAVE COME.

I have come, and the world shall be shaken
Like a reed at the touch of my rod.
And the kingdoms of time shall awaken
To the voice and the summons of God!
No more through the din of the ages
Shall warnings and chidings divine
From the lips of my prophets and sages
Be trampled like pearls before swine!

Ye have stolen my land and my castle!
Ye have kept back from labor its meed!
Ye have challenged the outcasts to battle
When they plead at your feet in their need!
And when clamors of hunger grew louder,
And the multitude prayed to be fed,
Ye have answered, with prisons and powder,
The cries of your brothers for bread!

I turn from your altars and arches
And the mockings of steeples and domes
To join the long weary marches
Of the ones ye have robbed of their homes!
I share in the sorrows and crosses
Of the naked, the hungry and cold,
And dearer to me are the losses
Than your gains and your idols of gold!

I will wither the might of the spoiler!
I will laugh at your dungeons and locks!
The tyrant shall yield to the toiler
And your judges eat grass like the ox!
For the prayers of the poor have ascended
To be written in lightnings on high,
And the walls of the captives have blended
With the bolts that must leap from the sky.

The thrones of your kings shall be shattered,
And the prisoner and serf shall go free!
I will harvest from seed I have scattered
On the borders of "the Galilee!"
For I come not alone and a stranger;
Lo, my reapers shall sing in the night,
Till the star that stood over the manger
Shall cover the world with its light.

—James G. Clark.

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

The party which this paper represents is known nationally as the Socialist Party, and such is its designation in most of the states. In New York, however, and in Massachusetts, it keeps the former name of Social Democratic Party, for reasons concerning the election laws. It has no connection with the Socialist Labor Party, and does not approve of the "union smashing" tactics or the abusive methods used by that party. The Socialist or Social Democratic—Party works in harmony with the trade unions, though without any organic connection. It holds itself free to criticize their policy when necessary, but it approves of the principle of trade unionism. It does not attempt to dictate to the unions nor is it dictated to by them. It calls upon all workingmen to join the unions of their respective trades as a means of fighting the daily battle against the capitalist class and to join and work and vote for the Socialist Party as a means of putting an end to capitalism.

VAIL IN BOSTON.

A series of popular lectures on Socialism will be given by Charles H. Vail at the Every Day Church, 397 Shawmut avenue, between Canton and Brookline streets, Boston, Mass., as follows:

Feb. 11—The Economic Evolution.
Feb. 12—The Socialist Movement.
Feb. 13—The Abolition of Poverty and Realization of Plenty.
Feb. 14—The Solution of Modern Social and Industrial Problems.

Doors open at 7:30 p. m. Lecture begins at 8 p. m. Admission, single lecture, 10 cents; full course, 25 cents.

FITNESS FOR LIBERTY.

Many politicians of our time are in a habit of laying it down as a self-evident proposition that no people ought to be free until they are fit to use their freedom. The maxim is worthy of the fool in the old story who resolved not to go into the water until he had learned to swim. If men are to wait for liberty until they become wise and good in slavery, they may indeed wait forever.—Macaulay.

"REFORMERS."

The plans of "reformers," legitimate descendants of the Pharisees, are to "give" the people small parks, to "provide" concerts, to "furnish" rational entertainments, to "build" libraries for them, and so on to infinity and to disgust, and then to restrict and govern the people so that they may do what we want them to do.

What the people want of us "upper classes" is to "get off their backs," with our laws and our bonds and our taxes and our land rents and our monopolies, and so to let them give and provide and furnish and build for themselves all that they need. We exploiters never create one of these things. We merely hire the people to do them and pay them with money which they have earned, but which we have got.—Bolton Hall.

—The object of the Socialist Party is to educate the people regarding the true principles of Socialism and to teach them to use their ballots to redress the abuses of the present capitalist system of production and establish the Co-operative Commonwealth.

—In every country the "dangerous classes" are those who do not work. It is evident the world needs a new nobility, not of the blood that is blue, because it stagnates, but of the new arterial blood that circulates and has a heart behind it, and life and labor.—Longfellow.

"LAW OF SOCIALISM."

BY C. FRANK HATHAWAY.

A treatise on the origin and authority of social law, the inalienable rights and obligations of members of society and their irrevocable duty to each other. Paper, 15 cents. For sale at Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street.

Wilshire's editorial that led the United States Post Office to suppress "The Challenge," 100 copies sent postpaid for $1.00 by H. G. Wilshire 74 Wellesley street, Toronto, Canada, or by Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

PARTY BUTTONS

We manufacture three different sizes in ⅛, ⅞, and 1½ in. diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the ½ in. size simply with Arm and Torch emblem.

1 Button	5 cents.
12 Buttons	25 cents
25 Buttons	50 cents
100 Buttons	$1.75

Cash must accompany all orders.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.
184 William St., New York.

H. B. SALISBURY,

COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW.
320 Broadway, Room 933. 50 Union Square.
9 to 12 a. m. 1 to 4 p. m.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!

Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

INTER'L UNION SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS' REGISTERED

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

R·I·P·A·N·S

My family physician told me to try Ripans Tabules, as he had found them of great benefit in several obstinate cases of indigestion and dyspepsia. I felt better within a day, and was soon greatly relieved. I have always been subject to bad sick headache until I began taking the Tabules, and you don't know what a relief it is to be entirely free from these.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

When ordering mention THE WORKER.

EMILE ZOLA'S

POWERFUL, REALISTIC NOVELS.

Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.

"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "Human Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother, Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."

Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.

Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is:
HENRY HAUPT, Box 1165; Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

READ "THE ADVANCE."

A 16-PAGE SOCIALIST PAPER.

Uncompromising advocate of class conscious political action in the interests of the working class as against those of the capitalist class. Send for sample copy. Subscription price, per year, $1.00. Six months, 50 cents. Three months, 25 cents. 134 Murphy Building, 1236 Market street, San Francisco, Cal.

TRADE and SCIENTIFIC BOOKS

The Scientific American Cyclopedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries; 15,000 receipts, 900 New Formulas, 734 pages. Indispensable in every worker's family. Price, $5.00, cloth; $6.00 in sheep, post free.

Hopkins', "Experimental Science," $4.00.

"Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century," by Edward W. Byrn; 300 illustrations, 480 pages, $3.00. Half red morocco, gilt top, $4.00.

Hopkins' "Magic," $2.50.

Sloane's "Complete Electrical Library," 7 volumes in a box, $5.00.

"Standard Practical Plumbing," by P. J. Davies. A complete encyclopedia for practical plumbers, builders, gas fitters, engineers, etc., $3.

SPEAK FOR THE RANK AND FILE.

Conference of Trade Unions on the "Peace" Scheme.

Many Local Labor Organizations Respond to Call of Cigar Makers No. 90

Unanimous Sentiment Against Hanna-Schwab Plan—Protest Meeting Will Be Held.

The conference of trade unions of New York and vicinity, called by Cigar Makers' Union No. 90 for the purpose of considering the "industrial peace" scheme of the Civic Federation, held its first session at the Labor Lyceum on Friday, Jan. 24. The following representatives were present.

Central Federated Union—A. Waldinger, S. Donnelly, and John Ryan.

C. M. I. U. No. 8—Jos. Martin.

Cigar Packers' No. 251—Samuel Benaim, Fred. Hoffman, and R. Cantor.

Cigar Packers' No. 213—Max Leinewander and Fred. Schulhof.

C. M. I. U. No. 141—J. Machacek and Peter Wanninger.

C. M. I. U. No. 90—John Nowack.

Amalgamated Wood Workers' Union No. 72, J. Stallmeier.

Brotherhood of Carpenters No. 513—Jacob Meyerhoffer.

Typographia No. 7—C. von Halle and Joseph Cohn.

Bricklayers' Union No. 35—August Priebe, Louis Reinecke, and Martin Sand.

Bricklayers' No. 9, Brooklyn—Frank Pflaum.

Bricklayers' No. 11—Schuler and Brown.

Marble Cutters' and Setters' Union—Wm. Parker and John Trimble.

Slate and Tile Roofers' Union—G. Holloway, C. Milton, and Wm. Hansbrucher.

Tar, Felt, and Water Proof Workers.

Architectural Iron Workers' Progressive Union, Brooklyn—Fred. Gerneth.

Architectural Iron Workers—Frank Ellsen.

International Longshoremen's Union No. 271, Hoboken—Henry Lettel, Bardelis, and Chas. Vogler.

Seamen's Union, West Side Branch—Jas. Bird and F. T. Barsnen.

South Street Branch—J. Roberts and W. Dellmo.

Brooklyn Branch—Gildewesle.

Beer Drivers' Union No. 23—William Shien, W. H. Graven, and Herman Friedman.

Brewers' Union No. 39—John Bath.

Brewers' No. 1—Chas. Pommer.

Bartenders' Union—H. Meisel, Wm. Koehig, and P. Reichenbacher.

United Carriage and Wagon Makers—N. Making, E. H. Eifert, and C. Seeburger.

Piano and Organ Workers' Union No. 15—P. Ludwig, Wm. Leimenstoll, and W. F. Schwenzer.

Machinists' Union No. 335—Frank Grossly.

Butchers' Union No. 6—Adam Gelnwald.

Butchers No. 2—Gebhard Schaad and Geo. Tottner.

Butchers No. 4, Hoboken—Frank Suepken, Fred. Hart, and Chas. Brantenbach.

Progressive Musical Union No. 1—Wm. Hornberger, John Weber, and John Zimmejter.

Upholsterers' Union No. 39—M. Koenigsfeld, W. Evert, and R. Rosenthal.

Wire Workers' Union—Geo. Radell, Wm. Collins, and Chas. Balthasar.

Gotham Association of Knife Cutters—Chas. Schmidt and Geo. Robinson.

Carl Sahm Club—H. Frey, H. Koenig, and H. Burmester.

Smoking Pine Makers' Union—Rosenblum and Wachtel.

United Hebrew Trades—J. Saldmon.

Wear Cutters—Welckner.

Tailors' Union—J. Moran [illegible]gen.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONFERENCE?

John Nowark of C. M. I. U. No. 90 was elected Chairman and opened the meeting with a brief speech expressing the opinion of his union, which was responsible for calling the conference, that it was necessary for the working people to be on their guard against the danger of betrayal through such apparently "friendly moves" on the part of well known enemies of Labor. The working class, he said, must think and act for itself, must fight for its rights, and must command respect by its independent attitude. The purpose of this meeting was to consider very carefully the "industrial peace" plan backed by Hanna and Schwab and to give voice to the judgment of the rank and file of trade unionists, so that their position could not be misunderstood.

Paul Reichenbacher of Bartenders' Union No. 1 was chosen as Secretary, and a general discussion then ensued. Every speaker expressed great distrust of the professed friendly intentions of the capitalists in this matter, and it was the general sentiment that a protest meeting should be held, in order to show the capitalists that the rank and file of the working class had no confidence in the peace scheme and to demonstrate that the labor leaders who participated in the peace conference were there only as individuals, and did not represent the organized working people.

WILL HOLD PROTEST MEETING.

It was unanimously decided to hold such a mass meeting and the following committee was elected to make arrangements: Morton of the Woodworkers; Graven of the Beer Drivers; Kilgus of the Painters; Benaim of the Cigar Packers; Solomon of the Hebrew Trades; and Reichenbacher of the Bartenders. It was also resolved to meet again at the Labor Lyceum, Friday evening, Jan. 31, and all unions not represented at the first session were invited to send delegates.

CIGARMAKERS OF PHILADELPHIA APPROVE.

A communication was read from Cigar Makers' Union No. 165 of Philadelphia, stating that while that union, on account of the distance, sent no delegates, it was in full accord with the purpose of this meeting. Declaring that there can be no peace between the lion and the lamb, No. 165 unreservedly condemns the unauthorized action of the trade-union officials who took part in the Hanna-Schwab conference, and declares that it is the duty of every true workingman to recognize the struggle between the class which owns the means of production and the class which does the work of the world and owns nothing, and to use all his powers in fighting for the interest of the working class.

BROOKLYN CARPENTERS JOIN IN PROTEST.

Carpenters' Union No. 32 of Brooklyn also sent resolutions to the effect that their body heartily endorses the action of Cigar Makers' No. 90 in taking steps for the holding of a mass meeting to protest against the conduct of so-called 'labor leaders' who have tried to commit the labor organizations by their own individual action to a false and injurious policy of compromise with the capitalists.

UNITED JOURNEYMEN TAILORS.

The United Journeymen Tailors of New York at their last week's meeting elected officers for the ensuing six months, as follows: President, Sticolius; Corresponding Secretary, Wm. Dinyes; Financial Secretary, Charles Johnson; Treasurer, Herman Sievers; Delegate to C. F. U., Berg. A committee was also chosen to find a union park for next summer's picnic, which is expected to be very largely attended. The union now has 1,050 members in good standing, as against 500 a year ago. In another year they hope to double again.

At the request of workers in several shops a year ago, the union decided to keep an organizer in the field. Charles Johnson was chosen for the work and Messrs. Berg, Motzler, Roosland, and Dinyes assisted him. Many shops have been organized and the work started in others.

All tailors are urged to join the union and help in advancing their common interests. Application may be made to Financial Secretary Johnson any Wednesday, at Emerich's Hall, 214 E. Forty-first street.

JEWELERS' ELECTION.

A well attended meeting of Jewelry Workers' Union No. 1 was held on Jan. 25. Among other important business, the following officers were elected for the year 1902: President, John A. Heese; Vice-President, D. C. Bourquoin; Recording Secretary, S. W. Stern; Financial Secretary, S. Zudeck; Treasurer, C. Belsele; Sergeant-at-Arms, Jos. Gabryel and Thos. O'Neil; Auditors, Julius Speth, Wm. Heilman, Chas. Schroedyr. The office of the union is at 69 St. Marks Place.

UPHOLSTERERS' UNION.

The Custom Upholsterers' Union of New York and vicinity, Local No. 44, will hold a special meeting on Thursday evening, Feb. 18. The adoption of new constitution and by-laws will be the order of the day. The headquarters of the union are at Tecumseh Hall, 231-233 E. Thirty-third street.

LADIES' TAILORS.

A meeting to form an organization of New York ladies' tailors was held at 197 Lexington avenue through the efforts of the Ladies' Tailors' Union of Chicago, represented by G. W. Holtz, its president. The meeting adjourned to meet again on Monday, February 3, at 7:30 p. m. sharp at Tecumseh Hall, 231-233 E. Thirty-third street, between Third and Second avenues.

TRADE UNION NOTES.

The Building Trades Section, C. F. U., has granted credentials to Comrade Jennings to visit all affiliated unions in behalf of the circulation of The Worker, in order to form a field for a daily.

The House Shorers' and Movers' Union will act on The Worker proposition at its next meeting.

The Business Manager of the Actors' National Protective Union is James L. Barry, and his office is at 8 Union Square, New York City. Workingmen's organizations, here or elsewhere, intending to hold entertainments, smokers, etc., are requested to communicate with him and get entertainers who are members of the A. N. P. U.

The Tile and Slate Roofers' Union has subscribed for fifty copies weekly of The Worker for one year. This is a small but progressive and enterprising organization and is strengthening its membership rapidly.

Machinists' Lodge No. 402, which meets at 160 E. Eighty-sixth street, is now taking a weekly bundle of fifty copies. They seem to appreciate the truths of Socialism, for the remarks of on representative were warmly applauded at the last meeting.

The Coppersmiths Union of New York and vicinty in the last meeting elected the following officers for a term of six months: President, J. Williams; Vice-President, Ch. Kessler; Corresponding Secretary, G. Kogel; Financial Secretary, A. Link; Treasurer, R. Gippert; delegates for C. F. U., P. Quinn and K. Bohn. The regular meetings are held at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, on the second and fourth Saturday of each month.

The Pattern Makers' Association hold their annual entertainment and reception at Arlington Hall, 19 St. Mark's Place, on Friday, Jan. 31. The Actor's National Protective Union will furnish the talent.

Carpenters' Union No. 476 voted to give The Worker an adv. announcing their meetings and an order for a weekly bundle of twenty-five copies.

A federal labor union is being organized in Essex County, N. J. It will be affiliated with the Trades Council. Headquarters are at 124 Market street.

The "Railway Guide" and Burgoyne chapels of Typographical Union No. 6 sent in lists of subscriptions to The Worker last week. Others "please copy."

The Barbers have issued a new card and Delegate Helm appealed for assistance from all other unions. Delegate Brown took the floor in behalf of the Barbers and stated that the conditions in this craft are pitiable and the only way that they can be improved is by the active assistance of other unions. There are but two union barber shops in the Bronx. Every union man should help the Barbers. If you can unionize a barber shop, notify Business Agent John L. Hehn, 214 E. Forty-first street.

The New York Wood Carvers' and Modelers' Association, a branch of the I. W. C. A., meets every Friday evening at Tecumseh Hall. The President is Wm. Koenig, 349 Jamaica avenue, Brooklyn; Secretary, Wm. Betsch, 112 Clinton avenue, West Hoboken.

The Cloth Spongers hold their annual ball at Manhattan Lyceum on Friday evening, February 7. Johnson's Military Band furnishes the music.

New delegates admitted to the miscellaneous section, C. F. U., were from the New York Letter Carriers' Association, Beer Drivers' No. 23, Paper Box Makers, Atlantic Coast Seamen's Unions, Smoking Pipe Makers, and United Neckwear Cutters.

Ralph Edwards and Harry Mack, representing the Actors' National Protective Union, spoke in behalf of the actor's entertainment to be held in Murray Hill Theater this Sunday for their benefit fund.

Delegate Dietz urged the delegates to impress upon the members of their organizations the necessity of demanding the union label on all bread. The Bakers must have the assistance of every organization. Buy no bread without the label.

The Drivers' and Hostlers' Union will no doubt be pleased to know that their fellow workingmen in the Journeymen Horseshoers have a union stamp, a monogram J. H. U., which, when stamped on horses' shoes, signifies taht the work is done in a shop employing union men. All drivers should demand this label.

The Atlantic Coast Seamens' Union is growing and is stronger than ever. With Morgan's Steamship Trust and the general progress of the shipping industry the seamen must realize the need of class unity and organization in order to defend their rights.

TRUST NOTES.

Guest, Keen & Co.; one of the largest iron manufacturing concerns in Great Britain, having works at Dowlais and Cradiff, have recently absorbed several other large iron and steel mills and coal mines in Wales, and have now taken in the great Nettlefolds screw wire factories of Birmingham, valued at $10,000,000. A combination controlling the whole iron and steel industry of Great Britain is contemplated.

A combination of the hosiery and glove mills in New England is being planned. The negotiations looking to the consummation of the deal are being arranged by New York financiers who are largely interested in the productions of these industries.

Influential dealers in wool and cotton waste throughout the country have received from the United Waste Manufacturing Company of Troy, N. Y., a communication urging the formation of an organization of the cotton and wool waste and shoddy dealers of America. Several New York dealers have pledged their co-operation.

The East Coast Milling Company, recently incorporated at Trenton, N. J., with a capital of $9,000,000, has acquired control of the Eastern Milling and Export Company and the Atlantic Flour Mills Company. The new corporation will operate the twenty-seven plants of the Eastern Milling and Export Company in connection with a new mill, having a daily capacity of 5,000 barrels, on the Delaware River front. The total capacity of the combined companies will be about 18,000 barrels daily.

The bankruptcy of the Everett-Moore syndicate, controlling a great system of electric lines through Michigan and Ohio into Pennsylvania, will probably end in the transfer of the property to the great Trolley Trust, the Elkins-Widener syndicate. Thus the apparent failure of the first combine, instead of being a check to centralization of capital, will actually carry centralization still further, as is usually the case.

The Diamond Match Company, an international trust headed by the Goulds, is about to establish a factory in Manila. Cheap labor is the inducement.

J. P. Morgan denies the rumor that the Steel Trust has secured an interest in steel mills in Scotland. Such denials generally indicate that the rumor is well founded. It is also reported that the Trust has absorbed another plant at Muncie, Ind.

A representative of the Steel Trust is quoted as saying that the "earnings" of that corporation for January, February, March, and April will average about $9,000,000 a month. Three hundred thousand a day would go a good ways in improving the condition of the steel workers if they got the whole value of their product, as they would under Socialism.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

There is a great difference between public ownership as advocated by the Socialists, and the public ownership as advocated by the small capitalists. The latter are anxious for all of the utilities, such as water, gas, railroads, etc., to be owned by the public, in the hopes that the revenue derived from them may be applied to the reduction of taxes on their property. The Socialists demand that the revenue be applied wholly to the increase of wages, and shortening of hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers. Vote for your interests.—People's Paper.

YORKVILLE AGITATION COMMITTEE.

Saturday, Feb. 1, 1902, 8 p. m., in Clubhouse, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Annual meeting of the members of all organizations represented in Yorkville Agitation Committee.

Order of business:

1. Reports of agitation in 1901.
2. Actions to be taken for 1902.

All members should be present.

THEY MUST BUILD FOR THE FUTURE.

The Achievements and Shortcomings, the Duties and the Needs, of the Trade Unions.

The following passage from the report of President E. T. Behrens to the eleventh annual convention of the Missouri State Federation of Labor applies so perfectly to the conditions and needs of the labor movement in all other states that we commend it to the attention of all our readers:

"The substantial increase in the number of affiliated unions, the marked interest manifested by the organized workingmen towards bringing about a more perfect union, and their efforts to establish closer relations for their mutual protection and advancement, are indeed causes for deep gratification, and are positive evidences of a healthy condition of the labor movement in our state.

"But while the growth of the Missouri State Federation of Labor is truly cause for felicitation, we must not overlook the fact that there are many points in the state where labor organizations do not yet exist, while at others the movement lags and the members seem apathetic and indifferent. This state of affairs is due more to local causes than to any defect in our plan or system of organization and must be remedied by the members in their respective localities. However, it is within the scope of this Federation to aid in extending and building up weak organizations and to institute unions in localities where none now exist. The responsibility and burden of carrying on this work devolves upon the workingmen already organized; for it is highly essential to their well-being and continued advancement that the workers engaged in other industries be also organized. Hence, we should ever keep in mind the fact that, no matter how perfect or how completely our own trade may be organized, to hold that which we have already gained through painful struggles, or if we would hope for still greater achievements, we must extend organization among workingmen wherever possible; for, indeed, it is only through the complete organization and perfect unification of all classes of wage-earners, that the hope of modern trade unionism will ever be realized.

"Organization in itself, however, does not always indicate progress. An organization may comprehend all those engaged in a given industry, its members may be prompt in paying dues and otherwise zealous and loyal to their union; but unless they are organized for the complete emancipation of their class from the thraldom of wage-slavery—the overthrow of that system which binds them to their industrial masters—their efforts will indeed have been in vain and their organization fruitless.

"The labor problem, as represented in the modern trade union movement, involves a struggle so comprehensive and far-reaching in its tendencies, and is so infinitely a movement of the race that those who engage in it must build not only for the present, but also for the future.

"Conservatism, which has so long held the labor movement in its grasp, producing an almost reactionary tendency, is happily giving away to a more aggressive policy.

"The achievements attained by organized labor in the past have not been won by the conservatism of those labor leaders who always pander to popular favor, but rather in spite of them; and it is a question whether the final emancipation of labor is not being absolutely deferred by their timorous and halting policy."

SOCIALISM AND TRADE UNIONISM.

The following resolution was adopted by the Socialist Party in National Convention at Indianapolis, Ind., on July 31, 1901:

"The Socialist Party, in convention assembled, declares that the trade union movement and independent political action are the emancipating factors of the wage-working class. The trade union movement is the natural result of capitalist production and represents the economic side of the working class movement. We consider it the duty of the Socialists to join the unions of their respective trades and assist in building up and unifying the trades and labor organizations. We recognize that trade unions are by historical necessity organized on neutral grounds as far as political affiliation is concerned.

"We call the attention of trade unionists to the fact that the class struggle so nobly waged by the trade union forces to-day, while it may result in lessening the exploitation of labor, can never abolish that exploitation. The exploitation of labor will come to an end only when society takes possession of all the means of production for the benefit of all the people. It is the duty of every trade unionist to realize the necessity of independent political action on class-conscious lines, to join the Socialist Party and to assist in building up a strong political movement of the wage-working class, whose ultimate aim and object must be the abolition of wage slavery and the establishment of a co-operative state of society based on the collective ownership of the means of production and distribution."

"OUR" REPRESENTATIVES.

Chauncey Depew has said that his election to the United States Senate was merely an incident in his career as a railway man—that is, a railway capitalist. In other words, he represents the Vanderbilt family and the New York Central in the Senate. In exactly the same way, his colleague, Thomas C. Platt, represents the Gould family and the Western Union. But who represents the engineers and brakemen and switchmen and laborers and other workmen whao run the New York Central and the telegraphers and linemen and other workmen who keep the Western Union going? Oh, they have no representation. They have not chosen to demand representation. They will have another chance when they see the Arm and Torch of the Social Democratic Party on the ballot next November.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

INJUNCTION TO PROTECT TRUST.

The Fish Trust Gets a Permanent Injunction Forbidding Rival Company to Compete with It in United States or Canada.

The injunction is a very useful instrument in the hands of the great capitalists. We constantly hear of injunctions forbidding workingmen to act together for the purpose of compelling employers to concede higher wages for a shorter workday—against their conspiring "to injure the business" of the capitalists, as the phrase is. But we have never yet heard of an injunction granted at the suit of workingmen, forbidding capitalists to lengthen the workday or reduce wages.

The injunction has its uses in the battle between the big capitalists and the little ones, too. We have never yet heard of an injunction really preventing great capitalists from combining to "freeze out" small competitors. But Justice Scott of Chicago has just granted one forbidding smaller capitalists to compete with a trust.

The injunction in question has been issued at the suit of A. Booth & Co., commonly known as the Fish Trust. This company was formed in 1898, by the combination of sixty-three formerly independent concerns, and controls the fish business throughout the United States and Canada. No one was allowed to enter it except on condition of signing a contract not to engage in the fish trade independently within the territory of the Trust for a period of ten years. Since then another company has been organized, some of its stockholders being also stockholders in the Trust and has entered the trade. On these grounds Scott has granted a permanent injunction restraining the new company from competing with the Trust.

The one principle that guides the courts at present is the principle that unrestrained competition must be enforced upon workingmen and that unrestrained right of combination must be allowed to capitalists. And so long as workingmen vote for judges and other public officials chosen for them by the capitalist class they have no right to complain of the application of such a pernicious principle. When they get ready to put their own men on the bench they will find the precedent set by injunction-issuing judges a very useful one.

HAVERHILL NOTES.

Final arrangements have been made for the series of lectures by Chas. H. Vail. The dates are Feb. 3, 4, 5, and 6, next Monday to Thursday, inclusive, at C. L. U. Hall in Labor Headquarters. Tickets for the entire course are being sold by members of the Central Socialist Club and City Committee at 25 cents each. Comrade Vail is one of the best lecturers on Socialism in America. All workingmen should hear him, and become better fitted for individual propaganda work. The subjects of his lectures are: 1. "The Economic Evolution." 2. "The Socialist Movement."3. "The Abolition of Poverty and the Realization of Plenty." 4. "The Solution of Modern Social and Economic Problems." Comrades from Amesbury, Newburyport, Lawrence, and Georgetown are expected to be present.

A Socialist Debating Club has been formed and meetings are held each Sunday at 6 p. m. at Labor Headquarters. Interest in the debates is increasing, and everyone in Haverhill and vicinity who is interested in Socialism or trade unionism is urged to attend.

DeWitt C. Dow is secretary of the Central Socialist Club of Haverhill and comrades wishing to communicate with the club should address him at Lock Box 575.

Assistant Assessor Charles H. Morrill has been appointed as Haverhill agent for The Worker, and all who are pleased with this paper may renew their subscription through him.

The Central Socialist Club will meet hereafter on Wednesday of each week at 8 p. m. All active Socialists should join and do their part of the work.

After the recent city election in Newburyport, Mass., all the capitalist daily papers which the writer saw, and they were many, failed to report the election of a Social Democratic councilman there. Now here is what occurred. Election officials of Ward 5 announced that Comrade Chas. L. Marble was elected by only two votes plurality. A recount was demanded, and as a result his plurality was increased to fourteen.

Geo. N. Hussey, who was Social Democratic councilman from Ward 5 the past year, ran for alderman on that ticket this year. When the vote was announced he was declared defeated by fifteen votes. The recount showed him thirteen votes behind S.J. Hughes, Democrat, who was successful. The Republican candidate came within four votes of election. The aldermen are all elected at large there. The fact that we elected a councilman there will probably be a surprise to many Socialists.

The vote for mayor was: Moses Brown, Independent, 1,356; James F. Carens, Democrat, 1,184; A. F. Hunt, Law and Order, 94; C. N. Johnson, Social Democrat, 109.

The vote for the Socialist candidates for aldermen ranged from 823 to over 700. AL. TRUIST.

—Individual men, considered apart from all social relations, would be but shadows of men. Men live actively in human relations, and real virtue or vice can be measured only in view of the conditions of society under which the individual is born and trained.—Smyth.

—The ink has disappeared from the parchment upon which the Declaration of Independence was written, and that historic document has ceased to exist. Its influence had ceased to be felt by the judiciary and by legislative bodies some time before.—Machinists' Journal.

—I rejoice at every effort workingmen make to organize. I call the labor movement. It is my only hope for democracy. Organize and stand together. Let the nation hear a united demand from the laboring voice.—Wendell Phillips.

BUNNELL'S BUNCO.

A Slick Slave-Driving Scheme to Exploit Machinists and Electrical Workers.

The Bunnell Telegraphic and Electrical Company has given out the following notice to its employees:

To the Employees of the Bunnell Telegraphic and Electrical Company.

You are hereby notified that on each Saturday, commencing with Jan. 25, 1902, and until further notice, this company will distribute among its employees the prizes hereafter set forth to the different employees of the company, which prizes will be paid on each pay day with the wages earned.

The prizes will be awarded under the conditions hereinafter stated, and will be divided into two classes, to-wit: Classes "A" and "B."

The prizes under Class "A" will be: First prize, $12; second prize, $10; third prize, $7.50; and will be awarded as follows: All employees whose wages are $10 per week or over, will be considered contestants for prizes under Class "A." The employee turning out during the preceding week the best and most work will receive the first prize, to-wit: $12. The employee turning out the next largest amount of good work will receive the second prize, to-wit: $10; the employee turning out the next largest amount of good work will be awarded the third prize, to-wit: $7.50.

Class "B:" All employees earning under $10 a week will be considered contestants for the prizes given under Class "B." The prizes under Class "B." will be: First prize, $8; second prize, $5; third prize, $3. The employee turning out during the preceding week the best and most work will receive the first prize, to-wit: $8. The employee turning out the next largest amount of good work will receive the second prize, to-wit: $5; the employee turning out the next largest amount of good work will be awarded the third prize, to-wit: $3.

The conditions under which these prizes are given are as follows: No employee who is working on piece work or paid by the piece or job will be considered a contestant or entitled to any of the prizes. The prizes will be awarded by the company to such employees as in its discretion are entitled thereto, the company reserving the right to discontinue the giving of these prizes at any time on three days' notice.

In the distribution of these prizes the amount of wages paid to each of the employees will be taken into consideration in making the award; it being understood that the boys earning $3, $4, and $5 a week will receive the same consideration as employees of the same class drawing higher wages. The result of the work being figured in proportion to the wages drawn by the employee.

The amount of work turned in will be figured from Wednesday, Jan. 15, 1902, to Jan. 24, 1902, and the award made and paid Jan. 25, 1902, and on each succeeding Saturday.

Yours truly,

THE BUNNELL TELEGRAPHIC AND ELECTRICAL COMPANY.

IN ROCHESTER.

Uncompromising Working Class Socialists Have Forced Even the Church to Discuss Socialism.

Socialism is a live subject in Rochester. The other night Rev. R. R. Converse of St. Luke's Episcopal Church and Prof. Rauschenbusch of the German Baptist Seminary addressed the men's guild of the church named.

Mr. Converse insisted strongly upon the existence of great economic injustices in society as now constituted and admitted much good in Socialism. Prof. Rauschenbach spoke even more favorably of the Socialist theory. A part of his address may be quoted:

"We are apt to look upon the teachings of Socialism as too idealistic and impracticable, but if we stop to consider the changes and reforms of the past, we may be able to realize that the principles of Socialism may obtain and obtain sooner than we have any idea of. * * *

"Human institutions are not very flexible, but right here among us the changes that are required for the advent of this socialistic regime are going on. We are in a stage of transition. The final change may be sudden and unexpected; it may be attended with tumult and eruption, or it may be accomplished quietly and peacefully. Water may be chilled below the point of freezing and yet ice not be formed; a gentle shaking may be all that is needed to precipitate the change."

One point in Dr. Converse's address was amusing. He censured the Socialists for "turning their backs on the first and greatest Socialist, Jesus Christ." One would like to ask him why it is, if Christ was a Socialist, that the church does not use its power in favor of Socialism. The fact is, the uncompromising working-class Socialists of Rochester have so forced the subject on the attention of the people here that even the preachers are obliged to take it up. But everyone here knows what an effort was made by the good, pious people to silence or to drive out Comrade Brown when he joined the Socialist forces and what a fight had to be made before Socialism could even get a fair hearing. It is pleasing to know that the radical attitude of the comrades of the Social Democratic Party has at last wrought such a change.

The Workers' Call

Clear, Clean Socialist Paper.

Contains each week:

1. Discussions of Science of Socialism.
2. News of International Socialist Movement.
3. Events of Week from Socialist Standpoint.

One year, 50 cents.
6 months, 25 cents.

36 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged, and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

"A Little Nonsense
Now and then is relished by the wisest men."
Come to The Clothspongers' and Finishers' Ball.
MANHATTAN LYCEUM, 66E. 4TH STREET, FEBRUARY 7, 1902.
E. A. Johnson's Military Band - - Tickets Admitting Gentleman and Lady including Wardrobe, 50c.

HOW TO ORGANIZE.

Instructions for Forming Locals of the Socialist Party.

1. Five or more persons may organize a local branch, provided they subscribe to the platform and constitution of the Socialist Party, and sever their relations with other political parties;

2. The officers to be elected are:
   a. A Chairman at each meeting.
   b. Recording Secretary.
   c. Financial Secretary.
   d. Organizer.
   e. Literature Agent.

2. Order of business—
   a. Reading of the minutes.
   b. Admission of new members.
   c. Communications and bills.
   d. Report of Organizer.
   e. Reports of Committees.
   f. Unfinished business.
   g. New business.

4. A monthly payment, computed on a basis of five cents for each member, for the maintenance of the National organization, shall be paid to the National Secretary. Local branches may levy dues if they so choose, or may raise funds altogether through voluntary contributions and pay National dues out of their general funds.

5. A full report of the meeting in which organization was decided on, the names of persons participating, together with five cents for each member, should be sent with application for charter; after receipt of which, upon approval of National Committee, charter will be granted.

6. Each local branch should hold a meeting at least once a week, for the transaction of business or the discussion of political and economic questions.

7. Semi-annual reports of the membership and the financial condition of each local branch, as well as upon the progress made by the Party and its prospects in the locality, shall be sent regularly to the National Secretary.

8. Any person living in a city or locality, where no local branch exists, may apply directly to the National Secretary for admission to the Party, inclosing one month's dues, and will be enrolled as a member-at-large.

9. For farther information not contained herein, address Leon Greenbaum, National Secretary, Room 427, Emilie Building, St. Louis, Mo.

ECONOMIC DETERMINISM.

The existence of man depends upon his ability to sustain himself; the economic life is therefore the fundamental condition of all life. Since human life, however, is the life of man in society, individual existence moves within the framework of the social structure and is modified by it. What the conditions of maintenance are to the individual, the similar relations of production and consumption are to the community. To economic causes, therefore, must be traced in the last instance those transformations in the structure of society which themselves condition the relations of social classes and the various manifestations of social life.—Prof. E. R. A. Seligman, in Political Science Quarterly.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT
SATURDAY, FEB. 1, 1902,
8 P. M., at the
HEADQUARTERS 14th ASSEMBLY DIST.
238 East 10th St.
Admission free. All are invited.

WORKER'S CALENDAR
FOR 1902.
PRICE, FIVE CENTS.
In lots of 5 copies ..... 22 cents.
10 copies ..... 35 cents.
100 copies $3.00
Terms: Cash with order.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

SAVE YOUR VOICE, and let our illustrated agitation leaflet, "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," do some of your propaganda. One hundred for 10 one-cent stamps. Besides order a few copies of the January "Comrade," and circulate them. This will bring you good results, for its PICTURES TALK SOCIALISM. The COMRADE is $1.00 a year—10 cents a copy.
COMRADE PUB. CO., 28 Lafayette Pl., N. Y.

ABBOTT BROS.,
Bakery, Coffee & Lunch Room,
110 Bleecker Str., N. Y.
Kangaroos are welcome!
No line drawn on smaller animals.

FACTORY TO POCKET
Special Sale, 14K. 25-year guaranteed Genuine American Waltham Watches $6.75 to $8.75; valued by Dept. Stores at $14.75 to $19.00. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO., 175 Broadway; up stairs. Established 1876.

ENJOINED.

"Go away back and sit down."—Popular saying.

Two lawyers came and cried: "A word!"
The judge put on a frown.
To Wealth he said: "You will be heard."
To Work: "You may sit down."

Wealth pummeled Work with expletive,
Verb, adjective, and noun.
When Work arose reply to give,
"Sir," said the Judge, "sit down."

"Your Honor, I would simply say—"
Terrific grew the frown.
"Your place is simply to obey;
And I have said, sit down."

"I've heard complainant state his case,
He did your clients brown.
You needn't open up your face.
You simply must sit down!

"If innocent, what need you fear?
The guiltless will not drown.
I'll pass my Solomon, now and here;
And while I do, sit down!

"Your clients must, not talk, walk, rush,
In any part of town.
Save as I say—" "Judge, I protest!"
"Sit down, I say, sit down!"

"Judge, be your leave: In such an age,
This land of great renown—"
White grew the Judge's face with rage,
"Sit down at once, sit down!

"You're here to hear, and not to urge
A single utterance, clown!
Quake, therefore, while I wield the scourge
And hand my order down!

"You have no rights, your clients none!
Wealth bears the rod and crown!
And I'm his tool! Down and be done!
Sit down! Sit down! Sit down!!"

The Court proceeds with steady jerk,
The one place in the town
Where Wealth still gets in all the work,
And Work the sitting down.
—Wm. R. Fox, in Workers' Call.

Keep an eye on your wrapper. See when your subscription expires. Renew in time. It will prevent interruption in the mailing of the paper and facilitate work at the office.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 45. NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 9, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

"DIVIDING UP" THE PRODUCT.

Astonishing Statistics of Industry Issued by Census Bureau.

Report on Manufactures Sustains All Socialist Contentions—Concentration of Capital Shown—Labor's Share of Product Growing Smaller—Actual Reduction of Average Wages in Ten Years.

The United States Census Bureau has issued its long looked for preliminary report on the manufacturing industries of the country, showing the development of industry from 1890 to 1900. The figures support every contention which Socialists make, support us far more emphatically than could have been expected, especially with such an "artful dodger" as Wm. R. Merriam at the head of the Bureau.

The report does not cover government establishments (arsenals, shipyards, etc.), penal, charitable, or educational institutions, nor private establishments having a yearly product of less than $500. These classes of industrial establishments were also omitted in the Census of 1890, so that the comparison is a fair one. The statistics cover all private manufacturing establishments large enough to play any effective part in industry.

The Cold Figures.

Here are the cold figures—full, as we shall show, of revolutionary significance:

No. of establishments, 1890	355,415
Do, 1900	512,585
Increase, 44 per cent.
Aggregate capital, 1900	$6,525,156,486.
Do, 1900	9,853,630,789
Increase, 51 per cent.
No. of wage-workers 1890	4,251,613
Do, 1900	5,310,598
Increase, 25 per cent.
Aggregate wages, 1890	1,891,228,321
Do, 1900	2,323,407,257.
Increase, 23 per cent
Misc. expenses, 1890	631,225,035
Do, 1900	1,028,550,653
Increase, 63 per cent.
Cost of materials, 1890	5,162,044,076
Do, 1900	7,349,016,030
Increase, 42 per cent.
Value of product, 1890	9,372,437,283
Do 1900	13,019,251,614
Increase, 39 per cent.

Let us now proceed to analyse these figures and see how they confirm Socialist theory.

Wage-Working Population.

Socialists maintain that the development of capitalism, by eliminating the independent producers (workers owning the means of production which they use,) and by reducing the wages of workingmen and thus driving women and children into the factories, brings ever a large proportion of the people into the condition of wage-workers (workers not owning the necessary means of production and therefore dependent upon capitalists for permission to work and to live).

In 1890, the population of the United States was 62,622,250. In 1900, it was 76,303,387. The population increased 22 per cent.

As shown above, the number of wage-workers increased 25 per cent., considerably faster than the whole population.

To put it in another way: Roughly speaking, in 1890, one person out of every fifteen was a wage-worker in manufacturing industries, and in 1900, one out of every fourteen was such a wage-worker.

Thus one Socialist contention is confirmed.

Concentration of Capital.

Socialists maintain that the development of capitalism, through the workings of competition, tends ever to crush out the smaler competitors and to centralize capital in fewer hands.

As shown above, the number of manufacturing establishments increased 44 per cent. in ten years; the aggregate capital increased 51 per cent. —at a considerably higher ratio.

In other words, in 1890, the average establishment represented a capital of $18,350; in 1900, the average capital was $19,223.

In earlier decades, the number of wage-workers also increased faster than the number of establishments; that is, the tendency was to bring larger and larger numbers of workers together in each establishment. This tendency, we know, would sooner or later be reversed, because, with the growth of automatic machinery represented by the growth of capital, the larger establishments could be operated by comparatively fewer men. This stage in the development is already reached; in other words, the effect of labor-displacing machinery in contracting the demand for labor is already counterbalancing the effect of expansion of industry in increasing the demand.

Unfortunately, the report does not give us the number of proprietors (individuals, firms, or corporations) owning the manufacturing establishments in 1890 and in 1900. We know that, especially within the last two years, large numbers of formerly independent establishments have been united in the hands of a few corporations. But even without these figures, the report sustains the Socialist contention that capital is being centralized.

Profits and Wages.

Socialists maintain that, as capital develops, the wage-workers, who produce all wealth, get back ever a smaller and smaller share of their product in the form of wages, while the capitalists, who own the means of production, keep ever a larger and larger share in the form of profits.

In order to test this contention, we must examine some of the figures a little more closely. We must discover what was the net product of labor in the two years, and how it was divided between wage-workers and capitalists.

In the first place, we must deduct the cost of materials from the gross product. We must also deduct the "miscellaneous expenses." What remains will be the net product of labor. Out of this net product the wages are paid; and what remains after deducting the wages from the net product will be the profit of the capitalists.

(We here assume that under "miscellaneous expenses" are included only legitimate items of cost of production; such as fuel, lighting, repairs, etc. As a matter of fact, much that is reported under this head is really profit. If we could ascertain the amount of such profit, our case would be still stronger. But we give our opponents the benefit of the doubt.)

IN 1890.
Gross product	$9,372,437,283
Materials	5,162,044,076
Misc. exp.	631,225,035
Total	$5,793,269,111
Net product	$3,579,168,172
Wages	1,891,228,321
Profits	$1,687,939,851

In 1890, then, the wage-workers created a value of $5,579,168,172 and received out of it wages amounting to $1,981,228,321, leaving in the hands of the capitalists profits amounting to $1,687,939,851.

Labor thus received a little less than 53 per cent. of its product; capital received a little more than 47 per cent. of Labor's product.

IN 1900.
Gross product	13,019,251,614
Materials	$7,349,016,030
Misc. exp.	1,028,550,653
Total	$8,378,466,683
Net product	$4,640,784,931
Wages	2,323,407,257
Profits	$2,317,377,674

In 1900, then, the wage-workers created a value of $4,640,784,931, and received out of it wages amounting to $2,323,407,257, leaving in the hands of the capitalists profits amounting to $2,317,377,674.

Labor and Capital, in 1900, divided Labor's product so evenly that the difference between their shares does not amount to one-eighth of one per cent.

Thus the capitalists got an appreciably larger share of the product and the wage-workers an appreciably smaller share in 1900 than in 1890. And so one more Socialist contention is proven correct.

"Dividing Up."

In 1890, out of every dollar the wage-worker created, he gave the capitalist 47 cents for the privilege of working. In 1900, out of every dollar he created, he gave the capitalist 50 cents. But it must be remembered that, when the wage-worker comes to spend his remaining 50 cents, he does not buy goods at factory prices, but has to pay two or three profits in addition. So that another 10 or 15 cents probably slips back to the capitalist in the process of trade. It must be remembered too, that out of that half-dollar the workingman has to pay the capitalist about 12 cents in the form of rent (tribute for the privilege of living on the earth)—for rent generally averages one-quarter of the workingman's income. Thus, at the present time, the working people do not, in the long run, actually get back more than 25 cents out of every dollar they create; the othre three-fourths of the product going to the capitalists in various forms of interest, dividends, and rent. This is evidently the most moderate estimate that can possibly be made. Complete and accurate figures would probably show a still greater disproportion.

And yet the defenders of capitalism have the impudence to accuse the Socialists of wanting to 'divide up" the wealth of the country. What we want is to stop this process of "dividing up" between producers and parasites.

What Labor Has Produced.

In these ten years, then, this is what the working people of the country have done:

They have created all that they used for their own subsistence.

They have repaired and replaced the machinery and the instruments of production as fast as they were worn out.

They have added more than three billions of dollars to the capital owned by their masters—buildings, machinery, and the like.

They have given the capitalists, over and above all this, at least twenty billions of dollars in interest and dividends.

And yet, the working class lives in poverty! And not only in poverty, but in greater poverty than they ever suffered ten years ago—and this brings us to the last point in this analysis.

Wages Actually Reduced.

We have not previously claimed that "the poor are growing poorer," preferring to err on the side of moderation rather than on the side of excess. We have been willing to admit that, on the whole, money wages were probably increasing somewhat (although this is balanced or overbalanced by the increased cost of living), and have only insisted that, as shown above, the working class is getting ever a smaller share of the increasing amount of wealth it creates. But the figures now presented by a Republican Census Bureau compel us to assert, not only that the workers are getting a smaller share of their product; not only that, owing to the increased cost of living, it is growing harder for them to maintain themselves; but that there has been an actual decrease of money wages.

Here are the figures:

In 1890 there were 4,251,613 wage-workers in the manufacturing industries. Their aggregate wages were $1,891,228,321. Their average yearly earnings, therefore, were $444.83.

In 1900 there were 5,310,598 wage-workers. Their aggregate wages were $2,323,407,257. Their average yearly earnings, therefore, were $437.54.

The difference is not very great, indeed. But it is a diference upon the wrong side, a positive loss. And when we take into account the largely increased cost of living, it becomes a most serious matter.

What Are You Going to Do.

What is true of those five million wage-workers in the manufacturing industries is no doubt equally true of the million railway employees; it is true of the four or five million wage-workers on the farm, in the mines, and in the large and small comercial establishments of the country. These with their families, taken togther, form the great majority of the people. These millions toil in deepening poverty that a few thousand may become multi-millionaires. What are you going to do about it, fellow workingmen?

There is only one way to set it right. You, who create all wealth, are always poor, because the means of production—the land and mines and railroads and factories—are held as private property for private profit. You can, by your political power, make these things public property, to be used for the public good. Only when you do that will you get the full product of your labor.

PROTEST AGAINST HONORING ROYALTY.

Socialists of Hudson County, N. J., Condemn Mayors for Toadying to Prince Henry.

At last Sunday's meeting of the County Committee of Local Hudson County, N. J., of the Socialist Party, the following resolutions were added:

"Whereas, It is reported that Mayor Fagan of Jersey City and Mayor Lankering of Hoboken are preparing a formal reception for Prince Henry of Prussia, upon their own initiative and without asking the consent of the citizens; and

"Whereas, The lickspittle action of our chief executives is not only unworthy of citizens professing to abhor a monarchial form of government, but it is in direct defiance of the golden words contained in the Declaration of Independence, "that all men are created equal," be it

"Resolved, That we, as citizens of said municipalities and as members of the Socialist Party, protest against such an attempt to honor a representative of royalty under the pretense of courtesy toward a representative of the German ation; and be it

"Resolved, That the Secretary notify both Mayors of our indignation and protest as American citizens."

Fourteen new members were admitted to the Party at this meeting. A committee was elected to request The Worker to publish the constitution and platform adopted by the New Jersey State Convention. The branches are urged to elect literature agents and to put them in communication with the Literature Agent of the Local: Frederick Krafft, 258 Palisade avenue, Jersey City.

HAVERHILL NOTES.

All Socialists will be grieved to learn that our comrade, ex-Alderman Chas. H. Bradley, has been confined to his home with heart trouble. Although he is well advanced in years, his speedy recovery is expected.

James F. Carey spoke at Dover, N. H., Jan. 21, on "Socialism and Progress."

The March town elections will soon be here, and it is the wish of Haverhill comrades that our neighboring towns of West Newbury, Georgetown, Merrimac, Groveland, etc., will follow the usual custom of Amesbury and Exeter by nominating straight Socialist tickets for town meeting.

Interest in the Socialist Debating Club is increasing. At one of our recent Sunday evening meetings, Representative MacCartney and Carey took opposite sides. It was very instructive and somewhat ludicrous to hear Carey defend, for the sake of argument, the side of Capitalism. And, as he said, he defended their side much better than they could do it themselves. Although it seemed that he exhausted all the strong arguments on that side it was the opinion of those present that MacCartney had the better of the argument.

The Haverhill readers of The Worker are keeping tab on the editorial controversy between this paper and the Haverhill "Gazette," our only daily paper.

The Fair committee are actively at work, outlining plans for the third annual grand fair of Haverhill Socialists, whil will be held in Lafayette Hall, the first week in April. The committee meets each Friday evening and contestants have already been secured for several valuable prizes.

AL. THUIST.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Sanctions Change of Name to "Socialist Party."

Progress of Boston Teamsters' Strike and Injunction Proceedings Connected Therewith—Actions of Socalist Representatives in the House.

The most interesting event of the week in legislative matters, so far as the Socialists are concerned, was the passage of the bill introduced by Representative Carey authorizing the change of the name of the Democratic Social Party to Socialist Party. The bill passed will be enacted through the House on Friday, will go through the same process in the Senate on Monday and should be signed by the Governor on Wednesday at the latest.

There will be much rejoicing among the Socialists of Massachusetts at securing the legal change of name. There has been a great deal of confusion in the past from the fact that the party had to go on the ballot under the name Democratic-Social; and there is no doubt that the Socialist Labor Party through this confusion received votes intended for our party. There has been some surprise at the failure of any representative of the Socialist Labor Party to appear and oppose the passage of the bill, for there was plenty of opportunity offered for them to present opposition. The Socialist representatives are pleased at their success in securing the change of name much more easily than they expected.

The Teamsters' Strike.

The chief interest attaching to the teamsters' strike, which I reported last week, is centered on the hearing on the injunction which has been proceeding in the Superior Court all the week. The hearing has lasted much longer than was expected, and it is supposed that it has been dragged along mainly for the purpose of allowing the Brine Transportation Company to gain advantage under the temporary injunction and retain police protection, which has been unnecessary, if not from the beginning, then for the past nine days. The police have been escorting the Brine teams on every trip each day, although perfect quiet obtains and not even a crowd has gathered anywhere to jeer the non-unionists at work.

Meanwhile, the number of teams used by Brine is daily increasing and the chances for the strikers reaching a settlement with the firm are therefore becoming more remote as time passes. The temporary injunction has rendered the strikers helpless, and they are unable to do anything until a decision is given in the court, a decision which is altogether likely to be against them. The strike leaders realize their impotency under the present condition and are trying to bring matters to a head one way or another. They have already requested the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration to investigate the strike and place the blame where it properly belongs. For some reason or other, the Board has so far failed to act upon the request made to them, and this has complicated matters more than ever.

In the meantime the union men affiliated with the Allied Freight Transportation Council are growing restless. The freight handlers, longshoremen and clerks are protesting against having to handle the goods hauled by Brine's non-union men, and a strike which would subsequently involve 30,000 men is threatened. This feeling of sympathy is growing so strong that the Transportation Council officers fear their inability to prevent a crisis; and as a last resort have called upon Mark Hanna, chairman of the Industrial Peace Commission, to interpose and seek to bring about a settlement. Mr. Hanna has responded by saying he would send Ralph Easley, secretary of the Civic Federation, to the scene to investigate. Mr. Hanna's factotum is expected to arrive in a day or two.

Question of Recognition.

Considering the circumstances surrounding this strike, it might not be a bad thing if the Industrial Peace Commission were tested and its merits proved at his juncture. The question at issue is really the one of the right to organize, for while the Brine Company claims to pay as high wages under as good conditions as the Teamsters' Union demands, yet it makes this fight solely on the matter of recognition of the union. On the other hand, the teamsters have on their side at present the other firms who signed the agreement with the Transporation Council, but who would no doubt welcome a decision which would provide them with an excuse for refusing to recognize the unions. The gentlemen composing the Industrial Peace Commission would therefore be called upon to decide whether the Brine Company had the right to "run its own business to suit itself" or whether the unions have right to insist that employers hire only union men.

The injunction proceedings have been reported pretty fairly and have aroused great interest, chiefly because of the attempt to hold members of unions financially and morally responsible for any damages to life or property resulting from a strike. The decision will be a far-reaching one and will establish a precedent for the whole country.

The Socialists have been watching developments arising from the teamsters' strike with a view to action if necessary. It was intended that our representatives in the Legislature should take some action, especially regarding the conduct of the police, but for various reasons they did not act, principally for fear of embarrassing the Teamsters' Union. Representative Donahue, a Democrat of Fall River, and a supposed labor representative, was not so careful and presented a resolution calling for an investigation of the teamsters' strike by a committee of the Legislature. Mr. Donahue is now sorry he did it. He acted without the knowledge or consent of the Strike Committee of the Allied Transportation Council; and the members of the committee are not pleased at Mr. Donahue's precipitancy. Through its attorney the committee sent a letter to Mr. Donohue, calling his attention to the fact that a petition had already been filed with the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, requesting an investigation, and suggested that Mr. Donahue withdraw his bill. Mr. Donahue accordingly requested that his bill be laid on the table, and he has not been heard from since.

Socialists in the Legislature.

Yesterday was the last day for introducing bills. During the week MacCartney introduced two bills, one providing for state ownership and operation of street railways, with the referendum attached. Another bill requires that the voters of a city or town shall decide location of street railways to be built within their respective localities.

On Thursday Carey introduced a bill which has almost direct bearing on the teamsters' strike. It requires that picketing and patrolling during strikes be made legal, and the first section reads as follows:

"In case of a strike or a lockout or other dispute between the employer and his employes, it shall be lawful for the employes, or for other persons, to picket or patrol the neighborhood of the place of employment or any other place to which they have lawful access, and personally, or by means of banners, posters, circulars or otherwise to persuade or urge persons not to enter or not to continue in the employment of the employer."

Two other bills introduced by Carey on Friday are also of much interest to workingmen. One is a repetition of a bill introduced by him in former Legislatures, and provides for the right of trial by jury to workingmen answering the charge of contempt of court in proceedings under injunction. This will probably be defeated as its predecessors have been, for the Republican and Democratic members are loath to overwhelm workingmen with too much freedom or justice.

The other bill is one anxiously demanded by the railroad men of the State, and the agitation for the enactment of a law such as the bill provides for has been going on for some time among the railroad employees. The bill requires that the railroads shall have at least one brakeman to every ten cars on freight trains, and that the last car shall be one with at least eight wheels. At present the railroad men are in constant peril of their lives through the danger arising from there being too few men to handle freight trains. For instance, on the Boston & Albany Railroad freight trains of sixty cars are run with only two brakemen; and the length of the train prevents them from either controlling it or acting together in case of emergency. If a train breaks the small caboose on the end of the train is found of slight service to prevent a catastrophe.

Under the Massachusetts law brakemen cannot recover for injuries received in accidents arising from small crews being compelled to handle long trains.

Comrade MacCarthey's third article on Socialism appeared in the "Traveler" during the week, and the series will extend for some time. The articles are attracting a great deal of attention and are presenting the question in a form that will undoubtedly do some good.

A Humorous Solon.

Those who claim that the ordinary legislator lacks imagination will find refutation in Representative Dana of Newton, who leaped into notoriety a few days ago by introducing a petition in the House for a World Legislature. The petition is signed by several wise and eminent men who seem to consider their scheme the one that will establish unity among the races of the earth. The petition asks that resolutions be adopted, asking Congress to empower the President of the United States to invite the nations of the world to send each a representative to a meeting for the purpose of establishing and setting in motion as far as practicable a World Legislature. It is not stated just what the Legislature will do when it convenes, but we suppose Mr. Dana and his friends will arise to the occasion and provide, if not instruction, then amusement to the peoples of the earth.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 1.

CHASE WILL SPEAK IN BRONX AND BROOKLYN.

Comrade John C. Chase, the first Socialist Mayor in the United States, is spending a week in New York City, speaking for the Party. Last Sunday afternoon's meeting at the Eighty-sixth street clubhouse was very successful, in spite of the bad weather. George Friedl acted as chairman. A few soreheads tried to interrupt, but they got the worst of it.

On Friday evening, Feb. 7, Comrade Chase speaks at Webster Hall, southeast corner of 140th street and Third avenue, taking for his subject, "Profits Versus Human Life."

Saturday evening he will address a mass meeting to be arranged by the 20th A. D., Brooklyn, at Koch's Hall, 257 Hamburg avenue, his subject being "The Class Struggle and the Future State." Comrade Pattberg will also speak in German. Comrades of Brooklyn, and especially of the Socialist Club, are urged to help bring out plenty of strangers to this meeting.

—Are you a commuter? See that every conductor or brakeman on the line gets a copy of "Railroading in the United States." Send $1 for forty copies.

FOR DAILY PAPER

Committee Calls General Meeting.

To Be Held at Brevoort Hall in Fifty-fourth Street on Feb. 8—Shall We Have a Daily?—Now Is the Time to Consider the Question.

The question of starting active work for the establishment of an English Socialist daily in this city has been informally discussed for some time. Steps have at last been taken to bring the movement into more definite shape and a meeting of party members to consider the subject is called for Saturday evening, Feb. 8, at Brevoort Hall, 154 E. Fifty-fourth street. The attention of comrades is directed to the following address on the subject:

CALL FOR MEETING:

"To the Members of the Social Democratic Party of New York and Vicinity.

"Comrades:—The spontaneous expressions in favor of an English Socialist daily in various quarters of Socialist activity in this city all tend to show that the times are ripe for our common hope to become a daily reality. An English Socialist daily has been long enough a topic of fond speculation among us. The moment for decisive action has arrived. Comrades are continually urging on one another the necessity of an initiative in that direction.

"With that object in view a few comrades have come together to consider the way in which to put the matter before all comrades. For it was agreed at once that no steps be taken before every comrade within reach had an opportunity to express his views. A mass convention of all Social Democrats of New York and vicinty was decided upon to put the question for their consideration and decision. Committees on estimate and organization were appointed to submit the question to such convention in a concrete and definite form. Comrade Alexander Jonas reported for the committee on estimate; Comrade Morris Hillquit reported for the committee on organization. Both reports showed further the practicability and timeliness of the enterprise.

"Comrades, it is now more than a quarter of a century that the German speaking Socialists of this country continue tirelessly to till the field preparing the soil for an American movement. The ground is now well tilled and must not be allowed to lie idle. It is for you, Socialists of the English tongue, to plant the seed. The difficulties of the task must not deter you. In the struggle for justice to the workingmen, for the emancipation of our class from the toils of capitalist exploitation, we must meet with open face and welcome with gladness in our hearts the storm and stress of the daily battle. For all that our class now has, or may wrest hereafter, is ours by the right of power. We can achieve nothing for our class without concentrating and securing control of power. And we must no more allow the capitalist press, that is ever found subservient to the interests of our masters, to have sole and undisputed control over the mind of the workingmen.

"A daily Socialist newspaper in the control of the working class is both a formidable weapon for defnse and aggression as well as the best medium for enlightening the minds of the workingmen.

"But as the task must be our common one, so must be the decision. Whatever your mind is on the question, let us come together and settle it for the time being.

"Let nothing detain you from attending this meeting. You may bring along any sympathizer even if not a party member.

"Comrades Alexander Jonas and Morris Hillquit will give to the meeting such information as is necessary for the consideration of the question.

"THE COMMITTEE."

THE MEN WHO CONTROL THE COUNTRY.

Here, then, is a vast continent belted and banded and criss-crossed with 200,000 miles of railroads. Many of the roads are great independent lines, and some are systems controlled by groups of men outside the five large syndicates. But practically half the stupendous network, affecting in one way or another every inhabitant in the country, is in possession of five little bodies of men with headquarters in New York. A strip of land hundreds of miles wide, beginning at the Washington ports in the Northwest and sweeping East to the lakes, is practically an industrial field of Mr. Hill and Mr. Morgan. In Mr. Harriman's hands in some measure is the prosperity of California and the Southwestern states, as well as of a broad strip up the Mississippi Valley, a fertile land through the prairie states, and all the habitable land reaching West from the Rockies to the coast. The central Atlantic states live to the rhythm of the New York Central and the Pennsylvania Railroad. It is true that one can go from Boston to San Francisco, from the Gulf to St. Paul, and travel not a mile on the roads of the railroad giants, but only through a very narrow pathway and for the most part within view of competing syndicate lines on either side. And who that travels on railroads or receives freight from within our borders does not do so over the colored lines on the accompanying railroad map? When it is remembered, furthermore, that Morgan men are directors in Vanderbilt roads, Hill men in Pennsylvania roads, Gould men in Harriman roads, and that every other possible interweaving of common control exists throughout the great groups, the lines of demarcation melt away and we see dimly outlined a condition of affairs which may possibly take the hue of monopoly.—M. G. Cunniff, in The World's Work.

SHALL WE HAVE PEACE?

EUGENE V. DEBS IN THE TOILER.

There is nothing specially startling about the proceedings or results of the late "Industrial Peace Conference" in New York. The captains of industry are now in practical control of their organized vassals. This has been the tendency during the past five years. The pow-wow at New York was simply the climax of "keep out of politics" trade unionism, and while things may run smoothly for a while, when the break comes the organized workers will find that they have their necks in the noose and that the hand of "arbitration" has a good grip at the other end. They are now committed to arbitration, and they'll be damned if they don't, they'll be skinned if they do, and they'll be both anyway.

Grover Cleveland is the keystone in the arch of peace. He has the final word. Ex-officio he is now president of the American Federation of Labor, and Brother Gompers has simply to look wise, occasionally knit his brow, and draw his salary.

The Republican papers now apotheosize Cleveland, and in a steady stream their eulogy pours upon his massive majesty in his new rôle of "dove of peace."

Cleveland! Gods! Look upon his puffed and purple jowl, his bulging veins, his blood-shot eyes, his flabby neck, his sideshow girth of vulgar fat. In every feature Nature has marked him as the coarsest cormorant that ever defiled the executive seat of the nation. Look at him, you workers, and then take off your hats and bow in the dust at his feet. All hail the great Arbiter of Labor. The black slave lifting his eyes to Lincoln may now dissolve from view. Great, Grover is the mighty Moses of all the races.

In 1894 he traced his love for Labor in crimson characters—he commanded the United States regulars to shoot the working class into submission to their pirate masters. This was his glory. He entered the White House poor and emerged a millionaire. This was his civic crown. Well qualified, indeed, is he to sit in supreme judgment between the sleek coyote of Capital and the bleating lambs of Labor.

Archbishop Ireland is another "neutral" gentleman—a priest to match the politician, and they constitute a charming pair. When an exceptional job of labor-fleecing is to be done, there always looms up a priest, who, sad, meek, and pious, rolls his eyes heavenward—and the job is done.

Archbishop Ireland is a millionaire. His flocks have all their treasures in Heaven. Verily, I am your shepherd and you are my mutton.

The Archbishop is check by jowl with "Jim" Hill of the Great Northern. They collaborate and fix things in the Northwest. Ireland, making good use of his license as priest, is the smoothest of politicians, and Hill is not slow to catch on. Then Hill liberally "endows" as Ireland suggests, and, between the two, nothing gets away.

Bishop Potter is another commanding figure in the neutral elements of the peace commission of the Civic Federation, the final tribunal of exploited workingmen. Who is he? The spiritual adviser of John Pierpont Morgan. Every great tyrant, every colossal robber in history had his spiritual advisor—his man of God to sanctify his crimes. The saintly Bishop draws a princely salary. He rides in Morgan's palatial private car. He touches elbows with the upper capitalists and their salaried professional lackeys, and with no others. Every now and then he drops a "radical" utterance. This is promptly snatched and spread by the capitalist press. The people are amazed—they hold their breath, applaud—and they are fixed for another season.

On every vital issue Bishop Potter is with the capitalist class. Their interests are secure in his custody.

Rather Morgan, Hanna and Schwab straight than Cleveland, Ireland and Potter by arbitration.

In the entire "neutral" element there is not a single member whose material interests are not identified with and controlled by the capitalist class.

A mighty class struggle is convulsing society. No living man is, or can be, "neutral" or "disinterested." He is on one side or the other—if not for freedom, he is for slavery of the working class. They are deadly opposites. A chemical law forbids fire and water to mingle, even at the bidding of a peace conference. By the same analogy, an economic law forbids peace between workers and capitalists. It is the law of development; and could it be suspended, the spinal cord of humanity would be severed and progress would be paralyzed.

I have had some experience with the Civic Federation, and want to say to workingmen and women that, if they would have homes built of gold bricks, the "Civic" adjunct of the capitalist class will take the contract to house them all.

As for the American labor movement, it is being practically emasculated. Proportionate to its increasing impotency is its growth in numbers. In its present form it is encouraged, not resisted by the masters.

The brotherhoods of railway employees have the complete sanction and support of the corporations and their chief officers are dined by President Roosevelt.

By the way, the president is announcing the appointment of representatives of the United States government for the coming coronation of King Edward —also for posts of honor at the launching of Emperor Wilhelm's private yacht.

Now get ready your Sunday clothes, you sovereign sons of toil, for in these stately social functions, labor, the maker of all kings and presidents, will surely sparkle in the grand parade and carve the 'possum at the banquet.

But as to the labor movement. The local unions have their political heelers and steerers. They sound the alarm when "politics" ventures in the anteroom. At the very mention of Socialism the heeler issues the warning note:

"The goblins 'll git ye if ye don't watch out."

The national officers, as a rule, are in close touch with the captains of industry and guarantees are given that the trade union movement will stick to its time-honored policy of letting politics alone.

How Hanna and Ireland, Morgan and Schwab (fresh convert to union labor) must dig into each others' ribs and snort when they retire from the footlights.

Every labor union in the land ought to denounce and repudiate the N[illegible] York scheme of peace at the [illegible] slavery; and the whole labor [illegible]ment must be rescued and [illegible] to grapple with the conditions [illegible] day, or it is doomed to disin[illegible].

Peace, peace, there is no [illegible]. There is no land in which capitalist masters and working slaves can abide in peace. The war is on and the conflict will grow fiercer until the crash comes and wage-slavery is wiped from the earth.

Not until the last inch held by slavery is conquered by freedom can peace prevail. Then only, will the multiplied millions who have subdued the earth and produced its wealth come to their own.

Onward, comrades; onward to the goal.

SINGLE TAX VS. SOCIALISM.

The Socialist Propaganda Club of Brooklyn, which holds public meetings every Sunday evening at Small's Assembly Rooms, 102 Court street, will have a very interesting program on Feb. 9. John S. Crosby, the well-known Single Taxer, and our comrade, Job Harriman, will debate on "Single Tax Versus Socialism." All who are interested in either of the two movements represented should make it a point to attend and bring their friends. Admission is free and general discussion is invited at every meeting after the lecture or debate.

On Sunday evening, Feb. 16, James N. Wood will speak on "Socialism and the Working Class."

THE EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE.

The Socialist Educational League of 215 E. Fifty-ninth street, is an organization that has done much good service for the party since its establishment about fifteen months ago; and that should be vigorously supported by all party members and sympathizers in that part of the city. The club rooms are open every evening and all workingmen are invited to call and make themselves at home there, to read the papers that are kept on file and become acquainted with the comrades.

Sunday evening, Feb. 9, James N. Wood will speak. Admission is free and an interesting discussion will undoubtedly follow what will certainly be an interesting lecture.

—It is not because of their moral stature that some men and women have to stoop in order to touch their fellows down below. If the artificial pedestals which capitalism furnishes were removed, a great many people would have to climb in order to look into the faces of some who are now social outcasts.—Wm. T. Brown.

VAIL IN BOSTON.

A series of popular lectures on Socialism will be given by Charles H. Vail at the Every Day Church, 397 Shawmut avenue, between Canton and Brookline streets, Boston, Mass., as follows:

Feb. 11—The Economic Evolution.
Feb. 12—The Socialist Movement.
Feb. 13—The Abolition of Poverty and Realization of Plenty.
Feb. 14—The Solution of Modern Social and Industrial Problems.

Doors open at 7:30 p. m. Lecture begins at 8 p. m. Admission, single lecture, 10 cents; full course, 25 cents.

LECTURES IN PHILADELPHIA.

Local Philadelphia of the Socialist Party is carrying on a course of Thursday evening lectures at the new headquarters, 1022 Arch street. On Jan. 30 John Spargo of New York speaks on "The Class Struggle, Its Genesis and Meaning." The following lectures will be:

Feb. 6.—"Our Position, Economic and Political," by Fred W. Long.
Feb. 13.—"Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," by Algernon Lee.
Feb. 20.—"Organize! Why and How?" by Edward Kuppinger.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in social questions to attend these lectures and to visit the headquarters, which are open every day from noon till 11 p. m.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

The meting of the General Committee of Local New York, which should regularly be held on Saturday, Feb. 8, has been postponed one week on account of the daily paper meeting at Brevoort Hall.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS,

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

3 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	$5.20
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

The rise in the stocks of the Northern Securities Company indicates that the Supreme Court decision will be in favor of the new railroad trust. That was to be expected. The only way to meet the trust question is to socialise the trusts.

Every subdivision or Socialist club in New York City which holds lecture meetings should see that the literature agent is supplied with Hanford's pamphlet, "Railroading in the United States," and that it is announced by ...blum Iman. It will sell well and be ...ded Ily and it will make Social- ...wers.

IT MUST HAVE A DEFINITE DECISION.

No party member in Greater New York or vicinity who can possibly attend Saturday night's meeting at Brevoort Hall should fail to do so. To have an intelligent expression of the real opinion of the rank and file of the Socialists of this city upon the question of starting a movement for the establishment of a Socialist daily in the English language we must have a full attendance at that meeting.

The question is an important one. It has been informally discussed by our members for many months. It should now be brought to some definite decision; and that decision, in order to be advantageous to the party, must be made by a truly representative meeting of party members.

No one can fail to recognize the immense advantage which the movement would gain by the possession of a good daily paper. The power which the capitalist press exercises, not only by the expression of editorial opinion, but especially by the distortion, suppression, or fabrication of news, and the systematic way in which this power is used against the workers and in favor of their exploiters—this, without further argument, is enough to show what service could be done in the cause of Labor by a daily owned and controlled by class-conscious workingmen.

There are many among us who think that the time is now ripe for inaugurating a movement for this end, and that but a comparatively short time would be needed to carry the plan into effect. On the other hand, there are many who more impressed, perhaps, with the difficulties to be overcome than with the advantages to be gained, think that all action should be postponed to a more or less remote future.

The importance of the question and the difference of opinion prevailing make it imperative that the decision to be reached at Saturday night's meeting should be made by such a representative gathering as will command general respect. If we are now to undertake the task of preparing for the establishment of a daily, we must know that such is really the will of the party. If we are to postpone the undertaking, it is equally necessary that this decision should be definite and authoritative, so that no energy shall be lost through uncertainty and misunderstanding.

We all have our personal opinions and should hold to these strongly—provided they are founded in knowledge and earnest thought. But above all personal opinion is our duty to the party—our obligation, once a decision is reached, pleasing or displeasing to us personally, to abide by it and support it with all our power.

Every Socialist who believes it wise to start work now for the publication of a daily should attend Saturday's meeting and vote according to his conviction, with the intention of giving his full support to whichever course may be decided upon. Every Socialist who believes such action unwise or premature should do the same on his part. No comrade who fails to attend will have a right either to grumble at the decision or to treat it with indifference.

It is understod that the meeting is not confined to party members, but that every Socialist who is honestly interested in the question will be welcome to participate.

The smallest local organization in the country should send in at least $1 for forty copies of Benjamin Hanford's new pamphlet, "Railroading in the United States," and larger bodies should order in proportion. While it is intended especially for propaganda among railroad men, it will be read with interest by intelligent workingmen in every trade. Try it.

A HALF-TRUTH ABOUT THE STEEL TRUST.

The newspapers are making a great deal of the fact that the report of the United States Steel Corporation was mailed to sixty thousand stockholders. This is interpreted to mean that there is no real concentration of ownership involved in the process of trustification. "See," they claim, "the Steel Trust is really a very democratic institution; it is a great partnership in which are involved the savings of sixty thousand thrifty people; there is no ground for fear of such a body as this."

But really the fact that there are so many stockholders in the Trust proves nothing of the sort. We are not told how many out of these sixty thousand hold only one or two or three shares each or how many hold a thousand or ten thousand shares. That is an all-important question. Until we are given definite information to the contrary on this point, we have good reason to believe that the Steel Trust, like the other great "industrials," consists of a comparatively large number of very small stockholders and a very small number of very large stockholders—the latter having the former completely in their power and being able to "freeze them out" whenever they so desire.

It is also necessary to remember that the great stockholders in the Steel Trust are also great stockholders in the Standard Oil Company and all the companies it controls, in the Northern Securities Company, and in the other combines.

These two consideration being borne in mind, it will be seen that the number of stockholders, even though it may actually reach sixty thousand, does not at all contradict the theory of the concentration of industry.

Every party member in Greater New York and the vicinity should make it a point to attend the meeting Saturday evening, Feb. 8, at Brevoort's Hall, 154 E. Fifty-fourth street, for the consideration of the question of an English Socialist daily. Sympathizers who are actively interested in the question will also be welcome.

CAPTAINS OF INDUSTRY OR INDUSTRIAL PIRATES?

"This accident is a terrible thing," said John B. McDonald, contractor of the Rapid Transit Subway, when interviewed about the dynamite explosion. "It is really too serious a matter for me to speak about it now. I AM NOT AT PRESENT ABLE TO STATE THE AMOUNT OF EXPLOSIVES STORED AT THE SCENE OF THE ACCIDENT, NOR CAN I SAY HOW MUCH OR IN WHAT MANNER EXPLOSIVES ARE STORED ALONG THE REST OF THE ROUTE. The matter has never come up before."

What is Mr. McDonald there for? What are he and his backers in the contract being paid for?

Mr. McDonald is called a "captain of industry." As employer, he has undisputed authority over any man on the great job, from the chief engineers down to the boys that carry water to the laborers. Does this authority imply no responsibility?

The profit that Mr. McDonald is getting out of the contract is alleged to be the due reward of his administrative ability, his remuneration for the arduous labor of directing the work of construction.

What kind of an administrator, what kind of a director, what kind of a captain of industry is he, that he does not know whether or not the work he is paid for directing is being done in accordance with law, does not know whether or not the lives of his thousands of employees are being put in daily jeopardy?

Well, John B. McDonald is just such a "captain of industry" as Chauncey M. Depew and William K. Vanderbilt and J. Pierpont Morgan and Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller—not much better than the worst of them, certainly no worse. They draw millions yearly in profits, and they say these profits are their rightful payment for directing industry. Depew and Vanderbilt and Morgan draw profits for "directing" the operation of the New York Central. They do not know whether trains are being run safely or not. Carnegie and Rockefeller and Morgan draw profits for "directing" the work of making iron and steel. They do not know whether or not their workingmen are in daily danger of being crushed or roasted to death.

They do not know, they do not care—so long as interest and dividends come in plentifully.

The capitalists do not administer or direct industry. With a small part of their unearned profits they hire other men to do the work of direction and administration, as well as the manual labor. And then, by virtue of their power as employers, they compel these hired men, the real administrators and directors, to violate laws and sacrifice men's lives, in order to "rush" work, to keep expenses down, and to keep profits up.

They do not manage industry, these capitalists, they mismanage it. They do not direct workmen; they debauch legislators and judges. They do not administer production; they only appropriate profits. They are not the captains of industry; they are the pirates of modern civilization.

We owe John B. McDonald a vote of thanks for the frank admissions by which he has exposed the uselessness of his class. Oh, that we had Social Democratic workingmen in the District Attorney's office and on the judicial bench, to send him and his accomplices to live at public expense in Sing Sing! Is it not time that the workingmen of New York, instead of calmly turning from their murdered brothers to await their own turn, should resolve to oust the impudent maladministrators of industry, take its control into their own hands as an affair of public interest, and choose responsible men from their own class really to direct it for the common good?

The first electric trolley road in China is soon to be built. Either an American or an English company will construct it. From the opening of trolley lines it will be but a short step to the building of steel mills and machine shops and electrical works and cotton factories. The Chinese are proverbially slow in their own normal evolution. But they are also proverbially quick in learning the arts and methods of industry, developed by other peoples. Chinese competition on a large scale in the world-market may not be a thing of the immediate future, but certainly it is not very remote. And the important thing for us to remember is that it will not hurt the great capitalists of America and Europe, because they will own the Chinese mines and mills and railroads. It will make no difference to them whether their profits come from exploiting white workers or yellow. The only question they will consider is: Which will yield the largest profits? It is the workers, not the capitalists, who have to fear Chinese competition. And no exclusion laws or tariffs will protect them from the effects of the development of modern industry on Chinese soil. The only possible protection will be in a system of Socialism at home.

There are still a number of lists outstanding from the last campaign in New York City. Also, the Campaign Committee still has a small deficit to cover. Every comrade who has a list should therefore send it in at once to Organizer Gerber, so that the accounts may be closed. Blank lists should be returned, as well as those on which money has been collected. But those who hold blank lists will do well to add a small contribution, if possible.

ONE FORM OF INDIVIDUALITY.

Boston had a tenement-house fire last week, in which thirteen persons were killed and three more seriously injured. They were all working people and working people are cheap and plentiful, so there was not much stir about it. If they had not been working people, they wouldn't have been living in a fire-trap tenement.

Socialism would have given those workingmen the full value of the product of their labor. Under Socialism they would have been able to live in safe and comfortable dwellings. Under Socialism there would be no fire-trap tenements, for there would be no class compelled by their poverty to live under such conditions. But then, "Socialism would destroy individuality." What a nice thing individuality is when it takes the form of ante-mortem cremation! Aren't you glad, all you workingmen who pay a quarter of your wages for permission to live in the tenements—aren't you glad and proud to think that you, too, may prove your individuality some night by being roasted in your beds? Don't vote for Socialism. It would bring you all to a "dead level of equality" in the matter of not being burned alive.

—"Railroading in the United States," a new pamphlet by Ben Hanford. Price, 5 cents. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE'S WORK.

BY JOB HARRIMAN.

Ever since the Indianapolis Convention of July, 1901, the members of the Socialist Party have looked forward with considerable anxiety and uncertainty to the time when the National Committee would take their seats and begin action. We are happy to say that that time has come and gone and the cherished hopes of the most optimistic have been realized.

It was feared by many that the Committee would over-reach its power as defined in the new constitution or that, not being certain of its power, for want of past experience under the new law, it would fail to act on important questions, and thus establish an uncertain and wavering policy and thereby destroy confidence and develop discontent among the membership. It was also feared that the old-time differences would prevent unbiased deliberation by the committee, and would lead to factions in the commit tee and hence in the party. Added to these definite forebodings was the general fear and prejudice against national committees and the power necessarily entrusted to them. This was, as it seems to us, unduly emphasized by the Unity Convention in its effort to establish absolute state autonomy.

Those who were most pessimistic in this respect will rejoice to know that their fears have been proven entirely groundless. The old differences were not discussed nor even directly or by intimation referred to. Though careful not to over-reach its power, the Committee acted with courage and decision on all important matters and plainly showed that it was willing to take the consequences of its acts, and as to the fears of and prejudiced against national committees in general it is apparent that they will soon disappear, and by party action the national organization will be restored to its normal poise. State autonomy, being only a peace measure, will not long be considered as a vital part of the constitution, and will be eliminated accordingly; that is to say, it will be eliminated to such an extent that it will not interfere with the efficiency of the national and interstate organization and propaganda work. It is apparent from the general expression of the National Committee that the party is already discovering that it is not a question between a National Committee and state autonomy—that is, between concentration and dissipation of power—for concentration of power expresses our fundamental principle; but that it is simply a question as to how the National Committee can be controlled.

The success attending the first session of the National Committee is largely due to the manner in which it is organized. It was practically a convention. Its decisions voiced the sentiment of the Party in all the states, on most questions. The unanimity with which the members agreed was most remarkable. This almost unanimous agreement arrived at between the members of the various states will be the most potent factor in avoiding the development of factions within our Party and the splitting of our national organization.

During the session questions arose upon which the vote was almost unanimous, and which will doubtless be endorsed by the Party; and yet, if the National Committee had been chosen from any one locality and had taken the same actions, it might have caused a factional fight with far-reaching and injurious results. The fact that the party is practically unanimous on any given question will cause the minority to reconsider their position; whereas, if the sentiment of the Party as a whole had not been thus clearly expressed they might precipitate a fight without reconsidering their position and the same uncertainty would likewise lead others of similar ideas to the same action. The possibility of such a calamity is practically averted by the present plan of organizing the National Committee, inasmuch as each committeeman can ascertain the sentiment of the membership in his own state on any important question within a very few days.

Not only is this true, but the fact that the Local Quorum or any member of it can be removed at any time by the remainder of the National Committee holds them directly responsible to the Committee at large; and the further fact that any member of the National Committee can be removed at any time by the state from which he comes holds the Committee responsible to the Party at large. And thus, while the entire power of the Party is concentrated and its position on any subject may be ascertained at any time, yet that power is always in the hands of the membership.

It gives us pleasure to say to the State of New York that the Local Quorum, though it has had many trying experiences, has managed affairs with much tact and good judgment and that the states are generally well satisfied with their work. Among the important questions that arose during the session, were—

1. The Utah trouble. We revoked the charter and sent a national committeeman into the state to reorganize it.

2. The double dues-paying system. We decided that it was unconstitutional and ordered the scheme stricken out of the constitutions of such states as had adopted it.

3. The salaries of interstate lecturers. We decided that the maximum wage should be $3 a day and expenses.

4. Due-stamps. We decided that all moneys received from states by the National Secretary should be receipted for with due stamps.

5. When states should begin to pay dues. We decided that they should begin at the time of the Indianapolis Convention, except where they paid to the N. E. B. after that date; and that such states should pay from the time they ceased paying to the N. E. B.

6. The endorsing of strikes and boycotts. We decided that the Party should not be committed to the endorsement of any strike until after the same had been endorsed by the national labor organization with which the unions in trouble were affiliated.

7. There was one question, however, upon which we could not agree, and it was laid over for future consideration, either by the Committee, the Convention, or the Party press. Some of us took the ground that all existing military organization should be abolished and that there should be instituted a democratic military organization where all the people should be armed. Those favoring this demand, among whom the writer was one, took the position that justice and sentiment played no part in the ultimate results; that it was a struggle for power between two classes; that the class in power would disfranchise the class out of power—namely, the working class—and coerce them, unless they demonstrated in some way their power and willingness to act, if necessary, in order to preserve their franchise privileges. The opposition held that the proposed policy would do more harm than good.

The large majority of the members of the Committee were native Americans, and they showed by their arguments that they were clearly conscious of their class interests; while the pride in their respective state organizations and the hope which they cherished for the future gave evidence of a well-knit national organization and a growing movement.

There'll Be No Classes Here.

By J. E. Nash.

In distant lands where lords and kings
Exploit the toiling masses,
The accident of birth elects
And separates the classes;
The masses toil from morn till night,
And yet starvation fear,
That drones may feast; but, thank the Lord,
We have no classes here.

For we are free and equal born,
No class distinctions see;
The humblest lad that roams the street
A president may be.
'Tis thus that we were early taught
In school from year to year;
The press and e'en the church assert,
We have no classes here.

Yet some are born to endless toil,
No comforts ever know;
And we are taught 'tis better thus,
That God has willed it so;
And some to luxury and ease,
At workingmen they sneer;
Yet educators still maintain,
We have no classes here.

The drones, in rich and costly robes,
Are feasting every day,
While those who do the hardest work
Receive but living pay.
In times when greatest plenty reigns,
The workmen starve. How queer!
No work, no wage; and yet they say,
We have no classes here.

But drones control the daily press,
The school, and college teacher,
With influence enough to spare,
To hypnotize the preacher.
The Socialist detects the fraud,
Proclaims it far and near,
Points out the cure, and tells us why
That classes govern here.

But thoughtless men accept as facts
The fictions spread before them,
And blindly follow in the lead
Of classes ruling o'er them.
When workers think for themselves,
Class rule will disappear;
For when they use their ballots right,
There'll be no classes here.

—One dollar will buy forty copies of Hanford's "Railroading in the United States." Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

COMMERCIALISM AND THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN.

This unity of the race—this sense of oneness—has, of course, for its basis the very constitution of man—it is the sympathy which men naturally feel towards others of their kind. Of the chief influences by which this feeling may be developed or modified, commerce, though in mediæval times it promoted this unification, has, at present, an exactly opposite tendency—the spirit of commercialism increasing hatred between nation and nation to a degree higher than hitherto attained; and religion, though it ought to be the most effective force, has times without number in the past been the cause of more bloodshed than many a battle.

* * *

We are accustomed to hear much boasting of the enormous advances which have been made. * * * Doubtless there is cause for some boasting. Meantime, race hatred has been growing at a frightful pace. * * * Its cause is to be found in avarice, in the struggle for commercial supremacy. This increasing prevalence of the spirit of contempt and dislike of others, this increasing armaments of the nations, this determination of favored races to dominate the so-called 'inferior' races, is not progress. It is unwholesome, largely immoral; and it is foreboding of the direst consequences to mankind.—Professor Ladd of Yale, in East and West.

STILL WORSE.

The politician's wife was startled by a sound below stairs. "John," she cried, "there's a robber in the house!" "The House!" replied John; "what's the matter with the Senate? That's worse."—Philadelphia Press.

THE DIGNITY OF LABOR.

BY PETER E. BURROWES.

When standing behind Mr. Hanna, I do clap my hands as an echo of the nation's approval of his blarney rhetoric. I know what I mean by winking as I clap, and it is our confidential winking, the true language of our thinking, that I applaud. Men in public life, like Mr. H. and I, cannot afford to deny some things on the stump, not in plain English, without having our ears, politically speaking, nailed to the pump; and so we are driven to law English; where we have, I think, pretty well picked this labor turkey of his dignity and feathers down to the bones. The dignity of labor, indeed! Look through the law books; you will find no such fiction there, and that is why I wink, for if it is not there, it is nowhere.

I know that dignity is rather an old fashioned thing to revive the name of in our land of democratic dimes and less. But, as it is a word which, in spite of the present and several late administrations, still survives among us, we have to count with it.

Dignity means something in the manner of a man that implies weight, stability or immobility; a fellow that looks as if he could not easily be disturbed, nor blown off his official feet. How would such a fellow look, I ask you, in the garb of an employee? What employer cares to have an overstudy working for him who looks him in the eye and holds his head up as if he were sure of his job? What wage master could endure the presence of an imperturbable slave who acted like a mother-in-law in male attire?

Dignity always means the carriage by a man, in his mind, speech, and manner, of some public attribute, of which that above selected—immobility—is but one of a possible many. The responsibility the man feels who is a part of public life makes him dignified, and the larger he believes that part to be, the greater will be its effect upon his behavior; until he becomes a king and thinks himself the whole of it, at which point the golden cord generally breaks through over tension.

Now, is it possible to attribute dignity to a class of men who are obliged to dodge public injunctions, blacklists, and Tammany night sticks, in order to get together for the modest purpose of fixing their own price in the slave market? Is it possible to imagine the dignity of that man whom neither state nor city, will so far recognize as to assume towards him even the bloodless relationship of a direct employer, but will only touch him through contractors, and for whose sniping, in the hour of his feeble resistance to famine, the government is always ready to lend a gun?

If this man were to become a soldier now, the government would not hand him over to a contractor to put whatever clothes he liked upon the dignified man who carries the gun. The gun is a national weapon, the bearer of it is a national man, and therefore the government does not scorn to become that man's employer who carries it, to protect, feed, doctor, glorify and pension him. And woe to the military official who does not guard him against bad victuals! (Alger?)

That man who but a month ago was skulking about looking for work and was hungry because he could not get it, who shall say that he was then dignified! The same man, driven to enlist and to-day appearing on the streets in our national uniform with his head up, his chest distended, and his governmental stride, who shall deny that his dignity has grown! You may split hairs about it, but there it is. You concede the difference in favor of soldier dignity, though you do not care, perhaps, to reason back to the cause of it.

I debate the dignity of labor because it, is hired by the piece, while soldiers are hired by the man. I declare that it has no dignity whatsoever so long as it is "to let" promiscuously for a dollar. I affirm that its lack of dignity sinks to degradation so long as it is compelled for mere animal necessities to hire itself out to private whims.

Let us follow this labor pariah outside the camp, who has been trying to sell himself by installments and failed; let us lift his rags and examine his sores, and let us see if we can find out where he keeps his dignity.

People who are not accustomed to the examination of social life from a social standpoint, find it hard to realize this truth, that society is an organism, like one great man; that it is an economic organism which every day must do certain economic things to subsist. It may do many other things for its pleasure, and it frequently permits itself some doings, with guns, to its hurt; but there are tasks which it positively must fulfil in order to prevent its dissolution; and they are performed by labor alone. The contents of the dinner table of every one man in modern society is prepared for and sent to him by this big united laborer. This solidarity of industrial life, which constitutes the real man of the nations, is not yet called government, nor even politics; he is still called mere labor. He does not yet know himself to be the backbone, the brain and brawn, the hand and heart of the nations, and so an old wig which was struck on his head many years ago is called the state, not he. He has been always engaged in the important business of the self-preservation of the race by work, and in thus engaging himself he makes everything of life possible for you and me, except the dignity. If he should remit his toil for a day, the wig world would fall into loose hairs and there would not be a spot in all creation for a crown. His work is everything, all else of civilization is its leaves and flowers; the sap of the whole world life of society is his labor-force alone.

If the discharge of social duty, if discharging the most necessary of all social duties, if being the necessary man without whom the existence of society could not be maintained for one day be sufficient to confer dignity upon the proletarian man, I concede that there is a dignity belonging to labor. But if labor does all this, and does not know it, does it for the world and is content with taking a hire-penny from some little thief for doing it, instead of insisting upon holding correct and direct relations with the governments of the world; I call him an ass, who must vote his ears off before I recognize altogether the dignity of labor.

Society will yet turn kindly to this ass, I believe, and will brace itself up and follow in the footsteps of what we call nature in the matter of its dignities, which shall then be interpreted its necessities! Nature throws away her dead leaves and unnecessary creatures very freely; she hates waste material; she makes a straight cut through weak, sickly and unsurvivable things, to those things, and for those things, and with those things, proper to the organism to be conserved. Thus, also, society in the future cannot afford to be lifting up to dignity and honor at great cost, or at any cost, the man that is useless and outside of her productive life. Progress in the future shall consist chiefly in his elimination not only from the dignity of life, but from life itself. Such a creature as the profit-monger of to-day would be altogether intolerable in an age of economic sanity. And I doubt not but that the strenuous men of a century hence will be kept active in eliminating from their social organism the type of persons, and their pursuits, which to-day constitute our gilded strenuosity, our dignified men. I doubt not but the science of sound society is begun to-day in the revolt of the necessary man, the proletarian, now so undignified, against the unnecessary parasites of profit whose chins are up to-day; and that following this lead of proletarian Socialism the intellect of the future world will be engaged in affiliating every living man with the necessary work of the world, and he who crawls outside of that, on a pension or a fortune, will be the man to whom shall fall the sores and the rags of the pariah outcast, who to-day, alas the shame of it, is the laborer.

To be in the swim, to know what part of the swim we are in, to be by social authority and direction, as well as by definite voluntary purpose of our own, affiliated with the social labor day of the world, will be the dignity of the future; and it is a dignity that every man and woman in the land will intelligently and joyfully assume. To step aside out of the social day's work will then be indeed undignified, and sorry would I be to have anything like the remote and unaffiliated activities of a modern capitalist thrust upon me, and shameful would it be to you or me to carry for an hour the dignity of any self-made loafer of the present time. To be in the swim, doing definitely, under social guidance, in co-operation with my fellows, the world's necessary and appointed work that is dignity, the dignity of labor. To be waiting for a job, not to know why I am doing it when I get it, what it is for, or where it is going, to be employed in driving nails into clouds, and then employed in pulling them out again, to be denied the right of having any interest, personal concern or relation with anything I am commanded to do, because I am allowed my fodder while doing it, is not the labor that hath dignity. But the labor which is planted solidly upon the foundations of current social and industrial demands, the labor which sails upon the deep, broad river of the nation's life and works openly in the sight of all, at the bidding of all men, for the need of all; this and this alone is the labor of the future, the labor with social dignity.

AN APPEAL TO WORKINGMEN.

Oh when, brother workingmen, are you going to wake up and defend yourselves against the insults and injuries inflicted up you by YOUR government, YOUR courts, YOUR employers, from the government's neglect of labor legislation, from the use of soldiers against you in your strikes, from the fool injunctions of your courts, and outrageous treatment from greedy employers? Our unions can and do accomplish a great deal, but never will they establish, with any degree of permanency, that condition of justice and fair play for which we are all striving—not until they change their demands and methods. Just as long as you send millionaire manufacturers and stockholders and corporation attorneys to represent you in your legislative halls, just so long they will send troops and Pinkerton thugs to overawe you, when you union wage-slaves, toiling in mill, in mine or on railroad, attempt to get more of the values created by these industries, mills, mines, and railroads from which they draw their revenue. The injunctions will continue and grow more arbitrary as time goes on—that is, if you continue to put men on the bench who have money in this or that corporation. And your employer will insult you while you leave the character of your government unchanged.

Most union leaders to-day say the union must not go into politics, more than to support this or that labor leader, nominated by this or that political party, provided it is the Democratic or Republican. Even this would not be so bad, if the occasional union candidate were nominated by his labor brethren; but no, the personnel of the convention usually consists of lawyers, middle class employers of labor, and petty politicians, and the nomination almost always has a string to it. Why, brothers, why don't you send those who labor with you in the mill, factory, or elsewhere, nominated by conventions composed of workingmen with a string on their nomination (the right of recall) so that should they forget that they are still workingmen you may remind them.

Act, with the Socialist Party, which stands solely for the interests of your own class, for only by instituting Socialism will you make it impossible for a few to possess those things which the many must use to live.

J. T. N.

Herkimer, N. Y., Jan. 7, 1902.

ROCHESTER.

On Friday evening, Feb. 14, the Ladies' Auxiliary of Local Rochester, Social Democratic Party, will hold a St. Valentine's Dance and Social at Shoemakers' Hall, 17 Andrews street, with dancing, refreshments and cards. Tickets are 25 cents. All members and friends of the party are invited. The last social was largely attended, and all who went had a good time. Those familiar with the work of the Ladies' Auxiliary will assure all their friends a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

COMMERCIAL TRUSTS: The Growth and Rights of Aggregated Capital. By John R. Dos Passos, New York. G. P. Putnam's Sons. 1901. Cloth, 137 pages. Price, $1.

PEOPLE AND PROPERTY. By Edwin R. Jennings, New York. Abbey Press. Cloth, 109 pages. Price, 50 cents.

DEMOCRACY AND THE TRUSTS. By Edwin R. Jennings. New York. Abbey Press. Cloth, 65 pages. Price, 50 cents.

Both Mr. Jennings and Mr. Dos Passos write from the Democratic standpoint—using the word "Democratic" here to designate the individualistic and decentralizing teaching in politics and the laissez faire school in economics. Here, however, the resemblance between the two writers ends. Mr. Jennings violently attacks the trusts, lavishes uncomplimentary adjectives upon them, and demands that something—he is not sure what—be done to destroy them. In a word, although he may resent the imputation, he is a populist, an individualist run mad—so very mad that he has ceased to be even a consistant individualist. Mr. Dos Passos, on the other hand, argues very consistently and on the whole, very calmly and ably, in defense of practically unrestricted right of combination of capital. There is nothing very new in his book: its style, being the style of a lawyer, is not a very good literary one; the point of view, the basis of the argument, seems to us an entirely false one; but the book is decidedly worth reading, as it is one of the best statements published of the arguments on that side of the trust question.

As for Mr. Jenning's books, they have no real reason for existence. All that is true in them has been better said by various other writers, especially by Henry D. Lloyd, in his "Wealth vs. Commonwealth," on whom Mr. Jennings draws very freely. The style is worse than the lawyers' English of Mr. Dos Passos, the most striking characteristic being a cheap levity and a constant straining after flashy effects. And the writer's logic and economics are even worse than his style. As for his logic, he never gets anywhere in particular. He wanders all around his subject and gives us no complete or definite statement either of the evils of which he complains or of the course by which he would have them combatted. As for his economics, it is sufficient to refer to the chapter in which he argues that Land, Capital, and Labor are the three "equal partners" in production, and should therefore be assured equal shares of the product. "Of making many books there is no end," but the writers of such books as "People and Property" and "Democracy" and the Trusts have little right to complain that "much study is a weariness to the flesh."

The "Comrade" for February is in many respects an exceptionally good number. The place of honor is given to a poem by George D. Herron, "From Gods to Men," of which we may quote the closing lines:

The faith of labor is a young child yet;
But it will grow—this labor-born of the fa'ths
It is a world-child, rocked by all the hands
That ever struck at lies or human chains,
Or wrought the perfect good of liberty.
It will grow fair and noble in your eyes;
It will grow calm with your common hope;
It will grow bold to ask the masters why;
It will grow wise to read the mighty signs
That say: Make straight the revolution's path!
It will grow in the strong and lovely grace
That shines from out the sad face of the earth
When troubled nations dream of some lost home,
Where masters did not dwell, but only men;
It will grow in the stature of this grace
Till glory of its summons comes to you,
Like angel-signal in the sky,
To join the march—the joyful comrade-march—
Of risen collective peoples on the way
To cleanse the world from masters and their kind.

O, when the faith of labor wakes to power
That shall the mighty labor-patience match,
Then under the red thrones of sovereign wealth
This evil world of masters will dissolve,
And all the works which are the wage of men.
Then we, turned from the fear of things that were,
Will this faith follow to the things to be.
Instead of our unblossomed lives will grow
Full-blossomed children of a blossomed race!
And in the place of long-created gods
Will rise the good world of creator man,
At never a single man's wealth—
Tod beautiful and terrible a world
For masters more to live in, only friends,
Companion-workers and the will to love
Dwelling beneath the glad and comrade arch.

The opening sections of a new story by Tolstoy, entitled, "Forty Years: A Legend of Little Russia," are given. This being its first publication in America. One can hardly judge of the work by so small a portion; but anything by Tolstoy is worth reading. A remarkable portrait of the great Russian author is also given—or perhaps it would be better described as a powerful study from his portrait.

John Spargo contributes an article on "Ferdinand Freiligrath and His Work," which will be concluded in the March issue, and which is accompanied with selections from the Freiligrath's poems. "An Exciting Book" is a characteristic little sketch by Gorki, translated by Thomas Seltzer.

The most pleasing thing in the magazine, however, to our mind, because of its truth and insight, is "A Word for the Socialist Agitator," by "Niemand." Why the author of so good a little sketch should choose to describe himself as "Nobody," we find it hard to understand. "Suffer the Little Children to Come Unto Me" is an unusually good satirical cartoon.

CHASE AND VAIL TO SPEAK IN OHIO.

John C. Chase of Haverhill, Mass., the first Socialist mayor in the United States, will speak in Ohio from Feb. 10 to Feb. 16 inclusive. The dates for Feb. 13 and 15 are still open. The meetings so far arranged are:

Feb. 10, Ashtabula.
Feb. 11, Warren.
Feb. 12, Youngstown.
Feb. 14, Toledo.
Feb. 16, Cincinnati.

Charles H. Vail of New Jersey will give the first eight days in March in Ohio. Locals desiring to engage him should at once address the State Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. The cost to the local will be $10 for each lecture. Comrade Vail pays all his expenses. Mrs. Vail accompanies her husband, and will address meetings of women, where such can be arranged, without any additional charge.

PARTY NOTES.

The 12th A. D. will hold an entertainment Friday evening, Feb. 7, at the Grand Central Palace Hall, 99-95 Clinton street. All comrades are invited to attend and help make the affair a success.

The 19th A. D. has elected Nathan Cohen as Recording Secretary, Wm. Fanck as Financial Secretary and Treasurer, Fritschy as Delegate to the G. C. and Cohen to The Worker Conference. Next meeting Wednesday evening, Feb. 12, at 125 Amsterdam avenue.

"Our Common Aim" will be the subject of Bolton Hall's lecture at Columbia Hall, 101st street and Columbus avenue, Sunday evening, Feb. 9. All are invited.

The Harlem Social Democratic Club was organized Monday evening, Jan. 27, at the home of Comrade George Haven, 1343 Columbus avenue, with eleven members. A constitution was adopted and officers elected. Its objects are the promotion of the cause of Socialism by lectures, distribution of literature and active personal propoganda. Meetings are at present to be held at the homes of the members. Comrade Chas. Weidenmueller, of 1423 Amsterdam avenue, was elected treasurer, and Comrade Edward P. Clarke, of 501 W. 164 th street, secretary. New members will be cordially welcomed to the society. The meeting place at any special time may be made known to any one wishing it by application to the secretary. Meetings are to be held on the first and third Tuesday of each month.

Comrade Butscher is making a tour of central New York—Johnstown, Little Falls, Frankfort, Utica, Rome, Vecsion, Onedia, Syracuse—and he asks that all who have the interest of the movement at heart will give him their active assistance in his work for the party and the press.

Comrade Vail's meeting at Watertown on Jan. 31 is reported a great success. The local A. O. H. gave the use of their large hall free, and Comrade Pendergast acted as chairman and took occasion to remind the Irish society which had granted the use of the hall that Socialism is a movement in direct opposition to the infamous system of capitalism and landlordism from which their people had suffered so heavily. The movement in Watertown is in good condition, with earnest, devoted workers.

Comrade Morrill is making a good record as agent for The Worker in Haverhill.

The Socialists of Brockton, Mass., have organized their town committee with W. O. Smith as chairman, Geo. J. Alcott as secretary, and John Cochrane as treasurer. In North Abington the chairman of the town committee is Thos. H. Dunn, with John C. Tyler as secretary and M. J. Hart as treasurer. A town ticket will be put in the field.

Connecticut has fourteen branches and 304 members, not all of whom, however, are in good standing. Expect to start a propaganda wagon and weekly paper about June 1.

Maine has seven Locals, also seventeen members-at-large, representing fourteen towns in ten counties.

The newly organized Tenth Ward Branch of Local Hudson County, N. J., starts with good prospects. Frederick Gillar is Organizer and Recording Secretary; Alfred Shilito, Financial Secretary; Richard Mandel, Treasurer and Delegate to the County Committee. All readers of The Worker in the Tenth Ward are invited to communicate with Comrade Gillar, whose address is 25 Beach street.

Frederick Krafft spoke at Elizabeth, N. J., on Sunday. The fierce gale was responsible for a slim attendance, nine party members and two strangers appearing. But the net result was that the two strangers joined the party and one of them subscribed to The Worker.

The four branches of West Hudson County, N. J., are holding joint educational meetings every Sunday afternoon in Ball's Central Hall, East Newark. A new English-speaking branch has been formed in Harrison, making four branches in the western part of the county — one English-speaking branch in Arlington and one in Kearny, and an English and a German-speaking branch in Harrison. The four branches have formed a joint campaign committee, which is conducting the meetings on Sunday afternoons. It is also making arrangements for a fair to be held in March.

Comrade Fischler, of New York, has been doing good work for Socialism among the Polish workingmen of Luzerne County, Pa. He addressed large meetings at Nanticoke, Rhone, Alden, Wanamie, Glen Lyon, Georgetown, Ashley, and Edwardsville. Several hundred pamphlets were sold and a number of subscriptions taken for "Robotnik."

Ben Tillet spoke in Toledo for the second time on Jan. 27. He summed up with a declaration that Socialism is the only solution of the labor question, which was loudly cheered. The Toledo comrades took the opportunity to land a few subscriptions for The Worker.

Ohio has twenty-four Locals and a membership of 782. The Ohio State Committee during the fall campaign issued 100,000 small cards, 97,000 leaflets, and 1,000 sample ballots, and sent over 1,000 letters to the Socialists of the state. They also sent out Hayes, Strickland, Bigelow, and Geiger on tours through the state. Vote increased 50 per cent.

Indiana has twenty-one locals in seventeen counties, with a total membership of 521. Trade unions are being formed among farm laborers, one organization having 300 members. Strickland was sent on a three-months' tour in the northern and central portions of the state. The State Committee considers the Indiana proletariat ripe for the Socialist Party.

Iowa has seventeen locals, and is about to send out a salaried organizer.

Michigan will hold state convention at Flint on Feb. 28.

Socialists in Idaho are forming state organization.

Washington has forty-six Locals, paying dues for 500 members. A state organizer has been kept in the field for three months at a salary of $60 a month.

Oregon has twenty-one Locals and 352 members. Farmers compose a large proprtion of the membership there.

Porto Rico Socialists have applied for a territorial charter.

CAMPAIGN FUND.

To the Holders of Subscription Lists for the Campaign Fund of the Social Democratic Party of the City of New York:

Comrades and friends who still have subscription lists in their possession are requested to send the lists in at once, as the Campaign Committee would like to wind up its business as soon as possible. As there is some deficiency the comrades would confer a favor on the committee by promptly returning lists and money collected, as it may help the committee to meet all its liabilities. Those who have not collected any money on their lists are also requested to turn in their lists, as this will greatly aid the auditing committee in auditing the accounts. Therefore, come rush in your lists, lists with dimes, quarters, and dollars are preferred, but we want all, even the empty ones. Send lists and money to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street.

Previously acknowledged	$2,217.10
List 295, R. Meles	.50
List 748, Max Froehmer	1.00
List 500, Chr. Brunn	1.00
Veit	.50
Eisele	.50
List 459, A. Waldinger	1.00
List 448, T. Wohinger	1.00
List 82, Chas. Dazler	1.00
List 1313, F. W. Shoeffin	.35
List 377, W. Schaffer	1.75
Geo. Arhweiter	1.00
List 225, Ph. Lenges	.70
List 227, P. Klippel	.25
List 180, A. Hoehne	2.00
List 5140, A. K. K., Br. 152	2.30
List 5143, do	1.75
List 5144, do	1.10
List 5146, do	.40
List 5145, do	1.00
Total	$2,236.20

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

A fairly well attended meeting of the County Committee was held Sunday, Jan. 26. The most important business was the election of officers for the ensuing term, as follows: Organizer, Waren Atkinson; corresponding secretary, K. J. Aberle; recording secretary, J. B. Clayton; financial secretary, J. C. Holzer; treasurer, F. E. Coddington; Credentials Committee, Hopkins, Weis, and Wiel; Auditing Committee, Droste, Koenig, Jr., and McNab; Committee on Fife and Drum Corps, Schalk, Hopsted, and Weis. The Local is to be congratulated upons its choice of Comrade Atkinson for organizer-at-large. His earnestness, energy and enthusiasm for the cause of Socialism will undoubtedly be of great benefit to the organization in this county.

It was reported that ex-Mayor Chase, of Haverhill, Mass., was coming to town and could be secured for three lectures in Brooklyn, during the first week in February. Although the time is scarcely sufficient, it was decided not to neglect the opportunity, and an expenditure not to exceed fifteen dollars was authorized for that purpose by the County Committee.

A meeting of The Worker Conference of Local Kings County is called for Saturday evening, Feb. 15, at 8 o'clock, at the rooms of the Socialist Club, Fulton street, near Ralph avenue. The subdivisions have been notified to elect a delegate each, and should make sure to be represented. There is no more effective means of agitation than a good live party press, and if the plan of making The Worker a daily by next election can be carried out, and the party members throughout Greater New York can be induced to tirelessly push its circulation among workingmen, the end of the subsidized capitalistic press will be in sight. This, of course, will mean hard work, and Kings County must do its share, and make good its promises of the past. The Local is now in good working order and in a position to devote some of its energy to this most important part of our agitation.

TOO HUNGRY TO LEARN.

The committee of the London (Eng.) school board makes this remarkable statement: "At times when there is no special distress, 55,000 children in a state of hunger which makes it useless to attempt to teach them, are in the schools of London alone." Think of it —55,000 children are so hungry, in ordinary times, that their brains are too feeble to hold knowledge! Later, behold 55,000 (minus those killed off by starvation) young men and women with dwarfed souls, stunted bodies, perverted moral natures—among them thousands of hopeless imbeciles and lunatics! Millions for the workhouses, millions for the prisons, millions for asylums; millions for palaces, millions for cannon; but not a shilling for the children with starved bodies and brains!

And let us not pride ourselves on a superior state of things on this side of the ocean. There are thousands and thousands of ill-fed, hungry children in our schools; there are teachers who cannot get their honest dues; there are thousands of mothers scrubbing and slaving a few hours before and a few hours after their babies' birth. It would be dreadful Socialism to help these children or these mothers. It is all right, though, to build speedways, and to fatten in all ways the sleek bodies of public thieves.—Commonwealth.

——"Railroading in the United States" will be a good thing to give to street car men and "El" employees. Keep a few in your pocket.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Official Report of Proceedings at Meeting Held in St. Louis, Jan. 24 to Jan. 26, as Submitted by National Secretary Greenbaum.

The following is the official report of the meeting of the National Committee at St. Louis Jan. 24 to Jan. 26, as submitted by National Secretary Greenbaum. It is printed complete, with the exception of some hardly interesting matter, such as roll-call and reading of minutes.

The National Committee of the Socialist Party assembled in Parlor 22 of the Lindell Hotel at 10 A. M., Friday, Jan. 24, 1902. The Committee was called to order by M. Ballard Dunn, secretary to the Local Quorum. Max Hayes was elected temporary chairman, and M. Balard Dunn, temporary secretary. A Credentials Committee was elected, consisting of Job Harriman, Walter Thomas Mills, and Geo. E. Boomer; and a Comittee on Rules, consisting of Victor L. Berger, Jas. F. Carey, and E. Val Putnam.

Work of Iowa moved that, in order to save time, all matters pertainng to the contest from Utah be brought immediately before the Committee as a whole. The Chairman declared motion out of order. The morning session adjourned to meet at 1 P. M.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

The afternoon session was called to order at 1.15 P. M., by Chairman Max Hayes. Boomer read a partial report of the Credentials Committee, as follows:

"Your Committee on Credentials find the following entitled to sit as members of the National Committee: Jas. F. Carey, Massachusetts; Job Harriman, New York; Max Hayes, Ohio; John M. Work, Iowa; Walter Thomas Mills, Kansas; Geo. E. Boomer, Washington; Victor L. Berger, Wisconsin; Geo. H. Turner, Misouri; E. Berlyn, Illinois; James Oneal, Indiana; James S. Roche, California; Charles Ufert, New Jersey; Geo. E. Bigelow, Nebraska; Local Quorum, L. E. Hildebrand, E. Van Putnam, G. A. Hoehn and M. Ballard Dunn. Comrade Bigelow of Nebraska attends in place of National Committeeman McCaffery, who is ill. Thirteen States are represented with seventeen votes."

Upon motion of Carey the report was accepted, seating all committeemen named, excepting Bigelow of Nebraska. Berger moved that Bigelow be seated as committeeman from Nebraska, upon condition that he got regular credentials from the State Committee. Roche offered an amendment that Bigelow be given a voice but no vote. A substitute was offered that Bigelow be not seated, this was lost, and the amendment offered by Roche was carried.

Committee on Rules reported as follows:

"Order of business:—1. Call to order by Secretary of Committee; 2. Election of Chairman; 3. Roll-call; 4. Reading minutes; 5. Communications and bills; 6. Reports of special committees; 7. Reports of standing committees; 8. Unfinished business; 9. New business; 10. Adjournment.

"Sessions of the committee shall be held daily from 10 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 P. M. to 5 P. M.; evening sessions to be held whenever determined by a majority vote. A chairman to be elected daily, the Secretary of the Local Quorum to act as Secretary. No member shall speak more than ten minutes or more than twice on any question, without the consent of the body.

"No sub-committee shall meet while the National Committee is in session without the consent of said National Committee unless otherwise ordered. The Secretary of the National Committee to be given the same privileges as the members except the right to vote.

"We recommend the appointment of the following standing committees: 1. Committee on Secretary's Report:; 2. Committee on Local Quorum; 3. Committee on Finance; 4. Auditing Committee; 5. Committee on Agitation and Organization.

"We further recommend the selection of a committee of three to serve as a Nominating Committee, whose duty shall be to suggest to the full committee, the names of members to serve upon the standing committees."

The report of the Committee on Rules was acted upon seriatim and finally adopted. The Credentials Committee then reported as follows on the Utah case:

THE UTAH CONTEST.

"Your Committee on Credentials, after considering the Utah controversy to a great extent and hearing the parties on both sides, make the following recommendations:

"1. That the charter issued to the State of Utah be hereby revoked and that a member of the National Committee be sent to Utah with power to reorganize all locals and call a State Convention, said convention to be made up of delegates from organized and chartered locals on a basis of representation of one delegate to every five members in good standing, no delegate to represent other than the local of which he is a member.

"2. That both of the Utah comrades, Mrs. I. C. Hazlett and A. B. Edler, be extended the courtesy of a seat and a voice in the Committee, but no vote."

It was moved that the report as offered be adopted as the sense of the Committee. Upon request the question was divided. The first section was carried with a recommendation for submitting to a referendum of the party membership. Berger was recorded in the negative. The second portion of the report was carried.

Upon motion the temporary organization was made permanent for the day. Berger, Harriman, and Carey were elected as Nominating Committee. A motion of Carey was adopted, that when we adjourn, we adjourn to 7 P. M. A recess was then taken for thirty minutes. The Committee reconvened at 4 P. M. Nominating Committee reported as follows: Secretary's Report —Work, Hayes, and Bigelow; Local Quorum—Carey, Turner, and Edler; Finance—Oneal, Berlyn, and Edler; Hazlett; Auditing — Roche, Boomer, and Ufert; Agitation and Organization —Harriman, Berger, and Mills.

National Secretary Greenbaum then read his report, after which the Committee adjourned.

GREETING TO MINERS.

The Committee was called to order at 7 P. M. Committee on National Secretary's Report submitted their report, providing for reference of various provisions to the different committees. The report was adopted as read. Upon motion, the National Secretary was instructed to send the following telegram:

"W. B. Wilson, National Secretary, United Mine Workers of America, Convention Hall, Indianapolis, Ind.:

"The National Committee of the Socialist Party of America, in session in St. Louis, send you greeting and appreciate your efforts in waging the battle for industrial emancipation by organizing against capitalism and the trust power. We hope that the 200,000 mine workers of the country will rapidly come to see the necessity of combatting with their political power the same class that they are compelled to fight with the strike and boycott.

"LEON GREENBAUM,
"National Secretary Socialist Party."

Berlyn, Boomer, and Roche recorded themselves against sending the message. The Committee then adjourned.

SATURDAY—MORNING SESSION.

Committee called to order at 11.30 A. M. Ufert and Roche, members of Auditing Committee, excused by motion. Communication received dated Jan. 16, from Local Troy, New York, requesting referendum on amendment to national constitution so that Article 6, Section 4, will conclude as follows: "Provided that the National Committee shall have power to arrange interstate lecture tours with such locals as may desire." The request of Local Troy was indorsed by Locals Geuda Springs, Kansas; Sedalia, Bevier, and St. Louis, Missouri. Upon motion the Local Quorum was instructed to put said amendment in form for referendum of the party membership, as required by the constitution.

Greenbaum recommended that National Secretary should be placed under bond. Recommendation adopted and referred to Local Quorum for action.

Chas. Dobbs of Kentucky presented credentials as alternate National Committeeman in place of F. E. Seeds, who was unable to attend. Upon motion, F. E. Seeds was seated as National Committeeman and Charles Dobbs as alternate. It being the noon hour, the Chairman then declared meeting adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Committee assembled at 2 P. M. Order of reports changed by motion and report read from Committee on Local Quorum, as follows:

"We recommend: 1. That the Local Quorum shall submit to each of the members of the National Committee a weekly statement of the business pending or transacted.

"2. Not more than three weeks shall be allowed from the date of sending for replies to referendums submitted to the members of the National Committee.

"3. No state charter shall be granted until after the expiration of thirty days from date of application. If during such period objections are filed, a statement of the facts involved shall be submitted to the members of the National Committee for action.

"4. All applications for state charter shall be accompanied by a copy of the state constitution and platform.

"5. Upon the organization of four or more locals in any unorganized state or territory, the Local Quorum shall call a state convention (if agreeable to said locals), for the purpose of perfecting a state organization, and shall notify said locals to nominate temporary chairman and time and place for holding said convention. The Temporary Chairman shall be furnished with a list of the respective locals and of the members in good standing in same, as shown by the records of the National Secretary.

"6. The dues for the current month shall accompany all applications for state charters."

Report of Committee on Local Quorum, was considered seriatim and adopted according to the foregoing, after changes had been made.

Communications read from the People's Fund and Welfare Association inviting the Committee to assign speakers to deliver addresses at the Association's headquarters on Sunday evening at 7.30 P. M. Received and referred to consideration of individual members.

AGITATION AND ORGANIZATION.

The Committee on Agitation and Organization reported as follows:

"1. That a list of speakers for interstate lectures be selected by the National Committee and supplied to the states on application; and where such arrangements cannot be made, then with the locals that may desire.

"2. That the Local Quorum be instructed to raise funds by popular subscription for the purpose of prosecuting general Socialist propaganda.

"3. That the Secretary of the National Committee prepare a uniform system of stationery for party use together with blanks upon which local workers may make weekly reports to their locals; and the locals may make monthly reports to the state committees; and the state committees to the National Committee; the National Secretary to submit a summary of these reports to the Social press.

"4. The National Committee shall furnish uniform stamps. It will also furnish uniform due cards, application blanks, etc., the same to be sold at not more than ten per cent. above cost.

"5. The National Secretary shall prepare a constitution and by-laws (supplementary to the national constitution), for the use of locals in unorganized states, the same subject to amendment by locals adopting them."

Report of Committee considered seriatim, Edler offered amendment providing traveling card. Amendment rejected. Report of Committee on Agitation and Organization adopted.

RELATION TO UNIONS.

The noon hour having arrived, motion was made to adjourn. Lost. Committee on National Secretary's Report made report as follows:

"We fully endorse the action of the National Secretary and Local Quorum in communicating the fraternal greetings of our party to the various conventions of labor. We deem this policy a necessary one not only because of misunderstandings in the past, which are at last being cleared up, but also for the reason that the Socialist Party is the political expression of the awakened workers of this country, and is largely composed of men and women who are also united industrially, while over and above all, the fact stands out clear and bold that our interests, hopes and aspirations are identical. Therefore, constituting as we do, the department of the grand army of labor that is struggling to obtain control of the governing power in nation, state and municipality for the purpose of abolishing the wage system, and in which the workers shall receive the whole instead of a part of the wealth they produce; and being but recently organized to accomplish this end, it is our natural duty to acquaint our fellow workers who are consciously or unconsciously aiming to achieve this same noble purpose, with the principles and methods of the Socialist Party and to welcome their support and good will. Your committee is of the opinion that the National Secretary and Local Quorum are entirely in accord with the resolutions adopted by the Unity Convention in Indianapolis regarding the attitude of the Socialist Party on the trade union question."

Report of Committee adopted.

Motion adopted that when we adjourn we adjourn to meet at 9 A. M. Sunday. Motion that Geo. E. Boomer be instructed to go to Utah for space of sixty days, if necessary, to carry out intention of the Committee, so far adopted; Quorum having power to extend time if necessary; same to be at expense of National Committee and locals of the state of Utah. Adopted. The Committee then adjourned.

SUNDAY MORNING SESSION.

Meeting called to order at 10 A. M. Turner elected Chairman. Roll-call and reading of minutes dispensed with. Communication read from Local Louisville, Ky., indorsing request of Local Troy, New York, for referendum on amendment to constitution. Referred to Local Quorum.

Finance Committee made report, which was considered seriatim and after some changes, adopted as follows:

"1. We recommend that the national due stamp shall be the evidence of membership in the party and that every state and territorial organization and local organizations in unorganized states and territories shall purchase their stamps and supplies of the National Secretary.

"3. That each and every organized state represented by delegates to the Indianapolis Convention, shall pay dues from that date upon all the members within their borders, to the National Committee, except those states which thereafter paid dues to the Chicago N. E. B. and that such states shall pay dues to the National Committee from and after the time they ceased paying dues to the N. E. B. according to the number of votes represented at Indianapolis.

"3. That the National Committee charge ten cents dues to members in unorganized states and territories instead of five cents."

Adjourned until 1.30 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Committee called to order at 1.40 P. M. Roche offered following resolution:

"No member, speaker, or other representative of the National Committee shall receive as salary more than $2.00 per day and expenses." Amended by Harriman to read $3.00, instead of $2.00. Motion as amended was adopted, Roche being recorded against the amendment.

Harriman offered following resolution:

"That the Local Quorum place in the hands of Organizer Boomer due stamps to the amount of expenses incurred by one of the contesting delegation, the same to be turned over to the State Committee to be elected in Utah, and to be equally divided between both contesting delegates provided unity is secured in the above state; and further, we recommend that the party members of Utah pay the balance of 50 per cent. of contesting delegates' expenses equally between both." Resolution was adopted.

Berger offered the following resolution: "That the National Committee hereby disapproves the action of the Local Quorum in placing a boycott upon the World's Fair in St. Louis. Further, the National Committee hereby disapproves of any action of the Local Quorum that would tend to make the national or international movement subservient or party to any local trade union squabble."

Harriman offered the following substitute:

"Resolved, That the Socialist Party is in thorough accord with the trade unions of St. Louis in their struggle against the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and be it furthermore

"Resolved, That upon the indorsement of a boycott against said Exposition by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, the National Committee of the Socialist Party will cordially co-operate by giving national and international support." Substitute adopted.

Roche offered following, which was adopted: "Resolved, That the Local the party to the endorsement of any Quorum shall not endorse or commit boycott or strike that is not national or international in its scope and that has not been sanctioned by the national or international executive committee of the organization involved." Adjourned.

Committee called to order at 7.30 P. M. Dunn being absent, Putnam was elected Temporary Secretary. Roche brought up the Vallejo battleship affair, reading resolutions voted for by Hildebrand in the Central Trades and Labor Union and the resolutions passed by Local St. Louis; and in order to obtain sense of National Committee on the question offered the following: "Resolved, That the National Committee disapprove of the action of Hildebrand in voting for the Vallejo resolution." Resolution tabled. Harriman moved the following: "Resolved, That all government work be done under the direct supervision of the government and that no such work of whatever nature be done under the contract labor system." Carried.

Turner having to leave the city, Carey was thereupon elected chairman.

Communication read from Nebraska State Committee opposing Socialists receiving office at the hands of the capitalist class. Received and filed.

Communication read from G. Weston Wrigley, Provincial Secretary, Ontario Socialist League, inviting Socialist Party to send fraternal delegate to the Canadian National Convention to be held in September. Moved and carried that we send a fraternal delegate to Canada. Quorum was instructed to call for nominations.

Communication read from Paul Betnke, Secretary German Branch, Local Philadelphia, Pa., requesting National Committee to send German speaker on a general agitation tour. Received and referred to Quorum.

Harriman offered following:

"No member of the Socialist Party shall accept an appointment to an office in the gift of a capitalist party. This shall not include appointive offices to which the Socialist Party is legally entitled by reason of its votes." Adopted, and recommended to the party as an amendment to the national constitution.

Ufert offered following:

"No member of this party shall accept the nomination or endorsement of any other political party, nor allow such nomination or endorsement to stand without public protest." Adopted.

Auditing Committee made report as follows:

"Comrades Boomer, Ufert, and Roche, the Auditing Committee elected by your body to examine the books and accounts of the National Secretary, beg to report that most thorough investigation justifies us in stating that said books and accounts are correct in every particular up to Jan. 1, 1902, with a balance on hand on that date of $60.88." Report adopted as read.

Moved that National Secretary notify all National Committeemen to make nominations for official speakers, as soon as possible, the entire list of names of which are to be submitted to vote of the Committee as a whole. Carried.

Moved to proceed to elect the Local Quorum. Carried. Moved that the four now acting continue. Carried. Moved that Wm. M. Brandt be elected a member of the Local Quorum. Carried. Harriman moved that Leon Greenbaum be elected National Secretary. Carried.

Motion by Harriman that action of Local Quorum in continuing contract with Charles H. Vail until April 1, 1902, be approved. Carried. Moved, that referendum be taken on party emblem, as between the following designs: 1. A red flag (in the exact shape of a flag) bearing words "Socialist Party." 2. A globe with clasped hands across, surrounded by the words "Socialist Party."

Roche introduced following for Boomer, who was not present: "Resolved, That the Local Quorum, subject to endorsement by the whole committee, shall devise and formulate some plan whereby the Quorum may secure or publish leaflets, pamphlets, books, and other Socialist literature, the same to be furnished at cost to all state and local organizations or the members thereof." Tabled. Berlyn moved "that on or about July 1, 1902, the Quorum call upon Socialists throughout the country, noted for their literary ability, to write and submit two campaign leaflets, not to exceed one thousand words each, to be published by Quorum and furnished to state and local organizations at low rates." Carried. Moved that Quorum ascertain cost of printing convention report and submit estimates and plan for publication to referendum of National Committee. Carried. The National Committee then adjourned.

THE EXTENT OF OUR RAILROADS.

From a little wooden track line along the Lackawaxen Creek, where the first locomotive in the country had its trial in 1829, the railroad systems of the United States have grown in seventy-three years to a network of rails which, straightened out, would make a single track extending eight times around the world. Visualize this eight-fold girdle. Beside it a new track is progressing twelve miles a day on the ninth circuit. On every five mile stretch is a locomotive with a train of eight cars. There are five men at work for every mile and two hundred and forty new men coming to work every day. The road carries more tonnage than all the ships on all the seas together with the railroads of the busiest half of Europe. From the lines that make up the imaginary manifold belt one wage earner out of every fifteen in the country, directly or indirectly, secures a living for himself and his dependents, if not as a fireman or a conductor or a superintendent, then as a locomotive builder or a steel worker, or even one of the lumbermen engaged in hewing down the three thousand square miles of timber employed there every year for ties.—M. G. Cunniff, in The World's Work.

10c. A COPY. $1 YEARLY.

"THE GOOSE-QUILL."

The GOOSE-QUILL is a new unconventional magazine, not in the least like the popular brain annihilating slush-mush-gush magazines. It is edited by its editor, and not by the Young Person. Besides original poems and virile short stories the GOOSE-QUILL each month reprints some notable poem from sources little known. Thus in its initial number there appeared an unexpurgated version of Oscar Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Gaol," the most marvelous individual poem of the century. If you like "bread and butter" fiction don't buy THE GOOSE-QUILL," but if you like a magazine that expresses itself freely, and doesn't go nosing around after figleaves, buy the GOOSE-QUILL from your dealer, or send 10c. in stamps to the MANAGER, THE GOOSE-QUILL, Auditorium Tower, Chicago, Ill. The subscription to the GOOSE-QUILL for one year (12 months) is one dollar. The time to subscribe is NOW.

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
299 Broadway, Room 913. 50 Union Square.

PATRONIZE FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM. 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th St. N.Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERNATIONAL SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS' UNION REGISTERED
This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs
No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

R-I-P-A-N-S
I have used Ripans for several years in my general practise as a first-class extempore remedy for late dinners' distress, and have carried them in my vest pocket in the little paper cartons. At banquets and at lodge meetings I have often passed one to an adjacent brother.
At druggists.
The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.
When ordering mention THE WORKER.

EMILE ZOLA'S
POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS.
Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.
"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "Human Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother, Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."
Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.
Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.
The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is: HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

READ "THE ADVANCE."
A 16-PAGE SOCIALIST PAPER.
Uncompromising advocate of class conscious political action in the interests of the working class as against those of the capitalist class. Send for sample copy. Subscription price, per year, $1.00; six months, 50 cents. Three months, 25c. cents. 134 Murphy Building, 1256 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

TRADE and SCIENTIFIC BOOKS
The Scientific American Cyclopedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries; 15,000 receipts, 900 New Formulas, 734 pages, Indispensable in every worker's family. Price, $5.00, cloth; $6.00 in sheep, post free.
Hopkins' "Experimental Science," $4.00.
"Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century," by Edward W. Byrn; 300 illustrations, 480 pages, $3.00. Half rod morocco, gilt top, $4.00.
Hopkins' "Magic," $2.50.
Sloane's "Complete Electrical Library," 5 volumes in a box, $5.00.
"Standard Practical Plumbing," by P. J. Davies. A complete encyclopedia for practical plumbers, builders, gas fitters, engineers, etc., $3.00.
"The Tinsmiths' Helper and Pattern Book," by H. K. Vosburgh. Rules, diagrams, tables, and recipes for the use of practical metal workers, $1.00.
"How to Become a Good Mechanic," by John Phin. A practical guide to self-taught men; tells what to study and how to begin. 25 cents.
SCIENTIFIC BOOKS of every kind furnished by
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
'CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.
Five Postals for $1.25, each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.
For Sale on all New York News-stands.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 129th st., New York.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
60 Second Ave., Between Third & Fourth Sts.

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

PARTY BUTTONS
We manufacture three different sizes in ⅞, ¼ and 1¼ in. diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the ½ in. size simply with Arm and Torch emblem.

1 Button	5 cents.
12 Buttons	25 cents
25 Buttons	50 cents
100 Buttons	$1.75

Cash must accompany all orders.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

Trades' and Societies' Calendar

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

Organizations should not lose such an opportunity for advertising their places of meetings.

BRANCH 2, S. D. P., 34th and 35th A. D. (formerly Socialist Science Club), meets second and fourth Thursday evenings of each month at the Workingmen's Educational Club, 3309 Third avenue.

BRANCH 2 (English), 20th A. D. (Brooklyn), S. D. P.—Meets every second and fourth Tuesday evening at 709 Evergreen avenue. All Socialists of the district are invited to join. H. A. Gaerth, 1628 Bushwick avenue, will receive subscriptions for The Worker.

CARL SAHM CLUB MUSICIANS' UNION. Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 10 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, H. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street. —District I. (Bohemian), 332 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 10 Stanton Street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 80th Street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VI. meets at 414 East 5th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Fiescler, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

PENNSYLVANIA.
WILKES-BARRE—Local Luzerne Co., Pa., Socialist Party meets every Sunday at 3 p. m., at 487 South Grant street. All Socialists are invited.

Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kasse fuer die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.
WORKMEN'S
Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.
The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength (at present composed of 180 local branches with more than 7,500 male members) is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe in the principles of the modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership in any of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $3.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a sick benefit of $6.00 for 40 weeks and $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruption. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $5.00 and $3.00 respectively. A burial benefit of $250.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried daughters of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class on payment of an initiation fee of Monthly assessments are levied three different classes of members, of 15, 25 and 50 cents respectively. Applications from large are not accepted, but persons have to join existing branches, and towns where no branch exists a branch can be formed by 15 persons of good health, and men adhering to principles are invited to do so.
Address all communications to STAHL, Financial Secretary, 1-3 Third avenue, Room 2, New York City.

WORKMEN'S
Furniture Fire Insurance
Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.
Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.
OFFICE: 64 East Fourth street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 3 o'clock p. m.
BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Elmira, Albany; Oneida, N. Y.; Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J.
Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass.
New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.
Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Lesern, Altoona, Scranton, Pa.
Chicago, Ill.
Cleveland, O.
San Francisco, Cal.
For addresses of the Branch bookkeepers see "Vorwaerts." 229

POPULAR PUBLICATIONS.
Karl Marx' "Capital," 290 pages, paper, 75 cents; cloth, $1.50.
"Merrie England," by Blatchford. Paper, 10 cents; cloth, 60 cents.
"Silver Cross, or The Carpenter of Nazareth." By Eugene Sue. Translated from the French. Cloth bound, 50 cents.
When ordering by mail add postage.
Large assortment of Socialist publications constantly on hand.
Orders taken for any publication or periodical at lowest publishers' prices.
Catalogue free on application.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST. New York City.
Use this Label and Union Printer
Label for Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To. 33

SOCIALIST PARTY LITERATURE.
Issued by National Committee, will be sent prepaid at prices specified. National Platform, Constitution and Resolutions on Negro and Tr

WHAT BECOMES OF THE SURPLUS?

he "Favorable Balance of Trade" and What It Means to American Capitalists and American Workingmen.

Comrade W. C. Green of Orlando, Florida, recently proposed the following question to the editor of the "Thrice-a-Week World," but the latter, finding it, perhaps, too difficult a problem to be solved by the economics of capitalism, refused either to answer or to publish it:

"Will you kindly answer through your columns the following question: Is not the theory that we can get rid of our surplus products by means of trade with foreign nations fallacious?

"I assume that it will be admitted that no nation can continue to buy the products of other nations for any great length of time unless it can sell to them an equal amount of its own products. That is, all foreign trade, in the long run, is simply an exchange of products. Now, if we are annually producing $2,000,000,000 more wealth than we can consume, how does it help us in the long run, to trade it off for the products of other nations? If we cannot consume our own products how can we consume theirs any more readily? And will it not necessarily result in an 'overproduction' after a time whether we trade with other nations or not?

"Will not the present system of production inevitably wind itself up and destroy itself?"

A plain and honest answer to that question would have completely exposed the fallacy of the political and economic doctrines which the "World" supports, and therefore it is not to be wondered at that no answer was attempted.

The question is such an important one, there is so much confusion in regard to "our" prosperity, in the minds of the masses of the people, that it is worth while to take it up carefully.

Senator Depew tells us that the people of the United States are producing every year two billion dollars' worth more goods than they can consume, and that this is why the United States must have foreign markets in the Philippines, in China, anywhere. This is taken as an evidence of prosperity, and so it is. But we must ask: Who is it that makes this prosperity possible, and who is it that enjoys this prosperity. Or, to bring it down to the terms of Comrade Green's question: It being granted that the United States can continue to sell its surplus goods in the world-market, what becomes of the price that is paid for them?

In the first place, all the goods, including the $2,000,000,000 surplus are created by the working people of the country—by the agricultural workers (a large share of whom are either wage-laborers or tenants or mortgaged farmers who might as well be tenants) and by the laborers, factory operatives, and mechanics, in other industries. In general, they are produced by the wage-workers.

But why is there a surplus? Why cannot producers of these goods consume them also? Is it that the working people already have as many and as good clothes and hats and shoes, as much and as good food, as many books, as much furniture, as much of all the good things of life as they can possibly use, or as they want to use? We all know that this is not so.

Why, then, cannot the producers of all this wealth consume it all? The answer is: BECAUSE THEY ARE NOT THE OWNERS OF THEIR PRODUCT. Being wage-workers, not owning the means of production with which they work, they receive in return for their labor-power only a part of the value their labor creates. Their product belongs to the capitalists who own the means of production, and all [illegible] that remains, after the payment of the workers' wages, falls to the capitalists' share.

The capitalists' share of the workers' product grows constantly larger and larger, both absolutely and proportionately, as the resources of the country are developed, as the methods of production are improved, and as industry becomes organized on a larger scale. It is impossible for the capitalists to consume the whole of this surplus and they look for opportunities to re-invest it.

To put it in other words: The goods which are produced are produced for sale. But the producers, having received in wages only a part of the value of this product, are able to buy only a part of it. The capitalists, on the other hand, are able to buy the remaining share, but do not desire it all. Thus there remains a surplus of goods—about two billion dollars' worth annually, at the present stage of our development—for which there is no sale in this country. And since, under capitalism, industry is carried on only for sale at a profit, if no other market can be found for this surplus, the whole machinery of production must come to a standstill and we have "hard times."

But at present there are available foreign markets, and the surplus products of American industry are being sold at a profit. We have, therefore, a period of prosperity. And this brings us round again to the question: What becomes of the price that foreign purchasers pay for this surplus which America exports?

Partly, of course, the surplus American products are exchanged for goods that cannot so well be produced in this country—rice, tea, coffee, spices, tropical fruits, wines, silks, diamonds, etc. But since the importation of these things throws on the American market, for sale, a value equal to that of the exported American products for which they are exchanged, the surplus is evidently not reduced at all by the process and our question is not answered.

The fact remains that the American working people produce for the American capitalists, every year, an aggregate value two billion dollars in excess of all that the American working people CAN BUY plus all that the American capitalists WANT TO BUY. Goods equal to this surplus in value are sold in foreign markets by the American capitalists every year and are paid for by the foreign purchasers in some other way than by sending their products here.

Evidently the price paid for this surplus will belong to the American capitalists, because the surplus goods themselves belonged to them, although not produced by them. And this is the essential point. As to how the price is paid, that is really a minor question. Part of it may be paid by sending gold to this country. But the capitalist does not care to hoard gold indefinitely; and, as a matter of fact, the price is being paid in another way.

In former years, foreign capitalists have owned a large part of the means of production in America. English, German, French, and other European capitalists have held a large part of the stocks and bonds of American railroad and manufacturing companies, banks, etc. This constituted a debt which American capitalists owed to the capitalists of Europe. But since American industry has developed so far that the American working people are able to produce a large surplus, this debt is rapidly being reduced. The price of the surplus of American exports (owned, be it remembered, by American capitalists) over the imports, is simply credited on this debt.

To sum it up in a single sentence: The meaning of the "favorable balance of trade" is that AMERICAN WORKINGMEN ARE SUPPLYING AMERICAN CAPITALISTS WITH THE MEANS TO BUY OUT EUROPEAN CAPITALISTS WHO NOW OWN A PART OF AMERICA'S MEANS OF PRODUCTION. The result, so far as the working class of this country is concerned, is simply A CHANGE OF MASTERS. Instead of creating profits for the Rothschilds, they will create profits for the Morgans and Rockefellers.

When this process is completed, when American capitalists have bought out all the foreign investors, they will, in turn (if their prosperity continues) themselves become investors in foreign capital. Indeed, this has already begun, for American capitalists already own manufacturing plants in England, in Russia, in China, and elsewhere.

"America's economic supremacy," therefore, of which we hear so much—the result of American prosperity carried to the farthest extreme possible under the capitalist system—means only this: INSTEAD OF HAVING AMERICAN WORKINGMEN CREATING PROFITS TO BE DIVIDED AMONG AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN CAPITALISTS, WE SHOULD HAVE AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN AND ASIATIC WORKINGMEN TOILING TOGETHER TO CREATE PROFITS FOR AMERICAN CAPITALISTS.

This is a very alluring prospect for the patriotic American exploiters of labor, and for the Depews and Hannas and Beveridges who speak for them at Washington. But for the toilers in field and mine and factory it is a very different matter. The cry of "Prosperity" is raised simply in order to confuse and mislead the workingmen into voting for the interests of the Morgans and Rockefellers, who keep the Depews and Hannas and Beveridges in their pay. When the workingmen see through the game, they will vote for a very different kind of prosperity.

And even this sort of prosperity cannot last forever. It has its impassable limits; and the greater the "boom," the sooner will the limits be reached. For what applies to a single nation applies also to the world as a whole.

Capitalism, spreading over the whole world, is dividing the people everywhere into the two classes of exploiters and exploited, capitalists and wage-slaves. Everywhere, as capitalism develops, a larger share of the product goes to the masters as profit and a smaller share to the workers as wages, while everywhere the master-class becomes smaller and the working class larger as the process goes on. And the consequence is that in every other land that comes under the rule of "civilization"—that is, of the "profit-and-wage system"—the purchasing power of the masses is gradually reduced; and the desires of the masters, luxurious though they may be, cannot make up for this contraction of the market.

Whenever an American capitalist sets up a modern factory or builds a railroad or opens a mine in South America, in Russia, in China or Japan, he helps to make the continuance of prosperity impossible. Capitalism is a suicidal system. It must expand, or break down; but just in proportion as it expands it destroys its own foundation.

At the same time, fortunately, capitalism is creating and disciplining, through constant struggle, all over the world the force that will untimately transform it—the organized Socialist movement of the working class.

BRITISH WORKMAN'S BALLAD.

I walked in a preceeshin with a banner and a band,
And they said I was a nooseence in 'Igh Ol-born and the Strand;
I spouted at a meeting which was in Trafalgar Square,
But they sent the cops to charge me and to clear me out of there.

Oh, its "Demmygog" and "Soshulist," and "Damn the lazy lout,"
But its "Bless the British Workman," with the ballot box about.
The ballot box about, my lads, the ballot box about,
Oh, its "Bless the British Workman" with the ballot box about.

I struck for higher wages, and they said I was a fool,
And the crafty hagitator merely used me as a tool,
And when the kids wer starving and we hadn't sup nor bite,
They only shrugged their shoulders, and they said, it served me right.

For its "Ruin to the country," and its wickedness and crime,
But its "Sacred rights o' labor" just about election time,
Just about election time, my lads, about election time;
Oh, its "Sacred rights o' labor" just about election time.

I'm lazy and I'm 'ulking and a nooseence and a cuss,
And I sits on trade and commerce like a blooming great incubus,
I'm a dragon down the hempire and a swelling of the rates,
And a 'orny handed 'umbug what the upper classes 'ates.

For its "Workingmen are duffers" and "They're never worth a groat,"
But its "British bone and sinew" when they want your blooming vote,
They wants your blooming vote, my lads, they wants your blooming vote,
Oh, its "British bone and sinew," when they wants your blooming vote.
—Geo. R. Sims, to Bondsberg Patriot.

——English Socialist daily to be discussed at Brevoort's Hall, 154 E. Fifty-fourth street, Saturday evening, Feb. 8. Every active Socialist should be present.

THE "PEACE" PLAN

Mass Meeting to be Held in Cooper Union.

To Define the Attitude of the Rank and File—Call of Cigar Makers No. 90 Meets Hearty Response.

While the feeling among trade unionists in this city is by no means unanimous in regard to Senator Hanna's "industrial peace scheme," it is evident that there is a very powerful opposition to the tendency of compromise represented by the famous conference of last December.

The second meeting, held last Friday, of the conference of trade unions called by Cigar Makers' Union No. 90, was participated in by delegates of sixty local unions, representing about forty different trades. It was there decided to call a mass meeting in Cooper Union on Thursday evening, Feb. 13, "in order to correct and define the attitude of the rank and file of organized labor towards the action of certain labor leaders in participating and speaking in the name of organized labor without authority at the so-called Peace Conference, held at the invitation of millionaires, tax-dodgers, Wall street gamblers, politicians and smooth-speaking reverends."

The list of speakers, as announced, includes De Lara, of C. M. I. U. No. 90; Gunther, of Amalgamated Woodworkers No. 172; McQueen, of the Gas Workers of England; Spargo, formerly of the English Dock Workers; Hanford, of Typographical Union No. 6; Dooley, of the Franklin Pressmen's Association, and Brown, of C. M. I. U. No. 144.

Another meeting of the conference is called for Friday evening, Feb. 7, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. All delegates should be present to perfect final arrangements.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF WOMEN.

On Monday, Jan. 27, the Brooklyn American Federation of Women held an important meting in the Johnston Building, corner Flatbush avenue and Nevins street. Bauland's department store has not only withdrawn all advertising from the "Sun," but through the influence of the ladies has installed union label shoes, clothing, and brooms. Abraham Straus, Loeser and Matthews still advertise in the "Sun" and should be avoided by Brooklyn unions.

The Brooklyn women have been carrying on a campaign against the "Sun" and for label goods that has been felt. They want the names and addresses of the wives of printers and all other union men, that they may be enabled to do more and better work. Mrs. Synover (care of Am. Fed. of Women, Johnston Bldg., Brooklyn) is secretary.

The New York section meets at Colonial Hall, 101st street and Columbus avenue, every Thursday. Mrs. A. S. Jennings, 1733 Amsterdam avenue, is secretary.

Coppersmiths Organizing.

The committee sent to Philadelphia to organize the Coppersmiths reported good results. Twenty joined the union at he first meeting and the prospects are that every coppersmith in that city will follow the gobd example.

In New York almost every man of the trade is in the union which numbers about two hundred. All shops are organized. Pat Quinn was elected as walking delegate and will now organize Newark and Paterson.

TRADE UNION NOTES.

Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Association, Br. 158, passed a resolution ordering fifty subscription postals for The Worker, and elected a committee to sell them to their members.

At the last meeting of the Pie Salesmen's Union, Local No. 113, Charles Adel was re-elected as president and J. Stevens as vice-president. The union voted to enlist in the campaign for a daily, and elected a committee to secure subscriptions from its membership. They voted to take twenty-five yearly subscription postals a starter, and the committee will send for more when those have been sold. The committee feels confident that they will secure at least a list of one hundred subscribers.

The Pie Salesmen wish to call attention to the fact that the boycott on the goods of the Metropolitan Pie Company is still on, and they appeal to all union men to help them in their fight by asking restaurants, grocers, or saloons not to buy Metropolitan pies.

The delegats of the Pie Bakers reports that the Metropolitan Pie Company has but six routes, where before the strike and boycott they had fourteen, and that they are compelled to buy inferior pie fruits, etc., as those fruit and supply houses which supply other pie companies refuse to sell to this concern until they grant the demands of the union.

Ask for the union card in your barber shop. See to it that your barber secures it. If he refuses, find another barber who has it or will get it.

The "Sun" boycott has NOT been declared off, and until it is no union man should be previous in spreading a false rumor. The "Sun" would certainly be pleased to have you do it, but until you get definite information from the proper authorities don't stop.

The Electrical Workers of Newark have won the strike for an eight-hour day and $3.50 wages.

The Amalgamated Painters have formed a new branch in Queens County, meeting every Saturday evening at Everetts Hall, Washington and Flint streets, Jamaica.

Demand the union label on clothes, shirts and collars, shoes, bread, cigars and tobacco, and other things you buy. And dont forget, when you vote in November, to put your cross on the only ticket bearing the label of the labor movement—that is, the Torch.

Delegates Furuseth and Frazier, of the Seamen's Union, were assigned the work of organizing the Marine Firemen by the Buffalo convention. They have begun their task.

The Butchers' Union complains that union men still patronize the boycotted shops of Hartwig, 91 Avenue A, and Jaisle, 200 Avenue B. The local butchers' unions are to affiliate with the international body.

The Babcock strike of boilermakers and shipbuilders is declared off.

The Actors' Union is protesting against the Ahearn bill to establish a state censorship over the stage. If the voters had sent a Socialist workingman instead of this man Ahearn, no such silly and pernicious bill would have been introduced, but instead there would have been some bills in the interest of the working class.

The Tile Layers' Union has subscribed for fifty copies of The Worker weekly for one year.

United Tight Work Coopers' Union No. 2 has elected the following officers: President, Thos. M. Warren; Vice-President, Fred Roschel; Recording Secretary, E. Witte; Financial Secretary, M. F. Hennessy; Treasurer, John Henry; Sergeant-at-Arms, Jacob Kahn; Delegates to C. F. U., Wm. Farrell and Julius Boh; Trustees, Farrell, Al. Stryker, and Thos. Powell. The union is reported in good condition and making gains in all respects.

It is a very edifying sight to see a laboring man who has only one shirt get excited because the taxpayers' money is being squandered in high salaries.—The Workers' Call.

It isn't every workingman who knows that he is a worker; a great many of them think they are capitalists. At least, that is what we must argue from the way they vote.—Missouri Socialist.

Executive committee of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor voted to circulate literature in favor of unionism and Socialism.

There is no instance on record of any class possessing power without abusing it.—Buckle.

The Tar, Felt, and Waterproof Workers' Union subscribed for a weekly bundle of 25 copies of The Worker for one year at its last meeting.

United Brewery Workers' No. 30, Firemen's Branch, took twenty-five yearly postals and appointed a committee to dispose of them to those of their members who read English.

The Patern Makers hat on Friday, Jan. 31, was well attended, notwithstanding the snow storm. The actors entertainment was excellent. Johnson's Orchestra Band furnished the music.

Metal Polishers', Buffers', Platers', and Brass Workers' Union, No. 110, installed Thos. F. Riley as president, Robt. Sharkey as secretary, and Paul Zapolla as treasurer at the last meeting.

Electrotypers' Union, No. 1, has elected the following officers: President, M. Brady; vice-president, John Boyer; financial secretary, Florence J. Donovan; recording secretary, John Rauscher; treasurer, Louis Bauer.

POLITICS IN THE UNION.

The ninth annual convention of the Missouri State Federation of Labor deemed it advisable so to amend the constitution as to exclude from its deliberations, as delegates, persons holding political office, either elective or appointive. The motive which no doubt actuated the delegates in that convention and the unions affiliated, to adopt this measure, was to exclude from participation in the conventions of the Federation persons who seek to use labor organizations as a stepping stone to political preferment.

The wisdom of this legislation is attested by the rapid growth since its adoption. By this act, however, we have not eliminated politics from our deliberations, but partizan politics absolutely. That kind of politics which divides labor into hostile and contending factions on the political field, and opens to the member opportunities for political advancement, not for the purpose of righting the wrongs of his own class, but for pandering to the worst interest of theirs. Hgwever, organized labor cannot be forced into political action by resolution or otherwise, but must be left to develop into a political factor.

The members must be educated in their political duties, prejudices overcome and a free and full discussion of political principles permitted.

If we would hope for the complete emancipation of our class, we must unite—must organize—the now scattered forces of labor upon the political field, not as a balance of power with its antagonisms, not yet a craven weakling begging for puch puny concessions as might fall from capitalists legislative platters, but a mighty, irresistible political movement, independent of, and opposed to every interest but that of the working class. The forces now at work carry us irresistibly into the fray. Do we possess the wisdom, the courage, the intelligence, to give the movement proper direction? The power we possess in our organized capacity, if properly wielded, will hasten the day of our deliverance.—From the annual report of President E. T. Behrens to the Missouri State Federation of Labor.

AN INTELLIGENT SOLUTION.

In a long editorial on the question of the trust movement, the New York "Journal of Commerce," a capitalistic mouthpiece, acknowledges the fact "that Socialism has already become an appreciable force in our politics; that in the absence of either of the great parties having an intelligent solution to offer, of the trust problem, the socialistic answer to it is equally prompt and definite." The "Journal of Commerce" concludes that "when the whole course of our material development seems to be tending in the direction most desired by Socialists, and seems to be dominated by ideals which are essentially those of the socialistic theorist, only with this difference that the representatives of capital occupies the place demanded by the representative of labor, the political danger inherent in the spread of the trust system cannot be said to be visionary."

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 309 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 S. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Washington Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 N. Baum street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eidsness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1118, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. W. Quick, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Wilson, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 667, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reason, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

NEW YORK.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

On account of the mass-meting of party members in regard to the daily paper, to be held Saturday, Feb. 8, the Executive Committee of the Local New York has postponed the regular meeting of the General Committee to Saturday, Feb. 15.

JULIUS GERBER, Organizer.

THE WORKER CONFERENCE.

The following contributions to The Worker fund have been received since the last acknowledgement was made:

A. Lee	$ .75
S. Lederg	2.00
P. M. Jensen	6.5
34 and 35 A. D. S. D. P.	2.25
Mr. Brown	1.00
S. D. P. Branch III., Bklyn.	.5)
5 A. D. S. D. P., Bklyn.	1.45
Proceeds from booth at Party picnic June 30	24.40
W. C. Wallin	4.50
Proceed from booth at Party picnic July 4	18.11
Mr. Graebler	1.25
11 A. D. S. D. P.	2.00
34 and 35 A. D. S. D. P.	.71
32 and 33 A. D.	2.00
Geo. D. Herron	50.00
Collection	.65
21 A. D. Branch III. S. D. P., Bklyn.	.50
34 and 35 A. D. Branch II. S. D. P.	.81
Collection	.25
Geo. D. Herron	150.00
Collected by Wm. Fahl	8.40
Mr. Koniger	.50
F. F. Schroner	.25
Christian Friedrichsen	.25
Mr. Brown	1.35
Ed. S. Bock	2.00
Wm. Butscher	1.00
A. Evans	2.5)
H. B. Saltsbury	1.00
Wm. F. Doll	1.00
State Committee S. D. P., Ohio	1.00
E. G. Abbott	2.00
6 and 10 A. D. S. D. P.	2.00
Local New Haven, Conn., S. D. P.	5.00
Chas D. Martin	1.00
21 A. D. S. D. P., Bklyn.	.80
S. D. Frauen Verein, Br. 30	5.00
Chas. F. Hohman	.50
Jul. Weber	1.00
Tom Whitesworth	1.50
W. W. Passage	10.0.
H. C. G.	1.00
A. F. Wegener	.45
Dressler & Koenig	1.00
R. Weppler	1.00
F. L. Robinson	1.00
26 A. D. S. D. P.	1.60
18 and 20 A. D. S. D. P.	1.00
W. C. Green	.50
Geo. Tauber	1.00
Mr. Neppel	.35
Mr. Fleck	.25
Mr. Bartholomeyer	.25
Mr. Klumpen	.10
Mr. Baumjager	.40
Mr. Nie	.10
Ewald Ufert	1.00
Aug. Krieg	.25
32 and 33 A. D. S. D. P.	2.00
Jos. F. Winter	.10
Fred. Richter	.15
Geo. Braun	.25
Baum & Dressler	1.25
S. D. Frauen Verein Branch 18	5.00
21 A. D. Branch III., S. D. P., Bklyn.	.90
Wm. C. Hager and others	2.40
S. D. Frauen Verein Branch 9	5.00
32 and 33 A. D. S. D. P.	1.00
N. I. Stone	2.00
6 and 10 A. D. S. D. P. Letter Box	.07
Lechard D. Abbott	1.50
Second Ward S. D. P., Bklyn.	3.50
Chas. Vollmer, New Haven, Conn.	3.25

If any contribution made between June 15 and Nov. 1, 1901, is not acknowledged in this list, please notify Wm. J. F. Hennemann, financial secretary, who will investigate and report the results to complainants.

It is not deemed necessary to ask for further contributions to The Worker Fund at the present time, but subscriptions for The Worker are solicited at all times.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

Below is a list of the subdivisions of Local New York, Socialist Party, with time and place of meeting. If you are not already a party member, but believe in the principles of Socialism, do not fail to attend the meeting of your assembly district, join the party and go to work.

The headquarters of Local New York are at 64 E. Fourth street. Frederick Feigenbaum, Jr., is the organizer, and to him all communications should be addressed. The general committee, consisting of delegates from the various branches, meets in the party rooms on the second and fourth Saturdays in each month.

1st, 2d, and 3d A. D.—Every Monday at 205 W. Eleventh street, home of L. D. Mayer.

3d and 8th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday of the month, at 73 Ludlow street.

4th A. D.—Every Friday at Pacific Hall, E. Broadway, near Clinton street.

9th and 10th A. D.—Second and fourth Friday, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

7th A. D.—First and third Wednesday, at Colonial Hotel, 243 W. Seventeenth street.

9th and 11th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 436 W. Thirty-eighth street.

12th A. D.—Every Friday at Grand Central Palace Hall, 50-56 Clinton street, Room 5.

13th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 542 W. Forty-second street.

14th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday, at 238 E. Tenth street.

15th and 17th A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 437 W. Fifty-third street.

16th A. D.—Every Friday at 616 E. Fifth street.

18th and 20th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 421 First avenue.

19th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 125 Amsterdam avenue.

21st A. D.—First and third Friday, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue.

22d A. D.—Every Thursday at 312 E. Fifty-second street.

23d A. D.—First and third Friday, at 19 Manhattan street.

24th A. D.—(Branch 1.) Second and fourth Monday, at 240 Second avenue.

24th A. D.—(Branch 2.) Every Thursday at 215 E. 58th street.

25th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1432 Second avenue.

26th A. D. (BOHEMIAN BRANCH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 326 E. Seventy-third street.

28th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1407 Avenue A.

30th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 206 E. Eighty-fourth street.

31st A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at Sanders' Hotel, N. W. corner Park avenue and One Hundred and Fourteenth street.

32d and 33d A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1067 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 1, GERMAN)—Second and fourth Friday, at 3309 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 3309 Third avenue.

ANNEXED DISTRICT.—First and third Saturday, at Weide's Hotel, Tenth street and White Plains avenue, Williamsbridge.

Below is a list of the subdivisions of Local Kings County. Fred. Schaffer is the Organizer of the Local and he may be addressed at the Socialist Club headquarters, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, where also the County Committee meets.

1st, 2d, and 3d A. D. (American Branch.)—First and third Friday, at 121 Schermerhorn street.

5th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Emrich's, 5-7 Boerum street.

6th A. D.—Every Wednesday, at 222 Stockton street.

7th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at Blakefield's, 1232 Fifth street.

12th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Turn Hall, Sixteenth street, near Fifth avenue.

13th and 14th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Eckford's Hall, corner Eckford and Collyer streets.

15th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 187 Montrose avenue.

16th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 9 McDougal street.

17th A. D.—First and third Sunday afternoon, at 9 McDougal street.

18th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 9 McDougal street.

19th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Labor Lyceum, 355 Willoughby avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN—First and third Wednesday, at 257 Hamburg avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 2, ENGLISH—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 700 Evergreen avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN—First and third Friday, at 675 Gleinmore avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 3, ENGLISH—Second and fourth Wednesday, at Keystone Hall, Pennsylvania and Glenmore avenues.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRE- SPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

A Protest.

The Editor of The Worker:

I ask a small portion of your space to enter a protest against the mission which is to go to England to represent this country on the occasion of the coronation of King Edward VII. I protest against it for two reasons.

First, because it is a special recognition of a principle of government against which the founders of the Republican form of government, such as it is, which we have, fought and sacrificed their lives.

Secondly, because of the special circumstances attending the coronation of the British king.

It is true that the republican government with which this country started is fast degenerating into a plutocratic oligarchy, and that the constitutional head, called a President, is assuming the power of an autocrat, governing in contempt of the constitution and people by means of a cabal called a cabinet.

It is natural in such a case that he should be drawn toward his brother autocrats, and, as far as he dares, ape their ways.

Himself, a man of war, a man-killer, in fact and by instinct, he is already all intoxicated with the pride, lacking only the crown and the life tenure to qualify as a "cousin" to the autocrats of Europe. The visit of the German Prince Henry is the recognition of his being one of themselves in spirit, if not in fact.

The persons who have been nominated to represent this country AND HIM, are the embodiment of the plutocratic oligarchy of which he is the representative head. The special ambassador, Mr. Whitelaw Reid, is a flunkey from the top of his head to the soles of his feet. The other two representatives are members of the professional mansilling class which, as all history shows, springs into prominence in republics when their citizens have lost all consciousness of the principles of liberty and are about to be deprived of it. The secretaries and other attendants of the mission belong quite naturally to the snob plutocratic class who are seeking to pervert the republic to their own purposes, and eventually subvert it. Still, the republican form of government we have, imperfect and degenerate though it has become, is the only one by means of which the Socialist ideal can be attained without bloodshed, which every true Socialist wishes to avert.

I therefore protest against the degradation of the republican principle by the mission to the coronation of the British king.

Finally, the circumstances in which the mission will be present at the coronation make the American people accomplices in the destruction of two sister republics, and in the murders of the defenders and the extermination of their families. This mission sent by President Roosevelt and his cabinet to honor the British king is therefore a dishonor to the American people and an insult to republican principles. It is more. It is a crime against humanity; it is doing homage to the occupant of a throne the steps to which are slippery with the blood of the victims of the lust for gold and of capitalist greed and oppression. Against this I protest with all the energy I possess.

A SOCIALIST.

Socialism and Christianity.

The Editor of The Worker:

Having read the article on "Christian Socialism" in The Worker of Jan. 19, also some of your correspondent's answers in the issue of Jan. 26, and your able editorial in the same number, I find that, at least in my poor opinion, some queer notions of Socialism and its relation to the Christian religion have got into the heads of many of our comrades. Although not being a very good scholar, but having traveled all over the world, and mixed with men of different nationalities, races, and religious beliefs, and also having used eyes and ears for observation, I may be allowed to have a little practical experience, and to have come to some practical conclusion. As Socialism is a movement for the betterment of the material condition of the working class, I fail to see how any one can connect it in any way with Christian teachings or tenets, or with the, teachings and ideals of any other religion. It is just as senseless to talk about Christianizing Socialism as it is to talk about Mohammedanizing or Confucianizing or Hottentotizing it.

Socialism is a materialistic movement. Christianity a spiritualistic movement. Of course, we know that the betterment of the material conditions of man, that is, the establishment of the co-operative commonwealth, by removing the incentive to most crimes of man against man, would improve the moral conditions of mankind. In my opinion, in a higher sense of the word, man can be raised without the help and assistance of any religion whatsoever, and it is foolish to say that the whole fabric of Socialistic ideals rests upon the principles of the teachings of Christ. What, for instance, would those of our comrades in Japan say, who are of the same religious turn of mind, and who have probably never heard of Christ? They could say that Socialism depended upon the recognition of the teachings of Buddha. And so it would be with other countries.

Furthermore, it has never been proven to the impartial and unprejudiced which religion is the right one, or if there is a right one at all. It only shows, and very plainly too, that religion has nothing whatever to do with Socialism. Religion depends upon faith and is entirely a speculation, and in this respect all religions in the world are pretty nearly alike, and the apostles of each, perhaps, claim that their religion is the one true one and leading the only safe way to some glorious hereafter. Socialism deals with proved scientific facts and promises a more certain life here, a life, a state of great divide, and urges us on to fight for better conditions and not to be content, as the Christian faith teaches, but to fight until we gain material freedom and equality for all mankind. Socialism is the movement of the working class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, Indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most eff

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 46. NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 16, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

TWO LEGAL DECISIONS AND WHAT THEY MEAN.

Employer Responsible for Injury to Another Capitalist, Not for Injury to an Employee—How Capitalist Judges Construe the "Labor Contract" and How Socialist Judges Would Construe It.

In New York newspaper reports, in the same column of the same issue, two legal decisions, one by the New York State Court of Appeals and the other by the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court, both of which bear on the responsibility of an employer for the acts of an employee, and which, when taken together, throw a vivid light on the "equality before the law" which is supposed to be a fundamental principle of American institutions.

Here are the two cases:

I.—A telegraph operator forged a message from one bank to another for the payment of a certain sum of money. The bank so defrauded brought suit against the telegraph company, and the Court of Appeals holds that the company, as employer of the swindler, is responsible for the consequences of his criminal act. The court points out that it is the duty of the operator to send messages; that the message in question was sent in the usual manner over the company's line and through its regular agents, and therefore the act of the operator, although criminal, and unauthorized by the company was within the apparent scope of his employment, and, if genuine, would have been within his actual authority.

II.—The engineer on a steamboat found that a water gauge glass was cracked and ought to be replaced. He directed the fireman, who was under his orders, to remove the cracked glass. While the latter was carrying out the order, the glass burst, severely injuring the fireman. The fireman brought suit against the company for the injuries thus sustained by him in its employ. The case was first decided in his favor, but the Appellate Division reverses the decision and holds that the fireman cannot get damages from the employing company, on the ground that he was injured "through the act of a fellow servant." The court holds that the duty of replacing the defective glass was on the engineer in his character as a servant, and his act in directing the fireman to turn off the valves and replace the glass was that of a fellow servant. It was shown that the engineer had authority to discharge the fireman if the latter had refused to obey the order, but this does not deter the court from deciding that the injured employee can have no legal redress.

Why This Distinction?

The cases are, in many respects, so closely parallel that it is pertinent to ask: Why is the employer held responsible for the consequences of an employee's act in the first case and not in the second?

Doubtless both decisions, inconsistent as they seem, can be supported by a perfectly logical argument, based on established principles of law. But the question then takes the new form: Why are the established principles of law such as to lend to this inconsistency?

If any distinction is to be drawn between the two cases, from a non-legal point of view, it would suggest the reversing of both decisions. The telegraph company never authorized its operator to forge messages. The steamboat company did authorize its engineer to give orders to the fireman and to enforce them by the threat of discharge. The injury inflicted in the first case, moreover, was merely a pecuniary loss to a wealthy corporation, while the second case involved personal injury, disability, and danger to a poor workingman. Yet the corporation has redress and the workingman has none.

The Real Explanation.

And here lies the real answer to the question. All the principles of law, established by several generations of judges put on the bench through capitalist influence, have been framed, more or less consciously, with the motive of giving protection to property interests and of denying protection to human life against business interests.

In other words, the law takes considerable pains to prevent one capitalist from cheating another; but it takes no pains at all to prevent capitalists from making profits out of the danger and the sufferings of their workmen; rather, it takes very great pains to safeguard this "sacred right of property" against any absurd humane sentiments that might lurk in the breasts of even the most carefully picked jurors.

Theory of "Free Contract."

The law assumes that the contract between employer and employee is a perfectly free and voluntary contract on both sides; it takes no note of the fact that the workingman must get a job or starve, while the capitalist can retire from business, if he pleases, and live comfortably on his accumulated profits; it takes no note of the fact that there are more workingman than jobs, that the employer can choose his employee from among many applicants, while the workingman must take the first chance that offers itself. The law completely ignores this inequality of the two parties in the "free contract."

The law then declares that the workingman, in accepting the job, voluntarily assumes all ordinary risks of the work, as well as all risk from negligence or fault of any fellow employee—that he freely and voluntarily releases his employer from responsibility for any accident that may be placed in either of these classes.

Finally, the courts, in applying the law, see to it that all possible accidents are put in one or the other of these classes, and the employer thus freed from responsibility.

So long as capitalism continues and so long as capitalists dominate the government, such rules as this will continue to be applied, with the inevitable result that capitalists will recklessly and ruthlessly subject their employees to danger of life or limb wherever a penny is to be made or saved by so doing.

Until capitalism is overthrown and Socialism established—until the means of production become the people's property, to be controlled and used for the people's good—while the transition is being made from the capitalist state to the Co-operative Commonwealth, there is but one method by which workingmen can find relief from the consequences of such cruel and unjust rules of law.

How It Cannot Be Changed.

It CANNOT be done by begging capitalist politicians to pass better laws. We have tried that. The politicians smile and promise—but they never fulfil their promises. They throw our proposed laws into the wastebasket. If we clamor a little more loudly, they amend the bill so that it will be harmless to the capitalists and useless to us and then insult us by enacting it into law. Or they pass the law, with the understanding that the executive department will not enforce it and that the judges will, if necessary, declare it unconstitutional and void.

It CANNOT be done by preaching to the capitalists and praying to them and burning incense to their pride, and telling them how we love them and how we know they love us, and so trying to cajole them into being good. We have tried that. They pat us on the back and assure us of their brotherly regard, and when we are gone they laugh at us and go on maiming or killing us for profit.

How It Can Be Changed.

It CAN be done by putting in the legislative halls and in the executive chairs and on the judicial benches men of our own class—men chosen by us from our own ranks, chosen on account of their record in our class battles and definitely pledged to measures for the benefit of our class and to nothing else—workingmen who have more respect for human life than for capitalist profits, who care more for their fellow workers' safety and comfort than for "sacred rights of property" or hoary traditions of law.

A Socialist judge would observe the plain fact that there is no such thing as a free contract between employer and employee—that the contract is entirely onesided because the workingman is driven to it by the fear of want—that he is hardly more free in making the contract than the unarmed pedestrian who "voluntarily" gives up his purse at the point of a highwayman's pistol, in order to avoid a worse fate. He would observe another plain fact—that the contract between employer and employee is entirely onesided in that the employee does all the work and produces all the wealth, while the employer does no work but takes more than half of the product. And in view of these two plain facts, the Socialist judge would throw the antiquated theories of the law-books to the dogs and hold the employer responsible to the fullest extent, for every injury to an employee at his work, unless the employer could clearly prove that employee's direct and personal responsibility through negligence or wilful misconduct.

The immediate result of the election of a few Socialist judges, prepared to render decisions on this principle, would be a sudden and strenuous activity on the part of capitalists to provide all known safety appliances and use every means to prevent the injury of employees. The only way to touch a capitalist's conscience in such matters is to touch his pocketbook.

If there is any workingman who would not like to see judges apply such a principle as this, he should be careful never to vote the Socialist ticket.

THE CLASS WAR AND CLASS CONSCIOUSNESS.

A class-conscious Socialist is one who is conscious of the identity of interest of the proletariat, the solidarity of the working class, and the necessary antagonism between that class and the capitalist class, in consequence of existing economic conditions. He recognizes the existence of the proletariat as a class apart from the propertied class. The class war is the antagonism necessarily existing between the two classes, the possessing class and the proletariat, the haves and the have-nots. This war is not of anyone's seeking, but arises out of the very nature of things, and must go on until classes are abolished by the destruction of the economic conditions from which they arise.

The great fundamental difference between classes is an economic one. It is the possession of the means of production which gives our modern dominant class its power, and it is this which creates the antagonism of interest between the dominant class and the proletariat. From that antagonism of interest arises that class war, that class struggle, which will go on, growing more acute with the development of economic forces until the end is reached by the overthrow of the dominant class.—London Justice.

WOMEN IN THE PARTY.

Socialist Organizations Based on Differences of Sex Should Not Be Encouraged.

The fact that here are some women working for an organization of women into a separate body from men in the Socialist Party proves that there is still lingering in the minds of some Socialists the old superstition that there is and should continue to be a difference between the intellectual and moral capacities of men and women.

Women have always been considered of less importance than men, simply because they have tamely submitted to be the servants or toys of the lords of creation.

In the beginning of civilization when there came a division of labor, this division was made along sex lines. And it became the part of women to care for the fire, the children, and the aged. She has been making the homes, nursing the sick, and rearing the young of the race ever since. She has quietly accepted this position as her only proper sphere. As civilization has steadily advanced from one stage to another this position of women has advanced also, but the dependence and inferiority has remained.

Women have been trained through all the past to fill this position of inferiority; and until capitalism needed cheaper wage slaves than men they have always been the slaves of slaves. But the vast army of working women to-day who fill the shops, the factories, the stores, the school rooms, and the offices, are occupying exactly the same economic position as men, and the fact that they have taken possession of these industries almost to the exclusion of men, proves that they are in no sense inferior.

However, women have no political power, but there is one political party that has declared for the equality of women, that gives to the women in its ranks the right to hold office and vote on all matters of party management. In view of this fact it seems almost incredible that there should be women working to bring about a separate organization. The reasons advanced for such an organization are almost childish in their simplicity. It is said that women will not join the regular branches of the party. It is true that they will not join until they are Socialists and when they are no power can keep them out of the party.

In the branch of which I am a member, three years ago I was the only woman member; at the present time there are four others. The only reason why the increase in the party is slower among women than men is because women are in the majority of cases dependent upon some man, and because their wants are supplied they fail to feel the same economic pressure that men feel. The only reasons that have ever been advanced for separate organizations rest upon the basis of the inequality of the sexes. As Socialism declares for equal opportunities for all the human race regardless of sex or color, we as Socialists can accept no such reasons.

The inequality of the sexes has followed the human race from slavery to feudalism and from feudalism to capitalism. And whether it shall still be carried over into the Socialist state depends upon ourselves, my women comrades. I want no vestige of slavery to rest upon the little girls who call me mother, so in the name of all the little girls of the world I appeal to you, my comrades, to see to it that we join in the regular organization of the Socialist Party and refuse to join or support a separate organization which is a tacit acknowledgement of our inequality at the present time and our consent to remain so.—Lillie M. Forberg, in The Workers' Call.

THE TRAMP.

Comes now the tramp. And all conclusions may be anticipated by saying at once that he is a tramp because some one must be a tramp. The tramp is one of two kinds of men: he is either a discouraged worker or a discouraged criminal. Now, a discouraged criminal, on investigation, proves to be a discouraged worker or the descendant of discouraged workers; so that in the last analysis the tramp is a discouraged worker. * * *

It is very easy to demonstrate that there are more men than there is work for men. What would happen to-morrow if one hundred thousand tramps should become suddenly inspired with an overmastering desire for work? It is a fair question. "Go to work" is preached to the tramp every day of his life. The judge on the bench, the pedestrian in the street, the house-wife at the kitchen door, all unite in advising him to go to work. So what would happen to-morrow if one hundred thousand tramps acted upon this advice and strenuously and indomitably sought work. Why, by the end of the week one hundred thousand workers, their places taken by the tramps, would receive their time and be "hitting" the road for a job. * * *

Therefore, let us be cheerful and honest about it. Let us be as stringent as we please with our police regulations, but for goodness sake let us refrain from telling the tramp to go to work. Not only is it unkind, but it is untrue and hypocritical. We know there is no work for him. And though we may not know, we should know and it is our duty to know that he is a hero. As a scapegoat to our economic and industrial sinning, or to the plan of things, if you will, we should give him credit. Let us be just. He is so made. Society made him. He did not make himself.—Jack London, in Advance.

—If I am not misinformed, our Indian fellow-subjects are mainly vegetarians, teetotallers, and anti-tobacconists. Yet the practice of all these virtues on their part does not prevent the people of India being one of the poorest peoples in the world.—London Justice.

DOES HE REPRESENT LABOR?

Conduct of Frank Foster, Labor Lobbyist, in Massachusetts Legislature.

In Committee Hearings Fails to Support Any Labor Bills Introduced by Socialist Members—A Record for Bay State Unionists to Read and Act Upon—No Settlement of Boston Teamsters' Strike.

It has come to pass, during the legislative experience of the two Socialist representatives in Massachusetts, that they have had not only the open antagonism of the capitalist members to combat, while trying to have ameliorative legislation enacted for the working class, but also at many times the silent opposition of those people known as the legislative agents of the trade unions. These gentlemen are supposed to instruct labor members on labor measures, to appear before committees in support of labor bills, and in other ways influence members towards the enaction of labor laws. These agents are paid by the trade unions for this purpose. Their salaries come from the working class. They are supposed to be men of experience, knowledge, and tact, and to be on hand at all times to represent their constituents in all matters pending in the legislature affecting the welfare of the working class.

The trade union movement has for many years kept these agents at the various state legislatures and the national Congress, and whatever has been magnanimously enacted by capitalist legislators has been ascribed by trade union leaders to the arduous and faithful labors of legislative agents and committees. Inasmuch as the Socialist members of the Massachusetts Legislature never need to be pushed, instructed, or influenced as to how to vote and act upon labor bills, it is probable that a great many gentlemen who now pose as mentors for the trade union movement would find their occupation gone, should the working class decide to send Socialist workingmen to the Legislature instead of capitalists, capitalist henchmen, or so-called labor representatives elected through the Democratic or Republican parties. Whether this is the reason why the Socialists have had to contend against the indifference or covert opposition of these legislative agents, it is not within our knowledge to say. We can only report the facts and let the workingmen interested judge for themselves.

Heretofore, for various reasons, Socialist representatives have not seen fit to report the added difficulties encountered through the inaction and action of the legislative committees or agents that represent the trade unions of Massachusetts at the Legislature. But at this time it may be well to say something about what has occurred along this line during the past week; it may serve to show trade unionists the folly of paying and supporting men to act as their representatives at the Legislature and Congress when they could much more easily, with the proper use of the ballot, send representatives who would not need instructors and teachers to accompany them in order that they might be able to differentiate capitalist legislation from working-class legislation.

During the past week committee hearings were held on a number of the Socialist members' bills — namely, Carey's bills for the adoption by the national government and by the several states of a uniform eight-hour law and providing for the appointment of a committee to urge such legislation upon the legislatures of other states; to prevent advertising for employees during a strike without mentioning that a strike is in progress; for eight hours for state and county employees; for raising the age-limit for employment in factories to sixteen years; for constitutional amendments providing for the initiative and referendum, and for the referendum on statutory legislation, and on MacCartney's bills providing for a state highway emergency fund for the relief of the unemployed, and for the repeal of the Sunday fishing and game laws.

Carey's Eight-Hour Bill.

The hearing on the three first mentioned of Carey's bills was held before the Committee on Labor on Tuesday. Besides Carey there was present Frank K. Foster, representing the state branch of the American Federation of Labor and the legislative agent of that body. The eight-hour bill came first. Carey spoke in its favor and showed that this was the most practical method of bringing about a universal eight-hour day in the United States. He knew that the trade unions had for years been trying to get an amendment to the national constitution empowering Congress to regulate the hours of labor, but this could not be adopted without being ratified by two-thirds of the states; even then, the agitation for an eight-hour bill would just begin, for the constitutional amendment only gave Congress power to regulate and it would be within the province of Congress to make the hours whatever it pleased, or to take no action whatever. Under this plan the legislatures of the various states could enact eight-hour laws without waiting for Congress and thus bring about the universal eight-hour day much more quickly, with more economy of time and money, than under the other plan. Mr. Foster followed; his support of the bill might be said to be in the nature of "damning it with faint praise." He said he was only partly in favor of local option in this matter, and suggested that Carey's bill interfered with that.

Carey replied that his bill in no wise interfered with the right of Massachusetts to enact an eight-hour law, that he had already introduced a bill providing for that, and his bill was an attempt to encourage the concerted action of all the states without interfering with the right of any state to enact legislation regulating hours within its borders. In answer to a question from one of the Committee, Foster said the St te Federation of Labor had not endorsed the bill, and he did not know what it would do.

Strike Advertisement Bill.

Next followed the bill on advertisements for workmen during strikes. Carey, in presenting his argument, showed, by citing numerous instances, how workingmen were deceived and drawn into strike localities in ignorance of existing conditions, and showed the necessity for such a measure. This bill has elicited much favorable comment among trade unionists, but to Carey's astonishment Mr. Foster assumed an attitude toward the bill more of opposition than approval. He said it was a good idea, but "it is a question in my mind whether it does not interfere with the 'right of contract'"—which evidently meant that employers had the right to hire men under any circumstances they chose, without regard to the conditions of employment. Mr. Foster thus gratuitiously supplied the committee with an objection to the bill. Really, a very consistent position for a trade unionist to occupy!

Child-Labor Bill.

Naturally, when the child-labor bill came up, Carey expected Foster to speak in its favor. Instead of that, this is what happened: Foster asked Carey if he thought the child-labor bill would come up. Carey replied that he didn't know; he would wait and see. Without saying anything further, Foster disappeared, leaving Carey the sole speaker in favor of the bill when the time arrived.

On Thursday the Committee on Constitutional Amendments gave a hearing on Carey's two bills providing for the initiative and referendum and for the referendum on statutory legislation. Previous to this hearing, a Senate bill providing for the initiative and referendum was also given a hearing by the Committee, and Foster spoke in its favor. Carey's two bills provide a complete scheme of initiative and referendum, while the Senate bill only partially covers the ground; nevertheless, Foster left again before Carey's bills came up. Those who appeared before the committee for Carey's bill were Henry D. Lloyd, who made a brilliant argument in its favor; J. E. Campion of Boston, and Levi Turner of Quincy.

Immediately after this hearing, Carey went before the Labor Committee to attend a hearing on his bill for eight hours for state and county employees. In this connection, it may be said that there are two bills before the Legislature dealing with this subject; the other bill was introduced by Representative Hagberg of Worcester. It provides that eight hours shall be a day's work for all laborers and other workmen employed by the commonwealth, while Carey's bill includes also the county employees and all those employed by contractors performing work for the state. It will be seen that Carey's bill is much the more important, because it is much more far-reaching. But this did not insure Mr. Foster appearing in its favor. He spoke, however, in favor of the Hagberg bill, which, by the way, Mr. Hagberg said he did not want confused with Carey's bill.

MacCartney's Measures.

On Tuesday the Committee on Games and Fishing held a hearing on the three bills of Representative MacCartney seeking to abolish the Sunday fishing and game laws, thus leaving it free for workingmen to hunt and fish on Sunday, the only day they have for recreation. MacCartney said that the present stringent laws originated from two classes: First, from the Sabbath protectionists; secondly, from the organized sportsmen's clubs, which were composed of the leisure class, and who denied the workingmen on Sunday the privilege enjoyed by themselves throughout the week. The bills were opposed by representatives of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society, of the W. C. T. U., the Sabbath Protective League, and similar organizations. As some people may wonder what the temperance societies had against the bill, it should be stated that its representatives were afraid it would encourage the consumption of liquor among the working people!

At the hearing of MacCartney's bill providing for a state highway emergency fund for the unemployed, none of the "labor representatives" nor Mr. Foster, the legislative agent, appeared in its support. This bill is not intended by MacCartney as a finality, but only as the beginning of a general plan for the employment of the unemployed in times of exceptional distress. The bill is only the entering wedge for more legislation of the same character, which accounts for the sum provided for $100,000) being so small.

Governor Crane on Tuesday last signed the bill changing the party name to "Socialist Party," and the name "Democratic Social" passed into history.

The Teamsters' Strike.

The hearing on the temporary injunction against the Teamsters' Union drags along in the Superior Court, with no sign of a decision being reached before the latter part of the week. Meanwhile, the union is tied up, unable to conduct the strike, and the Brine Company is increasing its force of teams every day. The company claims that 90 per cent. of its former business has been recovered and the strike has absolutely lost effect. The union leaders have had all they could do to prevent an outbreak among the other workmen who come in contact with the Brine teams and handle the goods hauled by the non-union men. On Wednesday the freight handlers employed in one of the N. Y., N. H. & H. freight houses refused to go on the Brine days, and the brewery workmen refused to load the Brine wagons with beer. It was only by strenuous efforts that these men were persuaded to return to work and the beginning of a gigantic strike thus averted. Everything seems to depend upon the court decision, and pending that no one can conjecture what will grow out of the present situation.

As reported last week, Mr. Ralph Easley of the Industrial Peace Commission, obeying the orders of his superior, Mr. Hanna, came to Boston; and after being a conspicuous figure in the press for two or three days and a dignified investigator of the trouble, he left town again, leaving the information that no further action should be taken until the court decision was announced. Thus again does the company gain more time, and the teamsters are left in a state of suspended animation. Just what will happen if the court decision is unfavorable to the strikers nobody knows, but it is very likely that the Industrial Peace Commission may have something to do, if it is really seeking "to establish peace between Labor and Capital."

A Harmonious Caucus.

The Socialist Party in the Legislature held a caucus during the week. The Socialist members considered it necessary, in view of the circumstances obtaining at the present time. It came about in this way: The Democratic members held a caucus to "get together" on legislative matters, and as usual came so close together that a free fight was narrowly prevented. The next day the Republican members held a caucus, also for the purpose of "getting together;" and this ended by their getting farther apart, and only adjournment prevented unpleasant revelations. The Socialist members decided to caucus also, and set the others an example. They thereupon notified the sergeant-at-arms, who performed his customary duty by solemnly announcing, after Thursday's session, that the members of the Socialist Party would hold their caucus in the large room used for that purpose. The announcement had the effect of making some of the other members look sheepish and others, who saw the joke, to laugh outright.

The caucus was held. MacCartney was elected chairman and Carey secretary. After roll call, the caucus went into grave consideration of weighty matters of state. An agreement was reached without much difficulty and after reaffirming belief in the Socialist principles, the caucus adjourned, the two members thereof leaving the caucus arm in arm, the only united party in the Massachusetts Legislature.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

Boston, Feb. 8, 1902.

AN "IMPARTIAL" COURT.

Speaking of the Arbitration Committee of the Civic Federation, the "Plumbers' Journal," in general a very conservative trade-union paper, says:

"What will interest trade unionists most is the personnel of the different committees and a brief study of the men and the interests they represent may prove beneficial some time in the future.

"It is a curious as well as a prominent fact that the representatives of Capital are with probably one exception extremists in their views. The one exception is a very much misunderstood man, and while he has been accused of many crimes against organized labor, the fact remains that he is the only man in the coterie that has ever been friendly to trade unions. That man is Marcus A. Hanna.

"Of the labor representatives little is to be said, since they are and have been for years familiar figures to every one interested in the labor movement of America.

"Against the twelve radicals on the capitalistic side of the question we have twelve undoubted conservatives. These later have a keen perception of right and wrong and have the courage to express their convictions. In this respect we have gotten a trifle the worst of it, for we have against our twelve men, who will denounce a hastily entered into or ill-advised strike at least eleven men who will declare every strike wrong and out of joint, no matter how worthy the cause may have been to precipitate it.

"As for the neutrals, it is to be greatly feared that we are up against it. Take Bishop Potter, Archbishop Ireland, and Franklin McVeigh out of the committee and substitute three others and it would make a very respectable committee to represent capital itself."

For us, we hardly see why even these three exceptions should be made.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Special meeting of General Committee will be held on Saturday, Feb. 15, 8 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum. Delegates are urgently requested to attend.

BROOKLYN LABOR LYCEUM ASSOCIATION.

Public lecture under the auspices of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Association on Sunday, Feb. 16, at 3 o'clock p. m., at the Turnhall of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, 949-953 Willoughby avenue. Comrade Dr. C. L. Furman will lecture on the subject: "Our King and Our Country." All workingmen and friends of labor cordially invited. Admission free.

—"Railroading in the United States" will be a good thing to give to street car men and "El" employees. Keep a few in your pocket.

THAT DAILY IS COMING.

The Movement Is Formally Launched at Last Saturday's General Meeting.

Enthusiasm and Determination to Win Manifested at Brevoort Hall—Organization Discussed and Estimates Presented—$50,000 Must Be Raised Before Paper Is Started—Fund Is Already Started.

Last Saturday's meeting of Socialists of New York and vicinity, held in Brevoort Hall, to consider the question of starting a Socialist daily paper in the English language, was well attended and full of enthusiasm. Organizer Gerber called the meeting to order at 8:15 p. m. and introduced Benjamin Hanford as temporary Chairman. On motion Hanford was made permanent Chairman and Henry Slobodin Secretary. Hanford briefly stated that the purpose of the meeting was to consider, not the desirability of an English daily, for on that all were agreed, but the timeliness and practicability of a movement for that end. He explained that several informal conferences had been held, and that committees on organization and on estimates had been chosen, which would now report.

Report on Organization.

Morris Hillquit made the report on organization. In introducing the subject he declared that it had now become evident that a da ily paper was, not only desirable, but absolutely necessary. Such a paper would do more for the propaganda of Socialism than all our other work combined and would make all our other forms of work easier and more effective. He explained the different methods of organization that might be considered, pointing out that the aim must be to enlist the interest and co-operation of the largest possible number of persons and, at the same time, to make it absolutely sure that the control of the paper should never pass from the hands of the Social Democratic Party. He advised that a committee be here elected, consisting of trusted party members, to effect the organization of a publishing association and to report and turn over the result of their work at a later general meeting. He closed with an emphatic expression of his belief in the practicability of the movement at the present time, which was greeted with warm applause.

Plan of the Paper.

Alexander Jonas then made a report on the estimated expenses of the proposed paper. He explained that in order to succeed the paper must give the news of the day fully, fairly, and promptly. It must especially present the news of the labor movement and in its editorial policy must give uncompromising support to the cause of Socialism and to the working class in all its struggles. Such a paper, with eight pages daily and sixteen or twenty on Sunday, would be self-supporting as soon as it reached a circulation of 30,00. This, he believed, could be secured within a very short time after the first number appeared. For the foundation of such a paper, he considered a fund of $25,000 sufficient.

In the discussion there was expressed an almost unanimous opinion that the mark should be set at $50,000, and that this sum could certainly be raised.

Job Harriman moved that a committee of fifteen members be elected to act as incorporators of the publishing association and to report at a similar meeting to be called in the near future. On this motion, a discussion of the whole matter took place, which lasted till 11 o'clock.

Harriman showed that up to the present time the German comrades had formed the backbone of the movement. Their strength, their perseverance, their intelligent class-consciousness, which had sustained the party through many trying crises, were due chiefly to the work of the "Volkszeitung." In order to build up a similar movement, with a much wider field, among the English speaking workingmen, we must have an English daily at the earliest possible date.

Courage Always Wins.

Slobodin was of the opinion that the question was, not whether we could afford to undertake this work, but whether we could afford to neglect it. In the Socialist movement especially, we should consider difficulties only in order to overcome them. We could do what we resolved to do. Past experience had shown that courage and enthusiasm and determination to succeed always ensured success. Our energy would increase with the magnitude of the task set before us. Phillips spoke strongly in the same strain.

Malkiel recognized the difficulties in the way, but believed the time had come for the successful establishment of a daily, in spite of all difficulties. Lissauer, explaining that he was not given to being over-sanguine, was decidedly of the opinion that the movement was timely and would be crowned with success.

After many others had spoken, Hillquit closed the debate with the declaration that we should have in our vocabularly no such word as "impossible," and Harriman's motion was carried with great enthusiasm and without a dissenting vote.

Organization Committee.

It was then decided to elect on the Committee on Organization and Incorporation seven comrades from Manhattan, two from the Bronx, three from Brooklyn, and three from New Jersey, Richmond and Queens not being represented in the meeting. Nominations were made and the following were finally elected: H. L. Slobodin, M. Hillquit, Alexander Jonas, Julius Halpern, Job Harriman, L. D. Abbott, I. Phillips, Ernest Sprenger, F. Hohmann, B. Feigenbaum, Benjamin Hanford, Peter E. Burrowes, Chas. Ufert, Fred. McIntosh, and Jules Magnette.

Blank pledges were distributed in the meeting to be filled out and returned either then or at a later time. Comparatively few were turned in meeting, but the amounts pledges aggregated $1,588. [illegible] of the meeting throughout, enthusiasm, not ignoring [illegible] in the way, but resolved to them.

THE OFFICE SLAVE.

The hunch-backed bookkeeper, the sore-eyed clerk, the dyspeptic accountant, in short the office slave, what a pitiable sight to the beholder. And yet this victim of capitalistic greed looks down with a haughty shrug upon what he supposes to be his less fortunate fellow-being, the ordinary, vulgar workingman. He belongs to no union, in fact he despises any organized effort to increase his meagre salary. Perish the thought! Any man who works hard and indefatigably for his employer will be appreciated and furthermore any employe of a bank or commercial house can find employment if he should find himself on the outside, because some director's protege or relative of the firm stepped in and over him. Proudly the office-slave lifts his head as a sovereign American citizen, and with quivering hand he signs an application for a position in the National Bank of Commerce in this city. Of course he is too blind to see the trap laid for him, too callous to feel the rope which such an application places around his neck. Some of the questions contained in this application are:

Are you single, married or a widower?

Do you own or rent the house in which you live, or do you board or live with your parents.

How many persons in all are dependent on you for support?

Have you any income other than your salary?

If single a small salary will be offered with promise of advancement, which he will perhaps never see. If married, a small salary will be offered because a married man will grasp at anything for the sake of his family. If he is fortunate enough to have a little home the small salary will be deemed sufficient. If he pays rent he may move to cheaper quarters with a small salary. If many persons depend upon him for a living he will not dare to throw up his position even though he be forced to work far into the night; he will gladly accept the small salary. If he lives with his parents why then should he expect a large salary? And if he should have an income, why then of course a large salary is out of the question. Yes, the clerk is indeed a big thing on this earth.

FREDERICK KRAFFT.

SOCIALISTS IN THE DUBLIN ELECTION.

In Spite of Intimidation by Priests, Irish Socialist Republican Party Casts a Good Vote.

Our comrades of the Irish Socialist Republican Party made a very good showing in the recent municipal election in Dublin. In the North City Ward, Stewart, Socialist candidate for Alderman, had 267 votes, against 751 for Hennessy, Home Ruler; and McLaughlin, Socialist candidate for Councillor, had 371, against 530 for White, Home Ruler, and 161 for Allen, the House Owners' candidate. In the Wood Quay Ward, Comrade Connolly received 431 votes, against 1,424 for McCall, Home Ruler, and 191 for Beardwood, House Owners'.

The Socialist Republican Party stands for Irish independence as vigorously as the Home Rule Party; but it insists that mere political independence would be of little value to the mass of the Irish people unless it meant the rule of the working class under democratic institutions. In a word, instead of demanding simply independence for Ireland, the S. R. P. demands, as its name indicates, the establishment of an independent Socialist Republic in Ireland. It makes no choice between English landlords and capitalists and Irish landlords and capitalists, but aims to overthrow both.

The Dublin correspondent of London "Justice" writes in regard to the late election:

"The Catholic priests took the field against Comrade Connolly, and announced that no Catholic could vote for him, declaring that any man or woman who voted for Connolly would no longer be recognized by the Church. The outgoing councillor also managed to have the polling booth held in a school room attached to the Catholic chapel, and thus brought all the voters directly under the eye of the priest while going to vote. The Dublin comrades, therefore, think that to get 431 voters to vote for a Socialist after being told that they would go to hell if they did so, is an achievement to be point of."

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
500 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

"Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

The attention of our readers is called to the fact that the publication of a letter in our "Correspondence" column does not at all imply our endorsement of the writer's views. We try, so far as space and other conditions will allow, to give the widest latitude for the expression of individual opinion in that department. We find it necessary, however, to request our correspondents to be brief, and to say that communications which are otherwise quite admissible and even desirable may often be rejected for no other reason than excessive length.

[illegible]alters may be employed by the [illegible]ory Reception Committee." [illegible] of the Waiters' Union, the [illegible]ons Section of the C. F. U. [illegible]nted delegates to wait upon [illegible] committee and request them not to hire scabs. The whole affair is such a scabby one that in order to complete the harmony it is perfectly natural that scab waiters should be secured.

One of the Brooklyn school buildings is in such imminent danger of collapsing that parents have been compelled to keep their children at home. If the good "reformers" were a little less absorbed in preparations for the grand jamboree in honor of Prince Henry, perhaps they could get time to think of providing for the education of the children.

ONLY A QUESTION OF TIME.

Since last Saturday night's meeting, it is no longer a question whether we shall have a daily Socialist paper in the English language in this city, but only a question of how soon we can have it. That will depend on the energy and devotion of our comrades and sympathizers here and throughout the country, but especially in New York City and the vicinity.

No one can doubt the value of such a paper. It is proven, on the one hand, by the service which the "New Yorker Volkszeitung" has done and is still doing among the German-speaking workingmen. The American-born Socialists have to admit that even yet their German comrades form the backbone of the movement. Although the German immigration is falling off and the younger generation are becoming Americanized, so that the field of German propaganda grows but slowly or even remains fixed, it is a fact that on that element still depends to a quite disproportionate extent the numerical strength, the financial support, and, above all, the moral stability of our party, especially in the states of New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. The German-speaking trade unionists of New York know the service that the "Volkszeitung" has done them and they support it with splendid devotion; and, on the other hand, while it has helped them in all their battles, it has educated them and disciplined them for the great class war which can end only when capitalism is overthrown. All that the "Volkszeitung" is doing for this comparatively small element of the working-class population an English daily could do in the much larger field of the native American labor movement.

Again, the need of such a paper is proven by the injury which is yearly and daily done, both to the Socialist political movement and to the trade unions, by the misrepresentations or the studied silence of the capitalist press. What the "Sun" is doing for the interest of the capitalist class, that our paper can do for the interest of Labor. Let us hasten the day when this possibility shall be realized.

We shall not act rashly. That is decided. We shall not launch the venture until its success is assured—that is, until we are in a position to start a real newspaper, deserving of support, and start it solely upon our own resources. To do that, $50,000 is needed—not $50,000 pledged, but $50,000 in cold cash. Considering the greatness of the cause, that ought not to be hard to raise. Let us see how quickly it can be done.

To each regular or casual reader of this paper, we say: This is your concern. You can help and you ought to help, because it is for the service of our class. You can give something—not much, perhaps; but every dollar will count. Do not wait to see what others will give. Remember that your donation will encourage others, that ten dollars given now will do more good than the intention to give $20 next year.

As soon as the first steps of organization are completed a general subscription will be opened in the party press. Swell that list as rapidly as you can, and help to spread the news of our plans and induce others to join in the work.

If we can have a daily to fight our next campaign it will be much better than to have it only in time for the campaign of 1903. It is for you to say when it shall be.

"Prince will honor Lincoln." Such is the headline which graced the capitalist papers last Tuesday. If it not a striking commentary on the decay of democracy and the old free spirit of America that we can think of the signer of the Emancipation Proclamation as being honored when this royal brigand, representative of absolutism, militarism, and oppression, condescends to lay a wreath on his tomb, Lincoln would not be proud of America if he were living to-day. But Teddy is proud and so are all the dollar aristocrats and dollar politicians who will have a chance to bow before His Highness. Are you proud, workingmen?

THE "COMMON INTEREST" OF WORKERS AND CAPITALISTS.

The Haverhill "Gazette" offers a reply to The Worker's challenge, which was given in the following words:

"We now call on the Gazette to inform us definitely, by plain and concrete illustration, of one fundamental point, however small, in which the employer, as employer, and the employees, as employees, have a common interest. When the Gazette does that, we shall have a basis for discussing the possibility of the conditions it suggests."

In reply to this, the "Gazette" says:

"In the belief that our Socialistic friend is actually seeking the light, and trusting that when it shines upon his path we shall have the pleasure of his company, the suggestion is made that arbitration by means of official boards, or by the efforts of peace-advocating labor unions, such as our own Shoe Workers' Union for instance, have often found this common interest. It exists in business prosperity, in continuity of employment, in assurance of freedom from strike or lockout or other interference with the regular course of production, even in the wage question itself, although it is less often recognized in the latter. And because this common interest is founded not alone on moral grounds, but has underneath it the support of practical common sense of material welfare, any agency which presents it to the attention of employer or employee is doing a service to the community, is a present means of relief, rather than a vision of the future. For the present the 'Gazette' is not questioning the reliability or the availability of the cure which the Socialist physician prescribes for this industrial disease. It merely contends that while Socialism clings to its prescription as the only 'cure,' it is making a grievous mistake both for the welfare of the body politic and for its own reputation as a practitioner that it does not accept and make use of such remedies as will allay the pain temporarily and relieve suffering when opportunity offers, while it is preparing its own dose for the patient, or possibly is preparing the patient for the dose."

Of course, the "Gazette" knows that in our criticism of the "Peace Conference" we have never opposed the holding of conferences between employers and employees over questions in dispute. That is the universal policy of the unions. For years they have been following that policy, and it was always the employers who said, "We have nothing to arbitrate; we cannot receive committees; we deal only with employees as individuals."

Senator Hanna and his friends and President Gompers and his friends are trying very hard to make it appear that they have originated the idea of conferences between employers and employees; but all workmen know that it is not true.

Workmen always try to avoid strikes, to win their demands without battle. In this they do quite right. But they know and we know that it is only by being prepared for battle that they have any chance to win without battle. Enemies do well to confer before fighting. But the party which is least prepared to fight, the party which is least conscious of enmity and most ready to be cajoled by a pretense of friendship, is the party which will get least out of the conference.

We asked the "Gazette" to tell us of one point in which workingmen as such and capitalists as such have a common interest, not to tell us of one point in which they are opposed and about which they can, as antagonists, hold diplomatic conferences in order to avoid open battle. In reply, the "Gazette" tells us that "continuity of employment" is such a point of common interest.

There is much to be said on this question. Under certain conditions, which conditions are never permanent, the point which the "Gazette" has cited is, within certain limits, a point of common interest. Of those conditions and those limits we shall speak somewhat fully next week.

For the present, we protest against a wanton misinterpretation of our position. We should be wrong if we argued that unions ought not to try to get grievances redressed or demands granted without strikes; but we claim nothing of the sort.

What we do claim is this: That the capitalists as such and the workingmen as such are natural enemies; that, while their quarrels may be compromised, their interests cannot be reconciled—which is a very important and, we think, a very clear distinction; and that it is only by rejecting all pretense of friendship and insisting on treating with the capitalists as an enemy—under armed truce, so to speak—that the workingmen can gain anything for themselves.

That position has not been controverted and we hold to it.

The New York "Times" thinks that "every American must feel a thrill of patriotic pride in reading the list of gifts and benefactions for public purposes made in the United States during 1901." We confess, notwithstanding a somewhat extended line of American ancestors, that we have been able to read the list without a thrill. We have come nearer to feeling a blush of shame that the people of this country should be in a position to be thus patronized and coddled by a coterie of millionaires—that the people should have to depend on private "benefactions" for certain important services, and that these industrial princes should be thus able to give and to take away. Rome in Caesar's century saw even greater annual lists of gifts and benefactions, relatively to the conditions of the age. But the thoughtful Romans of that day were not thrilled with pride at the spectacle.

Our Board of Education is preparing to take Prince Henry around to several of the public schools, to have selected students deliver addresses of welcome to him, and to have the student body sing songs in his honor. In all the ridiculous spectacle that the American people, through their chosen representatives, are making of themselves, there is no phase quite so disgusting as this. We used to be proud of our schools. We counted them the basis of our free institutions, which put us so far above the effete monarchies of Europe. We have now so far lost confidence in those same free institutions that we are willing to prostitute even the public schools for the entertainment of representatives of royalty. All this is perfectly natural and proper, so far as our dollar aristocrats are concerned, but the workingmen, who allow that dollar aristocracy to rule, who complacently put its nominees in office, year after year, have reason to blush for the deeds that are done in their name. The man who has voted the Socialist ticket is the only one who can say, with a clear conscience, that he has no share in the whole disgraceful business.

ELBERT HUBBARD FALLS IN LINE.

Elbert Hubbard, author of "The Message to Garcia," which the railroad corporations distributed by the thousand among their wage-slaves in order to inculcate proper ideals of servility, in a lucid interval penned the following, which appeared in the "Philistine" for January:

"Trusts are good things, because they are economizers of energy. They cut off waste, increase production and make panic impossible. The trusts have come in spite of the men who think they originated them, and in spite of the reformers who turned conservatives and opposed them. The next move of evolution will be Socialism. Socialism means the operation of all industries by the people and for the people. Socialism is co-operation instead of competition. Competition has been so general that economists mistook it for a law of nature, when it was only an incident. Competition is no more a law of nature than is hate. Hate was once so thoroughly believed in that we gave it a personality and called it the Devil. The trusts are getting things ready for Socialism. Humanity is growing in intellect, in patience, in kindness, in love. And when the time is ripe the people will step in and take peaceful possession of their own."

There is no likelihood that the corporations will force the above views on their employees—Oh, no. It is not the kind of a "message" they like.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

"What's all the world to a man, when his wife is a widow?" is but another way of saying: "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you." This may be understood by adding the clause, "for then your funeral procession is in progress, and therefore all men speak well of you."

It is the privilege of all of us to be spoken well of at least that once. Yet even that privilege the moralizers must needs dash their pessimism into by calling it woe. They say it is only by courtesy and during the funeral that these kind words are said of us; and that the woeful part of the occasion is in the inability of the victim to rise and defend himself from such mendacity and from some of the persons uttering it.

We are to have a royal cortege here in New York very soon, headed by a prince from Germany. A brilliant army of German courtiers will be on a solemn visit to our democracy, and they will all speak well of us—and that's the woeful part of it. Prince Henry, morally speaking, comes as a note of admiration to the funeral of a democracy which died by over-indulgence in gilt-edged bonds.

Woe unto you when Prince Henry and his men speak well of you, and you do not sit down and search your life to find out what evil you have done to win their approval.

No one feature of our public press strikes a visitor so comical as the manner in which our crude newspaper writers daub themselves (that is America) all over with the oil of gladness whenever some savage or other prince (if there be others) praises them. We have been sinning hard for such praise and got it. Oh, that Socialists would get to work and lose a lot of it!

A government official, Dr. Wiley, who represents the present administration's interest in the beet sugar of the United States as against the liberty and cane sugar of Cuba, speaks with clearness on the law of economic ascendency thus: "A country that begs alms cannot be said to be in the best condition for free government." And this saying applies to all classes as well as to all countries. Does Labor still beg? If it not yet ready for freedom.

The Mayor of Ogden, in Utah, wants to set the firemen there to work between blazes at the raising of potatoes for sale, the proceeds to be turned into the city treasury—that is, for the reduction of city taxes. This simple concrete case illustrates how hard it is to be right in a wrong city and a wrong state. If Ogden were a city owned by its inhabitants, it would be better to have the firemen raising potatoes than playing drafts; but as Ogden is owned only by a few of its inhabitants, it may not be so right to have the other fellows raise taxes for them under the name of potatoes.

The newspaper editors, whose function it is to form public opinion according to order, are professionally a perplexed fraternity; a chronic condition of mind which they have assumed for the benefit of their readers. That is why they were so much at a loss to understand the opposition of the clergy to Gov. Odell's project for more state control over asylums. Why indeed should they not be? When the fool people find out that the churchman does not and will not relieve the poor, and cannot if he would, one of the most profitable fictions of the church will be taken away.

No modern state can afford to vex the churchman, because the order of religious progress is this: First, the people find a religion; Second, the religion finds and hires its priest; Third, the priest finds a market for the religion and sells and delivers it, with the people wrapped inside. This process can never be avoided so long as men deem it possible for slaves and masters to have the same religion. It is not possible. And this is the crux of all the controversies we have as to Christian Socialism.

Capitalism is flourishing. While France is afflicted with a shortness of babies and is now considering methods of inducing the common people to increase and multiply themselves for exploitation according to the Scriptures, England is afflicted with a shortness of men, and is reducing the standard measurement for her soldiers to five feet naught. The human race is succumbing physically to the perpetual economic war of the labor-mongers and cannot supply victims to any other battlefields. This fact is worth a hundred Hague conventions as a guarantee that gunpowder is dying.

The system of private government which now dominates man's struggle for society is an impossible thing to survive; and even addition to its efficiency is but another toll to its passing bell. The Bureau of Statistics (from which department we are soon to have a scandal) affords an example of this impossibility. If the nation was administering its affairs collectively for the whole of the people, correct statistics would be the most luminous of our means of administration and guidance; but under capitalism these lights are sold to the profit pirates who hang around the capitol, and instead of being used to guide the ship to port lure only to the rocks and reefs of the speculators.

If we could only make it a felony to do anything calculated to put a restraint upon the output, what a millenium would be established for the capitalist class; as long as the market lasts. The English unions are now having such a blessed brotherly conference time with their employers, looking forward to the restoration of the foreign markets to John Bull. But to do this the unions are asked "not to restraint the output." That means "you must not strike." But if the brother capitalist wishes to restrict output by reductions or lockouts, how then! That will be a put out without restriction.

Did it ever make you sick to read Tillman's tilts about liberty with some of the New England senators; and the tilts of the imperialist senators with Tillman about liberty? These men are like a brood of blind kittens wriggling to their unsavory doom in a cesspool. Hope, there is none, nor sight nor sense and yet they squeak and flop for liberty. Oh, shove them down!

How much the anarchy scare fakirs are really afraid of explosive anarchists may be inferred from the quantities of dynamite daily and freely carted in by them through the city; and what a brazen hypocrisy therefore are the anti-anarchist laws now pending in our congresses, based upon our terror of the howling, red eyed and the long-haired man. One professional, being interviewed concerning the Rapid Transit tunnel explosion, and who was properly schooled, says, cautiously: "A certain quantity leaves Jersey at a point which it is not necessary to name," etc., etc. But another official not so posted in fakery gives the quantity of stuff, time of delivery and the place; and yet New York is here unto this day.

A howl is being raised in the high places of France on account of the number of infants that are dying, but more on account of the numbers that are not being born. This latter is a problem concerning which the Yankee interrogation is quite relevant. "What are you going to do about it?" If the people will not breed slaves enough, gentlemen, we must compel them. The present birth rate will not support our two armies, the sword army and the wage army, and what are we going to do about it?

A queer thing about the immigrant Roumanian Jews now calling public attention to themselves as a phenomenon consisting of a number of men, in New York, who are not able to get work, is that other queer thing of the Hirsch fund society people who declare that no one who applies to them need be without work. Here are two discoveries which please make a note of. There are in New York some people who cannot get work. There is a society in New York which can find work for those who apply! eheu!

Our Roumanian fellow sufferers say that they left home because of religious persecution and came here to be free. What can the people who prosecute religiously do to show persecution? How does a man discover that he is persecuted? He gets ostracised at last, and cast but from social and business privileges; in fact he gets out of work; therefore he is persecuted, and feels that he is not in a free country, and so comes to America. How, then, being in America, is a man free who commences life already thus ostracised, out of society and out of business and out of work. The sum total of all persecution and slavery is the power that thrusts you out of work. Who would go to the trouble of persecuting a man beyond that?

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

Kiyoshi Kawakami writes in the February number of the "International Socialist Review" upon the rise and progress of Socialism in Japan, where the movement has now reached very respectable proportions, growing with the industrial development of the country. From the opposite side of the world Enrico Ferri writes on the "Program and Tactics of the Italian Socialist Party," a subject just now of especial interest. Mother Jones' article on "Coal Miners in the Old Dominion," Ellen Starr's on "The Renaissance of Handicraft," S.G. Hobson's on "Boodle and Cant," A. M. Simons' on "American Railroads and Their Employees," and Ernest Untermann's on "Socialists in the Capitalist Press" all treat interestingly of different phases of the great living question of the day.

The publishers take occasion to deny a malicious report which has been spread to the effect that the "Review" is upon the point of death. They assure us that, while it is not overburdened with riches, it has every assurance of a long and useful life.

"The World's Work" for February is interesting and valuable as usual, especially as the most complete contemporaneous record of capitalist progress written from the capitalist side in this country. Among the articles to which we would direct the attention of our readers are those of M. G. Cunniff on "Increasing Railroad Consolidation" (with map), Andrew Goodrich on "Agriculture under Cloth," Wm. McAndrew's "Plain Words on Teachers' Wages," and Geo. Iles on wireless telegraphy.

The Standard Publishing Company of Terre Haute, Ind., has issued a pamphlet by Rev. T. McGrady, entitled "A Voice from England," being a reply to the attack on Socialism perpetarated by Father Rickaby. The Socialist Literature Company of New York this week issues Father McGrady's "The Clerical Capitalist." We shall notice the ntogether at an early date. Both will be useful especially among Catholic workingmen. "A Voice from England" is sold at 10 cents a copy and "The Clerical Capitalist" at 5 cents.

WORKINGMEN IN POLITICS.

Only by Taking Part in Politics on the Basis of Their Class Interests Can the Workers Improve Their Conditions.

(We reprint from "The Union Label" the following article by our comrade, Geo. G. Cutting of the Boston Typographical Union, which was written last fall, but is still timely.)

Labor Day, the first of the twentieth century, has passed away and when we look backward and think of the sacrifices of the past and then forward to prospects of the future, we might with profit ask ourselves the question: "How are we to emancipate ourselves from the slavery of the present economic conditions?" As space is limited, I shall devote my attention to the higher expression of the working class movement; those who have associated themselves together into economic trade unions, and are slowly but surely learning that the power of their masters lies in their control of government machinery and the ballot. It does not take a prophet to prellict that ere five years have passed the trade unions of this country, and all other countries as well, will enter the political arena as a class-conscious political organization. Ten years ago there did not exist a strictly working class party—the workingmen were taking the choice of the two old parties which had existed for the past forty years, but the economic conditions demanded a new party and that party was born. The Socialist Party is the only party in the political field that represents "union politics," or the political expression of trade unionism on a higher plane than trade unionism itself. In imperial countries the workers are wresting from the old-time powers their political rights and forcing on them social reforms. Even in New Zealand and New South Wales the workers have been obliged to organize into trade unions and nominate and elect workingmen's candidates in order to get a living proportion of the produce of their labor; in fact, all concessions which the workers have succeeded in getting in the above-mentioned countries have been forced by workingmen's political movements.

In all domains the same thoughts are being expressed—in the paintings of artists, in the songs of the poets, in scientific works, in the magazines, newspapers, and works of fiction, some form of Socialism is advocated or criticis ed—it is now filtering into the brains of the thinkers, and crystallizes into purposes, and conquers hearts. The only real vital force in the trade union movement to-day is the Socialistic trend; those who would keep the union out of politics are reactionary and would keep the union from meeting the capitalists with their effective weapons. The struggle of the working class of the twentieth century has begun. What part are you to take, fellow workers, in this great struggle? Are you to act the reactionary and say, "No politics in the union?" I sincerely hope you will see your class interests are not to be subserved by voting either the Democratic or Republican tickets. It makes no difference whether a governor of a state is a Republican or a Democrat, he calls out the troops to shoot you down when you go on strike. Have you ever observed that the Democratic as well as the Republican judge issues injunctions, which deprive you of rights which the constitution of the United States guarantees you? Do you believe that the great army of unemployed now numbering 3,750,000 will ever be decreased by voting the old party tickets?

Let us see what the workers of other countries are doing for themselves. In Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, Holland, Norway-Sweden, Denmark, Austria, Canada, and Great Britain, the trade unions have ceased to support the old reactionary parties and are either nominating independent candidates or supporting the candidates of the Social Democratic Party, which has during the past year established international headquarters in Belgium.

The trade unionists of this country might profit by the action of the trade unionists of the city of Marseilles, France. A year ago they elected as mayor a Socialist, who was a member of the Dock Laborers' Union, together with a majority of the city council. About three months ago the dock laborers had a grievance against their masters, and being unable to arrive at a settlement they struck, and, as usual, the masters appealed to the mayor to call out the military, which, of course, he refused to do, but instead called a meeting of the city council and voted to appropriate from the city treasury 100,000 francs to assist the workers. The masters seeing they had not the political power to coerce their workingmen, made terms with the unions.

The Social Democratic Party of Belgium has issued a manifesto declaring that the government must grant universal suffrage or face a revolution, and great demonstrations are now taking place. It is safe to predict they will be victorious.

The trade unionists of this country and nearly every other country are barely holding their own, as the proportion of the value of their product is constantly growing less, the capitalist continuing to take a larger share of the wealth created. This can be verified by the report of the committee on manufactures of the state of Massachusetts. Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor, says in his report that labor is paid 17.8 per cent. in wages of each dollar's worth of value created. Now the question comes, how are you to increase your share? Can you do it by adding fifty cents a day to your wages? I think you can readily see that this increase would at once be added to the price of the goods sold, thereby laborers as a class would not be benefited, although a few individuals might make a temporary gain. The only great reform trade unions have succeeded in accomplishing is the shortening of the hours of labor, and this alone repays for the efforts made. And besides the trade unions have prevented the workers from becoming abject slaves.

The day is not far distant when the trade unionists of the world will unite in a grand world-wide political party and fight the battles on the political and economic fields.

The preamble of the Cleveland Central Labor Union reads as follows:

"We regard it a sacred duty of every honorable laboring man to sever his affiliations with all political parties of the capitalists and to devote his energy and attention to the organization of his trade and labor union and the concentration of all unions into one solid body for the purpose of assisting each other in all struggles—political and industrial—to resist every attempt of the ruling classes directed against our liberties, and to extend our fraternal hand to the workers of our land and all other nations of the globe that struggle for the same independence."

In Denmark they have 76,800 out of the 100,300 male laborers organized on this platform, and, although they have not elected a majority or the members of their parliament, they are getting more reform laws than the workingmen of the United States.

STATE CAPITALISM.

Our Fabian friends and others who so glibly talk of our narrowness, our exclusiveness, and who tell us that there is more done for Socialism in getting a single branch of industry under State control than in ten years of our propaganda, may be commended to the recent action of the Italian Government towards the employees on certain of the State railroads. We have already pointed out the snare and the delusion which State Socialism has turned out in that promised land of the Fabian and his congeners, the colony of New Zealand. But the way in which it is made to work in Italy shows it in the light of a very "two-edged" weapon indeed. The employees on the railways referred to have, it seems, lately threatened to come out on strike if certain conditions as to wages and hours were not complied with. The only answer of their employers, the Italian Government, was the definite counter-threat of a measure of which we have heard before, viz., to place the whole railway service under military jurisdiction, by which any refusal or attempted refusal to work would be punished as mutiny by martial law. It is quite clear that every extension of the power of a modern capitalist state along industrial lines, while it undoubtedly, just as may also be said of the trusts, prepares the way economically for the future Socialist organization of ludustry, yet nevertheless bears with it also very considerable immediate danger to democratic interests. Every increase of power, be it political, administrative or industrial, to the modern class state means in most cases so much the more immediate power to the elbow of reaction. It cannot be too strongly insisted upon that the centralization of industrial processes in the hands of the class state, either national or municipal, is never Social-Democracy, and very often is not even a shoeing-horn to Social-Democracy.—London Justice.

NEW ZEALAND "SOCIALISM."

At this time New Zealand has a population of something under 800,000 all told. Quite a little people. To hear them talk, and to hear others talk for them, any one would imagine that this out-of-the-way collection of a few hundred thousand agriculturists and miners was setting the pace for Socialism all over the planet. And not for Socialism alone. They must take the lead on "Imperialism," forsooth, too. If anybody dares now to flout the high-minded, noble, chivalrous, far-seeing, diplomatic personage who does us the honor to be our colonial secretary, this Lilliputian set of swashbucklers at the back of, beyond will know the reason why. The whole thing is too silly to discuss seriously. The man Seddon, who has constituted himself the mouthpiece of this absurd colonial "blow," has simply made an ass of himself. Just imagine New Zealand setting itself up to be somebody in these days of huge combinations!

But nearly the entire capitalist press in London has taken the whole thing most solemnly. The fact that in all probability fully twenty times the population of New Zealand in the United Kingdom have been opposed to this infamous war in South Africa from the first, and are opposed to it now, counts for nothing. We are merely "a minority." But when a gasbag like Seddon blows himself off on the other side of the world on behalf of what would count here as a fairly big city, where probably also many do not agree with him, then that is really important.—H. M. Hyndman, in London Justice.

"INALIENABLE RIGHTS."

It might be expected of course that the capitalist press would "denounce" the attempt of the policemen to organize in their own interests, but nevertheless these denunciations now and then contain wholesome truth that not only policemen but all other wage workers would do well to ponder over. For instance the "Tribune" takes occasion to puncture the "inalienable right" bubble of policemen to organize, by stating that while such rights may exist men have to surrender them under certain circumstances. The policeman waives every one of them, says the "Tribune," and before he can exercise any of them he must first exercise the inalienable right of giving up his job. Right you are Mr. Tribune! Indubitably and inalienably right! And when the slaves know that the "certain circumstances" alluded to are the conditions which capitalism imposes on society, and that they are universal "circumstances" for all who must sell their labor power for bread, they will quit mouthing about "inalienable rights," and prepare to exercise their POWER instead.—Workers' Call.

BROTHERHOOD.

The crest and crowning of all good,
Life's final star is Brotherhood;
For it will bring again to earth
Her long-lost Power and Might,
Will send new light on every face,
A kingly power upon the race.
Come, clear the way, then, clear the way:
Blind kings and creeds have had their day.
Break the dead fetters from the path,
Our hope is in the aftermath.
Our hope is in heroic men,
Star led, to build the world again.
—Edwin Markham.

—No, my son, the Socialists do not want to "divide up all the wealth of the world." They desire to stop the "dividing."—W. S. Waudby, in Typographical Journal.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries

(and OTHERS)

Saginaw Exponent.

But under the present capitalist system, government ownership of railroads would inure to capitalists almost exclusively, and the wages of the men who do the actual work of transporting wealth to market would be the last to raise, while the capitalist representatives in Congress would at once see that their masters got all the benefits that would accrue therefrom.

A recent writer on trusts and their domination of government, says that "if the trusts are to be the government, then the government should be the trust," and it might be added that if the government is to be the trusts, the working class should be the governing class, if they desire to secure benefits from public ownership.

Toronto Daily Star.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan is being warned by some of the newspapers that he will not be allowed to acquire control of the railways of the United States, and that his efforts to gain control only hurries the day when the Government will step in and assume possession. The Hartford "Times" says that these solemn warnings do not alarm Mr. Morgan and those associated with him, but that Government ownership will suit these men to a nicety.

"The Government control of railways," says the "Times," "means a federal guarantee of the interest on the bonds that Morgan and his friends are issuing." Stocks and bonds are different—the former might be bought by the Government at an appraisal, but bonds must pay interest.

"The only thing," says our contemporary, "that concerns these able promoters now is to get a sufficient amount of bonds into legal existence before Uncle Sam walks in and says that he really must insist on making the property of Messrs. Morgan, Hill, the Vanderbilts, the Goulds, the Rockefellers, and all the others, a part of the national debt."

Nobody will be readier for Government ownership than these big trusts if they can draw up the contracts by which they sell out to the people, as our contemporary suggests.

But perhaps they will not be able to dictate terms.

Outsiders are not sure that the people of the United States have such a respect for law and the sanctity of property rights as to pay good money for the bonds with which the railways and other concerns are being loaded down.

Respect for law is not on the increase in the United States, and public opinion is the supreme authority. Perhaps if Uncle Sam is to buy out Mr. Morgan the bargain cannot be too long delayed, or there may develop such a situation as will lead to the repudiation of bonds and contracts and the overturning and ending of many things.

Cleveland Citizen.

Melvin Yeakley, of Kamms, O., who invented a pneumatic hammer and a gasoline engine that is regarded as perfect, is developing a new appliance to supplant rubber tires. It is in the nature of a compressed air cylinder, which can be attached to a vehicle and make rubber tires unnecessary. Yeakley is building an automobile that will seat sixty persons, and with his cylinder attachment he expects to solve the problem of driving large and heavy horseless vehicles. It may be taken for granted that with hundreds of inventors busying themselves in perfecting automobiles those vehicles will soon be thicker than flies. This brings us to the question as to whether it will be worth while wasting much effort to secure municipal ownership of street railways, especially when the magnates will probably be glad to saddle the people with a perpetual debt representing watered stock. Just as Marconi's experiments with wireless telegraphy are causing the telegraph monopolists and their politicians to become suddenly and wonderfully partial to government ownership of the means of communication, so the street railway monopolists, with the shadow of the automobile falling athwart their path, will soon see great virtue in "municipal Socialism."

The Workers' Call.

The Austro-Hungarian consul at Pittsburg, Pa., has had his attention directed to the slaughter of his countrymen in the rolling mills and foundries of that city, and asserts that nearly two thousand foreigners are sacrificed yearly to the greed and cupidity of the corporations. There is no law, he says, that can touch the owners and this state of things would not be tolerated in his own country one instant. Exactly so. There are nearly a million Socialist votes in his country which would most likely amount to two or three millions were not the franchise limited, and for this reason it is not quite so safe to destroy the lives of the workers there as here in this land of liberty. If the Austrian consul really wishes to check the slaughter let him advise his countrymen to vote for Socialism. For their own safety the capitalists will then be inclined to go slow in using up their human raw material.

MUST MARRY THEIR JOB.

The employees of the Deseret "News," the organ of the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City, were much startled last week when the management sent forth an edict, stating that "all male employees of the 'News' who were not married on or before the 30th of June next, would be requested to hand in their resignations." It is estimated that the order will affect about twenty-five employees of the paper.

Usually, under our present paternalistic industrial system, married men are not wanted—single men can work for less wages and the man who burdens himself with a family, loses his job. But business is evidently shaky with the Mormon church, and so the usual procedure is reversed for the glory of God and the profit of the prophets.

—The miners seek gold in the veins of the mountains—the capitalist gets his gold from the veins of the unionists.—W. S. Waudby, in Typographical Journal.

PARTY NOTES.

The 16th A. D. will hold a special meeting, Friday, Feb. 14, at 8 p. m., at the Volks Lyceum, 218-220 Second street. First order of business: Starting work for the daily paper.

The 1st, 3d, and 5th A. D. will meet on Monday evening, Feb. 17, at 8 o'clock p. m. at Comrade Mayes' home, 249 West Eleventh street. Every member is requested to attend, as there are some important matters to be voted upon.

Sunday, Feb. 16, at 3 p. m., sharp, Algernon Lee lectures in Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place (E. Eighth street). Subject: "Capitalist Production." Comrades especially should attend, and, if possible, should bring friends.

The last meeting of the 32d and 33d A. D., held on Feb. 6, was well attended. Dr. Ingermann presided. M. Sand was designated as delegate for the party festival on Feb. 22. Consideration of the new by-laws of Local New York was made a special order for the next meeting on Feb. 20. Comrades Hayes and Greenbaum were nominated to the International Socialist Bureau. A spirited discussion ensued about means to enliven the interest of the members in the organization, with the result that a lecture and entertainment will be held on Saturday evening, March 1, at headquarters, Harlem Union Hall, 1967 Third avenue. The comrades in charge are John I. Cohn, Ernest Weinert, and M. Sand. The committee wishes all members of the districts to agitate for this entertainment, as the program laid out will insure a complete success if the members only do their duty and come all with friends and sympathizers. John Spargo, who is well-known to all our readers, will be the principal speaker, and a German speaker will also be present. Good talent has been secured to make the evening interesting and music will be furnished for dancing later in the evening. Admission is free.

In the rooms of the Socialist Club, Ralph avenue and Fulton street, Brooklyn, next Saturday evening, Feb. 15, there will be held a meeting for the election of District Organizer for Central Brooklyn. Comrades of the 4th, 6th, 16th, and 17th Districts are urged to attend and see that an energetic worker is selected.

On Sunday, Feb. 16, at 3 p. m., Dr. C. L. Furman will lecture at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Turnhall, 949-955 Willoughby avenue, on the subject: "Our King and Our Country." All workingmen and friends of labor are earnestly invited to attend. This is one of a series of lectures arranged by the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Association. Admission is free and all are welcome.

A new branch of the party was organized in Peekskill, N. Y., at a meeting held last Sunday in the home of E. Bell. There are seventeen members to start with and the comrades expect to let the whole county know of their existence before long. The neighboring villages of Oradell, Etna, and River Edge were represented. Scott Dabo was chosen as chairman and C. Uphell as secretary. Previous to this, Dr. DeYoe of Ramsey and F. E. Blenkstone of Oradell held a public meeting, Comrade Thompson of Ridgewood acting as chairman. Both speakers were listened to with close attention and expressions of approval were heard from many who had viewed Socialism with prejudice. Another meeting will be held Friday evening, and all who wish to work for Socialism are invited to join.

By an error in this department last week we substituted "Brockton, Mass." for "Bridgewater, Mass." in noting the organization of town committee with W. O. Smith as chairman.

All Socialists in Wards 7, 9, 10, and 12, Boston, are requested to meet at 724 Washington street, on Monday, Feb. 17, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of organizing a district club and electing its officers and delegates to the Central Committee.

The Marxian Association will hold their first social and dance at Friendship Hall, 12 Kneeland street, Boston, Saturday evening, Feb. 15, beginning at 8 o'clock. Admission is 25 cents, to defray expenses. All comrades and their friends are invited.

East Boston, where Socialist agitation was at a standstill during the troublous times of factional strife, has again come to life. A good-sized working branch has been organized which bids fair to do splendid work in the near future. Discussion meetings with the view of giving the members a clear understanding of scientific Socialism are held twice a week, and public meetings for propaganda among the citizens of East Boston are arranged occasionally. Dr. H. A. Gibbs delivered an eloquent address on Jan. 30. In his humorous manner he expounded the principles of Socialism to a fair and appreciative audience. Another public meeting will be held within a month.

The Somerville, Mass., Socialist Club held a meeting Feb. 10, took in four new members and decided to hold public meetings every Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock, in the Hill Building, Union Square, Room 25. Meetings are free and discussion will be allowed after each address of selected speakers. All Socialists are asked to come and bring as many friends as possible. The best beginning for Socialism in Somerville has been made that has ever been made in the city. A city committee has been organized, and the Socialists of this city will be on deck for caucus work at the coming election. Winfield P. Porter, the first candidate of the party for governor, will give the first address Sunday, Feb. 16. Everybody come.

—Railroading in the United States," a new pamphlet by Ben Hanford. Price, 5 cents. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

WOMAN'S NATIONAL SOCIALIST UNION.

Wenonah S. Abbott of Los Angeles, of the Woman's National Socialist Union, requests us to publish the constitution of that body. The occasion for the request is the publication in The Worker of a statement signed by Mrs. Fales and other officers of the Woman's National Socialist League, in which the later formed organization, the W. N. S. U., was criticised. Unfortunately, the document is too long for us to print in full, but we give the declaration of principles and some other portions which seem most important:

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES.

"We stand for a new order of society based upon the principles of justice and equality as applied to economics.

"We declare that the rapid concentration of capital and its control over the government has forced the issue; and that, while the trust represents the most advanced stage of present economic progress, yet because it is based upon the private ownership of the means of production, it is opposed to freedom and fatal to the future welfare of the republic; therefore the next step in social development must be taken, which is a change from capitalism to Socialism, from competition to co-operation, from the private ownership of the means of production to the ownership and administration by the people.

"Therefore, we stand pledged to teach the principles of this higher industrial system called the Co-operative Commonwealth; to enlist women in the advancement of these principles in every practical way that may present itself; to educate the young in these truths; to form a better public sentiment; and, finally, we pledge ourselves to do all in our power, individually and collectively, to bring about that universal co-operation founded upon the Golden Rule of Love and Justice, which shall take the place of competitive strife and discord."

ART. II.—MEMBERSHIP.

"Any woman endorsing the principles of Socialism and subscribing to the articles of this constitution, may, upon the payment of dues dollar annually, become a member-at-large, until such time as her state is organized, when she will become auxiliary to her state or local union. The payment of ten dollars at any one time to this institution shall constitute a life membership. State Woman's Socialist Unions may become auxiliary by the payment of ten cents per member annually into the national treasury. Any person may become an honorary member by subscribing to the declaration of principles and the payment of one dollar annually into the national treasury."

ART. V.—DEPARTMENTS.

"The work of the Woman's National Socialist Union shall be divided into six or more departments, to be under the direction of committees, the chairman of each committee being recommended by the National Committee and ratified by referendum vote, said chairmen being empowered to appoint their own assistants. One department shall be devoted to the study and publication of Socialist literature; another to the propaganda of Socialism; a third to the education of the young in the principles of co-operation; a fourth to parliamentary usage; a fifth to legislation; a sixth to securing data as to present social and industrial conditions."

Any readers who wish a fuller statement of the case may write for a copy of the Los Angeles "Socialist" of Dec. 28, in which the constitution was published in full.

For ourselves, we are inclined to agree with the opinion expressed by Frances Nacke in a letter published in this issue of The Worker, that the formation of Socialist organization apart from the party on a basis of sex is not likely to be productive of good results.

FOR NEW YORK STATE.

Every Socialist or Sympathizer in the State Is Called Upon to Help in the Work of Propaganda.

To the Workingmen of the State of the State of New York.

The Social Democratic Party of the state of New York asks your contribution for propaganda of Socialism. That is, provided you approve of Socialism, or, the public ownership and operation of all industries for the benefit of all. For it is the supreme object of the Social Democratic Party to secure to every workingman the full fruit of his labor. If you believe that a workingman must surrender the biggest part of his product to Rockefellers, Morgans, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Schwabs, and a swarm of smaller parasites, that they may bestow it on the pauperized nobility of Europe or on the owner of Monte Carlo—why you should support the Republican or Democratic party, for both these parties represent and are owned by the capitalist class. The Social Democratic Party alone stands for the interests of the working class.

Workingmen:—You have heard before our appeals, but you continued to stand in overwhelming numbers by the old parties. With what result? Republican and Democratic legislatures, Republican and Democratic judges are now, more than ever, the tools of your exploiters. Was there a crime perpetrated by the capitalists in which they were not protected by the very legislators and judges for whom you, workingmen, voted? Was there a right which you demanded that was not refused to you by the very men whom you have elected? Why continue to work against your own interests? The Social Democratic Party is your own party. It consists of workingmen and has no other supporters. Help it to spread Socialism. Help us to send out Socialist agitators. Help us to distribute Socialist literature. The dissemination of Socialist ideas means the final triumph of Socialism, and your own economic emancipation. Remember, he helps doubly who helps promptly.

Send contributions to Emil Neppel, treasurer, S. D. P., State Committee, 288 W. 142d street, New York.

New York State Committee, S. D. P.
LEONARD D. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

All monies contributed will be acknowledged in The Worker "Volkszeitung" and "Vorwarts."

INCENTIVE.

Commenting upon the difficulty which British employers find in increasing the speed at which their laborers work, the Chicago "Tribune" remarks that this is the same problem which confronts the Socialist state; i. e., the difficulty of inducing men to work. However it advises the British employer to try increasing the wage, or at least to regard the current rate of union wages as a minimum. In other words the "Tribune" pretends to believe that a slight increase of wages will be equal if not superior as an incentive to effort as if the laborer received the total product of his labor as he would under the "Socialist state." Capitalist logic is certainly a fearful and wonderful thing when it attempts to demonstrate that a part is equal to or greater than the whole.—Workers' Call.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.
By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

CAMPAIGN FUND.

To the Holders of Subscription Lists for the Campaign Fund of the Social Democratic Party of the City of New York:

Comrades and friends who still have subscription lists in their possession are requested to send the lists in at once, as the Campaign Committee would like to wind up its business as soon as possible. As there is some deficiency the comrades would confer a favor on the committee by promptly returning lists and money collected, as it may help the committee to meet all its liabilities. Those who have not collected any money on their lists are also requested to turn in their lists, as this will greatly aid the auditing committee in auditing the accounts. Therefore, come rush in your lists, lists with dimes, quarters, and dollars are preferred, but we want all, even the empty ones. Send lists and money to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street.

Previously acknowledged	$2,236.20
List No. 493, M. Wollendorf	.50
List 100, G. Emerich	1.00
List 284, M. Koenicke	.25
D. Bonmert, donation	.50
List 182, H. Hinz	.25
List 262, R. Link	.25
List 235, H. Stoeckel	.50
List 183, O. Hild	.50
List 65, J. B. Clayton	.75
Total	$2,240.70

CHARITY.

For where there is even one more worker than can be employed he must bid against the rest for the work, and that one who, by freely using the soup-kitchens, can exist upon the least pay will have the job.

The laborers themselves appreciate this. When some one shows how a family of eight persons could be comfortably supported on a dollar a day by using some patent philanthropic cook stove it raises a clamor from the working men, because they correctly reason that if they could be supported on a dollar a day it would be no long time before they would get but a dollar a day. Wages will be just what, using all aids, the laborer can live upon. * * *

Yet if poverty, misery and sickness are here, we cannot let men starve or die in our sight. True, if we can prevent it, we should not let them die, but if with charity "machines" we make the sick better at the cost of making the well sick; if we make the poor comfortable at the expense of making the comfortable poor; if we ease misery only by shifting the load to those ready staggering, what have we accomplished?—Bolton Hall, in "The Charity Disease."

CHINESE LABOR.

What is the difference whether we exclude the Chinese to restrict competition in the labor market, or have American capitalists invest in Chinese industries and with his reciprocity treaties bring the manufactured goods on the market to compete with the American product? If the mountain don't come to Mohamet, Mohamet goes to the mountain; in either case the workers must learn that Socialism is the only remedy that will remove the possibility of their coming in competition with coolie labor.—The Wage Worker.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 309 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jos. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs. Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Washington Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 N. Baum street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eidsness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. W. Quick, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Wilson, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 667, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 229 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE.—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 2 p. m.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

At the meeting of Central Committee, held on Feb. 4, at 724 Washington street, communication from the Financial Secretary of State Propaganda Committee, with enclosed 50 due stamps and samples of membership cards and application blanks were received. O. H. Wheelock seated in place of Riley, resigned. Brighton, with 18 members, Charlestown, with 8 members, and Boston Socialist Club, the hotseating faction, with 33 members, were admitted and delegates seated. Committee on Vail's lectures reported final arrangements and read communication in The Worker. The Central Committee, in appreciation of the generous offer of The Worker, passed the following resolution: "Whereas, The Worker has declined pay for the advertising of Vail's lectures, resolved, that the Central Committee pass a vote of thanks to The Worker for its splendid work toward Socialist propaganda."

The Finance Committee submitted its final report. The by-laws were read and adopted, the same to be submitted to a referendum; the vote to be returned within thirty days.

LOUIS MARCUS, Secretary.

NOTICE.

To the Town and City Committees of Massachusetts.

You are hereby notified that, by act of the Legislature of the state of Massachusetts, our official party name, "Democratic-Social," has been changed to "Socialist." You will, therefore, in all communications, to the State Committee, or the Secretary of the Commonwealth, to city and town clerks, use the name "Socialist Party" for our party designation.—We having polled the 1 per cent. vote last year necessary to become an official party as the "Democratic-Social Party," all rights secured under that name are continued under the new name.

SQUIRE E. PUTNEY,
Secretary of the State Committee, Socialist Party of Massachusetts.

NEW JERSEY.

NOTICE.

To All New Jersey Comrades.

The proceedings of the State Convention held New Year's Day will be submitted this week to the branches for a referendum vote. All votes should be returned to the undersigned not later than March 4. Votes received after March 4 will not be counted.

We desire, in justice to the State Committee, to say that the delay in submitting the proceedings to a referendum is not the fault of the state officers, but to the fact that two members of committees, Platform and Constitution, took from the Convention the reports of their committees instead of having them over to the Secretary of the Convention. One of the reports was sent to The Worker, and for some time was lost, but was finally found and placed in the hands of the State Secretary, Jan. 31, and at once put in the hands of the printer.

The State Committee, at its meeting Feb. 8, in order to expedite matters and hasten the calling together of the new committee, decided to name candidates for the offices of Financial Secretary, and Treasurer of the new committee, and will submit these names to the branches for action on Feb. 20.

Any branch desiring to nominate candidates other than those named by the Committee can do so up to Feb. 19, the names so added to be sent out at the same time as the names suggested by the State Committee.

The branches and county committees are requested to settle at once any indebtedness to the present State Committee, in order, that it may leave office with a clear balance sheet.

M. M. GOEBEL, Secretary,
14 Bridge street, Newark.

NEW YORK.

STATE COMMITTEE.

The State Committee met Feb. 4, with Chris Rob in the chair.

Job Harriman made report on the work of the National Committee in St. Louis. His report was accepted and approved.

Charles H. Vail reported successful meetings in Syracuse, Corning, Hornellsville, Rochester, and Watertown.

State Organizer Butscher sent in a report of work done in Troy, Endicott, Green Island, Albany, and Saratoga Springs.

Comrade C. Barge was present from Long Island City and reported on conditions in Queens County. Comrade Barge was instructed to visit Queens County on behalf of the State Committee. The State Committee decided to recognize any Queens County Local and Local Long Island City was requested to buy stamps from the Colony Local.

Local Troy sent in a resolution providing that the National Committee shall have power to arrange inter-state lecture tours with such locals as may desire," and requesting that same be submitted to a national referendum vote.

Locals New Rochelle and Ticonderoga bought stamps. Communications also received from Schuylerville, Rome, Newburgh, Bolsha, Peru, Dunkirk, Fort Edward, Corning, Utica, and Norwich.

Comrade Fischler wrote from Mt. Carmel, regarding Polish propaganda. It was decided to order the party platform published in Polish.

Action was taken toward securing a permanent State Organizer.

LEONARD D. ABBOTT, Secy.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

Below is a list of the subdivisions of Local New York, Socialist Party, with time and place of meeting. If you are not already a party member, but believe in the principles of Socialism, do not fail to attend the next meeting of your assembly district, join the party, and go to work.

The headquarters of Local New York are at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. Julius Gerber is the organizer, and to him all communications should be addressed. The General Committee, consisting of delegates from the subdivisions, meets in the Labor Lyceum on the second and fourth Saturday of each month.

1st, 3d, and 5th A. D.—Every Monday at 240 W. Eleventh street, home of L. D. Mayes.

2d and 8th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday of the month, at 73 Ludlow street.

4th A. D.—Every Friday at Pacific Hall, E. Broadway, near Clinton street.

9th and 10th A. D.—Second and fourth Friday, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

7th A. D.—First and third Wednesday, at Colonial Hotel, 243 W. Seventeenth street.

9th and 11th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 438 W. Thirty-eighth street.

12th A. D.—Every Friday at Grand Central Palace Hall, 99-99 Clinton street, Room 5.

13th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 342 W. Forty-second street.

14th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday, at 238 E. Tenth street.

15th and 17th A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 437 W. Fifty-third street.

16th A. D.—Every Friday at 216 E. Fifth street.

18th and 20th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 421 First avenue.

19th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 125 Amsterdam avenue.

21st A. D.—First and third Friday, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue.

22d A. D.—Every Thursday at 312 E. Fifty-second street.

23d A. D.—First and third Friday, at 19 Manhattan street.

24th A. D.—(Branch 1.) Second and fourth Monday, at 1649 Second avenue.

24th A. D.—(Branch 2.) Every Thursday at 217 E. 85th street.

26th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1432 Second avenue.

26th A. D. (BOHEMIAN BRANCH).—Second and fourth Thursday, at 326 E. Seventy-third street.

28th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1407 Avenue A.

30th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

31st A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at Sanders' Hotel, N. W. corner Park avenue and One Hundred and Fourteenth street.

32d and 33d A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1907 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 1, GERMAN).—Second and fourth Friday, at 3309 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 2, ENGLISH).—Second and fourth Thursday, at 3309 Third avenue.

ANNEXED DISTRICT.—First and third Saturday, at Welde's Hotel, Tenth street and White Plains avenue, Williamsbridge.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

Below is a list of the subdivisions of Local Kings County. Fred. Schaffer is the Organizer of the Local and he may be addressed at the Socialist Club headquarters, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, where also the County Committee meets.

1st, 3d, and 33d A. D. (American Branch).—First and third Friday, at 121 Schermerhorn street.

5th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Enrich's, 57 Boerum street.

6th A. D.—Every Wednesday, at 222 Steckton street.

7th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at Blakenfeld's, 1232 Fifth street.

12th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Turn Hall, Sixteenth street, near Fifth avenue.

13th and 14th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Eckford's Hall, corner Eckford and Collyer streets.

15th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 197 Schaefer street.

16th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 9 McDougal street.

17th A. D.—First and third Sunday after-noon, at 9 McDougal street.

18th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 9 McDougal street.

19th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Labor Lyceum, 955 Willoughby avenue.

20th A. D.—BRANCH 1, GERMAN.—First and third Wednesday, at 257 Hamburg avenue.

20th A. D.—BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 700 Evergreen avenue.

21st A. D.—BRANCH 1, GERMAN.—First and third Friday, at 675 Glenmore avenue.

21st A. D.—BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at Keystone Hall, Pennsylvania and Glenmore avenues.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

Against Separate Organization of Women.

Editor The Worker.

A few days ago I received some copies of the "Los Angeles Socialist," among them one of Dec. 28, wherein was published a proposed constitution for the Women's National Socialist Union. Socialist women of America are requested to send communications, etc., to Mrs. H. Dunham.

Since my communication in regard to this Union is intended to reach not merely those Socialist women who aim to organize, but readers of Socialist literature in general, I trust the editor of The Worker will open its columns for the expression of my sentiment on the matter at issue.

All of those who watch the progress of the world realize the urgent necessity of women's awakening to the cause of Socialism, and I consider myself among the last who would denounce individuals advocating that end. However, we Socialist women are asked to give the proposed plan careful consideration. I have done and am at once that I oppose the plan in its entirety.

Let me quote the first lines from the proposed constitution:

"We stand for a new order of society based upon the principles of JUSTICE and EQUALITY as applied to economics."

From the standpoint of Socialism, what does justice and equality presuppose as applied to economics? A division of labor in the field of organization, politics, education, etc. No, it demands a unification of forces on every ground, toward every aim.

If those women who pledge themselves to stand for "a new order of society" fully grasp the meaning of their noble intention, they must perforce recognize that an organization which stands for a "new order of society," which represents "justice and equality" in its broadest aspect needs not to be organized. It is here already! We find it in every state of the Union, in every country of Europe, in Australia, and in its first stages of development on other continents.

Is it impertinent to ask: What Socialist women, filled with the true understanding of Socialism, would go forth and organize Socialist women into a separate body? As for one, have neither time nor money to spend on such an organization, because my fifth energy is required to aid the Socialist Party in its efforts to educate in its aims, to enforce the political claims for the emancipation of the struggling wage slave.

In The Worker of Jan. 19 there are published two documents signed by the officers of the new abandoned Women's National Socialist League. It appears therefrom that the Women's National Socialist Union is a rival organization to the former which failed in existence. I, for one, should not object too much if Healy: "It is pathetically contemptible source of announcement. Let the three working toward a definite goal. Let the one not quench even if the failure proves the failure of both organizations.

From the documents of the W. N. S. U. it is well to quote the following: "It is the same old story of intellectuals of confusing ideas and methods that under other circumstances nearly wrecked the Socialist Party." The statement that the rival organization was founded through methods of selfishness seems incorrect. For if those who oppose more radical measures knew the full benefit that springs from even at times "aggressive methods," especially for womanhood, they would fall in line with militant Socialists and not bother with rivalry. Again, it seems just to say that the Socialist movement cannot become wrecked through selfishness nor conflicting methods. It can be wrecked only through a complete turn in industrial affairs. Surveying the ground of Socialism during the time of seeming dissension, but one phenomenon becomes apparent—a necessary revolution within the ranks of American Socialists. Liebknecht has said that "Revolutions are not made; they come, they go, they are the products of the inevitable forces of evolution."

In another sentence of the document it is said: "If women cannot unite in one harmonious movement for the furtherance of Socialism, it is evident that the time is not yet ripe for permanent organization." Let us hope the time will never ripen when Socialist women will organize successfully apart from Socialist men. In so doing we err in the face of Socialist principles. The time is ripe for a determined organization, without distinction of sex—nay, it is overripe. Humanity suffers in consequence of these barriers which custom has developed between man and woman. Attention to the market of the world where men and women shoulder to shoulder, labor and strive to turn the wheel of social progress. Even the mere housewife and mother, when she is so often considered, being a mere consumer, not a producer, has her rank. She is rebuilding the generations; a labor as necessary to human progress as the production of food, clothing, and shelter.

Socialist women should, with a strong Socialist Party as the basis, go forth among all now existing organizations of women and spread the Socialist conception of equality. And this woman, possessed with a strong conviction of equality, will develop even among our men the still lacking complete understanding of congenial, noble comradeship.

In the document, signed by Mrs. Fales, it is further stated that the present leaders of the W. N. S. U. have denounced the call to women and the preamble to the constitution of the League as "aggressive," and "shocking to the moral sense of refined women." Let us take no offense whatever at such outbursts of denunciation, because there are but few women of refinement who feel themselves sufficiently firm on the ground of genuine morality not to fear losing dignity or become "shocked" as the phrase is. Real dignity "cannot be lost" if refinement is lacking in the Socialist movement our membership will never acquire it when "refined womanhood" turns from us. The moral sense of refined men or women can not be shocked by truth, though it must be admitted that the glaring flashes of truth often cause annoyance in dark corners of ignorance.

Again, moral and refined people are not afraid of "iconoclasts." A mind versed in nature's laws and facts keeps firm against the assaults of ignorance and prejudice.

Then come, ye refined and moral women, come into our party, which labors to give you all desired freedom. Line up with the uncouth man in overalls and blouse, line up with the woman who does the rough work in factory or in household (enabling you to be refined) and help us build a fortification for the aristocracy of labor, which is as old as humanity itself.

FRANCES NACKE.

New York City, January 25.

Letter Box

A. SEYMOUR FLEET, Seattle, Wash.—Rinkin was not so rough in many respects he had a leaning toward Socialism. We find many passages in all his works with which we can heartily agree and many from which we must vigorously dissent. His great weakness was that he knew little of modern science and nothing of the labor movement (except at second hand). "Sesame and Lilies," "The Crown of Wild Olive," and "Ethics of the Dust" are all well worth reading. But they must be read critically, not accepted as authoritative; even where they deal with his special subject of art. You can get all these books in cheap editions from 15 to 50 cents a copy.

O. R. L. AND OTHERS.—Job Harriman should be addressed at "Clarion" Secretariat, 104 Bowery, New York City." He will get his letters at least a day sooner if they are correctly addressed than if they are sent to this office to be remailed.

TO OLD "CLARION" READERS.—Those readers of The Worker who are receiving this paper in fulfillment of "Clarion" subscriptions are requested, in renewing or making changes of address, to mention the fact that they are on the "Clarion" list. Also, all subscribers in changing address should give the old address as well as the new one.

WOULD UNLOAD ON THE PEOPLE.

The President is said to heartily favor the government ownership of telegraphs, and it is also said the big telegraphic trusts are anxious to sell to the government. But all this comes at a time when it will do to suspicion this Populistic tendency. It comes just when the invention of wireless telegraphy promises to make the stock in the wire companies worth less than five cents on the dollar. Watch the "wire-working." As Socialism grows the railroads will try to head it off by selling to the people, thus making them "bond-servants." — Central Missouri Push.

10c. A COPY. $1 YEARLY.

"THE GOOSE-QUILL."

The GOOSE-QUILL is a new unconventional magazine, not in the least like the popular brain annihilating slush-mush-gush magazines. It is edited by its editor, and not by the Young Person. Besides original poems and virile short stories the GOOSE-QUILL each month reprints some notable poem from sources little known. Thus in its initial number there appeared an unexpurgated version of Oscar Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Gaol," the most marvelous individual poem of the century. If you like "bread and butter" fiction don't buy THE GOOSE-QUILL," but if you like a magazine that expresses itself freely, and doesn't go nosing around after figleaves, buy the GOOSE-QUILL from your dealer, or send 10c. in stamps to the MANAGER, THE GOOSE-QUILL, Auditorium Tower, Chicago, Ill. The subscription to the GOOSE-QUILL for one year (12 months) is one dollar. The time to subscribe is NOW.

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway, Telephone 2576 Franklin

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
300 Broadway, Room 908. 50 Union Square.

PATRONIZE . . . .
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM. 273 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th St. N. Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

THE PARIS COMMUNE.

LISSAGARAY—"History of the Commune of Paris of 1871." 500 pages; cloth, $3.00.

BENHAM—"The Proletarian Revolt. A History of the Paris Commune of 1871," 232 pages. Price, 25 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

Sent on receipt of price, postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, New York.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!

Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I had a general run-down feeling, lacked ambition, and had no appetite whatever, with a very languid feeling at all times. On going to supper one evening, my boarding mistress recommended my taking Ripans Tabules. She told me her experience with them, as well as that of others to whom she had spoken about the Tabules. I decided to make a trial, and since I have been taking them I feel like a new-made man, and have none of my former complaints, taking a more decided interest in my work and in my life.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

When ordering mention THE WORKER.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is:
HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

READ "THE ADVANCE."

A 16-PAGE SOCIALIST PAPER.

Uncompromising advocate of class conscious political action in the interests of the working class as against those of the capitalist class. Send for sample copy. Subscription price, per year, $1.00. Six months, 50 cents. Three months, 25 cents. 134 Murphy Building, 1236 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

TRADE and SCIENTIFIC BOOKS

The Scientific American Cyclopedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries; 15,000 receipts, 900 New Formulas, 734 pages. Indispensable in every worker's family. Price, $5.00, cloth; $6.00 in sheep, post free.

Hopkins' "Experimental Science," $4.00.

"Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century," by Edward W. Byrn; 300 illustrations, 480 pages, $3.00. Half red morocco, gilt top, $4.00.

Hopkins' "Magic," $2.50.

Sloane's "Complete Electrical Library," 5 volumes in a box, $5.00.

"Standard Practical Plumbing," by P. J. Davies. A complete encyclopedia for practical plumbers, builders, gas fitters, engineers, etc., $3.00.

"The Tinsmiths' Helper and Pattern Book," by H. K. Vosburgh. Rules, diagrams, tables, and recipes for the use of practical metal workers, $1.00.

"How to Become a Good Mechanic," by John Phin. A practical guide to self-taught men; tells what to study and how to begin, 25 cents.

SCIENTIFIC BOOKS of every kind furnished by
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
"CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.

Five Postals for $1.25; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.

For Sale on all New York News-stands.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET, (FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
66 Second Ave., Between Third & Fourth Sts.

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

PARTY BUT

HARRIMAN AND CROSBY DEBATE.

Interesting Discussion Before Socialist Propaganda Club.

Five Hundred People Listen and Applaud—Socialism Makes Many New Friends—Hope for a Repetition of the Debate.

The joint debate last Sunday evening between Job Harriman and John S. Crosby, the noted Single Tax orator, brought to the hall of the Brooklyn Socialist Propaganda Club an audience of over 500 people, with a large proportion of Single Taxers and others.

Mr. Hetzell, a prominent Single Taxer of Philadelphia, had come with the evident intention of putting a test question, to answer which, or to fail to answer, was to signalize the defeat of the Socialists. The question involved the proposition that under Socialism if the government should decide by a vote of the majority, that every person must worship in a particular joss house, it would be a tyranny to which we should be obliged to submit. Harriman showed that by the same rule the same thing could happen under the present system, and, moreover, is much more likely to happen. The decrease of the working hours under Socialism would be the measure of the increase in the intelligence of the people, and this increase in the intelligence of the people would in turn measure the decrease in their respect for and their toleration of any impertinent interference on the part of those interested in the joss house. A local Single Tax labor leader present doubtless voiced accurately the conclusions reached by Mr. Hetzel and others, when he admitted that Mr. Harriman was a very clever man.

Mr. Crosby's Single Tax is so much diluted with State Socialism, and his conception of Democratic Socialism so obviously confused with Communism that it would seem only necessary to show him wherein real Socialism differs from Communism and State Socialism, and wherein it offers the greatest individual liberty, to win his indorsement.

The more technical questions of values, prices, natural laws, and rights, the right of the community to the increment from land and machinery arising from the labor power expended upon or in them, were discussed with such minuteness of detail and at such length that it would be impossible to reproduce the discussion here. Harriman's arguments were so masterful and eloquent that the audience indicated its approbation by its generous applause, although the uniform courtesy of Mr. Crosby, his perfect oratory, and attractive personality, won for him the admiration of all who were fortunate enough to listen to this the first debate between these two able advocates. It is to be hoped that a continuation of the discussion can be arranged.

AS VIEWED BY PETER E. BURROWES.

"When it is a big one, we ing a little one and the air is full of its yells and flying hair, your sympathy is big for the little one, by inverse ratio. But when it is the big one that yells, and it is his nap that flies, human nature appears to be so constituted that your sympathy is just as little for the big one as in the previous case it was big for the little one. Such is human nature; and it is the more so when the little one is Harriman and the big one is our exuberantly verbal friend and co-worker, John S. Crosby, whose eloquent failures we all prize.

"Never did a poor ox, married or th gic, get such a doing at the hands its adversary and advocate as Crosby. What little wind the in it after each kick of his gic, the latter when he sat on it) seemed to reduce to a va uum.

"The subject of debate was 'Resolved, That Socialism would do more for the people than the Single Tax.' But from the first it was evident that the champion of our poor solitary tax had lost sight of his protege in a single effort to prevent Socialism from doing any more to himself in the way of refutation than he could afford to carry.

"The large auditorium of the Socialist Propaganda Club was full to the walls with an intensely interested mixed audience, whose pulses rose and fell with the swell and fall of the splendid mental and oratorical combat.

"Any audience would linger with delight to listen to the word-masterful and genial Crosby on whatever subject he might choose to speak, but when Harriman speaks, though he speaks with a thrilling resonance, you do not hear his words, you only see a luminous line of logic. And it was on such a line that poor Crosby got roasted on Sunday night.

"I did not get there in time for it all; but I would not have missed what I saw and heard of it for considerably more than a little. And yet I belong to the Humane Society for Preventing Cruelty to the Defenseless, to which class of unfortunates it was evident from the start that the Single Taxer belonged.

"Remorselessly, Harriman rung the changes on Henry George's concession that labor produces all wealth, and sent that sentence stinging on the solar plexus of his adversary. But the irrepressible, conciliatory, ever smiling owner of that plexus arose again and again clinging fondly to the fragments of himself amidst the cheers of his fellow sufferers, who, among all political faddists, are the most tenaciously obdurate in thinking themselves to be reformers now on earth, posing as ardent pleaders for a better civilization while standing for the entire hog of evil principles which they oppose in fancy only.

"Again and again during the evening the Single Tax man conceded that Socialism stood for all that he stood for, only it stood for more than slave owners wanted. And again and again Harriman showed that with competition and the 'free' contracts of hunger-driven laborers and the accumulated force of other men's lives, through profit and wagery, still in the hands of a few, the Single Taxers would forever, out of the same root, reproduce evils they now complain of. 'Demand alone creates value,' persisted Mr. Crosby. 'How much demand will create value before the workers put forth the energy of their labor force?' Demand calls laborers into activity and then leaves them to create values,' cried Harriman.

"While denouncing the system under which we dwindle, Mr. Crosby declared again and again that labor can be getting now what it is worth and is not wronged, and that capital may rightly hold the share it cannot earn. Opening the land to all the poor city artisans, as the Single Tax would do, the starved out printers might sally forth to the wilderness and print evening editions with Mergenthalers as much as they wanted. 'And while some crowd out to the country you leave the whole vice of private appropriation of the products of the people in full blast to keep the remaining citizens in the same bondage or reduce them to work,' retorts Harriman.

"The entire debate on both sides was a masterly affair, and I hope that Mr. Crosby may live as long as the Single Tax delusion which he defends; and this would not be wishing him much, if he continues to defend it. But I add this, that he may survive his own defeat for many years in that Socialism, for which, with so much ability, he now paves the way as the most genial of defeated men."

DEBATE WILL BE REPEATED.

A similar debate had been arranged between Crosby and Harriman for next Sunday night, Feb. 16, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue; but Mr. Crosby, on account of important business calling him away from the city, has asked that it be postponed. When the two champions meet in Manhattan a large audience will undoubtedly gather to judge between them and between the theories they advocate.

"ADDING INSULT TO INJURY."

Yonkers' School Board Invites Labor Organizations to Mock Hearing After Carrying Out Its Militarist Plans.

The extraordinary action of the Board of Education of Yonkers in the matter of arming the high school students, and in appropriating a large sum of money for the purchase of rifles at a time when funds were urgently needed for the building of school houses continues to excite unfavorable comment among the workingmen of that city. As previously reported in The Worker, Local Yonkers of the Social Democratic Party registered a vigorous protest against this outrageous action, and the Building Trades Council, several trade unions, and the William Morris Club joined in the protest.

The Common Council received the protest and referred it to the Board of Education, with the suggestion that the latter give a public hearing on the question. The hearing was held, and when the protesting organizations had expressed their views, they were coolly informed that it really mattered very little what they thought, as the rifles were already purchased and the whole affair settled.

This insolent behavior of the Board has elicited the following spicy letter from the William Morris Club:

"To the Honorable Board of Education of Yonkers, New York.

"Gentlemen:—The William Morris Club of this city desires me to express their sincere appreciation for the courteous treatment shown by your honorable Board to their representative who attended the last meeting of the Board at your invitation on January 14.

"We think you have certainly established a unique precedent in the matter of public hearings in public matters—viz.: Decide first, and OBJECTIONS NOT CONSIDERED!

"Some of the wage workers considered the matter a little insulting, but perhaps they are not acquainted with the proper etiquette to be observed in such cases.

"The William Morris Club feel that Mr. Condon was laboring under a 'temporary aberration,' when he stated in a letter to our society, dated Jan. 8, that 'the guns were being negotiated for,' and we find later that they were purchased on January 7, A DAY PREVIOUS.

"If we had not received the assurance from your Chairman that representatives of the working class were welcome, and that you would be pleased to hear anything we might have to offer, we might imagine that the serenity of your meeting was somewhat disturbed by the intrusion of such committees for such purposes.

"Hoping that the guns will prove a valuable adjunct to the educational features of our High School, and that the use of such implements of civilization will extend to all the pupils in our public schools, so that we shall all appreciate the meaning of James Russell Lowell, who has said:

'If you take a sword and dror it
'An' go run a fellow through,
'Gov'ament ain't to answer for it,
'God 'ill send the bill to you.'

"Respectfully,
"THE WILLIAM MORRIS CLUB,
"FRED BENNETTS,
"Secretary."

"14 School Street, Yonkers, N. Y.

The Socialists of Yonkers are not losing this or any other opportunity that presents itself to point out the fact of capitalist class rule and the necessity of united political action by the working class in the defense of its own interests and for the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth. On Sunday, Feb. 2, Courtenay Lemon of New York spoke to an attentive and evidently a well pleased audience. Next Sunday evening, Feb. 16, Algernon Lee will speak in the Building Trades Hall, 23 S. Broadway, taking as his subject, "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics." All workingmen and others interested in the subject are invited to attend.

MIDDLE CLASS FAILURES.

Bradstreet's Agency has reported 842 failures in the last three weeks. The numbers for the corresponding periods for previous years were: In 1901—769; in 1900—654; in 1899—641; in 1898—803. The number for 1902 is thus the largest in four years. About 80 per cent. out of the failures were of concerns with less than $5,000 capital, and more than 5 per cent. were of firms having capital from $5,000 to $20,000. This proportion well illustrates how the middle class is disappearing in competition with the great capitalists.

LABOR AND POLITICS.

Lessons of One Session of the Central Federated Union.

Workingmen's Organizations Petition for Justice and Never Get Satisfaction—Repeated Instances of Failure of Begging Policy—Can Anyone Deny That the Labor Question Is a Question of Politics?

At the last meeting of the C. F. U., as at nearly every meeting, there were plenty of object lessons in capitalist-class government to prove that capitalist politicians care nothing for the interests of the working class but run the administration purely in the interest of the capitalist class. Nevertheless, next election will undoubtedly see many of these very delegates voting the same old political masters into office again.

There were black slaves in the South at the time of the Civil War who did not want to be free, and there are white and black slaves to-day who seem to prefer bondage to freedom. But, as Lincoln said, "You can fool all the people part of the time, and part of the people all the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time." The part of the people that cannot be fooled is rapidly growing larger and there is hope, notwithstanding the fact that some who will not see persist in shutting their eyes to the significance of passing events.

Safety Engineers' Protest.

McConville of the Safety Engineers reported that the work on the Jerome Reservoir is being conducted under a ten-hour rule, while, this being municipal work, the eight-hour day should prevail. The "reform" politicians in charge of the matter, of course, being interested in the reduction of the capitalists' taxes, are making the men work as long as possible for as small pay as possible, and have raked up an old law to justify their action. The matter was referred to the Law and Legislation Committee.

Charity Commission Reducing Wages.

Bakers' and Confectioners' Union 164 reported that information has come from Middletown, N. Y., that the bakers employed by the Charity Commission will have their wages reduced ten dollars a month. Of course economy must be practised; and as usual, when any expenses are to be cut down by capitalist politicians the wages of the workingman are selected to be operated upon.

Pipe Calkers Jollied.

The Pipe Calkers and Tappers reported that they have been "jollied" again by the new administration just as they had been by previous ones. The Consolidated Gas Company must secure permits to open the public streets and, since this is of the nature of public work, the union claims that it should done under the eight-hour day provision. They have waited on the Mayor, and have succeeded in getting nothing but the same old "game of jolly" from His Honor.

Letter Carrier's Bill.

In answer to the letter sent out by the C. F. U. to all Congressmen asking support for the Letter Carrier's Bill several replies were received. Some Congressmen condescend to promise to "give the matter consideration," while others went so far as to say they would vote for the measure.

The Letter Carriers have chosen to depend upon "influence" through the lobby, just as capitalist corporations do when they want bills passed. They have not so large a "barrel," however, as the corporations, so they do not succeed very well. They have votes enough, if they would cast them for a party founded solely on the interest of the working class, to make their power felt. At present their petitions, however humble and respectful, are put off from year to year while the Sugar Trust and the Steel Trust get what they want.

The Horr Case.

A clear illustration of capitalistic judicial injustice is shown in the case of Engineer Horr, who was brutally assaulted by Contractor Pucci and disabled for life. Judge Cowing plainly refused to enforce the law against a capitalist. Had a workingman committed the crime, he would have been behind the bars long ago.

In his plea for justice before the C. F. U., Horr said that there were both political influence and money behind the contractor. Judge Cowing told Horr that he should have mercy for Pucci's family.

"Who has mercy for my family?" asked Horr. "I think that the law is made for the rich and not for the poor!"

Judge Cowing told him that he had been offered five hundred dollars to drop the case, and if he did not accept that he wouldn't get anything. Horr manfully refused and insists on securing justice.

"Is this why we elect judges? If I had committed Pucci's crime I would now be in State's Prison!" exclaimed Horr.

District Attorney Jerome, on being appealed to, answered: "I beg to state that your complaint has been fully investigated, and that the District Attorney's office has no jurisdiction over the subject matter thereof. Such complaint, when entertained, must come from the Assembly to the Court of Impeachment."

The C. F. U. decided to take the matter up and fight it out, Delegate Dooley said: "This case shows what we can expect from this government, conducted in the interest of the millionaires. This judge is a vile tool of the capitalist class. We must stand solidly together and secure justice for Horr."

It was decided to take the matter to the Assembly. If there were even two Socialist members in the New York Legislature, as there are in Massachusetts, the voice of Labor would be heard there in such a case. But with only the tools of employers, landlords, and contractors in the State House, there is little hope for a workingman's plea to be listened to.

All this is one week's experience with capitalist class government in one city! And still there are workingmen who insist on voting for this sort of thing, and refuse to stand like men and vote for their rights by electing men of their own class on a class-conscious labor ticket.

CARPENTERS NO. 476.

At the last regular meeting of Local 476, the reports of District Council and Business Agent were received. Brother A. Lee was elected in place of G. J. Bohnen, resigned, as delegate to the District Council. Fifty dollars was donated to the Roofers, Slate, Tile and Sheet Metal Workers to assist them. Various complaints referred to the Business Agent. On the sick list are Brothers McNamara, McNally, Huf, Roob, and Schlegelmilch. Brother Mahoney reports well. John Amann suspended. Frank Hunrath, and John Faust duly initiated. Arrangements are now being made to see that Section 81 of the Factory Laws be complied with. The committee which was appointed some three months ago will no doubt meet this week.

A UNIQUE BOYCOTT.

A dispatch from Brazil, Ind., tells of a somewhat unique boycott in that town, where a trolley strike has been on for some time. The dispatch says: "A clergyman who is holding revival meetings at the principal church at Cloverdale, just west of here, made a trip to this city on the street car, and as a consequence there has been a very slim attendance at services, and the meetings will probably close. His congregation consisted principally of laborers and their families, and they are in sympathy with the street car strikers."

PROSPERITY ITEM.

Following close upon the announcement of the tremendous aggregate of earnings made by the Billion Dollar Trust last year, comes an announcement that the 400 rod men employed in the Marquette street works of the American Steel and Wire Company will be compelled to go to work next week at a reduction of 20 per cent. in their wages. The cut means a reduction in wages amounting to from 75 cents to $2 per day.

THEY LIKE THE WORKER.

Electrical Workers' Union No. 3 has taken 100 half-yearly subscriptions for THE WORKER. Progressive Lodge No. 335 of the I. A. M. went them a few better and took 125. The results of such action will be seen next election, and it will help toward the establishment of the daily.

SINGS A SONG OF J. P. MORGAN.

The Earth and All That's In It Is His, Says a Soubrette.

Bonnie Thornton has made a hit at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre with a topical song in which the trust magnate, J. Pierpont Morgan, figures as the subject.

The music is by James Thornton. The verses run as follows:

I came to a mill by a river side,
'Twas half a mile long, and nearly as wide,
With blazing fires and an army of men,
Toiling at furnace, shovel and pen;
What a most magnificent plant, I cried,
When a workman in overalls replied:

CHORUS.

It's Morgan's, it's Morgan's, the great financial gorgon;
Every thing here but the atmosphere, all belong to Morgan.

I dwelt in a nation filled with pride;
Her people were many, her lands were wide;
Her record in war, in science and art,
Proved she'd the brains, the muscle, the heart;
America's a grand old country, I cried,
When a man who was out on strike replied:

CHORUS.

It's Morgan's, it's Morgan's; the great financial gorgon;
Every railroad train, every ship on the main, all belong to Morgan.

I went to heaven; the jasper walls
Were high and wide, and the golden halls
Shone bright beyond; but a strange new mark
Was over the gate—it read "Private Park";
Why, what is the meaning of this? I cried,
When a saint with a harp in his hand replied:

CHORUS.

It's Morgan's, it's Morgan's; the great financial gorgon;
If you want cheap rates to the heavenly gate, you'll have to apply to Morgan.

I went to the only place left for me,
So I boarded the boat for the brimstone sea;
Maybe I'll be allowed to sit
On the griddled floor of the bottomless pit;
But a jeering imp with horns on his face
Cried out as he forked me out of the place:

CHORUS.

It's Morgan's, it's Morgan's; the great financial gorgon;
Get off that spot, we're keeping it hot; that seat is reserved for Morgan.

WAGES FALLING IN ENGLAND TOO.

The Board of Trade Labor Department of the British Government has just issued statistics for the first half of 1901, showing a net diminution of wages paid to English workingmen of $150,000 a week, as compared with the latter half of 1900. This is the first time since 1895 that the figures have shown an actual decrease of wages. A leading financial paper of London predicts that when the figures for the second half of 1901 come they will be worse than the first and that 1902 will be worse than either.

—Are you a commuter? See that every conductor or brakeman on the line gets a copy of "Railroading in the United States." Send $1 for forty copies.

FEB. 22. GRAND FEB. 22.

LABOR FESTIVAL

SATURDAY, FEB. 22, 1902.

—AT—

GRAND CENTRAL PALACE,

Forty-third Street and Lexington Avenue.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Social Democratic Party and its Press

A WONDERFUL PROGRAM.

SPANISH BALLET,
TURKISH DANCERS,
PERFORMING MAMELUKES,
MOORISH BULL FIGHT,
SUGIMOTO'S JAPANESE.

GRAND PAGEANT: "THE TRIUMPH OF LABOR."

TICKETS (including Hat Check), 25 cents; at the Gate, 35 cents.

Tickets for sale at the office of The Worker, 184 William Street, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth Street, Workmen's Educational Association, 206 East Eighty-sixth Street, and at all Union and Socialist Headquarters in New York City and Brooklyn.

THE WORK IN MASSACHUSETTS.

State Organizer William Mailly Presents a Report Covering the First Month of Service.

At the conclusion of my first month's work as State Organizer, a brief report of the progress made in that time will doubtless be of interest to the comrades throughout the state.

The condition of the state organization necessitated my remaining in Boston, and entailed a large amount of correspondence. The work of establishing some system in the conduct of affairs required attention to numerous details which would have been unnecessary had the organization been in proper shape. This has consumed much time, but after a week or two I hope to be able to extend my work farther afield.

My first duty seemed to be to get as many branches as possible to reorganize as clubs, and thus form a basis for future work. With this object in view I communicated with the secretaries of clubs already affiliated and of branches that had not yet reorganized, afterwards sending them organizing material in the shape of state and national constitutions, platforms, application blanks, etc. The answers received to these letters have been numerous and encouraging, only two or three manifesting any discouragement. On the other hand, a number of comrades have not considered my letters of sufficient importance to demand even an acknowledgement; and, though in a number of instances I have written more than once, no replies have been forthcoming. I can only hope that the comrades in question will at least acquaint us with the conditions existing in their localities, so that we may understand the situation and act accordingly.

During the month applications for charters from reorganized clubs have been received from the following places: Haverhill, Amesbury, Leomeister, Salem, Chelsea, Ware, Fall River, Adams, Natick, and Springfield. An application for charter from an entirely new club has also been received from Northboro. There is good reason to believe that within a short time reorganization will be effected in several more places.

I have attended club meetings as follows: Roxbury, East Boston, Highland District, Neponset, Lynn, Quincy, Brighton, Chelsea, and Reading. At the Quincy meeting the members present voted to apply for a charter.

In Boston the movement is in process of organization into a central committee, composed of delegates from the respective wards and districts. Rules for permanent organization have been adopted and are now submitted to a referendum. I have attended three of the meetings of the temporary City Committee. I am also giving assistance toward making the series of lectures by Charles H. Vail a success, in the hope that the same will have a beneficial effect upon the Boston movement.

In addition to this, I have made arrangements to send reports, weekly if possible, of the actions of Representatives Carey and MacCartney in the Legislature to the leading party papers throughout the country. This will enable Socialists to learn what our representatives have to contend against, and also furnish material for propaganda and education among the workers.

It has been difficult to arrange a complete tour of Massachusetts for February for Comrade Charles H. Vail, mostly because of the disorganization existing. So far the only dates made have been at Haverhill, Boston, Clinton, and Warren.

Comrade James F. Carey was elected National Committeeman from Massachusetts and attended the meeting of the Socialist Party National Committee held at St. Louis, Jan. 24-27.

The bill changing the official party name from "Democratic-Social" to "Socialist" has been passed by the Legislature, and became a law on Feb. 4. Our two representatives are to be congratulated in securing this change, which was much needed and long desired.

In closing this report I wish to make the following suggestions:

Branches that have not yet reorganized as clubs should do so at once and apply for charters. This will assist in putting the propaganda and agitation end of our party in Massachusetts in shape for the next and all future campaigns.

Clubs already affiliated should see that their dues to the State Committee for the current month are remitted promptly. If the Secretary has no stamps on hand, see that an order for same is sent in to Financial Secretary Dixon immediately. The national dues must be paid and the traveling and clerical expenses of the State Organizer must be forthcoming so that he may carry on the necessary work.

Wherever town elections are held this spring, the comrades should prepare to put up candidates and contest the capitalist tickets. Clubs should see that the respective town committees of the party do their duty and preserve the party's standing and integrity. In no case should any but extraordinary reasons prevent the party from being represented in the town elections wherever we are organized.

Spread the party literature and increase the circulation of the party press. This is a feature which unfortunately is sadly neglected, and there is none so important for the welfare of the party, and which makes so surely for the real progress of the movement. Every party member should subscribe for and read at least one party paper. Keep posted and interest yourselves in party affairs.

Public meetings should be held as often as possible, weekly if circumstances will permit, but semi-monthly at least. At these meetings literature should be sold or distributed, whether party papers, magazines, or pamphlets. Brief reports of meetings should be sent to the party press. We shall be glad to furnish names and addresses of speakers residing in the state.

Clubs should arrange so that the quarterly reports of financial and numerical standing, with progress and prospects, as required by the State Constitution, be made promptly. By all means establish a system in transacting your affairs. This will ultimately facilitate your work and make the officers' duties more of a pleasure and less of a burden.

Finally strengthen the organization and make it what it should be: A militant body of class-conscious workers prepared to meet any emergency that may arise. Clubs should be not only debating societies but live, energetic organization of men and women, who know what they want and how to get it.

There is every reason to feel gratified at the results of the past month's work, despite the fact that several important localities have not been heard from. The outlook for a splendid movement in this state is bright and inspiring, if we but take advantage of the glorious opportunities presented to us. If we do our duty now, we shall enter the campaign next fall stronger than ever, and with new vigor prepare to place Massachusetts in the forefront of the battle of the states for Socialism in our time.

Fraternally yours,
WILLIAM MAILLY,
State Organizer.
614 Winthrop Bldg., Boston, Mass.

ALASKAN TRAFFIC TO BE CONTROLLED BY HILL.

James J. Hill, the Great Northern magnate, proposes to control the Alaska steamship trade. Hill, his son Louis, and his son-in-law, Walter Oakes, are the controlling stockholders in the new Puget Sound-Navigation Company, which is establishing lines between all the principal Washington ports and those of British Columbia and Alaska. The new company will work in harmony with the Alaska Steamship Company, of which Oakes is president, and the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, controlled by Hill. All will be feeders to the Great Northern-Northern Pacific railway combine.

—One dollar will buy forty copies of Hanford's "Railroading in the United States." Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

FOR THE DAILY.

The following contributions for a Socialist daily were pledged at the meeting of Socialists at Brevoort Hall, Feb. 8, 1902:

Martin Heusner (paid)	$5.00
Jules Magnette (paid)	10.00
O. Wegener	5.00
Job Harriman	100.00
Leonard D. Abbott	50.00
Christian Bruin	2.00
John I. Cohn	10.00
Courtenay Lemon	50.00
J. Dubman	25.00
H. C. Bowerman	10.00
R. Bock	10.00
Chas. Ufert	10.00
Fred McIntosh	5.00
D. Rubinow	25.00
W. W. Passage	100.00
Gust. Szoholm	5.00
Gerald Tushak	10.00
J. J. Friedland	2.50
Albert Halpern	10.00
R. Cantor	1.00
Dr. Halpern	150.00
Theresa Fox	10.00
Chas. G. Lane	10.00
M. Winchevsky	5.00
Dr. I. Ingerman	10.00
Ida Helligman	2.00
John Robert Anderson	5.00
S. Bename	10.00
Julius Bordollo	20.00
Hugo Pick	10.00
A. A. Mayell	10.00
Samuel Raines	5.00
L. A. Malkiel	10.00
Nathan Friedman	15.00
N. S. Reichenthal	10.00
Henry Cohn	5.00
Miss F. Rosengarten	5.00
A. Schauberg	5.00
I. Phillips	3.00
Wm. Halpern	30.00
Samuel Panzer	25.00
M. Hillquit	100.00
Algernon Lee	100.00
E. P. Jennings, Jr.	25.00
M. C. Levine	10.00
Ernest Spranger	12.00
Herman Katzenstein	1.00
A. B. Fishman	5.00
Philip Lewine	10.00
Chas. Glidden	15.00
Harry Vegderson	10.00
Harry Krantz	2.00
E. M. Martin	15.00
B. Feigenbaum	5.00
Joseph Fahner	10.00
John J. Fluth	2.00
G. Leist	2.00
John A. Eikstein	15.00
S. Lissauer	10.00
Henry Slobodin	50.00
Joseph Wood	5.00
W. E. McNabb	5.00
Chas. F. Hohman	1.00
August McDonald	1.00
Isaac Levin	50.00
William Bernauer	5.00
A. Chorosh	25.00
Juan Cowales	5.00
C. M. Annas	5.00
James N. Wood	25.00
W. C. Bingwald	1.00
George Taufer	25.00
I. Rivkin	5.00
Siskind Goldbarth	5.00
Alex. Fraser	100.00
F. Brumbaher	1.00
E. Wagner	5.00
E. Willsvonseder	5.00
Ed. Loewenthal	150.00
Geo. Brown	5.00
Total	$1,028.50

—The labor which it is the right of every man to have and to do is that which gives him the chance to express in material form the joy of his own soul. That is the chance to live. And the task of securing for every man and woman that opportunity is the best definition of religion I know.—Wm. T. Brown.

WORKER' CALENDAR

FOR 1902.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

In lots of 5 copies ..... 22 cents.
10 copies ..... 35 cents.
100 copies $3.00

Terms: Cash with order.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

ABBOTT BROS.,
Bakery, Coffee & Lunch Room,
110 Leecker Str., N. Y.
Kangaroos are welcome!
No line drawn on smaller animals.

The Workers' Call

Clear, Clean Socialist Paper.

Contains each week:

1. Discussions of Science of Socialism.
2. News of International Socialist Movement.
3. Events of Week from Socialist Standpoint.

One year, 50 cents.
6 months, 25 cents.

36 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

FACTORY TO POCKET

Special Sale 14k. 20-year guarantee genuine Waltham Watches. P. S. Bartlet grade, at $10.75; retail centers price, $32.00. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO., 175 Broadway; upstairs. Established 1876.

READY AGAIN.

"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists." By H. Gaylord Wilshire. Price, 2 cents; 100 copies, $1.25, postpaid. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

JUST OUT.

"Railroading in the United States." By Benjamin Hanford. Price, 5 cents; 40 copies, $1, postpaid.

"The Clerical Capitalist." By Rev. Father McGrady. Price, 10 cents; 100 copies, $4, postpaid.

"A Voice from England." By Rev. Father McGrady. Price, 10 cents.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, New York.

"THE ECONOMICS OF SOCIALISM."

Comrade Lee is the lecturer for the second month of the Sunday afternoon course at Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place. Whether it were the fault of the lecturer, the weather, or the comrades, the two lectures so far held this month have not been very well attended.

These lectures dealt with the philosophy of Socialism, under the titles "Social Evolution" and "Historical and Economic Materialism." The other two lectures will outline the economics of Socialism—first in its static aspect under the title of "Capitalist Production" on Feb. 16 and then in its dynamic aspect, "Tendencies of Capitalism," on Feb. 23.

The object of this course, as arranged by the C. E. C., is to give a systematic outline of the whole subject for the especial benefit of party members who have not time for exhaustive reading. Others are, of course, always welcome.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 47. NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 23, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

NO FAITH IN PEACE PLAN.

Protest Meeting of New Unionists in Cooper Union.

Resolutions Adopted Question Good Faith of Harmonizers—Harriman, Dooley, and McQueen Speak—"Leaders Will Bear Watching," Says Dooley.

President Gompers found time, a couple of weeks ago, to come to New York to dine with the Board of Trade magnates at the Waldorf-Astoria and discuss "harmony between Capital and Labor." But when a conference representing sixty local unions invited him to be present at the Cooper Union mass meeting of Feb. 13, where the "Peace Conference" was to be discussed, he did not consider it worth while to comply.

The following were the resolutions passed unanimously and with acclamation by the workingmen assembled:

No Faith in Bosses.

"Whereas Organized Labor has been waging a constant battle against the encroachments made by the representatives of organized Capital upon the liberties of the American people in general, and the wage workers in particular; and

"Whereas, It has been reported in the public press without contradiction that certain leaders of labor attending a conference of the National Civic Federation, a body composed of tax-dodging millionaires, stock gamblers, and meddlesome reverends, expressed themselves as intending to pacify organized Labor and bring about a state of harmony between the worker and the capitalist; and

"Whereas, The history of the past teaches us that, while the two parasitical classes always desire harmony, in order that they may enjoy their plunder undisturbed, they have never hesitated to employ force in the shape of militia, police, and Pinkertons whenever Labor refused to submit to their terms; and

"Whereas, The milestones of progress on the road to economic freedom are red with the blood of our martyred brothers, shed at the behest of the very same class of men who predominated at the so-called Peace Conference; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we have no confidence in the sudden spasms of overflowing love on the part of foes who have proven themselves past masters in treachery, and we strongly suspect that it is their intention eventually to settle all inconveniences and expensive capers of the giant, Labor, by compulsory arbitration, before courts composed of their own representatives, aided by their faithful ally, the clergy, with a slight mingling of such labor leaders to whose material interest it may be to preserve peace between Capital and Labor; and be it further

"Resolved, That while individuals may have their heads turned by the pettifogger of basking in the sunshine of the moneyed aristocracy, we the rank and file of Organized Labor are now as ever ready to continue our struggle, not for the crumbs that fall from our masters' table in the shape of an extra penny now and then, but for the complete emancipation of Labor."

William Buddelman of Bricklayers' No. 9, Brooklyn, acted as chairman of the meeting, and Jos. Wm. Dooley of the Franklin Association of Pressmen's Assistants was the first speaker. He said in part:

Leaders Need Watching.

"We would rather give our life and our interests into the hands of a band of highway robbers than into the hands of this 'Peace Conference.' Highwaymen would rob us and both we and the world would know that we had been robbed; but these capitalists will rob us and their subsidized press will spread the news that they have bestowed gracious favors upon us.

"It will do our leaders good to know that they are being watched—and they need to be watched. If this meeting does nothing more it will be well worth while for this reason alone."

McQueen of the English Gas Workers appealed to workingmen to study their economic and social position, and closed by saying: "Industrial peace will come when the workers get the full product of their toil, and not before. The capitalist has no right to exist and we cannot have peace and do not want to have peace on terms of submission to him."

At this point the resolutions were read and adopted, and a resolution from the Journeymen Barbers' and Confectioners' Union of Philadelphia, endorsing the purpose of the meeting was also read and greeted with applause.

No Holy Communion.

Job Harriman of the Labor Secretariat was the last speaker. He disclaimed any desire to condemn men personally, but thought that it was the duty of the rank and file to watch their leaders. The leaders should be the servants of the masses, not their masters.

Some of the clergy, he said, were trying to establish a holy communion between Labor and Capital. He would remind his hearers how many times orderly strikers had been clubbed and shot at the behest of capitalists and ask them if they thought any such holy communion was possible.

He brought out clearly the position of the capitalist class as a parasite upon the producers and showed that, no matter how influential were the persons who tried it, the attempt to harmonize the interests of parasites and victims must end in failure.

By citation of well known facts—Homestead, Pullman, Lattimer, the Bull Pen, Croton Dam—and quotations from the capitalist press, he showed the determination of the capitalist class to rule at any cost, and declared that this class rule could be brought to an end only by the resolute and united effort of the workingmen in their trade unions and on the political field.

IN MILWAUKEE.

Socialists Nominate Candidates, Adopt Platform, and Open City Campaign.

The Social Democratic Party of Milwaukee met in convention on January 31 to nominate a city ticket and adopt a municipal platform for the coming election in that city.

The following ticket was nominated:

For Mayor—Howard Tuttle.
For Controller—Eugene H. Rooney.
For Treasurer—John Doerfler.
For Attorney—Theodore Burmeister.

The platform adopted contains the following passage in reference to the "immediate demands" with which it closes:

"We call attention to the fact that the measures we urge are in no way a cure for existing evils, nor are they necessarily socialistic institutions. They are to be viewed, rather, as needed palliatives, capable of being carried out even under present conditions. Under no circumstances should the working people rest content with municipal improvements which are merely temporary in their nature and must be entirely inadequate. They should move onward to the conquest of all public powers, to an entire change of the present system for one which shall secure to the people, collectively, the means of production and distribution."

The platform ends with the following demands:

1. That no more franchises for public utilities shall be sold, leased or given away. The city shall take charge as soon as possible of all public utilities now in private hands. The city shall abolish the contract system as far as possible in all public work. Wherever contract work is unavoidable, the contractors shall be required to employ only organized labor.

2. That the common council shall take the necessary steps to make the big corporations pay their rightful share of municipal taxes.

3. That an earnest effort shall be made to provide work for its unemployed citizens. Besides the improvement of the streets the city shall maintain a public coal and wood yard and a public icehouse. The coal, wood and ice to be sold to the citizens at cost.

4. That the city shall employ a number of attorneys to conduct just cases for the poor. That the city shall reorganize the system of administering justice in its police court, so that the poor man may be guaranteed the same chance before the law as is enjoyed by the rich.

5. The extension of the free medical service so as to provide two salaried physicians in each ward, who shall treat those applying free of charge. The city also to arrange with druggists who shall compound the prescriptions coming from said city physicians for a certain average compensation which shall be fixed by the board of health and paid for by the city. The city also to provide and maintain a public crematory, which shall be free to those applying.

6. That the city shall erect at least three more public baths for the benefit of the residents of the working districts, one to be built in Bay View, one on the north side and one on the northwest side. The city also to provide a system of street closets, such as found in modern European cities. Plumbing and sewerage in all dwellings to be done by the city at cost, the same to be paid for in yearly installments.

7. That the city shall condemn all slum habitations dangerous to the health of the occupants and cause their removal in the interests of public morality. The maintenance by the city of public playgrounds, open-air gymnasiums, or parks in their places, where possible.

8. That free school books and adequate school facilities shall be provided. Principals shall be required to devote one-half of their school time to instruction. The large hall in each school building shall be available to residents of the district for public meetings of whatever nature, at such a charge only as shall pay the cost of lighting.

9. That the city shall arrange at least one symphony concert each month during the winter in the largest and most suitable hall to be secured. The admittance fee to such concerts shall be moderate, and should a deficit occur, it shall be paid by the city. In summer concerts to be given in the parks.

10. That the city shall declare a half holiday, on all election days, which shall be compulsory and a penalty shall be exacted from all employers of wage labor who shall ignore the order.

SPARGO TO SPEAK.

John Spargo will speak Sunday evening, Feb. 23, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue, on "The Tragedies and Comedies of the Present Social Conditions." Last Sunday's meeting was very well attended, many coming in expectation of a repetition of the Harriman-Crosby debate. Mr. Crosby not being able to come, Comrade Harriman spoke and a good discussion followed.

NEW HAVEN, ATTENTION.

New Haven comrades are hereby reminded of the American Branch meeting, Saturday evening, Feb. 22.

TICKET IN PEEKSKILL.

Social Democrats Open the Campaign for City Election on Uncompromising Lines and With Good Prospects of Success.

The Social Democrats of Peekskill, N. Y., have made their nominations for the coming village election at a convention held in Labor Hall on Feb. 12. A. F. Simmonds acted as chairman of the meeting and Henry Kaste as secretary. The ticket is as follows:

For Trustees: First District—Seth Taber; Second—John R. Worthington;
For Treasurer—Henry Kaste.
For Assessor—George West.
For Water Commissioners—John Butterly, Everett L. Holmes, and Nathaniel Bradley

Andrew G. Holmes and T. W. Haynes were chosen as a committee to fill vacancies, as prescribed by law; but there are not likely to be any vacancies to fill.

The Campaign Committee will meet every night and the comrades will do everything in their power to win success at the polls.

It may not be generally known to the readers of The Worker that there is already one Socialist on the Board of Trustees of Peekskill—a place which, although incorporated as a village, is in reality an industrial city with a population of about 11,00. Seth Taber was elected to office in 1899 upon the Republican ticket, but actually as a representative of the trade unions of the place. More than a year later he became acquainted with the principles of Socialism, and joined the Social Democratic Party. He was willing at that time to resign his office if called upon to do so on account of the change in his political affiliation; this was not, however, considered necessary, so long as he acted in office in accordance with Socialist principles, especially in view of the fact that he was generally recognized as a representative of the working class, for which the S. D. P. stands.

Taber's record in the Board has been highly creditable to him, both as an individual and as a Socialist. The fact that since last spring's election there have been three Republican and three Democrats on the Board, giving him the "balance of power," has, of course, increased his usefulness. He was appointed a member of the Committee on Highways, and through his influence Comrade Andrew J. Holmes was chosen as Highway Commissioner.

They then set out to show what Socialists could do, even in the limited sphere allowed by the powers of village officers. They have succeeded in giving a practical illustration of the advantage of abolishing the contract system and doing the work by direct employment. The eight-hour law has been enforced and to a considerable extent the wages of the employees have been increased; and, at the same time, more and better work has been done for less money than could be or ever was done under the contract system. Other measures, such as the construction of a needed sewer by direct employment, instead of by contract, are in view and will be carried out if the Social Democratic ticket is supported.

In view of the record these two men have made, with the very small opportunity so far given them, only unreasonable prejudice can prevent Taber's re-election. And the voters of Peekskill should remember that Taber has acted, not only as an honest man in office but in strict accordance with the principles of Socialism so far as they can be applied in village politics, and that if they approve of his course they should ensure the carrying out of the same policy by voting, not for him alone, but for Washington for Trustee in the Second District and for the whole Social Democratic ticket.

In the present campaign Comrade Taber could, if he so desired, have secured the support of one of the old parties. He has chosen, however, in accordance with the established Socialist policy, to stand strictly as representing his principles and those of his party, without any shadow of compromise. If he should be defeated he will take his failure with a good grace, for he can take it with a clear conscience, knowing that he has stood squarely and openly for what he held to be right. If he is elected, he can take his success also with a clear conscience, knowing that it has not been won by any trick or false pretense.

A NEGLECTED HERO.

Local Yonkers, S. D. P., has arranged with the William Morris Club for a lecture by Rev. Owen F. Lovejoy of Mount Vernon on "The Mad Priest of Kent," at Building Trades Hall, 23 N. Broadway, Yonkers, Sunday evening, Feb. 23. Those who have read William Morris' "Dream of John Ball" will appreciate the treat in store for them, and those who have not will have a chance to become acquainted with the history of one of the neglected heroes in the age-long war between oppressor and oppressed. All are welcome.

CAUSE AND CURE OF POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

On Sunday evening, Feb. 23, Warren Atkinson of Brooklyn will lecture for the Socialist Educational League at 215 E. Fifty-ninth street, on "Political Corruption, Its Cause and Cure." The subject is one of great interest and importance and a thoughtful and instructive treatment of it may be expected from Comrade Atkinson. Admission is free.

WHAT THE ROYAL VISIT MEANS.

Edward Loewenthal will speak Sunday, Feb. 23, at 3 p. m., at the Club House of the W. E. A., 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. His topic will be: "The Significance of Prince Henry's Visit to America." All readers of The Worker are invited to come and bring their friends.

HE SAYS THEY "DO THE POOR."

Carey's Version of Capitalists' Philanthropy.

Boston "Advertiser" Attacks "Imported Labor Agitators" and Socialist Legislator Replies—Why Some Capitalists Are Studying Labor Question

The Boston "Advertiser," one day last week, had an editorial headed "President Gompers' Slur," in which Gompers was taken to task for his statement that "every effort made by the people of Massachusetts to protect the lives of the children in the mills and factories of the state has been opposed by the 400."

The editorial makes a defense of the Massachusetts 400, and a malicious attack upon labor organizations and the Socialist representatives in the Legislature. The "Advertiser" says in part:

"The enforcement of labor laws in Massachusetts is under charge of the district police. R. R. Wade, the chief of the state police, said last night when he heard of President Gompers' charge that it must have been made in ignorance of the facts. So far from attributing all the credit for Massachusetts labor laws to President Gompers, Chief Wade says that it has been his experience that many of the wealthy people in this state are among the foremost in studying the condition of factory operatives, and especially women and minors, and that the enactment of statutes against child labor in Massachusetts has been due largely to the support of the '400.' The plans put forward by these people show study and close observation. This cannot be said of all the measures introduced by the Socialist and labor representatives.

* * *

"President Gompers' mistake is due to his lack of knowledge of Massachusetts and his native prejudices. He brought with him from England, the land of his birth, the idea that an employer is necessarily a brute. And he has never been able to get rid of that idea. He does not know that in this state it is almost a fashionable fad, even among those who do not feel very deeply on the matter, to 'do for the poor.' Men and women high in society, are glad to get places on the 'unpaid boards' that run hospitals, almshouses, public charities of all kinds. The list of such state or city boards is almost as good as a directory of the '400' of Massachusetts, of which he talks so much, but of which he seems to know so little."

Ben Tillett, fraternal delegate of the British trade unions to the recent American Federation of Labor convention, also came in for his share of the attack.

A HISTORICAL PARALLEL.

Our irrepressible comrade, Representative Carey, being interviewed by the Boston "Traveller" on the matter, replied:

"The editor of the 'Advertiser,' in his attack upon the labor organizations and his reference to the fact that certain of the members came from England, one of whom, Ben Tillett, he styles an 'impartial labor agitator, has historic prototypes, as can be evidenced by a visit to the old State House, where there is upon exhibition a document issued during the anti-slavery agitation, and posted at that time about Boston, which reads:

"'$100 Reward.—That infamous foreign scoundrel Thompson will speak tonight upon abolition. The above sum has been contributed by certain patriotic citizens to be given to the first man who lays violent hands upon him and drags him to the tar kettle. Friends of the Union, be vigilant.'

"The editor of the 'Advertiser' might do well to copy the above method. Thompson was an Englishman, so is Tillett. Thompson was an Abolitionist; Tillett is a Socialist. Thompson sought the end of chattel slavery; Tillett the end of wage slavery. Both being Englishmen, both desiring the ending of certain forms of slavery, surely the editor might accelerate his thunderous march into oblivion by following the example of his predecessors, perhaps some of his ancestors.

THEY DO THE POOR.

"Of course, I am very glad to learn that 'society' is so concerned over us. How simple it all is, after all. 'Society' wants to give us better conditions; we want them. Why, it's all settled! How sad we did not know this before. The editor says: 'It is almost a fashionable fad to "do for the poor."' There is only one mistake—just a word; of course it slipped in. It's the word 'for.' It was meant, no doubt, to have read, instead of 'do for the poor,' 'do the poor.' Yes, the rich will do much for labor—except as Tolstoi says, 'to get off its back.'

"That some of them are studying industrial problems, I have no doubt; that a few are honest in their desire to improve conditions, I quite agree; but the most of them are moved to study because the giant Labor shows signs of waking from his sleep of centuries. He is about to ask, why should

"The toil of my bruised hands keep tender white
The hands that never labor, day nor night?'

"He will learn why; he will learn that the instruments of labor belong to a class other than those who operate them; he will see that this class ownership transforms those instruments into tools of exploitation; he will 'cry protest unto God,' and build upon his awakening intelligence economic and political organization, which shall demand and accomplish the ending of capitalism, its classes, its wrongs, its poverty, its injustice, and in its place shall rise the structure of Socialism, the Co-operative Commonwealth, wherein there shall be no poverty, upon which to base a 'fashionable fad,' where the enforcement of laws for the protection of the workers, if such laws were needed, would be part of the power of the workers themselves, instead of being subject to the whim or caprice of a 'faddist.'"

TROUBLE IN ONEIDA.

Conspiracy Against Socialist Cigarmakers in Their Own Union.

There seems to be a movement on foot against the Socialists in Cigarmakers' Union No. 12, of Oneida, N. Y. Adolph Strasser, the International representative, who was sent to try to arrange a settlement of the strike against Powell and Goldstein, insisted upon a settlement which the union rejected by a vote of 116 to 45. Mr. Strasser then stated that the shop would be open to all union men, that they could go to work and he would guarantee them protection of the International Union. Only twenty-seven men went to work on his guarantee.

Strasser has exceeded his authority and disregarded the constitution and he and his chief supporter, Mr. W. R. Ferguson have placed themselves in a compromising position by committing a great number of acts which cannot but throw suspicion upon them.

They appear to be making an effort to discredit and drive out the Socialist members of the union, who are among the most active and prominent members of the organization. Ferguson secured an affidavit from a disreputable and noforious scab that he heard Socialists pass a motion at one of their section meetings to elect only Socialists to office in the union. The fact that Strassers' proposition for settlement of the strike was defeated by a vote of 116 to 45 and that only 27 men went to work shows that the stand against him is not a Socialistic movement, but a strictly union movement.

Many men have come to work in the shop from other cities, carrying "blue cards," which shows that they have just joined the union. These men are under the control of Ferguson and at the regular meeting of the union on Feb. 4 he brought charges against the officers of the organization, unseated them by the power of the majority which the new men constituted and gave the "Fergusonites" full control.

It is reported that several unions in different parts of the country have protested against the action of the International officers, and have demanded that this matter be placed before the entire membership for a referendum vote.

TOLEDO WIDE AWAKE.

City Ticket Is Nominated—Chase Speaks to Good Audience, and Strickland, Vail, and Debs Are Coming.

The Socialist Party of Toledo, Ohio, met in convention on the evening of Tuesday, Feb. 11, at Harmonia Hall, and placed in nomination the following ticket, to be voted for at the April election:

For Street Commissioner—Frank Kostack.
For Water Works Trustee—Thomas A. Bragg.
For Cemetery Trustee—William Niwet.
For Constables—Ferdinand Klitzke and Frank Kolbe.

John C. Chase was with us on the 14th, and delivered his lecture, "The Class Struggle and the Future State." Against the advice of some, we charged an admission of ten cents, selling tickets in advance. The result was a success. More people attended than if it had been free, and after paying all expenses we will have something to send to the National Committee—and then some left over.

State Organizer Fred. G. Strickland will deliver an address in Harmonia Hall on Sunday, Feb. 23, at 2:30 p. m.—free.

We have modestly secured Comrade Vail for three of the seven dates assigned to Ohio. He will speak in the Annex at Memorial Hall on the following dates and subjects:

Thursday, March 6, "The Economic Evolution;" Friday, March 7, "The Socialist Movement;" Saturday, March 8, "The Solution of Modern Social and Economic Problems." The lectures will begin at 8 o'clock p. m., and a single admission will be ten cents, or the course for twenty-five cents. This will require some hustling, but the interest seems to be awakening. If all goes well we will have Comrade Debs to wind up just before election.

Nothing succeeds like success, and the way to succeed is to get out and do some hustling. C.

Toledo, Feb. 15.

LECTURES IN PHILADELPHIA.

Algernon Lee was the speaker, at last Thursday's meeting in the headquarters of Local Philadelphia, at 1022 Arch street. The meeting was the most successful yet held in the series; if the audiences continue to grow it will soon be necessary to get new quarters, as there was a "standing room only" last week. In the afternoon Comrade Lee addressed a club of women who are taking up the study of Socialism.

Thursday evening, Feb. 20, Edward Kuppinger will speak on the subject: "Organize: Why and How?" Admission is free and all are invited.

The subsequent lectures so far arranged are as follows: Feb. 27, "The Ballot the Weapon," by Ed. Moore; Mar. 6, "Conception of the Class Struggle in the Labor Movement," by Dr. G. Metzler; Mar. 13, "What Socialism Really Is," by Courtenay Lemon; Mar. 20, "A Critique of the Theory of Socialism," by Hugo Bilgram; Mar. 27, "Triumphant Socialism," by Henry Slobodin.

LABOR LAW IS KILLED.

Judge Says Eight-Hour Law Is Unconstitutional.

Causes Great Excitement in Central Federated Union—Conservatives Make Admissions—Unions Will Appeal, but with Small Chance of Success.

"A vote of thanks to Judge Beattie, of Newburg, may be in order for declaring the Eight-Hour Law unconstitutional and reminding the organized wage-workers of their neglect to use their great voting power.

"He has opened the eyes of every workingman.

"All labor laws made for twenty years past have been discounted in the interest of the money power.

"This is a lesson for Labor to take to heart. No matter which party is in power they always cheat labor.

"The chances are that the decision will be sustained.

"I am not yet in favor of independent political action, but one million of votes for organized Labor will bring respect for the workers' rights. This decision is an eye-opener."

This was the trend of remarks by Delegate Kelly.

This sounds queer when we realize that every meeting of the C. F. U. has brought up many lessons in the necessity for independent political action on the part of the working class. Let us hope that, if not Mr. Kelly, yet many others have at last had their eyes opened.

Brown Blames Leaders.

Morris Brown next took the floor. "Such words as these sound nice a few weeks after New Year's," he said, "but they sound better before election. It is the fault of labor leaders, that workingmen are kept in such misery—leaders who dine and banquet with politicians and exploiters.

"At present we are getting nothing. The legislatures know these laws will be declared unconstitutional. The legislatures are corrupt. You can petition and beg them all to no purpose. The only time to remedy these evils is once a year at the ballot box.

"The politicians know that they can find labor men who for a small position or a paltry few dollars will take the stump and work around election time for them. So long as the workingmen permit this, no remedy will be found for the rank and file."

Strike at the Ballot Box.

Dooley of the Franklin Association of Pressmen's Assistants called attention to the action of Frank Foster, the labor lobbyist of Massachusetts, who disappeared when many labor measures came up for hearing. He declared the policy of lobbying and petitioning worse than useless, and that the only remedy was to stand united in the interest of our class at the ballot box.

Comrade Jablinowski was granted the privilege of the floor, and made an earnest appeal for the support of the Social Democratic Party as being the only party that is based on the interests of the working class, and therefore the only party whose candidates, when elected, can be expected to enact real labor laws, hold them constitutional, and enforce them strictly.

The Progressive Payers reported that they had adopted a resolution condemning Judge Beattie for declaring the eight-hour law unconstitutional.

It is to be feared that the Judge will care very little for their resolution so long as they divide their votes between the two old parties, both of which put judges on the bench to declare labor laws unconstitutional and issue injunctions against strikers.

A Doubtful Appeal.

The matter was referred to the Law and Legislation Committee to carry it to the Court of Appeals and try to have the decision reversed.

Almost exactly a year ago the Prevailing Rate of Wages Law was carried to the Court of Appeals, and the Republican and Democratic judges in that tribunal agreed in declaring it unconstitutional and void. The present Republican sheriff of New York County, at that time a delegate in the C. F. U., said a great deal then about getting the constitution amended. His party is still in power, but nothing has been done to resurrect the Prevailing Rate of Wages Law; and if the unions carry the Eight-Hour Law to the Court of Appeals, it will doubtless share the same fate.

Employers' Liability Bill.

The Legislative Committee of the State Federation of Labor notified the C. F. U. that an energetic effort on the part of all labor organizations would be necessary in the effort to secure the passage of the Employers' Liability Bill, as there is a powerful opposition of railroad magnates and corporations trying to kill it.

Ben Hanford has said: "I would rather be the meanest skulking cur running around with his tail between his legs than as a workingman to go and humbly beg these masters to give me what is mine by right." We can pass resolutions begging "our" representatives to vote for the measure, and if we get down on our knees and humble ourselves enough we may get the bill through and we may not. If it does go through, some judge will declare it unconstitutional.

Even one thousand additional straight votes in this city each year for the uncompromising workingmen's ticket of the Social Democratic Party will do infinitely more to secure honest and effective labor legislation than all the begging resolutions passed by all the unions in the last fifteen years have done—and that is putting it mildly.

The Old Game.

The C. F. U. is endorsing labor measures at a rapid rate—among them a bill to abolish imprisonment of debtors, one to authorize the Aqueduct Commissioners to alter the contract for the Jerome Park Reservoir so that the Eight-Hour Law shall apply to all employees on that public work, and one to secure overtime pay, for Sunday and all work over eight hours for the employees of the Street Cleaning Department. Thus the C. F. U. starts the ball from the pitcher's box, but if the legislator at the bat at Albany does not send it back it will be caught by the Governor's veto or stop with a sudden jolt as it bumps against the backstop of the capitalist court.

DO NOT WANT BLOOD-MONEY.

The Twin City Trades and Labor Council of Berlin and Waterloo, Ont., has passed a strong resolution condemning the City Council for soliciting money from Andrew Carnegie to build a library for those cities, and reciting the evils resulting from the acceptance of money earned in so unrighteous a manner. The union men in Berlin and Waterloo fully understand that to benefit themselves at the expense of other workers who have been insufficiently paid for their services would be cowardly and criminal, says "Citizen and Country." They know, too, that to allow the money to be solicited by the cities without a protest on their part would be a tacit acknowledgement of Carnegie's right to the money he gives and would put them under a certain moral obligation of gratitude to the enemy of their class.

THE WORKER CONFERENCE.

The Worker Conference will hold its next regular meeting on Monday, Feb. 24, at 64 E. Fourth street, and every delegate should make a special effort to be present. The neglect of the delegates in this body is deserving of some action, as no meeting has been held for some months, and unless the delegates attend this meeting notice should be sent to each district calling for the election of new delegates. Matters of extreme importance should be taken up by The Worker Conference, and it is positively necessary that we have a good meeting. The Brooklyn Conference organized last Saturday, and has opened up a campaign that will make the comrades of New York open their eyes when the result of next election is announced. Every delegate must attend without fail.

—One dollar will buy forty copies of Hanford's "Railroading in the United States." Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY IN THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.

Saturday, the twenty-second of February, is Washington's Birthday. Patriotic Americans are supposed to have some sentimental regard for that day, as commemorating the birth of the Revolutionary general, the first President of the Republic, a historic figure who represents the ideal of free institutions and popular government.

We used to celebrate Washington's Birthday with songs and readings and orations designed to remind us of a revolutionary tradition, to inspire us anew with the ideal of resistance to tyranny and of devotion to liberty and equality.

We have changed all that.

This year we celebrate Washington's Birthday in true Twentieth Century fashion. We receive a prince—a real, live prince—on that day, and we do him all the honor we can. We put Washington and Revolution and Republic and liberty and equality in the background. Our public officials go out to welcome the representative of royalty and reaction and militarism and inequality. They escort him around to the public schools, even, and present him as an object-lesson in true greatness before the children.

And why do we do it?

What did Prince Henry ever do to deserve such honor, here or elsewhere? Nothing, absolutely nothing. He may not be a bad sort of fellow, personally; but you could find plenty of more useful men in five minutes' walk on any street frequented by workingmen.

What does he represent, since he has done nothing, that we should honor him? Does he represent the German people? Not a bit of it. They never authorized him to speak or act for them. He represents "Meinself und gott"—"Meinself" with a big "M" and "gott" with a little "g."

And that is just why we are making such a fuss over him.

For observe the "we" that is welcoming the Prince is the same "we" that is benevolently assimilating the Filipinos and enforcing the blessings of American institutions upon the Puerto Ricans—the same "we" that has a surplus of $2,000,000,000 a year on its hands—the same "we" that is so overwhelmingly prosperous that it has no time to think of eight-hour laws or the protection of toilers from fatal accidents at their work. That "we" is the capitalist class, which presumes to speak for all the people of this country, and recognizes the existence of working people only to issue injunctions against them and cajole them with "peace conferences."

A certain king once said: "I am the state." A certain capitalist once said: "The people be damned." Full-fledged capitalists have a very natural fellow-feeling with autocratic monarchs. Nothing is more proper than that President Roosevelt and Mayor Low, official representatives of the capitalist class of the country at large and of its metropolis, should wine and dine Prince Henry and welcome him as a friend and comrade.

We of the working class have no such feeling. We have nothing to do with this official welcome. The public officials have no right to greet Prince Henry in our name. Kings and capitalists are alike the enemies of our class.

Under Washington's command our forefathers fought for seven long years to establish political liberty, that there might no more be kings over us. We do well to remember them and honor them for that work and guard it for ourselves and our children.

But there is more to do.

"New occasions teach new duties
"Time makes ancient good uncouth;
"They must upward still and onward
"Who would keep abreast of truth."

When they fought for political liberty the time was not yet ripe for industrial liberty. It is our mission to fight for that, so that there shall no more be capitalists over us. If we fail to do our part in the Revolution of the Twentieth Century, we are false to the memories of the Revolution of 1776.

Let the lords of capital do honor to their royal friend, as is fit. But you, workingmen, think and act for yourselves, for your class, for the cause of Labor and prepare to treat Morgan the Great and Rockefeller the First as George Washington and his colleagues treated George the Third.

This is a Socialist sermon for Washington's Birthday. Doubtless it is very impolite, very unpatriotic, and not at all calculated to "promote harmony and good feeling between the upper and lower classes." The only merit it has is sincerity. Take it for what it is worth and think about it.

LABOR FESTIVAL.

To Be Held at Grand Central Palace.

This Year's Will Surpass All Occasions — Special Attraction — Many Sorts.

The great annual labor festival, Grand Central Palace, held by Socialist organizations every year on Washington's Birthday, has become an established feature of the social life of the working class in New York City—as distinctive a feature on that side as the Assembly or the Charity Ball is in capitalist circles. It has grown in favor from year to year, and this year's festival will far surpass all those held in the past.

The Arrangement Committee has spared no pains to make the affair a great success. Five hundred singers, representing all the progressive singing societies in the city, will participate in the concert, which begins at 4 o'clock p. m. Besides this an unusually fine vaudeville program has been arranged. Among the special "talent" engaged are the Mameluke troupe, the best acrobats and jugglers in America; Sugimoto's Japanese troupe, who will make their first appearance in New York; Turkish dancers, and a Moorish bull-fight will also add to the interest of the performance.

At 8 p. m. the mask and civic ball will be opened with a beautiful Spanish ballet by fifty young ladies under the direction of Prof. Gerber. During the ball will come what is expected to be the great hit of the day—the grand spectacle, "The Triumph of Labor."

On the whole the Committee is sure that the festival will be highly satisfactory to all—lovers of dancing, lovers of music, lovers of beauty, and lovers of fun. The doors will open at 3 p. m. Admission at the door will be 25 cents; tickets in advance, 25 cents, can be had at this office, 184 William street; Emerich's Hall, 214 E. Forty-first street; West Side Union Hotel, 342 W. Forty-second street; the W. E. A. Club Houses, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street and 3399 Third avenue; or wherever Socialist organizations are in the habit of meeting.

VAIL IN NEWARK.

Charles H. Vail will speak on "Social and Economic Problems" at the Turn Hall in Newark, N. J., Sunday evening, Feb. 23, at 8 o'clock.

TENDENCIES OF CAPITALISM.

Algernon Lee will lecture Sunday, Feb. 23, at 3 p. m., in Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Mark's Place, on "The Tendencies of Capitalism." Comrades should attend and bring their friends.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY
(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)
PUBLISHED WEEKLY
AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,
By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.
P. O. BOX 1512.
Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.
Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.25
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.25
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.
Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post office on April 6, 1901.

UNION PRINTED

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

Bring your friends to the Grand Central Palace, Saturday evening, Feb. 22. They will enjoy it and so will you.

Those capitalist papers which never tire of sneering at or denouncing "imported labor agitators" have only nauseating flattery to offer to an imported prince.

The "polite burglars" of Jersey City are creating quite a sensation. Somehow politeness seems to be inconsistent with burglary. Yet why so? If Morgan and Rockefeller and Carnegie, who [illegible] of millions that they do not [illegible] cultivate the graces of po[illegible]e, why not Tom Coughran, [illegible] only a few dollars?

MASTERS AND SLAVES.

One passage in Comrade Carey's reply to the "Boston "Advertiser" is so important that we would call especial attention to it. He says:

"That some of them[illegible]—that is, of the capitalists—are studying industrial problems, I have no doubt; that a few of them are honest in their desire to improve conditions, I quite agree; but the most of them"—even of the honest few—"are moved to study because the giant Labor shows signs of waking from his sleep of centuries."

Most emphatically, that is true. And the lesson of it is this:—Even though you do not believe that Labor can alone accomplish its own emancipation, even though you think it must depend upon help graciously given from above, yet you must recognize that help from above, whatever it may be worth, will come only in proportion as you energetically strive for your own class interests. No master class ever emancipated its slaves of its own free will. Individuals of the master class have often helped the slaves to freedom. But they have never done so until the slaves themselves began to struggle against oppression. The more vigorously the working class fights the capitalists, both in the shop and at the ballot-box, the more radical are its demands and the more uncompromising its methods, the readier will the capitalist class be to make liberal concessions.

It is observable that that "twentieth century newspaper," the New York "Journal," is among the loudest in its acclamations over the gracious visit of His Royal Highness, Prince Henry. "Consistency, thou art a jewel!" A jewel, indeed, so precious that even Millionaire Hearst does not display it.

The capitalist press is much more interested in urging the passage of a law against pigeon-shooting than in advocating an employers' liability measure for the protection of workmen's lives from the consequences of capitalist greed. This is one instance where a Socialist daily, owned and controlled by workingmen, would "fill a long felt want."

It has been sarcastically said of the English that "they do love a lord." It appears that we Americans do love a prince. Pity we haven't the courage to manufacture a few of our own. Morgan and Rockefeller and Carnegie would be no more powerful, and their power no more injurious to our liberty, if they had crowns and titles than they are now. Why not recognize the domestic product?

"GOOD MILITARY PLAN."

"It is fortunate that in the shuffle which permits of one additional regiment a full complement of one regiment may be organized in Newark, where there is an armory and where the largest municipal population in the state exists. Such a portioning of the National Guard is advantageous, in other particulars. It holds a complete regiment within narrow limits for quick transportation to almost any point in the state owing to the admirable railroad facilities which Newark enjoys, while not in the least inconveniencing General Wanser in organizing the new Fifth Regiment in the vicinity of Paterson."—New York Press.

Another paper tells us that recruits for the new regiment in New Jersey will be drawn from places along the railroad lines. This is cheerful news. While the workingmen are scrapping among each other whether they should vote for either a Republican or a Democratic "friend of labor," these self-same friends combined are enlarging the military force of the state to "suppress insurrection" as we read it in the Constitution of the United States.

An insurrection is an uprising against wrong. Every strike is considered an insurrection by those in power, and therefore we find the militia promptly on deck when a strike is in progress. If the workingmen of this country complain against this interpretation, let them send men from their own ranks to revise the Constitution to suit their own needs. Until they do they must not complain if the President and the Governors act according to the oaths which they pledge them to that Constitution.

F. K.

The withdrawal of F. G. R. Gordon from the ranks of the Socialist Party is, to our way of thinking, a matter for mutual congratulation. Gordon has long opposed the position of the party, insofar as it is based upon the interests and the struggles of the working class. Holding this opinion, he had no justification for remaining in the organization. Doubtless he will be more comfortable outside, and we shall get along very well without him.

Doubtless a number of pious profit-grinders in Massachusetts are seriously shocked at Comrade MacCarrney's proposal to repeal the law against Sunday fishing. They belong to the class that has seven days of leisure in every week, and can afford to forgo outdoor sport on one day; the working people have only Sunday and the enforced "observance of the Lord's day" thus keeps a monopoly of such sport for the dollar aristocrats. Of course, as a matter of fact, the aristocrats violate the law whenever they please; the law is made to protect them from the vulgar herd, not to govern them. With but little respect for the Sabbath tradition or for any other tenet of the religion they profess, they still think it highly important, as a means of "making the lower classes know their place in life" to inculcate piety upon them by penal law. Socialists think that matters of religious belief and observance can safely be left to the individual reason and conscience and that laws for the enforcement of such observances are never really designed for the promotion of morality, but only for the protection of class privileges.

FOR THE DAILY.

In advance of the publication of a call for funds, which will soon be issued, The Worker has received the following pledges of money for the proposed Socialist daily:

"I hereby subscribe $10 to the Daily Fund, to be paid when $50,000 is subscribed and assured.
"E. A. BUCKLAND."
"Holyoke, Mass.

"I hereby pledge myself to contribute for a daily the sum of $20, to be paid on or before July 1, 1902.
"WM. E. WHITE."
"New Haven, Conn.

"I pledge $25 for the daily.
"FREDERICK KRAFFT."
"Jersey City, N. J.

THE GHOST SEER.

See ye not that woman pale?
There are bloodhounds on her trail!
Bloodhounds two, all gaunt and lean,
For the soul their scent is keen.
Want and Sin, and Sin is last.
They have followed far and fast:
Want gave tongue, and at her howling,
Sin awakened with a growl.
Ah, poor girl! She had a right
To a blessing from the light.
Title deeds to sky and earth
God gave her at her birth;
But, before they were explored,
Poverty had made them void.
And had drunk the sunshine up
From all natures's ample cup,
Leaving a final sediment
In the dregs of darkness there.
Hark! that rustle, of a dress,
Stiff with lavish costliness!
Here comes one whose cheek would flush
But to have her garments brush
'Gainst the girl, whose fingers thin,
Wore the weary shuttle in,
Bending backward from her toil,
Lest her tears the silk might soil.
And, in midnight's chill and murk,
Stitched her life into the work,
Shaping from her bitter thoughts
Heart's-ease and forget-me-nots,
Scattering her despair
With the emblems woven there.
Little doth the wearer heed
Of the dear-bought web in the brede;
A hyena by her side
Skulks, down-looking—it is Pride.

—Lowell.

——The Worker costs 50 cents a year or 25 cents for six months.

FROM THE SOCIALIST STANDPOINT.

BY CHARLES DOBBS.

On the night of Feb. 5, at P. A. B. Widener's Philadelphia palace, there was spread a Belshazzar feast, at which thirty-seven plutocrats, estimated aggregate wealth $500,000,000, ate and drank what is described as "a comfortable fortune." Doubtless there was handwriting on the wall, but among the revelers there was no eye to see, no mind to interpret it. It was in this same City of Brotherly Love that there were found, two or three days prior to the spread and consumption of this "comfortable fortune" feed, an old woman and her son dead and two daughters insane and dying from starvation.

EXEMPLA SUNT ODIOSA

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., lectured before the students of Brown University the other night on "Business," and said that "honesty, perseverance, and industry are the requisites of a successful business life." Of course, young John, having been born successful, knows nothing personally about achieving success, and the first of his three requisites shows that he didn't reach his conclusions from a study of papa's career.

Y. M. C. A. INVADES RUSSIA.

That remarkable American institution, the Young Men's Christian Association, has received the distinguished compliment of recognition and patronage from Russian royalty and its psalm-slinging promoters and representatives in this country will congratulate themselves on securing a foothold in the domain of the despotic Czar. How the Y. M. C. A. got into Russia and the character of the work it is doing are explained in the following correspondence of the Associated Press:

"ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 17.—The bestowal of the Order of St. Anne, third class, upon Franklin Gaylord, an American secretary of the Russian Society for the Moral and Physical Development of Young Men, organized by himself and James Stokes of New York), previously referred to in a cable dispatch from here, is gratifying to the whole American colony, of which Mr. Gaylord is one of the most popular members, as the Czar's way of recognizing the work of Mr. Gaylord in connection with the Young Men's Society. This organization, it is scarcely necessary to say, is the Russian counterpart of the Young Men's Christian Association in the United States.

"Messrs. Stokes and Gaylord had anything but easy sailing when they began their efforts to institute the Young Men's Society. Indeed, their attempts to transplant the Y. M. C. A. to Russia never advanced an inch until they succeeded in enlisting the interest of the Czarina and Prince Alexander of Odenbourg.

"The society has enjoyed complete immunity from interference by any branch of the government. The religious features are directed by priests of the Orthodox Russian Church. THE ORGANIZATION ATTRACTED FAVORABLE ATTENTION LAST YEAR FROM THE FACT THAT THE YOUNG MEN UNDER ITS INFLUENCE REFRAINED FROM PARTICIPATING IN THE POLITICAL DISTURBANCES.

"Among others who have taken an interest in the society are the Princess Alexander of Oldenbourg, Baron Freedericksz, Minister of the Court, and Prince Khilkoff, Minister of Railroads, 'the best friend of America in Russia,' as he is known to Americans here. Prince Khilkoff sent an official to the United States to investigate the operations of the railroad Y. M. C. A. This official told the correspondent of the Associated Press recently that Prince Khilkoff fully intended introducing the railroad Y. M. C. A. in some form as soon as the work of Mr. Gaylord's society had become sufficiently established to afford needed data and experience, for such institutions cannot be introduced into Russia without modification."

The statement that "the organization attracted favorable attention last year from the fact that the young men under its influence refrained from participating in the political disturbances" shows quite clearly that the Russian Y. M. C. A. product is identical with his American brother. He is the "good" young man, the "faithful and industrious employee" who gullelessly follows in mental and moral paths wherever his capitalist master leads him. He never goes on strike; for the most part he is recruited from the ranks of the miserably paid dry goods clerks and bookkeepers who speak of the men in overalls as "our lower classes;" he delights in the uniform of the militia; to him the robust manliness of the Russian students is "Anarchistic."

Of course the type is welcomed in Russia. The only wonder is that the astute advisers of the Czar did not sooner see the fine points of this product of "the land of the free and the home of the brave"—these exemplary young men whom a witty woman calls Y.-M.-C.-A.-ses.

CHRISTIANITY UP TO DATE.

THE OLD.—(Matthew xix.)—And behold, one came and said unto him, Good Master, what good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life? * * * Jesus said unto him, If thou wilt be perfect go and sell all that thou hast and give to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me. But when the young man heard that saying he went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions.

THE NEW.—(Associated Press.)—Providence, R. I., Feb. 3.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of New York City, addressed the students of Brown University last evening on the subject "Business." He said that honesty, perseverance and industry were the requisites of a successful business life, and that to maintain prosperity one must be a Christian. Business and Christianity are essential for the success of each other, he said.

THE NEXT SHAM BATTLE.

One of the abundant signs that the capitalist political parties are preparing to revive the tariff issue is a pamphlet by Byron W. Holt, issued by the American Free Trade League. Mr. Holt's pamphlet is entitled "Prices and Wages," and is written to refute the Republican contention that in the present period of "unexampled prosperity" the workingmen are carrying seven-course dinners in their pails and suffering from mental worry over the problem how to invest their surplus earnings. The free trader triumphantly demonstrates the obvious fact that the working class is not, as the Republican spellbinder fondly depicts, rolling in luxury.

This is not a difficult conclusion for even a capitalist free trader, but Mr. Holt, from the manufacturing statistics of thirty-three states for 1900, announces the additional and interesting discovery that the per capita wage of 1900 is 7 per cent. less than 1890—in some states less and in others more, New Jersey showing a decrease of 32 per cent. in the ten years. The pamphlet goes further, and proves that a dollar in 1900 bought 6 per cent. less than in 1890, making the real average reduction in wages not 7, but 13 per cent.

The Greek bearing gifts and the capitalist—free trader or protectionist—telling the truth about wages are alike objects of legitimate suspicion, and it is well to seek an explanation for this free trade outburst of frankness. The only theory that appears reasonable is that the capitalists are sorely in need of an issue and expect to provide it by admitting that protection has failed to give the worker "an ever increasing portion of an ever increasing product."

The 16 to 1 issue is dead beyond the hope of resurrection, anti-imperialism, with its tearful appeals for the abused Filipinos, has about served its purpose to divide the working class vote and it is a vital capitalist necessity that a new issue be provided to keep the worker from pondering on why he doesn't get the whole of his product.

Mr. Holt's pamphlet, it must be admitted, will appeal powerfully to the workers and convince them that they haven't shared in the "unexampled prosperity." In spite of McKinleyism and Rooseveltism, wages have declined and the purchasing power of the dollar has been reduced. This the pamphlet conclusively proves, but in the free trader's presentation of his subject there is a fatal defect. This defect is in his neglect to tell the wage workers, for whose welfare he is seemingly so solicitous, how free trade would improve the deplorable conditions.

It is probable, however, that the capitalist free trader doesn't regard this defect as a defect at all. Experience certainly justifies the capitalist in assuming that, as a majority of the working class have not yet shown that enlightened appreciation of their own interests which makes men ask vital questions, the worker will not ask now "But where do I come in?"

It is entirely probable that the "robber barons" who have profited by protection are themselves ready to see the tariff duties scaled down. The most ingenious exploiters of labor in the world, the American capitalists, have no fear of successful foreign competition. Accordingly they can view with equanimity the prospect of defeat in a "tariff reform" battle. Of course they will make a pretense of resistance, the red fire will sputter, the tin horns and the orators will bray, and there will be prodigious noise and smoke, but when it is all over the capitalist will be found doing business at the same old stand right on the worker's back.

STATE SOCIALISM AND SOCIAL DEMOCRACY.

The economic activity of the modern state is the natural starting point of every step which leads to the Socialist commonwealth. This is by no means the same as saying that every nationalization of an economic function or an economic industry is a step towards the Socialist commonwealth, and that this can follow a general nationalization of all economic industries without any change in the nature of the government.

This view—the view of the so-called State Socialists—rests on a misconception of the state. Like every form of government, the modern state is a tool for the accomplishment of the common interests of the ruling classes. It does not change in character at all when it takes on itself functions useful to the public, which are advantageous not only to the ruling classes, but even to society at large. It often undertakes these functions merely because their neglect would endanger the interests of the ruling class along with the rest of society. But in no case does it administer these functions in a way that antagonizes the interests of the upper classes or threatens their power.

If the present state nationalizes certain industries and functions, it does this not to lessen the profit of the capitalist, but to protect and strengthen the capitalistic system of production, or else—to get for itself a share of the profit, and so increase its revenue and lessen the taxes which the capitalist class must pay for its support. And as an exploiter, the state has even better facilities than the private capitalists, because against the exploited it can bring to bear not only economic powers of the capitalist, but also the political power of the executive government.

Up to this time the state has carried nationalization no further than suited the interests of the ruling classes, and so will it act in future. So long as the propertied classes are also the ruling classes, the nationalization of industries will never go so far that private property in capital and land will be injured or limited in its power and its opportunities for profit.

Only when the working class becomes the ruling power in the state will it cease to be a capitalistic concern; only then will it be possible to make it a Socialist commonwealth on a Democratic basis.

From the knowledge of these facts comes the hard task which the Social Democracy has set for itself; it intends that the working classes shall conquer political power and annihilate capitalism, but it also intends to change the state into a great self-sufficing co-operative commonwealth, with safeguards against any kind of oppression, even such as might emanate from a bureaucracy or a new kind of hierarchy.—Social Democratic Herald.

——If you like this paper, subscribe for it.

NATIONAL CASH REGISTER FAKE.

Capitalist Hypocrisy as Exemplified in "the World's Model Factory."

The works of the National Cash Register Company at Dayton, Ohio, have long been pointed to as the "model factory of the world." The advocates of "industrial betterment," so-called "social service," and other schemes for keeping workingmen contented while they are being robbed, have pointed to this institution as an illustration of "the identical interests of labor and capital," and as an example of how much good could be done to society by kind-hearted, beneyolent capitalists.

This concern is now on the unfair list of organized labor. The following account of its methods, from the "Butler County Press," of Hamilton, Ohio, shows the impossibility of eradicating the class struggle which arises from the antagonistic interests of the workers and the capitalists even by the use of the most refined methods of exploitation and hypocritical trickery."

The reputation of this firm, says the "Butler County Press," was gained by advertising to the world how well they treated their employees and how satisfied and contented they were. They would even discharge any man or woman who had the temerity to deny it, but they were continually antagonizing labor unions that they might keep their employees from organizing and in complete subjection to themselves.

This much-lauded concern has had five strikes in the last three years, the men insisting upon being independent and thinking for themselves, a thing which is contrary to the National Cash Register Company's idea of what workingmen are entitled to. When those "contented" men did join labor unions, the firm immediately began to take an interest in their meetings, and in order to keep in closer touch with them they hired dectectives and spies from secret agencies to keep a protecting eye upon them. The duty of these spies was to time the men on their work, and suggest which jobs should be reduced, to take note of all conversations among the men, to report the proceedings of their meetings, etc., etc., for which they received one hundred dollars per month. Five of these traitors in the employ of this company were exposed at the same time.

In applying for a job there you must answer more than twenty questions, such as "Tell your religion," "What education have you?" "Do you drink or not?" "Ever married?" "Ever arrested?" "Where did you work last?" "Why discharged?" If all goes well and you land, you then proceed to the company's doctor for a physical examination, which costs you a dollar, pass or not, and if you do pass, all you have to do is to sign an agreement to live up strictly to a lengthy list of iron-clad rules. You then get a job which pays you anywhere from a dollar and ten cents a day up, and if you have any tattle-tale propensities, you are in a fair way for promotion.

When the Dayton public library decided to place branch libraries in various parts of the city, they gladly accepted the use of a small building of the firm's near their factory as they volunteered to attend to the carrying of the books to and from the main library. In a very short time the whole world had seen pictures and descriptions of that library which the "model factory" claimed as their own.

These philanthropical fakirs furnish the three hundred girls who work on the drill presses, make the locks and do the typewriting, a "light, easily digested lunch" whose menu, if compared with that of a three-cent lunch room, would appear insignificant. Nevertheless, the girls would rather pay this than carry their lunches, or invite the displeasure of the company; besides, it makes another pretty exhibit, for visitors who, by the way, are not made aware that any charge exists.

The business acumen which has made the millions which this firm possesses was again displayed in the unique scheme which, for advertising purposes was called the boys' gardens, twenty-five dollars in prizes—ranging from two dollars and a half to five dollars tied up in little blue silk bags—were offered to the juvenile population of the neighborhood for cultivating several acres of their land; they furnished the seeds free through the kindly agencies of the agricultural department of the United States government. This land has now advanced to double its former price, and photographs of it are being used to good advantage by their agents.

This firm has its own wells and pumps its own water, and as the factory is well piped throughout these benevolent employers saw another chance to advertise their contented men, and put up a few sprinklers on each floor, where the men (who, by the way, are nearly all piece-workers) were allowed twenty minutes each week to wash themselves, provided that they furnished their own towels and soap. This was appreciated until the price of the men's independence had to pay the bill, besides having to submit to the photographer during their ablutions, the pictures of which were audaciously shown to the world.

But when they introduced McTaggartism—that was the straw that broke the camel's back. This McTaggart had worked up a beautiful reputation in the East as a labor-crusher, and when his fame in that line reached the ears of this grand institution, he was quickly hired and immediately applied his talents in line to the existing unions which were easily disposed of by his deft manipulations. This was repeated twice within three years, he having each time discovered that a new union had been organized; and the reduction of wages and the unjust discrimination against the men never ceased. His principal vocation is cutting wages, disrupting unions and going to church. When the men became desperate, and, after forming another local, demanded recognition, he simply said: "You have made your bed; now lie in it," and in less than one year from that time twenty-two of those men were discharged on one pretext or another; and when the union ordered their committee to ask that it be stopped, it was also discharged, and the men were compelled to go on a strike for their rights. Since that time this firm has resorted to every contemptible means to gain public sympathy and sell their product. They have imported men (?) to fill the strikers' places, and by various subtle influences have corrupted a creature claring that the firm is in the right; but in spite of their millions and their living lies and their false statements, it looks as if the men who are fighting so nobly for the grand cause would soon obtain recognition.

THINGS CONSTITUTIONAL.

BY PETER E. BURROWES.

Would you believe it!. It seems incredible but 'tis true. Do you know it's a fact that the government contractors (splendid fellows as they are) object to the reduction of the American white man's burden to eight hours a day? Not that they are hostile as Christian gentlemen to doing the poor white man good, but the policy of offering him an everlasting life hereafter naturally seeks to lengthen his days in the herenow.

It is not as advocates of "the life that knows no ending" that the good men from the Carnegie, Frick, Cramp, and Midvale millions are strenuously opposing the eight hour day. But how is higher education at the new university to prosper if the steel shares with which Mr. Carnegie endows it fall in value! And sure they must fall in value if the poor white man's burden is reduced. It is liberty, dear, dear liberty, that we all love so ardently in the United States. It is this love of ours for liberty that lies at the root of all our inconsistencies. And what is the fundamental rock bottom principle of liberty? It is the right to do the thing that is necessary for an American capitalist to do as he likes in order to be the blessing that he is to himself, it follows that any law restraining him is a violation of liberty. All liberty in his estimation lies outside the law. But he is not therefore an anarchist. Oh dear no, he only hates law and sighs, like travellers in the "L" cars, for the room on top. It is not eight hours he hates; ten hours would be equally objectionable. It is the law that holds his blood red hand he hates.

Now don't misunderstand me. It is not that way that J. H. Hayden and Hilary A. Herbert and George William and Archibald Johnson, honorable men, ex-cabinet ministers, and converted laborers all of them, put the argument. They simply fear the strict application of it, don't you know. The eyes of their great anxious apprehension are turned on that. As if any body of men alive which includes ex-cabinet ministers and trust magnates seriously fear a strict application of law adversus dollars.

But the great point scored against the eight hour law was made by Johnson, a former laborer, now converted, of the Bethlehem works (queer name for a gun factory)—that you could not possibly cast cannon balls on eight hours a day. Cannon balls are, of course, a great blessing, but much as I love my cannon ball I am willing to part with it if it cannot be had on eight hours a day. Would you believe what Judge Beattie, one of the finest specimens of our Appellate Judges, has to say about that poor dog, the eight-hour law; which was born mangy in New York state in a political caucus, and has never really barked, wagged its tail, nor walked on all of its four legs at one time in all its life. He says it is unconstitutional! Of course it is. It never had any constitution. It was the yellowest of yellow dogs from its puppyhood. Let us drop a tear over poor dog Tray, who was never faithful.

Now let us inquire of each other what other laws are unconstitutional. There were eunuchs in oriental courts whose business it was to strangle high personages who fell into disfavor with the Sultan. They took great people into those secret divans, and they were taken out by the heels after the execution. This is the way American judges have taken to execute the laws of the land. I mean, of course, the labor laws of the land. They execute the laws themselves; they take them to the court of appeals and strangle them for being unconstitutional.

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey"
Where judges rule and trembling laws decay;
Where to the golden god the judge bows low
Condemns the law and lets the culprit go."

Let us ask what would make any measure passed to protect labor from the strenuousity of high placed greed a constitutional measure? Here is play for the imagination of any reader. Think it over. Suppose eight hours, and no more, were necessary to save us from smallpox, would it be constitutional? Would that depend on whom you mean by "us?" Think it over.

"Verily I say unto you, you shall not come thence until you have paid the uttermost farthing." A father shylocky creditor who was severely censured some years ago in England for the greedy way in which he had squeezed every pound which one of his creditors had earned throughout a life time, declared that he never cared for that man's pounds, it was the last penny he was always after, and until he got that he would not be satisfied. This is the basis of the law between capital and labor. The law that gives capital that last hour, and that law alone, can be constitutional in our courts forever.

All our state constitutions have been grievously out of date, and consultations a many have been found necessary to keep them from becoming decayed, too visibly so to the naked eye. They have sat the remains up, painted their cheeks, put pipes in their mouths, and dool squeakers under the front buckles of their belts, but, alas, they don't look like life; not a bit of it, because they are dead. And also because there is nothing in this world which the constitutional convenors would run over themselves to escape from so quickly as a live constitution with the power of declaring its intentions. Our league is with death.

THE PASSING SHOW.

The new broom which has been set standing upon its handle in the City Hall will sweep everything but the inherent roguery of money politics out of our city government. We have to be indignant to be indignant, and not be too friendly to Dady and Guden. We are able to breed rogues enough in the party to sacrifice such of them as were fools enough to be found out. Schieren of Brooklyn, therefore, weeps over Dady of the same borough, but not over Quay nor Hanna. The undiscovered rascal is the man to whom the laurels belong. Hurrah, therefore, for the senators we don't know.

The integrity of China and Corea has been preserved. The preservation has been done by Great Britain with the hearty concurrence of the United States. This is pleasant news, a rift of light as it were in the oriental cloud. Integrity is a nice thing to be preserving—especially when it is so far away from home. We congratulate our Britannic sister on her good work, and we hope she congratulates us on ours. For are not we also busy in preserving the integrity of the Philippines.

"How sweet the tie that binds," et cetera.

If the gentleman who is now head cook over Brooklyn Bridge were less of a private citizen, he says, and more of a public functionary he could do your bridge better. Again, he complains, if he were more of a private trolley company and less of a municipal government he could do you and your bridge brown. The bridge is an amphibious creature anyway; and a neither-one-thing-nor-the-other administration fits it nicely.

MODERN THIEVES.

In London, it is said, when the thieves want to ply their calling, they assemble and two of them pretend to engage in a brawl while the rest of the gang go to picking pockets. Then when a sufficient haul has been made, the cry of "police" is raised and the gang scatters to meet again in some nearby cellar to divide the spoils. So it is with the political parties in this country. Every four years they meet, pretend to wrangle, get the crowd excited, gather in the swag, and then holler police, disperse the multitude and divide the loot.

The labor movement has for its object the abolition of poverty, the uplifting of humanity, to abolish the condition which makes it necessary to delve and toil, to manifold the millions of some god with clay feet and clay soul, who, when you have created, you take books from him when he has robbed you of beef. If a thief robs you, he stands a chance of going to jail; but if a J. Pierpont Morgan robs a million men of a million dollars, why he's just a millionaire.

The millionaire considers the horse, the mule, the factory, the workshop, the mill, the mine, and the workingman by numbers; and if the workingman and the mule should die, he feels sorrier because of the mule, for the workman can be replaced at less cost. Every power that money can obtain the millionaire possesses himself of. The government, the press, the pulpit, are all fast becoming fools to obey his will. You workingmen have no chains about you. Oh! no. You are too tame to need any. Why waste money in chains? The master knows that you will come back in the morning.—BEN TILLETT.

CAPITALISM AND THE HOME.

Through the classes of society economics rule in matrimony with a rod of iron. The result is that a large per cent. of marriages are destitute of love. The parties are tied together by commercialism, which is as cold and cruel as the grave. Many hide their unhappiness and live together till death ends their wretchedness. With many others the marriage tie is unbearable, and they appeal to the court for divorce. As capitalism has grown, the number of divorces has increased. The Socialist knows the cause. The Socialist is the only one that can point out the remedy. Socialism will destroy capitalism and establish economic equality. Classes in society will disappear, and the commercial consideration which controls matrimony to-day will entirely disappear. Marriage will be the result of mutual affection, and the home will become most sacred. Hearts bound together by love will make society pure and happy. If private capitalism long continues, the home is doomed to destruction and civilization will be destroyed.—Ex.

OUR SOCIAL NATURE.

The closer we study the individual, the more do his alleged individualities cease, as such, and disappear in the general laws by virtue of which society exists; the less baggage does he prove to have which is really his own; the more do all his thoughts, traits, and features turn out to be those of others; so that, at last, he melts into the mass, and there is nothing left which he has a right to claim as his personal property. His pretended personal mind is the reflex of the group-minds around him, as his body is in every fibre and cell the repetition of his species and race. As an American writer strongly puts it: "Morally I am as much a part of society as physically I am a part of the world's fauna."—D. G. Brinton, in "The Basis of Social Relations."

THE DAWN OF PEACE.

Put off, put off your mail, O kings,
And rust your brands to dust!
Your hands must learn a surer grasp,
Your hearts a better trust.

Oh, bend aback the lances's point,
And break the helmet bar:
A noise is in the morning wind,
But not the note of war.

Upon the grassy mountain paths
The glittering hosts increase—
They come! They come! How fair their feet!
They come who publish peace.

And victory, fair victory,
Our enemies are ours!
For all the clouds are clasped in light,
And all the earth with flowers.

Aye, still depressed and dim with dew!
But wait a little while,
And with the radiant, deathless rose
The wilderness shall smile.

And every tender, living thing
Shall feed by streams of rest,
Nor lamb shall from the flock be lost,
Nor undoing from the nest.

—John Ruskin.

——Before a Providence that lifted the load of drudgery from tired shoulders, made labor a joy and an inspiration, banished slums and tenements, and established all mankind in proprietorship of meadows and lakes and mountains and seas, of health and freedom, would not the heart of the world leap with a hitherto unknown gladness?—Wm. T. Brown.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

London Justice.

It is impossible not to take a deep interest in the present development of Socialism in France. How our comrades, Jaurès and Gerault-Richard, can continue to support Millerand because he now and then makes a speech, as at St. Etienne, passes our comprehension. It is a safe rule in politics to mark what men do and to pay little attention to what they say. Judged from this standpoint, Millerand can no longer be regarded as a militant Socialist. What he has allowed himself to be a party to without tendering his resignation would cause a political rhinoceros to die of indigestion, and it is creditable to the openness and fairness of the "Petite Republique" that it published the other day Amilcare Cipriani's forcible indictment against him. The continued presence of Millerand in the French Cabinet does, in fact, cast a slur upon International Socialism. On the other hand, there is no denying that the opponents of Millerand have done some very queer things themselves, and of course Jaurès and his friends do not forget to tell it on about their backslidings. It is all very regrettable. And now the Parti Ouvrier has had a terrible blow, which, with complete frankness, the "Socialiste" admits to have been a terrible blow, at Roubaix, of all places in the world. This town has been held up throughout Europe, and with justice, as a model of what even intermediary management might be under Socialist guidance. After having held control for years the men of the Guesde-Lafargue section have been beaten, to the great delight of the reactionists. Once more we say it is all very regrettable, but we should only make matters worse by criticism at this juncture.

The Workers' Call.

An amusing story is related by the Cleveland "Plaindealer" in which a man who had been arrested for stealing carpenter's tools, applied to Mayor Johnson, the famous single taxer, for pardon. The detective who collected the evidence stated that the tool thief was a very common and very despicable variety of criminal, inasmuch as he deprived workingmen of the ability to earn a living. The mayor was inclined to agree with this view of the matter when the prisoner, seeing that things were going against him, asserted that he was one of the mayor's most enthusiastic supporters last spring. "That settles it," said Mr. Johnson, "the pardon is not granted," and the prisoner went back to jail.

While the decision was no doubt just, it is not quite in harmony with the Single Tax philosophy. It is certainly uncommon to hear a Single Tax advocate admit that the withholding of tools deprives a man of the ability to earn a living. As a rule the single taxer sees no significance in the fact that it is this very condition of affairs which now prevents the majority of workingmen from working to satisfy their needs. The tools are held by the capitalist in private ownership. We won't say he stole them, but they are undoubtedly the result of the labor of the working class. If Mayor Johnson were to make a generalization of his verdict and apply it broadly to society, he could hardly miss seeing that something more than land is necessary towards earning a living in this complex civilization of the present day.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

In a small pamphlet entitled "The Conspiracy against Free Speech and Free Press," Governor Pyburn recounts the outrages against constitutional rights which have been perpetrated since the assassination of McKinley and are the result of industrial and political imperialism. The pamphlet is for sale by Edwin C. Walker, 244 W. One Hundred and Forty-third street, New York City, at 6 cents a copy.

The first number of "Humanity," a little Socialistic magazine edited by Nathan A. Cole, and published monthly at 102 Fourteenth street, Hoboken, N. J., has appeared. We note with regret that this little monthly confuses Christianity and New Zealand reforms with Socialism, as the spread of such misconceptions can only harm the movement.

MASS MEETING IN BROOKLYN.

A mass-meeting will be held in the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, 949-955 Willoughby avenue, on Monday, Feb. 24, at 8 p. m., under the joint auspices of the 5th, 15th, 19th, and 20th Assembly Districts of Brooklyn. Comrades and sympathizers are requested to attend and help make this meeting a success. Prominent English and German speakers will lecture on "The Necessity of Political Organization for the Workingmen." Postals have been sent to all enrolled S. D. P. voters, trade unions, etc., have been invited to attend and the districts flooded with circulars.

After the agitation meeting, the regular meeting for the election of a district organizer will take place, and the comrades of these four assembly districts must have their cards of membership with them.

——Are you a commuter? See that every conductor or brakeman on the line gets a copy of "Railroading in the United States." Send $1 for forty copies.

——As soon as Capital finds that the votes of the workingmen can be cast for the benefit of their own class, capitalists will respect the laborer. At present, Labor is divided—and the rich use the workingmen's votes to blast the workingmen and their offspring. The workingmen have an opportunity in this country to defend themselves that those of other lands have not—let them form voting organizations.—W. S. Waudby, in Typographical Journal.

PARTY NOTES.

Kings County Committee has changed its regular meetings from the second and fourth Sunday afternoons of the month to the second and fourth Saturday evenings. Meeting on Feb. 22, at Socialist Club, Fulton street and Ralph avenue.

The 6th A. D., Brooklyn, will hold a smoker and entertainment on Saturday evening, Mar. 8, at Kugel's Excelsior Hall, 30 Sumner avenue. Tickets, 10 cents.

On Feb. 14 the Ladies' Auxiliary, Local Rochester, gave a very enjoyable dancing and card party. There was a large attendance at Shoemakers' Hall, and the varied costumes presented a beautiful sight. Ice cream and cake were served and valentines sold; cards being played in another adjoining room.

Branch 4 of Essex County, N. J., with headquarters at 124 Market street, Newark, has elected as secretary, N. Zwart, to whom all correspondence should be forwarded. Address 310 Morris avenue, Newark, N. J.

Maine gained three locals during January.

Comrades at Brockton, Mass., ordered 10,000 platforms from National Headquarters.

Socialists of Quincy, Mass., are holding public meetings every Sunday afternoon at their hall on Hancock street. The Socialist City Committee has organized for 1902 with the following officers: Chairman, J. Fox; Secretary, Wm. M. Packard; Treasurer, H. J. Rendle. The Quincy Socialist Club has applied for a charter.

Representative James F. Carey will speak in Cambridge, Mass., in Temple of Honor Hall, 591 Massachusetts avenue, on Friday, Feb. 28, at 8 p. m. Readers of The Worker are invited to attend and bring their friends.

A meeting of Ward 9 club, Boston, will be held next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at 724 Washington street. All members should be present and unattached Socialists of adjoining wards are invited to attend and consider organization.

Some New Haven comrades visited the Molders' Union in Branford last Thursday. Thirty members were present, and Comrades Ahern and Mahoney addressed the meeting for over an hour. Twenty copies of Father McGrady's books were sold and party papers distributed. Comrade Ahern will develop into an excellent speaker.

The New Haven city convention of the Socialist Party will meet Saturday evening, March 1, and nominate a ticket for the April election. Members should attend the meetings of their ward clubs and elect delegates to the convention.

The Socialist League of Philadelphia is a new organization having for its purpose the study and propaganda of Socialism. The League meets on the first and third Wednesday evenings of each month at 251 Pine street. All are welcome. The membership of the League is now about sixty.

The employees of the Terre Haute (Ind.,) Street Railway Company are engaged in a monster strike. Eugene V. Debs has entered the struggle with characteristic energy and devotion. In a long letter to the working people, published in the special street car strike edition of the Terre Haute "Toiler," Comrade Debs says:

"I have entered this fight and every atom of my energy is at the service of the men engaged in it; and if the working class of this locality prove true to themselves, as I believe they will, they will assert their right and their might, bring this arrogant corporation to its senses and compel it to concede the men who made and laid every inch of its tracks, and made and move every one of its cars, a voice in determining the conditions of their employment.

* * *

"It is with pleasure that I avow my full share of responsibility for the demonstration and all I have to say is that no good man has aught to fear from it.

"My own personality ought not to be a feature of this address, but perhaps I should not altogether ignore the insinuations of the crafty tools who fear that workingmen may profit by my advice and my experience. They have said that I am a Jonah, to which I answer, better a Jonah than a Judas."

Illinois in December had twenty-five locals and 970 members in good standing. Elections for city officers will be held on April 8.

Kentucky comrades will hold state convention at Newport on March 16.

The Socialists of Dubuque, Ia., are on the eve of their first city campaign. The increase of their vote last fall was over 200 per cent., and they hope to make another good gain this time.

Kansas has thirty-five locals and 163 members in good standing. City elections will be held on April 8.

Montana Socialists have completed state organization and located state headquarters at Helena.

The "Chieftain" of San Diego, having suspended, the local is talking of starting a paper of its own.

Los Angeles now has another Socialist paper, a monthly, published by Comrade J. Stitt Wilson and colleagues, "The Social Crusader."

John C. Chase will lecture in Indiana Feb. 15 to 22. He will also lecture in Missouri during February.

When the municipal election took place in Northport, Wash., last November the new councilmen elected were equally divided between the Socialists and the other political parties. The Democrats and Republicans recently combined against the Socialists and took possession of the city hall and kept the Socialists locked out of the building. A sample of the capitalists' regard for "law and order." One night the Socialists perpetrated a coup d'etat by seizing Councilman Nelson, an anti-Socialist, and taking him with them to the city hall. Being still unable to enter they held a council meeting in the street, Nelson's presence making up a quorum. They then proceeded to elect John C. Harkness police judge and C. C. Anderson city marshal. Both men are Socialists. The anti-Socialists refuse to recognize this action, and the case will be taken to court.

Local charters have been issued to Rigby, Idaho; Kingston and Ogden, and Elsinore, St. Hilaire, Hendrum, Ada, and Eldred, Minn.

A national referendum of the Socialist Party will be taken before April 1, in forty-five states and territories, on proposed amendment to Article 6, Section 4, of the national constitution of the party and on party emblem. Six hundred circular letters of instruction, 12,000 membership ballots, and 1,000 recording secretary's return cards have been sent from national headquarters to all state secretaries and to local secretaries in unorganized states.

August Mausbach is agent of The Worker in Detroit, Mich. His address is 361 Hendrick street.

Comrade Spargo has just received a beautiful illuminated address from the Executive Council of the Ontario Socialist League in recognition of his services to the Socialist movement during his Canadian tour last fall.

CAMPAIGN FUND.

To the Holders of Subscription Lists for the Campaign Fund of the Social Democratic Party of the City of New York:

Comrades and friends who still have subscription lists in their possession are requested to send the lists in at once, as the Campaign Committee would like to wind up its business as soon as possible. As there is some deficiency the comrades would confer a favor on the committee by promptly returning lists and money collected, as it may help the committee to meet all its liabilities. Those who have not collected any money on their lists are also requested to turn in their lists, as this will greatly aid the auditing committee in auditing the accounts. Therefore, come rush in your lists, lists with dimes, quarters, and dollars are preferred, but we want all, even the empty ones. Send lists and money to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street.

Previously acknowledged	$2,240.79
List 2922, Lee	1.00
List 729, Wm. Flachler	.50
List 5067, A. K. and S. K., Br. 24	.75
List 5070, do	1.00
List 5071, do	.70
List 5072, do	1.00
List 5074, do	2.40
List 5075, do	2.00
List 5076, do	1.15
List 30, Wm. Burgwald	.25
List 3074, C. Burgwald	.25
List 138, N. N	.25
Total	$2,251.15

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Comrades Lee and Mayes presided at the last meeting of the General Committee. The following new delegates were seated: 24th A. D., Br. 1, Emil Dietz; Br. 2, Edi Loewenthal; 20th, I. Phillips; 15th and 17th, Firnkas and Edwards; 30th, Ramm and Schultz. Nine new members were admitted to the Local.

In regard to the recommendation of the C. E. 6, that the Local place itself on record as protesting against the official reception of Prince Henry, it was voted to print and distribute 15,000 leaflets in English and German during the week ending Feb. 22.

Comrade Lane resigned from the Auditing Committee for the State Committee and Comrade Bartholomew was chosen in his place.

Appeal from the N. C. for funds for propaganda purposes was referred to the subdivisions, with instructions to do their best.

The Grievance Committee reported on the case of Jacob Kaplan, charged with speaking for the "reformers" in the city campaign. It was voted to suspend Kaplan for one year or until such earlier time as he could be found and the matter more fully investigated.

IN HUDSON COUNTY, N. J.

The Socialists of Hudson County, N. J., are making greater preparations than ever before for their March celebrations. There are to be two festivals this year—one to be held at Central Hall, Jersey City Heights, on Saturday evening, March 15, and the other at Odd Fellows Hall, Hoboken, on Sunday evening, March 16.

The Jersey City Heights entertainment will include a high class drama, special musical program by the Union Hill Mannerchor, Socialist Liedertafel, Olympia Zither Club, and others; exhibition by the Anchor Athletic Club, "Capital and Labor" burlesque, etc.

The Hoboken entertainment will consist of the Socialist play, "Now and Then," by Comrade Frederick Krafft; "Capital and Labor Conference," a burlesque, a complete musical concert by leading musical societies, and specialties by artists of note.

The price of admission is 15 cents in advance, or 25 cents at the door. Tickets admitting to either entertainment are now on sale by members throughout the whole county.

The public, at first prejudiced against Socialism, has found that it stands for but one thing—justice to all. New members are being received into the old branches at every meeting and new branches springing up everywhere are meeting with remarkable growth and success.

This year's festivals will probably be the best attended of any in the history of the party in this county.

SOCIALIST PROPAGANDA CLUB.

Dr. C. L. Furman lectures Sunday evening, Feb. 23, at 102 Court street, Brooklyn, on the subject: "The Force behind Progress." Admission is free.

STEADILY IMPROVING.

We take the liberty of quoting from a private letter of Eugene V. Debs: "I read The Worker and note its excellence and steady improvement with much satisfaction."

Comrade Debs is a good judge.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

PARTY WORK IN MASSACHUSETTS.

State Organizer Mailly Writes of Renewed Activity Throughout the State—Vail's Lectures in Boston Very Successful.

The series of lectures given by Comrade Charles H. Vail in Boston last week was thoroughly successful in every respect. The attendance on the first evening was good, but it increased at each lecture until the last was delivered to an audience that filled the hall. The expenses for the lectures (the hall costing an unusually high figure) were large, but will undoubtedly be cleared when the returns of tickets are all in. This was hardly expected, but judicious advertising and active interest on the part of the comrades did it—just as it can be done everywhere else.

The real matter for congratulation lies in the good effect the lectures have already produced upon the Boston movement. Comrade Vail was at his best, which is saying a great deal, and the enthusiasm increased with the attendance at each meeting. Many new faces were visible during the course; the audiences were not made up wholly of comrades by any means, but the effect upon new and old comers alike was clearly apparent. There was an expressed desire for Comrade Vail to repeat the series in the near future, and when he does, we will need a larger hall.

The success of these lectures has prompted the question: Why can't the same thing be done in other places? As an educational work, nothing better could be undertaken by Socialists. People will attend a lecture series who would hun an ordinary agitation or campaign meeting, and thes are usually people who think and whom we need. As a matter of agitation the lectures would be found of great value, if only because they would quicken the sense of duty of Socialists, who are human enough to become discouraged at times. Listening to Vail's convincing and logical speeches cannot but arouse enthusiasm and promote activity. And, as in the case of Boston, a large amount of literature can be sold and distributed.

Speaking of Vail's lectures in Haverhill, Comrade J. F. Carey says: "They have done us a lot of good, and we consider the money well expended. Many strangers whom we had not seen before came to the full series and were deeply interested. In my opinion, the plan should be followed wherever possible—and right now is the time to do it." The writer joins heartily in this opinion. It is to be hoped that the Socialists of the United States will see that Comrade Vail is kept in the lecture field when his contract with the National Committee expires.

Comrade MacCartney spoke at Plymouth last Sunday to a good meeting and to-morrow (Monday) he will address a woman's club at Brighton. Both representatives are continually talking Socialism, both in and out of the House.

Comrade Halliman of Plymouth is working hard to organize a club there, but the obnoxious tactics of an S. T. & L. A. local makes it difficult to do effective work. Carey will probably be there next Sunday.

Comrade Cummings of Leominster writes that the comrades will try to organize in a few small towns in that district, where votes were cast for the ticket last year. They will also get a French speaker to interest the French workingmen—which shows that the Leominster comrades mean business.

There seems to be a good working club at Salem. Here again the propaganda of Socialism is hindered by the S. L. P., but Comrades Greene, Wright, Lally, and their co-workers will eventually win.

Sunday evening meetings are now held by the East Boston Club and are quite successful. The meeting addressed by Comrade Gibbs started the ball rolling nicely and Spero, Powers, Marcus, and other comrades say they'll keep it going.

This evening Somerville Club begins a series of weekly meetings, with Comrade W. P. Porter as the first speaker, in Hill's Building, Union Square. Comrades Putney and Saunders are directing affairs. Carey will speak in Somerville at an early date.

In Lynn, Comrades Page, Robinson, and others are making strenuous efforts to get the movement into better shape. There are plenty of Socialists in Lynn and a much larger vote should be cast for the Socialist Party.

Comrade Harry Pember of Walpole is arranging for a public meeting to be held there soon, and in the meanwhile he is working to have the club reorganized.

The Quincy comrades have headquarters where meetings and discussions are held every Sunday afternoon. The writer was out there a couple of weeks ago and found them "hot stuff." Comrades Turner, Packard, Mackin, Cote, Brualt, and Gray are guaranteed to make things lively for anyone that disagrees with them. They are going to push The Worker—which, by the way, all good Socialists in these parts should do.

In Worcester, Comrades Abbott, Marcy, Gibbs, Hardy, Fenner, and other veterans are still doing business at the old stand. MacCartney will violate the Sunday law against disturbing the peace (of capitalism) by speaking there next Sunday in the Gaiety Theatre.

One of the sturdiest clubs in Massachusetts is situated at Newburyport, where the vote is steadily increasing. Comrades Johnson, Noyes, Kenniston, and Chiswell are the principal workers, and they never tire. They will reap reward by capturing the city government some day.

I was surprised to meet that staunch Socialist from Trenton, N. J., Comrade J. P. Weigel, on the street car the other day. He is in Boston on business for the Brewery Workers and may stay some time; and as he is anxious to help along the party, we can expect the German comrades to soon revive themselves.

Comrade Charles H. Vail speaks at Warren on Feb. 24 and at Clinton on the 25th. There are vigorous clubs at both places.

At Reading there is a small band of workers who set an example for larger clubs for regularity and activity. Comrades Harris, McKeen, Fresh, and their colleagues are working to get Wakefield organized also, with good prospects of success.

Things are waking up in and around Boston. The City Committee is getting into shape, while Brighton, Highland District, Charleston, Neponset, and Roxbury are doing their share towards making the local movement what it should be.

Adams, Fall River, and New Bedford have large clubs, composed of German comrades, who are working to interest the English speaking workingmen.

Space forbids mentioning all the places where Socialist activity is again showing itself, but this will be made up for again. That there is a revival of interest throughout the state there can be no doubt. With the new name is born a new life. Watch the Socialist Party in Massachusetts!

W. M.

Boston, Feb. 16.

HAVERHILL NOTES.

Representative Carey addressed the newly organized Shoe Packers' Union of Haverhill on organization and union work, at a recent meeting.

The lectures by Charles H. Vail were not so largely attended as they should have been. This is to be regretted, as he presented scientific Socialism in a way easily understood by all. The people of Haverhill have been given so many free lectures and addresses by the most gifted men in the movement that they seem unwilling to pay for hearing what they think they already know. Nevertheless the series was fairly well attended, the bills are paid, and those present felt well repaid for being there. Comrade Vail made a great hit when he said that during slavery days in the South the masters had bloodhounds to keep the people from running away from their jobs, but that nowadays no dogs are needed, as the fear of hunger serves the purpose; also that the slave master had to feed, clothe, shelter, and doctor the slaves, because he had invested money in them, while now the master has little concern about the workers and the present system was adopted by the industrial masters of the North as being cheaper for them than slavery.

Rev. John Ellis, formerly editor of "The Clarion," and now minister of the Universalist Church at West Acton, Mass., exchanged pulpits on a recent Sunday with Rev. G. E. Littlefield of the First Unitarian Church of Haverhill. Comrade Ellis' subject was "Influence Is Ultimate." He took Jesus and the disciples as examples, and argued that they taught a new social system in line with that now taught by the Socialists. He also said that he hoped that after the inauguration of Socialism the time would come when the individual would be sovereign, compulsory legalism would disappear, and brotherly love and justice rule the world.

Gov. Crane has presented Comrade Carey with the pen with which he signed the bill changing the name of the Social Democratic Party to Socialist Party.

Rev. Hiram W. Smith of East Pepperell, Mass., recited some of his experiences in his advocacy of Socialism at the Central Socialist Club on Wednesday, Feb. 12. He has been persecuted by narrow-minded persons in the country district of Pepperell and vicinity because of his Socialistic ideas. He has given up the church and conducts Socialists services each Sunday in a hall there. He made a good impression on the members of the Central Club, and they intend to secure him for a lecture thise spring. On the evening previous he spoke at the opening rally of our town election campaign at Exeter, N. H.

Owing to the fact that the C. L. U. is going to conduct a series of lectures on Sundays, the Socialist Debating Club has discontinued its Sunday evening debates and a debate will be held after the meeting of the Central Socialist Club each Wednesday evening.

WITHDRAWS FROM THE PARTY.

F. G. R. Gordon of New Hampshire has formally announced his withdrawal from membership in the Socialist Party. It is characteristic of him that he chose the capitalist dailies of Massachusetts as the medium for announcing the interesting fact. He explains his withdrawal by a statement that the party is "unscientific, narrow and fanatical, and growing more so," in that it bases its program and its policy on the class struggle between wage workers and capitalists. Mr. Gordon thinks that "the middle class was never stronger than it is to-day" and prefers to work for a farmers' party. He has previously questioned the wisdom of founding the Socialist Party upon working class interests and his vulgar abuse of the wage workers in a signed article published by him about a year ago called forth much criticism at the time.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

They Want The Daily.

I.

Editor of The Worker:

From my humble view point, I see no reason why we cannot have a daily as well as our German comrades. Surely there is a sufficient number of English-speaking class-conscious Socialists in the United States and Canada who would willingly sacrifice a little time and money to make the venture a success. The Socialist movement has become so powerful on the continent that it requires a daily to keep the comrades in close touch with the daily trend of affairs, as well as a powerful checkmate upon the capitalist press of the country. If we Socialists are as faithful and devoted to Socialism with our time and money as we were to the old-fossilized capitalist parties who fleeced us of everything but our body and soul—and that they hold a mortgage on—then there is no reason why we cannot make The Worker the best daily printed in the English language and a credit to the movement.

J. H. STALEY.

Niagara Falls, South Ontario.

II.

Editor of The Worker:

At last the hope and wish for a Socialist daily has taken some definite shape, and finally we have a movement on foot for it. The meeting at which steps were taken proved to me, what I always held, that there are really no such great obstacles in the way of starting a daily Socialist newspaper. Already in the S. L. P., I, with others, agitated for a start in and out of season. There were doubts as to whether we would be able to get the money; others thought we had not literary ability enough among us to edit a paper; others were afraid we couldn't compete the capitalist dailies; still others were of the opinion that we ought to have at least fifty thousand Socialist voters in New York and vicinity in order to start a daily. But at the meeting of Feb. 8 all objections, doubts and pessimism vanished. If there were any such, they did not proclaim it.

Some thought that the meeting was no criterion, because it was not as well attended as some of us expected. But we must not forget that the majority of our members and sympathisers belong to trade unions, many of which meet on Saturday. Then I know of three festivals that were held on that night and in which many comrades and sympathizers took an active part, and were thus prevented from attending the meeting. I have met many of them since, who enthusiastically endorse the action taken at the meeting.

But I know enthusiasm alone will not give us a daily, although no movement ever succeeded without it. Enthusiasm always must and usually does bring forth something else. When we want to know how to confiscate the capitalists are, all we have to do is to touch their pockets. If we, therefore, are really enthusiastic about having a daily Socialist paper, let us go down into our pockets and show what we are willing to do financially. That is the way to express our enthusiasm.

Once we have decided that we want a daily, the only question before us is how to get the funds; let us therefore not waste our time discussing whether it shall be a morning or evening paper or other details, but let us exert all our energies to get the necessary money.

There are many ways to obtain it. Let every assembly district or branch, after having paid its dues, remember the daily. When an assembly district, branch or Socialist club in Greater New York, New Jersey, and in the adjacent states arranges a festival, let it lay aside a part of the proceeds for the daily. Let the Committee of Fifteen issue a call for ten-dollar and larger pledges or contributions. Let it also open a "mine fund," where the nickels and dimes and quarters will flow from those who cannot give larger sums. The committee can issue Socialist daily stamps to be sold at 25 cents and with which all party members shall be supplied. Let us organize Socialist daily clubs in every city and village, whose purpose it shall be to gather funds and to arrange agitation meetings for the daily. Let the committee also call a conference of party organizations, trade unions, and other labor bodies, and show them the need of a daily that will fight their battles, so that they will not have to beg the "World" or "Journal" for some "labor news." Such a conference can imediately arrange for a grand fair, and having such object in view, we will work like beavers and realize at least as much as at last fall's fair.

Using these means and others we will realize our ideal sooner than many of our comrades dare to hope. Of course, the task is a hard one, but it must be accomplished. Having a paper that shall speak for us every day in the week, the fight for Socialism is half won. As to whether we have comrades able to edit a strange a good Socialist paper, does not worry me at all. We cannot tell what hidden talents there are among us or who will come to the front when an opportunity offers itself. But I am sure that we have always to-day a sufficient number of able comrades who are competent enough to give out a good and clear-cut Socialist daily that shall be our pride and our strength, and shall help us on towards the day of our emancipation.

N. S. REICHENTHAL.

New York, Feb. 14.

A Card of Thanks.

Editor of The Worker:

I beg you to publish in your popular paper my gratitude toward the Socialist comrades of New York. Having been sick and absent from my husband they have done many favors to me. I give also many thanks to Dr. Romm for his kind attention.

MRS. DOMINICA IGLESIAS.

New York, Feb. 15.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NATIONAL SECRETARY'S REPORT FOR JANUARY.

The financial transactions of the National Secretary's office for January were as follows:

RECEIPTS.

Jan. 1, balance on hand	$60.88
Received for dues, donations and supplies—
Arizona	2.80
Arkansas	1.70
California	38.35
Colorado	9.34
Connecticut	10.45
Florida	1.75
Idaho	2.50
Illinois	.45
Indiana	27.00
Iowa	9.10
Kansas	8.28
Kentucky	1.27
Maine	17.10
Maryland	2.00
Michigan	13.95
Minnesota	10.91
Missouri	29.25
Montana	5.42
Nebraska	.40
New Hampshire	2.90
New Jersey	.65
New York	102.00
Ohio	38.15
Oklahoma	5.46
Porto Rico	5.00
Rhode Island	2.00
Tennessee	.30
Texas	.30
Utah	4.81
Vermont	.45
Washington	12.04
Wisconsin	30.20
Wyoming	1.65
Total	$434.71

EXPENSES.

Rent of national headquarters	$16.00
National Committee account	71.10
Incidental expenses	17.20
Exchange—M. O. and checks	.35
Express charges	4.48
Organization, ss. Utah	5.00
Postage	22.00
Printing	27.98
Stationery	19.35
Salaries, office help	88.00
Telegrams	17.40
National Secretary's salary	83.33
Returned to Andres, Secy., Cold Springs, N. Y.	.25
Omission of salary in Dec.	.70
Jan. 31, balance on hand	63.81
Total	$434.71

State charters were issued to New Hampshire and Oklahoma. Local charters were issued to Yuma, Arizona; Hennessey, Oklahoma; Burlington, Vermont; Burke, Emmett and St. Anthony, Idaho; Minneapolis, Scambler, and Spring Valley, Minnesota.

LEON GREENBAUM, National Secretary.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 13.

CONNECTICUT.

NOTICE.

Most of the branch secretaries have neglected to send in reports of membership as requested by the State Committee and another circular on this subject has been sent to the branches. The dues of the State to the N. E. C. have been paid to Jan. 1, 1902. We have delayed paying since that time expecting to get an accurate report of membership on which to base the dues for the next three months. We also wish to make and have printed for distribution a roster showing the names of offices and time and place of meeting for all the branches. Secretaries should attend to this at once, sending an estimate of membership if an accurate report cannot be sent promptly; also state the number of stamps on hand.

We have received a request from August Klenke of Chicago to arrange a tour for him in this state in March. The funds of the State Committee will not warrant the arranging of an extended tour at this time, but if branches that wish to arrange meetings for Comrade Klenke will send prompt notice to the State Secretary a series of five or six meetings may be arranged. The expense for Speaker will not be more than $5.00 per meeting, to be paid by the local branch.

Eugene Toomey and the State Organizer are also ready to speak at open meetings of branches or where branches may be organized.

W. E. WHITE, State Organizer.

240 Main Street, Derby.

NEW YORK.

NOTICE.

To the Members of Local New York:

All comrades who are willing to do committee work at the festival on Feb. 22 are requested to come to the Grand Central Palace, on the day of the festival, and report either to Comrade Harth or Comrade Gerber. We need a number of committee members.

J. GERBER, Organizer.

BROOKLYN LABOR LYCEUM ASSOCIATION.

All comrades of the S. D. P. are herewith invited to attend the next regular meeting of the Committee of the Building Fund of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Association on Friday, February 21, at 8 P. M., at the Labor Lyceum, 949-957 Willoughby avenue. Very important business is to be transacted and it is the wish of the Finance Committee that all members shall be present.

Finance Committee of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Association.

JOS. KALSCH, F. S.

30TH A. D.

To the Members of the 30th A. D.:

Comrades—At the last meeting held the attendance was so slim that it was almost a farce to hold a meeting. Each and every one of you is personally responsible for this state of affairs, and if the movement in the Thirtieth goes backward it is the members of the district who are at fault. It appears that a feeling of apathy has come over you and like an infectious disease has stricken you so as to make it impossible to labor for the cause of Socialism. Now, this state of affairs cannot continue indefinitely, as it is only a question of a short time when those of you merits hold manfully together will take matters into their own hands, and if the results should not meet with your approval, please remember that you are to blame. We trust that we do not appeal to you in vain for adherence to those principles to which each and every one of you has subscribed and we hope that you will not shirk that work which you know to be essential to the welfare of the Socialist movement. Comrades, the call goes forth. Ask not if it will accomplish anything. Wait not for another to come to the front. Do your best, and be satisfied in the knowledge of well-doing.

THE 30TH A. D., S. D. P.
W. H. GRAVEN, Sec.

Letter Box

J. FOX, Quincy, Mass.—We are very glad to get news. Please continue.

W. A. COREY, Los Angeles, Cal.—The manuscript has been transmitted.

R. FRANK, City.—Certainly, fair tickets which were not sold should be returned to the Fair Committee, 184 William street.

VARIOUS CORRESPONDENTS.—In sending newspaper cuttings for our interest, mark the article clearly and write "marked copy" on the wrapper.

JOHN CONWAY.—Then you should have been at the meeting and voted against it. It's too late now to object.

J. M. R., N. A. C. and many others.—If you want either of the comrades who happen to be in the editorial office to make a bluff at giving you a speech, by all means write him before he does. But don't add, in that naive, off-hand, free-and-easy way: "If you can't come, please send someone else." It grieves us, because we are obliged to disappoint you. We don't run a lecture bureau. Of course, we have nothing to do but chase up speakers for you, but we are too busy. Try the organizer of Local New York or the State Secretary, if you find it inconvenient to communicate with the speakers directly.

It is rather unpleasant to get a letter during the week saying that you are depending on one of us for the following Sunday. Requests on such short notice seem to put the burden of blame upon the desired speaker if he cannot oblige—whereas it is usually the fault of the local in not arranging their lectures further ahead.

The editors of this paper do their full share of lecturing, but they cannot be expected to come on such short notice, nor are they able to send other speakers. This is for the information of all whom it may concern, as many of the comrades seem to think we are running a lecture bureau as well as a paper.

MIDDLE CLASS FAILURES.

"Bradstreet's" reports 265 failures in the United States during the week ending Feb. 14, against 247 for the previous week, and 226, 199, 160, and 203 for the corresponding weeks of 1901 to 1898. About 90 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 6 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital."

Week after week, from 93 to 96 per cent. of the failures are of concerns having less than $20,000 capital. The smaller capitalists, driven to the wall by competition with larger competitors, fall into the ranks of the working class; but their property passes into the hands of the great capitalists; and so the class division is drawn clearer and sharper.

READY AGAIN.

"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists." By H. Gaylord Wilshire. Price, 2 cents; 100 copies, $1.25, postpaid. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

JUST OUT.

"Railroading in the United States." By Benjamin Hanford. Price, 5 cents; 50 copies, $1, postpaid.

"The Clerical Capitalist." By Rev. Father McGrady. Price, 10 cents; 100 copies, $4, postpaid.

"A Voice from England." By Rev. Father McGrady. Price, 10 cents.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William Street, New York.

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free.

H. R. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 813. 30 Union Square.

THE PARIS COMMUNE.

LISSAGARAY—"History of the Commune of Paris of 1871," 500 pages; cloth, 70 bents; Library Edition, $3.00.

BENHAM—"The Proletarian Revolt. A History of the Paris Commune of 1871," 232 pages. Price, 25 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

Sent on receipt of price, postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, New York.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!

Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

INTERN'L UNION SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS REGISTERED

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headaches. I was many times compelled to leave work and go home. Our druggist told me to try Ripans. I am now in much better health. I can eat almost anything, have no headache and work steady. I also was greatly affected with constipation, and Ripans gave me relief from that.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

When ordering mention THE WORKER.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is: HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

TRADE and SCIENTIFIC BOOKS

The Scientific American Cyclopedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries; 15,000 receipts, 900 New Formulas, 734 pages. Indispensable in every worker's family. Price, $5.00, cloth; $6.00 in sheep, post free.

Hopkins' "Experimental Science," $4.00.

"Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century," by Edward W. Byrn; 390 illustrations, 480 pages, $3.00. Half red morocco, gilt top, $4.00.

Hopkins' "Magic," $2.50.

Sloane's "Complete Electrical Library," 5 volumes in a box, $5.00.

"Standard Practical Plumbing," by P. J. Davies. A complete encyclopedia for practical plumbers, builders, gas fitters, engineers, etc., $3.00.

"The Tinsmiths' Helper and Pattern Book," by H. K. Vosburgh. Rules, diagrams, tables, and recipes for the use of practical metal workers, $1.00.

"How to Become a Good Mechanic," by John Phin. A practical guide to self-taught men; tells what to study and how to begin. 25 cents.

SCIENTIFIC BOOKS of every kind furnished by

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
'CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.

Five Postals for $1.25; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.

For Sale on all New York News-stands.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET, (FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
60 Second Ave., Between Third & Fourth Sts.

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

PARTY BUTTONS

We manufacture three different sizes in ⅞, ⅞ and 1½ in. diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the ½ in. size simply with Arm and Torch emblem.

1 Button	5 cents.
12 Buttons	25 cents
25 Buttons	50 cents
100 Buttons	$1.75

Cash must accompany all orders.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

PATRONIZE
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM. 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts. N. Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.
MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
220 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

EMILE ZOLA'S
POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS.

Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.

"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "His man Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother, Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."

Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.

Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

Trades' and Societies' Calendar.

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

Organizations should not lose such an opportunity for advertising their places of meetings.

BRANCH 2, S. D. P., 34th and 35th A. D. (formerly Socialist Science Club), meets second and fourth Thursday evenings of each month at the Workingmen's Educational Club, 3309 Third avenue.

BRANCH 2 (English), 20th A. D. (Brooklyn), S. D. P.—Meets every second and fourth Tuesday evening at 700 Evergreen avenue. All Socialists of the district are invited to join. H. A. Guerth, 1328 Bushwick avenue, will receive subscriptions for The Worker.

CARL SAHM CLUB (MUSICIANS' UNION. Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 10 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, H. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau:—64 East 4th Street. —District I. (Bohemian), 331 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 10 Stanton Street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 86th Street, every Saturday at 7.30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS. United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Fiescler, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

PENNSYLVANIA.

WILKES-BARRE—Local Luzerne Co., Pa., Socialist Party meets every Sunday at 3 p. m., at 487 South Grant street. All Socialists are invited.

Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kasse der Ver. Staaten von Amerika.
WORKMEN'S
Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength (at present composed of 180 local branches with more than 21,500 male members) is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe in the principles of the modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership in any of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $3.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a sick benefit of $9.00 for 40 weeks and of $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruptions. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $6.00 and $3.00 respectively. A burial benefit of $250.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried children of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class upon payment of an initiation fee of $1.00. Monthly assessments are levied for three different classes of members, 67, and 18 cents respectively. Members at large are not accepted, but all have to join existing branches or, if in towns where no branch exists, a branch can be formed by 13 good health,

THE COMMON INTEREST OF WORKER AND CAPITALIST.

Even "Continuity of Employment" Will Not Serve as a Basis of Reconciliation.

We hold that the interests of the capitalists and the wage-workers are diametrically opposed; that they are as necessarily and fundamentally opposed as those of master and slave or of highwayman and victim; that, so long as society is divided into capitalists and wage workers, the inherent opposition of their interests must give rise to an irrepressible conflict, in which it is the duty of every workingman to use all his powers on the side of his class and against the capitalist class; that this conflict can be ended only by the working class establishing public ownership of the means of production, thus putting an end to the class division; and that, therefore, it is the duty of every lover of peace and social order to lend his aid to the working-class movement toward this end—that is, to the Socialist movement for the Co-operative Commonwealth.

Our critics, the defenders of capitalism, can oppose this argument only by denying the first point in it. They claim that the interests of capitalists and laborers are identical.

We call upon them to prove this identity of interest by concrete illustration. They are forced to admit that the two classes are opposed on the question of wages, on the question of hours of labor, on the question of protection of the workers' lives and limbs at their work. Pressed to name one point on which the interests of the two classes, as such, are identical, the best they can do is to reply, as does the Haverhill "Gazette," as quoted last week: "It exists in business prosperity, in continuity of employment, in assurance of freedom from strike or lockout or other interference with the regular course of production."

We reply: That is a point of common interest only within certain limits and only under certain conditions, which are never permanent, and, under the capitalist system, never can be permanent. Within certain limits and under certain conditions, we say. Let us examine the matter more closely.

First, as to the limits within which "continuity of employment, freedom from strike or lockout or other interference with the regular course of production," is a benefit to the working class:

If this means anything in this connection, it means that workingmen should be willing to put continuity of employment above questions of hours, wages, or conditions of employment; that they should refrain from striking for shorter hours or better wages, in order to enjoy steady employment.

Unfortunately, the whole working class never has an opportunity for employment. There is always an army of the unemployed"—men and women willing to work, eager to work, hunting for work, but denied the chance to work. This army of the unemployed does not consist solely or chiefly of the lazy or incompetent. It is not an exceptional phenomenon; it is larger and bigger in "hard times" than in an "era of prosperity," but it exists even in this most prosperous year. Just how great it now is we have no means of knowing. The last report of the New York State Labor Commissioner, covering only organized workers, shows that from 5 to 12 per cent. are always in involuntary idleness; for the unorganized majority the proportion would be much higher; and New York may be taken as fairly representative of the whole country.

[illegible]ty of employment for the working class is thus an unattainable condition. [illegible] of employment for nine-tenths of the workers would mean continuous unemployment for the other one-tenth. Now, when we speak of the working class, we mean the whole working class, not one-tenth of it, nor nine-tenths.

The prime object of the shorter workday demand is to distribute the work, to give a chance to the unemployed. This demand the capitalist class systematically opposes—as in last summer's machinists' strike and the present dispute in the coal industry. Thus the capitalists show by their acts that they do not desire continuity of employment for the whole working class, but that they would use this as an inducement to those who happen to be employed to keep them submissive, while standing ready to use the competition of the unemployed as a club to break their resistance, should that be necessary.

Again, leaving the unemployed out of the question, continuity of employment is not an unmixed blessing, even for those who have it. It is a well known fact that the wage-workers toil harder in the United States than in any other country and that their toil grows more intense year by year. In the printing trade, it is generally agreed that machine operators expend more energy in eight hours than the old hand compositors did in ten. In the textile industries the machinery is being "speeded up" more and more, and the operative has to tend more spindles or other machines. In the steel industry, Philanthropist Carnegie always insisted on the twelve-hour day for men doing the most exhausting work, and the same rule still prevails under Schwab of the "Peace Committee." A result of that practise is that the men are superannuated at forty years of age.

For these men, continuity of employment simply means a speedier passage through this vale of tears, a nearer prospect of eternal rest. An eight-hour day would add ten years to their lives. The capitalists, for very good business reasons, will not consent to the change. Whenever, by strike or other means, the men have a chance to wring the concession from their masters, no scruples about continuity of employment ought to deter them.

These are two of the limits within which "continuity of employment, freedom from interference with the regular course of production," is good for the working class. It is good for that portion of the working class which happens to be employed, except where, by interrupting the course of production with a strike, the workers can secure reduction of hours, increase of wages, lightening of their toil, or greater safety at their work.

Which is to say, simply, that strikes cost the workers much and should not be rashly resorted to. And this everybody knew, without being told by Senator Hanna or the "Gazette."

Second, as to the conditions under which continuity of production is good for the capitalist class:

In a period of prosperity, when the market is expanding, when everything is "booming," when the whole product can readily be sold at a good profit, then the capitalists want no interference with the regular course of production. Each of them wants to have his employees produce as much as possible, so that he can fill orders ahead of his competitors and make bigger and quicker profits. He wants his men to work overtime; he has the machinery run at higher speed; he will not even shut down his mill for necessary repairs. In our issue of Jan. 19 we showed that, through the neglecting of repairs in order to "rush" production, a thousand workingmen were killed in the iron and steel works in and around Pittsburg alone in the year 1901. This sort of continuity, though good for the Steel Trust, was very bad for the steel workers.

So far, so good. But the nature of the capitalist or wage system is such that a period of prosperity leads to a period of depression, just as certainly as the right-hand swing of a pendulum leads to its left-hand swing.

The workers get but a part of the value of their product. As industry develops they get a smaller and smaller share—as we showed from the Census statistics two weeks ago—and their purchasing power is reduced. They form the majority of the population and the growing luxury of the few capitalists cannot make up for this reduction of purchasing power. Thus the home market shrinks, relatively to the growth of production. Foreign markets in new countries serve for a time. But all capitalist countries are competing there, and soon they are filled.

Then comes the crash. We have "overproduction." We have produced more than can be sold at a profit. Mills are shut down and workingmen turned off to shift for themselves. We are poor because we have produced too much.

Now in such a time the capitalist class never hesitates to "interrupt the regular course of production." Ninety-nine per cent. of the people may need new shoes; but if shoes cannot be sold at a profit, the shoe factories do not run.

These industrial depressions are periodic. They are not accidental. They are not caused by strikes. They are not caused, as is sometimes said, by foolish speculation. Capitalists are sometimes foolish; but we cannot reasonably attribute the periodic crises to a periodic insanity of the capitalist class. The alternation of prosperity and depression is a perfectly normal feature of the competitive capitalist system. The existence of a market stimulates production for profit; competition carries production beyond the capacity of the market; then, as production under capitalism is carried on solely for profit, production must stop.

The capitalist is not to blame for it. He cannot prevent it any more than his employees can. But they suffer from it more than he does.

Thus "freedom from interruption of the regular course of production" is good for the capitalist class under certain conditions—the conditions of "prosperity" such as just now prevail. But these conditions are not and, under capitalism, cannot be permanent. And as soon as they give way to conditions of industrial depression, the capitalists themselves interrupt the regular course of production, to the great sorrow of the working class.

It will be seen that very little is left of this one solitary point of "common interest." The fact remains that the interests of capitalists and workers are opposed. They may be compromised, but they cannot be reconciled.

BRONX CARPENTERS.

The Bronx Borough District Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America gives notice that the following jobs in Bronx Borough, New York City, are on the unfair list:

The public school on One Hundred and Forty-first street, near Brook avenue. Pat Sullivan of 389 Broome street is building with scabs and scab trim, that is made in a mill under the ten-hour system by L. Brossart of Brooklyn. Workingmen should mark, learn and inwardly digest the fact that the city officials whom their votes put in office employ scab labor on public buildings. The only way to remedy this condition is to vote with the Socialist Party, and put men of your own class in office who stand solely for the interests of their own class, the working class, as opposed to the exploiters whom the Republican and Democratic parties represent.

The job at One Hundred and Sixtieth street, near Union avenue. Strike on because of non-payment of men.

Jones, Woodcrest avenue, Highbridge. Non-union trim.

At One Hundred and Eightieth street, Lafontine and Arthur avenues, Rice, owner. Strike against scabs.

Marx, One Hundred and Eighty-third street and Park avenue. Strike against non-union men, and because not paying standard rate of wages.

Borup, all jobs in Bronxville and Tuckahoe where this boss has non-union men.

Deitrich, Rich avenue, Mt. Vernon, strike against scabs.

CROSBY ON WAR.

Ernest H. Crosby will lecture on "War" this Sunday evening, Feb. 23, at 8 p. m., at the Women's Henry George League, Civic Hall, 128 East Twenty-eighth street, New York City. The public is invited.

—I would rather be right with the minority than wrong with the majority.—Eugene V. Debs.

"PRESERVING THE SABBATH."

Capitalist Law-Breakers Hold It Very Sacred.

Lively Debate in Massachusetts Legislature on MacCartney's Bill to Allow Sunday Fishing—Aristocrats Would Monopolize Recreation as Well as Production — No Developments in Teamsters' Strike.

Among other legacies left to us by the founders of the Republic are a number of traditions which have been found of incalculable value to those who set their faces against progress and who attempt to perpetuate hoary prejudices and time-worn customs. Whenever the opponents of progress become impoverished for arguments, they haul these traditions out of Time's closet, oil the creaking joints, brush off the dust, and clothe them in fulsome verbiage to do service for the hour, afterwards to be returned to their hiding places for use on other occasions. Just what our modern statesmen would do without a set of traditions to fall back upon is hard to say; they should revere our forefathers, if for nothing else than having bequeathed such a necessary adjunct in the game of fooling the people.

Some of the traditions sacred to the fossilized members of the Massachusetts Legislature got a pretty severe handling in the House on Tuesday last, and they emerged in a badly battered condition. Many more experiences like that, and the said traditions will have to be laid away forever. It all came about in the debate on Representative MacCartney's bill to repeal the Sunday fishing law, which would permit fishing on that day. The Committee on Fisheries and Game reported leave to withdraw on MacCartney's bill, and he moved to substitute his bill for the committee's report. The debate that followed occupied two hours, and was full of amusing and interesting features.

MacCARTNEY'S ARGUMENT.

MacCartney opened the debate by reading from the Massachusetts Bill of Rights, showing that Sunday was to be maintained as a day of rest and recreation, that it was a civic holiday, and that the state had no right to legislate upon it as a religious day. He cited the attempts of the Pilgrim Fathers to regulate religion by law, and showed that the intention of the framers of the state and national constitutions was to divorce the state from the church. He defined in a clear and concise manner the attitude of the state toward religion, and denounced the attempt to dictate in what manner the people should spend the seventh day of the week. He said that the present law was class legislation, and had been resuscitated in 1899 by the wealthy sportsmen of Massachusetts, who sought monopoly in recreation as in everything else. He said that all through the state, workingmen were protesting against the law which prohibited them from seeking congenial recreation after the arduous labors of the week.

He told how workingmen formerly had fishing camps scattered along the river banks throughout the state, to which they resorted on Saturday evening, and where they spent the Sabbath in getting close to nature. These men could not do this now without danger of being arrested as common criminals and fined or sent to jail. He made an eloquent plea for the workingmen, and said that, while members of the House might consider it a small and unimportant thing, yet it meant a great deal to men confined in factories for six days and with but one day to refresh themselves. The law was not enforced in a great many instances, and its constant violation was a source of evil inasmuch as it conduced to a contempt for all law. He cited the case of one judge who went fishing on Sunday, and on Monday tried two workingmen who were arrested for doing what he himself had done the day before. He created a little sensation by reporting that one of the leading members of the Committee had said he feared to advocate the repeal of the law because he was afraid it might lead to agitation for enforcement of the law. That was the quintessence of statesmanship! What could be expected of men who were afraid to express their opinions in committee report for fear of running contrary to the prejudice existing among a certain class.

MacCartney was followed by Callender of Boston, who made a remarkable speech in its way. He favored MacCartney's bill, and expressed surprise at the opposition coming from men whose religion was founded by fishermen. In the distress following the crucifixion of the Lord, the disciples sought relief in fishing. He traced the history of the Puritan Sunday, and invited them to go back three hundred years to a time when it was an offense to do the simplest thing on that day. He condemned the present fishing laws as prejudicial to the enjoyment of the workingmen of the state, and in a beautifully worded peroration appealed to the members to throw aside their prejudices and wipe the obnoxious law off the statute books.

A PIOUS HYPOCRITE OBJECTS.

Mr. Kinney of Boston opposed the bill, and said that the preservation of the Sabbath was necessary to the maintenance of the state. Mr. Kinney achieved notoriety last year through being confronted in his opposition to the same bill by the fact that he had attended a baseball game on Sunday.

Mr. Story of Somerville, a reverend gentleman with a narrow forehead and retreating chin, hauled out the state traditions and besought the members not to sully the memory of their forefathers. Massachusetts had always been known as the state which reverenced the day of worship; and he warned the members if fishing were permitted we would soon have buying and selling on that day also. He regretted to see a gentleman of the cloth (meaning MacCartney) trying to have such a worthy law repealed. It was upon the maintenance of the Sabbath observances that we depended for the inculcation of proper respect for religion in the rising generation. He knew the workingmen didn't want to fish on that day; they wanted to go to church and rest, and not to indulge in unseemly sport.

Mr. Mills of Fall River made a speech which left the listeners in doubt as to whether he favored or opposed the bill. After some confusion of rhetoric and a shocking display of bad grammar it was discovered that he favored MacCartney's bill. He concluded by asking: "How many of the members have not been guilty of fishing and hunting on Sunday in the past, present, and future?" When the laugh had subsided, Mr. Mills went away and sat down.

Beck, the chairman of the Committee, asked that the Committee's report be adopted; and Mr. Brandes of Webster said he knew workingmen who didn't want to fish on Sunday; he thought the Sabbath ought to be respected and observed by all people. He also made use of traditions to illustrate his argument.

SOUTH BOSTON PURITANISM.

The most ludicrous speech, because the most hypocritical, was made by Mr. Quinn of South Boston. Mr. Quinn is a typical Democratic ward politician, and he maintains his position in politics through methods common to that class. Just at this particular time, however, Mr. Quinn was inspired to make a speech in behalf of the Puritan Sunday, and he utilized the poor old traditions in fine fashion. He said the people of his district loved the Sabbath; they wanted to go to church on Sunday morning, wanted their children to go to Sunday school, wanted to observe the Lord's day. Let us maintain the Puritan Sunday, he said; he loved the traditions of the Puritan Sunday as handed down by the forefathers, and he knew his constituents revered the associations connected with that holy day. Mr. Quinn's constituents, by the way, probably have less regard for the Puritan Sunday than those of any other district in the city.

The debate was closed by Carey, who, in a fifteen minute speech, made an argument for the bill that commanded the close attention of the members, and was greeted by applause at its close. He created laughter by his sarcastic reply to Mr. Quinn, and paid his respects to the other members who had opposed the bill on the ground that workingmen did not favor it. He called attention to the fact that MacCartney's bill did not seek to prevent men from going to church on Sunday if they wanted to do so; there was no intention to regulate church attendance; that was a feature that had been introduced with no bearing on the question at issue.

WORKINGMEN AND THE CHURCH.

To those who were fearful of the workingmen being deprived of church attendance he wanted to say there was an increasing number of workingmen who didn't care whether they went to church or not. He considered it presumptuous on the part of those who defended the Lord's day to attempt to take the regulation of that day out of the Lord's hands; he thought the Lord was able to take care of his own day himself. He warned the members against allowing violated laws to remain upon the statute books, and said that such a law as this, being generally disregarded, would give a philosophical basis for the feet of a Czolgosz to rest upon. As a Socialist who believed in law and order, he asked that a law which was continually being violated should be stricken from the books. He sympathized with Mr. Quinn in his earnest plea to preserve the dignity of the Sabbath. He assumed that Mr. Quinn, like the other members, of course, was a regular church attendant; and they all wished to observe peace and quietude on that day. "On Sunday morning they go to church, and as they are listening with rapt devotion to the low-voiced minister as he utters the truths he has garnered from the treasury of their faith, an elevated car dashes by the church—sizz—boom—rattlety bang—as if the gates of hell had opened—and drowns the minister's voice in its clatter and uproar; and yet Mr. Quinn would be the first man to vote to give the Elevated Railway Company the right to run more cars on Sunday."

On the previous question, Mr. Beck, the chairman of the Committee, again spoke and made the traditions perform an encore. Just what his argument had to do with Sunday fishing, no one could well make out. All one could hear was, "Pilgrim Fathers—our flag—grand old Commonwealth—boys of '76—George III," closing with a startling appeal to preserve "the heritage which is tinged with blood." We suppose this adjuration settled the matter, because on a rising vote the House refused to substitute MacCartney's bill by 100 to 80, and on a roll call by 92 to 76. Last year the vote was 86 to 66.

NO DECISION IN TEAMSTERS' CASE.

The decision on the teamsters' injunction has not yet been rendered and nothing new has developed during the week. Reports are appearing in the press, however, that the police are being prepared for any emergency that may arise in case a gigantic strike may ensue. It is said that five hundred special policemen have already been engaged and armed, and are drilled semi-weekly. These are known as "emergency men," and they are to be distributed among police divisions of the city and to be used in conjunction with the regular members of the Peace Department "to preserve order." Further than this nothing new can be reported, everything depending upon the action of the Allied Transportation Trades when the court decision is rendered.

A bill that is likely to cause some discussion in the Legislature is one to establish an "Industrial Court." The main purposes are announced to be: "First, to promote industrial justice; second, to secure industrial peace, and to avert strikes and lockouts; and, finally, to increase the general prosperity of the people by stopping interruptions to production, and thereby increasing the annual product, and by assisting in a fair division of the product between Labor and Capital."

The bill has attracted increased attention during the week through the opposition expressed by Samuel Gompers, who believes "it would rob workingmen of their liberty." This opinion is combated, by those who had the bill introduced, and it is probable the debate will be a lively one when the bill comes up, and one in which the Socialist representatives may be expected to share.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 15.

TRADE UNION NOTES

Boycott the "Sun" and its advertisers and supporters. Buy your paper from a stand that does not sell the "Sun."

The capitalist papers were severely criticized at the last session of the New York C. F. U. for their misrepresentations of the proceedings. It was declared that the "Volkszeitung" is the only daily in the city giving fair reports. All the more need for a Socialist daily in the English language.

Brotherhood of Painters No. 490 condemn the Peace Conference.

The City Gardeners have endorsed the "Peace Conference," and Bakers' No. 164 passed strong resolutions against it.

The Pilots protest against the appointments made by the Commissioner of Street Cleaning as a violation of the Civil Service Law. He has appointed two politicians without any examination beyond a few informal questions.

The Journeymen Tailors are on strike against a Fifth avenue establishment. Fraid a boycott won't help much there. Queer, but workingmen do not seem to like Fifth avenue as a place of residence. Yet good men like Carnegie and Rockefeller have homes there.

Boycott James Butler's grocery stores and help the Grocery Clerks Union. Don't forget that our brother wage slaves behind the counters work fifteen hours a day and often half of Sunday, taking stock, etc. Their greatest enemy in the fight for a shorter workday is James Butler. Help the clerks and ask your friends to refrain from patronizing Butler's stores.

Members of "Big Six" might see to it that the union bar card is secured by many places well patronized by printers in the vicinity of Newspaper Row and the union rooms. The printers should help other workmen in their efforts to improve conditions, just as they expect those others to help them.

Members of the Tile Layers' Union and Machinists' Lodge No. 40 might see to it that the union bar card is placed behind the bar at 109 E. Eighty-sixth street, and that none but union beer and union label cigars are sold there.

Members of the Hostlers' and Drivers' Union might attend to the place at 229 E Forty-seventh street as suggested above, also others may take the hint.

The Blacksmiths' Helpers' Union hold a smoker at Manhattan Lyceum, Friday evening, Feb. 21. The Empire City Flute and Drum Band will furnish music.

The Paperhangers are to be admitted as an independent branch of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators.

Carpenters' Union 375, which is composed principally of Socialists, has passed a resolution directing its members to keep away from the North German Lloyd pier when the Kronprinz Wilhelm, bearing Prince Henry to this country, reaches port. Other Socialist unions have passed similar resolutions.

Comrade W. H. Graven has been chosen by Beer Drivers' Union No. 23 as correspondent to The Worker.

The machinists' strike is still on in San Francisco, and all advertisements for machinists there should be disregarded.

The switchmen's strike on the Northern Pacific has been settled by the acceptance of every condition named by the strikers. The men discharged are reinstated and full pay for lost time is allowed.

The recently organized National Association of Shipwrights, Joiners, and Calkers has elected the following officers: President, Hugo Kirk, of Elizabeth; Vice-President, John McDonald, of Buffalo; Second, John James McGee, of Jersey City; Third, J. C. Summers, Portsmouth, Va.; Secretary, Thomas Durett, Elizabeth; Treasurer, James Donachy, of Elizabeth; Organizers, John McDonald, Great Lakes District; J. C. Summers, Southern States; President Kirk, Vice-President McGee, Secretary Durett and Treasurer Donachy, Eastern States.

The Trades and Labor Council of London, Ont., has decided to form a labor party "to study economic subjects affecting the welfare of labor and to promulgate information regarding the same; to secure for the useful producer the wealth resulting from the application of labor to natural resources, and as a chief means to that end to elect representatives from our own ranks on the governing bodies of the country." The membership pledge declares that the applicant foreswears allegiance to the existing political parties, and will, as long as he remains a member, support any nominees selected by the party for elective office.

MACHINE WOOD WORKERS.

The Machine Wood Workers' and Turners' Union, Local 476 of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, at last meeting, instructed their treasurer to pay assessment to the District Council on account of the fight with the Amalgamated Society. F. Bienz was given an extension of time for initiation. Chas. Laird's proposition fee returned. On sick list are McNamara, McNally, Roob, and Schlegelmilch; reported sick, G. Miller and Chas. Nelson; reported well, N. Huf. Assessment of $1 levied by D. C. must be paid by May 1.

WOOD CARVERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Wood Carvers employed by Klothauer & Katz, Twenty-seventh street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, have been called out on strike to assist the cabinet makers in their effort to reduce the working hours and get an increase in wages. [illegible] is therefore [illegible] for all wood carvers to stay away from this shop until a settlement has been reached.

One of the members, Chris. Haug, who is doing picket duty, was arrested this week for "following" a scab who is escorted each evening to the car by a policeman and a member of the firm, but was later discharged in court for lack of evidence. At the union's last session three new members were admitted—Max Mindner, Giovanni Ciofolo, and Jesperio Ricci. Action on the request of the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union, seeking co-operation with this body, was deferred for two weeks.

BEER DRIVERS' UNION NO. 23.

At the last regular meeting of the union, presided over by John Mueller, an invitation from Sangverein Harmonie was accepted; also an invitation to the sixteenth annual ball of Brewers' Union No. 1, to be held on March 1, and the proceeds to go to the unemployed, was received and it was voted to attend in a body. A committee from Butchers' Union No. 6, West Side, being granted the floor, asked moral assistance in fighting shops on the unfair list; granted and members instructed not to patronize such shops and to persuade others to withhold patronage. It was decided to attend protest meeting at Cooper Union, Feb. 13, in a body. Delegate to Labor Secretariat reported that Comrade Turner's case had been satisfactorily settled. Various routine reports and communications were acted upon.

BROOKLYN SOCIALISTS MAKE MERRY.

The Socialist Club's Mask Ball an Event to Be Remembered.

Those who failed to visit the mask ball of the Socialist Club of Brooklyn on Wednesday night of last week missed what was perhaps the finest and best attended event in Socialist circles ever held in that borough.

The crowds began arriving before 9 o'clock, and before 10:30 there was standing room only. The music was furnished by Comrade Prof. Wm. F. Albers, and was of the best. The order of dancing contained twenty-five numbers, but any member of the band will say that thirty numbers would be nearer correct. However it was after 5 o'clock when the weariness depicted on the faces of the orchestra moved the heart of the floor manager to order a cessation of the festivities.

Many wore the characters assumed by the comrades, and they ranged from the capitalist down to the poorest victime of capitalism—the tramp. "Uncle Sam," the "Scissors Grinder," the "Hebrew Shylock," the "Umbrella Mender," the "Average Voter," the "Flute Player," the "Itinerant Fiddler," the "Clown," of which there were several; the "American Indian," the "Uncle Tom," the "Indian Medicine Man," the "Chauncey M. De Pew," of New York Central ill-fame, "Old Father Time," etc.

Among the costumes worn by the members of the ladies' branch of the club were the "Evening Star," the "Morning Star," the "Domino," the "Cook," the "Nurse," the "Old Maid," the "Flower Girl," the "School Girl," the "Irish Peasant Girl," the "Society Bud," the "Vassar Girl," the "Newport Belle," the "Goddess of Real Liberty," the "Old Granny," etc. The hit of the affair was the organ grinder with his carelessly arrayed wife, who held by a cord a dog dressed to represent a monkey and to whose neck was fastened a tin cup to receive contributions for Socialism. Between the dances the hand organ crank was turned and from it came the grinding notes of "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning," "Die Wacht am Rhein," the "Marseillaise," etc., and the entire crowd clustered around. The "Fiddler" started his opposition music in another part of the hall, and the audience had a mixture of the "Marseillaise" with "Labor Must and Shall Be Free," together with the demands of "Shylock" for his pound of flesh, the crying of the "Glass Put-in Man," the "Umbrella-to-Mend Man," and the others until one was almost reminded of "Dante's Dream of the Inferno."

Another impersonation that made a hit was that of a man with the word "Empty" inscribed on the huge forehead of his mask, carrying in his hand a slip marked capitalist ballot and occasionally showing a dollar bill for which he had sold his liberties.

Several selections by the Franz Gerau Maennerchor were heartily applauded.

Those comrades who were unmasked spent their time in explaining Socialism and looking for new members.

There were at one time during the evening about 800 people present, and chairs were at a premium. Nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of those who attended and all thoroughly enjoyed the affair.

TRUST NOTES.

The Steel Trust is reported to have got confrol of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coke Company. The Monogahela Company is a $20,000,000 concern, formed by the consolidation of a number of formerly independent companies, and owning most of the coal mines along the Monongahela River, more than three-fourths of the tow-boats, and coal carrying craft, and nearly all the coal elevators in New Orleans, Louisville, Cincinnati, and other Ohio River towns.

The Central Coal and Coke Company of Kansas City has acquired all the properties and franchises of the Kansas and Texas Coal Company of St. Louis. The deal involves more than $3,000,000 and makes the Central Coal and Coke Company the largest concern of its kind west of Pennsylvania. The company now will own 45 coal mines in operation, employing 10,000 men; 23 company stores, doing a mercantile business of $2,000,000 a year; 2,500 company houses used as homes for the miners and lumber workmen; 50,000 acres of coal lands in Missouri, Kansas, Indian Territory, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, and Wyoming; lumber mills that produce 180,000,000 feet of lumber yearly, and offices and agencies in every large city in the United States.

An effort is being made to get the control of the San Francisco Gas and Electric Company in a few hands, as a preliminary to a combination of concerns supplying light and power in the city. It is supposed one of the Spreckels family is the chief spirit in the plan.

Consolidation of all the street railway lines of Cleveland is a probability of the near future.

The Elkins-Widener syndicate has added thirty miles of electric railway lines to its already large holdings in Connecticut.

A combination of marble dealers and quarry owners is being formed, which is expected to embrace every firm of any importance engaged in the marble industry over the whole country.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system; we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

FEB. 22. GRAND FEB. 22.

LABOR FESTIVAL

SATURDAY, FEB. 22, 1902.

—AT—

GRAND CENTRAL PALACE,

Forty-third Street and Lexington Avenue.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

Social Democratic Party and its Press

A WONDERFUL PROGRAM.

SPANISH BALLET,
TURKISH DANCERS,
PERFORMING MAMELUKES,
MOORISH BULL FIGHT,
SUGIMOTO'S JAPANESE.

GRAND PAGEANT: "THE TRIUMPH OF LABOR."

MASQUERADE AND CIVIC BALL.

TICKETS (including Hat Check), 25 cents; at the Gate, 35 cents.

Tickets for sale at the office of The Worker, 184 William Street, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth Street, Workmen's Educational Association, 206 East Eighty-sixth Street, and at all Union and Socialist Headquarters in New York City and Brooklyn.

ABBOTT BROS.,
Bakery, Coffee & Lunch Room,
110 Bleecker Str., N. Y.
66 Kangaroos are welcome!
No line drawn on smaller animals.

The Workers' Call

Clear, Clean Socialist Paper.

Contains each week:

1. Discussions of Science of Socialism.
2. News of International Socialist Movement.
3. Events of Week from Socialist Standpoint.

One year, 50 cents.
6 months, 25 cents.

36 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

LABOR LYCEUM ASSOCIATION

Roff Street, near Richmond Road,
STAPLETON, S. I.

SUNDAY, FEB. 23, 7 P. M.

—Free Lecture—

"Is This Country a Republic?"

BY FREDERICK KRAFFT.

All are welcome.

FACTORY TO POCKET

Special Sale 14K. 20-year guarantee genuine Waltham Watches. No. 3, Bartlet grade, 6t $16.75; retail dealers price, $32.00. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO., 176 Broadway, upstairs. Established 1876.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 48. NEW YORK, MARCH 2, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

IN BAY STATE LEGISLATURE.

Socialist Members Continue to Command Attention.

Difference Between Socialists and Reformers Illustrated—Cry of "Confiscation" Raised Against MacCartney's Public Ownership Bill—Carey against Child Labor.

It is sometimes difficult to make clear to the "man in the street" the real difference between the average reformer and the Socialist. The former is usually so profuse in his professions that the failure to strike at the root of existing evils is obscured, and the people are deceived accordingly. On the other hand, the Socialist is thrust into the background, because he deals with causes rather than effects. An incident in the Legislature during the past week brought out this difference clearly enough for any one to see who cared to see.

Republican Admits Corruption.

Representative Callender is a Republican, but a reformer withal. He holds rather a unique position in his party because he is honest enough to stand out as an exception to the general rule. Two weeks ago he introduced a bill to prohibit members of the Legislature from soliciting positions for constituents from public service corporations. The bill was looked upon as a radical one, especially as Mr. Callender in the hearing before the Judiciary Committee made some sensational statements relative to the influence exercised by corporations upon legislators. One of the statements was to the effect that a solicitor for the N. Y. & N. E. Railway had issued in one year $40,000 worth of passes to members of the legislature and on their request. Mr. Callender said many legislators were unable to attend properly to their work because their time was taken up in placing their constituents. He believed that corporations used a form of bribery by employing more men than they needed at certain times, notably just before election.

This was too good an opportunity to expose existing corruption to be lost upon the Socialist members. So upon last Monday Representative Carey offered an order authorizing the Judiciary Committee to send for persons and papers relative to Callender's bill and directing the Sergeant-at-Arms to furnish the committee with the names and addresses of all persons registered as legislative counsel and agents and all corporations or others employing legislative counsel or agents in the years 1901 and 1902.

Shrink from Investigation.

Inasmuch as the order provided the only means by which to arrive at the truth of the allegations of Representative Callender relative to the conditions surrounding members, its introduction caused quite a stir among the political jobbers and hangers on. The order came up on Tuesday, and, as the Socialists expected, was opposed by the majority of the members, including even Callender himself. The effect of Carey's order may be estimated by the anxiety displayed by the members to avoid investigation; it more than substantiated the charges of prevailing corruption. Some of the members questioned the propriety of the order, but Mr. Callender was honest enough to "acknowledge the corn," and admit his own culpability in the past; evidently, however, he wished to save his fellow members the humiliation of exposure.

He said Carey's order had no relation to the bill. The question before the committee was not one of discovery, but one of equity. "The facts are well known," said he; "they are common property. The hearing on the bill has been held and closed, and why is it now proposed to interfere with the matter in the hands of the committee? Why is it necessary to overhaul the papers of the Boston Elevated Railway to ascertain what members have written letters asking employment for constituents? You would find from fifty to one hundred of mine there, and the committee already has that evidence. I made that confession to the committee. It is because I do not want to write letters asking employment for my constituents. I presented the bill. There have been but three Lord's days in the past year that I have not had requests for help to get applicants employment on the Boston Elevated Railway. I contend that the order before us has nothing to do with the bill."

Mr. Taft of Worcester said the order was unnecessary, a remark that might be construed as an admission that the charges of corruption were true.

Carey said he was glad to say that if there was an overhauling of the papers of the Boston Elevated Railway Company or those of any other corporation, no letters of his or of his colleague, MacCartney, would be found. He thought the order should be adopted so that the whole hideousness of the situation might be revealed to the people of the state. The members could not act intelligently on the bill unless substantial reasons were given for its enactment; and if the charges made were untrue then those who were guiltless had nothing to lose by voting for an investigation. He wanted to show how the capitalist class, by its ownership of industries perpetuated its power through corrupt methods, and thus subserved its own interests against the interests of the remainder of society. He believed an exposure would show clearly how capitalists were using the economic necessities of the working class as a means of corruption in governmental affairs and to prolong the dependence of the working class upon the capitalists for an opportunity to labor and exist.

Mr. Callender interrupted and asked why Carey did not appear before the Committee on Judiciary to speak in favor of the bill.

"Because," retorted Carey, "I had no confession to make."

Mr. Callender subsided amid loud laughter.

MacCartney contended that if the order were rejected, it would give an opportunity to the Judiciary Committee to report adversely on Callender's bill by claiming insufficient evidence. Yet if the members of the committee voted against the order in the House they were bound to report favorably on the bill. It was not sufficient that the shameful facts were known to the members of the House, they should be known to the people of the state.

The order was voted down without even a division being taken.

MacCartney's Bill Debated.

On Thursday MacCartney's bill providing that in the purchase of existing gas and electric lighting plants by cities and towns that only the cost of duplication and nothing for good will or based upon future earnings should be paid, provoked an interesting discussion. The committee reported unfavorably, and MacCartney, after moving to substitute his bill for the committee's report, made an argument for it. He pointed out that society created all values, that it was the use by society of these utilities that made the plants valuable beyond the cost of duplication; it was not because the capitalists owned the plants that their value increased, but because they were operated by labor and the product was used and consumed by the people. He showed that when municipalities had decided to assume ownership of gas or electric light plants, the owners had increased the capitalization to an extent far beyond the cost of the plant or its earning capacity. He believed that when a municipality had reached the stage of intelligence where it preferred to operate any of its utilities for use rather than allow capitalists to absorb the profits therefrom, the way for assuming ownership should be made as easy as possible. The capitalists had never created any value, the plant itself had been erected out of the surplus value taken from the working class, and it was neither equitable nor reasonable that the demands of capitalists should be considered before the rights and desired advancement of the people.

The "Confiscation" Bugbear.

Mr. Bemis of Foxborough, with a fine show of indignation, repudiated the purposes of the bill. He said: "We are told Socialism is inevitable, but we have to rid ourselves of the innate selfishness of man before it will be realized. Man is fallible, and because individuals consider they have certain rights, they seek to preserve those rights, and when violated seek recompense therefor." He believed individuals had the right to own and operate gas and electric lighting plants, and it was unjust to seek to despoil them of those rights, especially when only the successful plants were to be appropriated. We ought to call this by its right name, he said; it is nothing more nor less than confiscation; and the bill should be labelled as one to promote nothing short of confiscation.

Carey answered by saying that the gentleman from Foxborough attempted to frighten the members by crying "Confiscation!" He wished to remind him that the history of America was a series of confiscations. The first white settlers confiscated the land from the Aborigines. The founders of the Republic confiscated the government from George III., and gave nothing in return except a few black eyes. This government in turn confiscated the property of the chattel slave owners and shed rivers of blood in the act. And to-day the present industrial system has its source in confiscation. Every hour of its existence the capitalists are confiscating the surplus value created by the working class. History does not furnish a parallel for the confiscation which ceaselessly and ruthlessly despoils the working class of the greater portion of its product to enrich and strengthen the capitalist class. In view of this it was highly inconsistent for a supporter of that system of confiscation to draw down his face and shriek confiscation at this bill. He would remind him that municipal ownership was not Socialism; that it was only an incident in the transitional period from capitalism to Socialism; that under the present system municipal ownership could not be more than an intensified form of class ownership used as a means to prevent one set of capitalists from being exploited by another. Socialists only favored it because it accelerated transition from capitalism to complete collective ownership.

Mr. Homans of Boston attacked the bill because it did not seek to repay the capitalists for the risks involved while operating the plants. He called it robbery. MacCartney answered and cited the specific case of the Bay State Gas Company, which was capitalized at $7,000,000, whereas its plant could have been duplicated at $750,000; and after the legislative investigation of 1893, by special act the capitalization was reduced to $2,000,000. He would ask the gentleman from Boston, "What was that, if it was not robbery?"

The bill was rejected on a roll call of 72 to 84.

Against Child Labor.

During the week hearings were given on two of Carey's bills. One seeks to change the time for which children are required to attend public school from fourteen to sixteen, and was heard by the Committee on Education. In the report of the hearing Carey was reported in the press as saying: "There is only one condition in which a corporation is justified in employing children, and that is where a concern cannot produce a sufficient amount of goods through employing adults, but can produce them if they employ children at a lower rate of wages, and as an economical necessity he favored the measure."

As this report received a wide circulation, it may be necessary to state that Carey said nothing of the kind. This is what he did say: "There is only one condition under which child labor is justifiable, and that is when adult labor is unable to produce sufficient commodities to meet the social needs; but such is not the case, and probably never will be. With a growing army of unemployed, child labor is entirely unnecessary."

The other hearing was on the bill regulating the number of brakemen on freight trains, and will come up in the House on Wednesday. This bill was reported unfavorably by the committee on Thursday.

A noticeable feature of the committee hearing on the school-age bill was the appearance of Frank K. Foster, legislative agent for the State Federation of Labor, in its support. Enough said.

WILLIAM MAILLY.
Boston, Mass., Feb. 22, 1902.

THE TWO CLASSES.

A Tip on Class Distinctions Intended for Capitalists Only.

Socialists point out that society is divided into two classes, one class which produces everything and has nothing and another class which produces nothing and has everything. Now comes "Printers' Ink," a paper for capitalist advertisers, with an editorial entitled "Classes and Masses" in its issue of Feb. 19, pointing out that the class divisions are so sharply drawn and the lives and interests of the classes so totally different, that the advertiser must appeal to either one class or the other as such.

Says "Printers' Ink" on "The Classes and the Masses:"

"It must never be openly admitted in a democratic country, of course, but it is nevertheless true that an advertiser's public falls into one of the two above divisions. His commodities usually determine which he must address.

"By 'classes' are meant people of education or means. The two words are not always synonymous in the cases of individuals, but, in the aggregate, money stands for intelligence, while education, owing to its possessor's increased earning power, means ability to buy goods of the best class.

"With the classes it is possible to use a very distinct kind of 'copy.' The power of the littlest word is as potent as with the masses—perhaps more so—but the classes have special interests in life that can be taken advantage of by the advertiser. They read better books, go to better plays, know pictures, music, football, golf, 'society' tattle, have fads, fashions and thoughts that distinguish them from people who lack their semi-leisure. In addressing them it is safe to use the thing called 'literary flavor.' It is not necessary to make things too plain. Much may be left to their imagination and good taste. The paragraphs of the 'Saunterer' in 'Town Topics' are good examples of the kind of writing that appeals to them. Facts may be sketched lightly, making allowance for details that are familiar. To translate a golf term would often be impertinence, while when Whitman is quoted is is not safe to explain who Whitman was. The classes love to be flattered with writing that persuades them that they know all about literature, music and art. A certain amount of sense of humor may be relied upon, provided it is really humor—good wit, deftly turned epigram or bit of philosophy inverted.

"The masses, on the other hand, need matter that is very plain. There must never be any doubt, for while there are individuals among them that are as quick-witted as any among the classes, there are also individuals who think ponderously. An address to the masses must be so plain that it will reach the dullest among them. It is not safe to patronize them, any more than the classes. When quotations from Whitman are used it must be made plain who Whitman was, but covertly and without ostentation. Sense of humor is not so universal among the masses, for they include many foreigners whose wit has not taken on the American nimbleness as yet, and it must be remembered that they take much melodrama very seriously. Account must be taken of the realities of life. The masses are nearer the soil, and they deal more in dollars, cents and arithmetic. With the classes prices are frequently the last consideration in advertising. With the masses they must be first. 'Literary flavor' is likely to go over tehir heads altogether, and they are likely to have a sort of dumb resentment against golf.

"To write advertising for either classes or masses is a distinct art. Perhaps no man can do both well. The class writer ought to be of the classes, and in sympathy with them, while the mass writer is most successful when he is 'of the people.' It is very certain, however, that most advertising must be addressed to either one or the other, and part of advertising success is the trick of finding out which division of the human family one's goods are adapted to, and then adjusting the matter to that division."

We wonder how many of "the classes" are familiar with Whitman? If the pressing duties of golf and "society" tattle leave the useless set any time for "the good, grey poet" of democracy how they must squirm under his whip of words!

—Liberty will never come to the laboring man until he is prepared for it. No superior class will ever liberate him. The laboring class must work out its own salvation and its own liberation. Liberty is not worth having if it is not worth fighting for, and it will never be attained except through a working class movement.—Utah Labor Journal.

ONE TASK DONE, ANOTHER BEGUN.

A May Concert for the Socialist Daily Is Next in Order.

Last Saturday's Labor Festival in Grand Central Palace a Complete Success, in Spite of the Weather—Yorkville Agitation Committee Begins Work for a Damrosch Concert on May 4.

In spite of the long storm which made the streets in many parts of the city almost impassable last Saturday, the great Labor Festival at Grand Central Palace was a complete success from every point of view. The crowd was there, everything was there to provide for their enjoyment, and they enjoyed it to the full. The utmost credit is due to the Arrangements Committee, to the comrades who assisted them, and to all the professional and amateur entertainers who made the afternoon and the night so pleasant.

It is impossible, as yet, to make any definite statement as to financial result, but it will undoubtedly be found very satisfactory when the accounts are made up. The net proceeds are to be divided equally between the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association and Local New York of the Social Democratic Party.

The Next Undertaking.

Having carried this enterprise through to success, we have to begin work at once upon another of similar magnitude and for no less important an end. The Yorkville Agitation Committee—a body which is in the habit of doing what it sets out to do—has taken the initiative in arranging a grand May Concert, to be held in the same hall on Sunday, March 4. The proceeds are destined to swell the fund for the establishment of a Socialist daily newspaper.

A Damrosch Concert.

The affair as planned will be similar to the Anton Seidl Concert which was held by the party a few years ago, but on a still larger scale, and will undoubtedly be an even greater success. The Committee has secured the services of the full Frank Damrosch Symphony Orchestra of sixty pieces, as well as of the People's Choral Union of six hundred voices—to mention which is a sufficient recommendation. Several of the best vocal and instrumental soloists will also participate.

The entertainment will include an appeal to the eye as well as to the ear, in the shape of three carefully arranged and impressive living pictures, on a scale not heretofore attempted in our party festivals. The intention of the Committee is to make the whole entertainment a thoroughly artistic one, in the fullest sense of the word.

Help Is Needed.

The undertaking is a large one and will require the services of all who are willing and able to help. It is for a cause so dear to the heart of the comrades and so essential to the success of our party that the Committee expects a hearty response to its call for assistance. Next Sunday, at 3 p. m., a meeting will be held in the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, for the purpose of beginning active work. Every comrade who is willing to co-operate should make it a point to be present—but every comrade who is present will be expected to do his full share in the work. The members of the Yorkville Agitation Committee and of the sub-committee chosen for the purpose by the General Committee especially must attend. Those who are willing to assist but cannot attend Sunday's meeting should communicate with Comrade M. Tanzer of the Arrangements Committee, who will give them instructions.

A PICTURE.

While we have the sincerest sympathy with those members of our class who are at present the subject slaves of state capitalism who are underpaid and overworked, the postal employees—we can hardly see why they should go to the trouble of praising a capitalist paper as having proven itself the friend of the masses, the working people," etc., when the same capitalist sheet prints right next to this flattery the advertisement of one of the very worst enemies of organized labor—a concern that is boycotted, a concern that, according to the report of the C. F. U., drove over two hundred members out of the Grocery Clerks' Union, the "concern of James Butler, and never in a line has mentioned a word to let the people know of his unfairness to his employees. The daily press is a mighty power and when a paper undertakes to help a cause such as the letter carriers it can be a powerful influence. But this does not show that it is the workingman's friend.

Here is the picture in the "Journal" of Feb. 20, 1902:

Top of column: "Mail Men Vote Thanks." next leading article, "Fayer Bill to Save Pigeons," while alongside we find the three-column ad. of James Butler: "A typical picture of the capitalist paper which devotes more space to saving pigeons than to lives of poor starving, overworked children, women, and men, and more space to the advertisement of a boycotted concern. And here, to clap the climax, we find the flattering resolutions of endorsement and approval from workingmen! Truly "What fools these mortals be!"

CAPITALIST RULE.

The two union men in Scranton arrested for boycotting will undoubtedly realize that the courts are owned by the capitalist class. Capitalist rule is the same in Scranton as in all other parts of the country. Is it not time the working class took a hand in this ruling business? If you think so, vote for Socialism.

WOMEN TAKE MEN'S JOBS.

An Instance of How Capitalism Destroys Home Life.

Swift's Jersey City Packing House Pays Ten Cents an Hour to Women—Formerly Paid Men Twenty Cents—The Lesson—Who Is to Blame?

Thirty-two men can stay home and mind the babies, make the beds, and wash the dishes, while their wives go out to work. So comes the report from Jersey City.

At the meeting of Butchers' Union No. 8 it was reported that women who work for ten cents an hour and earn three and four dollars a week have taken the places of thirty-two men in Swift's packing house, Jersey City. One man is retained to sharpen the knives, and he is laid off at any hour they think they can dispense with his services for the day. He is paid twenty cents an hour for the time he works. The women work for ten cents an hour, where the men formerly employed received twenty cents; and they are paid only for the time they work, which may be five, may be four, may be eight, or may be ten hours a day.

This is only one case out of thousands of the same sort. Ex-Mayor Chase of Haverhill tells a story of his visit to one of the mill towns of Massachusetts. He was passing one of the mills when the whistles blew for the noon hour. He stopped a moment and waited, expecting to see the men come out of the mills. Instead, there filed out—not men, not women, but small weazened up, thin, unhealthy-looking children. There were a few women and fewer men.

From another direction, coming toward the mill, he saw a long line of men and one or two women with dinner pails. Were these men just coming to work? No. Where formerly the father had worked in the mill while his child brought up a warm lunch from home, later his wife took his place, and now the child had replaced both and these stalwart men were bringing lunches to their children! In the mad competition in the labor market the man had been driven out by woman, who could work for less; and now the child, who worked still cheaper, replaced even the woman.

Why do we have tramps, criminals, and prostitutes? Society drives a man out of employment. He seeks work in his own town and cannot get it. His wife finds work in the mill. He does the housework and still searches in vain for employment. His wife cannot earn enough for herself and the children and for him too. He feels himself a burden upon her. He sees his little home, on which he has paid a few installments, slipping away from him. He becomes desperate. Perhaps he resorts to liquor to drown his sorrow. He leaves home to look for work in other towns. His clothes have already become shabby and threadbare. He finds it impossible to get work. Ragged, weary, careworn, he becomes a tramp, to be cursed by society and kicked from door to door.

Possibly he has too much independence to beg. He sees his child starving! No work, no hope, desperate, goaded on by the sight of his helpless family, his heart filled with hate by oppression, he watches his opportunity; he breaks into a rich man's house and steals. If he succeeds, his success leads him on to a life of crime. Sooner or later, he lands in prison—and society rejoices that "justice has been done."

You see a girl walking the streets at night. She looks suspicious and before you have passed, she stops and speaks to a strange man. You say, "What a shame!" She is young, bright, and intelligent looking. Follow the girl next day. She is in the factory, working for a few cents an hour or in a bindery waiting for an opportunity to earn a few cents folding pamphlets; or you find her behind the counter in a department store, where she earns two or three or four dollars a week. Can you blame the girl? She does not earn enough to buy proper food, and she is compelled to rely on the charity of friends or relatives or else to sell her honor that she may clothe herself to hold her position, poor as it is.

What a shame! But the shame is on society. What a disgrace! But the disgrace is on you, my fellow workingman. You, who year after year vote to retain this system of injustice, crime, and slavery! You who year after year vote to retain the money kings in power, whose only object is to wring profits out of the blood of children and the honor of womanhood. Money kings who drive men to vagrancy and crime; women to shame, and children to an early grave!

But, fellow workingmen, it all comes back on you, for it is you who put these kings on the throne. It is your vote that keeps them there, and it is in your power to take them off. The responsibility for these criminal conditions must rest on your head, until you abolish the capitalistic system, dethrone the money lords, and establish a system of justice and equity that will give work for all and plenty for all.

Resolve to-day! Resolve that your next vote will be a vote for your own interest, a vote for Socialism and against capitalism, that you will clear yourself of this disgrace and that your neighbor's vote will be the same if you can make it so.

E. P. JENNINGS, JR.

—The difference between the Social Democratic Party and the capitalist parties is that the former is controlled by the rank and file, the entire membership directing its affairs, while the latter are dominated by a ring or clique of officeholders and spoilsmen.—The Liberator.

VICTORY IN ERIE.

Municipal Election Results in Splendid Gains.

Socialist Party Beats Democrats Two to One and Casts 35 Per Cent. of Total Vote—A Vigorous Campaign, Which Is Already Recommenced for Next Election.

The city campaign in Erie, Pa., closed on Tuesday, Feb. 18, after more than two months of the most energetic work, and the results are such as to satisfy the most sanguine. The vote for Mayor stands:

Hardwick, Rep., 4,291.
Warde, Socialist, 3,164.
Warfel, Dem., 1,513.
S. L. P., 163.

The campaign has been one of "boring from within" in the trade union movement—that is, it has been a campaign of education on the Socialist view of the labor question, carried on in the closest harmony with the trade unions, without fear and without compromise. The ticket was composed of men tried in the work of the unions and proven true, headed by Geo. N. Warde of Cigar Makers No. 107, Jas. Wilson, Jr., of the Pattern Makers, H. C. Gould of Typographical No. 77, Julius Erstfeld of the Machinists' Union, T. H. Mosher of the Carpenters, and G. F. Hibeck of the Molders.

The campaign was waged entirely on educational lines. Meetings were held every night, and in nearly every union hall in the city, and the addresses of the candidates and other speakers were of the straight, uncompromisingly Socialist order. The efforts of the local comrades were most effectively supplemented by Comrades Nic Getger, A. M. Simons, August Klenke, and Mother Jones. Geiger was with us for ten days, Simons a week, and Klenke two weeks, Mother Jones stopped over with us three days, insisted on paying all her own expenses, and made two of her characteristic speeches, which were of incalculable value to the movement, one at the big labor carnival, the other in C. L. U. hall. The services of these comrades cost us nothing—because they were Socialists. And Mrs. A. M. Simons should not be omitted. She was with us for two weeks and did effective work for the cause, besides speaking a number of times. We could not utilize her to the extent she desired, because at this stage most of our meetings were held at noon time in the shops; but these two noble women have dispelled the prejudice against "women agitators," and prepared the field for comrades of their sex. Mrs. Simons made the address at the carnival on ladies' night. It was pronounced a masterly effort. She also made a deep impression at a big mass meeting in the Second Ward.

The campaign closed for Simons with a monster mass meeting on Sunday afternoon, at which he made the speech of the campaign, creating the wildest enthusiasm, and closing with an appeal to send him the news that that the wage-workers of Erie had broken the chains of industrial slavery on the coming Tuesday. He didn't get that news, but he knows now that the chains are damaged beyond repair and that the next blow will burst them asunder. For the rest of us another mass meeting remained; on Monday night the largest east side hall was jammed to the doors for another hearing of the revolutionary class doctrines by the candidates and the "iron-bound Dutchman," as Klenke was affectionately dubbed. And they got it.

Several days before election the Democratic politicians entirely abandoned their own ticket and worked strenuously for the Republicans—anything to beat those insolent workingmen, who thought they could govern themselves without the aid of professional tools of their bosses. Their efforts probably succeeded in throwing enough otherwise stanch Democratic votes into the Republican camp to defeat us; but we are well satisfied with a defeat compassed by such means. Enough timid workingmen, who were afraid we could not win, insured defeat by voting the Republican ticket, but this will not occur again. The "best" Democrats voted the Republican ticket also; this we intend shall occur again, but the next time we intend that it shall be done openly and not masked as it was this time. Thus we shall make clear to the working class the chasm between them and the capitalists; the task is becoming easier every day, and the era of deception is about closed.

The effect is dumfounding. Capitalist press and politicians are amazed. The press is trying to strangle the baby and the politician is trying to straddle it, but neither will succeed; the baby is a giant in mind and body. The efforts of these worthies are really rich. The Rep.-Dem. press agree that the Republican wage workers played a low-down game on the Democratic wage worker, the purpose of this clearly being to pique the Democrat back into his old pen, but the men whose intelligence indicated his vote for class interest simply smiles at such puerility. The Democratic organ declares that the men who voted the Socialist ticket are only "radical" Democrats, and that they will get what they want in the Democratic party—and the men smile again. And the Democratic politicians proffer the olive branch and suggest "union" to beat the Republicans, and the Socialists give them the laugh.

Analysis of the returns clearly shows that Republican success was made possible by the "conservative" and "best" Democrats—and since the election these same Democrats admit it.

The S. L. P. carried on their usual campaign of delconite scurrility, but with very little vigor and still less effect. They tried by legal proceedings to prevent our using the name "Socialist Party" on the ballot, but failed. They will be quite harmless in the future, and some of them will again be good workers for Socialism.

Another result of the clear presentation of Socialist philosophy in the campaign just closed is found in the eagerness to join the local manifested by the class-conscious union men who did such splendid work for their class, and in the increased powers of our paper, the Erie "People," which aided so materially in securing the splendid victory.

IN OLD VIRGINIA.

Virginia is slow, but is on the road and making some progress. The Socialists of Newport News have nominated R. K. Emerson for Mayor and S. A. Hall for High Constable, for the spring election, and expect to make large gains. Socialist literature, including The Worker, is being distributed and is making a good impression.

TO ALL THE FLUNKEYS OF AMERICA

And Particularly to the Mayor and Aldermen of New York on Their Reception of a Prince.

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of New York.

As you are all preoccupied with the preparations for the performance of a task of international polity, and as we, Socialists, form a part of that "populace" for whose edification the exhibition is contemplated, you will not deny us the privilege of informing you what instruction we shall derive from this new "extravaganza" in which most of you will participate as mere supernumeraries.

Yours is a grave task. For it will lie with the "august" visitor whether American flunkeydom shall be finally admitted to a place of equality among the flunkeydom of the world.

The German emperor, anxious lest you fail to descend to the occasion, has considerately sent in advance a shipload of liveried common flunkeys to drill and train you how to pay obeisance to royalty. His fears were unwarranted. Retainers of the most despicable class that has ever exploited a people, you stand in the lowest political circle of capitalist hell and lowering yourselves is for you no more possible nor necessary.

We are confident that all of you will prove worthy adepts in the art of fawning. You, Republicans will adorn the front view with a bow, low and long; and you, Democrats, will line the distant background with a quite graceful smirk. For you know that your common demagogic ways are good enough to deceive the vulgar multitudes on election day, but in the presence of royalty you must show a different deportment.

A prince of royal blood has come, oh, chosen fathers of the empire city of this great and once proud republic! Extinguish the light on the Statute of Liberty! Call out the police; use all the powers at your command to eliminate, to remove from the gracious sight of royalty all offensive signs of democracy, of republican institutions. Make everything appear as if under autocratic regime. Stand up in line! Attention! Curve your spines! Smile! Smile! Bow and smile!

And while you cringe in fawning attendance on a liveried parasite, the Socialists deem it an opportune moment to hold up to the view of the world the unprincipled littleness of your unrepublican and un-democratic souls and point out the real bond of fellowship which unites all capitalist governments.

Who is this Prussian upon whom you so abjectly fawn? Whom does he represent, and to whom does he pay this visit?

Trained from childhood into an arrogant Prussian Junker—on arrogance dressed in fine cloth and gold braid and exhibited to the gilded flunkeydom of all lands, thus imposing on international toadyism the power and grandeur of the Hohenzollern dynasty, what claim has this parasite to the ordinary appellation of man? Competent only to waste the wealth created by the toil of the German people, by what human thought, by what useful act has he marked his existence? His existence is a continued burden to the toiler; all the luxuries that are his are wrested from the penury and privation of weak women and puny children. Useless to himself and a baneful burden to groaning people, was he sent here by that people? Go into any German city and you will see women cleaning the streets; hauling dogcarts hitched to one team with a dog; carrying heavy baskets of coal. And this empty-headed and empty-souled parasite brings along a shipload of big, lazy louts like himself, who had much better stayed at home and helped the women to earn their daily bread.

You, Messrs. Mayor and Aldermen, do not pretend to believe that this arrogant Prussian Hohenzollern was sent here by the German women who clean the streets, haul the dogcarts and carry coal, or by any other part of the toiling German people. For this German people, who continue to attend to their daily toil, you do not care a rap. You know, and you are glad to know, that this Junker represents the sworn and implacable enemy of the German toiling people, the Hohenzollern dynasty. In order to retain their dominant position, the Hohenzollern had to enter service with the German capitalist class, and that is why you, Messrs. Mayor and Aldemen, yourselves mere servants of the American capitalist class, welcome with open arms your brothers in the predatory profession.

A visit to the American people by this uniformed parasite? Preposterous fiction!

Who are and where are the American people?

In the tenement and sweatshop districts of the great cities; in the factories of New England towns; in the mills of the South, where the children of the American people are being immolated according to law, in the hecamps of the mining centers; scattered on the farms of our land; toiling, toiling, toiling their long, weary hours; toiling that they may barely subsist; toiling that their masters may wallow in riches unparalleled in history; are these millions the American people? What concern could this Hohenzollern parasite have for these toiling millions, most useful but uninteresting cattle? The ornamental stables and kennels of flunkeydom are for him of far more interest. The toiling multitudes are not the "American people" of your designation. Your "American people" is American flunkeydom. This flunkeydom will pay from $10 to $50 for the priviliege of viewing the royal parasite at the opera. American flunkeydom will parade its wives and daughters in undress suits before the eyes of the Prussian Hohenzollern soliciting royal favors. . . . And, oh, bliss! This Prussian Junker will pay a visit to an American she-toady of international notoriety. What are honor or self-respect to the upstart American flunkeydom? Mayors, aldermen, Congress of the United States, President of the United States, daughter of the President, all cringe, fawn, attend and wait on the royal uniformed dummy. So wills American flunkeydom, "American people" cyclept.

The Socialists of the world are fully alive to the cause of the sudden love feast of the German parasite class and the American exploiting class. The steady growth of the Socialist movement in Germany renders the position of the German parasites, royal or of the common varieties, ever less secure. They cast fond eyes to this land, where capitalism abides still undisturbed, a secure fence for their robberies and a safe haven for their ill-gotten skins.

The Socialists of the world, the true republican and democrats, look with cool contempt on your un-republican and un-democratic demeanor. And even those toiling masses whose understanding of their own interests you fondly hope to have completely warped and distorted, may learn on this occasion to take a true measure of your worth. For, intoxicated by the presence of the Prussian parasite, you carelessly discard your usual demagogic disguise and in the light of the day permit the people to scan and study your true nature—arrogant and fawning, greedy and extravagant, and ever contemptible. The lesson of this exhibition will not be lost to the people. Of that you yourselves will take care. For while your hour lasts, you will continue in your greedy arrogance, in fawning extravagance; for you are incapable of conceiving anything higher or nobler. But the moment is rapidly approaching when you, together with the parasites of royal and other varieties will be added to the malodorous refuse that flows down the sewer of history. Of that the Social Democratic Party will take care. Accept the assurance of our sincere contempt and implacable enmity.

BOSTON COMMUNE CELEBRATION.

The city committee of Boston has decided to hold a Commune celebration on Tuesday, March 18, by giving an entertainment and lecture. John Spargo of New York will be the lecturer of the occasion, taking for his subject: "The Paris Commune; Its Lessons." The affair will be held in America Hall, 724 Washington street. This will be a good opportunity to hear one of our ablest lecturers on a fascinating subject. The entertainment will consist of several songs and musical numbers. Admission, to defray expenses, ten cents. Boston comrades should make this affair a success. The Vail lectures show what results can be attained when the proper work is done.

—The laboring people take a long time in learning to say we and ours instead of I and mine.—Union Boot and Shoe Worker.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY
(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY
AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,
By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.
P. O. BOX 1512.
Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.
Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	$1.20
200 copies	50s.
300 copies or more, per hundred

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.5.
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.
Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

NEW YORK UNIONISTS, PLEASE NOTE.

An unfortunate error occurred last week in the headlines of our report of the meeting held in Cooper Union to protest against Senator Hanna's "peace plan." Our second headline was intended to stand "Protest Meeting of New York Unionists in Cooper Union." The error was in the omission of the word "York."

Such an error is, in itself, comparatively unimportant, of course; but in this case it made possible an entire misunderstanding of the headline, giving a color to the whole report. The [illegible] which held the protest meeting [illegible] organizations with a well [illegible] standing in the labor movement. [illegible] to call attention to the error [illegible] who are not otherwise informed of the fact might infer that the use of the phrase "new unionists" indicated either an actual split or a desire on our part to create a split in the trade union movement.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS.

In the international capitalist campaign against Socialism the Associated Press is doing yeoman service and a careful perusal of the foreign dispatches transmitted by this great news agency reveals the methods employed. Being purely a news agency the Associated Press is supposed to describe events with entire impartiality, but, of course, no attempt is made to observe this rule except in cases where there are conflicting capitalistic interests. When the conflict is between capitalist and working class, in forum or field, the working class invariably gets what is known as "the hot end of it."

The recent universal suffrage demonstration of the Belgian Socialists at Brussels, the Spanish strikes and the Trieste massacre of strikers have given the Associated Press fine opportunity to demonstrate its talents in the line of mendacity and its religious regard for capitalistic interests.

For instance, a dispatch from Vienna under date of Feb. 18, remarks that "after a heated debate and violent Socialist denunciations of the troops and governor of Trieste" the Reichsrath did so-and-so.

Observe that the righteous protest of the Socialist against capitalist infamy is always "violent."

The same dispatch says the Premier, Dr. Von Koeber, "made a vigorous defense of the actions of the police and military at Trieste during the recent riots, contending that Anarchists, and not workmen, were at the bottom of the trouble."

Observe again that the defense of capitalist infamies by capitalist statesmen is always "vigorous," never "violent," like wicked Socialist speakers.

Though none is so poor as to do Spain honor as an international factor, yet the Associated Press, with its unerring instinct as a capitalist class defender, springs eagerly into the field and in describing the strike at Barcelona loses no opportunity to paint the workers in the most hideous colors and the bestially obedient, brutal soldiery as the noble defenders of "law and order."

The power for evil exercised by these "doctored" and "colored" dispatches on the minds of the newspaper-reading public is incalculable. The press more than any other agency prolongs the unholy domination of the capitalist class. Whether it tells of strikes abroad or strikes at home care is always taken to misrepresent the working class cause. When necessary this misrepresentation is subtly done, but for the most part it is done with an audacious openness that makes one wonder that the great body of reading workers have not long ago awakened to the utter unreliability of capitalist newspaper reports about anything affecting capitalist interests.

It is considered good strategy to fight the devil with fire and the working class cause cannot be adequately defended and advanced without a working class press. C. D.

Those Staten Islanders who are complaining because of the wretched ferry service ought to blame themselves for not having voted the Social Democratic ticket last fall. The ferry capitalists are minding their own business shrewdly—trust them for that. If the people, as voters, minded theirs as well, they would not have to beg for consideration as they do now.

AN UNJUSTIFIABLE THREAT.

Those who have followed the course of The Worker during the last two years will know that it is with much regret that we admit the statement by Job Harriman, printed in another column of this issue, in reply to certain criticisms by Victor Berger. We have always striven to avoid such controversies, and have often been forced to realize that we had erred through too great a desire for harmony in limiting the discussion of internal party affairs. We prefer to take the risk of erring upon that side rather than to attach too much importance to such internal questions. In the present case, however, justice to Comrade Harriman and our duty to the party alike compel us to present his statement.

We do not need to dwell upon our desire for Socialist unity and harmony. We have proven that already. We abide by the decisions of the national conventions and general votes which effected the union, even though some of the terms of union seemed to us unwise, because we believe that all mistakes in details of organization can and will be set right by the regular action of the party. If we have been wrong in considering certain of the acts of the Indianapolis Convention unwise, experience will justify those acts and convert us; if we have been right, experience will justify us and rectify the errors. We do not propose to make a split or threaten one so long as the party continues to work for Socialism.

Comrade Harriman, reporting as New York's member of the National Committee, stated his opinion, based, as he believes, upon experience and agreed to, as he believes, by the other members of the Committee, that it will be found necessary to abandon the state autonomy plan, insofar as it interferes with the efficiency of national and interstate organization and propaganda work. Comrade Berger, quoting only a part of this statement, leaving out its very important qualifying clause, declares it to be "characteristic of the methods of the Springfield faction—commonly called Kangaroo." It is (in its original, ungarbled form) quite characteristic of our methods. We have always maintained the right of every individual party member freely to express his opinions on party matters and to advocate such changes in method of organization as seemed to him wise. We have also maintained the duty of every individual party member to bow to the decisions of the majority as regularly expressed through conventions and the general vote, upon all such questions. Comrade Harriman avails himself of this right and observes this duty.

Against this characteristic statement of Comrade Harriman, Comrade Berger sets one which he declares to be "characteristic of our" (that is, Berger's) "side." This is his statement, unabridged:

"Any attempt to overthrow the constitution adopted in Indianapolis, i. e., to abolish state autonomy, will be considered a 'casus belli' and will mean a national Social Democratic Party upon the basis of state autonomy and the right of the comrades in every state to regulate their own affairs without any interference from the national board."

If we understand English, that statement means that if any attempt is made, under the provisions for the amendment of our party constitution by regular initiative and referendum within the party, to modify certain clauses which Comrade Berger thinks particularly wise, he, Victor Berger, will resist such attempt, not by the regular methods under the constitution, case to the good sense of the rank and the party. We consider Comrade Berger's threat wholly unjustified and are not frightened by it. We believe the comrades have had enough of such methods. We believe that they hold the same opinion that we hold; that secession can be justified only in the gravest cases—where, through defects of party organization, a minority controls the majority, or, where the party organization has actually ceased to serve the cause of Socialism. In that belief, we feel very safe in leaving the but by the method of secession from file of earnest Socialists.

SOCIALISM DEFINED.

Socialism is the term applied to a state of society wherein the machinery of wealth production and distribution shall be owned and operated collectively by all the people, and wherein each person will enjoy a free and unlimited opportunity to produce wealth without interference of or dependence upon another, and the full proceeds of labor shall go to those who produce it, instead of a few, as now. It implies the placing of all persons on an equality of opportunity and the prevention of a few cunning or unscrupulous individuals from despoiling the many through the power of controlling the opportunities of wealth production. While Socialism is applied to a state of society, it more properly pertains to the principles of co-operation, and not to a definite state or condition.

Socialism is not the fantastic dream of an idealist, nor is it the product of envious minds or shiftless individuals; but it is the conclusion of those who have carefully studied history and observed the principles and tendencies that have characterized the development of human society. Socialism is the natural and inevitable sequence of the present and preceding forms of society and industry, and it does not involve the imposition upon society of a new and artificial form of industry, but rather the recognition and adoption of principles now in operation for the benefit of the few.

All the means of production and distribution being owned and controlled by the people collectively each individual will have free and full opportunity to work and enjoy all the fruits of his labor. No one will have the power to tax the energies of another and all must work or starve. All the waste and extravagance involved in the present system will be eliminated and the quantity of wealth produced will be multiplied many fold. All will be raised above the curse of poverty and the fear of it, and mankind will at last have freedom to develop into something other than a food and shelter-hunting animal.—Selected.

MARX versus MARX.

Our comrade, A. Hirschfield of Minneapolis writes us as follows on a subject of interest to students of English economics:

"My attention was called the other day to a pamphlet entitled 'Capital and Wage-Labor, by Karl Marx.' In itself the pamphlet is very valuable and especially essential to those who are only acquainted with the first volume of 'Capital.' The pamphlet would have been a very timely one were it not for a misunderstanding in its terminology which crept in, in all likelihood, through an oversight of the translator.

"This error is important for two reasons: 1. It confuses the fundamental teachings of the third volume of 'Capital,' the only one dealing with real capitalist production and every-day economic facts. This pamphlet being, to my knowledge, the first work in the English language dealing with Marx' technical terms not found in the first volume of 'Capital,' it is essential that they should be stated correctly, that there be no confusion in terminology, so that future works, extracts, commentaries, etc., which may appear on the same subject should use the same technical terms and avoid a confusion of ideas.

"Now to the subject of dispute: On page 8 we read: 'What is it then that serves our citizen as the measure of his profit? The cost of production of his goods . . . he reckons the rise and fall of his profit by the number of degrees at which it stands with reference to his zero—the cost of production.' Page 9— . . . the price of any commodity is always either above or below its cost of production.'

"This leads the reader to think that by 'cost of production' Marx (or the translator) means the cost of the product to the capitalist employer. Now the cost of a given commodity to the capitalist is c, constant capital (raw material, auxiliaries, and wear and tear of the machinery, buildings, and other fixed capital used) plus v, variable capital (wages.) Our formula would then read: Cost price, or actual expense of production, to the capitalist, of a given commodity =C plus V.

"Search as you may the third volume of 'Capital' and you will not find the term 'cost of production,' but 'expenses of production' or 'Kostpreis.' See Vol. III, Chapter I.)

"Further on, on pp. 11 and 12, we read: 'The price of a commodity is determined by its cost of production . . . Cost of production may be divided into (1) raw material and implements, that is products of industry whose manufacture has cost a certain number of days' work, and which therefore represent a certain duration of labor, and (2) actual labor, which is measured by its duration.' Again we read '. . commodities are exchanged with one another in accordance with their cost of production; and thus cost of production determines their price.' From this last quotation the reader will infer that in the long run 'cost of production' and 'price of production' are synonymous, and that it equals c plus v plus s (surplus value) for he says' the actual labor, which is measured by its duration.'

"It is true that price of production for the entire output of commodities is c plus v plus s, though for an individual commodity (which is seldom sold at its value) price of production equals c plus v plus p (the average rate of profit prevalent, or rather available.) The latter is determined by the sum total of active capital divided by the sum total of surplus value produced. See Vol III, Chapter X.

"The confusion arises from the introduction of 'cost of production,' which in one place only means c plus v, and in another c plus v plus s. Substitute on pages 8 and 9 'expense of production' for 'cost of production' and let the latter term stand on pages 11 and 12, and much confusion will be avoided.

"It is either Marx versus Marx or Marx versus the translator."

——If you like this paper, subscribe for it.

SOCIALIST MOVEMENT IN ITALY.

BY AGNES WAKEFIELD.

The Italian journals are full of discussions on the investigations of the political corruption and miserable social conditions of South Italy. The excitement was intensified by the debate on that question in Parliament. The affair which has caused so much commotion, briefly related is this: In the session of Parliament of December 14, after several members had spoken on the southern question, the Hon. Enrico Ferri made a speech in which he alluded to what the Socialist Party had done in working against political corruption. He was several times interrupted by the conservatives and after making the statement: "The Hon. Colajanni was wrong in comparing the political corruption of North Italy with that of South Italy; in North Italy the centers of corruption are exceptional cases, while in South Italy the exceptional cases are the honest centers"—there arose such a tumult from the southern members, the monarchists, and conservatists that he could not be heard. The president the Hon. Villa, not being able to secure order suspended the session. As it was Saturday, the next session came on Monday, December 16. After the secretary had read his record of the previous session, when the Hon. Ferri asked for the floor, President Villa stated the reasons for which the preceding session had been suspended and said that he could not give the Hon. Ferri the floor until he withdrew his offending statement of Saturday. The Hon. Ferri claimed his right to speak on the secretary's record, but the president replied: "I ask you formally to retract your statement of Saturday." The Hon. Ferri shouted back: "Neither you nor anyone else, whoever he may be, can make me retract what I have said." Then the tumult broke out anew. The monarchists howled. The president said: "On account of the position taken by the Hon. Ferri, it is my painful duty to propose to Parliament that he be censured." There were protests against it—above the tumult which continued, the president declared: "The censure is passed; and the session is suspended." The censure involved the exclusion of the Hon. Ferri from Parliament for the length of five days.

In the following session of December 17, the Republicans, Radicals, and Socialists attempted to pass a revocation of the censure of the Hon. Ferri, but it was voted down. While the members were standing up to vote, the Hon. Ferri, who was outside the door that leads to the left (guarded by an usher to prevent the censured member from entering), with a package of papers broke the glass pane of the door, and shouted: "Keep up the parliamentary corruption! Long live Socialism!" Everybody turned in that direction. Then there followed a scene of disorder. Among the various howlings and exclamations, some of the ministers laughed, while others seemed very nervous. It was ten minutes before the members resumed proceedings.

It is claimed by the Socialists that there was a plot by the monarchists to prevent the Hon. Ferri from continuing his debate (for he knew too much on that subject) and to try to utilize what he had said to embitter the people of the South against him; the Radicals and Socialists also claim that the censure was illegal because the Hon. Ferri was not allowed to explain his statement, but instead was arrogantly and unjustifiably asked by the president to "retract" what he had said. Of course, it was impossible for the Hon. Ferri to retract what he knew to be the truth.

The monarchists were baffled in their attempts to embitter the Southern people against the Hon. Ferri, for as soon as the news of his censure was circulated, there poured in a constant stream of telegrams, letters, and resolutions from Socialists and sections of the party, and from Radicals also, from all over the country, from the South as well as the North, approving the Hon. Ferri's conduct and expressing indignation at his illegal censure. He received numerous invitations to continue his discussion with all the people instead of the monarchist howling wolves of Parliament for his audience. The workers in their acclamations called him the greatest of their leaders. Accepting as many as possible of these invitations, he went to Naples and other cities, where he spoke to crowded audiences and was received with intense enthusiasm. The police and militia turned out in great battle array to be ready to quell any disturbances that might arise in the triumphal march of such a hero. Thus the arrogant and illegal censure pronounced on Enrico Ferri has resulted in heaping upon him the highest honors and the greatest expressions of the admiration and love of the people that he has ever received in his life. The toiling, hungry people of Italy know that Enrico Ferri speaks the truth, and offers them the only remedy for their desperate condition—they know how they are tyrannized over and robbed, their torments and the political corruption are so great that they have no sectional pride, but want robbers called robbers and chased out of office and power.

Socialist Polemics.

Polemics have been waged between a number of Italian Socialists, particularly between the Hon. Filippo Turati and the Hon. Enrico Ferri, which are now raising the question whether or not there are two opposing tendencies in the Socialist Party of Italy and whether there is a probability of a division into "reformers" and "revolutionists," or "Turatians" and "Ferrians." So far, the reply to this from the best known members of the party and from the Socialist periodicals is an emphatic "no;" briefly, the opinion of the majority is that all the Socialists of Italy are Marxian revolutionary Socialists, and the tactics of supporting a more liberal ministry or of advocating certain reforms which shall relieve distress and win the confidence of the people are determined in advance by no iron policy, but are decided as the needs of the day and the progress of events may require. The alliances of Socialists with Republicans have always been regarded as temporary tactics to be discontinued as soon as the Socialist Party is strong enough to act alone; the Socialist lecturers and writers constantly teach the people the great and radical differences between the two parties.

Many of the Italian comrades do not hesitate to say that they find no pleasure in reading those fiery polemics. The famous and venerable Prof. Cesare Lombroso in a recent article addressed to Ferri and Turati, in "Avanti," in the gentlest and most paternal way implores them to make peace with each other and to forget their differences for the sake of the unity of the party.

In the Socialist journals' columns of contributions of money to the party, where the names of the givers are often accompanied by some greeting to a friend or a very brief opinion on some recent event, there are numerous allusions to the polemics; for example, one comrade sends a sum of money to "Avanti" with the sentiment "Loyal to Enrico Ferri before and after the glass breaking;" another sends a contribution, "Approving the position of Turati," and a peaceful workingman forwards a little hoard of savings with the sentiment: "Lamenting the recent mania for letter writing that has taken possession of so many of the intellectuals of our Socialist Party." To make the preceding delicate hint understood, it should be explained that most of the polemics are in the form of letters published in the various Socialist periodicals. Some of the Italian Socialists call their well-educated members "intellettuali," corresponding to the English "intellectuals," but others have protested against designating members as "intellettuali," "professional," and "operai" workingmen), saying that a Socialist is a Socialist and all such distinctions are objectionable, as they might tend to disturb the fraternal harmony that ought to exist among Socialists—which warning is submitted, without comment, to our Americans comrades for reflection.

In the uprising of many Italian Socialists against party polemics, the editors, too, do not escape, for they receive many an exhortation in the clear and forcible language of those that, as the poet saith, "Know well to wield the implements of toil"—to the effect that if "the intellectuals" of the Socialist Party, however wise and mighty they may be, and however much respect is due them, do not know better than to think that their admiring comrades want to read their peppery and ponderous polemics, the editor should know better than to print them! Besides they stir up strife and do nobody any good except the enemies of Socialism who read them with great rejoicing, wishing to find in them indications of a near smash-up of the Socialist Party. Then the busy Socialist editor (who is often a lecturer, lawyer, and member of Parliament, too), is smitten and overwhelmed with the weight of fearful responsibility thus heaped upon him, if not flattered by the surpassing wisdom required of him, so he defends himself by replying that after leading party members have begun polemics, in justice to the opponents he cannot decline to publish their discussions or he would be charged with partiality and arrogance, etc.

There was a division in the Socialist branch of Milan, but a reunion has been effected. The Hon. Filippo Turati of Milan, on account of that division and his polemics with various other Socialists, resigned his position as member of Parliament, but he was re-elected. He declined to serve, but his friends are trying to persuade him to accept.

The Unemployed.

The distress of the many unemployed in Italy is shown by appeals for the establishment of public works. "Avanti" of Jan. 9 says that a band of 1,500 unemployed men in Reggio Emilia, after weeks of anxiety, assembled and sent a delegation to try to influence the mayor and prefect to hasten the arrangements for the public works, for which they had been hoping.

In Barletta, says "Avanti" of Jan. 7, the masons have been out of work for more than two months; they form a large class and are in great distress. They have appealed to the public authorities for employment, but so far in vain.

Under the title, "Workingmen's Solidarity and Employers' Brutality," "Avanti" of Jan. 13 relates: "In Berra Ferrarese 350 men who were at work, felt compassion for the miserable condition of many of their fellow laborers who were in want because they could find no employment. The workers decided to take turns with the unemployed. But the agents of their employers refused to admit the new men, for the employers would not allow taking turns. Indignant at such cruelty, all the workers struck, thus giving another lesson of fraternal love to the inhuman and stupidly obstinate bourgeoisie."

In Rome, where there is always much poverty and suffering and where hundreds of hungry persons of all classes often apply for one vacant place, a short time ago a mason was arrested while writing on a wall of the Quirinal Palace (the royal residence) the words: "Down with the king!" When he was questioned he said he had been out of work for a long time and so did something to get arrested. He may be put in a cold, damp cell with bad food, but he will get enough to keep him from starving.

It is related by "Avanti" of Jan. 14 that the ninth or tenth reunion of the unemployed of Rome met that morning and crowded a hall. Having heard the report of the committee that had been sent to question the officers of the municipality about work that had been promised but not yet granted, the workers who had long been suffering hunger were so disappointed that after a debate in which a painter, a stonecutter, a carpenter, and others took part, a resolution was passed to the effect that the customary promises could not satisfy men that have to earn their bread by labor, and that to further consider their sad condition a meeting of the entire working class of Rome should be called. A day was chosen for a mass meeting.

In Pavia there are many out of work; some of the men that had been discharged from electro-technical establishments went to Milan, but very few found places, for in that large city also the metallurgical industries are passing through a crisis. The Federation of Edital Workers is doing its best to help them.

In Lecce, says "Avanti" of Jan. 16, the unemployed masses, who for months have been enduring extreme want, are every day in a more desperate condition. A short time ago the masons went first to the Municipal Palace and then to the prefecture asking for work. Then the carpenters, blacksmiths, and decorators held their reunions to try to find a way out of their enforced idleness. Many men of other trades now have only temporary work and expect soon to join the ranks of the unemployed. On the 14th of January a thousand hungry persons went about the city in a body demanding "bread and work." A committee was sent to the municipality and obtained new promises. The town officers are in consternation at the desperate state of affairs and, with debts and a low treasury, see no way out except to try to get public works paid with outside funds.

In Busra Pisani, at the same time, a band of the unemployed made a demonstration in front of the town hall demanding "bread and work." The mayor had flour distributed, and a member of Parliament telegraphed to the minister of public works asking him to give immediate orders for beginning work on the left bank of the Adige.

In Ravenna, also about the middle of January, an assembly of the unemployed held an open-air meeting with the help of officers of the Labor Bureau and appointed a committee to urge that public works be provided. The mayor telegraphed to the president of the ministry.

In Frascati the unemployed masons are wrestling with starvation "waiting for the municipal manna to fall from heaven." Meanwhile a zealous official has seized all the copies of one of the Socialist almanacs, that were in the possession of a local agent, doubtless thinking that such reading is not patriotic and pious enough for men that are facing starvation.

Physical Degeneracy.

For the past year in Italy, as stated by "Avanti," the men mustered into military service lacked 5,000 to complete the required number. The year before that, 8,000 men were lacking. Although the increase of population is rapid, there are now fewer men fit for military service than there were thirty years ago. This proves that the physical strength of our race is rapidly deteriorating. The expense of maintaining the army, necessitating taxation that keeps the people hungry, is not the least important cause of that deterioration.

Socialist Teachers Discharged.

"The National Union of the Elementary Teachers of Italy" which was formed in April, on the same plan as the labor unions, continues to meet the opposition of conservatists in authority. That Teachers' Union had the cooperation of the Hon. Angiolo Cabrini, Socialist member of Parliament, and the school masters that have taken the lead in its organization are Socialists.

In Turin, within the last few weeks, three teachers, Enrico Maffi, Gorretto, and Annibale Corti, have been discharged for being Socialists. The last named is secretary of "The National Union of the Elementary Teachers of Italy," which offended his superior officers. Many citizens protested against that arrogant injustice, but in vain. Turin is the home of some of the most celebrated Socialists of Italy, Edmondo de Amicis, Prof. Cesare Lombroso of the University of Turin; the Hon. Oddino Morgari, and the Hon. Quirino Nofri, it has a strong Socialist section and several Socialist periodicals, but in that large city which has so long been a monarchist stronghold, the Socialists are in a minority in the municipal government and so can do nothing to prevent the discharge of teachers that are Socialists.

Many of the discharged Socialist teachers take positions on the staff of some Socialist periodical, or become contributors, or take a party position as secretary, etc. As the Socialist Party press is constantly growing in strength and influence and new journals and reviews are founded every year, the "unpatriotic, seditious" teachers have less dread of losing their positions now than they formerly had.

Among the professors discharged for being Socialists are Prof. Vittorio Gottardi, author of "Favole Sociali" and other writings on labor and Socialism, who became a journalist; Prof. Savino Varazzani, who was professor of literature and philosophy in the College of Piacenza, who was deprived of his position in 1898, and is now a Socialist member of Parliament; and the Hon. Angiolo Cabrini, who was professor of literature, but was condemned as a Socialist in 1894, and had to go, an exile, to Switzerland, where he obtained a position in the schools of Mendrisio. He now represents Milan in Parliament and is one of the youngest members, being little more than thirty years of age.

(To be continued.

WHO EARNED IT?

"The earnings of fourteen railroads for the second week of February show an increase of 5.29 per cent."—Daily Press.

The trainmen, conductors, and other employees have not received an advance in pay. Of course not.

The railroads "earned" it. What are the "railroads"—the tracks, cars, locomotives, etc.? Did they earn it? Labor produced these things, and it is the labor of the working class—the trainmen, conductors, superintendents, and others—that earns it all.

Who gets it? The men who hire a secretary to clip coupons on the stock they hold, while they idle their time in travelling through Europe or otherwise enjoying the money thus earned by their slaves. If every stockholder should die to-night the railroads would run on schedule time to-morrow.

Why should we not abolish this class of parasites?

MINERS REMEMBERED PARA AND THE BULL PEN

A Peoria, Ill., dispatch of Feb. 20 says: "A storm of hisses greeted a motion introduced to-day in the United Mine Workers' Convention, making an appropriation of $50 for the fund which the trade unions are raising for the erection of a memorial to the late President McKinley.

"The proposition to make the appropriation was defeated almost unanimously."

Current Literature

"The Commentator" issues as a supplement to its February number the first of a series of cartoons by William A. Sherwood on "Modern Problems." It is a powerful protest against the injustice heaped upon the outcast women who are the victims of a vicious social system, but has obviously lost in the reproduction, being printed too heavily.

The following fable, by Louis B. Coley, truthfully represents the literary tastes of "our great middle class:"

"A man once wrote a deep and learned book, entitled 'The Classes and the Masses.'

"It sold not.

"One day a friend suggested that he drop the C and M from the title.

"He did so, and now everybody buys it, thinking it is a society novel."

Other features of this interesting number are the editorial reflections on A. Conan Doyle, who has become the hired apologist of Kitchener's crimes and Britain's brutality, and a fearless handling of the church and the sex question. J. Hatvers Batvers contributes a droll bit on "Decadence." "The Commentator" is edited by Scott Dabo and published at 788 Broadway, New York.

The best thing in "The Whim" for February is Whidden Graham's parody on "The Making of an American" by Jacob Riis, entitled "The Faking of an American, by Fakeup Grease." Jacob Riis is one of the sycophants who tell "how the other half lives" while insisting that there are no classes and no class struggle in America. The following bits from Graham's scintiliant satire apply equally well to the charity crooks, parasitical philanthropists, benevolent bunco-men, "reform" howlers, sentimental screechers and all the famous freaks and fakirs who will do anything for the poor but get off their backs.

"Was sent to invent details about a murder on the East Side. Found murderer in tenement house. He said he had killed his wife because she insisted on breathing his share of air in backyard. Wrote up sickening horrors of poor man deprived of air by selfish wife. Great sympathy on part of better elements, who organized a Society for the Liberalization of the Divorce Laws. Also, Society for Supplying Fresh Air in Tanks to Working Classes. Also, Society for Collecting Statistics of Consumption of Fresh Air by Polish Jews. Also, Society for Collecting Statistics about Other Societies. Was appointed Secretary and Treasurer of the various societies. * * *

"My plan to get rid of slums very simple. Have city buy slums, tear down tenements and make a park where they stood. City did so. Now no slums at Mulberry Bend. People who used to live there moved, so now there are slums on Avenue A., slums at Hell's Kitchen, slums at Little Italy. More slums that ever. But none at Mulberry Bend.

"Everybody knows me. Everybody has heard how I got 4½ cubic feet more air for poor children in tenements. Babies don't die so soon now, so there is more demand for rooms and landlords get higher rents. Am considered a universal benefactor of mankind. Fake beautiful stories of how the great Mr. Rosenfelt and me knocked out 'sweat-shop system.' Sweatshops still doing business at the old stand. Public doesn't know this. Public wants fakes. I supply demand. Many honors conferred on me. Am growing round shouldered carrying medals bestowed by foreign potentates for being the most expert fakir that ever happened along. My lecture on suffering of the poor draws tears from the eyes, and dollars from the pockets, of soft-hearted people who own tenements. Splendid graft working sentimental rich. Great is America and greater the Fakirs thereof."

"Social Justice" (new series), Frederick G. Strickland's magazinelet, to be published bi-monthly at Yellow Springs, Ohio, in the first number gives the following reasons for its existence:

"This little journalistic venture is not launched in order to 'fill a long-felt want.' Indeed, we are not certain that we are wanted at all. Some people know how to have their friends urge them to do a thing like this, but our friends have an idea that they could get up a magazine about as well as we could, and we are in perfect agreement with them. There are other people publishing Socialist serials who can do a great deal better than we can. But this is OUR message. We precipitate ourselves in this, as in other matters upon a cold and unwilling world. We will write, as we speak, not because we are the most proficient or profound, but because the message burns within, and must come out.

"This is our little tallow dip which we light in the great world of man-moulistic darkness. There are some of our Socialist contemporaries that are like lights, but the tallow dip must shine in its own little way, down close to the ground. Sometimes the humble efforts are first to reach the humble folks. They live near the ground, and have not lifted themselves to the beautiful light in the tower. * * *

"Some of the people that we want to convert to Socialism are giraffes and some are donkeys. The only way you can feed the giraffe is to give him some cut feed up in the hay mow. To feed the donkey just throw some hay on the barn floor. Now we have a lot of Socialist publications intended for giraffes. They are placing the right kind of diet at the proper altitude, and the giraffes are doing very well. But 'Social Justice' and a few others are set for the feeding of donkeys. There is one excuse for our existence—there are so many more donkeys than giraffes in the human family."

The same number contains a reply to Herbert N. Casson's "Crime of Credulity," in which the writer seems to overlook the fact that "The Crime of Credulity" is not a book on Socialism, and that Casson is not a scientific Socialist, and no one dreams that he is. Nor does anyone expect Casson to be logical, for that quality is missing in his mental makeup. He is an economic metaphysician, a man who expects to get Socialism by the "mental science" methods whose results in other fields he so brilliantly satirizes.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

Central Missouri Push.

When we hear of the millionaires organizing trusts, we are all liable to object and say they ought to be satisfied with what they have. But did you ever stop to consider what would happen if they didn't do that? Well, the tide of wealth is so strongly set toward these millionaires that if they didn't "invest it," waste it or give it away, the body politic would very soon be drained of its circulating medium, and death would ensue. Just how much the people are bleeding into their coffers is shown by the fact that, with all Carnegie is giving away, his wealth is actually increasing. These rich men must do something with the floods of money—the life blood of the people gushing from their broken hearts—that is pouring in upon them, or they will be drowned in it; they cannot invest such fabulous sums in small businesses, therefore they are compelled to trustify. But each trust is a monopoly that adds to the stream pouring upon them. They are as helpless in the work of ruin as we are in preventing it. The people are being emptied of their wealth faster than it is coming back to them, and it can almost be figured out mathematically how long it will take to empty them entirely. They who now have ten, twenty, or fifty thousand dollars are blind in their fancied security, for it will be only a few years till they are as utterly emptied as the poor man is now.

Cleveland Citizen.

Carnegie's lavishness in donating $10,000,000 to the government to establish a national college and in handing out wads of money right and left to build churches and libraries, looks as though his conscience is pricking him. In olden times, when some land or water pirate robbed and pillaged and destroyed a weaker foe or enslaved him, offerings and sacrifices were made to stay the wrath of the gods, and to this day penitent scoundrels have a happy nack of softening harsh public criticism and condemnation by making extravagant donations to certain institutions and prostituting charity. Probably Carnegie is haunted in the still hours of the night by terrifying visions of bloody Homestead; perhaps his mind is racked by memories of a small army of men whose lives have been taken in the industrial war to satiate the thirst of his greedy golden god, and in which the modern slaves had no chance. At all events the hypocrisy of Carnegie stands out plain and bold. His gifts simply represent the plunder that he still exploits from his cowed workers; that portion of the wages that are withheld by the steel trust and called "profit" because it sounds better than plunder.

Fort Wayne Dispatch.

According to the late public utterances of C. M. Schwab, president of the steel trust, that corporation is more powerful than any king, that sixteen millions of people are dependent on it for bread and butter, that it possesses three hundred ships and millions of acres of land.

One man, by a turning of the hand and shutting down the works indefinitely, can practically starve sixteen millions of people. Oh, how we Americans hate kings! How we throw up our hats and yell ourselves hoarse about our freedom! If we are free, where do you find slaves? Echo answer—where? And this kind of thing will be continued as long as the voter continues to vacillate between Democrat and Republican parties. There is no difference between them so far as the laboring man is concerned. The only fair and practical solution of the problem is offered by the Socialist Party, for their plan is based on first principles, and conclusions reached through sound logic which is incontrovertible.

TRAMPS AND SOCIALISM.

The highways and the byways are lined with tramps. Under present conditions it is admitted some of them won't work. Under socialistic conditions will they work? We believe they will. It is claimed that the fasting cure will remedy any disease, even insanity. Be that as it may, we guarantee that applied in allopathic doses, it will cure the most confirmed tramp of his mania for avoiding work; the instinct of self-preservation will compel them to labor. They will have to work or starve. As it is now, kind hearted people dare not turn a tramp away hungry for fear of wronging an unfortunate man who would work if given an opportunity. This uncertainty is the opportunity of the tramp. But under Socialism all would know that the industrial organization stood ready to employ all comers, giving them the full net product of their labor. Given such conditions no one would feed a tramp. The rich returns for short hours of labor, under conditions that would not rouse their combativeness or wound their vanity, would be too attractive a prospect for the most hardened tramp, to resist—especially if the alternative were starvation.—L. H. Edmiston, in The Undercurrent.

——You may fool the poor workingman just so long as the majority of him have a job. He is usually a passive animal and difficult to rouse. But when he finally shakes off the inertia of years he is prepared, seemingly by instinct, to carry out a part of the social scheme of readjustment, and then—beware, parasite.—The Commentator.

THE COMMENTATOR.

If you are a Socialist, or an Individualist, or for that matter a Liberal-ist of any sort, send for the March number of "THE COMMENTATOR."

It will be of peculiar interest to men and women who look forward to and believe in the realization of the Ideal Social State, speaking broadly.

If you will send ten cents for the March number, your name will be placed on our subscription list for three months, at the end of which time you can subscribe for the full year if satisfied, or cancel subscription without further cost.

THE COMMENTATOR,
788 Broadway, New York City.

When ordering mention THE WORKER.

A STATEMENT OF FACT.

Job Harriman Corrects Certain Misinterpretations of His Report as National Committeeman.

In the "Social Democratic Herald" of Feb. 15, Comrade Berger indulges in a few caustic and erroneous criticisms, both of my report of the National Committee and of the old "Springfield faction." He should be ashamed of himself for his unjust insinuations concerning the Springfield faction, especially since the party so completely vindicated their course at the Indianapolis Convention last July by rolling up such a large majority for them, one the faction to which Comrade Berger belonged.

His main objection is to the first clause of a small sentence in my report. He shows his unfairness by quoting only a part of one sentence. Ha dhe quoted the paragraph in which this sentence occurred, he could not have misled his readers by any misrepresentation, however clever.

I said: "State autonomy being only a peace measure, will not long be considered a vital part of the constitution, that is to say, it will be eliminated to and will be eliminated accordingly; such an extent that it will not interfere with the efficiency of the national and interestate organization and propaganda work."

All following the semicolon (from "that is to say" to the end) Comrade Berger failed to quote.

I further said that this change would be made by the act of the party. This also he failed to quote.

I also said that, from the sentiments expressed by the committeemen generally, the party was discovering that state autopomy was a failure. Neither did he refer to this statement.

By a peculiar cunning of his own, he would lead his readers to believe that state autonomy was agreed upon as a final and permanent plan of organization, and that those who did not continue to support it are dishonest and treacherous. The fact is that the convention provided a means by which the constitution may be amended. Every honest Socialist will admit that no constitution should hold against the will of the majority, that any law of the party may at any time be changed by a majority vote.

Had Comrade Berger quoted correctly all I said, his readers would have seen that I said the party would make the change—that is, would abandon state autonomy because of its inefficiency. This he did not want his readers to know, and he thus showed how entirely unreliable he is by trying to deceive his constituency. I challenge him to print my full report and his criticism side by side.

As to the matter of the double dues paying system, I said: "We decided that it was unconstitutional and ordered the scheme stricken out of the constitution of such states as had adopted it."

Comrade Berger says we did not order anything of the kind. The fact is we ordered Comrade Boomer to strike out the clause from the Utah constitution, even if the convention demanded it. The minutes of the Committee will settle this point. When this was being done Comrade Berger jumped to his feet and said he had framed the clause from which it was copied, and that he would see that it was also stricken from the Wisconsin constitution.

In his criticism he said that "We held that . . . according to our constitution the state organization must pay national dues for all its members." If the reader will compare Comrade Berger's statement with my statement, he will see that the meaning is the same; and I am surprised that he should try to confuse the membership over a matter on which, in substance, we agree and on which, in fact, I am correct.

I trust that he will temper his enthusiasm with a bit of good judgment and spend his efforts toward the benefit of the movement, and not continually strive to arouse suspicion among the members when there is no cause for it.

JOB HARRIMAN.

(Comrade Harriman's quotations from his report may be verified by reference to The Worker of Feb. page 2, the only place, so far as we know to which it was printed in full.—Ed.)

CAMPAIGN FUND.

To the Holders of Subscription Lists for the Campaign Fund of the Social Democratic Party of the City of New York:

Comrades and friends who still have subscription lists in their possession are requested to send the lists in at once, as the Campaign Committee would like to wind up its business as soon as possible. As there is some deficiency the comrades would confer a favor on the committee by promptly returning lists and money collected, as it may help the committee to meet all its liabilities. Those who have not collected any money on their lists are also requested to turn in their lists, as this will greatly aid the auditing committee in auditing the accounts. Therefore, come rush in your lists, lists with dimes, quarters, and dollars are preferred, but we want all, even the empty ones. Send lists and money to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street.

Previously acknowledged	$2,251.15
List 15, O. Bartusch	.25
List 289, F. Kasmel	.50
List 286, J. Merkel	.50
List 301, C. Fabi	.25
List 87, A. Doetgen	.50
List 479, S. Weiss	1.00
List 338, E. B. Sedlack	.50
Total	$2,254.65

THE OLD MAN.

The fact that a man over forty-five years of age must dye his hair and mustache in order to conceal his age so that he may secure work has been the topic of considerable discussion in the Chicago Central Labor Union.

The old nag goes to the sausage factrey and the old man too often goes to Potter's Field. Its a shameful result of capitalism. After a man has put in the best years of his life in working for mankind he certainly deserves a rest, but not in the grave.

—Send $2 for five yearly subscription cards for The Worker or 10 half-yearly cards. Ten new readers of The Worker in your town between now and November will probably mean ten new votes for Socialism next election.

PARTY NOTES.

Job Harriman and John S. Crosby will debate on Socialism versus Single Tax in Cooper Union at some date in April, under the auspices of the People's Institute. The exact date is not yet decided upon.

Fifth, 15th, 19th, and 20th A. D., Kings County.—The comrades of these districts held a joint mass meeting in the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum on Feb. 24. After the agitation meeting, which was addressed by Comrades Dooley and Weil in English, and Comrade Franz, Sr., in German, the regular meeting for the election of district organizer took place. Comrade Dooley was unanimously elected for this position. It was resolved that the four assembly districts elect men to assist the district organizer in the work of propaganda, and that from these nine comrades an assistant be elected. Two comrades were enrolled as candidates for membership and an agitation club of ten young men will be formed for the purpose of assisting in propaganda work.

The Gilders' Union of New York has elected Frank R. Humrich as correspondent to The Worker.

John Spargo of New York will be the orator at the Commune celebration of Boston Socialists on Mar. 18.

The Karl Marx Class, Mrs. Avery director, is holding successful meetings at 724 Washington street, Boston, each Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, and readers of The Worker are invited.

Ward 9 Club, Boston, held a meeting last Sunday night at 724 Washington street, and affected permanent organization by electing the following officers: Recording and Corresponding Secretary, Geo. Cutting; Financial Secretary, Wm. R. Dyer; Treasurer, S. O'Shaughnessy; Organizer, William Mailly. Delegates to the City Committee: Geo. Cutting, J. Crishaver, William Mailly. Seven new members were admitted. The club meetings will be held on the second and fourth Sunday in the month, at the same place until further notice. Socialists living in the Ninth and adjoining wards are invited to attend the next meeting on March 9 and become members.

Representative Carey speaks at Plymouth, Mass., on 8 unday. He addressed meetings at Malden on Feb. 21, at Leominister, Feb. 26, and Cambridge, Feb. 28.

Representative MacCartney addressed a good meeting at Worcester, Mass., last Sunday evening, and another at Avon on the 25th. He has accepted an invitation to address the Central Labor Union of Haverhill on Sunday, March 9.

A lodge of the Knights of Columbus at Salem, Mass., has requested the Massachusetts State Committee that a Socialist speaker be furnished to address a meeting, and Representative Carey will probably be sent at an early date.

August Klenke will tour Indiana during April and May.

John C. Chase will lecture in Kansas, Missouri, and Illinois during March and April.

North Dakota held state convention at Fargo on Feb. 14. The state organization has five locals, with 102 members.

Colorado has applied for state charter.

Local charters issued to Tampa, Fla.; Chloride, Ariz.; Altman and Delta, Colo.

Walter Thomas Mills has been holding great meetings in Utah. At Provo, Salt Lake, and Logan, the Mormons furnished their great church assembly halls, and the meetings have been tremendous. Mills says the party has a great future in Utah.

Communication has been received by National Committee requesting collection of funds in the United States to enable Puerto Rican Socialists to establish a paper.

THE POVERTY PROBLEM.

During the month of March, John Spargo will give a series of five Sunday afternoon lectures on "Some Phases of the Poverty Problems," at Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place. These lectures are in continuation of the series so far carried on by Comrades Hillquit and Lee.

The first lecture, on March 2, will be "The Genesis of Poverty." The speaker will treat of the meaning and measure of poverty, statistical confusion upon the subject, the need of scientific analysis, the "thrift" and "temperance" panaceas, the population question, and the Socialist view and remedy.

The second lecture of the course will be upon "Poverty and Childhood," the third upon "Poverty and Disease," and the other two upon "Poverty and Old Age."

Admission is free. Lecture begins at 3 p. m.

TRADE BOUNDARIES.

While workingmen are quarreling about the boundaries that should divide one trade from another, the capitalists are introducing automatic machinery which makes skilled labor unnecessary. Quarrels over trade boundaries arise, because there are not enough places for skilled men who are looking for work Defining trade boundaries will not find places for all the idle skilled workingmen, and it will not help to settle the problem of what shall be done with the unskilled laborers who cannot find employment. There is only one way to provide places for all workers, and that way is for society to co-operate in carrying on production and distribution.—The New Era, Philadelphia, Pa.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

NATIONAL SECRETARY'S NOTICE.

To the Members of the Socialist Party in All the States and Territories.

Comrades:—We are obliged to inform you, that sixteen states are in arrears for national dues. These states are California, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oregon, Puerto Rico, Texas, Washington, and Wisconsin. As a consequence the national organization is facing a grave emergency. The comrades do not expect the Socialist Party to grow and exist on bombast nor can any extenuating circumstances (state and local campaigns frequently quoted), replace the absence of national dues. Isolated state and local campaigns (while truly necessary) should not be given precedence in importance over the collective campaign of the national organization. The national constitution does not contain exception clauses permitting certain state and local organizations to withhold national dues at their option. The comrades expect from us not words alone but deeds. The national organization demands the same from the comrades.

Yours fraternally,
LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 22.

MASSACHUSETTS.

AN OPEN LETTER.

To All Comrades of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—Undoubtedly all of you have read the first annual report of the National Secretary. Those that have failed to read it would do well to study the report in order to become acquainted with the conditions prevalent in our party.

The Secretary's report shows that the comrades in various localities are guilty of having grossly neglected their duty in regard to their financial obligations towards our national party organization.

At the time of the Unity Convention the Socialist Party had 6,654 members, only 823 of whom paid dues in August. In September 2,984 paid dues, and in October national dues were received for 3,781 members, which goes to show that less than one-fourth of the total membership had seen fit to pay national dues up to that time.

Comrades, we need not be astonished to see our national organization indebted to the amount of several thousand dollars as this and more is our fault? Consider this and make it your business to fulfill your duty more promptly and punctually than you have done in the past. It is your duty to regularly pay in your national dues in order that the National Committe may be enabled to carry on a more energetic and successful campaign of agitation.

What do we care for all the cheap noise about the organization and agitation as long as a portion of the membership do not pay their share towards the expenses of the national organization!

Comrades, remember that the members of both factions have agreed to pay off all debts and accept all liabilities that had been contracted up to that time. We believe that the comrades who helped the party by their work or who have advanced money at times when the movement was in a critical condition, should get what is due them.

Local Branch Holyoke, Mass., not believing in empty resolutions and sweet talk, decided to make a start towards putting our party into better financial condition. At our meeting, held February 9, it was decided to appropriate the sum of $10 to the National Committee towards paying off old debts, of the party. Our Local Branch has 36 members at present. Most of our comrades in Holyoke are weavers by trade, and their weekly earnings do not average more than six dollars.

Comrades of America, ponder for a moment! Can you really not do the same as your poor weaver comrades of Holyoke? Can you not follow our example and do your duty financially towards our party and our movement? We wish to impress upon your minds the fact that talk alone will not make a Socialist movement. Deeds and not little sacrifices are necessary to accomplish this.

Do your duty and within a very short time we shall get rid of the troublesome burden of old debts that will remain a check and obstacle to our movement as long as they are not paid off.

Local Branch, Holyoke, Mass., demands of the comrades in all localities that they send within the next few weeks to the National Committee an amount equal to a per capita of about 25 cents for the above stated purpose.

We demand that the National Committee Quorum, at its next session, also take immediate action in regard to this matter and take such steps as will bring the various locals and state organizations to the realization of their responsibilities and neglect of duty towards our national organization of the Socialist Party.

By order of Local Branch, Holyoke, Mass., Socialist Party.

H. SCHLICHTING,
E. SCHWABE,
L. BASLER,
Committee

Holyoke, Mass., Feb. 12.

STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

At the last two meetings of the committee important matters concerning the local charters were acted upon. Charters were granted to Leominister; Ames bury, Salem, Fall River, Northboro, Chelsea, Ware, Adams, Natick, Springfield, Quincy, Bridgewater, Holyoke, and Lynn. Several various communications received and filed. Ten dollars voted to state political committee. Voted to pay $75 to Jas. F. Carey to cover his expenses as State Committeeman in attending meeting of National Committee, and that the same be charged to account of national dues, as suggested by National Secretary Greenbaum. Other bills to the amount of $36.46 approved and ordered paid. Resolution of State Organizer Mailly accepted and filed. Voted to ascertain if Comrade Debs would be available for a tour in Massachusetts during the fall campaign. Organizer Mailly instructed to write Comrade Harriman with reference to a Massachusetts tour in April. Next meeting of the Executive Committee, Thursday, Feb. 27, at 7:30 p. m.

W. P. PORTER, Secretary.

NEW YORK.

FOR SOCIALIST DAILY.

The Committee on Organization, appointed by the General Meeting of party members for the purpose of perfecting plans of organization and collection of funds for the Socialist daily, held two sessions on Feb. 17 and 24.

As a result of its labors the plans for incorporation will be consummated within a short time.

It was decided to issue a call for a $50,000 fund. Ordered to print 20,000 envelopes for the purpose of mailing the call to every Socialist whose address can be secured. It was decided to appeal for pledges of amounts to be paid in instalments.

It was decided to proceed with the organization of labor delegate bodies in each locality for the purpose of representing the local interests of labor in the daily, of communicating to the daily local news of interest to labor, of collecting contributions for and furthering the circulation of the daily in the respective localities.

A number of pledges were received and will be credited after the call for funds is published.

It was decided that a general meeting of all comrades be held Monday, March 10, in the New York Labor Lyceum, 64 E. 4th st., for the purpose of submitting all the plans for ratification.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN,
Secretary pro tem.

STATE COMMITTEE.

The State Committee met in Labor Lyceum on February 18, Henry Slobodin in the chair.

Communications were read from Syracuse, Schenectady, Watertown, Newburgh, and Buffalo. Dobbs Ferry applied for a charter. Granted. Rochester, Syracuse, and Mount Vernon bought stamps.

Comrade Charles H. Vail wrote summarizing the results of his tour. Good meetings were held in Syracuse on the afternoon and evening of Sunday, Jan. 26. The best meetings of the tour were at Troy, Tonawanda, Newark, Utica, Corning, and Watertown.

Comrade William Butscher, State Organizer, reported on work done in Rome, Utica, Amsterdam, Gloversville, Johnstown, Frankfort, and Syracuse. He sent in an application for charter from Rome, N. Y.

Literature was received from National Secretary Greenbaum, relative to submitting a referendum to party members on the matter of arranging inter-state lecture tours and of a party emblem, as the two alternatives for a party emblem suggested namely, a red flag, bearing the words "Socialist Party," and hands clasped across a globe, bearing the words "Socialists of the World, Unite") would both be illegal in New York State, it was the feeling of the State Committee that it would be useless to submit to a referendum the two questions on party emblems.

The Secretary reported that ten more meetings were in contemplation for Charles H. Vail in connection with his coming January tour; also a tour for John C. Chase in about two months' time.

Local New York reported that it nominates Herron and Hillquit for Assembly representatives on the International Socialist Bureau.

The Secretary was instructed to send out blanks to all locals in the state, with a view to ascertaining present standing and strength of party membership.

LEONARD D. ABBOTT, Secretary.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

All locals are requested to forward names of members who want to become speakers to J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street. It is important, comrades, that this information be in by earliest possible date, in order to begin organization of Speakers' Club.

JAMES N. WOOD,
Secretary Organizing Committee.

THE WORKER CONFERENCE.

Regular meeting held Feb. 24 with Comrade Jennings in the chair. Nathan Cohen was elected Recording Secretary. Delegates present were: Fourth A. D., Harris; 19th, Cohen; 22d and 24th, John Pflieck, 28th, R. Willyroseder; 22d and 23d, John I. Cohn; 34th and 35th, Ringwald and Jennings.

Comrade Jennings made a detailed report of his work. The Secretary was instructed to get 200 subscription postals. Also to notify all organized districts to send delegates. Meetings will be held every Tuesday evening at 64 E. Fourth street.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

The Woman's Socialist Union.

Editor of The Worker:

On the fourth page of your paper of Jan. 19 (which has reached me in the last mail) I find a wholly unwarrantable and absolutely false statement regarding the woman's movement. Having given space to this, I presume that you will not refuse me a similar privilege; and in my statement I shall say nothing that I cannot prove.

In order that I may meet this charge, it is necessary that I speak of myself, though those who know me, know that I rarely thrust my own personality into the foreground. I am a newspaper woman, writing chiefly for Republican and Democratic papers. As I am also a Socialist, I never omit an opportunity to speak a word for the cause to which we are pledged. (My pledge is genuine, in that I am a member in good standing of the party organization.) Because of these articles, I receive many letters of inquiry and have found that it is a fact that there are many women in the country who are interested in Socialism, but not yet ready to join the party. Not only this, but they are in a sense sentimental Socialists, of whom I may be pardoned if I say that the party contains enough. Until I have reason to believe that a person is familiar with at least an outline of scientific Socialism, I never advise or encourage to join the party, since one cannot consistently take a pledge while thus ignorant. Finding myself utterly unable to handle the amount of mail that has, in the manner indicated, come to me, and realizing that there are many Socialist women in the country who would gladly help in this educational work, I took the initiative in organizing women, that we might individually and collectively fit ourselves to carry on this work; which is not being done for or by the party. It is not necessary that I take time or space here to discuss the advisability of the woman's organization.

Fully a year ago, I began to correspond with Socialists in regard to this (and there are comrades all over the country who can substantiate this statement.) May 7 of last year, Norman W. Lermond, of Thomaston, Me., in response to a request, sent me the address of Mrs. Fales. His letter reached me May 14 and soon thereafter I wrote to her. This was her first connection with the movement and her letter to me was the first time other women had written to me and assured me of their sympathy and support, and Mrs. Marion Dunham, Pres. of the Iowa W. S. U., had agreed to act as one of the Provisional Committee.

You will note that, before Mrs. Fales knew anything whatever of the movement, I had carried on an active correspondence with others, and had a perfect understanding over a third of a year, regarding this. I had drafted a rough copy for the Call to Women, and had done much other work. I think that at this moment am not positive) that Mrs. Dunham had an outline draft for constitution. At least she sent this before Mrs. Fales became our chairman. At this time we called the movement for Woman's National Socialist Union.

Well, Mrs. Fales offered to act as chairman; and as I had no wish to exploit myself and at that time believed her as well fitted as any one else who had shown interest, I gave way. I expected, if I represented the Western Coast, Mrs. Dunham, the middle country, and Mrs. Fales was the first one to offer her services from the extreme eastern section.

Almost immediately, Mrs. Fales suggested that "Union" be changed to League. I preferred the original name, but had been warned that the only way to work with her was to let her have her own undisputed way, and made no objection. Next she desired to issue a Call to Women which in no way resembled the one upon which the other ladies had agreed (of which original call she had sent a rough, unpolished draft). Again, in the interest of harmony, I allowed her to have her way; but this time I found that many ladies felt that I ought not to have done so.

In brief, I had cause to believe that Mrs. Fales was deliberately deceiving Mrs. Dunham and myself. I had consented to measures which she led me to believe had received Mrs. Dunham's approval, and Mrs. Dunham tells me that she also gave consent because she believed herself a minority vote. But there was no actual inharmony until late in October, at which time I objected to Mrs. Fales' proposal to use her own literature as the chief means of propaganda. If she had been willing to donate this, I should have regretted it, because it is not, in my opinion, suited for that purpose. But she intended to sell it to the women and I deemed it unwise for any of those who were prominently connected with the organization to use it as an advertising medium. From that very instant, she has rejected each and every suggestion which I made.

Before this message of mine reached her, she had sent me a draft for constitution, which aroused my utter astonishment at its: I decided that I ought to give it more careful consideration, so ended it; wrote her as to certain things which had, even in that brief reading, impressed me as not practicable; then sent her draft and a duplicate of my criticisms to Mrs. Dunham, who also made further suggestions.

Upon more careful reading, I found that accepted as it was and would certainly be objected to by every local of the Socialist party, for example, the suggestion that women start co-operative enterprises, the endorsement of the Rochdale system, etc.

I then showed this draft to other members of the Pro. Ex. Com.—a committee selected by Mrs. Fales, who also asked me to act as its chairman, though, when we found ourselves unable to agree with her, she disclaimed that she intended us for the permanent Ex. Com. and that we could not act provisionally, so she assisted the Pro. Com., whose names are affixed with her to the article in The Worker. However, the secretary not appointed until she had resigned from the original movement, or given the Pro. Com. the belief that she had; so I will not refer to them at this time. And be it understood, I have no doubt that they have acted in good faith and I think it possible that they do not know—until they read this—that they are not the Pro. Ex. Com. first appointed. However, I have the original list in Mrs. Fales own writing, exactly as she sent it to me. At least one of the ladies of the original Pro. Ex. Com. wrote to Mrs. Fales suggesting changes to be changed needed in the constitution before it could be accepted; and, though Mrs. Fales had corresponded with this lady prior to that criticism being made, she ceased to do so thereafter. Only one of a series of letters which showed that she did not care to consult with any who could possibly disagree with her. Moreover, though repeatedly asked to do so, she never sent the Pro. Secy. the complete list of ladies who signed the Call, and never answered my frequently reiterated query as to whether she was a member of the party organization. To this day, we are in the dark as to these and other points which it seemed better for us to know.

Here follow extracts of correspondence, which we are obliged to omit for lack of space. The final letter from Mrs. Fales, written in December, was interpreted by a resignation and was so acted upon.—Ed.]

From that moment, I have not had one word from Mrs. Fales. Dec. 28, in accordance with a request from Mrs. Dunham and others, I had our majority draft of constitution published. (Mrs. D. withdrew her first one, in order that this might be unanimous.) We did not think it perfect, but at least it was not the one published by Mrs. Fales, which allows the Pres. to appoint the Com. which has full charge of the propaganda work, to appoint the heads of all departments, and dissolve the Ex. Com. In short, that constitution provides for an autocracy such as no other organization with which I am familiar ever advocated. It was not our intention to start a rival organization, Mrs. Fales is the one who has attempted that; in that, being a minority of one, she resigned (or led us to believe that she had done so) Dec. 16; but after that date sent out her draft, without any message to signify that it was a minority report, and apparently persevered in this attempt until Jan. 28. * * *

The statement that the "Woman's National Socialist Union has been formed at Los Angeles" is absolutely false. It is still in process of formation and has been left entirely in the hands of the Pro. Secy., so that I do not, at this moment, know the steps which have created the constitution. There is a Woman's Socialist League in Los Angeles (of which Local League I have never been a member, since L. A. is not my home). The comrades in this League are, many of them, my friends and I know that some of them have accepted the constitution of the W. S. U. * * *

I think it probable that the so-called Pro. Ex. Com., which endorses Mrs. Fales, is absolutely sincere, though I notice that its Secy. is not one of the signers; and she is the only one who has known all the particulars. I sometimes write carelessly hastily, and it is postible that, if they heard only portions of my letters, they might get a false impression. I am unwilling to believe that, if they knew all, or even if they had been familiar with the small part of the facts here recorded, they would have taken the stand which they appear to have done.

The accusation that I am "timid and conservative" is something of a joke to those who know me. I try to be careful of the feelings of others, because it is my failing to speak as bluntly as a man and I try to guard against it.

We of the Pro. Com. do not consider our draft of the constitution perfect; but it is Socialistic and was sent with a request that recipients send suggestions; and it certainly is not a one-woman concern. It does not mention the Soc. party, as a party; but it pledges us to work for the principles of the Co-operative Commonwealth. I have constantly urged the women who are at the helm to join the party organization, as that is what we unite to carry on where we stand, and I have taken pains to keep Secy. Greenbaum posted regarding the movement. If a majority wish this, or any other change in the wording, they know how to get it. The 5th department of the work of the Union is devoted to legislation, and, with the others, seems adequate for any and all kinds of work that may be necessary.

I agree with Mrs. Fales that there has been much selfishness manifested; but the insinuation that I was at fault in this is false. I took the initiative and would have naturally been chairman, but I yielded the place that Mrs. Fales might have, if she desired it. If I had no other wish than to be helpful to the cause. Then it was suggested that the Pro. Secy. would naturally be the permanent one, and again I resigned in favor of Mrs. Dunham, and that some might think I had the slightest intention of working for "glory," only when Mrs. Fales' resignation thrust it back upon me, did I consent to act as Chairman pro tem.

At no time have I desired office and at no time have I failed to do all in my power to have the will of the majority of the ladies interested, as shown by letters and votes taken fairly and by disinterested persons, rule.

Mrs. Dunham, Burlington, Iowa, is the Pro. Secy. She is an entire stranger to me, so cannot well be biased in her judgment as to will. I have no doubt, be willing to give information to any one who chooses to address her (with stamp and ask who speaks truly in this, Mrs. Fales or myself. In closing I would say that we have reason to hope that there will yet be complete unity between those in the Union (which is the continuation of the original movement) and those who have been mistakenly led to believe that the Union is dead.

WENONAH STEVENS ABBOTT.

Oak, Cal., Feb. 6.

(We have been obliged to omit portions of this letter, as indicated by stars, on account of its length. We regret having to give so much space to the internal affairs of a body not directly belonging to the party; but having expressed an opinion, although qualified, upon the matter in the issue of Jan. 19, we deem it necessary, as a matter of justice, to publish as much of the statement as our space permits. Those desiring further information will please apply directly to Mrs. Abbott. Mrs. Dunham or Mrs. Fales, as we cannot allow the subject to engross too much of our space.—Ed.)

Women in the Party.

Editor The Worker.

Will you be so good as to register my protest against a separate organization of women Socialists on the basis of sex.

Frances Nacke, in your issue of Feb. 16, correctly states all the objections to such an organization. But I think that you believe women can be of service within the regular Socialist Party, and not outside of it, you men Socialists—and especially you Socialist editors—should be a little more emphatic in your invitation to the more capable to come in and join the movement.

At present, we can infer that we are wanted—we can take it for granted—and walk in and join the party, and after we have made the venture, we discover there has been no objection to our coming and we are as welcome as any new members—no more and no less.

This is as it should be, perfectly fair and just, and puts us on the road to a real comradeship. But at the same time, as it has not been the custom for women to "walk in" to men's organizations in this brazen fashion—at least, not since we minted out the caves and cliff dwellings—don't you think a special invitation on your editorial page, for instance, urging us—in fact, COMMANDING us (for this is what we are accustomed to when you are really in earnest) to come in and sit down and make ourselves at home, would about convince us all of the absurdity of forming a separate organization?

If men and women are to work together in the Socialist state on terms of perfect equality, is it not time that they should begin and try how to do it now? Or does the Woman's National Socialist Union recommend a separate Socialist state, for women? Of course, the men are going to take the lead and do things their own way, and they will expect and want us to be very meek and mild and as we are told here in the organization just as we do at home. Of course, we cannot all be presidents, vice-presidents, and secretaries—and no doubt we shall have to keep on playing the same old rôle we have been for thousands of years, and cajole and persuade and so forth, instead of the magnificent dramatic part we might be playing in a separate woman's organization.

It is true that in either case we may be accused of "playing a part," but in the one case we are moving toward a definite end, and learning how to establish an equality for ourselves in the future—while in the other we are simply ignoring all of the facts of our dependent existence and erecting a spook state that has no connection with the real stage of our common lives as men and women.

But if more Socialists really want women Socialists to come in and sit down, they ought to say so—out loud.

CAROLINE H. PEMBERTON.

Philadelphia, Pa.

The Functions of the National Committee.

Editor The Worker.

The N. E. C. has issued voting blanks for referendum on three questions submitted by its last meeting. The first is whether the N. E. C. shall be authorized to arrange speech for speakers only to find that one local has already arranged for some prominent speaker to come to a town for one meeting only, and another is expecting to do the same in the near future and is saving funds for that purpose, while another has but paid $50 for a lecturer for three dates one who came 300 miles for two of these meetings, and its money is all gone and it is in debt. Meanwhile all of these branches have neglected to pay dues and management by the State Committee is unable to do any effective work in unorganized towns, or to furnish literature or other supplies, and comrades ask what good it is anyway.

This question of interference by the N. E. C. in organized states was all settled at Indianapolis, and it is not necessary to settle it again. The duty of the N. E. C. is to keep out until the co-operation is asked for; and the duty of the local branches is to arrange for speakers through the State Committee. Any other plan will cause trouble and destroy organization.

The other two questions submitted are simply absurd, and will cause trouble out of all proportion to their importance. The N. E. C. mountain must have labored hard to bring forth such a diminutive mouse as this. What kind of an emblem shall the party adopt? Emblems have been adopted in several states where they are required on the official ballot, and cannot be changed without serious inconvenience. Comrades in these localities have become attached to them, and will not give them up without dissatisfaction. The adoption of an emblem by the N. E. C. will only add another to the list, and will serve no good purpose.

It is not required by the national organization, as it is in some of the states, for placing on a ballot. The due stamps and party stationery are better without an emblem, as none could be adopted which would not be objectionable to some portion of the party. The best way to dispose of these useless propositions strike it is too late to escape from them is to vote them down emphatically. They will be dead letters anyway, as it will be impossible to enforce them.

W. E. WHITE.

New Haven, Conn.

Socialism and Christianity.

Editor of The Worker:

Regarding this matter of Socialism and Christianity, which is just now commanding so much space and attention, it seems to the writer that your recent excellent editorial thereon and such communications as that from Comrade Klehn, about states the correct position of the two. While perhaps in a secondary sense the moral precepts of Christianity, and, for that matter, of other religions, as to conduct between man and man, may aid the movement in giving it certain enthusiasm, fundamentally they have no connection or relationship whatever. The fundamentals of Christianity, as taught and lived by its founder, were self-sacrifice, nonresistance and love. The fundamentals of Socialism (scientific) are selfishness, rigid justice and the manifestation of the first law of nature, self-preservation, in a new form, required by new industrial conditions. And while this is true, that the basis of Socialism is purely self-interest, its establishment would give more opportunity for the living out of Christian precepts than is now possible. And it is worthy of special mention, in this connection, that such churchmen as Father McGrady and Rev. Charles Vail so regard the relative position of the two. It should be clearly stated and understood that the basis of Socialism is purely materialistic and in no sense spiritualistic whatever the effects.

E. A. BUCKLAND.

Holyoke, Mass.

READ THE OFFICIAL ORGAN
OF THE NATIONAL BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL OF AMERICA.
THE LABOR COMPENDIUM.
PRICE, $2 PER YEAR—$1 TO UNION MEN.
Send for our 1902 Annual, giving Complete N. B. T. C. Roster and History of World's Fair Movement, from its Incipiency to the First Ground Breaking—25 cents.
THE LABOR COMPENDIUM,
904 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

THE PARIS COMMUNE.
LISSAGARAY—"History of the Commune of Paris of 1871," 500 pages; cloth, 70 cents; Library Edition, $3.00.
BENHAM—"The Proletarian Revolt. A History of the Paris Commune of 1871," 232 pages. Price, 25 cents; cloth, 75 cents.
Sent on receipt of price, postpaid.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, New York.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,
730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.
A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.
Send for sample copies.
Subscription, $1.00 per year.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD
Decatur, Ill.
AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.
Subscription $1 per year, in advance.
HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.
Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:
THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

MAKE SOCIALISTS and MONEY
by selling the Commune Number of "THE COMRADE" at your Commune Festivals. Send 10 cents for samples and full information to THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO.,
28 Lafayette Place, New York.

BOOKS WANTED.
Hyndman—"Historical Basis of Socialism."
Enrico Ferri—"Work on Criminology."
Thos. Skidmore—"The Rights of Man to Rural Property."
Parke Godwin—"Democracy, Pacific and Constructive."
Any other out-of-print publication on the SOCIAL QUESTION.
Send name of title and author with lowest price to
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

Some Men Pay
$10.000 for an expert to manage their advertising. There are others who pay $5.00 for an annual subscription to Printers' Ink and learn what all the advertisers are thinking about. But even these are not the extremes reached; there are men who lose over $100.000 a year by doing neither one.
For sample copy send 10 cents to Printers' Ink, No. 10 Spruce St., N.Y. City.

READY AGAIN.
"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists." By H. Gaylord Wilshire. Price, 2 cents; 100 copies, $1.25, postpaid. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
320 Broadway, Room 903. 30 Union Square.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERN'L UNION SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS REGISTERED
This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs
No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

R·I·P·A·N·S
I was troubled with pains in my back, dizziness and burning in my stomach. I had no appetite, could not sleep. A sister of mine advised me to try Ripans Tabules. They have entirely cured me. I take one every night and morning and they just keep me right and regular. At druggists.
The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.
When ordering mention THE WORKER.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.
The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is:
HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

TRADE and SCIENTIFIC BOOKS
The Scientific American Cyclopedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries; 15,000 receipts, 900 New Formulas, 734 pages. Indispensable in every worker's family. Price, $5.00, cloth; $6.00 in sheep, post free.
Hopkins', "Experimental Science," $4.00.
"Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century," by Edward W. Byrn; 300 illustrations, 480 pages, $3.00. Half red morocco, gilt top, $4.00.
Hopkins' "Magic," $2.50.
Sloane's "Complete Electrical Library," 5 volumes in a box, $5.00.
"Standard Practical Plumbing," by P. J. Davies. A complete encyclopedia for practical plumbers, builders, gas fitters, engineers, etc., $3.00.
"The Tinsmiths' Helper and Pattern Book," by H. K. Vosburgh. Rules, diagrams, tables, and recipes for the use of practical metal workers, $1.00.
"How to Become a Good Mechanic," by John Phin. A practical guide to self-taught men; tells what to study and how to begin, 25 cents.
SCIENTIFIC BOOKS of every kind furnished by
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
'CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.
Five Postals for $1.55; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.
For Sale on all New York News-stands.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
60 Second Ave., Between Third & Fourth Sts.

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

PARTY BUTTONS
We manufacture three different sizes in ½, ⅞, and 1½ in. diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the ½ in. size simply with Arm and Torch emblem.
1 Button ..... 5 cents.
12 Buttons ..... 25 cents
25 Buttons ..... 50 cents
100 Buttons $1.75
Cash must accompany all orders.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

PATRONIZE ....
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM.
373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th St. N.Y.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

EMILE ZOLA'S
POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS.
Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.

FOR THE SOCIALIST DAILY PAPER.

To All Socialists and Sympathizers.

Never before in the history of this country has the Socialist situation been so favorable for a vigorous movement nor have the general Socialist tendencies ever manifested themselves to such an extent as now. To build up that movement and to direct those tendencies into proper channels, one thing above everything else is required—a great representative newspaper. This must be a newspaper in the true sense of the word, consisting of at least eight pages daily and about twenty on Sundays, and containing all the news of the day, thus making it possible for its readers to dispense with all the capitalist dailies. A paper of this description, ranking with the very best of the land, with an editorial policy bold and courageous and ever on the alert in defense of the interests of the workers as against the encroachments of the capitalist class, will be a most formidable weapon in the hands of the Socialists of this country.

Hitherto the growth of the Socialist movement has been somewhat slow in this country, and so has it been in every other country until the establishment of such a paper. This fact is natural, inasmuch as it is the news that reaches the daily interests of the people. Having read the news in which they are actually interested, they peruse the editorials by which ther economic and political opinions are more or less determined. The editors of the great dailies, in their editorials, comment on the news of the day from the standpoint of the interests of the capitalist class. Having nothing else with which to compare these editorials the workers become confused and cast their votes for their enemies in one or the other of the capitalist parties. The Socialist daily will comment on the news of the day from the standpoint of the interest of the working class and the political opinions and economic ideas of its readers will rapidly take shape along the lines of their class interest.

There is very good ground to justify us in the expectation that the enterprise will be a success. The field for a Socialist daily is immense, and within the Socialist movement is to be found an abundance of literary and artistic talent which, when organized and utilized, will produce a paper second to none in existence.

The Socialists of New York and vicinity have undertaken this enterprise on condition that a subscription is secured which is sufficient to warrant the effort and on the further condition that a sufficient sum of money can be raised to pay cash for the plant, or to secure such payment, together with a reasonable reserve fund to cover all deficits during the first few months of business. According to expert opinion, $50,000 will be required to establish such a paper and make it pay expenses. This is the opinion of those who have had many years' experience in the newspaper business, and seems to be a very reasonable statement.

There can be no question that the Socialist movement of the East can raise this money. It is only a question of united action, determination, and work. We appeal, therefore, to every comrade, friend, and sympathizer, to lend his utmost assistance to this most important undertaking. Let us urge you to make your subscription as liberal as the cause is important. Do not pledge only what you find in your pocket, but pledge a part of your earnings for a year to come, and pay your pledge. It will be money well spent in your interests, bread cast on the water that will return again.

We appeal to you in the name of the working class, in the name of the international Socialist movement, to leave no possible work undone, no stone unturned, until a great Socialist daily newspaper has been established.

Pledges and contributions are to be addressed and checks and money orders made payable to Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York.

Pledges should be made in the following form:

To Job Harriman, Dr. Julius Halpern, and Leonard D. Abbott, Socialist Daily Finance Committee:—

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist daily the sum of $..... to be paid in monthly installments of $.....

Name: .....

Address .....

PROFIT-SHARING.

A Futile Attempt to Head Off Socialism.

Interesting Discussion in a New England Paper—Comrade Bokelund of Worcester States the Socialist View.

Among the schemes by which the friends of capitalism seek to head off the Socialist movement that of "profit-sharing" is one of the most popular and one of the most deceptive. An interesting discussion on the subject has been given in the Worcester, Mass., "Telegram," provoked by the report of a paper by Charles Gray, instructor in economics and history in one of the city high schools, read at a recent "smoker" of the local lodge of Odd Fellows.

[illegible] Gray's paper was reported in the [illegible]gram" as follows:

[illegible] Profit-Sharers' Side.

[illegible] said that eventually it will [illegible] the present doctrine that [illegible]an's interests are linked to [illegible]ther workmen and the success to other employers, is false use of the true doctrine is that the [illegible]an's interests should be bound up in those of his employer and should be pitted in fair competition with those of other workmen and employers. The principle of profit-sharing was first enunciated in France in the eighteenth century, and its first application was also in France about the middle of the last century. It took 112 years to reach Worcester, which it did in 1888, when it was tried in the factory of Rice & Griffin, makers of sashes and moldings.

"Many firms in this country have taken to profit-sharing because they have found that wages, piecework, prizes, the sliding scale and arbitration do not go to the heart of the labor troubles. Socialism is no cure for the evil. Socialism would result not in an equality of wealth, but in an equality of poverty. Bitter experience shows that all experiments that have tried to do away with the able manager have been failures. The industry of the world is not growing toward democracy. This is natural law. Any attempt to conduct large establishments on the town meeting plan is doomed to utter failure. The current opinion that the trusts are preparing the way for a national Socialism is an error.

"The solution is the modifying of the wage system in the interest of the three factors of production without doing away with any of them. Profit-sharing is economically sound in that it does not propose to do away with the captain of industry, and raises the wage-worker to the level of the capitalist in his interest in the business. The Pillsburys tried profit-sharing as an experiment and paid their men a bonus amounting to 33 per cent. of their wages in several years. They have now adopted it as a permanent feature of their business. In France the bonus is usually applied to a fund to be used for aged and disabled employees. In this country it is usually given in cash."

To this Comrade Bokelund replied in a letter to the "Telegram," which we reproduce.

Bokelund's Reply.

To the Editor of The Telegram.

It is an interesting study to watch how the aristocratic animal that we call man always displays an uncontrolable desire to "run things," and how slow he is to discover that he himself is being controlled by the very forces that he imagines himself to be a director of. Particularly when he tries to run social evolution he plays a part that is both sad and comical, and when, chosen by a wave of social development as an instrument for its purposes because of his temporary economic fitness, he is being carried toward the crest of political supremacy, he generally thinks that he made that wave and that he alone sustains it. When amid the foam of economic revolution the wave breaks to hurl him down into the depths of political obscurity or extinction he invariably still dreams his dream of eternal rulership.

At the present time it is the capitalist who is on the stage, and he is no wiser than his predecessors. He thinks that he made the present industrial system and that he sustains it, and he dreams the same old dream of never-ending power. We do not make or control social evolution, but economic and social evolution makes and controls us.

But this much-displayed desire to "run things" is nevertheless a prophesy. The time is now at hand when man, for the first time in human history will understand the forces of this evolution and their true tendencies; will know the part that he should play in this great process, and will, by intelligent adaption, finally become a conscious and powerful factor in social evolution.

This new knowledge of economic forces and their tendencies is called Socialism, and the new man chosen to accept this doctrine and act upon its precepts is the workingman. He is chosen to know and understand the cause of his economic fitness, and is prompted to act by his economic interests. The working class is a rising class, aspiring to political and economic supremacy, and the workingman is the coming ruler.

But between the new and the old there is an irrepressible conflict because their interests are irreconcilable.

This conflict or war between the working class and the capitalist class is called the "labor troubles." And what is this struggle about? It is about the products of labor. The workingman wants as much of them as possible, and so does the capitalist. What one gets the other loses. How can this problem be solved and peace be established? The laborer cannot get all the products because the capitalist owns the tools that are necessary for production, and he will not submit to such terms. The capitalist cannot have the whole product because the laborer would then perish, and the capitalist neither can nor will operate the tools himself, wherefore such terms would lead to the destruction of them both. It is obvious that as long as one class owns the tools and another class must operate them, there can be no peace.

Many cures have been offered, but they have been found useless. High wages will not cure because they will react in high prices and leave conditions as before. Piece work will only increase the evil because it will intensify production and decrease the proportionate wage and therefore increase the tendency toward overproduction and unemployment. Arbitration is a farce and a fraud.

But the capitalist knows that the issue has to be met, and so the work of inventing harmonizing theories and cures goes on. He wants to satisfy the laborer, but he does not want to give up any of his advantages. No scheme answers this purpose of his better than profit-sharing. It has been tried in the past and will be tried in the future. But will profit-sharing solve the labor problem?

It will if Charles Gray, instructor in economics at South high school, is right. He bases his theory on a supposed identity of interests between the laborer and the capitalist. I believe that I have given reasons why there can be no such identity of interests, and the world wide struggle between employer and employee tends to prove the truth of my theory.

The labor trouble is caused by an unfair distribution of labor's products, and it being granted that such unfair distribution exists or takes place, it is obvious that no measure short of the removal of the cause of this unfair distribution will cure the evil. But if the distribution of products now practised is not unfair then there is no evil and the profit-sharing cure and solution is untimely, to say the least, because it aims at a change in this distribution. Therefore when Mr. Gray offers said cure, I take it for granted that he considers the present distribution of products unfair.

It would be interesting to know upon what principle Mr. Gray bases a fair distribution and what relation profit-sharing bears to that principle. To whom should the product of labor belong if not to the producer? What constitutes a righteous basis for ownership if productive labor does not? But let us see how profit-sharing would affect the present distribution. Under profit-sharing the profit that goes to the laborer is an unknown quantity, the magnitude of which is determined by the intensity and productivity of his labor. If he turns out few products his profit will be small; if he turns out a greater quantity his profit will be greater. This will stimulate him to increased efforts with a view to get a larger profit, the same as piece work will stimulate to greater efforts with a view to get a bigger wage. So far the effect is an increase of products on the hands of the laborer and a still greater increase on the hands of the capitalist with an increased tendency toward overproduction and unemployment. Even now the proportionate wage has decreased somewhat in spite of the profit, and the last mentioned effect of increased tendency toward overproduction will intensify the competition in the labor market and result in a reduction of wages, bringing them down to the point of subsistence. These are natural and economic laws and effects.

Thus we find that profit-sharing will increase the evil for the same reasons that piece work does so, only it would do it in a more cunning and deceiving way. Profit-sharing is economically sound from the point of view of capitalist interests, but from the point of view of working class interests, or of economic and social equilibrium it is unsound. But profit-sharing would tie the hands of the laborers and make them surer victims of their employers.

Mr. Gray thinks that the workman's interests should be bound up in those of his employer's, and should be pitted in fair competition with those of other workmen and employers. Well the interests of the American employer and the supposed interests of his workmen aer to-day pitted in fair competition with those of European workmen and employers, but how does that solve the labor problem in Germany and other European countries? Does it solve it here? Not much! The only solution is to remove the cause of the trouble, which is the private ownership of the means of production. Such a stupendous inconsistency as the private ownership of social tools necessary for the existence of society and requiring cotlective operation cannot fail to cause lack of harmony and trouble, and it will only be an act of self-preservation for society to abolish it.

Organized production under collective ownership will eliminate waste and increase the productivity of labor so as to result in, not an equality of wealth, but an abundance of wealth for every member of society willing to work. The increased opportunities of education would develop ten able managers where there is now one, and the fact that they would not be hired men as they are now, would not make them less willing to exercise their abilities. The profit-sharing scheme will have to get a gait on itself, because, while it took it 112 years to reach Worcester, and gain a few adherents, Socialism has, in much less time, spread over the whole civilized world, having rallied round its banner five and one-half millions organized voters, whose numbers are increasing at a geometrical ratio. This new effort to run social evolution will prove as futile as any previous.

OLOF BOKELUND.

(In connection with Mr. Gray's reference to the profit-sharing policy of the Pillsburys, the great flour kings of Minneapolis, the editor of this paper, from a long residence in that city, may remark that it is there considered as a gigantic hoax. Only in a few exceptionally prosperous years have any profits been divided among the workmen, although the hope of such a dividend was always held out to them as an inducement to work harder and not to strike for better wages; and the whole amount actually divided has been so small as to be positively ridiculous, in view of the amount of free advertising the Pillsburys have got out of it in the shape of laudatory articles in the magazines.)

NEW CASTLE ALSO MAKES BIG GAIN.

Socialist Party Increases Its Vote 80 Per Cent. in the City and Carries One Ward—Work Begun for Fall Election.

The Socialist Party comes out of the city campaign in New Castle, Pa., with flying colors, registering another big gain. In last fall's election we polled 312 in the city for our county ticket—the state ticket receiving a somewhat smaller vote because it appeared under the name of "Public Ownership Party." Last week our candidate for Mayor, J. W. Slayton, a well-known member of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and an old-timer in the labor movement of New Castle, polled 563 votes. This means a gain of 80 per cent., and the comrades propose to repeat the performance next fall.

For the second time we carried the Fifth Ward for the head of our ticket. This was formerly a Republican stronghold. The power of the G. O. P. is evidently broken there, for they made a most determined effort to recapture the ward, using every means, pure and corrupt, in their power. The next campaign is already begun.

—One dollar will buy 40 copies of Ben Hanford's "Railroading in the United States." Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

C. F. U. NOTES.

With Comment from the Socialist Standpoint.

The Protest of the Bill Posters against the Poster Tax Was Endorsed.

There is a bill before the Legislature of the state of New York to impose a tax of one-half cent per square foot on all posters and adveristing signs. The competitive system with all its many other faults certainly has a serious fault in the abominable way the natural landscape, as well as buildings and fences and all other available space on land, sea, or in air, is disfigured by advertising signs. But our dear legislators are, as usual, going at things from the wrong end. Under present conditions such a bill would be very detrimental to the interests of the working class as it would throw many bill-posters, printers, and lithographers out of work, and deprive them of an opportunity to provide for their families. There is only one way to abolish the evil, and that is to abolish private capitalism and inaugurate a co-operative system of industry where all such useless labor will be done away with, and where every one will be employed in productive labor. Society and the individual will then receive the benefit in an increase of income through the wealth produced by the many millions whose brain and physical powers are being wasted in a worse than useless work. Study Socialism.

The Pipe Calkers and Tappers reported that the trouble on the Forty-second street section of the Rapid Transit Tunnel had been settled.

And a few of our poor wage-slaves will be ready to praise the capitalist authorities for their condescension. Let us hope they are few. If the Pipe Calkers and others had elected Socialists they would never have had the trouble to settle. Men of our own class in a working-class party would protect our interests.

In the case of Engineer Horr, who was so brutally assaulted by a capitalist contractor and who failed absolutely to secure a shade of justice, the contractor going unpunished and a bribe being offered to Horr to drop the case, the Governor sent a communication to the C. F. U., in answer to their note, stating that he cannot remove Judge Cowing, and that impeachment is necessary.

A resolution was passed condemning the action of Judge Cowing as an outrage, and a mockery of justice.

The American workingman is a peculiar animal. When some especially outrageous "mockery of justice" is perpetrated he arises in his ire and in resolutions wordy and severe condemns the tyrant, but it is soon over and forgotten, while similar injustices continue day in and day out, and go unnoticed as simple matters of course. And to the tune of "Oh, say, does that star spangled banner still wave over the land of the free and the home of the brave?" with hand held high in the pride of a citizenship in an imaginary "free" country he marches to the ballot box and puts another nail in the coffin in which our liberty lies. Oh, for that spirit of '76! That these Americans might have the scales cast from their eyes and might see the chains with which they have been shackled and might, in the spirit that prompted Patrick Henry's famous "Give me liberty or give me death!" march forth in one mighty unanimous army and drive the spike into capitalism by one solid vote against wage-slavery.

A resolution was adopted asking for a shorter workday for the policemen and seeking the restoration of the three platoon system.

The policeman will be forced to realize that he is a member of the working class. The capitalist in power may try to use him, and they have done so in many cases, against the interest of his own class. But there are times when the capitalist must show his hand and in his total lack of consideration for all others and his ever growing arrogance he makes even those whose friendship he wishes to retain realize that they are the wage-slaves of the capitalist class and the tools to do its bidding. This will help to start some of them right. Let us hope that they will take the lesson to heart.

Lo! and behold! "Roosevelt forbids the government employees to agitate for the betterment of their condition, and still we live in the land of the free and brave! I want to be an American as a letter carrier, but I'll be an American if I have to be an American as a hod carrier!" In this strain spoke Delegate Fitzgerald.

Lo! and behold! How comes this change? Before last election, if I am not mistaken, Delegate Fitzgerald was working hard and fast gathering nails for the capitalist coffin in which the workingman has been laid away. It is hard to see how an American can support the cause of his slavery on the one hand and protest against its results on the other. As a fellow-unionist I beg Brother Fitzgerald to think deep and long. As a fellow-wage slave I beg him to desert the cause of our masters and to join us in an effort to wipe out slavery's disgrace and establish true liberty.

A communication from the Western Labor Union was received by the secretary but WAS NOT READ. It stated that the A. F. of L. has tried to disrupt its movement in sending organizers in the territory to start rival unions.

There is a fight on between the brewery workers and the firemen and engineers from the beat of last Sunday's argument. Sergeant-at-Arms Waldinger may keep a sharp lookout to see that no shillalees, blackthorns, or blunderbusses are admitted at the next meeting.

Also, Delegate Brown of the Harmony Committee reported their attempt to settle the troubles of the building trades to be a flat failure.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger."—Proverbs.

"Workingmen of all countries, unite! You have a world to gain and naught but your chains to lose."

Here is something to study and think about. Workingmen, unite. What are the paltry differences which divide you? Are they not insignificant in the mighty cause of a united labor movement? Drop your chains! Gain the world! Is it not worth it? Let us settle these differences as man to man and brother to brother. We have a common enemy to fight, and we must not, cannot waste our energy in trying to batter each other's brains out. What a shameful sight! Brothers in a common cause stopping to fight each other while the gaunt wolf of capitalism is at our very door threatening the lives of our wives and children. Be men!

Building Commissioner Stewart still allows Contractor Canovan to employ scabs on city jobs. Delegate Stanton of Electrical Workers' No. 3 was not permitted to visit the work on Ward's Island, the subordinates stating that they were instructed not to allow any delegate to go on the island.

This report of the Electrical Workers is one of the complaints that have become a regular order of business.

The Journeymen Tailors report that in the lockout of tailors because of their joining the union in the establishment at 263 Fifth avenue, that one man eats, sleeps, and works in the place where the fine clothing is made for the rich at fancy prices.

Naturally the boss tailor hires his men at the lowest price he can secure good labor for and sells his clothing for the highest price and, like all other capitalists, he knows that the trade union will not increase his profits and he knows the union can't touch his trade with a boycott. What are you going to do about it? Do you want to wear as good clothes as those who live on Fifth avenue wear? Do you want to live in as good a house as the Fifth avenue mansion? Do you want to live as well as the dwellers along Fifth avenue? Yes, you'll not object. Well, then, why don't you? There are thousands of tailors out of work, tailors who can build a Fifth avenue suit on short notice. There are thousands of carpenters out of work—the same men who build the mansions on Fifth avenue, and live in the hovels of the East Side. There are thousands of bakers and caterers out of work who are thoroughly qualified to serve Fifth avenue meals in an unlimited quantity.

If it is the carpenter who puts up the mansion for the rich why need that carpenter be idle when he might be putting up mansions for the poor as well? Why need the tailor wear rags and the man who builds the mansion live in a hovel? Socialism will answer these questions. Investigate!

E. P. JENNINGS, JR.

MORE ATTACKS BY THE JUDICIARY.

The Michigan Supreme Court has declared, in an action begun by a concern against the Detroit molders' union, that "suit may be brought against unincorporated voluntary associations." This decision will undoubtedly be hailed with glad acclaim by capitalists and their lawyers, and be eagerly used as a precedent by courts in other states.

The Cleveland "Citizen," the organ of the Cleveland Central Labor Union, edited by our comrade, Max S. Hayes, in commenting on the subject, has the following to say:

"If decrees of that kind become as general as injunctions, we will be in a pretty fix, indeed. When a strike occurs, the capitalist can close his plant, take things easy, and file suit for imaginary damages. The struggling workers, besides receiving no wages and suffering some, will find their funds tied up, and if any have property that will be levied on also.

"All this comes of recklessly voting the hangers-on of capital into power. They sneak laws through or interpret them in the interest of the class they serve. Then begins a season of agitation to have the oppressive laws repealed, and more politicians are elected who prove themselves liars and traitors. Some are turned down and others put in their places equally as bad. The game goes on, ad infinitum.

"A dozen years ago the injunction craze began. Continuous agitation in opposition resulted, but the injunction is still here in all its infamy and tyranny, and it is likely to remain.

"The new form of attack is more insidious and merciless. The familiar and appetizing smell of pelf is in the nostrils of capitalistic trade union foes.

"Will anything be gained by the unionists in continuing to vote the old way?

"Never. They will receive more kicks.

"Men, the time is here to display honor, dignity and backbone; to resent insult, to repel tyranny, to strike back. It must be done with the ballot, and, as the Socialist Party is the only party that uncompromisingly opposes capitalism in every form, the duty of every class-conscious and conscientious unionist is plain. Be loyal at the polls!

ORE HANDLERS DISPLACED.

ASHTABULA, Ohio, Feb. 20.—During the coming season so much new labor-saving machinery is to be installed at the various lake ports that the boards of trade in these places are beginning to look around for new industries to give employment to the ore and coal handlers who are to be displaced by the new ship-loading devices, says an Ashtabula, O., dispatch.

Automatic unloaders, which were in use at only two ports last year, will this year be in operation at nearly every ore-receiving harbor, each one throwing from eighty to ninety men out of work.

At some of the ports where there are grain elevators a scoop controlled by a pneumatic device is making it possible to lift 1,500 pounds at a time. This promises to do with twelve men what usually required forty.

Under Socialism these machines would be owned by the people and used for the common good instead of serving only to increase the profits of a few non-producers. As it is, a part of the men are kept working as hard and as long as ever, while the rest are turned off to shift for themselves, to compete for jobs or to beg or steal; and the saving in expense goes to the capitalist who owns the machines. Under Socialism, where such improved machinery was introduced, the hours of labor would be proportionately reduced, so as to distribute the benefit to the whole community.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.

By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

The following donations have been received for the National Propaganda Fund:

Local Evansville, Ind.	$1.25
Local Glen Garbon, Ill.	5.01
Local Bellaire, Ohio	1.00
A. L. Nagel, Newport, Ky.	5.00
Local Providence, R. I.	5.01
Local Moline, Ill.	5.03
Local New Rochelle, N. Y.	1.00
Local Portland, Me.	5.03
Local Cherryvale, Kans.	.50
Local Long Island City, N. Y.	2.01
Local Lehi, Utah	2.30
John J. McLean, Independence, Cal.	2.50
Local Toledo, Ohio	5.01
Local Georgetown, Ohio	2.00
Local Pana, Ill.	5.03
Local Mt. Olivet, Ill.	2.51
Otto Christoph, Buffalo, N. Y.	1.00
Local Holyoke, Mass.	10.00
Local Stonington, Conn.	5.01
Local Columbus, Ind.	2.50
Total	$68.55

BEER DRIVERS' UNION NO. 23.

A shop delegate meeting of Beer Drivers' Union No. 23 was held on Feb. 23, John Müller presiding. Reports from the various shop delegates were received and action taken.

The following communications were received: From the Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers, Molders, and Brass Workers' International Union of Dayton, O., calling attention to the fact taht the boycott was still on against the National Cash Register Co., and requesting that the sum of $1 be donated to assist their fight against this firm; on motion the request was granted. From the Peace Conference protest meeting acknowledging the sum of $2 (which had been donated) and stating that a deficit of $30 still existed; accepted and action deferred until the regular meeting. From the "Social Democratic Herald" of Milwaukee, enclosing tickets for their fair; motion to donate $2 to same, carried. From the B. D. and S. Union No. 148 of Newark, extending an invitation to attend their ball on April 2; invitation accepted, and members requested to accept same. From the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Association; laid over till next meeting. From the South African Sufferers' Fund, asking for assistance for the Boers who are in the concentration camps; action deferred till next meeting. From the C. F. U., reporting routine matters; also giving a list as follows of those firms still on boycott list and asking all workingmen not to patronize: "Sun," Singer Sewing Machine Company, Jas. Butler's grocery stores, Citron Bros., Metropolitan Pie Company, and the Cremo, Geo. W. Childs, Henry George, Gen. Arthur, Robt. Burns, and Tom Moore cigars; also to ask for the label on all clothing, shoes, bread, ales, porter, and lager beer; also to ask all clerks to show union cards, and see that the union card is displayed in all saloons, barber and butcher shops, and grocery stores.

A motion to close all application for membership until the contracts with the breweries for the ensuing year have been signed was concurred in.

Notice is hereby given that all members are requested to attend the next meeting, as matters of importance await action.

LADIES' TAILORS' UNION.

The first regular business meeting of the above organization will be held on March 3 at Tecumseh Hall, 231-233 E. Thirty-third street, New York City, at 7:30 p. m. sharp. Every one interested should be present.

—"There is no royal road to learning," it is said; and the only "short cut" to Socialism that we know of is to be made by energetic work on the part of those who are already Socialists. One of the most effective forms of propaganda work is that of pushing the circulation of The Worker.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.
2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.
3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.
4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.
5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.
6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.
7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

"Railroading in the United States."

BY BEN HANFORD.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

40 Copies $1.00
1000 " 25.00

Sent on receipt of price.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 William Street, New York.

WHAT WE NEED.

Writers on military warfare estimate that about one-third of every army is composed of really brave men, one-third of cowards, with the other third vaccillating between the two, and being stampeded in either direction, according as the brave men or the cowards gain control. It will, therefore, be seen that all the Socialists need is a little over one-third of the working class of good resolute revolutionists in order to carry the struggle.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

ABBOTT BROS.,
Bakery, Coffee & Lunch Room.
110 Bleecker Str., N. Y.
Kangaroos are welcome!
No line drawn on smaller animals.

The Workers' Call

Clear, Clean Socialist Paper.

Contains each week:
1. Discussions of Science of Socialism.
2. News of International Socialist Movement.
3. Events of Week from Socialist Standpoint.

One year, 50 cents.
6 months, 25 cents.

36 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

FACTORY TO POCKET

Special sale 14k. 25 year guarantee genuine Waltham Watches, P. S. Bartlet grade, at $10.75; retail centers price, $22.00. W. F. Loftis Mfg. Co., 175 Broadway, upstairs. Established 1876.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 49. NEW YORK, MARCH 9, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

BISHOP IN LABOR POLITICS.

Catholic Prelate in Buffalo Wantonly Attacks Social Democracy.

He Does Not Oppose Unions, Provided They Obey His Dictation—Threatens with Excommunication All Who Support Socialism or Even Read Socialist Papers—Tries to Form Rival Union.

The Catholic Bishop of Buffalo has opened fire upon the Social Democratic Party in that city, having issued a letre which was read in all German Catholic churches threatening with excommunication any Catholics who should give their support to the party. The immediate occasion of Bishop Quigley's attack was the endorsement by Brewery Workers' Union No. 4 of a resolution adopted at the national convention of that union in support of the platform of the S. D. P. In Buffalo as elsewhere the brewery workers are very favorably inclined toward Socialism. This and the strength of their union make them a "thorn in the flesh" of the capitalists.

In Buffalo the opinion is widely held that the direct purpose of the Bishop's outburst was to disrupt or intimidate the Brewers' Union, especially in view of the fact that his letter was issued only a week before the time for signing the new annual contract between the union and the brewery bosses for the regulation of wages and hours.

If this was the Bishop's object, as seems probable, he has failed utterly. The brewers stood solidly together and when the time came, last Saturday, the bosses gave up all opposition and agreed to a renewal of the comparatively favorable scale which has prevailed through the last year.

The Bishop's letter to the priests and, through them, to the people is couched in unmistakable terms. After a long introduction, full of the most shameless misrepresentations of the purposes and methods of the Social Democratic Party, he says:

"We, therefore, entreat you, Reverend Sir, to clearly state and emphasize the following points to your people:

"First—Catholics who obstinately refuse to renounce the principles of Social Democracy make themselves liable to be deprived of the sacraments and ministrations of the church.

"Second—Catholics who belong to a union which has become imbued with the poisonous doctrines of Social Democracy are in duty bound in the interest of the working classes as well as of religion, to make every effort to expel all trace of Social Democracy and its doctrines from the constitution and laws of their union.

"Let every workingman clearly understand, that the Church does not condemn labor unions, but only condemns the doctrines of Social Democracy wherever found. A workingman may be a union man and a good Catholic, but he cannot be both a Social Democrat and a Catholic.

"Third—Catholics are strictly forbidden to contribute to the extension of Social Democracy directly by word or writing, or indirectly through financial or moral support given to a party newspaper organ advocating its principles.

"Fourth—We request you, Reverend Sir, to call attention to the teachings of our Holy Father, Pope Leo XIII, on the reciprocal rights and duties of employers and employed as the only Christian solution of the labor question. We recommend to all the study of his encyclical on the labor question and call upon all through the founding of Catholic workingmen's societies and Christian unions, to place upon a secure foundation the material, spiritual and religious interests of the workingman.

"The Catholic Reform Association, which has received our fullest approbation, has already entered upon this path and deserves the support of all right-minded workingmen and employers."

As indicated in the closing paragraphs, an attempt is being made to form a separate organization of Catholic workingmen under the control of the priests—"Christian unions," the Bishop calls them—for the purpose of controlling the regular trade or of fighting and disrupting those which become especially obnoxious to the capitalists by developing Socialist tendencies.

The third paragraph is a sanctified boycott aimed at the Buffalo "Arbeiter Zeitung." So far, we are informed, it has had no injurious effect upon that paper, however, which stands squarely and fearlessly for Socialism and trade unionism.

A SECRET DOCUMENT.

Of Interest to Workingmen in the Metal Trades.

Circular Letter No. 59 of the National Metal Association Should Be Read by Workingmen as a Commentary on the "Peace Conference."

The workingmen of the United States are in some danger of being deceived by the show of friendship on the part of Senator Hanna, Charles M. Schwab, and other great capitalists concerned in the "Peace Conference." We have on file in the office of The Worker a document—not intended for general circulation, but secured for us by a vigilant correspondent—which shows that the organized capitalists of this country are carefully looking out for their class interests as against the working class, at the same time that they are making such a pretense of love for organized Labor.

The document is issued from the office of the National Metal Trades Association, at 95 Liberty street, New York City, under date of Feb. 28, 1902, and is headed, "Circular Letter No. 59," and is addressed to "the National Metal Trades Association and other Employers of Labor."

At the request of the American Federation of Labor there has been introduced into Congress a bill defining the word "conspiracy" and regulating the issuance of injunctions. The effect of this bill, if it were enacted into law—as it almost certainly will not be—would be to put an end to the wonderful perversion of the rules of law and equity which servile judges have introduced for the benefit of capitalists in dealing with the acts of labor organizations. The abuse is one that "cries to heaven," and it is growing worse and worse. The passage of the bill in question would be but a very small measure of justice to the working class.

The circular letter in question refers to this bill and is here reproduced without change:

CIRCULAR LETTER NO. 59.

February 28, 1902.

"To the Members of the National Metal Trades Association and Other Employers of Labor.

"Dear Sirs:—Your attention is directed to a bill which was ordered favorably reported in the United States Senate on Feb. 3 by the Committee on the Judiciary of that body, known as Senate Bill No. 1,118, limiting the meaning of the word 'conspiracy,' and the use of 'restraining orders and injunctions.'

"The bill in question provides that no agreement, combination or contract by or between two or more persons to do or procure to be done or not to do or procure not to be done, any act in contemplation or furtherance of any trade dispute between employers and employees in the District of Columbia or in any territory of the United States, or between employers and employees who may be engaged in trade or commerce between the several states, or between any territory and another, or between any territory or territories and any state or states or the District of Columbia, or with foreign nations, or between the District of Columbia and any state or states or foreign nations, shall be deemed criminal, nor shall those engaged therein be indictable or otherwise punishable for the crime of conspiracy, IF SUCH ACT COMMITTED BY ONE PERSON WOULD NOT BE PUNISHABLE AS A CRIME, nor shall such agreement, combination, or contract be considered as in restraint of trade or commerce. NOR SHALL ANY RESTRAINING ORDER OR INJUNCTION BE ISSUED WITH RELATION THERETO.

It is well known to employers of labor that many acts, comparatively harmless if committed by individuals acting singly—become highly dangerous to property rights and the general welfare if committed pursuant to agreements or conspiracies by or between a number of persons, and it is this fact that renders such combinations unlawful. As an eminent jurist has said 'such combination are said to be unful conspiracies THOUGH THE ACTS IN THEMSELVES AND CONSIDERED SINGLY, ARE INNOCENT, when the acts are done with malice, i. e., with the intention to injure another without lawful excuse.

"The law, as it now exists, renders criminal any conspiracies to prevent another from exercising a lawful trade or business by force, threats, intimidation, or coercion; the proposed bill, if it becomes a law, will give free reign to the perpetration of acts that have heretofore been the subjects of legal restraint; it will render lawful, to the extent of the jurisdiction of Congress, boycotting, the picketing of struck plants and general interference with the proper carrying on of all branches o findustry, and will have the effect of defeating all efforts of employers of labor to conduct their establishments in accordance with correct business principles.

"It is believed that the manufacturers and employers of labor throughout the United States should be warned of the action taken by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The bill is in line with the efforts of organized labor, and all must realize without argument the danger involved by the proposed legislation.

"We trust that manufacturers will see the need of associated action to protect themselves against the passage of laws of this character. It is sincerely hoped that you will take what steps you can to prevent the enactment of a law as calculated to injure trade and commerce, and suggest that you immediately write your senators and congressmen to defeat this unjust measure.

"Respectfully submitted,
"THE NATIONAL METAL TRADES ASSOCIATION."

Let the workingmen in the metal trades—and in all other trades—consider this carefully. Let them remember that where they can spend a dollar to send men to present arguments in favor of their bill, the organized employers can well afford to spend thousands in bribing the corrupt old-party politicians at Washington. Let them remember that only one day in the year have they an advantage—that on Election Day each mechanic or laborer is just as powerful as Morgan or Rockefeller. Let them use their voting power to send faithful members of the working class to make and execute the laws, for then and then only can the power of organized Capital be overcome.

CAMPAIGN OPENED IN NEW HAVEN.

City Ticket Nominated and a Clear Declaration Made of Our Position on Public Ownership.

The largest and best attended city convention ever held by the Socialists of New Haven met at Aurora Hall, last Saturday evening. Comrade Eugene Toomey was elected chairman and W. E. White secretary. A draft of a city platform was presented by the committee elected at the last meeting of Local New Haven, and after reading was referred to the committee to be condensed and prepared for publication.

The following city ticket was then nominated for the election to be held on the third Tuesday in April:

For Town Clerk, Joseph Bearhalter.
For Registrar of Voters, Julius Pfeeht.
For Registrar of Vital Statistics, Arthur B. Cornelius.
For Grand Jurors: Charles Volmer, Albert Sousers, John Senberg.
For Selectmen: Gustave Hahn, Charles Marten, Henry Somers.
For Constables: Carl Engelke, Edward Tommets, Adolph Laine.
For Aldermen-at-Large: Paul Zimberman, Anton Frank, Joseph Girometta, William E. White.

An alderman will also be nominated by the ward organizations in each of the odd numbered wards in the city, making a complete city ticket.

Comrade Bearhalter addressed the convention, referring to the middle class movement for public ownership of the waterworks and the effort that is being made by old party politicians in the Trades Council to draw the trade unions into a so-called Union Labor Party. The movement is a part of the work of the "Industrial League," which was organized as a result of the success of the trade unions in electing a union labor city government in Ansonia last November.

The declaration of the city platform of the Socialist Party on this subject is as follows:

"At the present time, when the property-holding class is turning its attention towards 'municipal ownership,' it is necessary for the Socialist Party to make plain its position on that question.

"The tendency towards public ownership is due to the concentration of capital, which has brought all public utilities under control of great corporations. The small property owners who are not shareholders in these corporations find themselves at their mercy with their extortionate charges for every public service. They hope to secure cheaper service by municipal ownership, and also to reduce the taxes on real estate by the use of the income from these public utilities.

"But this would not be a step towards Socialism. The great majority of the people would derive little benefit from such public ownership. They would still be at the mercy of the capitalist employer, storekeeper, or landlord; and as the object of middle class public ownership is cheaper service, the hours of labor of city employees would not be lessened or their wages increased. For the workers there is nothing in such public ownership. They must first constitute themselves the ruling class; then and then only will public ownership be of any benefit to them.

"Such public utilities as water, gas, and electric plants would not be conducted by the Socialist Party with a view to the reduction of taxes. They would be so managed as to secure better conditions for the workers by reducing hours of labor, increasing wages, extending the system of public works so as to provide steady and certain employment, and in providing against want in sickness or old age."

SOCIALIST ALDERMAN IN CONNECTICUT CITY.

In the city election in Derby, Conn., last November, a Socialist was elected to the Board of Aldermen. Comrade W. H. Davis was the candidate of an independent Socialist club for Alderman in the Second Ward, and received 116 votes against 83 and 86, respectively, for his two opponents. He is secretary of Branch 15, Socialist Party, which was organized by Comrade Vail in January. The Democratic have circulated statements intended to injure Comrade Davis and the party which have been proven entirely false. At the February meeting of Branch 15, Comrade Davis was instructed to introduce in the council a motion to start a public coal supply for public buildings and for poor relief.

—Emperor William thinks it is patriotism that is furnishing him all the naval recruits he wants, but the fact that 60,000 men in Berlin are out of work may have something to do with it.—Chicago Daily News.

SOCIALISTS ALONE PROTEST

In Massachusetts Legislature Against Bowing to Royalty.

Carey and MacCartney Loyal to Tradition of Freedom—Republican and Democratic Majority in One Session Vote to Honor Prince and Defeat Bill for Protection of Brakemen's Lives.

The writer considers himself fortunate in being one of the few Socialists present when the two Socialist members of the Massachusetts Legislature protested last Wednesday against official recognition of Prince Henry of Prussia. It came about so suddenly that speakers and listeners were alike unprepared; a full minute passed before those present realized what was taking place. Then there followed a most dramatic scene, and one never to be forgotten.

When the order authorizing the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House to extend an invitation to Prince Henry to meet the General Court of Massachusetts in joint convention was read, many of the members did not hear it. For some time the Speaker had been mechanically reading off committee reports on unimportant bills which were passed without even a vote being taken. Some members were talking, others reading, and still others were sitting abstractedly watching the Speaker manufacture laws. Messengers were flitting about, and the reporters in the press gallery were jollying each other. The buzz of conversation ascended to the ears of the whispering visitors in the gallery. Suddenly Carey's voice rang out:

"Mr. Speaker."

"Mr. Carey of Haverhill."

There was an abrupt lull in the conversation. What was it?

We leaned forward expectantly, for Carey's bill to increase the number of brakemen on railroad trains was on the calender, and we thought he was going to speak on it. But Carey's first few words showed us we were mistaken, and laid the whole situation clearly before every one. Then a murmur ran around the House, gradually dying away, while the members straightened up in their seats. The messengers ceased their flitting about; the reporters got busy; and the visitors in the gallery glared greedily.

Carey had secured the floor when the Speaker was half-way through putting the question on the order. The latter gentleman appeared embarrassed and a worried look crept over his rubicund countenance. He fingered his glasses nervously, casting around the chamber a helpless glance which ended at the press gallery.

Speaking calmly and deliberately at first, Carey's speech increased in warmth and eloquence as he proceeded. The ringing words cut the silence with thrilling effect. Each moment the air of suppressed excitement grew more intense. Most of the members sat quietly listening, but the leaders of the House were restless. Reed of Taunton sat two feet away from me, twisting in his chair, his face white and twitching, his fingers beating a tattoo upon his desk; he could hardly contain himself. Suddenly he arose and moving noiselessly over to the Speaker whispered in his ear. The Speaker frowned and Reed returned to his seat.

Carey's Ringing Protest.

Carey spoke as follows:

"I hesitate and yet a sense of duty compels me to enter my solemn protest against the proposition to suspend the proceedings of a body of representatives of the people to do homage to one who appears by grace of a monarchy. I do this deliberately and dispassionately, with full knowledge of its significance.

"I conceive, Mr. Speaker, from what I have gathered in my youth and in my older years that this Republic is in itself a living protest against monarchy. I conceive a monarchy to be an insult, a wrong and a crime; an insult to the intelligence of the twentieth century, a wrong against man, and a crime against human progress. I cannot gild the insult; I will not condone the wrong; I shall not honor the crime or its representative.

"I cannot forget that serried ranks of the fathers marched to graves that monarchy might not be. I cannot shut my eyes to the vision of the cold gray column on Bunker Hill, which mutely, though eloquently, stands as a protest against monarchy, and I declare, sir, that this Republic should not halt on its onward march to salute a king.

"I would not stoop to do honor to a monarch, not wholly because of a feeling of enmity, but because I love those things which make up a Republic. I believe it to be my right to protest against the surrender of those principles and the calling of a halt in the progress of this Legislature to receive the representative of a monarchy that to-morrow may be at our throats.

"It is an insult to those who struggled against monarchy and spared not their lives that a Republic might live to bow at the feet of a representative of a monarchy.

"I say it calmly and dispassionately that to any man who comes from any country representing the people, I am ready to give the hand of fraternity, but to those who come representing a monarch I say, 'There is the door; go!' I say it in memory of those I have been taught to revere and not against any individual.

"'I hate all kings and castes of rank and birth,
For every son of man is son of God;
Nor lives a beggar but is nobly born,
Nor wears a slave a yoke or Czar a crown
That makes him more or less than just a man.'

"Prince Henry is reported as saying that New York is the haven of many Germans. Yes, Mr. Speaker, New York and the United States have been the haven for thousands of Germans exiled from their native land, and it was the monarch whom this man represents and his ancestors who tortured, imprisoned and exiled the best and noblest sons of Germany because they loved freedom and sought economic and political self-government.

"The monarchical system is maintained through the persecution of men and women who spoke for what this Republic is supposed to stand. Human beings have been for ages murdered, imprisoned, and sacrificed to sustain Prince Henry and such as he in power; and in the names of those murdered ones I protest to-day. I maintain that Prince Henry does not represent the German working people who compose that nation. He represents the class that oppresses and exploits the worker and their wrongs cry to us to ignore him. Were he a chosen representative of the people, sent here by their will, no matter what color, race or creed they might be, I would welcome him, but he represents a system that divides humanity and profits by bloodshed.

"As a member of that international movement which seeks the solidarity of all humanity, I would give the fraternal hand of greeting to a representative of the people were he to enter here, but to a titled representative of monarchy I could only point to that door and say one word—Go!"

Carey had hardly ceased speaking when Reed of Taunton arose. The Speaker, apparently wishing to prevent further debate, recognized him reluctantly. Reed was trembling with excitement and he blurted out his opening words as if they had been choking him.

"I am frank to admit," he said, "that I am not one of those who can sit in silence when words like these are spoken. Every one in and out of this House recognizes that Prince Henry is the national guest. He is not the guest of an individual, but of the United States. I regret that a member of the Massachusetts House should have been guilty of such a breach of courtesy as has the gentleman from Haverhill. I am confident that with the possible exception of one other every other member of this House joins me in desiring to give a cordial welcome to him who is not only our guest but the representative of a great and friendly nation across the sea."

He hesitated for loss of words and then stammered out: "I believe the House stands ready to vote on this order now."

He sat down without a sign of encouragement from his fellows, his speech a pitiful failure. Immediately the Speaker again attempted to put the question, but MacCartney was on the floor before a half-dozen words were spoken. He was recognized, the worried, harrassed look deepening on the Speaker's face.

MacCartney Seconds Protest.

MacCartney could not have commenced a sermon more gently and suavely, but before he finished he had intensified the painful excitement by utterances accentuated by a sarcastic delivery and graphic gestures which made them terribly effective. He said:

"I regret very much that it has devolved upon two inconspicuous members of this body to enter a protest against the passage of this order. I regret the necessity for it, but duty compels me to protest.

"A highty conflict is going on in the world between two philosophies—Imperialism and democracy. This is no mere academic difference, but a struggle which pervades all nations and the peoples of all nations are organizing for it. Prince Henr yis the representative of imperialism, and it is our duty and opportunity to register our belief in democracy. We recognize that there are definite relations between nations under monarchical form and those under democratic form. Official representatives should be treated as such, but Henry is not here on an official visit.

"The gentleman, so far as I know history, has done nothing. Accident made him the son of a monarch, and the brother of an emperor. His brother has had a boat built in this country, and he has come over to see it safely put in the water.

"He is a private person so far as we are concerned; yet the newspapers of this country, pretending to stand for the principles of the Republic, have been simply plastered over with pictures and descriptions of royalty. This person does not directly represent Germany. He is a member of royalty. He comes as a member of the royal family, and the great bulk of the German people are not royalists. In view of these facts we raise our voices in protest.

"We meet under this dome, around whose edge are set the names of men who preached and died for democracy, and yet we become saturated with the mania to give honor not to a representative of the people, but a representative of monarchy, and we see the American people led to prostrate themselves in the dust at his feet.

"King Edward is to be crowned, and this country is to send three special envoys to his coronation, and these envoys, these representatives of democracy will dress up in pink tights—yes, in pink pants! We will send over the

(Continued on page 4.)

SHALL THE CHURCH RULE THE LABOR MOVEMENT?

We have no quarrel with Catholics or with men and women of any other denomination upon questions of religious belief and observance. We have no quarrel with the Catholic Church or with any other church as an organization existing for the purpose of teaching a certain religious creed and carrying out certain religious observances in accordance with the judgment and conscience of its members. But when Bishop Quigley of Buffalo, speaking in the name and by the authority of the Church, throws down the gauntlet to us, we do not hesitate to take it up.

The very reason which restrains us, as a party, from supporting or opposing any church compels us also to respond to this attack by the Bishop of Buffalo. Because we hold that religion is a matter for each individual to decide for himself, we declare that the state has no right to dictate or to proscribe any religious belief, and that a political party has no rigrt to require of its members belief or unbelief in any religious tenet. In a word, we stand for the complete separation of politics from religion. In the same way, and for the same reason, we maintain that the state must be independent of all churches, that no church has a right to require of its members the acceptance or rejection of any political doctrine. We will condemn and resist the attempt of any church to dictate to its members on political questions as we would condemn and resist the attempt of the state or of any political party to curtail the freedom of religious belief and practise.

So much for our attitude. Now for the Bishop.

We accuse the Bishop of Buffalo of uttering false and misleading statements—whether through malice or through error we do not presume to say—in two instances:

First, he has declared that the Social Democratic Party (or Socialist Party) "is everywhere characterized by unbelief, hostility to religion, and, above all, uncompromising and bitter hatred of the Catholic Church" and that "its official programs, the platforms of its party conventions, the public utterances of its advocates, its newspaper organs and periodicals, breathe hatred and threats against revelaed religion, its doctrines and institutions."

The Bishop's charge is a sweeping one. We now challenge him, as Bishop or as honest man, to prove, not the whole, but one hundredth part of what he has alleged. He cannot do it, for it is not true. Our national party platform is printed in this paper; let readers search there for "hatred, denunciation, and threats" against the Catholic Church or any other. We have in our ranks, not only men holding to the beliefs of Protestant churches, but men belonging to the same communion with Bishop Quigley and wearing the same cloth of priesthood. In the Socialist movement we ask no man his creed. We demand only his faithful adherence to the working class in its battle with the forces of capitalism.

Second, Bishop Quigley charges that in our advocacy of the establishment of a new social order, "violent means are freely urged."

Again, we challenge the Bishop to prove his charge. He cannot do it, for it is not true.

But these are minor matters. We are used to being misrepresented. Unfortunately for our opponents, all lies are mortal and truth alone at last survives. The Bishop has done worse than this.

He has assumed to dictate to American citizens under the greatest penalty of which he can conceive, how they shall perform their political duty to the nation of which they form a part. When he does this, he speaks no longer as religious teacher, but as political boss, and deserves just the amount of respect due to a David B. Hill or a Thomas C. Platt.

He has assumed to dictate to organized workingmen how they shall perform their duty to their fellow toilers o fthis country and of the world. When he does this, he again abandons his position as religious teacher and deserves just the respect due to James E. Quigley as a private citizen. And when, after this attempted dictation, he says that "the Church does not condemn labor unions," he can only be understood to mean that he supports the unions on the one condition that they shall obey his commands.

He institutes a boycott of the most sweeping sort upon a certain section of the labor press—the papers of the Socialist Party. In thus forbidding his people to read the other side, he confesses the weakness of his case. Whoever reads our press will learn that the Bishop's accusations are untrue. Falsehood fears fair argument; truth always courts impartial study.

Finally, he has undertaken the organization of workingmen's organizations—so-called "Christian unions"—upon a sectarian basis, which can exist only for one or the other of two purposes—either to destroy the trade unions or to control them. We have had enough of rival unions, fostered by personal ambition or by foolish prejudice; we want no more. We have no "Unchristian union" and we want no "Christian unions." Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, or Atheist, we are all workingmen and it is our duty and interest to stand united. When Bishop Quigley launches a rival organization upon sectarian lines, he commits a crime against the working class—and the working class will know it and resent it.

Bishop Quigley, let us advise you to reconsider your action. Your attack is an unprovoked one, for the Socialist Party makes no attack upon you or your church or your beliefs. But if you persist in the attack, let us tell you that there is no organization on earth that can fight as we can. Bismarck has measured strength with us, and failed. Russian czars and French dictators have tried to crush our movement, and they have failed. You will not succeed.

There is nothing more fearful than the fires of religious prejudice and fanaticism. We have sought to let slumber till they should at last die. Beware how you stir them up. The people of America are patient and good-natured; they endure much. But [illegible] years of at heart—Catholic and Protestants [illegible] at as intolerant Jewish and Atheist alike—they [illegible] dear the principle of religious liberty and the separation of church and state. Once awake them and it will not be well for him who attacks that principle.

The Democratic party may be afraid of you, Bishop. The Republican party may be afraid of you. But the Socialist Party is not afraid of you, because it is right, because it stands for all that is best in American history and in the world's history, and because it knows that, the fiercer your attack, the greater forces will you rally to our side.

FOR THE DAILY.

Plans for Organization Nearly Completed and Encouraging Returns Received.

The Organization Committee for the Socialist Daily met last Tuesday. The formation of the permanent organization is being completed, the call for funds and blank pledges are being sent out, and encouraging communications are coming in from comrades and sympathizers.

Every Socialist should see to it that the blank pledges be filled out and returned to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York, for the time is short. The Committee decided to recommend that the publication of the Socialist daily be started on the first Monday of December, 1902. It also decided to recommend for consideration two names for the daily—"The New York Advance" and "The New York Globe."

Send all contributions and pledges to Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York. Communications may be sent to Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue, New York.

A general meeting of party members for permanent organization is called for Tuesday evening, Mar. 11, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. Let all attend.

POVERTY AND CHILDHOOD.

John Spargo will lecture Sunday afternoon, Mar. 9, at Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place, on "Poverty and Childhood." This is the second of his course on "Some Phases of the Poverty Problem." To those who have heard Comrade Spargo it is unnecessary to say that the lecture will present the results of careful study in a way that cannot fail to be instructive to any intelligent hearer. Our comrades will do well to attend this and the succeeding lectures of the course, as they will thereby strengthen their armory of fact and argument to use in the fight for Socialism.

Admission is free. The lectures will begin promptly at 3 p. m.

"THE LAW OF STRUGGLE."

Henry Slobodin will speak on "The Law of Struggle and Co-operation" at the meeting of the Socialist Propaganda Club, 102 Court street, Brooklyn, Sunday evening, Mar. 9. Admission is free and all are welcome.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

The General Committee of Local New York will meet at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, Saturday evening, Mar. 8, at 8 p. m. All delegates should be present.

LOCAL PHILADELPHIA.

A regular meeting of Local Philadelphia will be held Sunday evening, Mar. 9, at the Labor Lyceum, Sixth and Brown streets. Nomination and election of the new State Committee will be the special order of business.

—Are you a commuter? See that every conductor or brakeman on the line gets a copy of "Railroading in the United States." Send $1 for forty copies.

MICHIGAN HOLDS STATE CONVENTION.

Full State Ticket Nominated—Position of Party on Trade Unionism Sustained.

The state convention of Michigan Socialists was held at Flint on Feb. 28. The platform adopted reaffirmed the national platform and resolutions as adopted at Indianapolis, a minority report simply reaffirming the national platform and intended as a protest against the trade union resolution as adopted at the Indianapolis convention being defeated by an overwhelming majority. The name of the party was changed from Social Democratic to Socialist Party, and the constitution provides that no editor of any paper shall be a member of the State Committee or an official of the party. It also provides for the expulsion of any member of the party endeavoring in a convention to place on the ticket any person who is not a member of the party, or working for the indorsement of any candidate of a capitalist ticket.

The state ticket nominated is as follows: Governor, William E. Walters; Lieutenant-Governor, John J. Spouse; Secretary of State, Daniel J. Jeannett; State Treasurer, William Klaser; Auditor General, Fred G. Barnes; Land Commissioner, John D. Hunt; Attorney-General, John D. McFarlan; Superintendent of Public Instruction, William H. Smith; Member of State Board of Education, Samuel R. Hoobler.

John J. Spouse, nominated for Lieutenant-Governor, it will be remembered, was recently forced out of his pulpit because of his Socialist views.

The headquarters of the party will be at Flint, John A. C. Mentor being chosen State Secretary. William E. Walters was chosen State Organizer.

MINNESOTA CONVENTION.

The Socialist convention was held in Minneapolis on Feb. 22 to reorganize the party in accordance with the provisions of the Indianapolis convention. Delegates were present from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Wyoming, Northfield, Faribault, Otter Tail, Ada, New Ulm, and Two Harbors. The name of the party was changed from Social Democratic Party to Socialist Party. A plan of propaganda work by means of a wagon to carry speakers through the state on an agitation tour to organize locals and distribute literature, was suggested by Comrade Lockwood, and unanimously accepted. Much routine business was transacted, and a referendum was put before the locals regarding the election of State Committee.

—Never since 1876 has the amount of "Peter's Pence" annually sent to Rome been so small, the total for 1901 falling considerably short of half a million dollars. So long as the Vatican, however, insists upon the right of the capitalists to skin the working class it cannot justly complain if its share of the hide becomes smaller year by year. —Workers' Call.

—Get your friends to subscribe for The Worker.

EDGED TOOL COMBINATION.

Negotiations are now under way for the amalgamation of the axe and edged tool interests of the United States. The combination will have a capital of about $25,000,000. It is planned, immediately upon the formation of the company, to effect unusual economies in production and to push the business into foreign countries as energetically as possible.

The companies which will figure in the combination are the Fayet P. Plum Company of Philadelphia, the American Axe and Tool Company of this city, the Kelly Axe Manufacturing Company of Alexandria, Ind.; the Warren Axe and Tool Company of Warren, Penn.; the United States Edged Tool Company of Cataraugus, N. Y.; the Standard Axe Company of Pennsylvania, the Mann Edged Tool Company of Lewiston, Penn.; James H. Mann & Co. of New York, the Romer Axe Company of Dunkirk, N. Y., and other important concerns.

The phrase "unusual economies" means reduction of working force and speeding of work. It means more work and less pay for part of the men and no work and no pay for the others. One more reason why machinists and metal workers should vote for Socialism.

IN THE OLD DOMINION.

The Socialists of Newport News, Va., made their nominations for the city election as follows: For Mayor, E. K. Emerson; for City Sergeant, W. L. McKnight; for High Constable, L. A. Hall; for City Treasurer, H. E. Baumeister.

SOCIALIST EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE'S ANNIVERSARY

On Saturday evening, Mar. 8, the Socialist Educational League will hold an entertainment at its headquarters, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street, in celebration of the first anniversary of its existence. Admission is 10 cents.

This organization was formed on Mar. 3, 1901, by comrades of the Twenty-second and Twenty-fourth Assembly Districts, as a propaganda club exclusively. It started by hiring halls for Sunday evening lectures. Later the League rented rooms in East Fifty-third street, and finally moved to its present quarters. Here it has done excellent work. It was a center of activity during the last campaign, as was proven by the increase of our vote in the 24th A. D. The League supplied the Campaign Committee with several able speakers—Comrades Nicholson, Loewenthal, Reichenthal, and others—developed under the ablest of teachers, John Spargo.

Lectures are given at the League's headquarters every Sunday evening, and the audiences are, on the whole, the best to be found at any Socialist headquarters in Greater New York. The club rooms are open all day and evening, Comrade Spelman being in charge, and visitors are welcome to read party literature and can leave there their subscriptions for party papers and magazines.

Courtenay Lemon spoke last Sunday "to standing room only" and on Sunday evening, Mar. 9, Mrs. Fraser of Brooklyn will be the speaker.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
500 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896, (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

THE FUTURE DANGER

A survey of world-wide economic conditions indicates that a social change or upheaval of some sort is much nearer than is supposed by those who base their views on the lack of intelligence and absence of the revolutionary spirit in the great mass of workingmen, who are not conscious of their own class interests and who do not consciously struggle against the exploitation and degradation which they suffer under the reign of capitalism.

An industrial crisis now prevails in ... Italy, Spain, Russia, and to ... degree in England. All Europe confronted by the problem of ... unemployed, and the ominous ... symptoms of riots, mass meetings, and ... disturbances warn the ruling ... of their danger. The statesmen ... all nations are alike perplexed with ... one great problem of how to find ... market for the goods which their country produces or how to keep the markets they have, and upon the consideration of tariff and reciprocity nostrums and the problem of securing concessions and markets in the East is centered the attention of the ruling class in every nation of commercial importance. Thus we see a universal condition of overproduction since the people cannot buy back the surplus wealth which their labor has created because they receive from the capitalists only a small fraction of its value as wages, and therefore the purchasing power of the world's workers obviously can never equal their productive power.

When the purchasing power of the workers is destroyed by unemployment consequent upon overproduction some change in the industrial system must come and would come, although the Socialist movement had never existed. Economic forces will force some change. The fact that the working class is not alive to its own interests and does not demand its rights, and that the Socialist Party in America is not large, does not signify that a social change is not near at hand.

But it does not follow that the change which economic evolution shows to be not only inevitable but imminent will be a change to the Co-operative Commonwealth which is the goal of the Socialist movement. The danger of the future is that the ruling class will adopt some system of paternalism, some form of state ownership of industry under which the state still remains in their control, in order to feed the people and at the same time continue their exploitation and the supremacy of the present ruling class under a system of partial government ownership with the capitalists owning the government. This state-capitalism or Bismarckian "socialism" is the one thing to be feared, the one thing which can postpone the advent of real Socialism. With this possibility removed, Socialism would be inevitable for "capitalism digs its own grave."

It is imperative, therefore, that Socialists untiringly point out that the nationalization of any industry without a change in the nature of the government is not Socialistic, and that "government ownership" will only bind tighter the chains of the working class unless the working class, as such, has first captured the powers of government for the purpose of establishing industrial democracy.

Two recent happenings show very plainly what the working class may expect from mere government ownership of this or that industry under a capitalist government.

We find the following in the foreign news of the New York "Times:"

"The Italian government has made a serious attempt to allay the agitation for better conditions of work among Italian railway servants and to obviate the danger of a general railway strike by issuing an official notice that railway employees are public officials, and as such are liable to severe penalties under the penal code in case of failure to discharge their duties."

Now comes the following press dispatch:

"TURIN, Italy, Feb. 24.—Owing to the number of railroad employees who are joining the strikers, and also on account of the fear of a general strike on the railroads, the government has issued a decree calling to the colors all railroad employees in Italy who belong to the mobile and territorial army. The men will thus be brought under military control, while continuing their duties."

Thus the Italian government will put its railway employees under martial law if they strike for decent wages. This should open the eyes of those who believe that "government ownership of railroads is a step towards Socialism" and attach no importance to the class struggle and class rule.

But we need not go to Italy, or the government monopoly of the tobacco business in France, or the government ownership of railroads in Russia and Germany, for object lessons. We have them here at home, as the following recent order of President Roosevelt will show:

"All officers and employees of the United States, of every description, serving in or under any of the executive departments, and whether so serving in or out of Washington, are hereby forbidden either directly or indirectly, individually, or through associations, to solicit an increase of pay, or to influence or attempt to influence, in their own interest, any other legislation whatever, either before Congress or its committees, or in any way, save through the heads of departments in or under which they serve, on penalty of dismissal from the government service."

We wonder how the overworked and underpaid letter carriers and postal clerks will take this. We commend it to the earnest attention of Wayland, Bliss, Casson and all who believe that "the postoffice is an example of Socialism," or that Socialism is merely "government ownership of monopolies"—only that and nothing more. If they study it long enough perhaps they will see that narrow class-consciousness is about the most important factor in the Socialist movement.

The danger of the future is that the rapidly developing industrial crisis will arrive before the working class has learned what the Socialists have to teach it, and that when capitalism has undermined its own foundations the ruling class will resort to an industrial paternalism, to government ownership of some of the larger industries, to "panem et circenses," to feed the people and thus keep them contented. The TIME at which a change will occur will be determined by economic evolution. The NATURE of that change will be determined by whether or not there are enough class-conscious, uncompromising revolutionists to lead the rest of the working class to victory. Military writers estimate that about one-third of every army is composed of brave men, one-third of cowards, and one-third who vacillate between the two and are stampeded in either direction, according as the brave men or the cowards gain control. It will therefore be seen that all we need is a little over one-third of the working class of clear-cut, class-conscious Socialists in order to carry the struggle WHEN economic evolution brings about a social crisis. To avoid the dangers of the future, therefore, and make our triumph certain, it is necessary that clear-cut political Socialism, based upon the class interests of the workers, be unceasingly propagated.

COURTENAY LEMON.

For the information of certain correspondents and of whomsoever else it may concern we will say that The Worker takes no part in the quarrels of rival trade unions and has no interest in them beyond a desire to see them settled. Sooner or later experience will no doubt teach the members of such organizations the folly of the conduct and bring them together as fellow workingmen in the battle against the capitalist class. Till they learn that lesson, we know of no way to save them from suffering for their blunder.

The traffic managers of the Western railroads have given a flat and defiant refusal to the request of the United States Interstate Commerce Commission for information in regard to the payment of rebates. Strange to say, not one of the great "law and order" newspapers has come out in condemnation of these law-breaking and law-defying capitalists. Can anyone tell why?

District Attorney Jerome seems to be but a poor imitation of that disappointing would-be hero, Theodore Roosevelt. He is very strenuous in words, but when the time comes for deeds the starch comes out and his backbone is as flabby as any common trimmer's.

THERE IS A LESSON IN IT.

It is significant that the whole daily press of Buffalo—Republican and Democratic alike—promptly joined in praise of Bishop Quigley's wanton attack upon the Social Democratic Party, one of them—the "Times"—having the brazen effrontery to allege that the Social Democrats advocate political assassination and giving this as a reason for commending his action and calling on the bishops of other denomination to follow his example.

It is equally significant that none of the dailies of New York—not even that great lover of liberty, the "Journal"—has seen fit to condemn this bishop's impudent interference with the political action of American citizens. The reason is plain: The citizens concerned are workingmen and the Bishop has interfered for the benefit of the capitalist class which controls the daily press.

Another incident which deserves notice in this connection is the publication in the American daily press of an alleged Brussels dispatch to the effect that George D. Herron was delivering a course of lectures there, "making very broad and caustic statements" and saying that "he was doing his level best to bring a revolution in the United States," and so forth. The fact was that Comrade Herron spoke once in Brussels and for ten minutes only at a party meeting. This furnished the basis for the highly sensational "dispatch."

The garbling of news and the invariable editorial bias of the old-party press on all matters affecting the labor movement furnishes the one and all-sufficient reason why we must have a daily paper, and that soon, owned and controlled by class-conscious workingmen.

Send in your pledge for the Socialist Daily Fund. Don't delay, but send it now and encourage others. Make it as liberal as you can, and pay the instalments promptly as they fall due. Don't wait to see whether others will do their part. If a man keeps one person to the line of duty in this world, he does well—and that person should be himself.

Start an endless chain of Socialist propaganda. Buy forty copies of Hanford's "Railroading in the United States." Give them to forty intelligent workingmen and ask each to read it and pass it on and if he likes it, to follow your example. At least one out of forty will do it.

The capitalist dailies have nothing to say against Bishop Quigley's shameful misrepresentations of Socialism and his impudent attempt to dictate political opinions to American citizens. We need a daily. We shall have it as soon as we have the money. Therefore, send in the money.

A UNION OF ARTISTS.

Crayon artists in Chicago have appealed to the American Federation of Labor to assist them in forming a union of their craft, as they say that competition is driving them into starvation. Thomas I. Kidd has been deputized to organize the artists under the banner of the American Federation. There are about 2,000 of these workers in this city, and, as they work by the piece, they say that the competition has so cut prices that they cannot make over $10 a week. The solar printers, who prepare the work for the artists, organized a union a few months ago, and since then they have raised their wages about $9 a week on an average.

Their success has aroused the artists, and, although there are no unions of that description in the country, the men say that what is good for the hod carrier will do for the artist, and they favor a trade organization. The actual work of organization commenced last night, and Mr. Kidd said he hoped soon to have a strong union of artists in this city. The new union will adopt a label, and "union made" crayon pictures soon will be on the market.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

FROM OLD "CLARION" READERS.

Here are a few of the many appreciations we receive from former readers of the "Clarion," whose subscription list The Worker has assumed:

Peter M. Carlson of Quincy, Mass., writes: "Please find enclosed money order for one year's subscription. I am glad to be one of 'The Worker family,' as I find it a first-class clean-cut publication and that it represents the working class properly and honestly."

Daniel W. Spofford, of Georgetown, writes: "Enclosed please find $1 for two copies of The Worker for one year. Send me some back numbers if you have them. I enjoy reading your paper, and always pass it on to my friends."

T. Richardson of Leominster also sends a dollar for two copies for a year—"one for my friends," he says.

Wm. L. Sweet of Boston is another of the discriminating ones, who wants one copy for himself and one for the unregenerate.

—Postal clerks must not ask Congress to increase their pay. We have a surplus so large that we don't know what to do with it, but it would never do to reduce it by increasing the pay of common laborers.—Workers' Call.

SOCIALIST MOVEMENT IN ITALY.

BY AGNES WAKEFIELD.

(Concluded.)

Comm. Torti, the royal attorney of Turin, in his recent inaugural address, after giving the usual statistics, devoted his attention to the press and particularly to the Socialist press, against which he waxed eloquent, denouncing it as "the enemy of our country's institutions, livid with hate," etc.

Then he expressed his indignation at the statement made by Prof. Cesare Lombroso, in "Avanti," that "the Italian magistracy was subservient to the powerful as long as they were despots and is now despotic on its own account whenever possible."

The royal attorney's wrath only serves to cast a brighter light on Prof. Lombroso's truthful judgment.

Regarding the Socialists' "hate," there is hardly any other country in which the Socialist press has so little hate and aggressiveness as in Italy—for with emotional, easily excited temperaments to deal with, the majority of the Italian Socialist leaders and writers see the need of appealing to the reason of the people and making them calm, prudent, and intelligent workers for Socialism, otherwise there might be revolts or deeds of violence which would injure both the workers and the cause of Socialism. The sarcasm, satire, and wit with which a good many of the Italian Socialists are endowed doubtless seem inspired by "hate," in the opinion of the monarchists and old fogies who, as long as they themselves can live in luxury and idleness, are not willing to have the hungry multitudes of the people stirred up for a social revolution.

Socialist Almanacs.

There are three Socialist almanacs published in Italy this year; they are illustrated literary annuals with poems, prose articles, and stories.

The "Almanacco dell' Asino" of Rome is satirical and contains caricatures by Rata Langa (the pseudonym of Comrade Galantara). It costs six cents a copy and can be obtained of the Libreria Socialista, Piazza Montecitorio 127, Rome.

"L'Almanacco Socialista" of Milan, compiled by a group of Socialists of that city, has writings by Filippo Turati, F. Ciccotti, Enrico Ferri, Edmondo de Amicis, and others. It is illustrated and has eighty-four pages. It costs six cents a copy and is sold by Antonio Sassu, Vlo Ugo Foscolo 5, Milan.

"L'Almanacco Socialista" of Florence is published by G. Nerbini, Via Martelli 5. It has articles by Znanin, A. Lauria, Dr. Giuseppe Cavallera, Garzia Cassola, and others, with poems by M. Mazzolani, Filippo Turati, and Lawyer A. Ciccarelli. The illustrations are by Luca Fornari. It has 31 pages. The cost is three cents a copy.

"Forward."

"Avanti" ("Forward") of Rome, the daily organ of the Socialist Party of Italy, held a festival according to the yearly custom on the evening of Dec. 28, celebrating the fifth anniversary of its foundation. The eloquent orator of the occasion was the Hon. Angiolo Cabrini. The popular poet Trilussa who writes in the Roman dialect, gave recitations of his poems.

Then there was music and dancing. A collection was taken up for the strikers of Leghorn. From the receipts of the entertainment a sum was cleared for "Avanti."

"Propaganda."

In Naples, New Year's night, the staff of the Socialist journal "La Propaganda," the twelve recently elected Socialist members of the city common council, and the other comrades held a great festival to celebrate the progress they have made in elections and against political corruption. They announced: "We assemble to salute with joy the end of a year in which we have not lived in vain, and to welcome the dawn of the New Year, which we intend to spend not less usefully, and to dedicate to the inevitable conquest of all the rights of the proletariat which advances bravely and intelligently towards a happy future."

"Forward Forever."

The New Year's number of "Sempre Avanti" ("Forward Forever") is one that cheers and encourages. "Sempre Avanti" is published in Turin and edited by the Hon. Oddino Morgari, one of the Socialist members of Parliament from Piedmont. On account of his great vivacity, geniality, lucidity, and strength of expression, the Hon. Morgari is very successful in Socialist propaganda among the peasants and workers. Formerly a contributor to "Avanti" ("Forward") the Socialist daily journal of Rome, of which he was also business manager, he felt the need of a low-priced paper, in simple language for persons of little education. Besides, his comrades want him to live in his own city of Turin while Parliament is not in session; so he moved back there, and started his paper, "Sempre Avanti," which is illustrated, has four pages, and is issued twice a month. It costs a cent a copy, twenty-four cents a year in Italy, and twice that amount in foreign countries. Although it has been published for only three years, it now has the largest circulation of all the Socialist periodicals of Italy, according to a recent statement in "Avanti" of Rome.

The leading article in "Sempre Avanti" of January 1, is "At Last We Are Progressing," in which the Hon. Morgari shows how Socialism has advanced in Italy during the past year. He says that they should be encouraged at the greater liberty now enjoyed; while formerly Socialist sections and labor leagues were often dissolved by government officials, for a year past in Turin, and the surrounding region, no such arrogant act has been committed. The organizations among the workers and peasants have increased remarkably in strength and number. Many have availed themselves of the right to strike and have often won. Among the most important of these successes is the strike of the masons in Milan; there were about 12,000 masons in that strike, and they gained the average of 110 lire (about $24) a year, each, or 1,437,000 lire (about $287,400) in all. The printers, too, have proved the advantages of union, for they have been, for a long time, so strongly organized that when they asked for an increase of wages, the year past, they won at once without having to strike, for their employers knew it would be of no use to oppose their just demands; each worker gained 8 centesimi an hour, which makes more than 200 lire ($40) a year, besides several improvements with regard to apprenticeship and job work. Hundreds of other strikes were successful.

The investigations of political corruption swept the dishonest deputy Cassle from Parliament. The three cities, Naples, Palermo, and Catania, which for so long have been under the rule of political robbers, have been severely arraigned. In Naples, twelve Socialists have been elected members of the Common Council. In South Italy the workers, who formerly let the robbers steal in pence, have now waked up and are opposing corruption.

Then there is the law abolishing the local duties on bread and flour—to be sure, it is but a small gain—the Socialists had worked for the reform of the whole system of taxation.

The establishment of the "Ufficio del Lavaro" (Labor Bureau) in the past year, shows that the government must investigate the condition of the working class. The Labor Bureau is directed by a council of forty-four members, nine of whom must be peasants and other workers. The duties of the Bureau are to study the conditions of the working people, to investigate the hours of labor, wages, health, accidents, the unemployed and strikes. It must study the labor laws passed in foreign countries and watch the effects of those that already exist in Italy, and give opinions on labor reforms that are proposed.

In his summing up of the year's progress, the Hon. Morgari answers the pessimist who is impatient because Socialism does not fall from the sky at once, and, with the cheerfulness of one who looks hope fully towards the future, encourages the Socialists of Italy to greater efforts.

In the same number of "Sempre Avanti" is a short article on "How the Socialist Party of Japan Originated," giving an account of the wonderful development of Japan in adopting the industrial and scientific inventions and methods of the modern world; the closing paragraph states: "The Japanese government sent four officers to Europe to study the economic and political organization of capitalist society. The four delegates studied so well that on their return three of them left the army and organized the Labor Party."

In "Sempre Avanti's" column of information is an answer admirable for its brevity and sense; in reply to the question, "Can we keep a picture of Christ in our Socialist headquarters?" the editor says, "It can stay, but the picture should be without a halo, and should have these words beneath it, 'To Christ who was a man and a martyr to the principle of brotherhood among men.'"

With an illustration depicting a dude accompanying a richly dressed lady who leads a prosperous puppy by a string, is the following conversation:

Marchioness:—"I have just come from visiting a poor widow with four starving children."

Dude:—"You are always so charitable, marchioness, you surely gave her assistance."

Marchioness:—"Of course!—by advising her to repeat the rosary every morning and evening."

In "Sempre Avanti" of January 16, there is an article, admirable for its simplicity and clearness, by Francesco Norcia, popular poet and workingman of San Demetrio, Abruzzi, in which he explains the class struggle and advocates Socialism. It is printed just as it was written, with its divergence from gramatical rules. The editor says, it has the granite good-sense of a peasant, expressed with praiseworthy and rare lucidity and that he likes it better than all the polemics of eminent Italian Socialists.

In the same number, Comrade Carlo Califano gives an amusing account of how he followed the chemical directions (given in a preceding issue of that paper) for performing the old catholic miracle of making what is supposed to be the cold blood of a saint or martyr boil; he tells how wonder-struck the spectators were at seeing that a Socialist as well as a priest could perform "the miracle." One witness made the sign of the cross and said that diabolical influence was at work. Another exclaimed: "Those devils of Socialists always find out everything!"

"The Official Bulletin."

It has been announced that the first number of the new monthly "Bollettino Ufficiale" ("Official Bulletin") of the Socialist Party of Italy is to be issued in January. The subjects to be treated are:

Administrative department:

1. Statistics of the sections and the members. 2. Publication of the finances. 3. Communications from the branches. 4. Forms of statutes and by-laws for the sections and federations. 5. Circulars and communications from the Party Executive. 6. Correspondence with members.

Economic department:

1. Economic organization (resistance co-operation, mutual benefit, labor bureaus, organization of the peasants, etc.) 2. Statistics of strikes, etc. 3. Labor jurisprudence. 4. The most important decisions of the probi-viri (council of experts) and of the labor arbitration boards. 5. Labor market, and emigration. 6. Social legislation in Italy and foreign countries. 7. Communications.

Political department:

1. Methods and regulations for carrying on propaganda. 2. Socialist conventions (parliamentary, local, etc.) 3. Municipal administration, reports of the Socialist councillors and other municipal officers. 4. Internal questions, communications from members.

Publishing department:

1. Catalogue. 2. Reviews of new publications, Italian and foreign.

From this program it is evident that the new "Official Bulletin" will be of much value not only to the Socialist Party in Italy, but also in other countries, for the statistics it will furnish, and for the practical suggestions, criticisms, and reports it will give in all the departments of Socialist work and labor organization.

The subscription is L. 1.20 (24 cents) a year in Italy; in foreign countries the postage is extra. The address is "Bollettino Ufficiale," Libreria Socialista, Piazza Montecitorio 127, Rome.

"Labor, a Review."

"Il Lavoro" ("Labor") "a review of the clinical physiology and hygiene of labor," is the title of a new review edited by Prof. L. Devoto and managed by Dr. G. Moreschi. It is published in Pavia twice a month; the first number was issued Dec. 1. The annual subscription is 8 lire ($1.60.)

The editor says: "Diseases resulting from the conditions of labor are undoubtedly on the increase in our country, and follow, step by step, the extension of industries.

"The object of this review is to analyze and publish all that appears in the fields of physiology and chemistry of interest to labor, to collect and promote studies and clinical observations on diseases with relation to different employments, and to publish the reports of practising physicians on the diseases of different localities and industrial establishments."

"Avanti" welcomes the new review as one that is useful and excellent.

"The Peasant."

A strong advance in labor organization was made by the first Convention of Italian Peasants, representing more than 140,000 farm laborers and about 700 leagues, held in Bologna in November, which was remarkable in proving the economic intelligence and solidarity of the delegates, and which caused the monarchists much displeasure because the assembled peasants, instead of shouting "Long live the king!" advocated the co-operative commonwealth with the acclamation of "Long live Socialism!"

New leagues are forming. The Federation of Lomellina, with its headquarters at Mortara, has increased its membership to 8,000 and has begun to publish its own journal "Il Contadino" ("The Peasant"), the first number of which was issued Jan. 4.

"Quo Vadis."

One of the newest of the Socialist periodicals of Italy, now numbering more than fifty, is "Quo Vadis." The editor is Comrade Alfredo Angiolini, a lawyer and author. It is published weekly in Florence, Via Martelli 5, by Comrade G. Nerbini, and is printed by the Co-operative Press. Comrade Nerbini is one of the leading Socialist publishers of Italy. Within the last few years he has published many Socialist pamphlets and books; among the most important are "Struggles of the People," by Edmondo de Amicis, the third illustrated edition of which was printed in 1901, and has 319 pages, Alfredo Angiolini's "Fifty Years of Socialism in Italy," a history, 1900, a folio of 355 pages, with 40 portraits, and Signora Maria Cabrini's compilation of "Socialist Songs and Poems," 1900, a folio of 195 pages, illustrated. "Quo Vadis" has four pages and is a little smaller than our "Appeal to Reason." It has many illustrations. It costs a cent a number; the subscription is 60 cents a year in Italy and one dollar in foreign countries. The editor states that one of the objects of the new periodical is to furnish a literary field for those writers, many of whom are young, whose productions, stories, and poems because they champion the new ideal of Socialism are rejected by the editors of conservative periodicals. Most of the Socialist Party organs, with their parliamentary reports, political, propaganda, and labor news, have little or no room for poems and stories—hence the need of this new paper, which is artistic and literary. The heading of "Quo Vadis" represents Socialism in the form of a woman, with a star over her forehead, who points towards the rising sun and leads forward an unending procession of men and women workers joining hands and holding aloft their tools of labor—through a rough path beset with thorns. The first number, dated Dec. 24, has stories by F. Bonavita, Leda Rafanelli, and others. There is an article on "Vagabondage Through the Centuries," by the Hon. Prof. Enrico Ferri, reprinted from the review "L'Universita Popolare" ("The People's University," corresponding to our university extension); in this article which is an extract from Prof. Ferri's lecture course in the New University of Brussels, occurs the following allusion: "The procession of thousands of unemployed men that marched from the different regions of North America to Washington, not many years ago, is the living and painful symbol of this state of social disease." There are poems by Ermilia Buzzochi and M. Mazzolani. The three following epigrams in verse, from "Quo Vadis," are translated entire; "The Law" is signed Silvio T., but the other two are anonymous:

The Garden of the World.

Strangers from every clime, that visit our land in the passing years,
Call Italy the garden of the world: 'tis true—but not for us.
Are the harvests and flowers that richly grow, watered with our tears.

Our Country.

Our country! O foolish delusion!
O useless and lying word, for hungry toilers taunted and pale!
What does our country give us
wretches?
She gives us bread . . . when we are in jail!

The Law.

The law is the same for all
Is written on the court-house wall.
The same for all, too, does the rain fall:
But he that has an umbrella protects himself the best he can.
While he that has none gets drenched —unlucky man!

Each page of "Quo Vadis" is illustrated and there is a picture rebus for the solution of which "The Struggles of the People" by Edmondo de Amicis is offered as a prize. The second number of "Quo Vadis," for Dec. 31, and the third number for Jan. 5, have still better illustrations than the first—they are among the best that have appeared in any Italian Socialist publication. There are letters of encouragement and advice from many of the eminent Socialists of Italy, with articles of interest.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

RAILROADING IN THE UNITED STATES. By Benjamin Hanford. New York. Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association. 1902. Pamphlet, 24 pages. Price, 5 cents; ten or more copies, at 2½ cents a copy.

If this little book were printed on extra fine paper and luxuriously bound and sold at a dollar a copy, it would be counted among THE books of the year, would be read and talked about and carefully preserved. Clearly but unpretentiously printed and bound in paper, it is sold at one-fortieth of that price, so as to give it the widest possible circulation. If the American people—and especially the Socialists of America—care more for matter and style than for paper and binding, it will be a record-breaker in the matter of circulation among all our party publications.

We do not generally expect literary style in Socialist pamphlets. It must be confessed, they are likely to be a trifle dry. This is unfortunate, for nothing goes so far to make a recital of facts impressive and a train of argument conclusive as a good individual style. Well, here we have it. Some literary critic has said, "The style is the man," which is not far from the truth. The style of "Railroading in the United States" is the man Ben Hanford, as his associates know him—accurate, straightforward, intensely earnest, proletarian through and through, and, above all, with a directness of vision through all appearances to the real heart of things that enables him—or compels him—to put facts in a new and startling but always a convincing light.

So much for the style, which is worthy of so much notice, because, given accuracy of facts and correctness of logic, it is this which will make men think as they read the pamphlet and prompt them to advise others to read it and talk it over with them. As for the matter: The first part deals with "Law and Order" in an effective manner; the second part is a dialogue between An Eminent Gentleman and A Very Eminent Gentleman, "one of whom knows his business"—doubtless a franker dialogue than our uncrowned kings ever dare to hold even with their own consciences (if they have any such troublesome things)—and treats of the capitalist side of the railway business; the third part is a dialogue between The Dull Brakeman and His Bright Lantern, which shows the other side of the system.

Further comment should be needless. Our advice is: Get the pamphlet and read it; but don't buy a single copy—5 cents is too much to pay; buy forty copies at half the price and distribute thirty-nine of them; if you really can't spare a dollar just now, then send a quarter for ten, as a first instalment.

THE CRAFTSMAN. Published monthly by the United Crafts, Eastwood, N. Y. $2.00 a year; 20 cents a copy.

"The Craftsman," devoted to the interests of "art allied to labor," is published monthly by the United Crafts, a gild of cabinet-makers and workers in leather and metal, at Eastwood, N. Y. The issues thus far published present a series of interesting monographs on William Morris, of whom the writer says "it is not generally appreciated that his art and his Socialism were associated integrally with each other, or, rather, that they were but two aspects of the same thing;" John Ruskin, "who regarded modern commerce as a complex system of thieving, and who saw in great industrial cities naught save the working models of hell;" "The Gilds of the Middle Ages;" "Textiles, Old and New;" and "Robert Owen and Factory Reform."

The letter press and general appearance of the magazine is a delight to the artistic sense and a practical illustration of the artistic standards in the advocacy of which it is published. The text is chiefly by Irene Sargent. The influence of the bourgeois viewpoint, which those who have been under its domination find so difficult to completely throw off, appears here and there, and occasionally the writer shows the influence of the reactionary in economics, as exemplified, for instance, in the cart-before-the-horse, sociology of Kropotkin or Ruskin; but the general spirit of the magazine will meet with the enthusiastic endorsement of the Socialist, who, while realizing that the standards of art and life for which it stands are incompatible with the present industrial system, will nevertheless hail it as a true prophecy of the conditions which will prevail under the future Co-operative Commonwealth for which industrial evolution is preparing the way.

The work of the United Crafts seems to be an immeasurably more sane, dignified, and reverent attempt to carry on the great work of William Morris than is the vaudeville imitation that has its home in East Aurora.

"The Craftsman" is "penetrated with the social significance of art and conscious of its vital relations to the life of the masses." It protests against "the subdivision of labor, which insures great and rapid financial returns, while it just as certainly and quickly causes the degeneration of the workman, by robbing him of his ambition, his hope and his critical faculties, and thus lowering him to the level of an automaton," and calls for "the liberation of the craftsman from his present condition of servitude, which results from dividing the steps of manufacture into parts so insignificant that no one workman may be said to possess his trade; from robbing the human being of his individuality by unduly increasing the power and multiplying the functions of the machine; by blighting the imagination of the laborer in forcing him constantly to consider a part rather than the whole of the plan upon which he is engaged, and by depriving him of that keen, exquisite pleasure which is derived from the sense of authorship."

"The United Crafts," says the "Craftsman," "endeavor to promote and to extend the principles established by Morris in both the artistic and the Socialistic sense. In the interests of art they seek to substitute the luxury of taste for the luxury of costliness; to teach that beauty does not imply elaboration or ornament; to employ only those forms and materials which make for simplicity, individuality and dignity of effect. In the interests of the workman, they accept without qualification the proposition formulated by the artist-Socialist: 'It is right and necessary that all men should have work to do which shall be worth doing, and be pleasant to do; and which should be done under such conditions as would make it neither over-wearisome, nor over-anxious.'

"Since it is a duty awaiting whoever is willing, to aid in freeing the handicrafts from the arrogant contempt with which they are now regarded by the ignorant and the careless; a condition paralleling the attitude of Rome toward her artisans, in those later times when slavery had largely supplanted free labor; the difference today being that the laborer has changed masters; that he is no longer attached, as a chattel, to the person of a superior individual, but that he is become the slave of the machine which he operates."

The furniture produced by the United Crafts has that true beauty which is born of simplicity and utility; it is square, solid and substantial; "plain shapes which not only declare but emphasize their purpose, maintaining the principles evident in all the work of the United Crafts; the prominence of the structural idea; the development of the material employed, to the limit of its artistic possibilities; best of all, the abandonment of all applied ornament."

As expressed in "The Craftsman:" "In choosing things which we are to have constantly about us, we should subject them to as rigorous an examination as we do those persons whom it is our purpose to make our friends. In both cases, certain moral and agreeable qualities should be requisites for admission to our heart and home. For material and inanimate objects have their honesty, their inherent joyousness and good humor equally with beings who are endowed with powers of motion, thought, and speech. If these objects frankly and directly reveal their purpose; if they are found capable of meeting every-day requirements—which from their sameness and constancy are necessarily trying; if they have, withal, an attractive personality, they should be accepted and welcomed. We owe a not inconsiderable share of our happiness or of our discomfort to the things by which we are surrounded; we are disturbed by the aggressiveness of material things, or we may imagine them as offering us a mild and pleasing sympathy. For the existence or the absence of such qualities in material things the intention of their maker is responsible. If he has produced under the lash of commercialism and competition; if he has sought to be original, that he might allure or startle, without wishing to serve fitness or beauty, then he has falsified himself and ruined his creation. But if he has wrought with every faculty alert, and with absorbing pleasure in his work, then the thing created will reflect to the latest day of its existence that same spirit of truth and love. The sooner that we appreciate the inevitable, strong, subtle influences which pass from the eye to the brain, the sooner shall we give to ourselves surroundings conducive to plain living and high thinking; rooms in which each object shall have some vital reason for its existence, place and function, and which cap form an unobtrusive background for the drama of life."

"The United Crafts is therefore "pledged to the production of things made to use, to keep, and to cherish; objects such as represent primitive ideas and therefore essentials; such as frankly state their purpose and honestly meet the needs which they are intended to supply; condemning those that are wanting in honesty as when decoration simulates constructive principle, as in the introduction of false mortices that fasten nothing." It is one of their principles that "every artist should be a workman in order that there be no loss or lapse of power between the conception and the execution."

"The Craftsman" believes: "Any art worthy of the name must strike its roots deep into the life of the people, and must produce as freely and naturally as does the plant in summer.

"We must support an art created by the people for the people; simple, sincere, and structural; an art wherein the designer and craftsman shall be one and the same individual, creating for his own pleasure and unassailed by commercialism.

"A real art, developed by the people, for the people, as a reciprocal joy for the maker and user, is able not only to beautify, but also to simplify life, to unify the interests of all sorts and conditions of men, and finally to realize the meaning of the word Commonwealth."

It is, perhaps, obvious that such an art can never grow in the foul swamp of the competitive system, where profit is the motive of production. Such an art will spring from the soil of industrial democracy, when the world's workers have established themselves in the common ownership of the means of life and labor; when production is for use and the joy of the maker, not for profit; when men are removed from want and the fear of want and work joyfully and fraternally together, receiving the full fruit of their toil.

The March number of "The Craftsman," in addition to its chief article on "The Gothic Revival," will contain a paper by A. M. Simons, editor of "The International Socialist Review," on "The Economic Foundation of Art."

C. L.

DON'T LIKE CARNEGIE.

Andrew Carnegie's gifts have not been so graciously received in Canada. The mayor of Chatham, after speaking against the acceptance of a proposed gift of a $15,000 library, received from one of the library board the remark "We ought to help him die poor."

"I don't want to help any man die poor who steals money with one hand and gives it away with the other," was his feally reply.

The "respectables," of course, were all shocked. But the workingmen of Canada who sympathize with their fellow wage slaves of Homestead felt no shock we know of, although we must admit that it is surprising to hear such words from a city official. We can leave it to the capitalists to see to it that his political future is doomed.

PARTY NOTES.

At last Sunday's meeting of the West Side comrades, held at 342 W. Forty-second street, it was decided to hold an outing this summer and Charles Richter, Assel, and Klinger were elected a committee to find a suitable park. Another joint meeting was called for Sunday, Mar. 9, at 8 p. m. sharp, at the same place, and all members and readers of The Worker living in the 1st, 3d, 5th, 7th, 9th, 11th, 13th, 15th, 17th, and 19th Assembly Districts should be present. Now is the time for work, if we wish to increase our vote on the West Side next fall.

Last week's meeting of the Young People's Social Democratic Club of Yorkville was very well attended. Among other matters, it was decided to have an outing in the summer and a committee was chosen to make preliminary arrangements. At next Thursday's meeting there will be a debate on "Capitalism vs. Socialism" between Comrades Herbert and Sprotte. A full attendance is desired.

The New York Socialist Literary Society met last Saturday evening at 117 Forsyth street. It was decided to meet hereafter on Monday evenings. All members are requested to attend on Mar. 10, promptly at 8:30 p. m. Louis Harris was elected Business Agent and given full power for the performance of his duties.

At Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue, Mrs. Alex. Fraser will speak in reply to Archbishop Corrigan's attacks upon Socialism. This will no doubt be an interesting lecture, and all are cordially invited to attend.

The 22d A. D. holds special business meeting on Friday, Mar. 7, at 8 p. m. at the Socialist Educational League, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street. Members are requested to attend and bring their friends.

The agent for The Worker in Auburn, N. Y., is P. Pohle, 68 Elizabeth street.

Comrade Strobell of Newark spoke on Socialism before the Motley Single Tax Club on Thursday evening, Feb. 27. There was the usual class on competition and individual initiative, but to many independent thinkers in the hall the Socialist arguments, backed up by the most copious references to present conditions seemed the stronger. Among those present was a notable character in Republican politics in Essex Count, Farmer Van Riper, who usually indulges in bombastic and flowery Republican party puffs. But before the Socialist arguments and facts his old-party enthusiasm failed him, and he was so far impressed as to lament that his years prevented him from making that examination the subject required. Comrade Strobell will speak again before the club.

F. O. MacCartney, Socialist representative in the Massachusetts Legislature, spoke to an audience of 300 in Worcester a few days ago. The meeting was a great success and the local daily gave a very fair report, occupying more than a column. The meeting was made more attractive by the singing of songs written by Comrade Boomer, and by good instrumental music. James F. Carey, the other Socialist representative, will speak in Worcester at Grant Hall on Mar. 16. Comrade Wilshire will also probably speak in the near future. John W. Brown of Hartford, Conn., has also spoken twice in the city. Comrade Abbott writes that Brown is a powerful and convincing speaker, and as he is to be in South Framingham after April 1 advises that the Massachusetts organization make the fullest use of his services. His address will be New Theater Building, South Framingham.

The Pennsylvania State Committee has called for nominations for candidates for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor in the fall campaign by referendum, vote to be returned not later than March 20.

Gen. E. Bigelow has been secured for thirty days in March for organization and agitation in Pennsylvania. He will collect signatures on state nomination papers. Comrades wishing a call from Bigelow may write J. M. Barnes, 931 Callowhill street, Philadelphia.

Comrade Klenke will spend a few weeks in and about Pittsburg to help organize new locals that are now forming. Prospects are bright for a hot time in the old town.

The Pennsylvania State Committee has endorsed the action of the National Committee in regard to the call for contributions to the National Propaganda Fund, and sent copies to all locals and branches to consider most earnestly and act upon immediately.

The Ohio State Committee has two organizers in the field. The splendid advance which the Socialist Party made in that state last fall has filled the comrades with enthusiasm and excellent results may be expected, both in the city elections this spring and in the general election in November.

John C. Chase will lecture during April among the trade unions of Illinois.

Sheldon A. Harris, vice-president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, has publicly announced his entrance into the Socialist Party.

The National Committee has received an invitation to the Socialist Party of the United States to participate in the next International Socialist Congress at Amsterdam in August, 1903.

A lecture tour is being arranged for Charles H. Vail and his wife in Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, and Indiana.

Local Duquesne, Ia., which organized in November with eight charter members, now has seventeen and is doing good work. August Klenke lectures there on Mar. 8 and Geo. E. Bigelow on Mar. 20. It is intended to hold regular monthly lecture meetings from now on.

Local charters have been issued to Elsinore and Silver City, Utah; Collinsville, Indian Territory, and Louisville, Idaho.

The National Committee has decided to publish the platform and constitution in German.

Charles H. Vail is speaking in Ohio. His dates for the next week are: Mar. 6 to 8, Toledo; Mar. 9, Cincinnati; Mar. 10, Portsmouth; Mar. 11, Springfield. He has already spoken at Conneaut, Ashtabula, Cleveland, and Canton.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.

By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

The following donations have been received to National Propaganda Fund:

Amount reported to Feb. 22	$88.53
Local 31, Paso, Texas	1.00
Local West Hoboken, N. J.	2.00
W. C. W., St. Louis, Mo.	.50
Local Dexter, Mo.	1.50
Local Snohomish, Wash.	2.03
Local Black Hawk, Wash.	1.00
Local Gainesville, Texas	.10
Local Poplar Bluff, Mo.	1.00
Local Newport, Ky.	5.00
Local Kalamazoo, Mich.	1.00
Local Covington, Ky.	5.00
Local Lafontaine, Kans.	1.50
Local Branch 19, Cleveland, O.	5.00
Local St. Paul, Minn.	5.00
Local Hammond, Ind.	1.00
Local Blackfoot, Idaho	.25
G. S. Klepstad, Hillsboro, N. D.	.80
Total to March 1	$102.70

SOCIALISM AND TRADE UNIONISM.

The following resolution was adopted by the Socialist Party in National Convention at Indianapolis, Ind., on July 31, 1901:

"The Socialist Party, in convention assembled, declares that the trade union movement and independent political action are the emancipating factors of the wage-working class. The trade union movement is the natural result of capitalist production and represents the economic side of the working class movement. We consider it the duty of the Socialists to join the unions of their respective trades and assist in building up and unifying the trades and labor organizations. We recognize that trade unions are by historical necessity organized on neutral grounds as far as political affiliation is concerned.

"We call the attention of trade unionists to the fact that the class struggle so nobly waged by the trade union forces to-day, while it may result in lessening the exploitation of labor, can never abolish that exploitation. The exploitation of labor will come to an end only when society takes possession of all the means of production for the benefit of all the people. It is the duty of every trade unionist to realize the necessity of independent political action on class-conscious lines, to join the Socialist Party and to assist in building up a strong political movement of the wage-working class, whose ultimate aim and object must be the abolition of wage slavery and the establishment of a co-operative state of society based on the collective ownership of the means of production and distribution."

——The present day rule of business is might against right—cunning against conscience.—Eugene V. Debs.

——The strong, wealthy, and unscrupulous forces have gotten possession of their immense wealth through the backstairs of legislative halls, but organized labor cannot, if it would, compete in that game. It has no immense corruption fund to grease the legislative machinery.—Robert Baker.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 309 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred H. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Winthrop Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 317 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 N. Baum street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George H. Baird, 1304 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eidaness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. B. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. W. Quick, 3622 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Wilson, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 677, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

CONNECTICUT.

STATE COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the State Committee was held Sunday, Feb. 23, with Comrade White in the chair. Communications were read from National Secretary, Rockville, Bristol, and Hartford. Applications of F. E. Wheeler and A. A. Way of Unionville and Geo. A. Gowdy of Bristol were received, and they were admitted to membership. Bill of Turn Hall Society for $5 was ordered paid. The Organizer reported that 1,000 leaflets had been printed and were ready for distribution. Secretary reported receipts $15.70, expenditures 50 cents, balance $15.20. It was decided to engage Comrade Aug. Klenke for ten days, commencing Mar. 27, and to charge locals $5 for a meeting, this amount to be paid to the State Committee, and in case of more than one meeting in a town, that the local shall pay $2 per day and expenses for the extra meetings.

A. B. CORNELIUS,
Secretary.

MASSACHUSETTS.

STATE COMMITTEE TO NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Editor of The Worker.

By instruction of the Executive Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, I request you to publish the subjoined communication being a copy of a letter sent to the National Secretary:

Leon Greenbaum, National Secretary Socialist Party, St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Comrade:—Your communication of the 10th inst. also list of states in good and bad standing, received. At its last meeting, held Feb. 20, the Massachusetts Executive Committee voted that the Financial Secretary report to the National Secretary a list of members for each month since the present organization came into existence, and inform him of the conditions existing in the state, and that the Executive Committee feels indebted to the National Committee only to the extent of the membership affiliated with the state organization.

Of course you will readily understand that the only present regular source of income to the Executive Committee is from dues of affiliated members. This income is rapidly becoming larger from the continual accession of members, especially since the advent of Comrade William Mailly to our midst.

It has been no light task to reorganize the state after the confusion developed by the recent factional division, but the rank and file are now fast responding to the call for harmonious relations, and we expect the Old Bay State to take her place in the forefront in the near future.

Few know better than this Committee the urgent need of funds in all directions for carrying on the increasing work, and we understand the desire of the National Committee for an income adequate to the demands upon it, and therefore we are glad to note the earnest efforts being made by the National Committee to secure a sound financial basis, but we feel that there must have been some oversight in placing Massachusetts on the list of states in bad standing, for the reason that had the expenses of Comrade James F. Carey in attending the recent meeting of the Committee of Correspondence been properly charged to dues account it would have placed Massachusetts in the list of states in good standing.

Trusting that this apparent oversight may be corrected, and with best wishes for your success in placing the National organization upon a sound business basis.

Fraternally yours,
W. F. PORTER,
Secretary.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 25.

P. S.—The Financial Secretary having just sent in his resignation, I have written as above. The Committee will endeavor to send in reports of membership and other matters more regularly now that organization is progressing more satisfactorily and in a manner allowing of such reports.

W. F. P.

BOSTON CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

At the Central Committee meeting held on Feb. 18, at 724 Washington street, a communication from the National Secretary relating to the referendum on inter-state lecture tours and party emblem, was read and voted to take usual course. A vote of thanks given to Miss Hopkins for typewriting by-laws at very low charge. Voted to hold Commune celebration and entertainment on March 18, with Comrade John Spargo as speaker on that occasion. Tickets, 10 cents. Committee on arrangements, Aaron, Rosklod, Ryan, Marcus, and S. Tobrin. Voted to buy 100 copies of The Worker with Comrade Mailly's article on Frank R. Foster's action toward Local Boston, to be distributed among the delegates to C. L. U. Committee on Vail's lectures gave estimated report: expenditures, $35; income, about $100; from the educational point of view it was a great success. Next regular meeting will be on March 11, at 724 Washington street.

LOUIS MARCUS, Secretary.

NEW JERSEY.

LOCAL HUDSON COUNTY.

Local Hudson County held a well attended meeting at headquarters, 324 Central avenue, Jersey City, last Sunday. With one or two exceptions the branches made most encouraging reports on organization and agitation. The reports were substantiated by the admission of eighteen new members. Plans are afoot for more efficient work for The Worker and distribution on a more extensive scale of Socialist literature. Each branch is to be requested to elect a Branch Literature Agent to act with the County Agent, and where a branch fails to name an agent the County Literature Agent is empowered to impress the delegate to the County Committee, and require him to perform the duties of sub-agent until delinquent branch has made selection and sent an accredited agent. These sub-agents will meet with the County Agent at stated periods for exchange of views on plans of work and assist each other in pushing the work of collection and distribution of party papers and pamphlets.

Local Holyoke, Mass., set an excellent example for the aid of the national organization, which Hudson County has cheerfully accepted and would be glad to learn that other locals will adopt. The Committee has instructed its Secretary to communicate with each branch, urging the donation from its funds of such sum as it can spare to the national treasury, and where the fund is not sufficiently large to warrant draft, to take up a special collection. It is believed that Hudson County will cheerfully respond to this appeal, and that a generous sum will be forwarded at an early date.

In accordance with the provisions of the new constitution, a referendum is now in progress for the selection of state officers. The candidates are: For Secretary, Chas. Ufert and H. R. Kearns; for Financial Secretary, Comrade Dobbelaar; for Treasurer, Comrade Gilliar.

The committee having charge of the March celebration reports satisfactory progress.

The West Hudson comrades have matured their plans for a fair covering Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of the second week in March in Ball's Union Hall, opposite the Clarke Thread Works in East Newark. Tickets are ten cents. The fair will be largely patterned after that recently held in Grand Central Palace, but on a much smaller scale, though none the less attractive and profitable to those patronizing it.

The New Jersey State Committee will meet Saturday, Mar. 8, at 8 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, and it is hoped that every delegate will be present, as it is high time that the Committee was organized and at work.

H. R. KEARNES, Secretary.

NEW YORK.

CENTRAL DIVISION, BROOKLYN.

The membership of the Central Division, composed of the 4th, 6th, 10th, and 17th A. D., Brooklyn, are called to a joint meeting, Friday, Mar. 7, at 8 o'clock at the Socialist Club, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, to elect a Division Organizer and transact such business as may come before it.

SOCIALIST CLUB.

The Ball Committee of the Socialist Club, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, asks all who have tickets out to please make returns so that the ball account may be closed.

OHIO.

STATE COMMITTEE.

Following is the report of Auditing Committee upon the financial statement of the State Secretary form June 1, 1901, to Jan. 1, 1902:

To the State Committee, Socialist Party.

Comrades:—Your committee appointed to audit the books of the State Secretary-Treasurer respectfully submit the following report, and certify to the excellent condition in which we found the accounts kept by the State Secretary-Treasurer, W. G. Critchlow. We spend on the report an account of all monies received and expended.

The Auditing Committee would suggest that in future the books be audited quarterly, as it would save much time, and give greater satisfaction to all comrades in the state who are members of the state organization. Respectfully submitted,

WILLARD BARRINGER,
AMBROSE P. CARR,
M. J. HYNES,
Auditing Committee.

RECEIPTS.

For dues, donations, and literature:

Local Cleveland	$131.10
Local Springfield	24.75
Local Dayton	63.55
Local Portsmouth	24.03
Local Mansfield	11.50
Local Xenia	7.60
Local Warren	8.65
Local Youngstown	5.08
Local Painesville	2.30
Local Bellevue	1.65
Local Tiffin	3.00
Local Edgerton	2.00
Local Continental	1.43
Local Bowling Green	.70
Local Ashtabula	4.50
Local Cincinnati	80.00
Local Toledo	36.50
Local Cuyahoga Falls	13.20
Local Canton	9.75
Local Massillon	7.50
Local Fremont	7.20
Local Conneaut	5.30
Local Columbus	4.00
Local Postoria	1.80
Local Berryrus	1.20
Local Wauseon	.70
Local Toronto	1.25
From all other sources, including individual donations, purchases of Literature, etc., etc., etc.	42.82
Total	$502.31

EXPENDITURES.

To National Committee	$148.90
To Agitation	110.00
To printing	122.10
To postage and postals	43.59
Miscellaneous items, including office supplies, money orders, express charges, telegrams, donations to party enterprises, etc., etc., etc.	65.93
	$491.72
To balance on hand Jan. 1	10.57
	$502.31

The State Committee has decided that the Secretary shall submit a financial statement to each local in the state every month beginning from the first of this year.

Ohio State Committee, Socialist Party.
W. G. CRITCHLOW,
Secretary.

Report approved of, and ordered printed.

Note.—The reports for the states to good and bad standing received in this office and will be published next week.—Ed.)

PENNSYLVANIA.

STATE COMMITTEE.

To the Locals and Branches of the Socialist Party of Pennsylvania.

At the regular meeting of the State Committee in this city, Feb. 18, it was decided to submit by referendum vote our party nominations for state election to be held Nov. 11. Nominate one candidate for Governor and one candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. Report total vote of local or branch for each. Secretary of local will forward the vote to State Secretary not later than Mar. 25.

STATE COMMITTEE,
J. W. QUICK, Secretary.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

A Protest from Ohio.

Editor of The Worker.

We wish to call attention through the columns of your paper to the conduct of the National Committee. In their financial statement just issued we note that several states, with a larger party membership than Ohio, yet are doing very little, or practically nothing, towards the maintenance of the national organization. We, as the representatives of Ohio, one of the states that has been acting honorably with the national organization, hereby enter protest against the indifference as manifested by these states towards the national organization. If the National Committee is going to be continued, as it should and must be, all states must do their share towards sustaining them. We feel that it would be a useless expenditure of time to argue as to the question that the national organization should be better supported, as all Socialists ought to be clear on that point. However the fact remains that a few of the states are bearing the expenses of the national organization, and it cannot continue very much longer. Locals of the party in all states, as well as the individual members, should insist on their respective states bearing their proportionate part of the expense of the national organization.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE, S. P.
W. G. CRITCHLOW, Secretary.

As to Emblems.

Editor of The Worker.

I note with no little surprise that the National Committee have decided on restricting the membership in the selection of an emblem to the red flag, and what may be aptly termed the Panama design.

The practical utility of a design is in the use as a ballot emblem, and as a recognition mark among members. For both purposes the design should be simple and distinct. The red flag is this, but is objectionable from the association with anarchy. For which it is also the emblem, and then, on the ballot it cannot appear as the red flag, but must appear as the black flag, and I need only suggest the thought to make clear to the average person what "fruit" this would be for the opposition. To go into the necessary long historical significance is a waste of time, and besides, is lost on the average person.

The "Panama" design strikes me as being too complicated—trying to work an allegory. As a button, one has to get his nose up to it to make sure that its most striking figure—the hands clasped across the isthmus of Panama—is not the emblem of some of the numerous fraternal or labor organizations; or in this state, the emblem of the Union Reform Party. The clasped hands prevails from ginger-bread and candy kisses to the A. F. of L.

So far as I am concerned, I'm going to cast my vote for the Arm and Torch. Let every one send five cents to The Worker and get one of the half-inch Arm and Torch buttons, without lettering, and you will discover simplicity, neatness, and distinction, that would be the same on a ballot. Since its introduction here the women are wearing it, something they did not do with any other design, and which speaks for its artistic merit. Objection that may be raised against the Torch can be most effectively squashed by a short sentence or two about the emblem of education and enlightenment and the Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

I am satisfied that this neat little button will be worn, no matter what the design forced by the restricted choice. It will be worn as a veteran button, having first won official place; on a ballot, through the efforts of the veterans of the movement in the United States.

CHAS. R. MARTIN.

Tiffin, O., Feb. 28.

In Essex County, N. J.

Editor of The Worker.

Branch 4 of the Socialist Party, Essex County, N. J., is making itself felt in the political arena of Newark. The heelers of both the capitalistic parties stand dumfounded at the progress of this aggressive branch among the trade unionists. No less than sixteen organizations are here represented, and they include the most progressive unions in Essex County. It is a list to be proud of, and runs as follows: International Association of Machinists, International Jewelry Workers of America, Local No. 2; Brotherhood of Painters, Local No. 26; Newark Printing Pressmen's Union No. 31; Newark Feeders and Assistant Pressman's Union No. 39; International Trunk and Bag Workers' Union, Newark Hat Finishers' Union No. 14; Brewers' Union No. 2, Photoengravers' International Union, Jewelry Workers' Local No. 1, and Celluloid Pressers' Local No. 7. Among our branch members from above unions are four presidents, five delegates to Essex Trades Council, two delegates to Allied Printing Trades Council, and the local organizer for the American Federation of Labor. If there is a branch in the state of New Jersey that can beat that record, we would like to hear from them.

Two of Newark's prominent manufacturers are also members of this branch, and as properly becomes Socialist business men, their factories are unionized throughout.

Branch headquarters are located in the most central part of the city, at No. 124 Market street. The rooms are tastefully arranged, the best of literature is always on hand, and in the lecture hall a new piano has just been added.

Comrade Dooley, vice-president of C. F. U. of New York, delivered a lecture at headquarters on Feb. 16, and was greeted with a good house. His clear cut remarks made a profound impression upon the many trade unionists present which will result in much good to the party.

Comrade James E. Billings will lecture upon "The Ballot" on Sunday evening, Mar. 9, and on Mar. 16, Comrade Fred McIntosh will lecture upon "The Kiss of Judas in the Recent Peace Conference."

M.

Proud of Erie.

Editor of The Worker.

Under the heading "Victory in Erie," last week, why didn't you put up a rooster with wings spread and throat distended, crowing loud enough for a poor man, workingman or professional man, to hear, him? We must all get together, work together, pull together, make each other deserve hugs, that we may all live as brethren together when the victory comes. Put up your rooster next time and make him crow loud and long.

Think of it, Hanna's prediction fulfilled in Pennsylvania in less than two years. He knew whom the Republicans had to fight. And nothing but cold type to tell it in The Worker! We must be up to date if we would catch the young American.

The fight is on. The unions are getting their eyes open. It makes lovers of liberty glad to see them opening their doors to real independent political action—the only thing that will or can save Labor from its new friends, Hanna, Bishop Potter, Morgan, Cleveland (who had workingmen shot down and put their leader Eugene V. Debs in Woodstock Jail). From such friends, good Lord deliver us, the poor and the workers, or we will be hoodwinked again and again until endurance ceases to be a virtue.

Hear, ye toiling millions: In that old stronghold of Erie, the Republicans in round numbers four thousand, the Socialists three thousand, the Democrats too far in the rear to trouble us, and the S. L. P. gone into its hole. Let us carry New York next time, and not let Erie beat us that way again.

L. D. MAYES.

New York, Feb. 28.

FOR NEW YORK STATE.

Every Socialist or Sympathizer in the State is Called Upon to Help in the Work of Propaganda.

To the Workingmen of the State of New York.

The Social Democratic Party of the state of New York asks your contribution for propaganda of Socialism. That is, provided you approve of Socialism, or the public ownership and operation of all industries for the benefit of all. For it is the supreme object of the Social Democratic Party to secure to every workingman the full fruit of his labor. If you believe that a workingman must surrender the biggest part of his product to Rockefellers, Morgans, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Schwabs, and a swarm of smaller parasites, that they may bestow it on the pauperized nobility of Europe or on the owner of Monte Carlo—why you should support the Republican or Democratic party, for both these parties represent and are owned by the capitalist class. The Social Democratic Party alone stands for the interests of the working class.

Workingmen:—You have heard before our appeals, but you continued to stand in overwhelming numbers by the old parties. With what result? Republican and Democratic legislatures, Republican and Democratic judges are now, more than ever, the tools of your exploiters. Was there a crime perpetrated by the capitalists in which they were not protected by the very legislators and judges for whom you, workingmen, voted? Was there a right which you demanded that was not refused to you by the very men whom you have elected? Why continue to work against your own interests? The Social Democratic party is your own party. It consists of workingmen and has no other supporters. Help it to spread Socialism. Help us to send out Socialist agitators. Help us to distribute Socialist literature. The dissemination of Socialist ideas means the final triumph of Socialism, and your own economic emancipation. Remember, he helps doubly who helps promptly.

Send contributions to Emil Neppel, treasurer, S. D. P. State Committee, 288 W. 142d street, New York.

New York State Committee, S. D. P.
LEONARD D. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

All monies contributed will be acknowledged in The Worker "Volkszeitung" and "Vorwarts."

——The New York "Herald" says there are 3,828 millionaires in this country who own $26,000,000,000. That's all the active capital of the nation, really, and so less than 4,000 men are the actual bosses of the United States. They in turn are bossed by Rockefeller, Morgan, and a few others.—Commonwealth.

CHILD LABOR IN GEORGIA.

The United States Census reports just made public for the state of Georgia show that there are 83,342 wage earners employed in the 7,504 manufacturing establishments in the state, and that they receive an annual wage of $20,290,071, or a little more than $242 per capita a year. This low wage is accounted for by the fact that there are 6,373 children under the age of sixteen years, employed at a wage of only $691,700, which would indicate that the average daily wage of this army of children is less than 37 cents a day. The cotton manufacturers of Georgia, however, have this year signed an agreement to exclude from the mills children under ten years of age and those under twelve who cannot show a certificate of four months' attendance at school. There is no law in the state regulating child labor. The manufacturers' agreement referred to was designed to defeat the movement for an anti-child labor bill. It effected its purpose, and it is now very doubtful if it will be lived up to.

——The meanest man to-day is he who is a little thief and thinks he will soon get a chance to be a big thief.—The Referendum.

——Adulterated food is most largely consumed by the workingman's family—probably this is the reason that the various state legislatures, as well as congress, refuse to pass pure food laws.—W. S. Waudby, in Typographical Journal.

Some Men Pay $10.000 for an expert to manage their advertising. There are others who pay $5.00 for an annual subscription to Printers' Ink and learn what all the advertisers are thinking about. But even these are not the extremes reached; there are men who lose over $100.000 a year by doing neither one.

For sample copy send 10 cents to Printers' Ink, No. 10 Spruce St., N.Y. City.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,

730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.

Send for sample copies.

Subscription, $1.00 per year.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD

Decatur, Ill.

AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.

Subscription $1 per year, in advance.

HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.

Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

Never let Whiskey get the best of you
Get the best of it
BUY GOVERNMENT PROOF KENTUCKY WHISKIES

UNION MADE
AND PUT UP IN UNION PACKAGES
SEND FOR PRICE LISTS OF WHISKIES, WINES & LIQUORS
The Cooperative Liquor Co
DISTILLERS AGENTS INCORPORATED COVINGTON, KY.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

EMILE ZOLA'S
POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS.

Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.

"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "Human Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother, Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot-Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."

Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.

Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

BOOKS WANTED.

Hyndman—"Historical Basis of Socialism."

Enrico Ferri—"Work on Criminology."

Thos. Skidmore—"The Rights of Man to Rural Property."

Parke Godwin—"Democracy, Pacific and Constructive."

Any other out-of-print publication on the SOCIAL QUESTION.

Send name of title and author with lowest price to

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

READY AGAIN.

"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists." By H. Gaylord Wilshire. Price, 2 cents; 100 copies, $1.25, postpaid. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
320 Broadway, Room 922. 50 Union Square.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERN'L UNION SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS REGISTERED
This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs.
No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

"Railroading in the United States."
BY BEN HANFORD.
PRICE, FIVE CENTS.
40 Copies $1.00
1000 " 25.00
Sent on receipt of price.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 William Street, New York.

R·I·PANS

Ripans Tabules are the best medicine in the world. There is scarcely any condition of ill health that is not benefited by the occasional use of a Ripans Tabule, and the price—10 for 5 cents—does not bar them from any home or justify any one in enduring ills that are easily cured. A family bottle containing 150 Tabules is sold for 60 cents. For sale by druggists.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial-Secretary of the Executive Committee is:
HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

TRADE and SCIENTIFIC BOOKS

The Scientific American Cyclopedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries; 15,000 receipts, 900 New Formulas, 734 pages. Indispensable in every worker's family. Price, $5.00, cloth; $6.00 in sheep, post free.

Hopkins' "Experimental Science," $4.00.

"Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century," by Edward W. Byrn; 300 illustrations, 480 pages, $3.00. Half red morocco, gilt top, $4.00.

Hopkins' "Magic," $2.50.

Sloane's "Complete Electrical Library," 5 volumes in a box, $5.00.

"Standard Practical Plumbing," by P. J. Davies. A complete encyclopedia for practical plumbers, builders, gasfitters, engineers, etc., $3.00.

"The Tinsmiths' Helper and Pattern Book," by H. K. Vosburgh. Rules, diagrams, tables, and recipes for the use of practical metal workers, $1.00.

"How to Become a Good Mechanic," by John Phin. A practical guide to self-taught men; tells what to study and how to begin. 25 cents.

SCIENTIFIC BOOKS of every kind furnished by

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
'CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.

Five Postals for $1.25; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.

For Sale on all New York News-stands.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 130 West 120th st., New York.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
60 Second Ave., Between Third & Fourth Sts.

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

PARTY BUTTONS

We manufacture three different sizes in ⅞, ⅞, and 1½ in. diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the ⅝ in. size simply with Arm and Torch emblem.

1 Button	5 cents.
12 Buttons	25 cents
25 Buttons	50 cents
100 Buttons	$1.75

Cash must accompany all orders.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

PATRONIZE ... FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM. 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts. N.Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE REFER

A WORD OF WARNING TO WICKED AGITATORS.

Editor of The Worker.

The alarming and deplorable tendency becoming daily more apparent on the part of the workingman to assert his right to more than one-fourth of the product of his hand or brain is a undoubted evidence that our blessed civilization has been wasted upon him. Society has unwisely lavished so much thought upon him and care upon his surroundings that he has been led falsely to assume that he should be as well fed and as comfortably housed as the man who gives him employment.

This position is so evidently preposterous that it would scarcely need refutation were it not that certain misguided speakers and editors are doing their utmost to confirm the lower classes in their fallacy.

The Worker is a conspicuous example of pernicious activity along this line, and it affords me great pleasure, therefore, to call to the attention of its editor the enclosed clipping from the Brooklyn "Eagle."

It is, indeed, hard to realize the possibility of misconception on the part of the workingman as to his industrial or social status, but should there linger a doubt in any mind, do please, Mr. Editor, hold up the "Eagle's" model workman:

1. He does not work from inclination, but "because he needs the money."

2. "He does not get drunk"—because a thoughtful government has removed the temptation (along with everything else except the "dingy hand-me-downs that have seen long service on white men's shanks.")

3. "He does not organize unions, and demand everything and interfere with everything."

4. "He requires bossing, but he does what he MUST without profanity or grumbling;" therefore

5. "He has the making of an excellent laborer."

One more "Eagle" quotation to show you, Mr. Editor, what a wicked waste of time it is to try to improve the poor. The fact is, sir, we positively don't want better surroundings; all we are aching for is cheap rent; for that we have the word of the "Eagle." Moreover, we very much prefer filth to cleanliness—a life in Mulberry Bend to a residence on the Park Slope. Listen to the Washington Street oracle, you wicked demagogue:

"Many of the poor do not care much whether they have wide or narrow courts, skylights, fire escapes, or bathtubs, so that they get a rent within their means. Experiences in Manhattan have shown that THOUSANDS PREFER DIRT, DARKNESS, AND CROWDING TO HEALTH AND DECENCY."

Now, sir, I put it to you: Would it not be wise to halt here a little? Those of us who have tried in our poor way to hasten the advent of the Co-operative Commonwealth have evidently been too impetuous; and the thought born of the "Eagle's" editorials is certainly disquieting. Suppose the dawn of our industrial freedom should break upon us before we had acquired a taste for cleanliness or overcome our natural craving for "darkness, dirt, and crowding." Can you not imagine the militia, instead of shooting us as strikers, being called upon to drive us at the bayonets' point into clean streets and commodious and well-ventilated and heated houses? It makes my blood boil to think that I may in the near future be haled before some such legal luminary as Bookstaver to show cause why I should not be compelled to take a trip to Yellowstone Park or to Europe for my health's sake. This would indeed be curtailing individual freedom.

Let us think better of the scheme of a Socialist daily and strenuously help to spread the gospel according to Sainv (Clair) McKelway.

Yours respectfully,

ARTHUR CHEATLE.

(Note.—The workman held up as a model by the editor of the "Eagle" for the edification of wicked strikers and agitators is, of course, the negro laborer of the South. Prseident Schwab of the Steel Trust also has reason to praise his many virtues.—Ed.)

TICKET IN SEATTLE.

Socialists Begin Municipal Campaign in the Lively Young City of the Northwest.

Our comrades in Seattle have nominated a complete municipal ticket composed of wage workers and issued the following declaration of principles:

"Workingmen of all countries, unite! You have nothing to lose but your chains. You have a world to gain!"

"We, the Socialist Party of Seattle, in convention assembled, proclaim our allegiance to the Socialist Party of America, and to the Socialist Party of the state of Washington.

"We affirm our unfaltering adherence to the principles and the program of international revolutionary Socialism.

"In presenting our candidates for municipal office to the working class voters of Seattle, we base our appeal upon the following declarations as our platform of principles:

"1. Labor produces all wealth.

"2. Under the present economic and political conditions labor's share in the wealth which it creates is merely a mean and uncertain subsistence.

"3. So long as the present organization of industry remains the capitalists will monopolize the machines of production and will appropriate to themselves, through the wage system, the wealth created by the working class.

"4. This appropriation of labor's wealth by the capitalist is so complete as enables the capitalist to live in [illegible] idleness.

"5. [illegible] necessary consequence of [illegible]n of the laborer by the [illegible]r expropriation of all [illegible] of the hands of the toiling [illegible]uprivate ownership of the [illegible]apital, there is an inevitable [illegible] between the interests of the working class on the one hand and the interests of the capitalist class on the other.

"6. This class struggle between the wealth-makers and the wealth-takers will endure so long as our present system of production for profit continues.

"7. In this conflict between the workers and the capitalists, labor is completely disarmed on the economic side, all the instruments of producing and distributing wealth being owned and controlled by the holders of capital.

"8. There is only one weapon with which the working class can successfully oppose the capitalist class—and that is the ballot.

"9. This fact demands as an inevitable conclusion the organization of the working class into a political party that shall be, everywhere and always, distinct from and opposed to every party not founded entirely upon the interests of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized to meet this demand, and is therefore the party of the working class.

"10. The Socialist Party, when in office, shall always and everywhere, until the present system of wage slavery is utterly abolished, make the answer to this question its guiding rule of conduct: Will this legislation advance the material interests of the working class and aid the workers in the class struggle against capitalism? If it does, the Socialist Party is for it; if it does not, the Socialist Party is absolutely opposed to it.

"11. In accordance with this principle, the Socialist Party pledges itself to conduct all the municipal affairs of Seattle in such a manner as to promote the interests of the working class.

"12. In conclusion, we appeal to all workingmen to study the principles of Socialism, to vote with and for their class at all elections until they overthrow the power of private capitalism, abolish industrial classes in society, terminate forever the class struggle and inaugurate the Co-operative Commonwealth based upon this fundamental principle of justice:

"TO EVERY WORKER THE FULL PRODUCT OF HIS LABOR."

The ticket is as follows:

For Mayor—Geo. W. Scott, Carpenter.

For Comptroller—W. C. B. Randolph, Carpenter.

For Treasurer—Geo. W. Ficks, printer.

For Corporation Counsel—Wm. M. Devitt, lawyer.

For Councilmen-at-Large—T. E. Latimer, teacher; and Wm. O'Keefe, ship caulker.

For Councilmen: First Ward—W. H. Beebe, machinist; Second Ward—S. A. Wolfe, clerk; Third Ward—Chas. W. Blake, bricklayer; Fourth Ward—N. J. Classe, carpenter; Fifth Ward—L. W. Kidd, printer; Sixth Ward—A. F. Lindwall, painter; Seventh Ward—G. H. Peters, plumber; Eighth Ward—Otto Shields, cigarmaker; Ninth Ward—J. W. McCorkle, carpenter.

THEY WILL NOT HONOR THE PRINCE.

Electric Lodge of I. A. M. Enters Its Protest Against Greetings to German Royalty.

Electric Lodge No. 313 of the International Association of Machinists, has addressed to this paper the following communication, to which we gladly give space:

"Editor of The Worker:

"It is the desire of this lodge to enter a protest against the unusual demonstrations by some of the workingmen of this country over the visit of Prince Henry of Germany, and desire you to print the enclosed resolution where every one may have a chance to ponder over it, and especially those who took any active part in the foolish demonstrations of greeting.

"We selected your paper because it champions the cause of the laboring class, and also to let the readers of The Worker know that there is at least one lodge which protests as a body against a display of ignorance. Following is the resolution:

"'Whereas, The visit of Prince Henry of Germany to the United States has no diplomatic nor international significance relative to the interests of either country; be it

"'Resolved, That we, Electric Lodge No. 313, I. A. of M., do enter a protest against the demonstrations made over the visit of Prince Henry of Germany by some of the American workmen, as being ignorant and unworthy of intelligent workmen; and be it further

"Resolved, That we condemn the action of the Government in making such large appropriations for the entertainment of a mere visitor.'

"Very respectfully,

"Electric Lodge 313, I. A. of M.,
"E. G. WESSMAN,
"President.
"GEO. H. TREMBORG,
"Recording Secretary.

NOTICE TO MACHINISTS.

We are requested by President O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists to publish the following notice to all union machinists and sympathizers:

"The daily newspapers are circulating reports to the effect that our strikes in several places have been adjusted, or declared off. This information has been circulated, especially, in the case of San Francisco Alliance and the Allis-Chalmers shops at Chicago. You are hereby notified that the strikes at San Francisco and at Chicago have not been declared off, nor has any settlement been reached. You will pay no attention to newspaper reports as to our strikes being declared off at any place, for when settlements are made the Association at large will be notified through my office.

"Our members are on strike in the following cities, and you will use your utmost endeavors to keep machinists away from the cities named: San Francisco, Chicago, Denver, Detroit, Toledo, St. Albans, Vt.; Washington, Ind.; Rock Falls, Ill.; Southern Railway System, Alexandria, Richmond, Salisbury, Knoxville, Columbus, Charleston, Memphis, Birmingham, Selma, Macon, Atlanta.

"Machinists are requested to stay away from Franklin, Pa., Cleburne, Texas, and Springfield, Mo.

"Please notify all machinists that the Brown & Sharp Tool Company of Providence, R. I., is on the unfair list. Do not purchase any tools made by this company."

The capitalist press is, as usual, serving the interests of the capitalist class in publishing such misinformation. So much the more need for a daily paper owned and controlled by workingmen.

SOCIALISTS PROTEST.

(Continued from page 1.)

daughter of the President of the United States to that coronation—we, the believers in the people—we, the believers in democracy, will actually fall over ourselves to do honor to royalty incarnated in the person of King Edward of England.

There is in this country to-day an imperialism more subtle and far-reaching than any imperialism of the past—an imperialism of wealth. This imperialism is leading the people to worship other forms of tyranny. Our industrial monarchs unite with the monarchs of the old world to establish a world-wide monarchy and to further this end our capitalists are bartering their daughters to European profligates in return for titles.

"And who pays for all this? Five hundred thousand workingmen in Germany to-day are out of employment. In the city of Berlin alone there are one hundred thousand workingmen without employment, and the charitable institutions are strained to the utmost to provide for the necessities of life. Yet to pay for the private gentleman's yacht and his luxuries those people will be ground still further into poverty. And who pays the cost of the gorgeous reception given this representative of oppression? Who, but the workingmen of America? It is from their toil and sweat that the bills will be paid.

"We should oppose recognizing this man because he represents a philosophy antagonistic to progress, a system belonging to a past age, a doctrine that denies the equality of men and which lives on murder and persecution.

"Now, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman will be received with outstretched hands. The members of the party which bears the stamp of democracy upon it will probably vote for this order. Yet our voices will be heard for the people and against monarchy, imperialism and plutocracy, we will fight constitutionally, we will bear witness metaphorically, we will attempt to fan the dying embers of freedom while those to whom the heritage of liberty and democracy is intrusted are paying homage to royalty."

There was complete silence while MacCartney spoke, and after he had concluded, Hayes of Lowell interrupted the Speaker for the fourth time while the question was being put and was recognized. Mr. Hayes poses as the funny man of the House, and he proceeded to sustain his reputation. He was not very funny, but his attempt at ridicule met with more laughter than it otherwise would, because it came opportunely and relieved the tension prevailing.

Hayes began by quoting the following from the Scripture: "'The wind bloweth where it listeth; the sound thereof is heard, but we know not whence it cometh nor whither it goeth,' and more wind has been wasted in the past few minutes than would keep the members of the House in breath for the next six months." He said he had felt terrified when the previous speaker was addressing the House, and had momentarily expected the German army to enter the House and bear him away to a kommers. He suggested that the Sergeant-at-Arms and his subordinates surround the two Socialists during Prince Henry's visit in order that the two members be protected from contact with royalty and from the possibility of being taken captive by the Prince. "For," said he, "we should miss them. Oh, we should miss them!"

There was no applause when Hayes sat down. He was followed by Dean of Wakefield, a Deihocrat, who said the courtesies extended to Prince Henry are not a recognition of a form of government, but simply an expression of good will for the people of another nation. He favored the order. Still there was no applause.

Socialists Stand Alone.

This ended the debate. The Speaker hurriedly called for a rising vote, and all apparently stood up, except Carey and MacCartney, who afterwards voted in the negative. Carey asked unanimous consent to be placed on record. Hayes of Lowell objected. The speaker ruled that Carey's request could only be granted on a yea and nay vote. Carey asked for a roll call, but only MacCartney and he arose, thirty being required. This closed the incident. A large number of members escaped to the corridors to discuss it, and the House assumed its normal condition.

The Brakemen's Bill.

A few minutes afterwards the adverse report of the committee on Carey's bill requiring that railroads increase the number of brakemen on trains came up. Carey moved to substitute his bill and spoke for fifteen minutes upon it. His speech bristled with facts, showing the necessity for the measure. He was opposed by Sampson of Worcester, who claimed to be a railroad man of forty years' experience. He said the measure was unnecessary. Bullard of West Newton supplemented this by saying the railroads would consider the safety of their trainmen and passengers. MacCartney replied and roasted both statements in a scathing speech.

What followed was most interesting. A rising vote showed a tie—42 to 42. Carey made the point of no quorum. A count showed only 107 members present, sustaining the point. Carey then moved that the Sergeant-at-Arms bring in a quorum. The members in the corridors were rounded up and a quorum was had.

Carey then asked for a roll call, and in spite of protestations from some members he secured the necessary number—31 responding. This development was highly disagreeable to several members who had voted against the bill, but who did not want to be placed on record, and it was amusing to note their bewilderment and disgust. The roll call resulted in 65 to 70, and another labor bill died the death at the hands of "Labor's friends." This one was especially important to the railroad men of the state, who are a unit in its favor, and who had a special legislative agent present.

Shortly afterwards the House adjourned, after the most exciting session held in many years, and one which all Socialists can be proud to remember. It was no easy task for our representatives to stand in that hostile body and utter truths which run counter to the world's opinion; but they did it, and did it with a dignified sincerity which commanded the respect even of their opponents and which entitles them to the approbation and support of Socialists everywhere.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

INJUNCTION IS MADE PERMANENT.

Massachusetts Superior Court Decides Against Striking Teamsters in Boston.

The decision on the temporary injunction issued against the teamsters in the strike against the Brine Transportation Company of Boston was rendered on Friday by Judge Braley of the Superior Court. As was to be expected, the injunction is made permanent. Teamsters being forbidden to interfere either forcibly or peaceably with the business of the company, although the union can solicit customers from the Brine Company, IF NOT UNDER CONTRACT WITH IT, to transfer their patronage to other firms. The situation, at the present writing, has a most serious aspect. The union leaders claim a strike is imminent that will paralyze the trade of New England, involving over 30,000 men. It is also claimed that the railroad corporations especially seem to be anxious for a strike, believing an opportunity would be presented to exterminate organized labor. If all the workmen involved in the transportation business were to strike the result would be disastrous.

In order to try to prevent a strike, the Allied Transportation Council will appeal again to the National Civic Federation and the State Board of Conciliation. It is impossible as yet to predict what action will be taken, but the freight handlers and other teamsters are reported in deep sympathy with the Brine strikers and radical action is probable.

The Boston union men are much agitated over the court decision, but it is difficult to see how they could expect anything else. So long as they vote for their masters to control the courts, they may expect courts to serve their masters' interests.

HEARING ON BILL FOR DIRECT LEGISLATION.

On Monday, Feb. 24, a special hearing was held at the Massachusetts State House by the Legislative Committee on Constitutional Amendments upon a Senate bill providing for the initiative and referendum on constitutional amendments. The hearing was in charge of the legislative committee of the trade unions, and over 1,500 citizens, nearly all workingmen, were in attendance. Speeches in favor of the bill were made by trade-union officials and others. It was a striking demonstration, but space forbids fuller notice this week.

NOT SO BAD IN CANADA.

The following letter from Comrade Wilshire to the New York "Evening Post" is self-explanatory:

"Editor 'Evening Post,' New York.

"Dear Sir:—My attention has been called to a letter from your Washington correspondent referring to myself, in which he states that 'the Canadian authorities are in entire sympathy with Mr. Madden's desire to limit the subsidy, which second-class mail rates states, to newspapers and publications of genuinely current literature.' The natural inference for me to draw from this statement of your correspondent is that my magazine was not one of 'genuinely current literature,' and that the Canadian authorities were in sympathy with the United States authorities in the withdrawal of the second-class rates from myself. This impression that your correspondent gives is certainly erroneous as far as it intimates that the Canadian authorities are in sympathy with Mr. Madden in his action as to my case. Before coming to Canada I sent to the Canadian authorities all the back numbers of my magazine, and gave them the whole story of my difficulty with the United States postoffice, and upon the basis of this information they promised to give me my second-class rates here providing I would publish in Canada. This they have done, and 'Wilshire's Magazine' is now being published in Toronto. This statement of facts certainly does not agree with your correspondent's view that the Canadian authorities are in sympathy with Mr. Madden, at least, it is certain they were not in sympathy with him regarding my particular case.

"I may add this—it has nothing pardo particularly with the case—that I am to address a large public meeting here next Saturday night upon the subject of the practical suppression of my paper by the United States postoffice, and that the mayor of Toronto has kindly consented to be my presiding officer at the lecture.

"Faithfully yours,
"H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE."

"Toronto, Ont., Feb. 28.

The "Evening Post, which is the especial organ of the capitalist anti-expansionists and free-traders, has steadily supported the present administration in its attack upon the free press.

EDUCATION THE HOPE.

The hope of the future is in education. This must come from the unions. Every union should be a training school, where wage earners can learn lessons in political economy and political action as citizens. A union that fails to become an educational center, teaching the fundamental ideas of industrial liberty, is not performing its high duty. Along this line come encouraging reports from unions all over the west. Libraries are being secured, debates held on current topics with general discussion of conditions and the way to industrial liberty.—Miners' Magazine.

—The martyr cannot be dishonored. Every lash inflicted is a tongue of fame; every prison a more illustrious abode; every burned book or house enlightens the world; every suppressed or expunged word reverberates through the earth from side to side. The minds of men are at last aroused; reason looks out and justifies her own, and malice finds all her work in ruin. It is the whipper who is whipped and the tyrant who is undone.—Emerson.

C. F. U. NOTES.

Trade Autonomy vs. Industrial Organization.

Benevolent Robbers—Engineer Horr a Socialist—Lessons for the Working Class—Will They Be Heeded?

Shall the firemen and engineers in breweries belong to the United Brewery Workers' Union or not? Brewers say, yes! Firemen and engineers say, no!

Three union firemen refused the request of the Brewery Workers and would not join the union of brewery firemen. The Brewery Workers secured their discharge and replaced them by members of their union.

On motion of the Eccentric Firemen's Union, the C. F. U. had requested their reinstatement. Delegate Bohm claimed it was not within the jurisdiction of the local organization to have the men replaced. The firemen and engineers demanded that the Brewery Workers be suspended from the central body until the men were replaced.

Over two hours were consumed in the debate, and the arguments presented by both sides and the eloquent pleas for harmony would have been a credit to the congressional chambers. (And still workingmen must find capitalist bankers and lawyers to represent them at Washington. If these men, whose ability is unquestioned, would study Socialism and enter straight working-class politics—use their ability to educate their fellow-workingmen—the near future would see many of them at Albany and Washington fighting there for Labor's freedom.)

It was a critical moment in the life of the C. F. U. when the vote was taken, as both sides have many active supporters, and it was feared that the expulsion of the Brewery Workers might cause a split in the central body.

On a roll call vote of 29 to 27 the motion to suspend was lost. Many unions refused to vote.

In order to fight the boss brewers' combinations the Brewery Workers claim that they must have all brewery engineers and firemen under their control, as the keeping up of fires is a most important factor in the manufacture of their product. The Brewery Workers secured the eight-hour day for the Brewery Firemen, a concession the firemen could not have secured alone.

The Eccentric Firemen claim that they should have jurisdiction over all firemen whether they work in breweries or elsewhere. They demand the right of trade autonomy.

Delegate Dooley gave a very clear exposition of the situation: When we have a strike in a trade where the bosses are divided and competing, and where all the workingme nare united, a victory for the workers is almost sure to result. But if we find the bosses in a combination or trust and the men divided in two or three or more organizations, each striving to gain advantages for its members, oft-times regardless of the sister union, where the men are under two or three heads instead of all under one authority, then we are almost sure to lose.

In this city the Brewery Workers having a combination of bosses to fight, as the Brewery Workers claim, it seems necessary that the firemen in breweries belong to the Brewery Firemen's Union.

Democratic Assemblyman Prince Refuted.

The following letter was presented by the delegate from the Butchers' Union:

"To the Delegates of the C. F. U.—Greeting:

"At a regular meeting held at Bohemian Hall on Feb. 26, 1902, of the Bohemian Bologna Butchers' Union No. 1, a resolution was adopted unanimously calling on the Central Federated Union to denounce and prevent any attempt to appeal the law known as the 'O'Connell Sunday Closing Law.' A STATEMENT WAS MADE BEFORE THE CODES COMMITTEE BY ASSEMBLYMAN PRINCE THAT THE C. F. U. WAS OPPOSED TO THE CLOSING OF BUTCHER STORES ON SUNDAY MORNING. We appeal to your honorable body to protest against any attempt to take away from us or interfere in anyway with our day of rest. We have instructed our delegates to have you take proper measures for our protection in this matter.

(Signed) "FORNOIS JELINCK,
"President."

The C. F. U. passed a resolution of protest against the repeal of the bill.

By what authority does Assemblyman Prince state that the C. F. U. is opposed to closing butcher stores on Sunday morning? This is on a par with the contention of Assemblyman Prince that the interests of Capital and Labor are identical.

Bridge Tenders' and Bakers' Complaints.

A letter was sent to Mayor Low on motion of the Bridge Tenders requesting the re-employment of ten men discharged, with no reasons given, from the bridges of Newtown Creek, in Queens Borough.

An answer from the Commissioner of Lunacy was read stating that the reduction in the pay of bakers employed in the Middletown Asylum made their wages the same as paid in all other hospitals.

It was announced that the Building Trades and Miscellaneous Section had constituted themselves as a committee of the whole to make a house to house canvas for the Letter Carriers' bill. A committee of Donnelly, Boulton, and Hanna were appointed to generally supervise the work.

More letters of protest to be ignored, more cause for complaint, more reductions for workingmen, more resolutions of endorsement for labor bills, more house to house canvassing, more begging, simply to snubbed and refused, more lobbying and trying to bribe capitalist legislators to give us what is ours, more injunctions, more unconstitutional labor laws, more and more workingmen arrested. Yes, more and more of it, until the working class realizes its condition, its powers, and the intelligent use of the ballot.

But they're coming! Now you see results in Massachusetts, now in Washington, now in Pennsylvania. When will we see New York City head the list? Brothers in the C. F. U., wake up!

Lot Theater Repairs Wait.

The Theatrical Employees moved to request the Commissioner of Buildings to postpone the making of changes in theaters until May, as many men would be thrown out of work if the theaters are closed for changes at this season.

Capitalism permits a man to work but part of the year. It's a glorious system of prosperity! Do the actors think of the idle carpenters, painters, bricklayers, and others this time of the year? Three months from now when these trades have their busy season will they think for the out-of-work actors and theatrical employees, the printers, and others? It might benefit you to glance into economic conditions a trifle. No, don't do it! It's dangerous! You might see the truth and become a Socialist! Don't! Don't! Don't!

Benevolent Robbers.

"The trust is all right. They have a gymnasium for their men," said Mr. Lorillard.

"We want fair wages and not gymnasiums," was the reply of the cigarmakers' committee.

The Romans gave the people bread and amusement when the Roman noblemen became the slave masters of the people. America seems to be fast following the footsteps of old Rome, who, at the height of her grandeur, after conquering the world, fell to worthless ruin and barbarism. The American capitalist has replaced the Roman nobleman. He offers gymnasiums, libraries, etc., to placate the people and cover up his robberies. There are Americans to-day who will fall into the trap. There are those who, so long as they can get food and circus, will not see the subtle hand taht is stealing their liberties.

"We want fair wages, not gymnasiums!" Keep your gifts and stop your stealings. There is hope that the American workingman may profit by the experience of the Roman plebian and will save himself ere it is too late!

Engineer Horr's Case.

Only one state senator would consent to take up the case of Engineer Horr, who failed to secure justice after being brutally assaulted and maimed for life by Contractor Pucci. The C. F. U. wishes to impeach Judge Cowing, but the state senators show their entire disregard for the wishes of the workingmen whose votes elected them by refusing to take up the case.

Brother Horr has learned a few lessons under the hard and severe task master, Experience.

Here is what he has to say:

"The working class cannot expect to get justice from capitalist judges. They rule for the interests of the capitalist class, and care nothing for the workingman.

"I appeal to all my brothers in the labor movement to unite at the ballot box and vote for the class-conscious candidates of labor as represented by the Social Democratic Party, and thus put an end to this tyranny of capitalism.

"What justice can you expect from men nominated and elected by capitalist parties to represent capitalist interests. It's time the workingman saw these things.

"My case is only one example of the way a workingman is treated.

"I have tried my utmost to secure justice, but so long as capitalists are in power a poor man can secure no justice.

"I have appealed to Albany, and have gone there twice, but have very little hope to secure result.

"I will gladly go on the platform next election for the Social Democratic Party."

Bakers' Troubles.

The New York bakers' unions have some difficulties on hand. Locals Nos. 1 and 50 were expelled from the national organization. They reorganized as the Bakers' and Confectioners' Union of New York and vicinty. They have the sympathy of the New York union with the exception of Cake Bakers' No. 7, with whom they had difficulties which led to their expulsion.

The national secretary, F. H. Harzbecker, came on from Cleveland. He protested at the C. F. U. against the seating of delegates from the reorganized locals, and was referred to the Miscellaneous Section. Here he again protested against their admission to the central body. Delegate Klutlein defended the local organization, and stated that it was useless to spend money for a national referendum of the question to the whole bakers' union, because the matter would not be respected by the officers. A committee was appointed to try and straigten out the matter.

Did you see that big fat fellow leaning back in his office chair, with a broad smile on his countenance? That's the capitalist who owns the big bread factory. He's just contemplating the situation, and chuckling to himself, "Go it! boys! Go it! You're doing me a good turn. You are saving money for me. Kee pthe fight up! So long as you spend all your money, time and energy in fighting each other you can't demand higher wages or shorter hours. So long as you fight between yourselves you can't fight me! Whoop, la! Soak it to him! Keep it up, boys!"

Brewery Organized.

Delegate Bohm reports Fred Oppermann's brewery thoroughly unionized. Good work! Keep it up, boys! Keep it up!

E. P. JENNINGS, JR.

WOODCARVERS AND MODELERS.

At the last meeting of the Wood Carvers' and Modelers' Association of New York resolutions were adopted protesting against the credentials of the Ornamental Plasterers being accepted by the Central Federated Union unless that body recognizes the cards of the W. C. and M. A.

An effort is also being made to assist the woodcarvers of Rochester and Buffalo to establish a minimum wage scale and shorter hours in several of the big shops there which are now doing a large portion of the custom work for New York.

The entertainment committee was instructed to arrange a family social for May 10 in honor of the thirty-ninth anniversary of the Association. A handsome desk and chair were presented by the members to the Association's former representative, John S. Henry, as a mark of appreciation for faithful services rendered as business agent.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are, alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

CELEBRATION OF MARCH EVENTS

SOCIALIST PARTY (März-Feier) HUDSON CO.

Saturday, March 15, 1902, —AT— CENTRAL HALL, 344-354 Central Ave., Jersey City.

Sunday, March 16, 1902, —AT— ODD FELLOWS HALL, 412 Washington Street, Hoboken.

THEATRE, CONCERT AND BALL.

TICKETS, 15c. EACH, IN ADVANCE. 25c. AT DOOR.

Tickets good for either performance. Curtain rises at 8 P. M.

HOW CAN YOU!

CELEBRATE THE COMMUNE AND

NOT READ

ITS FULLEST AND MOST AUTHENTIC STORY,

THE HISTORY OF THE PARIS COMMUNE

—BY LISSAGARAY—

THIS IS THE AUTHOR'S PREFACE:

Who made the revolution of the 18th of March? What part was taken by the Central Committee? What was the Commune? How came it that 100,000 Frenchmen are lost to their country? Who is responsible? Legions of witnesses will answer.

No doubt it is an exile who speaks, but an exile who has been neither member, nor officer, nor functionary of the Commune; who for five years has sifted the evidence; who has not ventured upon a single assertion without accumulated proofs; who sees the victors on the look-out for the slightest inaccuracy to deny all the rest; who knows no better plea for the vanquished than the simple and sincere recital of their history.

This history, besides, is due to their children, to all the workingmen of the earth. The child has the right to know the reason of the paternal defeats, the Socialist Party, the campaign of its flag in all countries. He who tells the people revolutionary legends, he who amuses them with sensational stories, is as criminal as the geographer who would draw up false maps for the navigators.

The "History of the Commune" should be in the library of every Socialist, for it recalls one of the grandest epochs in the history of Socialism, an epoch which will never be erased from the history of mankind.

The "History of the Paris Commune" contains 500 pp., is bound in cloth and published in two editions. Popular edition, price $1.00. Library edition, price $3.00.

As premiums for this occasion the "Silver Cross" (cloth, price 50 cents) is offered with the popular edition, and the "People's Marx," cloth, price $1.50) is offered with the Library Edition; on orders sent in before April 1.

ADDRESS

THE INTERNATIONAL LIBRARY PUBLISHING COMPANY,
23 Duane Street, New York.

Send for Descriptive Catalogue.

—The man who builds the finest house does not live in it. The man who makes the finest coat does not wear it. The man who raises the finest ox does not get the best steak. The man who works most gets the least. Did you ever think of that?—Social Democratic Herald.

—One dollar will buy forty copies of Hanford's "Railroading in the United States." Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

FACTORY TO POCKET

Why pay 3 profits to retail dealers? This week 14K Waltham Watches, 20-year guarantee, retail dealers' price, $16.95 to $25.00. Our Factory to Pocket price, $8.75. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO., 175 Broadway, N. Y. Established 1876.

—Send $2 for five yearly subscription cards for The Worker or 10 half-yearly cards. Ten new readers of The Worker in your town between now and November will probably mean ten new votes for Socialism next election.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.

The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.

No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!

Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.

Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.

Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XI.—NO. 50. NEW YORK, MARCH 16, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

HOW TO GET A DAILY PAPER.

We need a daily paper. We are all agreed on that point. The only question is how to get the funds.

This should not be and need not be a difficulty if the Socialists, individually and collectively, do their duty. We have done seemingly impossible things before. We can do this.

Here is what each of us has to do.

Cut out or copy the form of pledge for the Socialist Daily Fund, fill it out, and mail it, enclosing the first installment—to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York. Do this at once. He gives double, it is said, who gives quickly.

Make your pledges as liberal as you can. Remember that we need a daily, that it costs money to start one, that it is your duty and your interest to help, and that your example will encourage others. Pledge as much as you can spare during the next year—$25, $50, $100—to be paid in monthly installments of two or five or ten dollars each. Send in the first installment with the pledge. And don't wait to be notified when later instatements fall due. It costs trouble and money to send out letters of reminder.

Finally, do not stop with doing your duty as an individual. Do your duty as a member of a collective body. Agitate for the daily. Inspire others to contribute. See that your local organization takes a hand in the work. Help organize festivals or picnics for the benefit of the Socialist Daily Fund. Tell your friends about it and interest them. Work and work and work—and success is assured.

MAY DAY NUMBER OF THE WORKER.

The May Day issue of The Worker will be an 8-page number and will be full of valuable matter—articles of interest to militant Socialists, articles for the education of young recruits, and articles suitable to be given to the stranger who wants to know something about Socialism.

We are not going to make great promises about it, but it will be good. It should be circulated at the May Day demonstrations and propaganda meetings and get into as many hands as possible.

Although double the usual size, the May Day number will be sold at the usual price. Party organizations cannot make a better investment than by buying as many copies as they can distribute. Bundle rates are: For 100 copies, 75 cents; 200 copies, $1.20; 300 or more, 50 cents a hundred. Order early.

PLEDGE.

To Job Harriman, Dr Julius Halpern and.

Leonard D. Abbott, Socialist Daily Finance Committee:

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist Daily the sum of $.....to be paid in monthly installments of $.....

Name .....

Address .....

NEXT? WHO'S NEXT?

Forces are Gathering for the Socialist Daily.

The Work is Now Under Way—It Rests with the Comrades and Sympathizers, who want the Paper to Hasten its Appearance—Are You on the List.

The second general meeting of the Socialists of New York for the purpose of launching the movement for a Socialist daily was held Tuesday evening in the Labor Lyceum. Job Harriman was chosen as chairman and William Butscher as secretary.

Morris Hillquit presented a clear and exhaustive report of the work and recommendations of the committee of fifteen elected at the previous meeting, covering questions of organization and methods of raising funds, etc. The report was discussed and partially acted upon, a spirit of harmony and calm determination prevailing throughout.

The question of name and of date of issuance were postponed to the next meeting, which will soon be called for the purpose of final organization. Notice of this meeting will be given in The Worker next week.

A plan of organization was agreed upon and it was resolved to open a vigorous campaign for the raising of funds. Auxilliary organizations representing party branches and sympathetic unions and societies will be formed in New York and neighboring places and all means will be taken to hasten the appearance of a daily paper and ensure its success. William Butscher was chosen to take charge of the work which must be done and it is hoped that he will receive the heartiest co-operation.

The meeting closed with the collection of further pledges for the fund, as reported below.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to March 12:

Previously acknowledged	$1,628.50
Sam Miller	10.00
Sam Joseloff, New Rochelle	10.00
Louis Uffner, New Rochelle	10.00
John Wilkins	20.00
J. E. White, New Haven	20.00
E. A. Buckland, Holyoke, Mass.	10.00
Fred. Krafft, Jersey City, N. J.	25.00
G. J. Alcott, Bridgewater, Mass.	25.00
Oscar B. Abbott	50.00
Emile B. Abbott	50.00
Otto Christoph, Buffalo	10.00
Lewis Patterson, Henryville	12.00
Elias M. Metzer	10.00
John F. Handlon	5.00
Carl Classen	20.00
Abraham A Heller	50.00
Samuel Bernstein	25.00
Emil Neppel	25.00
P. Weinstein	25.00
Arbeiter Mannerchor, N.H.	50.00
Samuel Raines	5.00
Otto Segert	10.00
A. Margolies	10.00
I Levin	10.00
George Steinhardt	25.00
B. Merkesit	10.00
Hary Heerlein	10.00
Pledged Tuesday night.
John Ginsberg	10.00
Louis Goldberg	10.00
Samuel S. Raines	10.00
A. W. Josephson	20.00
Lena Rabinowitz	10.00
William Edlin	15.00
Siskind Goldbarth	5.00
R. Cantor	10.00
Wm. Butscher	10.00
Geo. Brown	10.00
Geo. Winkel	5.00
S. Weiss	20.00
Ph Lane	10.00
Albert Dietz	5.00
Hugo Peters	25.00
Joseph Bing	5.00
E. Sif	5.00
S. Graff	5.00
Joseph Wood	25.00
S. Solomon	5.00
August Reible	5.00
John Ratka	10.00
M. M. Bartholomew	20.00
Jos A. Dunne	10.00
A. Sonikin	1.00
M. Pincer	10.00
A. A. Mayell	10.00
A. Schoenberg	5.00
Total	$2,461.50

To which must be added the pledge of F. Schultz: "Ten dollars a month as long as I am able."

Cash Contributions.

The following statement of cash received includes payments on pledges as well as a number of direct cash donations.

Jules Magnette, Newark, N. J.	$10.00
Martin Heusner	5.00
Athilde Weil, Philadelphia	25.00
Dr Julius Halpern	50.00
Oscar B. Abbott	5.00
Emile B. Abbott	5.00
Henry L. Slobodin	10.00
Angus McDonald	1.00
Otto Christoph	1.00
Carl Classen	2.00
A. A. Heller	5.00
Otto Segert	10.00
S. Pauzer	10.00
S. Goldbarth	5.00
E. Wagner	5.00
A. Halpern	2.00
Wm. Halpern	30.00
Ed. Lowenthal	50.00
E. D. Heligman	5.00
E. Sif	2.00
Jos. Bing	5.00
John Tinsburg	1.00
R. Cantor	1.00
Lena Rabinowitz	1.00
N. S. Reichenthal	2.00
Hugo Peters	1.00
George Brown	5.00
A. A. Mayell	5.00
A. Somkin	1.00
M. M. Bartholomew	1.00
E. Sgranger	1.00
Aug. Reible	5.00
Total	$268.00

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be sent and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York. Communications may be addressed to Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Comrades, the work is begun. Let it be carried on to speedy victory! Forward, all earnest Socialists!

——Carry a few copies of Hanford's "Railroading in the United States" with you, and see that you supply the ticket agents and conductors on the "L" trains and street cars. Ten copies cost a quarter—but better get a dollar's worth at once. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

SEATTLE TO THE FRONT.

Vote of the Socialist Party Trebled in City Election.

Two years ago the Socialost Party put up its first ticket in Seattle, Wash., with A. G. Seibert as candidate for Mayor, and polled 96 votes. Even at that, we had to count in the votes of half sympathetic Populists and Christian Socialists."

Last week the lines were clearly drawn and we polled for our candidate, Comrade Scott, 312 votes. The S. L. P. had 172 and the Populists 98.

Our other candidates on the city and ward tickets ran somewhat ahead of the candidate for Mayor, the highest being the vote cast for McDevitt for Corporation Counsel, 348. In general the vote was "straight" and solid. The The highest S. L. P. vote was 192.

MORE SUPPRESSION.

Attempt to Shut Seattle "Socialist" Out of the Mails.

"Madden's gag" is now to be applied to our valiant little co-worker, the "Socialist" of Seattle, Wash., if the Administration can find any kind of a pretext for it. Our comrades in Washington have been doing splendid work, the "Socialist" is an effective propaganda paper, and the Socialist vote and party membership is growing so rapidly that it is no wonder the Republican Administration begins to be anxious and wishes to stamp out the troublesome agitators.

The Socialist Educational Union, publishers of the paper, have received notice from the Post Office Department to "show cause" why their newspaper mail permit should not be revoked. This notice and their reply are published as campaign documents—and effective ones they should be—in the issue of the "Socialist" for Mar. 2.

IN MASSACHTETTS TOWNS.

In the town election of Amesbury, Mass., last week, Jason Spofford was re-elected as selectman on the Socialist ticket by a vote of 783. Our other two candidates, John Miller and C. S. Wingate, had 270 and 148 respectively. Charles S. Grieves, for assessor, had 125 votes, and Henry Miller and Jeremiah Reardon, for School Committee, 372 and 353 respectively.

At Georgetown, Mass., Dennis C. Hayes, our candidate for Selectman, received 109 votes, just one-third of the number of votes cast in the town election.

In last weeks town election at Milford our candidates for selectmen, C. E. Dewing, W. E. Kemp, and J. Wulf, received 93, 72, and 95 votes respectively. A year ago we had only one candidate, Wulf, who polled 213, but this time the party lines were strictly drawn and what we got is a clear Socialist vote. The "Citizens" nominated a local labor leader against us; but although they carried their ticket this one man was defeated. The union men who supported him are sore. Many of them will be too wise to be caught in that trap again.

"SOCIALISTS DEFEATED."

Under this significant headline the Boston "Globe" prints a dispatch from Barre, Vt., as follows: "The great contest in the city election was for mayor, Charles W. Milcher, candidate of the Citizens' Party, was elected over John Anderson, Socialist, by more than 400 majority.

The figures are not given more definitely and The Worker has no direct information from Barre, but the "Globe" report would seem to indicate that the S. P. made a good showing there.

THE WAY CAPITALISM WORKS.

The "Railway Employees' Journal," commenting on the recent reported raise of 10 per cent. in wages, and 37 per cent. in the price of food stuff, says:

"Gentle readers, if a man came to you every day of his life and handed you $10, not because you did anything to earn it, but just because you were a nice clean man, would you object to giving him back $2 so he could live a little longer?

"Now, suppose that man should manage, in some manner, to scrape together $15 each day and bring it to you, could your heart refuse to give $2.25 a day? If your heart did your brain wouldn't—'that's a cinch,' or else there is a flat wheel in your brain somewhere.

"Furthermore, if you had been selling this good man all the provisions that he required for $1.50 a day, and had lately crowded up the price until he was paying $2 a day for the same provisions, would you not even then be getting the best of the bargain at both ends?

"This may appear to be a 'far-fetched,' vulgar illustration, but as a matter of fact it is not exaggerated in the least, but is a simple presentation of the conditions under which the railway employees of this country are today laboring. Every day they are earning more and more for their employers, and every day the price of living is increasing, so that the actual wages of the railroaders are being shortened from both ends at once."

And the same is true in other trades.

——Hear ye this, all who have discovered the treasures which I am to leave behind me: If I leave behind me [illegible] (above my debts and my books, or what may happen to be due on account of them) you and all mankind bear witness against me that I lived and died a thief and a robber.—John Wesley.

PRINCE'S RECEPTION A FROST.

Massachusetts Legislators Felt Snubbed Instead of Honored.

Socialist Members Congratulated on Having Had No Connection with the Affair—Debate Begun on Carey's Strike Bill —Queer Admission by One of "Labor's Friends."

Prince Henry of Prussia marched up Beacon Hill, bestowed a wintry smile upon the legislators assembled to greet him, and then marched down again. He left behind him a dazed and humiliated lot of men who, ever since this momentous event, have been anathematizing themselves for their servile stupidity in departing from an established custom of the Legislature in order to do honor to His Royal Highness.

It was the first time in the history of the state a convention of the two branches of the Legislature was held to receive an individual, and those responsible for it suffered as they deserved. The reception to Prince Henry at the State House will be memorable for its brevity, the brusqueness of the royal guest, and the chagrin and humiliation of the host. It is the one feature of the Prince's visit to Boston which will be remembered and commented upon when the other features have dwindled into comparative insignificance—and there be those to-day who lay the blame for the occurrence at the door of the two Socialist representatives.

A Dismal Farce.

Everything was arranged to make the State House reception a brilliant event. The common multitude that has the temerity to infest the corridors of the State House on ordinary occasions was excluded. Only the members, their chosen friends, and the state officials were admitted. The sergeant-at-arms and his corps of assistants had drilled and drilled so that they could perform the customary obeisances at the feet of royalty; the members and their friends had decked themselves in their best and looked their very prettiest; the officials had rehearsed their little lines again and again; and the plain people were standing in the slush outside, patiently waiting for the appearance of the royal party. Everybody was rewarded according to their deserts.

After spending a few minutes with the Governor in the executive chamber, the Prince was led in with solemn grandeur to the joint convention. The Sergeant-at-Arms announced him in due form and as he walked into the convention the members arose and applauded. He shook hands with the President and Speaker and sat down. The members sat down. The President then presented "His Royal Highness, Prince Henry of Prussia." His Royal Highness unlimbered himself, bowed stiffly, smiled frigidly, and sat down again. That was all. Everybody waited. The President of the Senate looked at the members; the members gazed at the Prince; then they all looked at each other. Not a sound was heard for two or three minutes. Then the silence was broken by a coarse, rude laugh; the laugh spread and presently an ill-suppressed titter ran about the house. Those in charge of the ceremony blushed guiltily and the Prince looked uncomfortable beneath his royal phlegmatism. After a whispered consultation with the Speaker, the President, and Admiral Evans, the Prince arose again. The members arose also. The Prince walked out of the chamber; the members sat down again. And it was all over.

Socialists Congratulated.

Next morning when Carey and MacCartney appeared at the State House, they were congratulated by their fellow members on their absence the day before. They were told by many that the joke was not on the Socialists, after all, and several members were trying to explain that they did not vote for the other that the two Socialists opposed. Carey and MacCartney have had lots of fun since Thursday commiserating those who were foolish enough to recognize a prince at the expense of their dignity. The greatest disappointment was felt because the Prince did not even make a speech in acknowledgement of the honor paid him by the Legislature holding a joint convention. It was the least that was expected, although it was also expected that he would greet each member personally and give him the glad hand; instead of that he gave them the "frozen mit," so to speak. One of the members said afterwards that the Prince might at least have said "wie gehts."

The bearing of the Prince while in the State House has been generally remarked. At no time did he appear interested and he was plainly ill at ease. He seemed to be in a hurry to get through the visit as soon as possible, and his abrupt departure from Beacon Hill was not at all flattering to those who had made such extensive arrangements to greet him. Of course, it is not known whether the Prince knew the Socialists were absent or not, but if he did not know it might perhaps have reassured him to have been so informed. His failure to make a speech was explained by himself, it is said, as being due to his not making a speech while visiting Congress, but this explanation has been knocked galleywest by the report of his speeches to the Senate and House of the New York Legislature on the day following his visit here.

MacCartney did not appear at the Legislature at all on Thursday, but Carey came because one of his bills was pending from the day before and he wished to attend to it. He left the House, however, immediately upon the entrance of the senators for the joint convention, and he did not appear again. The absence of both Socialists during the Prince's stay was commented upon in the press.

The affair was a complete farce, covered the members of the House with ridicule and, though the Socialists were not present, and therefore could not be cited as responsible for the fact itself, yet there are those who blame them for being accessories before the fact.

Woman Suffrage Debate.

The Wednesday afternoon session of the House was interesting in several ways. The Woman's Suffrage bill was on the calendar and drew a full house, the gallery being especially well filled. The advocates of woman suffrage have met defeat year after year in the Legislature, but they have always reappeared at each session, optimistic and determined. But if the speeches made for woman suffrage were all like those delivered on Wednesday afternoon, one need not wonder why it has been defeated. And yet in the history of the fight for woman suffrage in the Legislature there have been occasions when the cause was adequately represented, and it is written that those occasions were when the two Socialist members have spoken. Carey's speech of three years ago on the question was acknowledged by the woman suffrage leaders, including Mary Livermore herself, to be the most brilliant ever delivered in this state, and last year MacCartney's speech was recognized as the most trenchant utterance on the subject.

Of all the stupid, inane, and vapid arguments ever made in support of any bill, good, bad, or indifferent, they were delivered by the advocates of woman suffrage on Wednesday afternoon. They were of that quality which would hurt rather than help a cause, and it might almost be said that its friends were its chief opponents. Nothing could more strikingly define the difference between the ill-informed advocates of a progressive measure and those who understand the Socialist philosophy and its bearing upon every problem confronting society. It was a pity that the Socialists did not speak, if only in order to retrieve the day for the bill. But, although Carey tried to get the floor several times, he was not recognized and the question was put without either of the Socialists having spoken.

The principal speech for woman suffrage was supposed to be delivered by Mr. Callender of Boston, of whom I have had occasion to write before. Evidently Mr. Callender had his speech prepared, but for some reason forgot his lines at different times, and kept repeating himself over and over again. It must have been a relief to his friends when he sat down. One of the principal points of Callender's argument was contained in the following sentence: "The time will come when you will need the women's vote; that time will be when Labor has awakened to the fact that your protection theory is nine-tenths protection for the manufacturers and one-tenth for the workers; when Labor has realized that your platforms are constructed to deceive, then you will cry for the women's vote to save you from the wrath of Labor." After this surprising admission, from one supposed to be a friend of Labor, that the women's vote could be used to thwart Labor, how could workingmen be expected to become enthusiastic over woman's suffrage.

Carey's Strike Bill.

But this was not the only way in which Mr. Callender distinguished himself that afternoon.

After the woman suffrage bill had been voted down by 137 to 45 only twenty minutes remained before adjournment. Carey's bill, requiring that employers of labor advertising for help during a strike state whether a strike or lockout is in progress, came next. Carey moved that the matter go over until Friday, as he did not wish to make his argument for the bill in sections, and proper consideration could not be given in the short time remaining. Mr. Callender astonished the House by making a short speech which aroused much criticism. He said he had come up to the House the day after Carey opposed the reception to Prince Henry, expecting this bill to come up, but Carey requested that it lie over. He did not think it ought to lie over again, but if Mr. Carey wished it he would consent, but he would remind the House that Mr. Carey had absented himself the day after his objection to Prince Henry for some reason the House could but divine for itself. Anyway, the Committee on Labor, of which he was a member, did not consider this bill very important, and as there were numerous other labor bills the Committee had decided to report unfavorably on this one to give prominence to others. Mr. Callender again said that if it had not been for the inflammatory speech against the visit of Prince Henry which made it disagreeable for the Haverhill member to be present on the day following that speech, the matter might have been disposed of.

Carey replied by asking unanimous consent to withdraw his motion to postpone, on the ground that he refused to accept from the gentleman from Boston (Callender) anything that carried with it a gratuitous insult. Unanimous consent was given, and Carey secured the floor. He said it was no trouble for him to talk until adjournment, and he proceeded to flay Mr. Callender and the Committee on Labor in a characteristic manner. He pointed out that Callender admitted the Committee agreed to kill this bill without considering its merits, while reporting favorably on others. "That is to say, the Committee keeps square with the labor element by reporting favorably on some bills, and by killing bills like this one it keeps itself solid with the other fellows. The Committee seems to take great pleasure in assassinating my bills in order to advance pet measures of committee members or others wishing to pose as labor friends. This bill especially has aroused a unanimity of favorable comment, and next year when the same bill will be introduced Mr. Callender and the Committee will learn what they evidently do not know now about Labor's position on labor measures."

Carey was still talking when the House adjourned, and it was upon this matter that he appeared at the Legislature next morning before Prince Henry's arrival. As there was no opportunity, however, to discuss it on that day, the bill was laid upon the table until a future date.

As an instance of what the Socialists have to contend with in their work of seeking to emancipate Labor, let me relate the following incident: Some time ago Representatives Carey and MacCartney were invited by a committee of Electrical Workers' Union No. 103 of this city to address an open agitation meeting to be held in Faneuil Hall last Thursday night. The meeting was for the purpose of strengthening the organization by attracting new members. On Wednesday night the union held its regular meeting, and the arrangements committee made its report. Objections were made to Carey and MacCartney being the speakers on the ground that they were Socialists and "in politics," and after a lengthy discussion the secretary was instructed to withdraw the invitation, and the committee was also instructed to notify Carey and MacCartney of the fact. The meeting, which had been advertised in the daily papers, with the two Socialists as principal speakers, was held on Thursday night. Frank K. Foster, legislative agent, and Fred. Kneeland, the latter a well known labor leader and a Democrat, were the principal speakers, and as neither of these gentlemen are "in politics," the dignity of the union is preserved. Meanwhile Carey and MacCartney will go on fighting for Labor in the Legislature, despite the indifference and insults offered them by those whose cause they ably and unflinchingly champion.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

THE MAY CONCERT.

A Great Success Assured, But Work Must Be Done.

Arangements are rapidly progressing for the Damrosch concert at Grand Central Palace for the benefit of the Socialist Daily Fund. At last Sunday's meeting in the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, encouraging reports were made and the distribution of tickets begun.

The program is such an excellent one that there will be no difficulty in selling the tickets, for it is not often that people have the opportunity to hear the full Damrosch Symphony orchestra and a chorus of six hundred voices from the People's Choral Union, with the best soloists, all for 25 cents. The work of distributing so large a number of tickets, however, is very heavy and comrades are urgently requested to take hold at once. The tickets are in the hands of H. C. Bowerman, who may be addressed at the W. E. A. Club House, 206 East Eighty-sixth street, or may be seen personally there any Sunday afternoon.

Every comrade who is willing to help in this enterprise is requested to be present at the Club House next Sunday at 3 p. m. This concert can be made a tremendous success and thus give a great impetus to the movement for the daily. Let all do their best.

MISAPPLIED PRAYERS.

Many of our capitalistic Christians are decidedly inconsistent in their prayers. A wealthy man not long since prayed, "O, Lord, make us more like Jesus, that we may fight manfully the battles of the Lord; that we may be a terror to the other nations and be able to whip the world in the name of Christ. Give our armies success and fill us abundantly full of thy love. Bless the great captains of industry who plan and propagate such magnificent enterprises, and may they love all men as they love themselves. Bless the poor and oppressed everywhere and stop the curse of Socialism through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

This reminds one of the prayer of an English clergyman on behalf of Queen Adelaide, the wife of William the Fourth:

"Oh, Lord, save Thy servant, our sovereign lady, the queen; grant that as she grows an old woman she may become a new man; strengthen her with Thy blessing that she may live a pure virgin, bringing forth sons and daughters to the glory of God, and give her grace that she may go forth before her people like a he-goat on a mountain.—Social Democratic Herald.

——Have you a friend who is a railroad worker? Give him a copy of Ben Hanford's "Railroading in the United States," asking him to read it and pass it on. Single copy, 5 cents; 10 or more copies at 2½ cents each. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

LABOR AND THE CHURCH.

To the Catholic Workingmen of the State of New York:

The Catholic church of this state has declared war on the Social Democratic Party. The campaign was opened by a series of three "sermons" on Socialism recently delivered by Archbishop Corrigan; it was followed by a formal ban against the Social Democratic Party solemnly pronounced by Bishop Quigley of Buffalo, and was taken up by many minor dignitaries of the Catholic church, who now continue the crusade against Socialism with a zeal and enthusiasm worthy of a better cause.

This attack was in no way provoked by the Social Democratic Party.

The Social Democratic Party is a purely political party. It represents the common interests of the workingmen, regardless of race, color, or creed, just as the Republican and Democratic parties represent in politics the common interests of the capitalists.

It does not interfere with the religious beliefs or church affiliations of its members or adherents any more than other political parties. It has always refrained from taking any stand on the question of religion in its platform or any other official utterances, and it numbers among its members men and women of all creeds and of no creeds, aye, even a number of Catholic priests.

Why then, did the Reverend Archbishop and the Reverend Bishop and their reverend subordinates single out the Social Democratic Party for their attacks, and what is the real cause of these attacks?

Let us look to the arguments of these gentlemen for an answer to these very cogent questions.

Archbishop Corrigan and Bishop Quigley alike charge Socialism with hostility to religion and with advocating violent measures for the overthrow of the present social system. These charges are unqualifiedly false, and we challenge their authors to quote one phrase from our party platform that would in any way tend to support their accusations. They cannot do it, for Socialism has no concern with religion, and is radically opposed to any violence in politics.

The advocates of violence are not Socialists, but men of the stamp of Bishop Quigley, who openly threatens to deprive Social Democratic workingmen of "the sacraments and ministrations of the church," in other words, to wreak the direst vengeance conceivable to his mind on his political opponents. But if the threat is an all sufficient argument for the Bishop, the Archbishop feels it incumbent on him to take higher grounds, and boldly plunges into a discussion of the philosophy and theory of Socialism.

Socialism is impractical, says he, for Socialism seeks to establish equality of men, and "Providence has made equality impossible."

Socialism seeks to abolish private property, and "Christ has said that every man should respect his neighbor's possessions." "God gave the earth to man to be divided according to natural laws," continues the Reverend philosopher. "Each man has a part—if he can get it!"

His Grace is not exactly original in his arguments. Decades ago, when Socialism was altogether new, and dense ignorance of its aims and principles was quite common, assertions of this kind were sometimes made without provoking public laughter, but these times have long passed.

To-day every one who is more or less interested in the subject, knows that the equality advocated by Socialists is not a physical or mental equality, but merely the equal economic independence of all men.

Or does the Archbishop mean to say, that Providence has created the few millionaires of this country to appropriate and enjoy all the products of the nation's labor and all blessings of civilization, and that it has created the millions of workingmen and workingwomen as a lower order of things, as mere beasts of burden to be exploited and oppressed by the pious capitalists, to succumb in ignorance, misery and starvation and to breed disease, crime, and brutality?

It seems that this is exactly what this servant of the "lowly Nazarene" means, for, argues he, "Christ's views of political economy were in keeping with the ideas upon which present government is based." What a libel on your Providence and what an insult to your Christ, Mr. Archbishop!

And what about that dreaded abolition of private property? "Christ enjoined upon man to respect his neighbor's possessions," say Mr. Corrigan. But who is violating this divine injunction, sir? Is it the Socialist, who seeks to re-establish private property by proclaiming the right of each man to retain the fruit of his labor, or is it the capitalist, who daily appropriates the property created by his neighbor's labor, and amasses immense fortunes by robbing his workingmen and their children of all necessaries? Why not hurl at least one little sermon against these thieving capitalists, your Grace?

And finally the Archbishop finds that Socialism is immoral, and seeks to substitute free love for marriage.

The statement is altogether gratuitous. The Social Democratic Party is not an enemy of the family. And again it is capitalism that is ruthlessly destroying family life. What have your capitalists left of the sanctity of the family, Mr. Corrigan? Do you perhaps find your ideal of family life realized in the homes of the rich, in the three or four cornered arrangements with the mistress and paramour as a regular part of the household, in the vulgar union between the daughter of the "self-made capitalist" and the tottering but titled skeleton, or do you find it in the homes of the poor, with the husband in the factory, the gin mill, or hospital, the wife doing outside work and the children growing up in the slums of the street as a preparatory school for the state prison or house of prostitution?

What family do those wicked Socialists seek to destroy, your Grace?

The reasons assigned by the dignitaries of the Catholic church for their arbitrary interference with the politics of their parishioners are hardly their reasons.

The reverend gentlemen are probably not altogether ignorant of the existence of a political organization known under the name of "Tammany Hall." That organization has for years been corrupting the public morals of the citizen. Under its baneful administration, crime, prostitution, bribery, and blackmail have been flourishing in the city of New York as in no other city on the surface of the globe. Thousands of Catholic workingmen supported and still support that vile organization, and are being contaminated by its moral filth. Why did the Catholic church not pronounce the ban against that organization?

Not so very long ago, scores of poor, defenseless miners, mostly Catholic workingmen, were ruthlessly shot and killed by the hirelings of their employers for revolting against starvation wages and beastly treatment. The Republican government of Pennsylvania justified that dastardly murder. The outrages of the Bull Pen, Croton Dam, and Buffalo, committed on striking workingmen by the Republican and Democratic administration alike, are fresh in the memory of all men. Why did Archbishop Corrigan not make these outrages the subject of any of his sermons? Why did Bishop Quigley not pronounce his ban on them?

Why, we ask again, do they single out the Social Democratic Party?

The answer is plain—the prelates of the Church declare war on the Social Democratic Party, not because they believe it to be a party of unbelievers, but because they know it to be a party of workingmen; not because they believe it to attack family and religion, but because they know it to attack capital, and because they see in the steady growth of Socialism in this country a menace to the privileges and abuses of the class of exploiters.

Capitalists have reduced the formal church of this country to a mere paid guardian of the interests of their class, just as they have reduced to that condition the press and universities of this country. All of these institutions are equally subsidized by the magnates of capital, and the Bishop, the Editor and the Professor are but three different names for Capital's hired advocates to confuse the intellect of the workingman and divert his attention from his class interests.

And as if to remove all doubts as to the real import of that sudden crusade against Socialism, Bishop Quigley and his associates inaugurate a movement for the organization of—Catholic labor unions.

Labor unions organized on religious lines!

Can any workingman conceive of a greater absurdity or monstrosity? Imagine a strike in any trade in which the workingmen of one creed only participate, while the others continue work! How very effective capitalists!

The scheme of Messrs. Quigley, and their followers is transparent. It is, first to workingmen with the idea greedy bosses have a heaven; to rob them, and to keep them from all dangerous criticism of abuses of the capitalist system, as they are likely to hear in the ranks of the Social Democratic Party; and then to divide the working class on religious lines and to cripple their power of resistance, so that the perpetuation of the divine rights of the Money Bag may be assured.

Workingmen, do not be misled by these false "spiritual advisers."

Your bosses did not acquire their millions by heavenly mandate and sanction, but by a very plain mundane system of overworking and underpaying hundreds of their laboring "brethren and neighbors."

Your poverty and misery have nothing to do with "natural laws" and "divine rights," but are simply the result of the greed and cunning of your employers and your own passiveness.

Your duty to yourselves and your children is not to submit to exploitation in humility and meekness, but to assert your rights as human being and the sole producers of all wealth and comforts of civilization.

These rights you can assert by intelligent and well-organized struggle against your exploiters and in no other way. Your employers organize against you into trusts and combinations on national and international scale, regardless of their creeds and church affiliations; and your only hope of salvation from the present economic oppression lies in similar organization. Organize economically by uniting with all workingmen of your craft, regardless of your religious beliefs, and you will be invincible in your trade disputes with your bosses. Organize politically by joining the Social Democratic Party, and you will hasten the end of the present iniquitous and unchristian system of palaces and hovels, orgies and starvation, exploiters and exploited, masters and slaves.

Workingmen, remember, you may be good Catholics and respect the prelates of your Church; but the moment these prelates forsake their own sphere, interfere with your politics, and align themselves with your oppressors, you owe them no respect nor reverence; they become your enemies, and if they force you to choose between them and your class, do not hesitate to declare for your class and its political organization—the Social Democratic Party.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE,
SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY.
64 East Fourth street, New York.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY.
(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)
PUBLISHED WEEKLY
AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,
By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.
P. O. BOX 1512.
Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.
Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.25
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

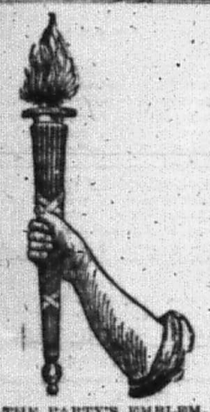
5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.
Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,334
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450



THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

An amusing bit in the reports of the grand dinner given to Prince Henry at the Waldorf is that which relates that, the instant the Prince left the table the waiters "whisked away the fine Venetian glass and Dresden china" before the other distinguished guests should have a chance to steal it. Truly our "upper ten" are a fine lot!

A beautiful illustration of the way in which Socialism stands for practical human brotherhood is found in the ... that the natives of the Dutch ... in the East Indies are raising ... the campaign funds of the ... arty in Holland, because of ... which Comrade Van Kol, So... ember of the Dutch Parlia... has made against the abuses ... upon them by Dutch colonial ... and capitalists.

The atrocities committed by American soldiers in the Philippines are not at all surprising. "War is hell"—always and everywhere, but especially when it is a war of "civilized" people against "barbarians" for commercial advantages. The blame rests on the capitalist system.

The United States government holds that seamen injured or the relatives of seamen killed in the blowing up of the Maine have no just claim for damages. If they had been capitalists whose property had been destroyed, the government would have been ready to go to war again to enforce their claims. But seamen are only wage-workers, and they do not count.

WHAT WE OWE TO THE FOOLS.

One of the most striking teachings of history is that "a ruling class is always a fool class." The attempts of a ruling class to stifle the expression of discontent on the part of the ruled seldom succeed, even in their immediate object, and they always react with doubled force against the rulers.

It was so with Bismarck's "Exception Laws" against the Socialists in Germany; with the Russian Tsar's use of the gallows, the knout, prison and Siberia; with Pope Leo's experiment of Catholic "labor unions" to scab on the bona fide unions in Italy. So it will be with Bishop Quigley's campaign of excommunication, boycott, and rival unions in Buffalo. And so it will be, too, with the attempt of Roosevelt's man, Madden, to exclude the Socialist press from the mails. Madden did not succeed in stopping the "Appeal to Reason." He succeeded in driving "Wilshire's Magazine" to Canada—but he increased its circulation in the United States. He will probably fail in the attack upon the "Socialist" of Seattle—and if he should succeed, the increase of our vote in Seattle at the impending city election and in the next state election in Washington will be a sufficient answer.

We owe much to the sages, the heroes, and the martyrs in Liberty's cause. Perhaps we owe still more to the fools who have tried to defend Fraud and Oppression. If Madden keeps on, he may yet win a place in history, though a dishonorable one, for his master, the strenuous Teddy, if not for himself.

A LESSON ON "HARMONY."

About a year ago there was organized in St. Louis a so-called Public Ownership Party composed of very heterogeneous elements—disappointed Democratic, Populist, and silverite politicians, "reformers" and half-way Socialists who were too "broad" to support the Socialist Party on a working-class platform, a few labor leaders, etc. This, advocating public ownership for the benefit of the middle class of small capitalists, not for the working class, entered the municipal campaign and polled a surprisingly large vote. It succeeded in carrying off their feet a large number of men who had for the first time voted a straight Socialist ticket at the preceding national election, so that our vote in St. Louis was materially reduced.

All the critics of class-conscious proletarian Socialism were jubilant. They pointed to the sudden rise of the P. O. P. as an indication of the wisdom of what they called "practical Socialism" and the folly of those who insisted on basing their political movement on the class struggle between Labor and Capital. They predicted rapid growth of the P. O. P. and the speedy downfall of the Socialist Party. Some of our comrades were discouraged, but only for a short time; soon they all put their shoulders again to the wheel and recommenced the year 'round campaign of education and organization. The results became evident within a few weeks. Some of the best men in the rank and file of the P. O. P., finding that they had been deceived by their leaders, came over to our party. The membership of Local St. Louis of the Socialist Party has steadily increased; and at the same time our influence in the local trade union movement, founded solely on activity and faithfulness to the cause of Labor, has grown from day to day.

Meanwhile, the P. O. P., which began to show its weakness immediately after the election, has steadily disintegrated. Its discordant elements had been held together during the campaign by the hope of speedy victory—the leaders by the hope of a distribution of spoils, the rank and file by the hope of some immediate, though only partial, reforms. Failing of actual victory at the polls, even the large vote which had been gained (which would have been a source of renewed determination and enthusiasm in a revolutionary party) was not enough to hold them together. The clash of discordant ideas and, still more, the clash of personal interests began to tear the party asunder. It is now clearly divided into two factions, bitterly fighting each other, and accusing each other of all manner of political trickery and corruption (most of the accusations on both sides being true)—and harmony does not reign even inside either of the factions. The latest news of the affair comes in the following paragraph from the "St. Louis Labor," our party organ:

"The Chambers faction of the Public Ownership Party is to start a weekly paper. We may now rest easy; they will so effectually show each other up that all we will have to do will be to sit back and tell about it. Let the Socialists of St. Louis take fresh hold and go after the common enemy; the 'factions' will take care of themselves this campaign and they can be trusted to play into our hands. A half-baked, unsteady, uncertain, Republican money, Bill Phelps organization of that sort is the very best means through which the working class is beginning to realize its position in the political field, and its necessity for concerted class-conscious action for the overthrow of capitalism. Roll up a good vote next fall, boys, and the next time we will make their hair stand on end."

This is the unvarying and inevitable fate of "reform parties" and "labor parties" that are not founded upon clearly defined principle and on a fearless recognition of the class struggle. The attempt to harmonize discordant elements by compromising a part of their varying principles and concealing the real facts at the bottom of our social problems can end only in disappointment, disruption, mutual recriminations, and ignominious failure. So long as the Socialist Party is true to its traditions, it has nothing to fear from such parties. Its growth may be a slow one for years to come; but it will be a real and healthy growth, and our work will gradually prepare the minds of men for the time when, perhaps with lightning-like swiftness, the great social change will at last come.

TO MASSACHUSETTS COMRADES.

Comrade Mailly's reports of the activity of our two Socialist legislators in Massachusetts and of other news of the movement in the Bay State have attracted much attention throughout the country, as they certainly deserve to do. We now have a suggestion to make to our many readers in Massachusetts—and readers elsewhere are not debarred from considering it.

It is of the highest importance, comrades in Massachusetts, to let your fellow workingmen know what your Socialist representatives are doing, to arouse their interest and show them the wisdom of sending other men next fall to second the effort of Carey and MacCartney at the State House. They get no adequate idea of the facts from the capitalist press. It is only through Comrade Mailly's reports that they get this news.

Furthermore, you have in your state a large body of sympathizers, who vote the Socialist ticket, wholly or in part, more or less regularly, but who take no active part in the movement. This is evident from a consideration of state and local election returns. It is necessary to the success of the movement that you should educate these sympathizers more thoroughly upon Socialist principles, so that they will vote straight every time, and that you should enlist their active help in teaching those principles to the rest of the people.

Under present circumstances—and especially in view of the regular appearance of Comrade Mailly's valuable correspondence—there is no better agency, whether for educating your sympathizers in the state or for stirring them up to activity, than that of The Worker.

At the present time a large proportion of the enrolled party members, even, are not subscribers to any party paper. This is a most unfortunate state of affairs. On the one hand, the party press, which is generally recognized as a valuable propaganda agent, needs liberal support in order to do its work well. On the other hand, the party members need the party press to keep them informed on all phases of the movement and to equip them with facts and arguments for their personal work for the cause. If the comrades in Massachusetts will see to it, first, that every party member subscribes, if not for the Worker, for some other party paper; and second, that every subscriber becomes an active agent for extending the circulation of our press—if they do this, they may be sure of a great improvement both in numerical stage and the activity of the organization and a rapid increase in the straight vote in their state.

Comrades of Massachusetts what will you do?

The Board of Education called for a little over $5,000,000 for new school houses to be built this year. The amount asked for is not a dollar too much to supply the pressing needs of the school population. We shall see what the Board of Estimate does with it.

WORK AND WAGES IN NORTH CAROLINA

The report of the United States Census Bureau on the manufacturing industries of North Carolina shows that in 1880 the average total yearly product per workman (factory value) was $1,407; in 1900 it had risen to $1,529. At the same time that the productiveness of labor was thus increased, the wages of the workers were being reduced. In 1890 the average yearly wages were $340.74; in 1900 they were but $303.60.

The increase in the productiveness of labor results partly from the introduction of improved machinery. This also enabled the employers to discharge a part of their men or lay them off a part of the time, thus increasing the number of unemployed men competing for jobs. This increased competition of workers, in turn, enabled the capitalists both to reduce the wages of those employed and to drive them harder, making them tend more machines or machines run at higher speed.

If the machines and other means of production, were held as collective property to be used for the public good, as the Socialists advocate, the result of such inventions would be either to reduce the length and intensity of the workers' tasks or to give the workers a better living, or both—just the reverse of its effect under private ownership and operation for profit, where the whole advantage goes to the capitalist class.

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

The party which this paper represents is known nationally as the Socialist Party, and such is its designation in most of the states. In New York, however, it keeps the former name of Social Democratic Party, for reasons concerning the election laws. It has no connection with the Socialist Labor Party and does not approve of the "union smashing" tactics or the abusive methods used by that party. The Socialist—or Social Democratic—Party works in harmony with the trade unions, though without any organic connection. It holds itself free to criticise their policy when necessary, but it approves of the principle of trade unionism. It does not attempt to dictate to the unions nor is it dictated to by them. It calls upon all workingmen to join the unions of their respective trades as a means of fighting the daily battle against the capitalist class and to join and work and vote for the Socialist Party as a means of putting an end to capitalism.

CLASS FEELING.

Prof. Walker A. Wyckoff has an article in the "Churchman" on "The Attitude of Wage Earners to the Church." What Mr. Wyckoff says may be condensed into two statements. First, the wage earners of America have a distinct class feeling. Second, the church is regarded by the wage earners in general as an organ of their opponents.

With regard to class feeling, Mr. Wyckoff adduces his experience as a day laborer. "During the eighteen months," he says, "which, ten years ago, I spent as a day laborer among wage earners, I received no impression stronger than those that resulted from class feeling."—Social Democratic Herald.

THE WORK OF THE CHURCH.

An Original Document That Needs Little Comment.

Socialists are sometimes accused of attacking religion, because they point out that, in a large and increasing number of cases, the churches, instead of helping the workingmen in the struggle against the capitalists, instead of even remaining neutral, actually devote their efforts, in many different lines, to the task of making the workers contented slaves.

The churchmen can hardly complain, however, if we simply present one of their own documents and ask our workingmen readers to draw their own conclusions.

The document in question is a circular letter from the Hawaiian Evangelical Association, appealing to the capitalists for money to carry on missionary work in the Hawaiian Islands. The wretched condition of the plantation workers in those islands is well known. The circular, which we reprint from the San Francisco "Advance" is as follows—verbatim et literation, headlines and all:

"We are making an appeal to the business men of Hawaii in behalf of the Hawaiian Evangelical Association.

"We are addressing you as business men without special regard to the spiritual motives (which some may lack) for giving us a contribution, but rather because we believe we are conducting a work from which you are deriving a financial benefit every day, and which, therefore, you will be glad to support with a liberal contribution.

"We, therefore, describe in business terms what we believe an investment in our work will do for you. For instance, such an investment is, we think "A Cane Loader.

"You know how hard it is to get cane loading done; you know what trouble often comes of it—what threatenings and strikes.

"Well, the money you put into the work of the Hawaiian Evangelical Association sends pacifiers in the persons of our missionaries to keep men peaceful, sober, and willing to work. Indeed, our work is for you, for it prevents fires in men's hearts and so prevents them in the cane crop. Our servants have done much to decrease the risk of fires in the cane during the past year, as you well know, and will do it again, but ought you not to pay good round premium for this insurance? For whether you are directly connected with the sugar business or not, you know that the weal of the islands is at present bound up in that great interest.

"An Insurance Policy

"It's a Supreme Court Injunction.

"Yes, it stops strikes better than the law can. How many times you have seen men flocking into town because of some grievance or other; yes, and you have seen them pick up their duds and run from one plantation to another, sowing seeds of discord and strife. Our agents with the Gospel, work better than the law can. The law costs you money when you invoke it. Why shouldn't you contribute liberally toward this work of the Hawaiian Evangelical Association by which you so manifestly profit?

"It's a Warming-Pan.

"In early days people used to send them here, 'around the Horn,' probably because they didn't need them at home. Who would ever suppose they would be useful here? Missionaries found use for them, however, and curiously enough, it was in the sugar business, too.

"Just now ours is especially in demand. Cold waves do come in the tropics. One is being left here now. Weather Bureau reports read like this: 'Sugar barometer rapidly falling with slightly heightened labor market. Indications of light snow.' The cold seems to have struck the lower extremities of our humanity. What is needed is warmth, confidence, better circulation. This is part of the business of the Hawaiian Board. Its agents are at work on the whole system. Why not help pay for the 'warming pan?'

"It's a Sleeping Potion.

"'Doctor, I can't sleep; gloomy forebodings in regard to the future of the islands, the labor problem, my attitude toward it, etc., rob me of rest continually.' The doctor's query was: 'Own plantation stock, do you?' and his prescription was: 'Get the best aid you can, do what is right yourself, and let God run His universe.' This started the cure, for the first thing he did was to back the hundred or more workers of the Hawaiian Board by an annual subscription on behalf of every member of his family; for one reason, he knew the Japanese and Chinese agents of the Board were doing something practical in the labor matter; were all the time allaying dissatisfaction among laborers on the plantations.

"Of course he sleeps better, and the subscription to the Board was the sleeping potion.

"It's an Umbrella.

"No, it doesn't rain to-day, but people generally have an umbrella handy.

"Think of the enormous returns that come from our sugar plantations. Does not this mean that labor has produced a great deal of wealth for owners of sugar stock, and it is but fair that the educational and religious work done by the Hawaiian Evangelical Association should be heartily supported, as being the best return we can make labor for its work in our behalf?

"These people, it is true, have not yet vigorously demanded these privileges; but they will some day, and when they do it may rain, especially if they think we have been defrauding them of what was their just due at our hands. Better pay for a good umbrella now, do you not think so, in the shape of a liberal annual subscription to the work of the Hawaiian Board?

"It's Seed.

"The laborers in these islands have growing children and the work of the Hawaiian Board among them is seed planted where it will spring up to make good citizens. Better buy a bushel or two of this sort of seed, looking toward the permanency of your business, don't you think so? By the way, what would these islands be but for past missionary labor?

"Finally

"It's a Safe

investment. Look at the character of the men who are the directors and trustees of this work. Is not this a guarantee that any investment you may make in the work will be wisely and carefully administered?

"Kindly send your contributions, therefore, and realize all these facts of value to you at once.

"Hawaiian Evangelical Association:
"Hon. J. P. Atherton, Pres.
"Hon. Henry Waterhouse, V.-Pres.
"Rev. O. P. Emerson, Cor. Sec.
"Rev. J. Keedinghain, Rec. Sec.
"Theo. Richards, Treasurer.
"F. J. Lowrey, Auditor."

We add only the comment of the Los Angeles "Socialist," in which we fully concur:

"We lay this documentary evidence before the wage-workers for their consideration. What does it prove? This: That the class interest of the rich, the capitalist, the employer, controls the government, the schools and the churches. Why? Because, as a rule, the preachers, teachers, and public officials have been chosen, elected, by the capitalists and depend upon them for their support. Power, today, is in the hands of the few, the rich, and power the working class will never get until it organizes into one class-conscious body and takes possession, by the ballot, if possible, of all the means of production and distribution."

FINNEGAN'S CIGAR STORE.

The usual gang was gathered around the stove in Finnegan's little cigar store "just around the corner."

"McSweeny was in here to-day," said Finnegan, as he passed out a cheroot to the grocery clerk. "He has been working in the city all summer, you know."

"What did Mac have to say for himself, anyhow?" asked the station agent, who had just come in and took his place alongside of the insurance agent.

"Oh, a little of everything. Who do you 'spose he says he met in one of those basement dives on Clark street?"

"Anyone that we know?" queried the insurance agent.

"Yep, everyone of you know'd her. Used to live here. Finer girl never lived than pretty Nellie Brown."

"What are you giving us," said the station agent, "McSweeney's a liar by the clock if he says that."

"Well, here he comes. Just you fellows ask him for the story."

After the usual greetings McSweeney was asked to corroborate Finnegan's rather startling statement.

"Well, fellows," said Mac, "I don't blame you for not believing it. I wouldn't have believed it myself if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes. One night this summer I was taking a little stroll along Clark street and as it was dreadful hot I turned into one of those basement places to get a glass of beer. You fellows have been in 'em, you know what they are. Full of girls working the customers for drinks, etc. Well, I ordered my beer and sat down to a table by myself, and, while waiting for the waiter to get back with my schooner, I sized up the crowd. Who should I see, sitting not three tables away from me, but Nellie Brown drinking beer and having a h—of a time with a lot of stockmen. I haven't seen her since she was a little girl, but I knew her the minute I set my eyes on her. It kinder startled me at first and I couldn't make up my mind that it was her. Why, when old Brown sold out here and moved to the city to go into business he was worth fully ten thousand dollars."

"Yes, make it twenty thousand," interrupted Finnegan.

"Well, maybe it was. Anyway he was well heeled. Well, I just made up my mind I'd get next to her and find out what it all meant. The stockmen went out in about a half hour and I got up and went over to where Nellie was sitting. 'I'm awful dry,' she says, without hardly looking at me. 'What are you doing here, Nellie Brown,' I said? My! how she jumped and turned kinder red, at least I thought she did. She was painted up so it was hard to tell.

"'My name isn't Nellie and it ain't Brown,' she said kind o' leely and started to get up. 'You sit right where you are,' I said, 'I am not going to hurt you, but you are Nellie Brown just the same, and you might as well tell me the story and be done with it.' We fenced back and forth that way for awhile and she finally gave up and told me her story. It seems that her mother died shortly after they moved to the city and her father busted up in business about two years ago. He was running quite a retail establishment over on the West Side somewhere, but the big department stores knocked him out. The old man only lived a few months after he failed in business. Just naturally faded away, Nellie said. That left Nellie all alone with not over ten dollars in cash to her name after the funeral expenses were paid.

"Well, Nellie hustled around and finally got a job in one of the big department stores at $4 per week. Sixty cents of that went for car fare, $3 for board and room, that left her forty cents to buy clothes, etc. What do you think of it, boys? On the dead, what do you think of it? As for me, I don't blame her for jumping at the chance when some four-eyed dude offered to pay her board and buy her clothes in exchange for her 'friendship.' Nellie tells me that over one-half of the girls start out that way—they make an honest living as long as they can, then go 'on the street.'"

"There ought to be a law again those big department stores," said the dentist.

"How would it do for the people to own them?" suggested the station agent. "The two or three millions that now go to the owners would still go to the owners, but the owners would be the people—the ones that buy the goods and the ones that sells them. Just you fellows put that in your pipe and smoke it. I'm going home."—E. N. Richardson, in Appeal to Reason.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

LITTLE FORAYS OF A FREE LANCE.

BY FRANK STUHLMAR.

"I am not here to tell fairy-tales or pastorals."—Edgar Saltus.

Judging from the article, "Three Months of President Roosevelt," in the February "Atlantic," Henry Loomis Nelson seems to be in the lead for the office of chief flunkey for the administration in the field of literature. A more disgusting piece of fulsome adulation has seldom found its way into the pages of a high-grade magazine. Some of the little stories told reminds the reader of the G. W. hatchet fable foisted upon the guileless public by the veracious Parson Weems. The unpardonable boorishness and arrogant display of authority toward General Miles is made a theme for extravagant laudation. In the building up, by the President, of a well-oiled machine of his own, the ingenuous Mr. Nelson can only see a desire to serve the public by putting the best men in office. OF COURSE, enthusiastic Roosevelt admirers are the "salt of the earth," and to appoint them to a place at, what is known in slang parlance, as the "pie-counter" is the survival of the fittest. This reminds me of the position of a former mayor of Chicago in interpretating the civil service principle to which he was pledged. The logical gentleman reasoned like this: "The best man should have the offices. The best men are all Democrats. Consequently, the Republicans must go." And they went. When it comes to the spoils there is not much difference between a bold, bad Democrat and a strenuous representative of the party of moral ideas and culture. Anyway, to return to Mr. Nelson, we hope he will receive an appointment. A man who will put such a strain upon his conscience, as this article must have imposed, ought to have something.

* * *

It is a matter of regret that a magazine, with the traditions of the "Atlantic" and an average of literary merit far above its rivals, should be conducted in a soulless and supercilious manner toward reform ideas and movements. A recent issue contains a review of Scudder's "Life of Lowell," presumably by the editor as the article is unsigned. This contribution by its laissez faire attitude, which, also, permeate the entire publication, renders Prof. Perry unfit, ethically, to hold the chair that has been occupied by Lowell and Howells. He rejoices that Lowell, in spite of certain deplorable radical tendencies, did not "degrade his art" completely by actually joining the Abolitionists. These rude agitators were not ultra-refined enough to meet the approval of the aesthetic editor of the "Atlantic." They really believed that endeavor for right was of more importance than writing vacuous, inane fiction and bloodless criticisms with polished phrases and nothing else worth consideration, after the manner of Bliss Perry.

This is no new position of the dilettante school of non-thinkers. We have heard wails of regret over the downfall of Wendell Phillips because he so forgot his position as to consort with Socialists and threw his mighty intellect on the side of the Brotherhood of Man and the rights of the toiler. They express deep sorrow that Whittier should have wasted his talents in making his genius a weapon of reform instead of writing superficial verse to please lunatical critics who prate of "art in literature." Great was the grief of the cultured "molly-coddles" that grand old William Morris should write "Chants for Socialists," and demean himself by distributing their literature at street corners, rather than remain an "idle singer of an empty day" as he termed himself in the days before the soul's awakening came.

But when were the true poems—the ones that stir the heart and uplift the soul—written? Some of Lowell's poems have no superior in all literature. Who can ever forget that ringing protest against evil in "The Present Crisis," with its splendid faith that though wrong prevail it is but for a day for "Standeth God within the shadow ever watching for his own;" or that keen thrust at a pseudo Christian church and civilization in "A Parable?" I pity the person who can read that wonderful poem of sympathy and tenderness and unapproachable beauty, "The Vision of Sir Launfal," without a spiritual uplift. All these were written in the "storm and and stress" period. Then followed the "Bigelow Papers," the humor but a cover for the bitter irony that pierced every joint in the armor of the Imperialists (which, by the way, are not a new creation, but old as human greed) of his day; and Lowell's life work was ended. He became respectable and a score of pages would contain every vital line written in the long period till his death. His fame is secure, but it rests upon his early poems—the songs of revolt.

And Whittier, did he value his more finished verse of later years above all? I think not. For his plea for himself was this, that

"My voice, tho' not the loudest, was always raised in Freedom cause."

The work he cherished was the battle hymns of liberty with which the fire-hearted Quaker moved the souls of men.

What William Morris did for Socialism will endure longer than the marvelous sweetness of verse and art of construction of "The Earthly Paradise" and the "Defense of Guenevere." The poet is not greatest when he strives for faultless but soulless art. Only does he reach grandeur when he fulfils his true mission of a prophet of the Truth—the Right—the Cause; and the Ideal of his perfection is not men's praise, but service in the cause of man, which is, also, the cause of God.

* * *

The Fugitive Slave law has, until now, had the distinction of being America's most infamous public document; but the Sedition Laws adopted by the Philippine Commission is its twin brother. The Czar of Russia or the Sultan of Turkey never issued a more tyrannical edict. George of England imposed no such bitter affront to a people's sense of justice as this offensive code. It bodes ill for America's future that the majority of its people acquiesce in silent unconcern at this infringement of civil rights. The late John Fiske observed in his "American Revolution," written long before we had blossomed into a "World Power," that the downfall of all nations began in the misgovernment of their colonies and dependencies. A fact easily proven. If we, as a nation, permit the practise of injustice and ruthless disregard of right toward a weaker people, it will not be long before the engines of oppression will be turned against the producers at home. Evil done to others always recoils upon those by whom evil came. This is the mighty, unswerving law of cause and effect—the inevitable. As true to-day as ages ago are the words, "The wages of sin is death."

This nation cannot dodge responsibility. As units we may say: "I did not help to do this wrong. The men in control of the nation brought this about, and I protested to the extent of my power."

And as individuals great numbers of the people are free from the blood-guilt that stains us as a nation. But when Nemesis hovers over the nation returning, jot and tittle, the woe meted to others, as it surely will, the innocent will suffer with the guilty. Retribution, like nature, never spares the individual. This is not a dream but a stern truth written upon the pages of wast Emerson called the only true Bible, "the Book of Universal History."

* * *

That strenuous warrior, General Funston, has been denying charges made of cruel treatment of the Filipinos by American soldiers. With a war-whoop and brandishing a verbal tomahawk, a la Roosevelt, he denounced everybody making such charges as liars, traitors, drunkards, and other choice assorted epithets. After proclaiming at the top of his voice that the practises charged never occurred, he winds up with the remarkable anti-climax, as Associated Press reports him that anyway: "The cases have been few and far between, scattered infrequently over a great area of country during three years of conflict, among thousands of troops."

It is curious, but no champion of the administration since the miserable and unholy war commenced has attempted to refute grave charges made against the methods employed in the Philippines, without virtually admitting the very things he started out to deny.

Moral: In the service of the administration are many cheerful liars but very few competent ones.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

The "Comrade" for March is especially, though not exclusively, a Commune number—containing various articles, poems, and pictures relating to the great uprising of the proletariat of Paris in 1871. Tolstoy's story, "Forty Years," and the reprint of Morris' "News from Nowhere," with illustrations by Jentsch, are continued, and John Spargo's article on Ferdinand Freiligrath, the German revolutionary poet, is finished in this number; the latter is supplemented by a biographical note and portrait of Ernest Jones, the English Chartist and translator of Freiligrath, and by his rendition of the splendid poem, "The Revolution." We must call especial attention to "The Slave of a Slave," a very short and very strong sketch by Amy Wellington, and also to a series of three cartoons from "L'Assiette au Beurre," illustrating Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity. Other features are four original poems—"The Dream and the Dedication," by Paul Shivell; "When Equity Shall Rule," by Robert T. Whitelaw; "Purse and Soul," by "Hebe," and "Lady Leisure," by Wilbie Thayer—and "An Every Day Story," by William Mailly.

This number completes the first half year of the "Comrade" and it certainly deserves our good wishes for the years to come. For the April number, the publishers announce the first of a series under the title "How I Became a Socialist," by well known American Socialists and an article by Leonard D. Abbott on the work and influence of the Russian painter, Verestchagin.

The office of the "Comrade" has been removed to 11 Cooper Square, New York City, increase of the business requiring larger quarters. Price, single copy, 10 cents; yearly subscription, $1.

The March "Arena" contains two symposia—one on the Cuban question, F. B. Thurber writing on "Reciprocity" and L. V. de Abad addressing a "Plea for Justice" to the American people—and one on the immigration question, in which John Chetwood argues for total suspension and Rev. R. C. Bryant opposes even the re-enactment of the Chinese Exclusion Law. Rev. F. D. Bentley discusses "The Survival of the Fittest in the Coming Age." The leading article of this issue is one on "Experiments in Colonial Government," by Felix L. Oswald. Among other contributions are: "Labor's Rights and Wrongs," by W. S. Waudby; "The Ostrich in the New World," by B. O. Flower; "Literature and Democracy," by Joseph Dana Miller; "American Supremacy," by A. B. Deohofe; "Marriage and Dress," by H. W. Francis; an interview with Prof. Frank Parsons on public ownership of the telephones, and an entertaining psychological story, "An Unreal Reality," by Laura M. Dake.

AND HE IS NOT IN PRISON.

George W. Vanderbilt obtained a reduction of his personal tax assessment from $2,000,000 to $10,000. He had the sublime nerve to swear that ten thousand covered the value of his taxable personal estate and the "reformers" will not try to send him up for perjury. The amount of taxes which they allow this one man to dodge in this one year would provide and equip school rooms for five hundred of the workingmen's children now deprived of their rightful opportunity for education. The "reformers" are keeping faith—as we said they would—with their real backers and masters, the capitalist class. With Social Democrats in office, responsible only to the working class, Vanderbilt and his like would pay up their taxes, without a murmur—lest some worse thing befel them. What are you going to do about it?

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

North American.

Some impractical enthusiast printed the Declaration of Independence in Spanish, and attempted to circulate it in Luzon, but it was promptly suppressed as a "damned incendiary document" by the military authorities and proclamations of concentration and "rigid starvation" were issued to counteract its mischievous influence.

How long will it be before the American charter of human rights, already declared obsolete by some imperial statesmen, will be regarded as evidence of treasonable designs when found in an American citizen's possession? Shall it be so amended as to read: "Some men are born free and equal, and others are born on desirable islands?"

Chicago Tribune.

The tendency toward the estrangement of those who have little from those who have much is as old as humanity. But this tendency is not what is meant by the moderns when they say "class feeling." "Class feeling" now implies the division of society into two parts, the arraying of the capitalists against the proletariat, and the consciousness on the part of those persons who form the proletariat that they are members one of another and that they are bound together against a common antagonist.

If wage earners really feel that they are a distinct class with rights to enforce and enemies to overcome they are exceedingly slow in taking united action.

Editor and Publisher.

The trust magnates are taking a great deal of interest in the newspaper business now. John W. Gates, the steel magnate, is said to have furnished the capital with which George W. Hinman purchased the Chicago "Inter-Ocean." Senator W. A. Clark owns six of the leading newspapers of Montana. James J. Hill, the most prominent railroad figure in the central west, is the proprietor of the St. Paul "Globe," and owns a controlling interest in the "Pioneer Press" and the Minneapolis "Tribune," and holds a $300,000 mortgage on the "Post-Intelligencer" of Seattle. It is said that he also owns a controlling interest in the majority of the papers along the line of his railroad.

Boston Transcript.

If we were to believe Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, current jests about the perpetual weariness of the tramp frequently hide a deeper meaning than most people suspect. She finds that many persons slip into tramp life through physical and moral exhaustion, resulting from overwork in childhood. In a recent address on this subject before the Chicago Business Women's Club, Miss Addams said: "Child labor undertaken too early or performed in excess is responsible for a large number of the tramps and ambitionless wayfarers of America. The boy or girl who works too early is surfeited with labor, bankrupt of ambition long before the time when work should begin at all."

The belief that trampdom often is recruited from the ranks of youthful toilers who have been overcome by an intense and terrible physical and moral fatigue because they overtaxed their strength is not new, but so far it has hardly been made the subject of careful investigation. At Hull House those facts have been observed for a number of years, and data are being collected. "We notice," says Miss Addams, "that the child workers, who were bright and eager and ambitious when commencing work some six or seven years ago, are different nowadays. Nearly all of them are dull and lifeless, lacking energy and without ambition. Many are actual tramps."

Milwaukee News.

Rockefeller, Morgan, and nine other multi-millionaires will give a breakfast party to Prince Henry when he arrives at New York. This will be the most gratifying feature of the prince's visit, as it will bring the rulers of two great people in friendly contact and should serve to place an unbreakable link in the chain that binds.

LOS ANGELES' CAMPAIGN AGAINST CHILD LABOR.

Unionists and Socialists of Los Angeles, Cal., are working together to enforce the law against child labor. The latest news is that a warrant is out for the manager of one of the big department stores, where little boys and girls were compelled to work from ten and a half to fourteen hours a day. The Los Angeles "Socialist" remarks: "True, Hamburger is not the only 'merchant prince' in Los Angeles who loathes 'moving the world on a child's heart.' There are many others, but in Hamburger's can be found the greatest number of little tots, and therefore it is most fitting that his store should receive our first attention. With 13,000 children in the city of Los Angeles not attending school and child labor more sought after than ever before, it would seem to be time to prove who really owns these children, Hamburger et al. or their parents."

A few true workingmen, elected on a Socialist platform to the offices of Mayor, District Attorney, Police Justice, and the like, with no obligations to the capitalists, would soon put a stop to this shameful state of affairs.

BOSTON COMMUNE CELEBRATION.

The thirty-first anniversary of the Paris Commune will be celebrated in Boston by an entertainment and lecture given by the city committee at America Hall, 724 Washington street, on Tuesday, Mar. 18, at 8 p. m. A short musical program has been arranged, and John Spargo of New York will lecture on "The Paris Commune and Its Lessons." Admission to defray expenses, 10 cents. Readers of The Worker in Boston and vicinity are urged to attend and make the affair a complete success. They will hear an able lecture on a fascinating subject.

Captains of industry hold nothing sacred but money. To make money they sacrifice the lives of men, the virtue of women, and the happiness and innocence of children.—The New Era.

FOR CONGRESS OF AMSTERDAM.

Call from International Bureau to All Socialist and Trade Organizations.

Comrades:—The International Socialist Bureau, in its conference (Brussels, the 30th of December, 1901), has entrusted us with the duty of sending you an invitation to the next International Congress, which will be held in August, 1903, in Amsterdam.

In agreement with our Dutch comrades, we are, from this very moment, preparing the organization of our sixth Congress, so that it may be worthy of the still growing power of the International Social Democracy and worthy of the ever more important part that it has to play in the life of the world.

We beg you to put the question of participation before your organization at its next meeting or at your next congress; we beg you at the same time to examine the points, which in your opinion, ought to be discussed by the Congress in Amsterdam.

Be so kind as to send us the text of your proposals before the first of November this year. You will have to hand us in due time a report on each of them.

According to the resolutions taken by the International Bureau the 30th of December, we recall the resolutions taken at the London Congress (1896), completed by the conference at Brussels (1899) and confirmed by the Paris Congress (1900), admitting at the International Socialist Congresses:

LONDON, 1896.

"1. The representatives of those organisations which seek to substitute Socialist property and production for capitalist property and production, and who consider legislative and parliamentary action as one of the necessary means of attaining that end.

"2. Purely trade organizations which, though taking no militant part in politics, declare that they recognize the necessity of legislative and parliamentary action; consequently Anarchists are excluded."

BRUSSELS, 1899.

"1. All organizations which agree with the principles of Socialism; Socialisation of the means of production and exchange; international union and action of workingmen; Socialist conquest of the public powers by the proletarians organized as a class party:

"2. All trade organizations, which, considering our fight as a class struggle, and recognizing the necessity of political action, consequently legislative and parliamentary, nevertheless do not directly take part in the political movement."

We will send you, after the first of November: First, the provisory list of the points to be discussed at the Congress; Second, the measures taken by our Dutch comrades and by ourselves to secure the success of the international meeting of the organized workers and the Socialist Party.

Please write to the International Secretary, Comrade Victor Serwy, Maison du Peuple, rue Joseph Stevens, Brussels.

THE SECRETARIAT,
VICTOR SERWY,
Secretary.
ED. ANSEELE,
E. VANDERVELDE,
Members.

Brussels, Belgium, Jan. 31, 1902.

CROSBY-HARRIMAN DEBATE ARRANGED.

The debate between John S. Crosby and Job Harriman on the respective merits of the Single Tax and of Socialism in relation to the interests of the working class, which was held before the Socialist Propaganda Club of Brooklyn about a month ago, was so well attended and aroused so much interest that both speakers have consented to repeat the debate where a larger audience can be accommodated. Arrangements have finally been completed to hold the debate in Cooper Union on Friday evening, April 11.

The statement of the question as agreed upon by the debaters, is as follows:

"Resolved, That the interests of the working class would be better conserved under a Socialist state—that is, under the public ownership of productive capital, where all the industries would be conducted by the government—than under a state where the principles of the Single Tax were enforced—that is, where land values would be taken by the state for public expenses, and all industries except public utilities would be left to private ownership and control; a public utility being any necessary service that cannot be performed without special aid or permission of the state, or any necessary enterprise that cannot be conducted without exercise of the right of eminent domain or the grant of some privileges, corporate or other."

This statement, while not altogether satisfactory to Socialists, defines the question clearly enough and all who attend may expect a fair and instructive discussion of the two movements.

COMMUNE FESTIVAL AT ARLINGTON HALL.

The organizations of the Second Agitation District—9th, 10th, 14th, and 16th A. D.—have arranged a grand Commune Festival to be held in Arlington Hall, 19-23 St. Marks Place (Eighth street) on Tuesday evening, Mar. 18.

Courtenay Lemon will be the speaker of the evening, and will discuss "The Merits of the Commune." The principal feature of the entertainment following the lecture will be a one-act play, "Herr und Frau Schwepperman," produced by members of the Dramatic Society Karl Marx. Several musical numbers will be given by well known artists.

The entertainment will begin promptly at 8 p. m., and will be followed by dancing, with music by the Carl Sahm Club. Tickets are 15 cents each and the proceeds will be used for Socialist propaganda.

—Pennsylvania school teachers are organizing for the purpose of securing engagements on merit and of preventing assessments on their salaries for receiving appointments.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emile Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 53 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 309 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. S. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, Tod Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jos. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs. Secretary, Winfield R. Porter, 614 Winthrop Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 N. Baum street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eslaness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. L. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1176, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. W. Quick, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Bleon, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 637, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

MASSACHUSETTS.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Last meeting held Sunday, Mar. 9. Minutes read and approved. Communication from Worcester requesting a date for H. Gaylord Wilshire read and filed and voted to try and arrange tour for Comrade Wilshire. Comrade Goldstein instructed to report services, designs, etc., for charter at next meeting. Communication from Holleton read, considered, and Mailly and Goldstein instructed to prepare answer to same and submit to the committee at next meeting. Communication from National Secretary Greenbaum read and filed. Sherman and Porter elected auditing committee and instructed to issue financial report to date. After transacting other business of an incidental nature, adjourned to meet Thursday, Mar. 20, at 7:30 p. m.

W. F. PORTER,
Secretary.

NEW YORK.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

Regular meeting of the Kings County General Committee was held Saturday, Mar. 8, at the Socialist Club Rooms, Comrade Weil acting as chairman. The Credential Committee reported favorable on credentials of E. Henkler, representing the 13th and 14th A. D., in place of B. Unger, resigned. The same on motion being seated.

Eighteen credentials were proposed and Communication from National Secretary elected by the necessary majority.

Greenbaum, calling attention to the low standing of the national treasury, and also sixteen states were in arreares with dues, was read.

Five dollars was donated, also request made to all subdivisions to assist in liquidating said debt.

Comrade F. S. Buck tendered his resignation as member of the State Committee. Comrade H. W. Passage nominated as his successor.

Mr. Neuer applied for membership, appealing from former action taken by Branch 2, 21st A. D., and General Committee of Local New York. His application was rejected, pending favorable report from Branch 2.

After a lengthy discussion it was instructed to call a meeting to the bid of organized and arrange a borough meeting to discuss a general plan for the welfare of the party.

The Executive Committee was given full power to arrange for a picnic to be held some time in August.

All members holding tickets for the masquerade ball of the Socialist Club held last month are requested to settle for same as soon as possible.

Next meeting of the General Committee will be held Mar. 22 at 7:30 p. m.

WM. KOENIG,
Recording Secretary.

OHIO.

STATE COMMITTEE.

Following are the financial reports of the State Secretary of the Socialist Party for January and February, 1902:

I.—JANUARY.

Receipts.
Bal. on hand Jan. 1	$10.59
Received for dues, supplies and donations:
Local Toledo	11.30
Local Massillon	2.25
Local Bowling Green	.10
Local Portsmouth	5.50
Local Cincinnati	4.00
Local Cleveland	1.65
Local Wauseon	1.47
Local Springfield	2.00
Local Ashtabula	3.70
Local Fremont	2.05
Local Fostoria	1.00
Local Cuyhoga Falls	1.00
Local Youngstown	1.00
Local Warren	2.00
Local Bucryrus	1.40
Local Continental	1.85
Dr. E. L. Rodgers (supplies)	.15
Thos. McKeone (donation)	1.00
Robt. Lenach (literature)	.15
Total	$50.01
Expenditures.
Postage stamps and postals	$0.31
National Committee	17.90
Bradford Company	10.00
Printing Register Company	5.00
F. G. Strickland (services)	2.00
Express charges	.35
Kile & Co. (paper and supplies)	1.20
Hennegin	.10
L. E. Martin (3 sets of books)	3.00
Feb. 1, balance on hand	10.19
Total	$50.01

II.—FEBRUARY.

Receipts.
Balance on hand Feb. 1, 1902	$10.19
Received for dues, supplies and donations:
Local Cincinnati (stamps returned)	20.00
Local Cincinnati	14.55
Local Cincinnati, half deposit on park	5.00
Local Cleveland	2.00
Local Fostoria	1.10
Local Toledo	15.00
Local Canton	1.25
Local Ashtabula	3.50
F. G. Strickland (literature)	1.15
Local Portsmouth	4.40
Local Fremont	2.00
Local Springfield	2.60
Local Warren	2.00
Local Cuyhoga Falls	1.50
Local Wauseon	.70
A. J. Davis, Carlisle (donation)	.50
John Windle, Niles (donation)	.50
F. B. Dunn, Bainbridge (donation)	1.00
W. R. Hunser, Cleveland (donation)	.25
E. M. Stowell, Columbus (donation)	.25
John Shrunen, Cincinnati (donation)	1.00
E. R. DeWolfe, Prairie Depot (donation)	.75
H. E. Fox, Conneaut (donation)	.25
Thos. J. McKeone, Cincinnati (donation)	1.00
Geo. W. Ellsworth, Bowling Green (donation)	.25
Peter Frank, Portsmouth (donation)	.25
John Fuerwaiter, Convoy (donation)	.25
H. W. Forbes, Eagleville (donation)	.25
Ed Gerdner, Dayton (donation)	.10
Geo. Richardson (rebate drayages)	.15
Total	$116.69
Expenditures.
National Committee	$11.65
Wagner Company	8.00
Printing, Reporter Company	6.00
Printing, Brelsford Company	9.25
Deposit on park	10.00
Max S. Hayes (account)	10.00
Express	.40
Telegrams	.70
Money orders	.25
Postals and postals	11.70
Geo. R. Richardson, one large double desk	2.50
One gavel	2.00
One dozen chairs (all S. H.)	3.00
Drayage	.50
Typewriter ribbon	.70
John Chase (agitation)	5.30
C. R. Martin (3 sets books)	3.00
Kile & Co. (paper and supplies)	2.60
Strickland (services)	2.70
Cincinnati Local, credit for dup stamps returned which was charged in as cash money	20.00
Balance on hand, March 1	9.08
Total	$116.69

W. G. CRITCHLOW,
State Secretary.

Dayton, O.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

A Statement of Fact.

Editor The Worker.

In your issue of Mar. 2 I observe a letter from Comrade W. E. White of Connecticut in which, among other things, he says that the National Committee at St. Louis, during the past six months, has arranged tours for speakers by correspondence direct with locals in states where there is a state committee, and that the same has caused a great deal of annoyance in Connecticut at least.

In view of the fact that we sent only one speaker—Comrade Vail into Connecticut since the Unity Convention, his charge cannot have reference to anyone but Vail. He was sent there upon the request of the Connecticut State Committee, contained in a letter written to me in November by State Secretary A. S. Cornelius.

Further I received a letter from State Secretary Cornelius saying, in excuse of his delay in correspondence, that he had waited to get an answer from Comrade White upon the question whether the State Committee should manage the tour or leave the management in our hands, and that Comrade White had advised him to tell the National Committee that the State Committee would prefer that Vail's tour be managed by the State Committee.

We accordingly sent circular letters to the Connecticut locals, and made dates for Vail with about three or six. Having accomplished this, we turned over the entire management of the tour to the State Committee, requesting them to handle it, because the time was very limited and they, being on the ground, could reach the locals quicker than we. The Connecticut State Committee, upon request, took charge of Vail's tour and managed it to the end.

I have hesitated to write this letter, not wishing to magnify the importance of the affair. But I believe that is justice to the National Committee and for the information of the comrades such a statement is necessary.

LEON GREENBAUM.
St. Louis, Mar. 6. National Secretary.

PARTY NOTES.

The 1st, 3rd, and 5th A. D. will meet at Comrade Mayes house, 249 W. Eleventh st., Monday evening, Mar. 17. Every member is expected to attend and sympathizers of the Socialist movement in these districts are invited to come and join forces with the organization.

Mrs. Alex. Fraser will speak at 102 Court street, Brooklyn, Sunday evening, upon the attitude recently taken by prominent Catholic bishops toward Socialism.

At Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue, New York City, on Sunday afternoon, Mar. 16, Courtenay Lemon will speak on "Popular Misconception of Socialism."

The future of the 23d A. D. organization is promising. New members are admitted at nearly every meeting; one of the three received last Friday evening was a woman, one of the lecturers in the Public School course. Two dollars was voted towards the National Propaganda Fund. The headquarters of the organization were moved from 19 Manhattan street to Boeckmann's Hall, One Hundred and Forty-second street and Eighth avenue, a very pleasant and unobjectionable meeting place. The recently organized Harlem Social Democratic Club has united with the regular organization in the 23d A. D., making it stronger in every way.

Courtenay Lemon will lecture on Socialism before the Ad Interim Club of New Rochelle, at Trinity Parish House, on Monday evening, Mar. 17.

A series of lectures, under the auspices of the Socialist Party of West Hudson County, is being given in Ball's Hall, Central and Great avenues, East Newark, N. J., every Sunday afternoon, at 3 p. m. The list of speakers is as follows: Mar. 16, Chas. Ufert; Mar. 23, Frederick Krafft; April 6, Rev. A. L. Wilson; April 13, Morris Hillquit; April 20, A. P. Firth; April 27, Courtenay Lemon; May 4, Algernon Lee.

Eleventh Ward Branch No. 2, Jersey City, elected its officers and voted upon the state constitution. A subscription has been started in aid of the National Committee. A unanimous vote decided in favor of delegate instead of mass conventions.

James P. Barlow of Brockton gave a public lecture at Quincy Socialist Hall on Sunday afternoon, Mar. 2. His subject was: "The Aims of Socialism."

William Mailly will speak on "Socialism and Trade Unionism" for the Somerville Club at the regular Sunday night meeting in the Hill Building, Union Square, on Mar. 16.

Representative MacCartney will speak on "Labor Legislation in the Massachusetts Legislature" for the Liberal Forum, 71 Monroe street, Lynn, Mass., on Sunday, Mar. 16, at 8 p. m. Readers of The Worker invited.

Representative Carey will speak in Worcester, Mass., on Sunday, Mar. 16. The Worcester Socialists have also planned a smoke-talk and entertainment for Saturday, Mar. 15, at which Comrades Carey and Mailly will be guests.

Boston Socialists are urged to turn out en masse and bring their friends to the Commune Celebration at America Hall, 724 Washington street, on Tuesday, Mar. 18. John Spargo will lecture and a short entertainment will be given.

Minnesota has applied for state charter.

Geo. E. Boomer has arrived in Utah and is making his headquarters at Provo City.

The Socialist Dramatic Club of Chicago, organized for the purpose of portraying through the drama the evils of the present system and showing Socialism as the one remedy, has been very successful. The Club's entertainments at the Socialist Temple, every two weeks has taxed the seating capacity of the Temple, both by the Socialists and outside public. The only trouble the Dramatic Club has encountered is the finding of Socialist plays. The Club is at present having two Socialist plays translated from the German, and expects to put them on the stage in a short time. The Club is well organized and desires to state that it is open for engagements from branches and clubs in different parts of the country, and will be glad to hear from comrades wishing to make engagements. Address Socialist Temple, business manager, 120 S. Western avenue, Chicago, Ill.

St. Louis ward clubs are organizing for vigorous work.—The Kansas City comrades are reported as renewing activity, which has somewhat lagged in recent months.—Socialists of Liberal, Springfield, St. Joseph, and Joplin, Mo., will have tickets in the field in the coming city elections.—Missouri state convention will probably be held in June, either at Sedalia, Kansas City, or Poplar Bluff.—E. Val Putnam goes on an agitation tour through Missouri, starting Mar. 15.

The City Executive Committee of the Socialist Party in Seattle, Wash., has challenged the corresponding committees of the two old parties to send representatives to meet o ur men in debate on any or all of the following questions: "1. Is the Republican or Democratic Party the party of the wage-workers? Is the Socialist Party the party of the wage-workers? 2. What are the real issues in this campaign, so far as the workingman is concerned? Is the Republican or Democratic party right in its attitude toward these issues? 3. Is there any fundamental difference between the Republican and the Democratic party? Are not both of them capitalist parties and opposed to the interests of the working class? 4. Would the Republican or Democratic party, if elected to office, do anything to benefit the interests of the working class? Would the Socialist Party? 5. Does the Republican or Democratic party stand for good government? If so, what is good government?"—The Socialists of Tacoma have also nominated a full city ticket. Two sentences will show that there is no compromise or confusion in their policy: "We pledge our candidates to enact all legislation possible for the relief of working people by increasing the number of employees and raising wages, and by reducing the hours of employment; by providing for the education of all children; by increasing parks, free libraries and all other means of instruction and amusements. We make no pretensions of economy in the usual sense of that term in city government, but shall use the taxing power to its full extent in taking from the idlers and dispensing to the workers as a reward for genuine public services."

HAVERHILL NOTES.

A union of laundry workers, comprising most of those employed in the local laundries, has recently been formed.

A union of wet leather and counter workers was formed last Sunday, with about 80 charter members.

The newly formed Retail Clerks' Union, having unionized all the clothing stores and secured shorter hours, is now unionizing the shoe stores.

A big boom in trade unionism is now on in Haverhill.

Rev. Calvin M. Clark of Haverhill, the first speaker in the C. L. U. series, was secured with the expectation that he would oppose unions, but he greatly surprised his hearers by openly favoring most of the tenets of unionism. He explained that he had recently been reading up on the subject and had received much new light.

"Jim" Carey spoke in Exeter, N. H., town hall last Saturday on "Industrial Freedom and How to Attain It."

Shoe Packers' Union 287 is conducting a whist series for the benefit of sick members. Games each Thursday evening in the Lady Stitchers' parlor at Labor Headquarters. Tickets, 10 cents.

Representative MacCartney spoke at the second lecture of the C. L. U. series Sunday evening on the subject, "The Church and Trade Unions." Owing to rainy weather only a fair sized audience was present. It was an excellent lecture. The free lectures should be largely attended. The subject for Mar. 16 is "Social Problems and Trade Unions," by George E. McNeill, the veteran labor agitator.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of the speaker announced for last Sunday at the People's Forum in Unity Hall, Comrade MacCartney was secured as substitute. He chose his own subject, "The Trend Toward Despotism," explaining that under the present rule of plutocracy our country is drifting toward imperialism and monarchy in the political as well as the industrial field, and that the destiny of Labor is to establish an industrial democracy and re-establish political democracy. AL. TRUIST.

—Labor is prior to, and independent of, capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor and could never have existed if labor had not first existed.—A. Lincoln.

THE FIRST OF MAY.

Call for Conference to Arrange the May Day Demonstration.

To the Trade and Labor Organizations of the City of New York.

Fellow Workingmen:—It again becomes the duty of the Social Democratic Party to remind you of the approach of the First of May.

Sixteen years ago the American Federation of Labor chose the First of May as the moment for a united demand for the eight-hour work day. Year after year that demand has been renewed, and every year some advance has been made, while the working class has grown stronger and more united through the struggle which it carried on.

In 1889 the International Socialist and Trade Union Congress, meeting at Paris, gave to the First of May a broader and greater significance, selecting it as the day upon which the working class of the world should join in demonstrating its class consciousness and demanding its rights.

The First of May stands for the solidarity of Labor, the world over, regardless of differences of race and creed. It stands for the hope of a better social order, when class rule shall be abolished and real Liberty shall prevail. It stands for the determination of the working class to struggle for its own emancipation by all means within its power.

Workingmen of New York, we must not fail to take our place in the forward march of the workers of the world.

We therefore invite each trade and labor organization in New York City to send two delegates to a Conference to prepare the May Day Demonstration of 1902. The first meeting of the conference will be held on Saturday, Mar. 29, at 8 p. m., in the New York Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. We hope that your organization will not fail to be represented.

With fraternal greetings:

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.
Social Democratic Party of New York.
JULIUS GERBER,
Secretary.

VAIL IN TOLEDO.

Very Successful Meetings Held and Comrades Are Enthusiastic.

The course of lectures delivered in Memorial Hall Annex on Mar. 6, 7, and 8, by Comrade Chas. H. Vail has proven the greatest thing that ever happened in the Socialist Party movement in Toledo. As in the case of Comrade Chase, predictions were made that we were assuming too much, and would get stuck. We sold tickets to the course of three lectures at twenty-five cents, single admission—at the door only—ten cents. Result: The largest and most intelligent audiences that ever attended Socialist meetings in this city, the majority of whom would never have attended if it had been free.

Comrade Vail's clear and forceful exposition of the principles, purposes, and methods of the Socialist movement was masterly. In this field he has no peer on the platform in the United States, and, if, as seems likely, state autonomy forces him from the field, because of the resulting confusion and wasteful methods, its advocates do the movement incalculable injury. After his lecture on Friday evening—"The Socialist Movement" he was treated to a regular ovation. He spoke for nearly two hours, and it was simply grand.

Having gone through this three-night course by Comrade Vail we want to join the Massachusetts comrades in urging others to try it. Don't let the record end with Boston, Haverhill, and Toledo. Almost any community with a reasonable number of people who are not afraid to get out and sell tickets can do it. These lectures enables him to cover the field in fine shape, but we are sorry we did not make it the full course of four lectures delivered in Boston. At the close of his lecture on Saturday evening a show of hands was taken on the question as to whether we should arrange another course for him if it could be done, and fully three-fourths of the audience responded, and pledges were made to take course tickets and help sell them.

We prepared ourselves with literature, much of which was sold, and on the last night we passed out our "dig up" cards and got between twenty and thirty subscribers for The Worker. The papers gave us liberal notices, and lasting good has been done.

We in Toledo are not conducting a hurrah campaign for votes, for they often work like the religious revival—backslide. We are pushing a campaign of education to get as many people as possible to understand the principles of our movement.

Besides the great educational benefits of this course of lectures we have a substantial addition to the treasury of the City Central Comittee, and we owe special credit for this result to the professional and literary people who have recently become interested in the movement.

We spent no money for advertising except by a specially designed card that was used as a handbill and could be mailed under a late ruling of the Post Office Department. Samples of this will be sent to anyone interested who will inclose stamps to "Proletarian," care 413 Summit street, Toledo, Ohio. C.

Toledo, Mar. 9.

FESTIVAL IN THE BRONX.

The Progressive Workingmen's Societies of the Bronx will hold a festival on Saturday, Mar. 22, at Ehling's Casino, One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street and St. Anne's avenue. A good time in relation to the interests of the Admission is 15 cents and the proceeds are to go to the campaign fund. All comrades and sympathizers in the Bronx should help make the affair a success.

—The Socialist Party is organized to fight capitalism, not any one part of it, and for that reason it stands out against all other political parties, whether they represent the large capitalists or small capitalists. All capitalists look alike to us. Their interest is opposed to that of the workers, and the only way to represent the interest of the workers is to put them out of business, and that is what the Socialist Party will do when elected.—St. Louis Labor.

LECTURE IN YONKERS.

All readers of The Worker in Yonkers and vicinity are invited to attend a lecture on "Scientific Socialism" by Algernon Lee of New York, at the Hollywood Inn, Saturday evening, Mar. 15. A special invitation is extended to ladies.

LEMON IN NEW ROCHELLE.

John Spargo addressed the Ad Interim Club of New Rochelle Monday, Mar. 3, on "Our Position, Economic, Ethical, and Political." There were a number in the audience who heard a first-class Socialist speaker for the first time, and the impression made will be a lasting one. Forty copies of Hanford's "Railroading" were distributed.

Courtenay Lemon will lecture before the Club at Trinity Parish House, Monday evening, Mar. 17, on "What Socialism Really Is." Comrades and sympathizers in Westchester County are invited to attend this, the last lecture of the series of six held by the Club.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is:
HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

Some Men Pay $10,000 for an expert to manage their advertising. There are others who pay $5.00 for an annual subscription to Printers' Ink and learn what all the advertisers are thinking about. But even these are not the extremes reached; there are men who lose over $100,000 a year by doing neither one.

For sample copy send 10 cents to Printers' Ink, No. 10 Spruce St., N.Y. City.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS.

730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.

Send for sample copies.

Subscription, $1.00 per year.

PATRONIZE ....
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM, 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts. N.Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD

Decatur, Ill.

AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.

Subscription $1 per year, in advance.

HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.

Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

EMILE ZOLA'S
POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS.

Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.

"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "Human Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother, Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."

Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.

Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

BOOKS WANTED.

Hyndman—"Historical Basis of Socialism."

Enrico Ferri—"Work on Criminology."

Thos. Skidmore—"The Rights of Man to Rural Property."

Parke Godwin—"Democracy, Pacific and Constructive."

Any other out-of-print publication on the SOCIAL QUESTION.

Send name of title and author with lowest price to

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

READY AGAIN.

"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists." By H. Gaylord Wilshire. Price, 2 cents; 100 copies, $1.25, postpaid. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 905. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

HENRY L. SLOBODIN
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
60 Second Ave., Between Third & Fourth Sts.

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERNATIONAL LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS' UNION REGISTERED
This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs
No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

"Railroading in the United States."
BY BEN HANFORD.
PRICE, FIVE CENTS.
40 Copies $1.00
1000 " 25.00
Sent on receipt of price.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 William Street, New York.

R-I-P-A-N-S
For six years I have been a very sick man, suffering from nervousness, headache and pain in back and stomache, all caused by a stomach that refused to do its work. A friend advised me to try Ripans Tabules. The results have been simply wonderful.
At druggists.
The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

TRADE and SCIENTIFIC BOOKS

The Scientific American Cyclopedia of Receipts, Notes and Queries; 15,000 receipts, 900 New Formulas, 734 pages. Indispensable in every worker's family. Price, $5.00, cloth; $6.00 in sheep, post free.

Hopkins' "Experimental Science," $4.00.

"Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century," by Edward W. Byrn; 300 illustrations, 480 pages, $3.00. Half red morocco, gilt top, $4.00.

Hopkins' "Magic," $2.50.

Sloane's "Complete Electrical Library," 5 volumes in a box, $5.00.

"Standard Practical Plumbing," by P. J. Davies. A complete encyclopedia for practical plumbers, builders, gas fitters, engineers, etc., $3.00.

"The Tinsmiths' Helper and Pattern Book," by H. K. Vosburgh. Rules, diagrams, tables, and recipes for the use of practical metal workers, $1.00.

"How to Become a Good Mechanic," by John Phin. A practical guide to self-taught men; tells what to study and how to begin. 25 cents.

SCIENTIFIC BOOKS of every kind furnished by

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

PARTY BUTTONS

We manufacture three different sizes in ½, ⅞, and 1½ in. diameter, Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the ½ in. size simply with Arm and Torch emblem.

1 Button	5 cents.
12 Buttons	25 cents
25 Buttons	50 cents
100 Buttons	$1.75

Cash must accompany all orders.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
'CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.
Five Postals for $1.25; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.
For Sale on all New York News-stands.

Never let Whiskey get the best of you
Get the best of it
BUY GOVERNMENT PROOF KENTUCKY WHISKIES
UNION MADE
SEND FOR PRICE LISTS OF WHISKIES, WINES & LIQUORS
The Cooperative Liquor Co
DISTILLERS AGENTS INCORPORATED COVINGTON, KY.
When ordering mention THE WORKER.

Trades' and Societies' Calendar

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

Organizations should not lose such an opportunity for advertising their places of meetings.

BRANCH 2, S. D. P., 24th and 25th A. D. (formerly Socialist Science Club), meets second and fourth Thursday evenings of each month at the Workingmen's Educational Club, 3309 Third avenue.

BRANCH 2 (English), 20th A. D. (Brooklyn), S. D. P.—Meets every second and fourth Tuesday evening at 700 Evergreen avenue. All Socialists of the district are invited to join. H. A. Guerth, 1328 Bushwick avenue, will receive subscriptions for The Worker.

CARL SAHM CLUB (MUSICIANS' UNION. Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 10 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, E. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street.—District I. (Bohemian), 331 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 10 Stanton Street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 86th Street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Flescher, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

PENNSYLVANIA.

WILKES-BARRE—Local Luzerne Co., Pa., Socialist Party meets every Sunday at 3 p. m., at 487 South Grant street. All Socialists are invited.

Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kass fuer die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.
WORKMEN'S Sick and Death Benefit Society of the United States of America.

The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialism. Its numerical strength (at present of 180 local branches with 21,500 male members) is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe principles of the modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $3.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a benefit of $9.00 for 40 weeks and of $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruption. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $6.00 and $3.00 respectively. A burial benefit of $50.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried daughters of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class upon payment of an initiation fee of $1.00. Monthly assessments are levied for the three classes, at the rate of members of 60, 67, and 38 cents respectively

TRADE UNION NOTES

"St. Louis Labor" says the state and city inspectors there, instead of trying to enforce factory laws, spend all their time in squabbling with each other and criticizing the unions. The reason of this is that they owe their appointments to the two old parties controlled by the capitalist class—by the men whose interest it is to have the factory laws unenforced.

The Macon, Ga., "Press," a labor paper, has a long article on child labor in the South. It points out that the mill owners do not live up to their "voluntary agreement" not to employ children under twelve and also—what is indeed a well-known fact—that the greatest opposition really comes, though secretly, from Northern capitalists who own a large part of the stock in Southern mills. The only way to stop the slow murder of the children is for the workingmen, North and South, to put members of their own class in office to carry out the Socialist program.

A Salt Lake City judge has sent a union waiter to jail for distributing handbills announcing that a certain restaurant was "unfair."

Four men were burned to death in a boarding house at Mace, Ida., last week. They were only miners and the company which owns the mine owned also the fire-trap in which they were compelled to sleep and owns also the judges and the district attorney—so there will probably be a verdict of "death by the visitation of God." Workingmen are cheap.

Los Angeles Federal Labor Union No. 1 declares for Socialism.

Unions in Cheyenne, Wyo., make a demand on the city that eight hours be a day's work and 25 cents an hour the minimum wage on all public work. The local Socialists join in the agitation.

The National Association of Builders—the employers' organization—has issued a circular to all unions of the building trades proposing the establishment of a permanent court for the arbitration of disputes. The unions will probably be too wise to fall into the trap.

The Brewers' and Maltsters' Union of St. Louis, Mo., with a membership of nearly 800, decided that every member must take either the "St. Louis Labor" or the "Arbeiter-Zeitung" (both Socialist weeklies), an assessment being levied for that purpose.

The St. Louis Central Trades and Labor Union adopted resolutions "emphatically disapproving of the reception to be tendered in most slavish devotion and admiration of Prince Henry of Prussia, by the politicians and West End aristocrats of St. Louis."

Striking cigarmakers in St. Louis have won.

Tobacco trust has swallowed the union Addison Tinsley Company, Louisiana, Mo., and no more labels will appear upon its product. The tobacco workers should vote for Socialism, which would make public property of the tobacco factories and secure short hours and good living to all the workers.

The American Tobacco Trust, having absorbed some of the largest plants [illegible]land, Ireland, and Germany, is [illegible]ng with the government of [illegible]re the industry is controlled by the state, to secure control by [illegible]g bonus. France, like the [illegible]ites, is governed by capitalist [illegible] so that government control of the tobacco industry is little or no better [illegible]n the trust ownership. Socialism, sought about through honest labor politics, is the only way out.

The Stone and Webster gang of capitalists, against whose tyranny the street-car workers of Terre Haute, Ind., are striking, own also the trolley system of Seattle, Wash. Thus the Seattle workingmen are compelled to furnish funds (profits) for the masters to use in crushing their brothers in Terre Haute. City campaigns are on in both places and a good Socialist vote in each is the only way in which the workers can really help each other.

One hundred granite quarrymen of Quincy, Mass., went on strike Mar. 1 for an eight-hour day and weekly payments. Two-thirds of the Quincy quarries are controlled by a syndicate, which refuse the eight-hour demand.

It is reported that the strike of metal workers in San Francisco, which has been on since last May, has at last been called off, the employers making only small concessions. The report may not be true, however, as such statements have been given out before for the purpose of disorganizing the strike.

PULLMAN CAPITALISTS EVADING THE LAW

The Pullman Palace Car Company is planning the formation of a land company to take over the title to the town of Pullman. The capital will be $6,000,000, and this stock will be given in the shape of dividends to the present shareholders.

The Supreme Court of Illinois decided that the company could not continue to own and receive rentals from property not used by it for its own purposes. The question was raised by the attorney general of the state two or three years ago, and the company was given five years in which to dispose of the town of Pullman.

The Pullman capitalists thus evade the ruling of the Court by the simple device of organizing a land company with identical stockholderds, and they continue to be the sole landlords as well as the sole employers of the town.

LABOR SECRETARIAT.

The office of the New York Labor Secretariat (Job Harriman, Secretary) has been removed from 194 Bowery to 320 Broadway, Room 701.

SHOOT THEM OR PENSION THEM.

Swift's "Modest Proposal" in a New Version.

What Shall Workingmen Do When They Reach Forty-five — Chicago Man's Proposition Raises Much Discussion —Light Thrown on Corporations' Pension System.

In the latter part of the eighteenth century, when the English landlords, after fleecing their hard-working Irish tenants to the last penny, were meeting in their philanthropic societies and gravely discussing the wicked tendency of the Irish people to give birth to too many children, Jonathan Swift published his "Modest Proposal for Preventing the Children of Poor People in Ireland from Being a Burden to Their Parents"—the substance of which proposal was that the babies should be fattened and eaten, like little pigs, thus becoming a source of income instead of an expense.

To-day, when railroad and manufacturing corporations are establishing rules that forbid the employment of men over forty-five (or in some cases even thirty-five) years of age, and when the speeding up of machinery and the increased intensity of labor is making workingmen old when they should be at their prime, a Chicago workingman, in a similar spirit of savage satire, has introduced into the city federation of Labor a resolution (which, in the same spirit, was passed) porposing that every unemployed man forty-five years of age who cannot show what the charity authorities call "visible means of support" shall be mercifully shot, in a lawful and orderly manner. The resolution has created a great deal of discussion and stimulated many to serious thought.

Corporations' Pension System.

The "Missouri Socialist" publishes an interview on the subject with E. B. Pope, passenger agent of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, which calls attention to an aspect of the question that ought not to be overlooked. He said, in part:

"A great number of corporations, railroads and others, positively will not employ any new man in any department who is over thirty-five years of age—at least that is the positive rule. Of course a way will be found to evade the rule if they happen to want a man very badly who is ineligible under the rule, but the rule is generally stringently enforced, especially on railroads operating the pension system on their line.

"The theory of the pension system, to reward long continued and meritorious service by retiring the employee after twenty years of continuous service (some roads make it thirty years), is all right and makes for the interest of the employees and the road itself; but, when the pension system is combined with civil service (which works or does not work at the will of the powers that be) and the rigid enforcement of the rule, not to employ any men who has passed the age of thirty-five or forty-five it constitutes the most ingenious and effective system of absolutely enslaving the employees of a corporation that the ingenuity of men could devise, and the enslaving is, perhaps, unintentionally, done under the cloak of benevolence and philanthropy.

Must Obey Blindly.

"Quite a large number of railroad systems have adopted the pension system with both the thirty-five or forty-five years age limit and civil service attachments. Now suppose that the pension system is extended to include a majority of the large corporations. Don't you see that every employee over forty-five years of age simply must obey, blindly and without any protest whatever, every order that may be given him and accept without a murmur whatever fate befalls him, as, otherwise, he invites summary dismissal, and being by reason of his age debarred from securing employment on any other road or with any corporation that is operating the thirty-five to forty-five year age limit pension system, he will be forced to drop out of the only business he knows anything about and start in to learn some new business, too small and insignificant to be dominated by corporations, at an age when he should be thoroughly posted in whatever line of business he expects to follow permanently."

It is hardly necessary to add any comment to these words. The great capitalists—Carnegie among them—who are gaining such a reputation as philanthropists by establishing pension funds for their employees are not spending their money simply to "buy golden opinions." The chief purpose is, as Mr. Pope says, by a continuation of the pension and civil service system with the age-limit rule, to make the workingmen their abject slaves.

Better Than the Blacklist.

This device serves its purpose even better than the blacklist system (though that will still be maintained in conjunction with it)—on the same principle which prompts Oriental despots to bind their slaves with golden fetters, rather than with iron. They are fetters, nevertheless, and the advantage is that they bind the soul of the slave as well as his body, lulling him into passive obedience by flattering his vanity. Just so the promise of a pension to the railway workers, after twenty years of faithful work is designed to lull him into false security and make him overlook both his present hardships and the mathematical probability (carefully figured out beforehand by the capitalists) that he will be either killed, or maimed and put on the shelf, or else discharged for some petty offense before the twenty years are past.

The only hope for the future is in the faith that American workingmen, foolishly patient and submissive as they seem, are really braver and more intelligent that the Oriental slaves, and that they will use their united political power to burst their fetters, whether of gold or of steel, and put an end to capitalist tyranny.

——The Worker costs 50 cents a year or 25 cents for six months.

THE PASSING OF "CENTRAL."

A very significant innovation is a telephone system that does away with "Central." In practicable and successful operation in Fall River, Mass., is a telephone exchange providing an automatic arrangement whereby the subscriber, by revolving a disk—somewhat like the disk of a combination safe—until it checks off the number he wishes to call for, "rings up" the number. Bringing the "combination" to the first number in the series he wishes causes a switch in the "Central" exchange to swing to a certain group of contacts; the next number narrows the selection to a certain number of contacts in the group; the last brings it to the identical spot required. The caller then pushes a button and the connection is established. If the line is busy, a buzzing noise gives him warning. The calls come in first to the larger trunk lines, of course, and thus it might be expected that the apparatus would be often busy, since one call would shut off accessibility to many numbers in the group of instruments covered by the trunk line, but an ingenious contrivance causes the current to pass by the trunk lines that are busy till it comes to one not in use, so that the system would fail to work only when all the trunk lines of selectors were busy. Even then the buzzed warning would indicate that the caller would have to wait only until one of ten persons had finished talking.

The cost of maintaining the mechanical part of the system has not increased. And though it works hardship to discharged employees, the system economizes in wages, for, with the exception of necessary bookkeepers and a few attendants to see that things run on without hitches, a force of work-people is not required. Indeed, on Sundays and during the night while the exchange is locked, the instruments continue making their connections without supervision. Privacy is secured. Cheapness is secured. The automatic telephone means another step in the elimination of middlemen and the automatizing of life.—The World's Work.

With the telephone systems held as private property and operated for private profit the result of this invention is to deprive a large number of working people of their means of livelihood, to reduce expenses a little for the users of the telephones (chiefly capitalists, big and little), and to add considerably to the profits of the great capitalists who own the telephones. The displaced employees have to "hustle" for a job somewhere else, thus increasing competition in the labor market and tending to reduce average wages or lengthen the hours of labor.

Under Socialism, with the telephones held as public property and operated for the public good, the saving of labor at "Central" would result in a proportionate reduction of the hours of labor in other lines of work, so that such an invention would be a blessing to all concerned.

Unfortunately, the "hello girls" who are being displaced have no votes, but their fathers and brothers can help them by voting the Socialist ticket.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY FOR CITY FIREMEN

Application was made to Justice Gaynor in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, last week, for a peremptory writ of mandamus commanding Fire Commissioner Sturgis to limit the hours of work for municipal firemen to eight a day. It was maintained that this should be done in justice to the men, who under the existing arrangements are overworked to a degree which not only endangers their health, but materially affects their ability to perform their duties.

The affidavit submitted cites a case where a fireman was on duty forty-nine out of sixty hours from March 1 to March 3, and states that out of the eleven hours he was supposed to have for rest, he was disturbed by frequent alarms, and compelled to get up each time.

It is rather a roundabout way for workingmen to try to get decent treatment—to elect to office capitalists who are opposed to the eight-hour rule and then beg judges to order its enforcement.

How much better to have voted for the Social Democratic Party, the only party that clearly declared for this measure in its platform!

CARPENTERS NO. 476.

At the special meeting of Carpenters' Union No. 476 the vote for Business Agent resulted as follows: T. C. Walsh of Local 64, 262; W. Blatchford of Local 51, 10; John Murray of Local 340, one. The vote on assessment was 111 for and one one against. Geo. Täufer was chosen to fill out the term of J. Brennan, resigned. H. Schreppel, a member of Local 476, was fined $25 by Kings County District Council. Complaint from shop secretary referred to the Advisory Board. A. Friedrich reported sick; on sick list. McNammara, McNally, Schlegelmilch, Root. Suspended were Otto Sauer, E. T. Broad, Herman König, T. Smith.

BEER DRIVERS' UNION NO. 23.

At the last meeting of the Beer Drivers' Union No. 23 the regular order of business was suspended to allow the immediate initiation of the men of the Fred Opperman brewery, which has been thoroughly organized.

An invitation was received to the ball of the Ale and Porter Brewers' Union No. 3, on April 12, and it was voted that two men from each brewery attend; also for the ball of the Brewery Firemen on Nov. 15, and all requested to attend.

It was voted to send $75 at once to the locked-out brewers in Cincinnati to help them in their fight. The shop delegate from Loewer's brewery reported that a strike of fifty minutes duration had been won by the men. The delegate to the Labor Secretariat reported the removal of the office to 320 Broadway, where members may apply for legal aid; also that the Secretariat had called the attention of the authorities to the fact that some breweries were violating the law by sending out only one man in charge of 4-horse teams. One dollar further was donated to cover expenses of the Cooper Union protest meeting. Much routine business was also disposed of.

——The man who is afraid of his boss will always have reason to be afraid of him. The only way to make your boss respect you is to show your own self-respect and independence.

CHILDREN ON STRIKE.

Pupils in Public School Near Terre Haute Refuse to Recite to Teachers Who Ride on Boycotted Cars.

One of the most remarkable incidents of the great conflict between trolley capitalists and their employees at Terre Haute, Ind., and vicinity has been a strike of school children at Seelyville, one of the neighboring towns. The sympathy of the miners and other people of the district is entirely with the trolley strikers and their children naturally share this feeling. Some of the teachers in the public school at Seelyville, however, rode to and fro on the boycotted cars. On learning of this fact a large number of the children unitedly refused to recite their lessons or go to classes to these teachers; and when the teachers threatened them with punishment they picked up their books and walked home. Their fathers, approving their action, took the case to the local School Board and demanded that the teachers be forbidden to ride on the scab cars; the outcome is not yet known. One of the teachers has, from the beginning of the trolley strike, conscientiously avoided riding on the cars, walking to her work even in the worst weather.

It is certainly a hopeful sign when school children are found so thoroughly imbued with class feeling. They will make good Socialists in a few more years.

TICKET PUT UP IN TERRE HAUTE.

Republican and Democratic Papers Fighting Street-Car Strikers—Socialists Alone Support Them.

The following city ticket has been nominated by the Socialist Party of Terre Haute:

Mayor—Stephen M. Reynolds.
Comptroller—Grant Tubbs.

COUNCILMEN.

At-Large—James O'Neal, Jas. Coulter, and James Wall.
First Ward—Dennis Barrett.
Second Ward—John J. Davis.
Third Ward—I. E. Hall.
Fourth Ward—Warren Anstead.
Fifth Ward—Samuel Harris.
Sixth Ward—Clarence Kingery.

A platform and an address to the citizens of Terre Haute on national and local affairs has been adopted and will soon be in printed form.

Two of the candidates are striking street railway employees, and the majority are trade unionists. The strike has drawn the class lines clear and distinct, and the class struggle has found its expression on the political field.

The capitalist press, Democratic and Republican, union (?) and non-union, has taken its stand against the men either in open hostility or distortion of facts and spreading of lies calculated to defeat the men.

As a result, many will vote for the Socialist ticket, and the capitalist politicians are becoming scared and are discussing the advisability of combining against us.

The men have called upon the Socialists in and out of the unions to speak at their meetings, and the capitalist press is howling that the Socialists are controlling the strike and that their influence "menaces the welfare of the strikers." The city conventions of the Siamese twins have been delayed to three weeks before election, so that if the strength of the Socialists endanger their success, they can combine and form a "hash" party such as that which Haverhill developed some time ago. Meanwhile, our ranks are increasing daily and whatever may be the result a vote will be polled that will mark a gigantic stride in the Socialist movement in Indiana.

POVERTY AND DISEASE.

"Poverty and Disease" will be the subject of John Spargo's lecture on Sunday afternoon, Mar. 16, at Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Place. This is the third in his series on "Some Phases of the Poverty Problem," and deals with an especially important branch of the subject. The excessive infant mortality and the prevalence of consumption and other fatal diseases in the tenement-house districts have compelled the attention even of capitalist "reformers," but they have not dared to strike at the root of the evil and have only mocked the suffering class with impossible promises. Comrade Spargo has made a careful study of the question and will treat it fearlessly and thoroughly. None who can attend should miss the opportunity. Admission is free. Come promptly at 3 p. m.

STATE COMMITTEE.

The New York State Committee at its last meeting decided to engage F. J. Spring of Los Angeles as State Organizer, at a salary of $15 a week. He will come within a few days and will serve until the fall election. Comrade Spring is a man of well known ability both as an organizer and a speaker and will do the party good service.

Comrade Butscher made a report of his work on his last trip throughout the state. The following locals bought stamps within the last two weeks: Buffalo, Fort Edward, Schenectady, Rome, Mt. Vernon, New York, Kings County, Queens County, Richmond. Receipts, $40.40; Expenses, $50. Secretaries of locals are called upon to see that dues are paid regularly, as much work has to be done before the campaign opens and the State Committee needs the money.

A CONUNDRUM.

The "Socialist" of Seattle, Wash., propounds this conundrum: Would you rather seem to be a bigger fool than you are or be a bigger fool than you seem to be? The answer is another question: How could you do either, if you vote a Republican or Democratic ticket?

EXECUTIVE ABILITY.

Little Clarence—Pa, what is executive ability?

Mr. Callipers—Executive ability, my son, is the capacity for making some one else paddle your canoe for you.—Judge.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

TRUST NOTES.

The Cracker Trust is having a paper mill built in Illinois and will manufacture its own pasteboard boxes in the future.

The plan for consolidating the five leading glucose companies in the country, it is announced, is now practically consummated.

A $750,000 company has been incorporated in New Jersey to acquire and develop land and water rights and engage in farming, manufacture, and transportation in Mexico. On the same day it was announced that the Warner-Quinlan syndicate had acquired the asphalt beds of Eastern Mexico. If this sort of thing continues much longer it will be "our plain duty, manifest destiny, and divine mission" to get up another war and "benevolently assimilate" Mexico the benefit of American capitalists.

The wood-alcohol manufacturers of the country have agreed to close a quarter of the factories for six months, in order to keep prices up. We commend this incident to the attention of the Haverhill "Gazette," which maintains that it is the common interest of capitalists and wage-workers to avoid "interferences with the regular course of production." These capitalists see their interest in suspending the regular course of production. They will get a bigger profit out of a smaller product. The laid-off employees will hardly appreciate the "common interest" theory.

The Central District Printing and Telegraph Company, a Pittsburg corporation subsidiary to the Bell Telephone Company and operating throughout Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, Maryland, and West Virginia, has voted to increase its capital from $7,500,000 to $10,000,000. None of the new stocks will be issued to outsiders. The increase of capital and of bond issues by the telegraph and telephone companies is probably preparatory to a move for the establishment of government ownership of these industries under capitalist auspices, with a perpetual guarantee of interest to the present owners. That is not the sort of public ownership Socialists advocate.

The recent bankruptcy of the United States Flour Milling Company, a $15,000,000 trust, is alleged to have been fraudulent. This is undoubtedly the case with a large proportion of the reported failures of large corporations, the purpose being to "freeze out" the smaller investors for the benefit of the great capitalists.

It is claimed that the alleged insolvency of the Asphalt Trust is also fraudulent, that the Trust actually made large profits, but that the large stockholders who were in control deliberately conspired to cheat small investors.

Terms have been agreed on for the final consolidation of the two companies which own all the street railways of Cleveland, Ohio. Mark Hanna will be president of the new consolidated company.

The American Ice Company, commonly called the Ice Trust, will, it is said, absorb a leading ice company in Chicago. It already dominates the trade in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and Baltimore. Its capital is over $36,000,000.

The Borden Condensed Milk Company of New York has absorbed two large factories, one in Illinois, one in Canada.

Railway company reports for February, almost without exception, show very great increase in net "earnings" over the corresponding month last year. Similar reports from the employees, taking the increased cost of living into account, would tell a different story. Prosperity of capitalists means poverty for wage-workers.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.
By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

The following donations have been received to National Propaganda Fund:

Amount reported to March 1	$102.70
Local Aberdeen, Wash.	1.50
Local Edmonds, Wash.	1.45
Koos (tailor) Yorkville, Ill.	.25
C. L. Fox and C. A. Perry (Maine)	10.00
F. P. Young, Springfield, Mo.	1.00
Local Chattanooga, Tenn.	4.25
Local San Diego, Cal.	2.80
Angus McDonald, Brooklyn, N. Y.	1.00
Local Charleroi, Pa.	2.50
J. H. Sims, Bethel, Ohio	.50
J. X. Sliwczynski, Potterville, Cal.	1.00
Local Danbury, Conn.	2.00
24th A. D. Br. 2 N. Y.	2.00
Local Globe, Ariz.	.75
Local Chula Vista, Cal.	2.00
Local Chico, Mont.	1.00
Local Dixon, Cal.	4.00
Local Colusa, Cal.	5.00
Local Orchards, Wash.	1.25
Total to Mar. 8	$146.95

PEEKSKILL ELECTION.

Slight Gain in "Straight" Vote of Social Democratic Party—Taber Makes a Good Run.

The village campaign at Peekskill is over, and although none of our candidates have been elected the Socialists feel that they have scored a victory.

Our "straight" vote is 124, a gain of seven over that of last year. The S. L. P. has 38 "straight" as against 39 last year.

Our full vote is as follows: For Trustee, First District, Seth Tabor, 244; Second District, John R. Worthington, 48; for Treasurer, Henry Kaste, 132; for Assessor, Geo. West, 132; for Water Commissioners, John Butterly, 141; E. L. Holmes, 130; Natl. Bradley, 133. The S. L. P. had 16 votes for Trustee in the First District and 28 in the Second, and from 42 to 50 for the other officers, who are voted for throughout the village.

In consequence of the peculiar circumstances, as related in The Worker for Feb. 23, the fight centered largely on the candidacy of Seth Taber in the First District. Comrade Taber, who has served in the Board for three years, and was universally recognized as an incorruptible an efficient member. He could no doubt have been re-elected had he consented to accept a Democratic or "Citizens" part endorsement. But he stood manfully for the principles of the Socialist movement and a majority of the voters in the ward allowed prejudice and party tradition to determine their action. He took second place, however, running 40 votes ahead of the Democrat.

The Republicans now have control of the village government and the people will have a year to consider whether they would not have done better to support the only party that stood against the contract system, for the eight-hour day, and, in general, for the interest of the working class and against all forms of exploitation.

The S. L. P. carried on its usual campaign—making no attack upon Republican and Democratic parties beyond a brief and formal phrase, but giving all its attention to the scattering of malignant lies against the S. D. P. Doubtless, this may have hurt our cause somewhat by deterring some from the study of Socialism in any form, though it assuredly did the S. L. P. no good. Our comrades will work right on, content to gain slowly but steadily, and sure of the final victory to be won by uncompromising adherence to the right principle.

CHILD LABOR IN ILLINOIS.

According to the annual report of the State Factory Commission, the employment of child labor in Illinois has increased 29 per cent. in the last year. In 1900 the inspectors found 14,256 children at work in the factories, and in 1901 the number had grown to 19,839, an increase of 5,583. During that time the increase in manufactures was only 9 per cent. The gain in the total employed was 12 per cent., or less than a third of the increased child labor. There were 369,804 men at work in 1901, a gain of 33,046 and 94,529 women, an increase of 12,951. The total number of convictions on account of disobedience of the child labor law was 725. It will be observed that there was also a disproportionate increase in female labor.

RHODE ISLAND'S BIG MERGER.

The largest combination of interests on record in Rhode Island was announced last Friday. The United Traction, capitalized at $8,400,000; Providence Gas Company, with $5,000,000 in stock; and Narragansett Electric Lighting Companies, capitalized at $2,750,000, are united.

United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich is a leading figure in the combine.

MIDDLE CLASS FAILURES.

"Bradstreet's" reports 178 failures in the United States during the week, against 204 for the previous week and 208, 189, 177, and 247 for the corresponding weeks of 1901 to 1898. About 88 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 10 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

FACTORY TO POCKET
Real Gun Metal Watches; gents thin model; retailers price $6.50; our price, $2.25; Solid 14K Waltham watch; retailer's price, $35; our price, $16.75. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO., 175 Broadway, N. Y. Estab. 1876. Tel. 3434 Cort.

ABBOTT BROS.
Bakery, Coffee and Lunch Room
110 Bleecker Street, New York.
Kangaroos are welcome; no line drawn on smaller animals.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

GRAND COMMUNE FESTIVAL
ARRANGED BY THE
YORKVILLE AGITATION COMMITTEE
AT THE CLUB HOUSE, 206 E. 86th Street,
SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 8 P. M.
Job Harriman will speak on the Commune.
Play by Dramatic Section, W. E. A. Good music,
HAT CHECK, 10 CENTS.

CELEBRATION OF MARCH EVENTS
SOCIALIST PARTY (März-Feier) HUDSON CO.
Saturday, March 15, 1902, —AT— CENTRAL HALL, 344-354 Central Ave., Jersey City.
Sunday, March 16, 1902, —AT— ODD FELLOWS HALL, 412 Washington Street, Hoboken.
THEATRE, CONCERT AND BALL.
TICKETS, 15c. EACH, IN ADVANCE. 25c. AT DOOR.
Tickets good for either performance. Curtain rises at 8 P. M.

HOW CAN YOU!
CELEBRATE THE COMMUNE AND
NOT READ
ITS FULLEST AND MOST AUTHENTIC STORY,
THE HISTORY OF THE PARIS COMMUNE
—BY LISSAGARAY—

THIS IS THE AUTHOR'S PREFACE:

Who made the revolution of the 18th of March? What part was taken by the Central Committee? What was the Commune? How came it that 100,000 Frenchmen are lost to their country? Who is responsible? Legions of witnesses will answer.

No doubt it is an exile who speaks, but an exile who has been neither member, nor officer, nor functionary of the Commune; who for five years has sifted the evidence; who has not ventured upon a single assertion without accumulated proofs; who sees the victors on the look-out for the slightest inaccuracy to deny all the rest; who knows no better plea for the vanquished than the simple and sincere recital of their history.

This history, besides, is due to their children, to all the workingmen of the earth. The child has the right to know the reason of the paternal defeats, the Socialist Party, the campaign of its flag in all countries. He who tells the people revolutionary legends, he who amuses them with sensational stories, is as criminal as the geographer who would draw up false maps for the navigators.

The "History of the Commune" should be in the library of every Socialist, for it recalls one of the grandest epochs in the history of Socialism, an epoch which will never be erased from the history of mankind.

The "History of the Paris Commune" contains 500 pp., is bound in cloth and published in two editions. Popular edition, price $1.00. Library edition, price $2.00.

As premiums for this occasion the "Silver Cross" (cloth, price 50 cents) is offered with the popular edition and the "People's Marx," cloth, price $1.50, is offered with the Library Edition, on orders sent in before April 1.

ADDRESS
THE INTERNATIONAL LIBRARY PUBLISHING COMPANY,
23 Duane Street, New York.
Send for Descriptive Catalogue.

THE WORKER'S
GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.
Eight Pages. Highly Valuable Articles. Ready May 1st.
Less than 100 copies, per copy 1 cent; 200 copies, $1.20.
100 copies, 75 cents; 300 copies or more, per 100, 50 cents.
ORDER AT ONCE.
USE ORDER BLANK YOU FIND IN THIS NUMBER.

The Worker.

A WONDERFUL BOOK.
"Railroading in the United States."
BY BEN HANFORD.
Price, 5 Cents. One Hundred Copies, $2.50, Postpaid.
ORDER AT ONCE.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY, 184 William St., New York.

VOL. XI.—NO. 51. NEW YORK, MARCH 23, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

PLEDGE.

To Job Harriman, Dr Julius Halpern and Leonard D. Abbott, Socialist Daily Finance Commitee:

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist Daily the sum of $.....to be paid in monthly installments of $.....

Name .....

Address .....

PUSH IT FORWARD!

Work for the Socialist Daily Is Under Way.

Arrangements for Damrosch May Concert Progressing—Assistance of Comrades Needed in Distribution of Tickets—Pledges and Contributions for Daily Press Fund.

At last Sunday's meeting of the committee on arrangements for the May Concert, Comrade Roescheiser presided. Financial Secretary Bowerman reported that some comrades had volunteered to visit trade unions and other organizations in the interest of the concert and their services were accepted. It was decided to send committees to the County Committees of the Party in Kings, Queens, and Richmond Counties, N. Y., and Hudson and Essex Counties, N. J. Comrade Reichenthal volunteered to go to Kings, Comrade Obrist to Richmond, Comrade Bowerman to Queens and Essex, and Comrade Beck to Hudson.

Comrade Tanner reported plans for the Concert Journal, which is intended to surpass anything of the sort previously issued and will be a beautiful souvenir of this grand undertaking. It will be sold at 5 cents a copy and comrades who live too far away to attend the concert can at least show their interest and help their cause by securing copies of the Journal.

The Committee will meet again on Sunday, Mar. 23, at 3 p. m., in the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Every comrade who is willing to help in any way toward the fullest success for the May Concert is requested to show his interest by attending at that time, for a great deal of work is to be done between now and May 1 when arrangements must be complete.

Daily Press Committee.

The Socialist Daily Press Committee has nearly completed its work, preliminary to permanent organization. Notice of the general meeting of party members for the formation of the permanent body will be given in this paper and in the "Volkszeitung" next week.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to Mar. 17:

Previously acknowledged	$2,461.50
Richard Pohle	10.00
Mrs. K. L. M. Meserole	5.00
W. H. Luttman	10.00
Kalman Edelman	25.00
H. Reich	50.00
James Gruber	10.00
Jacob Magdoff	25.00
Angus McDonald	3.00
John H. Dyck	1.00
John Spengler	5.00
Frederick Gerold	5.00
Fred. Scheettle, White Plains	5.00
Geo. Volkert, Mt. Vernon	5.00
Michael Guather	5.00
Total	$2,625.50

Cash Contributions.

The following statement of cash received includes payments on pledges as well as a number of direct cash donations:

Previously acknowledged	$268.00
G. Scheel	1.00
Algernon Lee	5.00
E. Meltzer	1.00
Charles Frederic Adams	5.00
Raphael Buck	2.50
Kalman Edelman	5.00
H. Reich	4.00
Geo. J. Alcott, Bridgewater, Mass.	25.00
John M. Dillon, Dayton, O.	1.00
Frederic Gerold	1.00
Simon Stahl, Gorham, N. H.	2.00
Oscar Leyler, LaGrange, Tex.	1.00
C. Haas, Providence, R. I.	1.00
Total	$320.00

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be sent and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York. Communications may be addressed to Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly installments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

AN AUTOGRAPH COLLECTOR.

Comrade Louis Uffner of New Rochelle has turned autograph collector. He takes the signatures of none but Socialists, and on no other place but the dotted line on the pledge for the Socialist Daily.

LIGHT FROM THE WEST ON THE PEACE SCHEME.

Thursday's "Herald" says editorially:

"California gets the first fruit of the National Civic Federation's scheme of arbitration. The long strike in the iron trade at San Francisco, which began last May, has been declared off. This gratifying outcome is the result of efforts of a San Francisco delegate to the recent Civic Federation conference in New York. . . . This initial success of the federation's plan of arbitration greatly strengthens the belief that a practical method for obviating strikes and lockouts has at last been found. The proposition at San Francisco was a fair test of the confidence inspired by the federation in the minds of both employers and employees. . . . The fact that the difficulty was so quickly solved, by the new arbitration plan, inspires confidence in its general success."

Now read what the telegraphic dispatches of the same day state:

"San Francisco, March 6.—Following the settlement of the machinists' strike, nearly 1,000 men sought employment with their old firms during the day, but of that number less than one hundred were given the positions they vacated on May 20, 1901. . . . It is contended by the members of the Iron Trades Council (the employees' federation) that the strike was declared off pending an adjustment of the trouble by the arbitration committee of the National Civic Federation. This is emphatically denied by the members of the Metal Trades Association (the organization of employers), who declare that there is nothing to arbitrate and that the strikers will resume operations under the schedule as to hours and wages in force prior to the inauguration of the strike."

All this shows how ready the "Herald" is to help along the Hanna-Gompers "Peace Conference," and truckle to anything that will keep the wage-workers quiet and at work.—Los Angeles Socialist.

A PUBLIC SPIRITED DODGER OF TAXES.

Our industrial kings have a practise of having many homes in different states or even in various countries. There is more than one advantage in this. Here is an illustration, from last Saturday's news:

"Commissioner Strassburger, received yesterday depositions in reference to the personal taxes of D. O. Mills. The amount of the assessment was fixed tentatively at $1,000,000. The affidavits cited facts to show that Mr. Mills resided at present in California. The statement was also made by the representative of Mr. Mills that, although he was entitled to full exemption in New York City, he was ready to pay such taxes on an assessment of $250,000, because of his civic interest here."

D. O. Mills is a director and a large stockholder in the Standard Oil Company; he is also a large stockholder and a director in the enormously rich Mergenthaler Company; and these represent but a small part of his wealth.

By owning an establishment in California he can escape taxes in New York, and by owning a winter palace in New York he can escape taxes in California. The saving of taxes pays for maintaining the extra mansion.

But Mr. Mills is a philanthropist, a reformer, a patriot, a public-spirited citizen. He isn't willing to pay taxes on his full estate, but just to show his "civic interest" he is willing to pay a small percentage of what he owes.

And the "reformers" will accept the compromise and praise Mr. Mills for his generosity. A Socialist administration would make him sweat—for the benefit of the wage-working class whom he sweats.

REPLY TO THE BISHOPS.

The statement issued by the New York State Committee in reply to the attacks of Archbishop Corrigan and Bishop Quigley upon the Social Democratic Party, which was printed in this paper last week, has been issued in leaflet form and should be scattered broadcast among the workingmen of the state, especially in all quarters where the misrepresentations of the prejates are likely to create prejudice against Socialism.

The price for 1,000 copies of the leaflet, in English, is $1.75; for 500 copies, $1. In German translation the price is $2 a thousand or $1.25 for 500. Send orders, with cash, to H. Reich, 184 William street, New York.

WHY IS IT?

Mr. Workingman, did your employer, whether an individual or a corporation, ever seriously object to your voting either the Democratic or Republican ticket? Why, then, are you in such dread lest your boss finds out you are a Socialist? Because he knows, and you should know, that so long as you vote either of the tickets named by him, he has no fear of losing control of legislation. Because he knows, and you should know, that when once you lay aside your partisan prejudices and vote solidly for the party which represents your class—the working class—the power of your exploiter will be gone.—The Liberator.

——There is an aching void on the dotted line of your pledge for the Socialist Daily. Fill the void.

IN NEW HAVEN.

An Address to the Voters in the City Campaign.

Julius J. Paecht, Candidate for Registrar of Voters, Gives the Reasons Why the Workingmen of New Haven Should Vote the Socialist Ticket.

To the Socialist Party and the Voters of New Haven, Conn.

Comrades:—The consciousness of having received the nomination for Registrar of Voters from the Socialist Party of New Haven, which not only represents but is composed of wage workers, is extremely gratifying. This consideration and the fact that I am in no way interested in any of the corporations which have reduced this city to a condition almost beyond redemption through their political representatives gives assurance that I will be the logical champion of the great majority of its inhabitants, the wage-working class.

The only object toward which the political action of the working class can consistently be directed is the collective ownership of the means of production which the collective labor of the working class has created. Private ownership always and everywhere means exploitation of labor, concentration of wealth, class rule, and poverty for the workers. Competition compels combination and the only alternative to profit-grinding, private monopoly is the Co-operative Commonwealth. Society is to-day divided into two great classes, separate and distinct as night is from day. On one side we have the capitalist class, owning the means of production and distribution—that is, factories, mills, railroads, ships, mines, machinery, and tools, necessary in the production of wealth; on the other hand we have the wroking class, which owns nothing but its labor power, mental and physical, which it must sell in the labor market for whatever price it will fetch, just as potatoes, shoes, corn, or any other commodity is sold. The part which the working class or, more plainly, the wage-workers, receive as the price of their commodity labor-power is known as wages. With wages we buy the necessaries of life, food, clothing, and shelter, thus reproducing labor-power. The age of individual production is past, when a mechanic owning a kit of tools and his raw material, could, working alone, finish and sell his product, receiving in return the full value of his labor. There was little competition among workers, no child labor, no labor-saving machinery. The mechanic was his own master. Many years' apprenticeship was necessary to acquire a trade. There was no idle capitalist to divide with.

All this is changed. Production to-day is conducted on an everlasting scale. Immense machines, continually becoming more gigantic and costly, have robbed the independent mechanic of his tools and reduced him to a mere machine-tender, a cog in the great industrial mechanism. We find hundreds and thousands of men, women, and children banded together in great factories, organized and drilled with a discipline equal to the Kaiser's army, chained together as it were in a life of wage-slavery, each where his or her labor-power produces the greatest profit to the master, the capitalist, and getting in return just enough wages to keep body and soul together.

Small wages to the wage-slave means large profits to the capitalist and vice versa. The factories are kept in operation as long as profits are realized by the capitalist; otherwise the sign "Closed Down" appears upon the door, and the workers are left to starve.

You may sometime conceive the notion that you are nobody's slave, and quit your job. You think you are a free man. You soon discover your slavery, for quitting one master you must seek another to whom you must sell your labor. If unable to find a master, you must beg, steal, or starve. Thus the working class is at the mercy and caprice of the capitalist robber class, for such it is, which owns the tools.

Between these great classes there exists a middle class of small tradesmen, small factory owners, farmers, etc. It is, nevertheless, but a division of the capitalist class, but always at war with the greater capitalists, because the capital it possesses is not sufficient to withstand the competition of improved machinery. There is a fight between big and small capitalists for supremacy. Trusts and combines have cheapened the cost of production, and are squeezing the life out of the middle class. Thus stripped of economic power, its members are pushed into the ranks of the working class, thus widening still more the gap between the capitalist and working classes. Naturally the middle class feels bitter towards their big brother robbers, the trust owners. This is why we hear them howling, "Crush the trusts," "Down with the money power." Yet this same middle class has an interest in upholding the present capitalist system. It wants to get back power into its own hand. It hopes to overthrow the upper class of robbers that it may become the dominant class.

Thus there is a struggle going on between these three classes which cannot be ignored or ended until the capitalist system of production is overthrown at the ballot box by the class-conscious vote of the Socialist Party. The capitalists understand this. They must have courts to protect their interests. The seats of Congress must be occupied by their servants. The police, the militia, the army, must be outposts on the skirmish line, so that when the workers become unruly and strike for higher wages they can be clubbed into submission. When profits are touched, then the soul of capitalism is aroused to fury.

Thus we find the Republican party, the party of the large capitalists, of Mark Hanna, John D. Rockefeller, and their like, and on the other hand, the Democratic party of the small farmers, small manufacturers, etc., etc., the middle class; by this means the workers are kept fighting among themselves. On Election Day you put into power the Republican capitalists' servants and then curse them for "selling you out." Next election you put into power Democratic capitalist servants, only to find them as great rascals. The truth is, the Republican and Democratic parties are really but wings of one party. Both stand for and uphold wage slavery. With either in power, you are clubbed and shot when on strike. Both despise you; but desiring your vote, they come to you with honeyed words about the "Brotherhood of Labor and Capital." Every politician and candidate of these parties tells you that he is nobody's tool—he is an honest man, he is a friend of Labor, he represents the interests of all the people. This is false, as you voters have seen in this water company controversy for public ownership.

We Socialists have shown the interests of capitalist and worker to be opposed. You can just as well mix oil and water. Their interests are like two trains coupled together, but pulling in opposite directions. The capitalist wants profits without work. The wage-workers must produce, not only their own wages, but the profits of the capitalists. One robs, the other is robbed. How then can these precious "friends of Labor" represent both robber and robbed?

Take, for instance, the recent railroad strike in this city and in Meriden. The Mayors and Councilmen of this city not only did nothing to aid the strikers, but deliberately helped the railroad capitalists. Not one old-party alderman would propose appropriating money to help the strikers. Not one would raise a hand against the bosses. Why? Because they are the servants of the capitalist class. Had the councils of this city been composed of Socialist working-class representatives, the strikers would have received every assistance possible and the company would have been forced to grant the just demands of the strikers. Plainly did the Socialists at that time tell you that the fight was lost in the start; that it was useless to fight the robber class 364 days in the year for better wages and then to vote them into power on Election Day; that you must carry the spirit of class-conscious labor politics into your unions; that to be unionists during the year but to scab on Election Day is suicide.

The workingmen of this city are continually being fooled by such cries as "No politics in town affairs," "Vote for the best man," "Vote to reduce taxes." From your experience in the past it is needless to say that the triumph of any of these issues has never benefited the working class one iota.

I am proud to say that the party upon whose platform I stand is devoted solely to the interests of the working class; and if elected to office, I will do my utmost to carry out the provisions of that platform. I pledge that, if elected, my every act will be dictated by the interests of the working class and that class alone, in accordance with the usage of the Socialist Party. I have filed my resignation, so that, in case, if elected to office, I fail to carry out the provisions of the party platform, I can be at once recalled from office.

Workingmen, yours is the future and all its glories and honors. Place confidence in your own class and vote into power the only party of the working class, the Socialist Party. Read the platform and program of the Socialist Party and vote the ticket straight. Do not scab on your fellow workers on Election Day, April 8, by upholding the capitalist system which enslaves you.

JULIUS J. PAECHT.
213 Oak street, New Haven, Conn.

TICKET IN CATSKILL.

The Social-Democrats of Catskill, N. Y., have nominated the following ticket for the charter election to be held in that village on Tuesday, Mar. 25:

For Trustee, Second District—Albert E. Smith.
For Collector—Geo. W. Ish.
For Treasurer—Warren E. Minkler.
For Assessor—Jacob R. Cole.

All workingmen and others in the village of Catskill who believe in the principles of Socialism and wish to hasten the coming of the Co-operative Commonwealth should cast their votes for these candidates next Tuesday.

CAPITALIST PATERNALISM.

Here is a paragraph that has been going the rounds of the labor press, without comment:

"In Paris male domestic servants are encouraged to marry as they are observed to be more settled and attentive to their duties than when bachelors. In London such marriages are discouraged, as rendering servants more attentive to their own families than to those of their masters."

It is significant that in both cases it is only the interests of the employers that are considered. If the boss can make bigger profits out of married men, his employees must marry or hunt other jobs; if unmarried employers give him more profits, they must not marry on pain of discharge. And yet some people talk about "personal liberty" and fear the "paternalism" of a Socialist Commonwealth!

VICARIOUS DONATION.

It is expected that every Socialist will contribute one dollar to the Socialist Daily Fund for himself and at least nine dollars more for nine others who ought to but fail to contribute even one dollar.

——A ten, a $X for the Socialist Daily. In this sign—$X—shalt thou conquer.

BOSTON'S BIG STRIKE.

Workingmen Betrayed by "Harmony" Committee.

Thousands of Wage Workers Show Their Solidarity in Sympathetic Strike—False Promises of Civic Federation and "Friends of Labor" Bring Disorganization and Defeat.

The strike of transportation workers in Boston was "settled" on Thursday night. During the four days preceding twenty thousand men had quit work and the commerce of Boston was almost at a standstill. Freight was piled up in sheds and on docks and a famine of food and coal threatened the city. Every day more trades were quitting in sympathy with the original strikers, and a complete tie-up was in sight.

For two months this had been brewing. When it came at last the people of Boston were treated to a spectacle of labor solidarity unequalled in the history of the city—an impressing and inspiring spectacle of thousands of workmen leaving their jobs and endangering their future for the sake of a principle. But whereas two days ago there was unity of thought and action, to-day there is disorganization, confusion, and despair. The compact ranks have been broken and chaos and fearful uncertainty hold sway.

It is not my purpose, nor would space permit me, to go into details of the strike. It came about because the freight handlers employed in the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad sheds refused to go upon the teams of the R. S. Brine Company and help unload these teams. The Brine Company is the one that secured the injunction against the Teamsters' Union, and has been the bone of contention all along. Under a recent court ruling the freight handlers cannot recover damages for injuries received while helping to unload teams, and the freight handlers have therefore claimed the right to unload whatever teams they choose. There has been no compulsion in this matter until recently, when the N. Y., N. H. & H. road attempted to enforce a rule compelling the men to unload teams, really for the purpose of helping the Brine Company. Apparently the railroads desired to force the issue in order to bring on a strike, for last week seven men were discharged for not observing the rule, and were refused reinstatement by the company. As a result a general strike was ordered.

Solidarity of Workingmen.

Not only did the transportation workers quit, but other trades joined in. Building laborers, housesmiths, brewery workers, wool handlers, and others refused to handle material hauled by non-union men. The teamsters of Lynn also struck and the strike was being felt in Brockton, Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, and other cities. The various boards of trade in these cities as well as in Boston were getting a move on themselves to avoid impending disaster. The Central Labor Union and the Building Trades Council were called to meet in special session on Thursday night to act on the strike. The newspapers were shrieking for the Civic Federation to save the city. Altogether the strikers seemed to have the situation well in hand. And then the "settlement" came, and the unions have been dumbfounded ever since.

What is the basis of this settlement? Nothing more nor less than the following proposition from Governor Crane:

"If the strike is declared off to-morrow morning, and those of the men who can will return to their work, I will, as Governor of the Commonwealth, use my best efforts with the New York, New Haven and Hartford Company to have them adopt rules that will be in conformity with those already adopted by the Boston and Maine Company regarding the loading and unloading of teams."

And it was upon this astonishing proposition that the Allied Transportation Council voted to call off the strike.

Capitalists Broke Faith.

What everybody who knows anything about the labor movement expected to happen did happen. When the men reported for work on Friday morning hundreds were turned away. The railroads assumed no responsibility for the Governor's pledge; the coal dealers refused to accept men who were recognized as strike leaders; the express companies will not take back many old employees; non-union freight handlers are unloading teams driven by union men, and general confusion reigns. All day yesterday the Governor was besieged by labor committees insisting on the enforcement of his pledge, but apparently he is powerless. The men are blandly requested to "have patience," and the Governor admits that the railroads have not agreed to reinstate their old employees. A more inglorious ending to a noble contest could not be imagined. Meanwhile the railroad managers are laughing, the merchants are happy at the renewal of business, and the "general public" wisely applauds its Governor and the Physic Federation, as Max Hayes aptly styles it, which had its Mr. Easley on the ground to help "settle" the difficulty.

For, of course, the merchants, capitalists, and the "general public" think all is lovely so long as the strike is broken. What do they care for the poor devils who have lost their jobs, who have wives and children to support, and whose chance of employment grows less as time passes? Only the working people themselves will know what these poor heroes will suffer for their voluntary sacrifice. And in addition to this must be reckoned the lack of solidarity and the disorganization that will result from this disaster.

Who Is to Blame.

Who is to blame for all this? The strike leaders will very properly come in for their share; indeed they are already receiving it. Their action in accepting the Governor's proposition was that of men either fearful of defeat or overwhelmed with the magnitude of the struggle they had conjured up, or both. It is true that if they had refused the Governor's proposition they would have forfeited public sympathy, which in this case was with them, and called down upon them the wrath of the newspapers, which were also inclined favorably because the public was. But for the sake of the other trades that had struck in sympathy they should have demanded a concrete proposition and a signed agreement from the employers. Now they have only the Governor's promise, indefinite and illusory.

As for the Governor—while acting honestly, perhaps—he has acted nevertheless as any capitalist would. He views the situation through capitalist eyes, and the first thought therefore was to get the machinery of profit running again and to restore "proper commercial relations." For succeeding in this he will receive the plaudits of his class throughout the remainder of his life. His last thought was of the workmen, and only after their committees came trooping up to him with their grievances did he halt in his rejoicing over his achievement. Granting that the Governor is honest (and it is admitted that he is above the average in capitalist honesty), he probably feels to-day as if he had been buncoed by his railroad friends.

But one thing is certain: The incapacity of the Civic Federation is fully established, if the fact would only be admitted. It did not prevent the strike, nor is the settlement creditable to it, if it should claim the credit, which its promoters are preparing to do. And if these are the sort of settlements the Federation is going to evolve, nothing could more effectively substantiate our contention that its chief mission is to destroy working class unity and perpetuate wage slavery.

What the final outcome of the present state of affairs will be no one can tell. To-morrow the unions meet and the situation will be fully discussed. There is no doubt that a strong feeling exists to call all the former strikers out again, unless every one now out is reinstated. The men are righteously indignant, and there is evident determination to make the various employers come to time. The longshoremen are especially wroth and threaten to tie up the steamship lines before midnight Sunday unless they are settled with. It is possible, therefore that the next two days may see an even greater strike than before.

Carey's Picketing Bill.

Aside from the strike the event of the week in legislative circles was the hearing given on Monday night by the Committee on Labor on Representative Carey's bill to legalize picketing during strikes. The hearing was held in the largest room in the State House, and in response to the call of the Legislative committee of the State Federation of Labor a large number of workingmen from this city and delegates from central bodies and local unions throughout the state attended and packed the hall.

The hearing was almost a counterpart of the one held two weeks previously on the initiative and referendum, differing only in the increased number of speakers and their outspoken radicalism. Carey made the introductory remarks, and then turned over the conduct of the hearing to Frank K. Foster, chairman of the legislative committee. Among the speakers were James Wilkinson of Lawrence, ex-Representative Scates of Haverhill, Representative MacCartney, Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Central Labor Union of Boston; Henry D. Lloyd, Fred. Kneeland, Patrick Mahoney, and J. J. Gallagher.

Interest in the hearing was augmented by the strike, the bill being introduced at an opportune time. A notable feature was the radical speeches, some of them even going beyond the limit, but the more radical utterances were the most applauded. John Cashman was loudly cheered when he said the working people should send a hundred Carey's to the State House, "instead of the cheap politicians that get there."

Expressions of sympathy like these with Socialist political action justifies the hope that the time is close at hand when special hearings will not be necessary in order that workingmen should appear as pleaders for labor legislation before those whom they have elected.

WILLIAM MAILLY.
Boston, Mass., Mar. 15.

SOCIALISM vs. SINGLE TAX.

The Socialists of Ward 9 Club, Boston, have arranged a debate on Socialism vs. the Single Tax for their regular monthly agitation meeting. The debate will be held Sunday, Mar. 23, 8 p. m., at Machinists' Hall, Wells' Memorial Building, 987 Washington street. Robert D. Martin will defend the Single Tax position and David Goldstein will talk for Socialism. Admission is free and readers of The Worker are especially invited.

MIDDLE CLASS FAILURES.

Bradstreet's reports 224 failures in the United States during the week, against 178 for the previous week and 207, 190, 205, and 233 for the corresponding weeks of 1901 to 1898. Canada had 31, against 23 for the preceding week. About 87 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 16 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital. And of the half-dozen failures of large companies, two-thirds were probably fraudulent, as in the cases of the Asphalt and Flour trusts, and others. It is the little capitalist, the middle-class men, who are really failing, and the big ones are absorbing their capital.

WHY DID BOSTON'S WORKINGMEN LOSE?

Why was the strike of the Boston transportation workers lost? That is a question that the workers, not only in Boston, but all over the country, not only in the transportation trades, but in all lines of industry, have good reason to consider.

The New York "Times"—a good capitalist organ, an enemy of Socialism and of all that is really progressive in the labor movement—told the story in its headline on Friday of last week. The headline read thus:

"ARBITRATION BREAKS BIG BOSTON STRIKE."

Nothing could be more brutally frank, or more frankly brutal, than that.

The history of this strike has justified, sooner and more fully than we could have expected, the position which The Worker, from the first, took up in regard to the Civic Federation its "Peace Conference," and all the loud talk about "harmony between Capital and Labor" to which it gave rise.

The teamsters in the employ of the Brine Transportation Company of Boston had been on strike for many weeks. The sympathy of the working people of all trades was with them. The court issued an injunction, practically forbidding them to do anything, as an organized body of men, to win their strike.

These striking teamsters and their sympathizers waited with admirable patience, through long and weary weeks, till the question of making the injunction permanent should be decided. They did not want to strike. They felt their obligation to the rest of the people not to strike unless forced to it.

The Superior Court finally gave a decision. It made the injunction permanent. The judges of that Court were elected largely by workingmen's votes, but they were nominated and the votes were influenced by capitalist politicians. Therefore the Court decided in favor of the capitalists and against the workingmen.

There was only one thing, in common honor, left for the transportation workers to do. Like honorable men and brave men, they struck in sympathy with the Brine teamsters.

And now the Hanna-Gompers Peace Committee came in to play its part.

The unions of the transportation trades had appealed to this Peace Committee to bring about a settlement without a general strike before the permanent injunction was issued. Mr. Easley, Secretary of the Civic Federation, had come to Boston, looked over the situation, found the capitalists apparently safe, and gone away again without so much as turning over his hand to help the Brine strikers.

When the general sympathetic strike came the capitalists were scared. Tens of thousands of men went out. "Business interests" were threatened. Presto! Mr. Easley, Secretary of the Civic Federation, came back and looked over the situation again.

The situation was changed. He found the strikers united, devoted, brave, enthusiastic, with a good prospect of victory over the capitalists who own the Superior Court. He set to work.

Governor Crane—good capitalist gentleman that he is—lent a hand in the work. He promised to use his influence on the strikers' side—if they would call off the strike.

The capitalist newspapers joined in the scheme. They told what a good and what an influential man Governor Crane was, what a good man Mr. Easley was, what a good thing the Civic Federation was, what a bad thing a general strike was, and how everything would be lovely if the men would go back to work.

The men went back. They believed in Governor Crane and Mr. Easley and the Civic Federation and the capitalist editors. They supposed such eminent gentlemen must be fairly honest men, like themselves. They never suspected them of deliberately and maliciously plotting and lying to betray the working class.

That is where they made their mistake.

It has become a proverb: PUT NOT YOUR FAITH IN PRINCES. In this twentieth century we must add—ESPECIALLY IN THE PRINCES OF INDUSTRY.

They trusted to the eminent "friends of Labor" to settle their troubles by arbitration, abandoned their strike, and went back to their jobs.

But they didn't all get their jobs back.

The scabs were kept. The bosses said they were In Honor Bound to keep the scabs. Imagine Honor in a capitalist and toward a scab!

The leaders in the strike were blacklisted. The bosses said they were Agitators and Dangerous Characters. Imagine, if you can, anything more Dangerous than these capitalists who have the power to blacklist and ruin men who are too manly to bow to their will! A thousand Anarchists like Czolgosz are not so dangerous as one of these industrial despots.

Well, the strike is lost. Mr. Hanna may congratulate himself—for the present. Mr. Gompers should hang his head for shame—now and forever. The Boston strikers—and other workmen—should learn a lesson.

This is the lesson:

For one-hundredth of one per cent. increase in profits the capitalist class will corrupt the courts, betray its country, overturn law and constitution, forswear its religion, sell its honor, break the solemnest oaths that man can devise.

You can trust the capitalist or while you hold a club over his he and then you must look sharp th does not put a poisoned da tween your ribs.

The shield to use agains ery is a solid and class-conse unionism, without any hint or any shadow of compromis.

The club with which alone yo lay the ghost of Capitalism lo political power of the working c the Socialist ballot—THE ONLY T LOT THAT HE FEARS.

Let us have no more Cranes. I have Careys and MacCartne every State House in the land!

"THE LAW AND THE TRAMP."

This will be the subject of Simon O. Pollock's lecture Sunday evening, Mar. 23, at the rooms of the Socialist Educational League, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street. Admission is free and readers of The Worker are especially invited to come and bring their friends.

In connection with the work of the League, a class of twenty members in the Mills School of Social Economy is about to be formed under a competent instructor. The charge for twenty lessons is $1. Those wishing to join should write to Alfred Mayell at the Club Rooms.

LECTURE BY BOLTON HALL.

Bolton Hall will speak Sunday at 3 p. m. in the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, taking the Single Tax as his subject. All readers of The Worker are invited to come and bring others with them, as an interesting lecture and a lively discussion may be expected. Admission is free.

The unfortunate blunder, by which some who came to the last lecture were turned away at the door, will not be repeated, as the Lecture Committee will have a man at the door to direct visitors to the hall.

"THE PURPOSE OF LIFE."

F. Schlueter will lecture on "The Purpose of Life," Sunday evening, Mar. 23, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue. All are cordially invited.

INCREASE IN VERMONT.

John Anderson, candidate of the Socialist Party for Mayor of Barre, Vt., polled 246 votes out of a total of 1,043. A year ago we polled only 222 out of a total vote of 1,328.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

"POVERTY AND OLD A.

"Poverty and Old Age" will subject of John Sparge's lectur Happy Days Hall, 12 St. Marks Pla on the two following Sunday afternoons, Mar. 23 and 30. He will discuss both existing conditions—the increasing difficulty of getting employment after middle age and the impracticability of providing for old age by "industry and frugality"—and also the various proposed remedies or palliatives, such as trade unions, benefit societies, old age pensions, etc. The lectures will begin at 3 p. m. Admission is free and there should be a good attendance.

FESTIVAL IN THE BRONX.

The Progressive Workingmen's Societies of the Bronx will hold a festival on Saturday, Mar. 22, at Ebling's Casino, One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street and St. Anne's avenue. Admission is 15 cents and the proceeds are to go to the campaign fund. All comrades and sympathizers in the Bronx should help make the affair a success.

CONCERT IN BROOKLYN.

The Socialist Propaganda Club will give a grand concert in their hall, 102 Court street, Brooklyn, Sunday evening, Mar. 23. Leonard D. Abbott will deliver a short address. The concert will be of a very high order. Mr. Fajans, who played at the Crosby-Harriman debate, will render several violin solos. Claude Thardo of the Park Theater, has promised to sing some of his negro melodies. Miss Nahar, a well-known dramatic reader, will recite, and several selections will be rendered by a violin quartette. Vocal and piano solos will also form part of the program. Admission is 25 cents and will go towards paying the expenses of the Club.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association,

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.30
100 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.25
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

TWO KINDS OF PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Government ownership is becoming popular nowadays. Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, declares for government ownership of the railroads. Very good—if it be the right sort of government ownership. If Mr. Knapp means that the government shall buy the roads and issue bonds to the stockholders and run the roads so as to make a profit to pay the interest on those bonds—as unreasonable he does mean—that is a position that the Republican party [illegible] very reasonably and consistently [illegible] very likely will take up [illegible] years. The business interest is, the capitalist interests, [illegible] try are very likely to desire [illegible] ernment ownership, for a number [illegible] reasons—to protect themselves [illegible] effects of what they call "cut-[illegible] competition among themselves, [illegible] ve them a unified and systematic [illegible] bor obstruction of the transportation [illegible] ry, to try to head off the danger [illegible] allism, and, perhaps, to put themselves in a position to deal more effectively with strikes of railway employees, [illegible] these become dangerous, by Seattle, all railway workers under the [illegible] furnish government employees and to [illegible] ng a strike as a mutiny—just as [illegible] Italian government has attempted to do.

Capitalists, large and small, may see hope in government ownership of this sort, and some superficial reformers may be deceived into accepting it as a forward step. But it is not at all the sort of government ownership that Socialists want, and Socialists will see that the difference is made clear. We want government ownership for the benefit of wage-workers, not of bondholders, and that we can get only when the wage-working class controls the government. For that reason the Socialist Party insists on basing all its propaganda on protetarian class interest, class feeling, and class organization and rejects all suggestions of compromise.

Senator Depew, murderer-at-large, is reported to have spoken with extraordinary eloquence in support of the Ship Subsidy Bill. Quite natural. Such a gigantic steal ought to inspire any confirmed criminal to eloquence.

A writer in the "Union Boot and Shoe Worker" gives as one of the reasons why there have been so many battles between Capital and Labor the alleged fact that "Labor in the past has been too unreliable to be worth dealing with." We enter our protest against this statement. Where workingmen's organizations have broken faith with capitalists once, capitalists have violated their most solemn promises a hundred times. Again and again, bound only by a sense of manly honor, labor organizations have allowed favorable opportunities for battle to go by, rather than lay themselves open to the charge of bad faith. And the answer, "We have nothing to arbitrate," has come always from the employers, not from the employees. If the capitalists are eager for arbitration now, it is chiefly because they fear the growing strength and unrest of the working class. A robber class respects nothing but the show of power. The day may not be far distant when the workers can say to their exploiters in turn, "We have nothing to arbitrate." Meanwhile, let the "Sun" and its ilk go on accusing the working class of faithlessness, but let labor papers not echo the falsehood.

While capitalist interests are clashing at Washington over questions of sugar tariff, ship subsidies, and isthmian canals, the pure-food bill makes but little stir. But the capitalists will not overlook it. They will see that business interests are safeguarded and sacred rights of property maintained. Capitalism is alone responsible for the need of a pure-food law, for profit is the only motive to the poisoning of the people's food.

THE LESSON OF ALTGELD'S CAREER.

The Democratic party has lost one of the few prominent men whose presence in its ranks gave it any excuse whatever for claiming to be "the party of the common people." Just as Grover Cleveland, who represents the essentially capitalistic character of the party, is being again pushed to the front, John P. Altgeld, Cleveland's old antagonist, has gone to his grave; and the capitalist press has hardly tried to conceal its exultation over the removal of so troublesome a man.

With all his grave faults and all his serious mistakes, Altgeld must command our respect for two of his official acts which showed his conscience and his moral courage in striking contrast to the shifty evasions of Bryan and all his imitators.

When, during the great A. R. U. strike of 1894, Governor Altgeld raised his protest against the sending of troops by President Cleveland to crush the strike, he did a right and brave thing. He stood practically alone in his party in opposition to this abuse of the military power; and his protest, though ineffective, must be remembered to his credit. The time may come when other public officials will be called upon to follow his example, and we may hope, with more success.

Altgeld's great title to the respect of the working class and of honest men, however, is his message of 1893, not only pardoning the three surviving victims of the judicial crime known as the Haymarket Anarchist trial—not merely pardoning them as an act of mercy, but releasing them as an act of justice and indicting the judges and public officials, the editors and preachers, and the capitalists standing behind all, who had deliberately murdered five workingmen and condemned three others to living graves.

Six years after the trial the capitalist public could have forgiven the mere pardon. But the pardon message put capitalism itself in the pillory—and that could not be forgiven. What is worth remembering is that, in all the storm of denunciation which immediately burst upon Altgeld's head, not one serious attempt was made to refute his statement of facts or to reply to his scathing indictment. No reply was possible, for Altgeld had written only the truth; that is why respectable society raved against him in 1893 and why it pursues him with abuse today.

And yet, sad as it is to have to say it of the man who did these two things, Altgeld's life was, on the whole, a failure; and probably none felt that so keenly as Altgeld himself. The failure was not that he never reached a higher position than that of Governor of Illinois, nor that he died a rejected leader of a defeated party. The failure was that, with an undoubtedly sincere desire to help in the emancipation of the working class, he had been able to do nothing toward that end; that after spending years in the effort to make his party the political champion of industrial freedom, he saw it, at last, as reactionary as it was impotent. And the failure was an inevitable one—only Altgeld did not see that till too late.

Less than a year ago, Altgeld openly declared to members of the Socialist Party that, were he a younger man, had he the last few years of his life to live over again, he would unhesitatingly take his place in our ranks. He saw at last, not only that Socialism is the only way to freedom, but that the Independent and uncompromising Socialist Party is the only means to its establishment. But he had gone through too many battles and defeats, and had become too intimately associated with old-party politicians and too deeply entangled in the mazes of old-party politics to feel that he had the strength to break away and take up a new and strenuous part at so late a day.

For Altgeld, we have no words of blame. We remember the brave though imperfect part that he played and have only regret that his long identification with a capitalist party made it impossible for him to take the one step that would have set right his whole career. It would have been a great thing could he have done it. But we have no right to demand such things of men of the old generation. The Revolution belongs to the young and on them rests its solemn responsibility. The duty of those younger men who admire Altgeld's courage and lament his death is to take up and do the work he could not do—to carry out through the party of the Revolution, the task that he tried and failed to accomplish in the party of Reaction.

So the respectable elements want a reorganized Democracy, do they? A Democratic party that will adhere to the principles of Grover Cleveland? Good. Doubtless they will get what they want; and nothing could please Socialists better. There were too many people fooled in 1900 by the hypocritical radical pretenses of Bryanism. In the face of a frankly capitalistic Democracy, led by such men as Cleveland, these men will see their way clear to vote the Socialist ticket.

It is pleasing to note King Edward's decision that it would be unwise for him to visit Ireland at the present time, for fear of insult and hostile demonstration. It must be said in praise of the Irish people that they are good rebels by birth, though most of them have not yet learned to be intelligent revolutionists. When they see that it is an oppressing class, not an oppressing nation, that they have to fight, there will be hope of freedom for the masses in old Ireland.

The New York "Times" should try to get itself together somehow. On Monday of last week a front-page news article, announcing the sympathetic strike in Boston truthfully stated that the officers of the various unions involved had hard work holding the men back so long. On Friday a bitter editorial against the strikers began with the words: "It would seem as if the New England labor leaders could have a better way of settling the issues than by sympathetic strikes," etc. Of course, the fact is that neither leaders nor rank and file are commonly anxious for a strike; that the officers, on account of their responsible position, generally dread it and put it off as long as possible; and that the blame for the conflict almost invariably rests on the arbitrary stubbornness of capitalists who "have nothing to arbitrate." Workingmen know this to be the fact and they need at least one daily in the land that would tell the truth.

"Social Justice" informs the world—or part of it—that: "The Worker has taken occasion to score Wayland for his erstwhile teachings that the post-office was a sample of Socialism" and that "Wayland smarts under the lash and replies that it is a case of 'envy.'" We protest. We didn't "score" Comrade Wayland; at least we intended to do nothing worse than criticize him; we haven't seen any evidences of his "smarting" nor heard his cry of "envy." Really, The Worker would get along beautifully with Comrade Wayland if so many of our mutual friends wouldn't try to play peacemaker—and stir up trouble in doing it.

Richard Croker, before sailing for his English home, protested against being assessed for taxes on personal property to the amount of $25,000, and it now appears that the "reformers," who so vigorously denounced Croker last October and so confidently promised what they would do to him, have "reduced his assessment to a very small sum." Which was to have been expected from spineless "reformers."

"The desire for gain," says the New York "Times," "is never the basis of high art of any kind." We are glad to have the admission from a defender of capitalism, and we would add that the desire for gain is never the basis of any high or noble activity of any sort.

The State Committee's reply to Archbishop Corrigan and Bishop Quigley, published in The Worker last week, has been warmly praised for its combination of firmness with moderation in the treatment of the question. This address has been issued in leaflet form in English and in German and should be widely circulated.

A "BROAD" FIASCO.

A meeting was called at Omaha on Mar. 2 to launch the so-called "Allied Third Party," which was to "unite all reformers" on a single plank platform—initiative and referendum—and by its "broadness and practicality" was to wipe out the Socialist Party. The meeting was a frost. The Socialists were there, and when a chance was given for discussion our State Secretary, Comrade Baird, made a clear statement of the position of the Socialist Party. Only one man in the hall responded to the call for members of the new organization and the promoters of the scheme left in disgust.

EFFECT OF FARMING MACHINERY.

A few years ago it took one man thirty-five and one-half hours to take a ton of hay from the stubble and put it in bales. It now takes eleven hours and thirty-four minutes. The cost is reduced from $3.06 to $1.29 a ton. This is the result of the introduction of improved agricultural machinery. The advantage has not gone to the agricultural laborers and small tenants or mortgaged farmers who do the work, but to the landlords and mortgage holders who practically, if not actually, own both land and machinery. That is a good reason why those who work on the land should vote for Socialism.

THE DEGRADATION OF PUBLIC LIFE.

BY PETER E. BURROWES.

The individualistic conceit of the eighteenth century which culminated in the French Revolution is in its atrophy. It was the idealization of a negative, and not much, therefore, above preparatory achievement, could not have been gathered from its era. No doubt the revolt of the private life was in order at that time; no doubt, the authoritarians of crown, coronet and mitre had bossed themselves out of further business by sitting too heavily upon every ego but their own; and no doubt a mighty, a wondrous impulse has been given to science, art, and industry by the principle which revolted against them; yet there is also no particle of doubt that the principle of personal liberation for the sake of liberty alone must now make way, by its own dissolution, for the greater principle which it contained within it and which by its excesses has brought to light and rendered inevitable—the material, moral, and intellectual evolution of the mass first and afterwards of the man.

I do not know how why so long before economic conditions had given a basis for it, the older world affords us such notable examples of great national strength. The magnificent movements of great armed multitudes, the heroics of Xenophon's masses, the epics of concerted action, organization, and achievement with which ancient history abounds, would seem to indicate that mankind has for many ages slumbered under a retarded development of the public life. Rome left us her magnificent juridical system; she left us the machinery for conducting state affairs in republics, kingdoms, empires, and colonial federations; and we have, for two thousand years, only just hung on. Even the Jews, after their transit from Egypt, were a people, and remained a people until, having settled in Palestine, their land lay between inland wealth and the great sea, and they began to dicker for tariffs until they became profit-mongers only, and so lost the public sentiment of one great life. In those days religion seems to have played a part the very opposite of its role in ours. The Jewish man was blessed as a member of a federation of tribes. He had nothing in himself to present as a cheque upon Heaven's treasury but his conformity to the law; and if he was blessed it was not as a fore-ordained ego, but as a unit among the chosen people.

Paul boasts that he is a citizen of no mean city, and so appeals to Cesar; whereas a modern Paul passing through a famous city would speak of it as the birthplace of Tom Thumb or some other distinguished individual who has thus made it famous. From the state or city ideal, with all its sins, to the Tom Thumb ideal is, nevertheless, a great fall. From the church that led nations on a mad chase to the Holy Sepulchre on a basis of religious solidarity to the church that leads to personal sanctification into everyone's own rat-hole is, notwithstanding the folly of the Crusades, a great fall of ideal. From the unity of imperial Rome's massive despotism over the world to the rush by so many million of unknown X's after a thing they call liberty, is, notwithstanding the crimes of the old despotism, a descent as to principle, a falling off as to the ideal.

When her one old source of royal income became broken up into many, and the church was forced to turn to thousands of newly filled private purses for her bread and butter, she ceased to be the same one angelic host of old, and broke herself up into as many private guardian angels as there were successful fortune-hunters in her country; and when the successful ones integrated again for the formation of a dollar aristocracy, after the disintegration of the French Revolution, she also collected her thoughts and sympathies and followed the flag, that is, when it was securely planted. She is no longer the healer of nations, but the provider of new clean hearts to private persons; which she also keeps a-going morally at such a rate as the nature of modern business will permit. When the fatty degeneration of heart which kills the successful Christian merchant at last stops his ticker and calls him hence, the church usually rakes a little gold out of the ashes; and therefore she remains to-day what the French Revolution made her—the church of the single life, the helpmate of anarchy and social dissolution.

I do not blame the church for this, but I blame the teachers and books of the world who held back from me the key of profane history and sacred mystery until Marx unfolded the universal monarchy of the economic power over all hundun institutions and authorized teachings. I do not blame the church for following her income, because I now know that, man for man, the church has no better men for moral emergencies than the rest of the world can supply. I believe that our ideals are themselves the effects of economic causes; they, together with all other effects, become in turn themselves the causes of other series of effects, and perhaps the most powerful among the new factors. They are in many times of decay as the salt of the earth, often outliving the conditions and motives that gave them birth and thus carrying people from one crisis safely to another. The collective political ideal which the church learned from pagan Rome being a case in point—an ideal which she transmitted from Constantine to Chatlemagne, but which she at last surrendered to the miserable bourgeois that sprung from the French Revolution; she has lost her savor, she is salt no more; she has contributed, together with other unworthy forces, towards the degradation of public life.

Was it liberty that drove her away? No, she left none behind her and she brought none and went in search of none.

The thing which the new class, called liberty degraded public life. It soon manifested itself to mean only its liberty to appropriate the wealth produced by labor and to keep possession of that wealth as the legislative class—the liberty to rob in order to reign, the liberty to reign in order to rob; the liberty to make crimes (law making) and take fines, or some other form of levy upon the life of their age, Liberty for its own sake, if you please; but "its own sake" usually took the form of an economic and legal confiscation of the wealth of labor; and for its own sweet sake this liberty sucked the vital essence out of the public ideal of life, leaving in its place a base, degenerate, self-seeking gnome known as the successful business man.

I have already conceded that the despotisms of the old collectivist in politics and unitarian in law and doctrine was no longer endurable and have expressed my inability to account for its long life. I have paid my compliments to pagan Rome for having given us a machine which, in spite of the death piety of the mediaeval church, kept the church herself and all the rest of us moving. I have complimented the church for having at least passed on the ideal of unity among all the nations which were called by her name on Sundays, and for thus saving Christendom by the one great doctrine of pagan Rome—Unity, the unity which glowed in the tense self-consuming soul of Dante, and which still remains confessed to be the brightest jewel in her time, although essentially it is now but paste. I have justified the libertarians in their French revolt, and I have honored them for the impetus given to human prosperity by their avarice. Goths and Vandals as they were, and they fell right lustily like locusts upon the privileges of the church and the old nobility and upon the abilities of labor alike, and wrested such wealth, potency, and instruction out of them all for the future that we thank that grinning satyr, the middle class, for its ferocious, all-absorbing liberty, a liberty that loved itself alone.

The Satyr is passing out; he is passing out and leaving us no ideal for the continuance of civilization. Public life has become wholly degenerate in his hands. He leaves us nothing but private avarice, and the word, "liberty."

To the poor moles of France, the French workingmen, liberty was a great word. They saw none of it in their lives, and thought mayhap it might be had by a few gunshots and a change of words. They knew not that economic power and that alone means liberty and only for those who possess that power. They went to battlefields to fight for it, not knowing that they went there in the uniform and carrying the guns of the class which was holding back liberty. They knew not that wars of liberation can never more be wars for parchments and Bills of Rights and Declarations of Independence, but must henceforth be the continuous struggle of classes for the substantial elements of economic production. They knew not that it was no longer for the deposition of a man or a dynasty that liberators must struggle, but for the control of parliaments and the ownership of the age's tools; that the glow-worm fires of personal struggle between man and man are no more; having given place to the campfires of the two classes, the owners that work not, and the workers that own not. They knew not this latest message of science and sociology, and so fell victims to the great documentary liberty with which France and America have hypnotized the wage slaves.

Frenchmen were such fine creatures inside, and it was the nobility alone that kept each unit of France's millions from going off in his native splendor, which he would surely do under liberty. Liberty was the hand that would surely raise the veil that concealed every Frenchman from an admiring world. Liberty, for its own sake they loved it, for its own sake they indulged in liberty without reference to the human life and the human species for which liberty and all things else are functioning. The result was they left the world only their own dreams for liberty, which Ferri so concisely damns as "social masturbation."

How swiftly the class which exploited that liberty has swept through its aeon! How soon it developed the symptoms of dissolution! It has rushed with the speed of its own inventions, steam and electricity, to the point where it can function organically no more. Choked with its own waste, the engines of it are stopping. In its blind rush to send its million words of power along the wires, the wires themselves are fusing; they are choked. The huge monstrosity of liberty for its own sake, only to make money with, has brought the profit-giant in the fullness of his pride of strength and stature down. He had no mate; he could have none; he leaves no heirs, no successors. Only the great mother, Evolution, takes what is vital out of him and hands it over to us, the Socialists, to build withal and cherish the new civilization.

I am fearing that the people who do the world's work to-day are not preparing themselves for the great marriage supper of the next era of economic collectivism; that the vivid image in the mind is not ours, the image of what we are and what is our mission and destiny as the producing class, the clear incandescent consciousness of our slavery and our vicarious mission between the present and the future. And if not, the hasty dissolution of capitalism seems to be a disaster, inasmuch as it leaves the most advanced portions of the human race uninstructed as to the meaning, sources and goal of private liberty, and while necessitating that the next stage in society shall be collective, leaves this necessity with minds not yet accustomed to the collective thought, leaves it with the really potent class of the world not yet organized nor accustomed to move together, leaves the masses of the people in a state of mental degradation concerning public life.

There is nevertheless a sort of blessed certainty about these blind chances, to which the cause of human society seems to be vastly indebted; or we are endowed with a racial persistency to build up commonwealths, even as caged and solitary birds are to build nests, though it be out of their own feathers and on the wires of their prison; blind to the fact that there is to be no comradeship, no love, and no posterity in that cage; and so in spite of years of captivity we social birds of the human family build on.

It is, therefore, not quite in accordance with my own views concerning the socialistic destiny of man to write upon the decay of public spirit, for the spirit of public life is everlasting. But I have much to complain of, that it has been cheated of its fruition, cheated of love and comradeship, and by its own genius has been led captive into disaster and degradation. Public life is only degraded.

Oh, those pathetic, tragic rallyings of the public instinct on the world's battlefields, led by the private demon of war! And the unconquerable rallyings of the conquered back again and again to aggregations in villages and towns and armies! How successfully the purpose of all war has been hidden from the warriors! How often they have fought and won for others the right to hold the economic forces of their time, while every battle won or lost was their own continued defeat. Surely if the greater creatures take proportionally a longer period to reach maturity, the proletarian is leading us out into a great democracy, and ages of growing should yield an enduring harvest.

The disasters of old conquests by old sword-conquerors, with their frank brutality and violence, seem to me less serious than the fan fights and defeats which constitute our modern public life in America. To be brained with my lady's fan was the ludicrous doom of many a Pompey; but there are some defeats more disastrous than that. A lady is at least an object of beauty and delight; she is constituted by all the skill of nature's motherhood to win the loyalty of man, and if in the silken bondage of her presence a Samson or a Pompey forget their Israel or their Rome, the public spirit at any rate has not been bartered away for a dead unlovely clod, as in my opinion it is bartered now in America for the sordid politics of the middle class.

The insincere slander of one another which supplies the ammunition of public life during our elections, the degenerate's return to dead forms of cant which constitutes the bulk of the reformers' phrases to-day, the hopeless tangle drawn around the feet of the people when they function as a political democracy, and the brain-fuddle supplied to them as patriotic stimulants for the public spirit, make the captivity of the democracy by the profit-monger more lamentable. The degradation of the public life is measured by the humiliating unworthiness of the men of profit into whose blighting custody the public life has fallen.

The motive and the man now holding society in their unclean grip are not tuned nor adequate to public life. The private interest alone is not a governmental power. Government under the profit-monger, by the profit-monger, and for the profit-monger is such a wilderness of nondirections that if we pull up upon any spot that looks like a highway it is mere luck; it is only by fortuitous concourse of sheep-tracks that we now form the lines of public life. The profit-monger has too many private pockets about him which lead nowhere; he is not a sphinx, but a riddle. The private circumstance is no leader of public affairs; he is only self-succeeding. Take him all in all, he is a creature too fertile in vermiform appendix to live a wholesome life himself or to lead the state into it.

The bourgeois, with his parasitic existence upon the surplus from improved labor methods might long have remained in the ghettos of society without attracting much scorn; but since he has moved to the palace, dividing his hours between that and the senate, the public school, the public altar, the court of justice, and the war department, we are forced to contemplate him as the carcase in which resides all that is left to us of public spirit.

It is sneeringly said that democracy has proved a failure; and truthfully would it be so said if the present ruling, parasite of the bourse, and the market place were all that we are to see of democracy. When democracy is free from the bonds of wage-slavery, and not until then, the world will have its first glance of public life as manifested in democracy, and then democracy shall stand upon its merits. The class, trained through ages of tribulations, which has graduated through every stage of that conflict of classes by which society grows into the wisdom, fitness, and public spirit, having for all ages fed the whole race, will when it has learned to feed itself, be democracy. Like the life-saving captain and his crew, they have manned the boats and put all of us safely on this last isle of history; when finally they come themselves and beach the boats we shall have democracy and the public spirit.

CLASS-CONSCIOUSNESS.

The word class-conscious conveys the idea of classes in our social and industrial life. He, who is a class-conscious worker, freely distinguishes between these classes in society and is enabled to place himself in the class to which he happens to belong. From the moment of such classification, the energy of the classified one is, or should be, directed unselfishly toward the uplifting of the whole body to which his interests are allied. He should not merely seek to raise himself alone, but, by use of the idea that only through the betterment of all, can there be any real advance in relation to the world's improvement, he should labor to upheave the whole mass and go up himself with it.

Class-consciousness is truly the fruit of thought and deliberation. The term connotes a recognition of differences in the orders of life and to satisfy oneself one must carefully examine one's social system as we have it; he must gather evidence and from it conclude what his own position is, and having so classified himself he has performed a conscious act. He has located himself in the whirls of the world; he has learned to recognize those whose interests are identical with or opposed to his own. And he has come to understand that the very best way to forward his own interest is to labor unceasingly for the interest of his own class. — Courier-Herald, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

COMPLETED PROVERBS.

"Labor overcometh all things," even the laborer.

"Possession is nine points of the law," and frequently all the profits.

"Every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost," is the cry of those who are well in front.

"Whate'er is best administered is best" for the one who administers.

"Employment brings enjoyment" when it brings the means to enjoy.

—L. de V. Mathewman in Era.

—A Socialist can much better afford to be poorer by ten dollars than to be without a Socialist Daily.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

ORGANIZED SELF-HELP: A History and Defence of the American Labor Movement. By Herbert N. Casson. New York. Peter Eckler. Paper, 211 pages. Price, 25 cents.

Mr. Casson, in his introduction, speaks of "Organized Self-Help" as "the first attempt which has been made to describe the American Labor Movement as a whole." Now Richard T. Ely's "Labor Movement in America" is not altogether satisfactory, but it is at least a far more successful "attempt" than this. Are we to insult Mr. Casson by supposing him ignorant of even the existence of Ely's book, or must we ascribe the erroneous statement to his well known native modesty? The sub-title is a misnomer; the book may claim consideration as a "defense"—or, rather, an apology—for the existence of the labor movement (though surely no apology is needed); but it is in no sense a history. There are many curious facts—some of them important and some trivial—which, we are informed, "have been gathered from responsible writers" (it would have been a good idea for the author to let us know who these writers are, but he gives us hardly a single reference); but these facts are jumbled together without relation or perspective and evidently without comparison—for the facts adduced to support the contentions of one chapter often clash with those chosen to illustrate the next.

Mr. Casson made a great mistake when he felt "called" to write a history of American trade unionism. He has not the experience in the labor movement that might partially justify him on the one hand; on the other, he has neither the historical instinct nor the scholarly training, and he lacks either the industry or the leisure, for careful investigation of his subject. The history of American trade unionism ought to be written. The writing of it will be a heavier task than that of writing the political history of the nation, but it will be worth the trouble—when the right man does it. "Let every shoemaker stick to his last." Mr. Casson was born to be—not a "young minister out-of-a-job"—but a bright and superficial newspaper writer. Let him leave history and philosophy to drier and deeper men.

A HISTORIC PARALLEL.

By Charles Dobbs.

In his testimony before the committees of the Congress, at Washington, Governor W. H. Taft apologized for that "relic of barbarism," chattel slavery, as it exists in portions of the Philippine archipelago. He admits that it is most unfortunate that the institution of slavery exists there, but he apologetically points out that its form is very mild—almost idyllically patriarchal, in fact. The slaves, also, he shows, are allowed to purchase their freedom; but he doesn't tell how working for nothing, they can save the purchase price. Going further, he maintains that the slaves are "happy and contented" and would probably violently oppose any effort of misguided friends to emancipate them.

Comenting on Governor Taft's testimony, the Louisville "Courier-Journal" pertinently remarks that "these are precisely the things that were said of American slavery in the days when it was under fire" and that some of the Southern people "are rather surprised that they have lived long enough to hear prominent members of the party which then attacked slavery apologizing for it in very much the same terms that were employed by Southern people forty-five or fifty years ago."

The same evils naturally evoke the same defense and the "Courier-Journal" cheerfully admits that the Southern slaveocracy's contentions were as hypocritical and specious as are the present Republican party arguments in support of slavery in the Philippines. However, it does not appear to strike the Democratic "Courier-Journal" that the parallelism of the arguments in defense of American and Philippine slavery is not half so significant as the identity of the defense of Chattel and Wage Slavery. The "Courier-Journal" is a typical capitalist organ, and being so, familiar with the casuistry and hypocrisy of the Southern slave owners, it is a matter of wonder that it should have the effrontery to borrow and use that same casuistry and hypocrisy in defense of the far more brutal institution of Wage Slavery.

Every strike for a larger degree of freedom by wage workers is opposed by the "Courier-Journal" and its capitalist contemporaries on the identical lines the slave owners pursued in opposing abolition.

Is the wage slave dissatisfied? The capitalist press points out that he may be a capitalist to-morrow. So it was pointed out fifty years ago that the chattel slave could buy his freedom.

Does the wage slave seek to regulate the conditions of labor? He is told he is infringing on the "sacred right" of the capitalist to do as he pleases with his property. So the assaults on chattel slavery were characterized as attacks on the "sacred right of property."

Does the agitator seek to arouse his brethren? He is denounced as an "incendiary," fanning the fires of discontent among the "happy and contented" workers. The chattel slaves were also "happy and contented" and some ignobly clung to their chains even when the shackles were burst.

The early abolitionists were mobbed as their successors, the Socialist advocates of the abolition of wage slavery have been mobbed.

Abraham Lincoln, as a perusal of the files of ante-bellum newspapers will show, was venomously reviled by cartoon and printed line as the Socialists who have taken up his work are reviled now. The epithets hurled at him are hurled now at Socialists, and as he walked serenely and unafraid through the storm of calumny and ridicule so are the abolitionists of this latter day marching on contemptuous of the frenzied malignancy of their foes.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

Appeal to Reason.

Bishop Quigley of Buffalo informs the Catholics that they must renounce Socialism and forswear the teachings of its party, under pain of excommunication. Now will the Catholics be good and let the Fathers do their political thinking, so that they can be delivered, bound hand and foot, to the capitalists? The Father has found the "doctrine has obtained some hold on the Catholic laboring men of Buffalo." Hence this order. This is a good advertisement for Socialism.

Missouri Socialist.

A few days ago Mr. Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the "Peace Conference," paid a visit to Boston for the purpose of bringing about harmony between the striking teamsters of that city and the Brine Transportation Co., their employers. Mr. Easley found, however, that the bosses had the best of the situation and he went back to New York.

The bosses had the best of it in that they had an injunction issued against the strikers, preventing them from placing pickets, and even prohibiting them from calling "scab" to the men who had taken their places.

This little incident serves to show the purpose of the so-called peace conference, and the extent to which workers were fooled into going into the game.

Advance.

It will not do for the Democratic party to disintegrate; it is too useful a foil to the Republican party. The capitalists demand a "legitimate opposition" which shall pretty evenly divide the people and which, if it does win, must be perfectly "safe." If the Democratic party goes to pieces all the conservative traditions it stands for will go with it, and the "opposition" to the governing capitalists will speedily be made up of distinctly working class interests advocating radical if not completely socialistic measures. Free silver is completely dead. The Democracy cannot be rallied again around that point. The trust question will be quietly disposed of by the courts declaring it impossible to stop them. Roosevelt has taken the wind out of the sails of the Democrats on that tack. The only safe proposition left is the tariff. On the tariff question, the Democracy can be reconsolidated more than on any other point and still remain "safe." Better to win back the conservative millionaires and lose the poverty-stricken radicals than turn over the party to the latter; so argue the politicians. And the millionaires agree; because some of them find their interests neglected by the Republican party and all of them wish to see a strong opposition remain "legitimate and safe."

Warren (Mass.) Herald.

But the public may as well cease, definitely, to expect that high society, so-called, or the church, or the colleges, or the institutions generally (with honorable exceptions) will take up reform movements. They will not, as a rule, do so. They depend too much upon the smile of wealth to espouse an unpopular cause. Institutions are proverbially conservative. By its own acts the church proves itself a human institution, like others, and its claim of peculiar supernatural guidance is disproved daily.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

A Catholic's View of Bishop Quigley.

Editor of The Worker.

In the matter of Bishop Quigley, I am a Catholic, as such I respect my church, and I consider mine and all others good institutions, just so long as they attend to these things for which they are supposed to exist—the teaching of religion. But I am not going to be dictated to in my politics by my religious instructor.

The case is when the minister or priest said was accepted by their congregations, and the result was the murder of the Catholics of Ireland and the torture of the Protestants of Spain, of the natives of Mexico and South America—and always in the name of Christ.

And we workingmen of to-day are reading these things and calmly sifting the good in their history from the bad, and the result is that a growing number of us are not to be blinded into becoming tools for the repression of those dark, bloody pages in the history of Protestants and Catholics—not the churches, they are harmless and blameless, but leaders who in the light of true justice must rank as the most contemptible of wretches.

Education, fair and impartial, therefore, is the key for our success; for possessing it we distinguish right and wrong for ourselves, not, as in the olden days, taking it for granted that those over us are always right.

As long as the Socialist Party stands on the fair platform which you lay down in the issue of Mar. 9—Because we hold that religion is a matter for each individual to decide for himself, we declare that the state has no right to dictate or to prescribe any religious belief, and that a political party has no right to require of its members belief or disbelief in any religious tenet. In a word, we stand for the complete separation of politics from religion. In the same way, under the same reason, we maintain that the state must be independent of all churches; that no church has a right to rule, or if its members the ascendance or reception of some political doctrines—as long as the party sticks to that I shall stick to the party. I believe the party has only to stand on that fair and honorable position to be victorious in this affair.

J. T. NOLAN.

Herkimer, N. Y., Mar. 14.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT US.

"I cannot refrain from congratulating you upon the unusually excellent quality of the issue of The Worker for Mar. 16. If this number is a forecast of what our daily is going to be, the first number of the daily can come none too quickly. You are fortunate in having Mailly as a correspondent from Massachusetts. His letters are always very readable." So writes E. F. Clarke of the 23d A. D., enclosing money for extra copies for distribution.

Assuredly, the daily will beat last week's issue seven times a week. So push it along, comrades.

SOUNDS MUCH THE SAME.

"After all, success in business only comes to plucky people."

"You mean 'from plucking people,' don't you?"—Stray Stories.

—A king is a ruler of the people. What is Morgan or Rockefeller? What is the difference, pray? Do they not levy taxes and squander the money on royalty, just as kings? Say, Bill, where are you at?—Appeal to Reason.

PARTY NOTES.

On April 27 the 31st A. D. will hold a festival at Majestic Hall, 125th street, near Lexington avenue.

The General Committee of Local New York voted to purchase one thousand copies of Hanford's "Railroading in the United States," to be sold to subdivisions in smaller lots at cost for distribution in such way as the various subdivisions think best. The price of the book in quantities of ten or more is two and one-half cents a copy.

The last meeting of the 30th A. D. was an improvement in point of attendance over those recently held, though not all that could be desired. One application for membership was received and E. Meltzer was admitted on transfer from the 15th A. D. A. Uhl, J. Hirsch, and A. Wagner were elected as delegates to the Y. A. C. The vote on proposed amendment to national constitution, Art. 6, Sec. 4, proposed by Local Troy, resulted in 14 for and one against. Two dollars was donated to the N. C. A smoker will be held at the Club House Saturday evening, Mar. 29, and comrades should do all in their power to make it a success. An excellent program has been arranged, and comrades and friends who come will surely enjoy the evening. It is also the duty of comrades in the Thirtieth to attend their district meetings more regularly and take more interest than has been shown for some time past. The Thirtieth should be the banner district next fall if the comrades do their duty.

The comrades of the 34th and 35th A. D., Branch 2, seem to have been on the war-path at their last meeting. The delegates to the General Committee were given instructions to protest against the Publishing Association for charging for insertion of standing notices of the party organizations in the papers; and to move for the dissolution of The Worker Conference; to bring charges against Geo. Finger. Similar steps were initiated against R. W. Berkman. It was voted to send in $4 for subscriptions to The Worker and to buy 20 copies of "Railroading in the United States." The committee reported good prospects for the success of the Progressive Workingmen's Societies' festival on Mar. 22 at Ebling's Casino, the proceeds of which are to go to the campaign fund of this branch.

The Missouri State Committee has issued a protest against the methods being employed to secure pupils for the International School of Social Economy by certain parties in that state announcing themselves as graduates and agents of that institution. The Committee "desires to disclaim any intention of casting any reflection upon the work and purpose of the founder and principal of the school." The Worker has, of course, no direct knowledge of the facts referred to in the state of Missouri or whether similar methods are employed elsewhere, nor can it spare space for the publication of the whole protest. The Missouri State Committee, however, is surely right in arguing that wherever the support of this or any other private institution would interfere with proper support of the party organization, the latter ought to take precedence and that "we might as well expect to win by the simple process of training an unlimited number of secretaries as by artificially developing a host of speakers who cannot be maintained in the field." Those who wish to read the statement of the Committee may send two cents for a copy of the "Missouri Socialist" of Mar. 15.

The comrades of Vineland, N. J., whose tireless work resulted in a trebled vote last election, are still at it, and intend to repeat the trick next time. A series of meetings is contemplated, and Fred. W. Long of Philadelphia, will speak on Monday evening, Mar. 24, in Temperance Hall, on "Class Struggle: The Theory and the Fact."

We are informed that publication of the "Coming Nation" is resumed at Rich Hill, Mo., with Fred D. Warren and E. N. Richardson as editors. The first number appears March 15.

"The People's Paper," Socialist, of Santa Barbara, Cal., celebrates the completion of its third year. Many more to it!

E. T. Behrens, President of the Missouri State Federation of Labor, is the Socialist candidate for Mayor of Sedalia. He has issued an excellent address to the workingmen of the city.—Kansas City Socialists enter the municipal campaign with a clear-cut workingmen's platform. — A Bohemian branch is being organized in St. Louis.

The Socialist representatives in Massachusetts are kept busy. During the past two weeks Carey has spoken before the machinists' union of Lowell, a religious organization in Milford, the outside electrical workers' union of Boston, and for the Socialists in Exeter, N. H., and at Worcester. MacCartney spoke before the carpenters' union of Somerville on Mar. 14, and at Lynn last Sunday on "Labor Legislation." Both also, upon invitation, addressed several meetings of strikers in Boston, and were given enthusiastic receptions. At a smoke talk given by the Boston machinists' union last Monday night, Mar. 17, Carey, Mailly, and other Socialists were among the speakers.

On Mar. 23 the Somerville Socialist Club opens its Sunday evening publicmeetings in a larger hall in the Hill Building. At the last meeting the Club took in three new members. Next meeting will open with music. Comrade Carey will be the speaker Mar. 30.

N. P. Geiger of Dayton, O., is making arrangements for a short agitation tour through Massachusetts.

The National Committee has adopted a resolution requesting Socialist papers and magazines to furnish a list semi-annually of their subscribers; and that upon request the National Committee will furnish the respective State Committees with names of subscribers within their territorial jurisdiction.

Boston readers of The Worker should attend the debate on Socialism vs. the Single Tax at Machinists' Hall, 987 Washington street, on Sunday evening, Mar. 23.

Thomas Hooper, one of the active Socialists of Brighton, has been chosen business agent of Bookbinders' Union No. 16 of Boston and vicinity.

Maine has 108 members enrolled, of whom only 13 were in arrears for March.

Local charters have been issued to Shima, Utah, and Vernon, Idaho.

Socialists of Corona, Long Beach, and other Californian cities are putting up tickets.

Comrades Roche and Darrah are out on the war-path for the party in Southern California and seem to be making a great impression.—John A. Morris is also stirring things up in Redlands, San Bernardino, and other places.—Mills and Stitt Wilson are booked for meetings at Redlands.

The "Herald" of Warren, Mass., is an energetic supporter of the Socialist movement.

Socialism is commanding more and more favorable attention from the labor press and from the local papers in small cities and rural districts all over the country.

Comarde William Butscher is now on a tour through Rhode Island, Eastern Massachusetts, and New Hampshire in the interest of the Socialist press and the coming Socialist daily. Comrades along his route are requested to give him all possible assistance in his work.

Local Erie, Pa., is taking in new members at every meeting—twelve last time. The splendid vote cast by the Socialist Party in the city election has roused great enthusiasm and interest in the movement is increasing.

The "Chicago Socialist"—formerly the "Workers' Call"—of Mar. 15 contains a protest by the Illinois State Committee against the action taken by the National Committee in regard to payment of dues.

STRIKES--RIGHT OR WRONG.

By William S. Waudby.

Much valuable space is taken up in the daily press by articles deploring the innumerable strikes that are so constantly occurring throughout the country. These strikes represent the awakening of Labor, and each demand that is made upon Capital and granted means that other demands are to follow, these in turn to be followed by still further demands, until Labor will in time receive that which it produces. Capital has for centuries after centuries received all the surplus that Labor produced, and the laborer was quite well satisfied with his lot; but those golden days of exploitation are nearly past, and the laborer has through the past century of education (and agitation, if you please) discovered wherein he has been wronged. Hence we should not be surprised at the few troubles that are daily registered in this vast country of ours, as well as throughout the world at large.

The real wonder is that these outbreaks in the industrial world do not occur with much greater frequency. It speaks well for this nation that it has men who will strike against injustice and stand together for their rights to fair and just treatment.

These men and women who voluntarily relinquish their daily work (bread) while trying to better their conditions rarely lose anything, from a financial standpoint, during the year, from the time that they lose while on strike, for the reason that they will have worked just as many days during the strike year as they do any other year—their year's work is limited to so many days, whether they have strikes or not. The one that is hurt, however, is the employer of labor. For Capital cannot exist without Labor; without Labor the machinery is idle and rusty; decay overtakes that which is idle, the animate as well as the inanimate.

It is not the workingman that is responsible for these strikes, but the great industrial system that is at fault. These newspapers that furnish the general public with their knowledge rarely, if ever, mention the evils of the methods of industrial slavery, but harp constantly upon the "tyranny of Labor," the "unjust demands of Labor leaders," or throw a few sentences from the Bible, or possibly an adage or so from some old slave-driver, that they have saved out of the musty past, that will bolster up this false civilization.

Therefore, I repeat, that Labor is not responsible for these strikes, but the Capitalist System alone is responsible and must be prepared to pay the price for all its ill-gotten luxury until such time as it may be called to surrender its plunder to its rightful owners—the workingman and his despoiled family.

The day that Labor only receives his bare subsistance for his work will rapidly disappear, as soon as the worker comprehends fully that he is entitled by right to that which he produces, and that might has kept him from enjoying the full benefits that his labor should have brought him, instead of its being deflected into the hands of the idler and the non-producer. It is all simply a matter of education, after all.

Washington, D. C.

STRIKE AT THE WRONG.

Ye who would lend your fellowmen
To tread a nobler, better road,
Who strike by deed and tongue and pen
To lighten labor's galling load;
Have courage! Scorn the idle jeers,
Nor deem your slightest effort vain;
The world shall in the after years
Pay tribute to each ruthless brain.

Mankind shall claim the truths ye teach
And follow where your dreams have led.
The feet of progress soon shall reach
The paths ye soldiery tread.
Enlightenment shall sweep away
The ignorance that cries you down;
Ye bring the world a brighter day,
And place new gems in Freedom's crown.

The world has suffered, patient, long,
Beneath the grinding serfdom's sway
Of tasteless lives and mental wrong.
These file your light shall sweep away.
Your words of reason, flashing bright,
Shall set the toiling millions free;
Seeing hard the ax of Truth and Right—
Strike at the wrong, where'er it be.

—Robert T. Whitelaw.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Ruffle Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. George Smith, 309 Examiner Bldg., San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. R. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1262 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, F. L. Robinson, 421 W. Chestnut street, Louisville.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Winthrop Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Clarence Neely, 917 Johnson street, Saginaw, Mich. Meets at 121 N. Baum street.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room D, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Gaebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7.30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 15 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Eidsness, Towner.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 1145 W. Third street, Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, J. W. Quick, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

UTAH STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. H. Wilson, 1112 W. Seventh South, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Joseph Gilbert, Box 637, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 229 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

MASSACHUSETTS.

To the Members of the State Committee and the Socialist Party of Massachusetts:—By referendum vote of the State Committee, the vacancies on the State Committee have been filled as follows:

Cape District.—F. O. MacCartney of Rockland.

Second Hampden District.—E. A. Buckland of Holyoke.

Third Essex District.—Alfred Pearson of Newburyport.

The following rules for the State Committee have also been adopted:

1. A meeting of the entire State Committee may be called at any time by the Executive Committee.

2. Six members of the State Committee may at any time demand of the Executive Committee that a meeting of the entire State Committee shall be called.

3. Any three members of the State Committee may, through the Executive Committee, call for a referendum vote of the full membership of the State Committee on any new business or act of the Executive Committee.

4. Vacancies in the State Committee or the Executive Committee shall be filled by the Secretary calling for nominations from each member of the State Committee and, submitting all nominations to a referendum of the State Committee, each member having only one vote.

5. The Executive Committee shall meet at such time as they shall determine or on call of the Secretary or of any other officer of the State Committee through the Secretary.

I wish to call to the attention of the Socialists in Massachusetts the importance of organizing town and city committees:

Every town and city where they have enough votes to hold a caucus should have a political committee, and where there are three or more who are good Socialists, and can be depended upon to support our party and make no compromises, nor accept any nominations from the old parties or so-called citizens' or independent movements, and will send me their names and addresses constituting themselves a town or city committee of the Socialist Party, I will see that they have proper recognition and all of the rights of political committees for caucus and convention purposes. Town committees should be composed of three members or more; city committees of three members from each ward so far as possible. Officers of the committee should be a Chairman, a Secretary, and a Treasurer.

As two members can run a caucus and one town or city ward can elect delegates to and hold a convention, it can easily be seen what a vast amount of political machinery a few citizens can set in motion; and the more numerous are our candidates in nomination, the more we look like a party that means business, and thereby gain a political prestige.

To maintain securely our position as an official party, we must, if possible, hold Senatorial conventions in every district in the state, as there is where our members of the state committee must be elected. Last year twenty-eight out of forty of our members were elected at our political conventions. There is no reason why all should not be so elected, and in time to come it may be a legal necessity to so elect.

I here call attention to a list of towns and cities which cast votes for Governor arranged by Senatorial districts. If the several members of the State Committee will, so far as possible, get in touch with Socialists in these places, much progress may be made. These places have not, to my knowledge, a political committee, though some have Socialist clubs.

Cape District:—Barnstable, cast in 1901 6 votes.

First Bristol District.—Attleborough, cast in 1901, 11; Easton, 16; Taunton, 68.

Second Bristol District:—Fall River, cast in 1901, 174.

Third Bristol District.—New Bedford, cast in 1901, 110.

First Plymouth District.—Hanover, cast in 1901, 21 votes; Hanson, 19.

First Norfolk District:—Randolph, cast in 1901, 25 votes.

Second Norfolk:—Brookline, cast in 1901, 14 votes; Dedham, 24; Norwood, 25; Stoughton, 20; Walpole, 28.

First Suffolk District:—Revere, cast in 1901, 29 votes.

Second Essex:—Danvers, cast in 1901, 34 votes; Marblehead, 28.

Third Essex District:—Gloucester, cast in 1901, 32 votes; Ipswich, 13; Rockport, 14.

Fourth Essex District:—Merrimac, cast in 1901, 20 votes; West Newbury, 16.

Fifth Essex District:—Methuen, cast in 1901, 29 votes.

First Middlesex District:—Framingham, cast in 1901, 29 votes; Hopkinton, 12; Newton, 30; Watertown, 14.

Fourth Middlesex District:—Melrose, cast in 1901, 13 votes.

Fifth Middlesex District:—Marlborough, cast in 1901, 27 votes; Medford, 23; Waltham, 39 votes.

Sixth Middlesex District:—Pepperell, cast in 1901, 15 votes.

Seventh Middlesex.—Dracut, cast in 1901, 12 votes.

Middlesex and Essex District:—Peabody, cast in 1901, 23 votes; Saugus, 15; Wakefield, 29; Woburn, 29.

Third Worcester District:—Gardner, cast in 1901, 24 votes.

Fourth Worcester District:—Brookfield, cast in 1901, 24 votes; Dudley, 47; Leicester, 11; North Brookfield, 90; Southbridge, 19; Spencer, 24.

Fifth Worcester District:—Blackstone, cast in 1901, 12 votes; Grafton, 19; Hopedale, 76; Upton, 16.

Berkshire District:—Lanesborough, cast in 1901, 11 votes; North Adams, 17; Pittsfield, 33.

Berkshire and Hampshire District:—Great Barrington, cast in 1901, 17 votes; Northampton, 61; Southampton, 16; Williamsburg, 11.

Franklin and Hampshire Districts:—Greenfield, cast in 1901, 31 votes; Montague, 25; Orange, 17.

First Hampden District:—Palmer, cast in 1901, 45 votes.

Second Hampden District:—West Springfield, cast in 1901, 35 votes.

Total, 61 towns and cities, which might, by a little effort on the part of some one in each place, be added to the political and educational forces of Socialism.

Respectfully submitted,
SQUIRE E. PUTNEY,
Secretary State Committee, Socialist Party.

BOSTON CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

The Central Committee met on March 11 at 724 Washington street. Three delegates from Ward 9 were seated. Report of branches as follows: Ward 9 reported election of officers and admission of five new members. East Boston Branch reported Jos. F. Carey will speak there on Mar. 25 at Central Hall. Charlestown will hold public meeting next week.

The following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, To request the State Propaganda Committee to compile a list of speakers available, with their terms and other matters of general interest, and forward the same to the secretaries of the trade unions of the state."

Committee on Commune celebration reported progress. Mailly, Cutting, and Kunkow elected on the press committee. On motion all moneys accruing from lectures will be turned into a propaganda fund. Discussion of May Day celebration was made special order for next meeting. Mahoney, Cutting, and Dyer elected a committee with full power to call public meeting for speakers whenever occasion requires.

L. MARCUS, Secretary.

NEW YORK.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

The General Committee of Local New York will meet at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, Saturday evening, Mar. 22.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

The County Committee of Local Kings County will meet as regularly ordered in the by-laws of said county on Saturday evening, Mar. 22, at the Socialist Club, Ralph avenue and Fulton street, Brooklyn.

WARREN ATKINSON,
Organizer.

PENNSYLVANIA.

BIGELOW'S TOUR.

Geo. E. Bigelow will lecture in the following cities and towns:

Mar. 15—New Castle.
Mar. 16—New Brighton.
Mar. 18—East Pittsburg.
Mar. 19—Roscoe.
Mar. 20—Charleroi.
Mar. 22—Connellsville.
Mar. 24—Blairville.
Mar. 25—Black Lick.
Mar. 26—Spring Church.
Mar. 27—Williamsport.
Mar. 29—Carbondale.
Mar. 30—Wilkesbarre.
Mar. 31—Mauch Chunk.
April 1—Lehighton.
April 3—Ephrata.
April 4—Lancaster.
April 5—Maytown.
April 6—York.
April 7—Reading.
April 8—Pottstown.
April 9—Selbersville.
April 10—Philadelphia, 1022 Arch street.
April 11—Media.
April 12—Philadelphia, Fortieth Ward.

FOR NEW YORK STATE.

Every Socialist or Sympathizer in the State Is Called Upon to Help in the Work of Propaganda.

To the Workingmen of the State of the State of New York.

The Social Democratic Party of the state of New York asks your contribution for propaganda of Socialism. That is, provided you approve of Socialism, or the public ownership and operation of all industries for the benefit of all. For it is the supreme object of the Social Democratic Party to secure to every workingman the full fruit of his labor. If you believe that a working man must surrender the biggest part of his product to Rockefellers, Morgans, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Schwabs, and a swarm of smaller parasites, that they may bestow it on the pauperized nobility of Europe or on the owner of Monte Carlo—why you should support the Republican or Democratic party, for both these parties represent and are owned by the capitalist class. The Social Democratic Party alone stands for the interests of the working class.

Workingmen:—You have heard before our appeals, but you continued to stand in overwhelming numbers by the old parties. With what result? Republican and Democratic legislatures, Republican and Democratic judges are now, more than ever, the tools of your exploiters. Was there a crime perpetrated by the capitalists in which they were not protected by the very legislators and judges for whom you, workingmen, voted? Was there a right which you demanded that was not refused to you by the very men whom you have elected? Why continue to work against your own interests? The Social Democratic Party is your own party. It consists of workingmen and has no other supporters. Help it to spread Socialism. Help us to send out Socialist agitators. Help us to distribute Socialist literature. The dissemination of Socialist ideas means the final triumph of Socialism, and your own economic emancipation. Remember, he helps doubly who helps promptly.

Send contributions to Emil. Neppel, treasurer, S. D. P. State Committee, 288 W. 142d street, New York.

New York State Committee, S. D. P.
LEONARD D. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

All monies contributed will be acknowledged in The Worker "Volkszeitung" and "Vorwarts."

MARCH CELEBRATIONS IN HUDSON COUNTY.

The March celebrations of Hudson County, N. J., were inaugurated with a fair in West Hudson on Mar. 13, 14, and 15, which netted a handsome sum.

On Saturday a grand entertainment was held at Central Hall, Jersey City. The main features were an eloquent address by Comrade Spargo and a parody on the "Harmony Conference," written by Comrades Cole and Krafft. This can be produced by the smallest branch in the party, no scenery being necessary, and will prove an eye-opener to the dullest intellect.

On the following evening, at Odd Fellows' Hall, Hoboken, a changed program, with the exception of the parody, closed with Comrade Krafft's Socialist play, "Now and Then." The financial success is exceedingly encouraging, and the moral effect of the two plays will be far-reaching.

Comrades of New Jersey outside of Hudson County should begin to "hustle." A little effort will repay them a hundred fold. New Jersey is the great railroad center of the country, and the railroad men must be reached either through the medium of entertainment or by direct political agitation.

..AN OFFER..

"Railroading in the United States," by Ben Hanford ..... 5 cents.
"The Clerical Capitalist," by Rev. Father McGrady ..... 10 cents.
"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists," by H. Gaylord Wilshire 2 cents.
"Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," by Algernon Lee ..... 3 cents.
"The Proletariat," by Karl Kautsky ..... 5 cents.
"The Class War in Idaho," by Job Harriman. Third Edition. .. 5 cents.
"The Communist Manifesto," by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels. 10 cents.
"The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science," by F. Engels ..... 5 cents.
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. & L. A. Toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman ..... 5 cents.
"The Attitude of the Socialists Toward the Trade Unions," by N. I. Stone ..... 5 cents.
"The Capitalist Class," by Karl Kautsky ..... 5 cents.
"Now and Then," a Socialist play by Frederick Krafft ..... 10 cents.

On receipt of only 40 cents above 12 books will be mailed postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

Largest assortment of Literature on the Labor Question.
Catalogue Free.

ORDER BLANK FOR

THE WORKER'S

GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.

THE WORKER,
184 William Street, New York.

Enclosed find $..... for which send me..... copies of your issue of May 1st.

Name .....

Address .....

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

The party which this paper represents is known nationally as the Socialist Party, and such is its designation in most of the states. In New York, however, it keeps the former name of Social Democratic Party, for reasons concerning the election laws. It has no connection with the Socialist Labor Party and does not approve of the "union smashing" tactics or, the abusive methods used by that party. The Socialist—or Social Democratic—Party works in harmony with the trade unions, though without any organic connection. It holds itself free to criticize their policy when necessary, but it approves of the principle of trade unionism. It does not attempt to dictate to the unions nor is it dictated to by them. It calls upon all workingmen to join the unions of their respective trades as a means of fighting the daily battle against the capitalist class and to join and work and vote for the Socialist Party as a means of putting an end to capitalism.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

Below is a list of the subdivisions of Local New York, Socialist Party, with time and place of meeting. If you are not already a party member, but believe in the principles of Socialism, do not fail to attend the next meeting of your assembly district, join the party, and go to work.

The headquarters of Local New York are at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. Julius Gerber is the organizer, and to him all communications should be addressed. The General Committee, consisting of delegates from the subdivisions, meets in the Labor Lyceum on the second and fourth Saturday of each month.

1st, 3d, and 5th A. D.—Every Monday at 249 W. Eleventh street, house of L. D. Mayes.

2d and 8th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday of the month, at 73 Lydlow street.

4th A. D.—Every Friday at Pacific Hall, E. Broadway, near Clinton street.

9th and 10th A. D.—Second and fourth Friday, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

7th A. D.—First and third Wednesday, at Colonial Hotel, 243 W. Seventeenth street.

9th and 11th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 436 W. Thirty-eighth street.

12th A. D.—Every Friday at Grand Central Palace Hall, 99-96 Clinton street, Room 5.

13th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 342 W. Forty-second street.

14th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday, at 238 E. Tenth street.

15th and 17th A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 437 W. Fifty-third street.

16th A. D.—Every Friday at 616 E. Fifth street.

18th and 20th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 424 Rivington street.

19th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 125 Amsterdam avenue.

21st A. D.—First and third Friday, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue.

23d A. D.—Every Thursday at 312 E. Fifty-second street.

24th A. D.—(Branch 1.) Second and fourth Monday, at 240 Second avenue.

24th A. D.—(Branch 2.) Every Thursday at 215 E. 99th street.

28th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1452 Second avenue.

30th A. D.—(BOHEMIAN BRANCH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 326 E. Seventy-third street.

28th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1407 Avenue A.

29th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

31st A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at Sanders' Hotel, N. W. corner Park avenue and One Hundred and Fourteenth street.

32d and 33d A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1997 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 1, GERMAN).—Second and fourth Friday, at 3309 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 2308 Third avenue.

ANNEXED DISTRICT.—First and third Saturday, at Weide's Hotel, Tenth street and White Plains avenue, Williamsbridge.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

The headquarters of Local Kings County, at the Socialist Club, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, are open daily, from 12 m. to 10 p. m. Go for any and all information regarding the Local as well as all kinds of literature, including subscription cards for the party press.

The County Committee meets on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month at 8 p. m. The Local Organizer is Warren Atkinson, 25 S. Oxford street.

The following is a list of the Branches of the Local, with time and place of meeting:

1st, 2d, and 3d A. D. (American Branch.)—First and third Friday, at 121 Schermerhorn street.

5th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Emrich's, 5-7 Boerum street.

6th A. D.—Every Wednesday, at 222 Stockton street.

7th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at Bickenfeld's, 1232 Forty-fifth street.

12th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Tara Hall, Sixteenth street, near Fifth avenue.

13th and 14th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Eckford's Hall, corner Eckford and Collyer streets.

15th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 1257 Manhattan avenue.

16th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 9 McDougal street.

17th A. D.—First and third Sunday afternoon, at 9 McDougal street.

18th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 9 McDougal street.

19th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

20th A. D.—BRANCH 1, GERMAN.—First and third Wednesday, at 207 Hamburg avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 700 Evergreen avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN.—First and third Friday, at 675 Gleenmore avenue.

22d A. D.—First and third Friday, at New Central Hall, 410 Stone avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at Keystone Hall, Pennsylvania and Glenmore avenues.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is:
HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

Some Men Pay

$10.000 for an expert to manage their advertising. There are others who pay $5.00 for an annual subscription to Printers' Ink and learn what all the advertisers are thinking about. But even those are not the extremes reached; there are men who lose over $100.000 a year by doing neither one.

For sample copy send 10 cents to Printers' Ink, No. 10 Spruce St., N.Y. City.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,

730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.

Send for sample copies.

Subscription, $1.00 per year.

PATRONIZE .... FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM, 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th St. N.Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD

Decatur, Ill.

AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.

Subscription $1 per year, in advance.

HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3.500 COPIES.

Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

EMILE ZOLA'S
POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS.

Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.

"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "Human Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother," Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."

Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.

Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 20 Union Square

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING)
Residence 110 West 120th st. New York.

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERNATIONAL SHIRT WAIST LAUNDRY WORKERS UNION REGISTERED
This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs
No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

"Railroading in the United States."

BY BEN HANFORD.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

40 Copies..... $1.00
1000 " 25.00

Sent on receipt of price.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 William Street, New York.

R-I-P-A-N-S

I suffered from a difficulty about breathing, a sort of breathlessness which was very distressing. It was always worse on just rising. I thought these spells proceeded from something wrong with the heart, but I believe now it is connected with the stomach, for I find Ripans Tabules do me good, and my breathing is better already. I do not have that miserable, depressed feeling, and can eat and sleep well.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

PARTY BUTTONS

We manufacture three different sizes in ½, ⅞, and 1½ in. diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the ½ in. size simply with Arm and Torch emblem.

1 Button ..... 5 cents.
12 Buttons ..... 25 cents
25 Buttons ..... 50 cents
100 Buttons $1.75

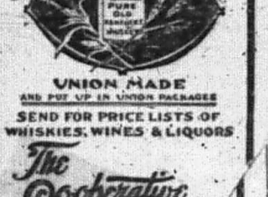
Cash must accompany all orders.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE

—SUCCESSOR TO—
'CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.

Five Postals for $1.25; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.

For Sale on all New York News-stands.

Never let Whiskey get the best of you
Get the best of it
BUY GOVERNMENT PROOF KENTUCKY WHISKIES


UNION MADE
AND PUT UP IN UNION PACKAGES
SEND FOR PRICE LISTS OF WHISKIES, WINES & LIQUORS
The Cooperative Liquor Co
DISTILLERS AGENTS INCORPORATED COVINGTON, KY.
When ordering mention THE WORKER.

Just Received from England
A large importation of "CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.

Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.

CONTENTS:

Preface by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The Transformation of Money into Capital.
III.—The Production of Absolute Surplus Value.
IV.—Production of Relative Surplus Value.
V.—Production of Absolute and of Relative Surplus Value.
VI.—Wages.
VII.—The Accumulation of Capital.
VIII.—The So-called Primitive Accumulation.

Library Edition, cloth, $2.50, postpaid.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

READY AGAIN.

"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists." By H. Gaylord Wilshire. Price, 2 cents; 100 copies, $1.25, postpaid. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

Trades' and Societies' Calendar

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

Organizations should not lose such an opportunity for advertising their places of meetings.

BRANCH 2, S. D. P., 34th and 35th A. D. (formerly Socialist Science Club), meets second and fourth Thursday evenings of each month at the Workingmen's Educational Club, 3309 Third avenue.

BRANCH 2 (English), 20th A. D. (Brooklyn), S. D. P.—Meets every second and fourth Tuesday evening at 700 Evergreen avenue. All Socialists of the district are invited to join. H. A. Guerth, 1328 Bushwick avenue, will receive subscriptions for The Worker.

CARL SAHM CLUB, MUSICIANS' UNION. Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 10 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, H. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street.—District I. (Bohemian), 231 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 19 Stanton Street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 86th Street, every Saturday at 7.30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Flescher, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

PENNSYLVANIA.

WILKES-BARRE—Local Luzerne Co., Pa., Socialist Party meets every Sunday at 3 p. m., at 487 South Grant street. All Socialists are invited.

Arbei

WHERE WORK MEANS DEATH.

Pictures of Life in the Smelters.

The Misery of Western Workers Who Have Created Millions and Put Their Exploiters in the United States Senate.

From the "Utah Labor Journal" of Salt Lake City we take the following account of the life—or, rather, the living death—of the men who work in the smelting industry and whose labor piles up the millions which constitute the title of such men as W. A. Clark to their seats in the United States Senate:

Millionaires and Miners.

"A drive through the principal residence streets of our inter-mountain cities will take you by the homes of many millionaires. Ask the question as to how the fortunes were accumulated that made those mansions possible, and the answer will be in very many instances that the wealth was taken from the mines. It means that labor of the hardest kind has been crystallized into money, and that the fortunate owner lives like a king. But what of the worker who makes by his toil the luxury of the millionaire? No thought is given to him. In the social scale he is nothing. It is the worker who delves into the bowels of the earth away from the sunshine and in the constant shadow of death; it is the worker who brings the treasure to the surface; and it is the worker who takes the crude ores and extracts from them the pure metals. All these have their place in the chain of hands which begins in the mountains and ends at the mint.

"Of these, none is of greater importance than the workers who toil in the smelters. A glance at them from the standpoint of labor is the object of this article.

The Smelter Trust.

"To begin with, the smelters have been formed into one of the most gigantic trusts recorded in the world's history. This means that a study has been made of the question of wages, and that the least amount of money upon which a worker can subsist and keep at his toil has been computed, and is given to the employees. The word 'trust' implies this and the smelters in Salt Lake Valley are no exception to the rule.

"A reporter of the 'Journal' took a trip through the valley for the purpose of meeting with the men, learning the average wages paid, and the duties which are expected and given by those who labor in the smelters.

"On nearing the smelters the visitor is struck by the sulphurous smoke which hangs in a dense cloud over the works. Tall chimneys vomit forth the fumes of hell and poisons inimical to human life are floating in the atmosphere. So greatly has this become the case that bee-keepers find it impossible to keep their colonies within a radius of ten miles of the smelters.

No Healthy Faces.

"Upon entering the works the first sight that meets the eye is immense furnaces vomiting forth masses of molten metal and slag, and giving out fumes that are sickening in the extreme. A glance into the faces of the workers shows that there is not a healthy-looking man among them all. [illegible] proved that not one out of a hundred can work continuously for a period of more than three months without becoming sick and being obliged to [illegible] to get the poisons. It was learned that [illegible] who controls the [illegible] from the furnaces to-day, the high[illegible]partment. For [illegible] run down to [illegible] from this sum the [illegible]ldleness and it will [illegible]ne trust has figured the [illegible]nt down very fine, in[illegible]

[illegible]ng Death.

"[illegible]airs, the visitor is [illegible] to Hades while [illegible]hat the fur[illegible] through the [illegible] opening[illegible] death. [illegible] fumes of [illegible]th poison, and the visitor [illegible]cious of a feeling of nausea [illegible]he open air. Yet in this [illegible] men work for eight hours [illegible]. How men can live at all in [illegible]deal ing atmosphere is one of [illegible] of modern times. But do they live? No, they die. It is a living death that weakens the strong man and transforms him into an invalid. It takes the hue of health from his cheeks and places in its stead the pallor of the corpse. It fills his body with the tortures of the damned and places him in the end a helpless, useless wreck upon the cold charity of a frigid world. All this is endured for a sum of money ranging from $2.25 per day to $1.50 for the lesser help. Three months is the longest term any man can work continuously, and very often the health of the operative is permanently destroyed during that length of time. The other employees, though not exposed to so great an extent to the deadly fumes, come in contact with them, and their wages are scored down to the bare point of subsistence. The pallid faces, the pain-racked bodies, prematurely aged by poison, is the toll that the monster of greed asks in its passing of the workers of mankind. While the trust is figuring the miner out of his just dues in petty steals taken from the value of his ore, the same hand not only robs the worker of health and life, but despoils him of his just compensation for the dangerous duties performed.

Children on Altar of Greed.

"Nor is this all. The trust stands indicted for employing mere children around their works on account of the cheapness of this class of labor can be purchased at. There are many boys, whose proper place is in the school room, who begin thus early to offer their young lives upon this hydra-headed altar of greed. No one who knows anything about the business of smelting as it is carried on by the trust, can for a moment deny that the profits are great, that the shareholders are growing rich and richer day by day, but that they should increase their wealth at the expense of human life is a shame and a travesty upon the boasted civilization of the twentieth century. Not only is the trust robbing the workers, but the entire public as well, for by the nature of the work there are many who are thrust early upon the state for support, who must be taken care of after their health and strength has been given that the millionaires of the East might add to their already overgrown fortunes."

But One Way Out.

